Russians Capture Velikie Luki, 90 Miles From Border of Latvia; Take Elista in Drive for Rostov

Entire Garrison at Base 90 Miles From Latvia Killed.

ONE OF BEST IN ENEMY LINE

Elista Taken in South and Several Dozen Towns In Middle Don Fall.

JAN 2 1943

By Henry C. Cassidy

MOSCOW, Saturday, Jan. 2—(AP)—Velikie Luki, strongly held city on the central front only 90 miles from the Latvian border, and Elista, capital of the desolate Kalmyck republic below Stalingrad have been captured by the Russians in smashing new victories in the northwest and south of Russia, a special Soviet communique said early today.

The entire German garrison at Velikie Luki, 260 miles northwest of Moscow, was wiped out "in view of the fact that the enemy refused to lay down their arms," the Russians said.

One of Strongest In Hitler Line

It was one of the strongest Hitlerian positions in the broad central front, forming with Rzhev and Vyazma a great triangle of defense. The Russians long have been west of Rzhev and at the approximate center of the triangle at Bely, at a point only 60 miles north of Smolensk in the Napoleanic corridor of retreat.

The regular midnight Soviet communique, repeating the announcement of the recapture of Velikie Luki and Elista, declared as well that the Soviet offensives in the middle Don and southwest of Stalingrad were rolling on and that scores of towns and villages had been recaptured—"several dozen" in the latter area alone.

Elista is 170 miles south of Stalingrad, but the Russians were well beyond it on the banks of the frozen Lake Manych, only 90 miles short of the major Caucasian rail center at Salsk. The main Russian weight appeared directed at Salsk, whence a railway leads 100 miles to Rostov to the northwest.

Rostov is threatened by other Russian forces sweeping south from the middle Don below surrounded Millerovo. This force is less than 100 miles from the city at the mouth of the Don—the gateway to the Caucasus.

The special communique also announced the capture of the district centers of Tarmokhin, southwest of Stalingrad, and Chikola, in the north Canucasus.

The town and railway station of Velikie Luki both were captured "as the result of a decisive assault," the communique said.

Veliki Luki is on the railway leading from Riga, Latvia, through Novosokolniki to Rzhev and Moscow and is one of the main German supply routes from the Reich through Riga. It also is on a branch line leading northwest from Polotsk in White Russia to a juncture with the Moscow-Leningrad line above Kalinin.

Furthest Advance Yet

The capture of Velikie Luki placed the Russians at a point further west than they have ever reached before and the Red Army was declared in a good position to drive west along the railway toward Riga.

Novosokolniki is only 20 miles west of Velikie Luki and is at a junction of another railway leading from Leningrad to Vitebsk which is a major supply artery for the German armies on the central front and their forces besieging Leningrad. The loss of Novosokolniki would endanger the whole German defense system on the central front pivoting on Smolensk.

(The Germans claimed the capture of several places on the central front in in the Don bend, and said Russian attacks in the Caucasus, at Stalingrad and in the Lake Ilmen region were repelled.)

The Russian drive in the Kalmyck steppes increased the danger to all the German forces buried deep in the Caucasus before the oil fields of Grozny in the Mozdok and Nalchik areas.

The advance past Priyutnoe sent the Red Army forces pushing south and southwest of the great graveyard of Stalingrad 40 miles southwest of the Kalmyck Republic capital of Elista, which either had fallen or been bypassed.

Reaching For Salsk

By reaching Salsk, the Russians would sever a vital communication link to the sorely beset Germans southeast of Nalchik in the Central Caucasus. Moreover, they would be astride a railway leading about 100 miles northwest through Bataisk to Rostov, already threatened by Russians driving down the Moscow-Rostov railway to a point less than 100 miles from the great city on the Sea of Azov.

The brilliant six weeks campaign which saved Stalingrad with the killing or capture of 312,650 Axis troops left the remnants of 22 half-starved enemy divisions fenced in a steel ring of bayonets and guns in a narrowing corridor between the Volga and Don. The surrounding Russian mass was 37 miles wide at its narrowest point.

Russian Press Jubilant

The jubilant Russian press featured the victory pronouncement with solid spreads on their front pages and proclaimed Gen. Gregory Zhukov as the supreme hero.

It was Zhukov who saved Moscow last winter, and now the Russian people were surprised to hear that he had succeeded Marshal Zemeon Timoshenko as commander in the critical southwest region. Zhukov was last heard from last summer when he commanded a central front offensive in the Rzhev sector and was appointed vice commissar of defense, second only to Stalin as military leader. The whereabouts of Timoshenko were not disclosed, but he was believed to have another important command.

(The Germans said Russian attacks were repelled in the Terek-Caucasus region, at Stalingrad, in the great Don bend and south of Lake Ilmen. The Germans claimed the capture of several places on the central front and the destruction of 743 Soviet tanks in the last ten days of December.)

Several dozen more blockhouses were cleared inside northern Stalingrad and northwest of the Volga city. The Russian noon communique said the Red army improved its positions and took prisoners. Several villages were declared captured southwest of the city as "our troops continued their pursuit of the enemy."

Hedgehog Positions By-Passed

At one point a strong German hedgehog position was by-passed and then attacked from the rear, with 400 Germans killed and others captured. German counter-attacks were reported on the middle Don but there too the Russians made local advances, capturing 450.

In the Velikie Luki sector on the central front 260 miles northwest of Moscow, the Russians declared they captured "a whole series of fortified strongpoints."

(The Germans said yesterday that Velikie Luki was surrounded and the Russians were attacking from all sides.) Enemy counter-attacks were reported repelled west of Rzhev.

Enemy slain overnight in all these operations totaled about 2,000, by Russian figures.

The main Russian thrust currently is aimed at clearing the Caucasus.

Low lying Lake Manych, whose western tip is at the approaches of Salsk, presented a favorable avenue of attack for Soviet task forces, now that the lake is frozen solid and blanketed with snow. Besides the railway to Rostov, Salsk is on the North Caucasus line leading from Stalingrad.

Twenty miles south of Priyutnoe is Divnoe, terminal of a branch railway to the Rostov-Baku trunk.

German Flanks Pressed

Further north along the Don, the German flanks were pressed by two Russian salients southwest of Stalingrad through Kotelnikovski, and west of Stalingrad to isolated Millerovo.

The army newspaper Red Star said that in the final stage of the Stalingrad offensive southwest of the city, the Russians defeated German forces commanded by Gen. Fritz Von Mannstein, the conqueror of Sevastopol.

Von Mannstein's three tank, three infantry and two cavalry divisions of about 125,000 men advanced from 25 to 35 miles during the German counteroffensive between Dec. 12-24 in which they sought to relieve the forces encircled between the Don and Volga.

The Russian counteratiack starting Christmas eve threw the Germans back from the Aksai River and recovered in three days all the territory taken by the Germans in 12.

More Critical For Foe

The position of the Germans before Stalingrad was said to be growing ever more critical as the Nazis were tormented by blizzards, bitter winds and gripping cold on the battle scarred Steppes.

They still clung to two small footholds on the west bank of the Volga, 12 miles apart in north and south Stalingrad. From the western outskirts of the city, they were confined in a 20-mile-wide salient extending a little more than 30 miles to the west.

Trapped Germans were reported to have dug themselves in deeply in basements, sewers and water conduits in parts of Stalingrad, while the Russians often controlled the surface above them. Dispatches said Germans often were killed when they came up for food or water.

Red Star said the Germans were receiving rations of only 20 to 30 cartridges a day and had been ordered to shoot only when attacked. Their food ration was said to consist of 100 grams of bread and a portion of horse meat daily. The Germans were described as wild men in appearance—unshaven, dirty and living like moles.

The Russians were reported walking upright within 40 yards of some German trenches where the slightest movement during the siege would have brought a storm of fire. Horse-drawn sleighs brought supplies across the Volga ice to Stalingrad in broad daylight. The Volga froze solid on Dec. 12, the day the middle Don drive began.

German Toll in Russian Push Is Put at 312,650

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,

Associated Press War Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Jan. 1.—Leaving the Kalmyck capital of Elista far in its rear, the Red Army has driven to the shores of the great lake east of Salsk in an offensive aimed directly at the Caucasus after trapping 22 divisions at Stalingrad and killing or capturing 312,650 of the enemy, the Russians reported today.

The rush to the shores of the great lake, now frozen and covered with snow, carried the Russian troops to a point about 40 miles southwest of Elista in the biggest single day's jump of the offensive below Stalingrad.

The Russian winter campaigns thus had put the Germans forces in the Caucasus in an increasingly dangerous position after building a wall 37 miles thick at its narrowest point around the 22 German divisions trapped at Stalingrad.

The advance point reached yesterday, a Soviet communique disclosed, was Priyutnoe, about 40 miles south of Remontnoe, which was taken the previous day.

Garrison Virtually Encircled.

The German garrison at Elista was virtually encircled, with the Russians having passed by both on the south and the north.

The lake spreads northwest to the approaches of Salsk, only about 90 miles away, and its frozen surface, it was believed, would facilitate the Russians advance at this season.

Salsk is a key point of the railway system south of the Don. It is on the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway and a junction point for a connecting line to Rostov. Consequently it was of importance in maintaining the connection between the Germans in the Caucasus and in the Ukraine.

Twenty miles south of Priyutnoe is Divnoe, the starting point of another railway linked with the Rostov-Baku trunk line. An advance along that line would threaten isolation of the German forces buried deep in the Mozdok and Nalchik sectors of the Caucasus.

Another dangerous bend had been created for the Germans farther north along the Don, where their flanks were menaced by two Red Army salients southwest of Stalingrad through Kotelnikovski and west of Stalingrad to the Millerovo area.

The Germans still held the latter town, but the railroad leading southwest to Voroshilovgrad had been cut.

The two Russian arms thus threatened a second vast encirclement of German forces in the Don bulge.

JAN 2

The present front line, as traced on maps published by morning newspapers along with a New Year special communique, was as follows:

Starting on the Don at Novaya Kalitva, 25 miles southeast of Rossosh below Voronezh, it ran southwest through Markovka, then south of Voloshino, 20 miles southwest of Millerovo.

The line made a sharp bend northeast around Millerovo and back to the southwest to Verkhne Tarasovka, 15 miles south of Millerovo.

A series of curves then led southeast to Tatsinskaya, on the Stalingrad-Likhaya railway, east to Gherishkovski, then south across the Don to the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railroad just east of Dubovskoye, then southeast toward the salient past Elista.

The special New Year communique said 1,589 towns had been captured in the powerful triple offensive on both sides of Stalingrad, in the middle Don and southwest of Stalingrad which began November 19. Advances up to 125 miles had been chalked up, it said.

The special bulletin disclosed that the Red Army drives northwest and southwest of Stalingrad, through the middle Don area, and far south of Stalingrad were three closely-knit phases of one major strategic operation, carefully drawn up by the Red Army command to save Stalingrad.

"The aim was skillfully accomplished," the communique declared.

It revealed that the Soviet drives went into high gear December 12 and imputed bad planning to the German high command.

"In the course of September, 1942, the German Fascist troops were halted by the Red Army before Stalingrad," the special victory recapitulation recounted.

"The war's trend disclosed that the German strategic plans to capture Stalingrad and to cut off the central European part of the Soviets from the Volga and the Urals was hurriedly formed without taking into account their actual resources and the Soviet reserves.

"In complete contrast was the Soviet's strategic plan for surrounding and defeating the German troops at Stalingrad, drawn up by the supreme command of the Red Army. This plan was carried out in November and December, 1942."

Twenty-seven Russian commanders were cited specifically in the communique for their leadership among infantry, tank and plane forces, under the general leadership of Gen. Gregory K. Zhukov. Commanders principally singled out were Col. Gen. N. F. Vatutin, Lt. Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky, Lt. Gen. F. I. Golikov, Col. Gen. Yeremenko, Col. Gen. Vissilevsky and Col. Gen. Voronov.

Claim Nazi Entrapment.

For the first time Soviet authorities claimed officially that the 22 German divisions before Stalingrad —some of the Nazi troops still hold dugouts in the factory area of the Volga River port—were tightly encircled.

And for the first time Col. Gen. Yeremenko was named as the defense comander of the city which went under siege 131 days ago today.

(Gen. Yeremenko was not listed in available American directories and his name has not figured in Soviet strategy reports before.)

The regular communique of the Soviet command, issued early today following the special announcement, said the drives continued yesterday on all fronts. It reported the capture of Oblivskaya, a city on the Chir River in the Lower Don, 90 miles west of Stalingrad and 100 miles southeast of Millerovo. A train load of airplanes was reported taken at Oblivskaya.

The capture of the district centers of Nizhne Chirskaya, about 65 miles southeast of Stalingrad on the west bank of the Don near its junction with the Chir River, and of Pritnaya also was announced.

Offensive Continues.

The third communique of New Year Day, the Soviet Information Bureau's midday bulletin, said the Russian offensive continued to roll in last night's fighting, with the capture of several more populated places southwest of Stalingrad and three more towns in the middle Don.

German counterattacks remained bitter, the bulletin said, but futile.

It described the success of a Russian tank outfit southwest of Stalingrad in destroying 300 Germans along with their equipment.

"In another sector," it reported, "Germans who had fortified themselves in their positions attempted to halt the advance of a Soviet unit. Our troops by-passed the enemy and then attacked him from the rear. In fierce engagements 400 enemy officers and men were killed and war material and prisoners were captured."

The advance, which swept three more towns into the Russian fold in the Middle Don, also netted 450 prisoners and equipment, the communique said.

Marked for Annihilation.

In the Velikie Luki area, the Russians said encircled Axis garrisons were marked for annihilation. In the region west of Rzhev, Red Army units were dislodging Germans from strongpoints, the Soviet report said.

(The Germans have admitted that Velikie Luki is surrounded by the Russians.)

The special war summary disclosed in detail the plans to save Stalingrad, which is named for Premier Joseph Stalin and which survived bitter pounding blows after Stalin himself addressed a plea to the Russian people to hold the city.

The communique listed the capture of 213 populated places in advances of 43 to 93 miles in the first operation. Here 95,000 enemy troops were reported killed, 72,400 captured, 134 planes captured and 286 destroyed, 1,792 tanks captured and 548 destroyed, 7,306 trucks captured and 3,190 destroyed, and 2,232 guns captured and 934 destroyed.

In the second—the middle Don—operation, a total of 1,246 towns and village was captured, the Russians said, in advances ranging from 93 to 125 miles. The Axis dead were listed at 59,000 and captured at 60,050. The Russians counted as captured and destroyed 485 planes, 340 tanks, 8,414 trucks and 2,197 guns.

62-to-93-Mile Advances.

In the third operation south of Stalingrad, advances of from 62 to 93 miles swept in to 130 towns, killed 21,000 Germans, and captured 5,200, the communique said. It listed as captured and destroyed 346 planes, 561 tanks, 549 guns and 1,274 trucks.

The communique was specific in listing by division numbers the 36 German and Rumanian divisions reported routed, including six tank divisions, and the seven others which it said suffered heavy losses.

(A recording of the broadcast communique in London contained the phrase "The German army in Stalingrad is liquidated completely," but fuller versions of the text, available later, did not bear this out.)

In the recapitulation of materiel, ordnance and war goods taken or destroyed during the advances, the special war bulletin noted 137,850 rifles, more than 5,000,000 shells, more than 50 million rounds of ammunition, 2,120 railway trucks, 46 locomotives, 15,783 horses and 2,221 motorcycles.

CONVOYS TO RUSSIA RUN ON TIMETABLE, SAYS ROYAL NAVY

German Ships Unable to Halt Delivery of Supplies to Soviets.

JAN 2 1943

LONDON, Jan. 1—Convoys to Russia are running on "regular timetable" despite all German efforts and Nazi capital ships have been contained harmlessly during the year, the Royal navy review for 1942 said today.

The bitterest convoy fighting occurred on the north Russia and Malta runs, but the navy proudly declared:

"In effect, we have said: 'We are going to run this convoy through and be damned to you.'"

U. S. Writes Review

In a complementary review, United States naval headquarters in London declared that the U. S. Navy "has come back fighting" since Pearl Harbor.

"Today, the United States holds Guadalcanal," the review noted.

A U. S. spokesman said that this, with American-Australian gains in New Guinea, would open the way for progressive assaults to win back Japanese conquests and be climaxed by the final assault on Japan itself.

The Royal navy's review was in matter-of-fact language. It was a report filled with confidence and with stories of intense air and surface fights and dogged persistence on the seven seas by the Allied navies.

Allied Subs Busy

Allied submarines during the year "have sunk or probably sunk 106 supply ships, 15 warships and damaged 39 supply ships and nine warships," the British said. "Of these 35 have been sunk or probably sunk and 20 have been damaged in the Mediterranean during the last three months."

The Royal navy noted that German capital ships, particularly the 35,000-ton battleship Tirpitz, which has remained in Norwegian waters since January, and the battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, which escaped from Brest to the Baltic sea, have been "contained with superior forces."

"They were prevented from disputing our control in the home waters, on the Russian convoy route and in the Atlantic," the review declared.

Russian Claims Are 'Fanciful,' Says Berlin

NEW YORK, Jan. 1 (AP)(AP)—The German radio had little to say tonight to the special Russian communique issued early today in Moscow in which the Russians announced 22 German divisions had been encircled in the Stalingrad area and that 312,650 Germans and Axis-allied soldiers had been killed or captured in the three great drives on the Stalingrad approaches.

The German Transocean News Agency had this to say in the first and thus far the only Nazi comment on the Russian report:

"The Soviet Union and her Anglo-American Allies on New Year's Day flooded the world with boastful reports summing up successes allegedly scored by Sovviet armies in the past year.

"These fanciful summaries were registered with composure here, since it can hardly be denied that the actual results of the fighting on the Eastern front last year were as follows: The German and allied troops occupied another 380,000 square kilometers (225,000 square miles), gaining possession of the most important agricultural and industrial regions of the Soviet Union."

Soviet Casualties High, Nazis Report

JAN 2 1943

Berlin

New York, Jan. 1—The Berlin radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press here today, quoted a German high command announcement that the Russians had "again sustained heavy casualties in continuing their fruitless attacks" at Stalingrad, in the Don bend and in the Terek area of the Caucasus.

German counter-attacks in the central sector were said to have expelled the Russians from several positions and to have destroyed thirteen enemy tanks. In all, the Soviets were declared to have lost thirty-three tanks in the day's fighting, and to have lost a total of 742 tanks between December 21 and December 31.

The comunique revealed that the Russians had renewed their attacks south of Lake Ilmen on the northwest front, using "numerous" tanks, but said the thrusts were frustrated and eight tanks destroyed.

British, Nazi Warships Continue Battle in Northern Waters

German Cruiser Damaged, Destroyer Possibly Sunk, Admiralty Says in London

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—A sharp battle between units of the British and German fleets apparently still was being fought somewhere in northern waters today, but news of the engagement was limited to a terse Admiralty communique last night which reported a Nazi cruiser damaged and a destroyer possibly sunk.

British morning newspapers, however, speculated on the possibility that the powerful German battleship Tirpitz, the 10,000-ton cruiser Prinz Eugen and other vessels of the German Navy might have been intercepted in an attempt to sneak out into the Atlantic.

The Daily Mirror suggested that the Prinz Eugen might conceivably be the cruiser the Admiralty reported had been hit and had withdrawn from the action, which the communique said was continuing.

The Tirpitz last was reported to have left her hiding place along the coast of Norway last August when the Russians said one of their submarines had torpedoed and damaged her in an attempted raid on Allied supply lanes.

Besides the Tirpitz and the Prinz Eugen, the Germans are believed to have concentrated in Norwegian waters the 10,000-ton cruiser Admiral Hipper, the pocket battleships Admiral Scheer and the Luetzow, 20 destroyers and a flotilla of submarines.

The 26,000-ton battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau are believed still in the Baltic, where they spent some time undergoing repairs suffered in their dash through the British Channel last February.

ADMIRALTY SILENT ON NAVAL BATTLE

JAN 2 1943

London Press Speculates Tirpitz, Prinz Eugen May Have Been in Action.

LONDON, Jan. 1—(AP) Speculation that the big battleship Tirpitz may have led a strong German naval force in an attempt to break out into the north Atlantic remained unanswered tonight as the Admiralty kept silence on the outcome of a sea fight between British and German fleet forces.

The Daily Mirror suggested that the 10,000-ton Prinz Eugen might have been the cruiser which the Admiralty said was damaged and withdrew from the action in northern waters yesterday. A German destroyer was reported possibly sunk.

There was no announcement of what other ships were involved, but the Admiralty said last night that the fight was continuing.

It was the Prinz Eugen which accompanied the powerful Nazi battleship Bismarck on the raid into the Atlantic in May, 1941, when the Bismarck, sister ship of the Tirpitz, was bombed, shelled, torpedoed and sunk. The Prinz Eugen got away.

Besides the Tirpitz and Prinz Eugen, the Germans are believed to have in Norwegian waters the pocket battleships Admiral Scheer and Luetzow, the 10,000-ton cruiser Admiral Hipper, 20 destroyers and many submarines.

The Tripitz last was reported to have ventured out from the Norwegian fjords last August for a raid on the Allied convoy route to Murmansk. The Russians said one of their submarines torpedoed her and sent her back to port to repair her damage.

British Subs Destroy Two Big Supply Ships In Mediterranean

Enemy Destroyer Also Believed Sunk in Action Off Tunisia

JAN 2 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Allied submarines and planes scored new successes in the Tunisian battle of supply as patrols on both sides tested the battle lines, possibly as a preliminary to the decisive test of strength.

Two more Axis supply ships and perhaps a destroyer have been sunk by British submarines off the Gulf of Tunis and off Bizerte, the Admiralty announced.

From Cairo British headquarters announced two new aerial assaults on the east coast port of Sfax, where docks, railway sidings, a power station, warehouses and other buildings were hit Wednesday night and Thursday.

A fourth ship, Cairo said, was hit by an aerial torpedo in a foray off Sicily and was set on fire.

In another attack on Axis supply arrangements, raiders from the Middle East command also visited Candia Airdrome in Crete and set 30 hrs, the communique said.

There was no new report from the British 8th Army, however, as it continued its pressure on Marshal Erwin Rommel west of Wadi Bei El Chebir, 180 miles east of Tripoli.

An Allied headquarters communique last night said the Germans, in what apparently was an exploratory operation toward the south end of the Allied line in Northern Tunisia had made a stab in the Bou Arada area, 15 miles west of Pone-du-Fahs, and shelled the station there.

Previously, French forces had been reported exerting pressure south of Pont-du-Fahs, but there was no reliable indication whether the Germans had penetrated into Allied lines in this operation.

Bou Arada is about 15 miles south of Medjez-el-Bab.

On the other hand, French troops captured a position northwest of Heidous, which is a few miles north of Medjez-el-Bab.

The Italians claimed to have captured prisoners and material in patrol actions in both Tunisia and Libya and asserted that a motorized formation was dispersed in the Fezzan area of Southern Libya, where fighting French have been pushing northward.

The Italian communique said there was "lively exploratory" action in this zone about 550 miles south of Tripoli.

In an aerial attack on an Allied convoy off Bone, it added, two merchant ships were hit.

nounced here, while thirty-three Fortresses and Liberators and Boston light bombers were reported lost.

American fighter pilots made approximately 1,350 patrols over Europe and conducted nearly 900 offensive operations, a recapitulation showed. Nine pilots are missing from those missions.

RAF Blasts Western Reich And Rail Targets in France

JAN 2 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—The RAF started off the New Year by bombing targets in Western Germany during the night, the Air Ministry announced today.

Railway targets in Northern France also were attacked and mines were laid in enemy waters, a communique said. Loss of two bombers in the night operations was acknowledged.

The specific targets which were attacked in Germany and the size of the raiding force were not immediately disclosed.

Britain, meanwhile, spent a raid-free night, no enemy planes being reported over the country up to 7 a.m. today.

The British aerial operations last night followed up attacks by RAF bombers and fighters yesterday on railroad yards and assembly shops in Occupied France and Belgium.

Six locomotives were reported damaged and bomb bursts were seen in the target areas in these assaults. No planes were lost, the Air Ministry said, though two fighters were reported missing following a sweep over the Pas de Calais area. Two enemy planes also were listed as destroyed over the continent.

British Destroyer Is Reported Lost

LONDON, Jan. 1—(AP)—The Admiralty announced tonight the loss of the Hunt class Destroyer Blean. No details were given.

The authoritative shipping guide, Jane's fighting ships, lists the Blean in a special late addenda, indicating that she was one of the newer vessels of the Royal Navy.

Yankees Bag 200 Nazis

London, Jan. 1 (AP)—United States heavy bombers destroyed more than 200 German fighters in twenty-six raids over Nazi-occupied France during 1942, the Eighth United States Army Air Force announced here, while thirty-three Fortresses and Liberators and Boston light bombers were reported lost.

American fighter pilots made approximately 1,350 patrols over Europe and conducted nearly 900 offensive operations, a recapitulation showed. Nine pilots are missing from those missions.

King's Message To Roosevelt

JAN 2 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 1 — King George VI has sent New Year's messages to President Roosevelt and to Michael Kalinin, president of the Soviet Union.

His message to the President was addressed also "to the gallant forces under your command and to all the American people" and hailed recent Allied victories as forerunners of heavy blows.

To Kalinin he voiced his praise of the "indomitable tenacity of the armies of our Soviet Allies."

Hails U. S. Achievements

The message to President Roosevelt said:

"At the opening of a new year so full of promise for the United Nations I send my warmest wishes to you, Mr. President, personally, to the gallant forces under your command and to all the American people.

"I and my peoples are deeply appreciative of all that the United States have achieved in the common cause under your inspiring leadership. We feel confident that recent victories of the United Nations are but the forerunners of the heavy blows which in the coming year they will together strike at the enemies of civilization."

His Message To Russia

The similarly optimistic message to President Kalinin added:

"I welcome also this opportunity of voicing the admiration felt by the British peoples for the indomitable tenacity of the armies of our Soviet allies, a tenacity which has enabled them, after long and grievous sacrifices, to launch their counter offensives with such brilliant success."

and Sir Charles McMoran Wilson.

Sir Miles is the present British Ambassador to Egypt and high commissioner for the Sudan; Sir Charles, the president of the Royal College of Physicians, has been on guard over Winston Churchill's health.

Among nine made Knights Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George was Godfrey D. H. Haggard, the British consul-general in New York.

Ladies Win Honors

Among the ladies honored was Lillian Braithwaite, created a Dame of the British Empire for her services to the stage. Lady Mountbatten, wife of the present Commando leader, was given the CBE—Commander of the British Empire.

Among those made Companions of the Order of St. Michael and St. George were William Boyd, deputy representative of the War Transport Ministry in the United States; Thomas H. Brand, chief executive on the British side of the combined production resources board in Washington, and John A. Stirling, representative of the Board of Trade in Washington.

Gort, Wavell Made Field Marshals By King

JAN 2 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 1—Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger J. B. Keyes, the first leader of Britain's Commandos and one of the Government's severest naval critics, was made a baron by the King in a long and democratic honors lists published today.

General Lord Gort, who was at the head of British troops in Flanders and now commands at Malta, and General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, the British commanding general for India and Burma, were promoted to field marshal.

Other Barons Listed

Those made barons, aside from Sir Roger—whose son, Lieut. Col. Geoffrey Keyes, was killed in November, 1941, while trying to shoot his way into German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's headquarters in Libya—were Sir Miles W. Lampson

Pilot Wounded, Crew Brings Fortress Home

Co-pilot Also Hurt, One Motor Knocked Out.

LONDON, Jan. 1—(AP)—The crew of a United States Army flying fortress whose pilot was seriously wounded by a German shell exploding in the cockpit during Wednesday's raid on the German submarine base at Lorient told today how they managed to bring the big plane home only a little out of formation. En route they downed three Nazi fighters and probably got a fourth.

The fortress was wheeling away after bombing the U-boat pens at Lorient, on the French Atlantic coast, when a 20-millimeter shell from an attacking Focke-Wulf-190 knocked out the pilot, blew the top out of the cockpit, knocking out the oxygen apparatus and admitting a freezing hurricane into the plane at the dangerously rarified 21,000-foot level.

The top turret gunner, Technical Sergeant Clarence V. King, Island Falls, Maine, climbed down, carried the pilot aft, where Captain Alexander Bright of Boston, Mass., an intelligence observer, gave first aid.

King then climbed back into the cockpit and helped the co-pilot, who was carrying on despite a badly lacerated arm. One of the motors had been knocked out by the hit and another was missing badly. As German fighters continued the attack the navigator, Lieut. Byron M. Bennett, San Francisco, Calif., former student in the Harvard School of Business, and the radioman, Technical Sergeant David B. Hatch of Brockton, Mass., continued with their duties.

Bright, who went along on this, the fortress' eighth raid as a spare gunner, got in five bursts with the bombardier's gun. Another shell exploded in the rear of the plane, injuring the tail turret gunner but he kept firing and nailed one of the Focke-Wulfs.

The ball turret gunner brought down a Messerschmitt-109, another crewman got another Focke-Wulf, and the left waist gunner scored another probable on a Focke-Wulf—making the big bomber's score, despite the crew's injuries, three enemy planes downed and one probable.

German Transport Sunk

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 1—(AP)—The Moscow radio announced today that a Soviet submarine had sunk an 8,000-ton German transport bound for a Norwegian fjord.

Blitzed Coventry Restocks Library

COVENTRY, England (AP)—This city whose library lost 150,000 books in air raids, is engaged in a book recovery and salvage campaign, to re-stock damaged library facilities, provide books for the forces, and the sending of useless volumes for re-pulping.

Woman Survives 5,000 Air Raids

LONDON.—(AP)—One of the most bombed women of the war has just arrived in England from Malta. She is Lady Bernard, wife of the late Col. Sir Edgar Bernard who has lived in Malta for 13 years. She has been on duty in more than 5,000 raids. Since the beginning of the war Lady Bernard has been commandant of the alien women's internment camp at Malta and will return there after a rest in England.

Eire Fights Black Market

DUBLIN. (AP)—The government is cracking down on the black market. The supplies minister has been armed with powers enabling him to place an embargo on trade and to confiscate goods believed destined for sale at over-the-market prices. Enforcement officers have the right to search and where goods are found which are likely to be used in black market operations the minister has power to issue a standstill order which prohibits their removal.

HITLER'S MESSAGE TO NAZIS AVOIDS HINT OF REVERSES

Fuehrer Repeats Theme Germany Will Not Collapse or Capitulate.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP) Adolf Hitler in his fourth wartime New Year's message to the German people today repeated his theme that Germany would not collapse nor capitulate, and that in the end she would prove victorious.

In a special proclamation broadcast by the Berlin radio, Hitler again discussed some of his favorite hates, international Jewry, President Roosevelt, and the national oppressors of peace-loving Germany.

Skips Axis Reverses

He had nothing to say about the Russian campaign, nor Rommel's flight in Libya, nor the Allied offensive in North Africa.

Instead, he praised the virtues of the German people, and reviewed wars of the past which, he said, were of little consequence either to the victor or vanquished compared to what Germany's position would be if it lost this war.

Last night in an order of the day to German troops he said: "If God Almighty has given us strength to overcome the winter of 1941-42, then we shall overcome this winter." Today he said: "Only if we exert all of our strength can we beg our Lord to afford us His aid, as He has done hitherto."

He repeated, too, his assertions that the war was forced on Germany.

"We had harmed neither Britain nor France nor the United States," he said. "We had made no demands which might have caused enemies to declare war on us."

When war became inevitable, he said, it was waged "with all the fanaticism of which National Socialists are capable."

Recalls First War Aftermath

He termed Germany "unsuitable" for experiment with various plans that have been outlined by the Allied nations. In this vein he recalled the aftermath of World war 1, termed Woodrow Wilson a hypocrite and said that Germany was immune against "repetition of any such attempts."

"Our enemies in the coming year," he promised, "will have to realize what Germany and Europe are capable of achieving in the last analysis.

"This winter may be hard, but it cannot possibly be harder than last winter. x x x One power will be the first to collapse in this struggle. This power will not be Germany. This time the German people will remain victorious on the battlefield. Then, at last, we shall have that long peace which we need for the great reconstruction of our national community. This will be the only right way in which to thank our dead heroes."

Hitler Defends Reich's Aims

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 1—Strictly on the defensive, and devoid of new victories over which to boast, Adolf Hitler reverted to a favorite theme today in his New Year message to the German people, by blaming the Allies and "the Jews" for starting the war and promising there never would be a repetition of 1918.

In a special proclamation broadcast by the Berlin radio, Hitler pictured Germany as a peace-loving nation, and himself as the leader who sought only to save his countrymen from their enemies and insure their future welfare.

German Courage Praised

The proclamation was bare of reference to developments on the Russian front, where the German armies are reeling under th blow of a six-week-old Soviet offensive, and likewise ignored the Axis rout in Libya and the Allied landings in North Africa.

It abounded, however, with praise for the German people in enduring the hardships of war, and praised the courage of the German troops, who, Hitler, declared, would overcome all obstacles to achieve the final victory.

"Germany will never be conquered and never will capitulate," the Führer asserted. "Our strength, the courage of our troops and the faith of the German people, as well as the achievement of our brave allies in Europe and Asia, give us the right to believe in victory."

Foresees Long Peace

Hitler coupled this statement with a warning that the winter would be a hard one, but tempered this by declaring "that it cannot possibly be harder than the last."

"Then," he said, "the hour will come when we shall concentrate all our strength in order to serve the cause of freedom and thus the future and life of our people. Then, at last, we shall have that long peace which we need for the great construction of our community. This is the only right way in which to think of our dead heroes."

message to the German nation, in which he described 1942 as "a blessed year for us—one of the most dangerous but also one of the greatest and one of the most decisive years in the history of our people."

JAN 2 1943

"A survey of territories conquered during the past year," Goebbels declared, "shows that the German war potential has been augmented. Once this augmentation has been fully exploited it will give the war a decisive turn.

"The duration of the war," he added enigmatically, "depends on the problematic expanse of the conflict."

Goering's Order Of The Day

Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering also issued an order of the day to the air force expressing confidence in victory.

"We do not know what the future is holding in store for us. But we know one thing for certain: In the end the strength of the sword of Germany and her allies will master any fate and open a more beautiful world to our peoples," Goering said.

List British Destroyer Sunk

BERLIN (From German broadcasts), Jan. 1 (AP).—A British destroyer of the 1,690-ton Jervis class was sunk last night in the Mediterranean by a German submarine, the high command reported today. Struck by two torpedoes, the British warship was said to have gone down northeast of the Island of Cyprus.

The high command reported also that German aircraft destroyed six Allied planes on the airfield at Bone, in Algeria, as well as damaging other planes and two merchant ships. Direct hits were scored on Allied railway facilities and transport columns in North Africa, the communique said.

Nazi High Command Claims 19 Sinkings by U-Boats

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 1.—The German high command said yesterday that U-boats had sunk four ships, totaling 21,000 tons, from "scattered remnants of a convoy smashed off the Azores" and that other submarines had sunk 15 ships, totaling 79,000 tons, in the North and South Atlantic.

(These enemy claims were not confirmed from any other source. The reputed attacks in the Azores area apparently referred to another unconfirmed Nazi claim yesterday that U-boats had sunk 15 ships, totaling 85,000 tons, as well as a destroyer and corvette in a convoy bound south from Britain.)

The Berlin radio reported that a German surface raider, identified only as an auxiliary cruiser, had sunk 187,000 tons of shipping "overseas" during 1942.

Nazis Claim 1,283 Ships Sunk In '42

Berlin.

New York, Jan. 1—The Associated Press listening post recorded today a Berlin broadcast reporting that German naval forces have sunk 1,283 Anglo-American merchant ships totaling 7,955,000 tons in 1942. Submarines accounted for 1,208 of the vessels, the high command said.

There was no confirmation of these figures from Allied sources.

Retreating Rommel Will o' the Wisp

JAN 2 1943

DON WHITEHEAD

Bir El Zirdan, Tripolitania, Dec. 28 (Delayed) (AP).—Chasing Marshal Rommel toward Tripoli has become a will o' the wisp hunt across the western desert with the Germans refusing battle at obvious strong points.

It is a puzzling game with the British Eighth Army approaching natural strongpoints expecting a fight only to find the enemy vanished or else a weak rear guard.

Despite Rommel's failure so far to take full advantage of positions, the desert terrain has checked the speed of the British drive.

There is no positive indication that Rommel is digging in anywhere between here and Tripoli or that he is massing forces to make a real bid to turn back the British. The most obvious places for a stand between Sirte and Tripoli were Wadi Bei el Chebir and Wadi Zemzem, both south of Misurata.

The British expected Rommel to put up a fight at Wadi Bei el Chebir, some 25 miles west of Sirte and 180 miles short of Tripoli. The enemy was there yesterday but there was no sign of him today.

I rode with an advance armored column across the wild country south of the coastal road. Wadi Bei el Chebir was like a great valley carved in the desert by some long forgotten stream. At the point we crossed it was more than two miles wide. Machine guns on the escarpment could have caused a great deal of damage but Rommel had left no guns to cover this expanse.

Somewhere a short distance ahead of us tonight is the enemy.

His next strong point is Wadi Zemzem, but no one yet knows whether he intends to fight.

The Allied command had no ground action to report. The Fighting French declared, however, that advanced troops of the French forces driving up into southern Libya across the Fezzan desert region had put an Axis motorized column to flight.

Of Field Marshal Rommel's fleeing Libyan army there was again no informative word during the day, nor did Cairo's communique indicate his present whereabouts except that he was somewhere "west of Wadi Bei el Chebir," which itself is about 180 miles short of Tripoli.

It was added that air operations were on a reduced scale in the Libyan theater.

The German and Italian communiques both were restrained in tone as to the Tunisian fighting.

The Italian high command claimed "succesful patrol attacks by Axis troops which took prisoners and material"; the Germans reported "shock troop activity by both sides in Tunisia and Libya."

Germans in Africa Destroyed by Allies.

DESTROYER ALSO HIT

U. S., British Bombers Raid Harbors, Attack Base on Crete.

LONDON, Jan. 1—(AP) Allied and Axis ground forces marshaling their strength for the developing battle of Tunisia continued their cautious probing tactics today while in the slow campaign of attrition in the Mediterranean three more enemy cargo ships and perhaps a destroyer were declared sunk.

A British communique from Cairo headquarters announced that naval torpedo planes had hit an enemy merchant ship off Sicily, setting her afire, and the British Admiralty disclosed that British submarines off the Gulf of Tunis and off Bizerte had sunk two more Axis cargo vessels, both big ones. An enemy destroyer off Bizerte was torpedoed and not seen again.

Candia Airport Raided

In the widespread Allied air action against the enemy—a running offensive spread over the Mediterranean and from the Tunisian fighting theater back eastward to the Libyan frontier regions—one of the strongest attacks was on the big German-held air base at Candia, on the Greek island of Crete. The base was heavily hit and left alight with 20 fires.

A communique from Allied headquarters in North Africa announced new Allied raids on the Axis-held Tunisian ports of Sfax, Sousse and Gabes and on Axis positions in central and southwestern Tunisia. Five Allied planes were lost, but the destruction of two additional enemy planes on Dec. 30 also was disclosed.

French Troops Advance

(Delayed)—Germany is using one of the oldest tricks of war—leaflet raids—in unsuccessful attempts to persuade French soldiers to abandon the Allied banner.

As French troops assumed a heavier burden of fighting the Axis in the southern sector, Germans showered the French line with leaflets asking whether the French soldier preferred death with the Americans or life and a home with the Germans.

One side of the leaflet showed a French corpse being devoured by buzzards and jackals and the other illustrated a French soldier and a woman embracing.

Refers To Assassination

Another leaflet referred to the assassination of Admiral Jean Darlan, who swung the French soldiers to the Allied side. It said, "This is the gratitude of England for servants."

Leaflets carried the seal of the Nazi commander in Tunisia and promised immediate reparation to French soldiers who presented them in surrender to German forces.

Tunisian French, who witnessed the looting of food and agricultural products in the country before the Allies arrived, got a laugh from the leaflet suggestion to bring mess tins and spoons.

Nazis Drop Leaflets On French In Tunisia

Fires blazed among buildings on both sides of the Sousse harbor after the second attack.

Merchant Vessels Hit

Two medium-sized merchant vessels in the harbor of Sfax received direct hits when Flying Fortresses raided that key point again yesterday, it was announced. The fortress crews also reported hits on the docks and other harbor installations. They were escorted by P-40 fighters.

Meanwhile B-26 Martin bombers, accompanied by P-40's, scored hits on the airdrome and nearby troop barracks at Gabes, causing several fires. One of the bombers was lost.

Another B-26 bomber group raided shipping between Tunis and Bizerte with results unreported. All the formation returned.

The long-range, twin-motored Lightning fighters shot up and destroyed a number of Axis cars and trucks near the Tunisian-Libyan frontier (which Marshal Rommel must cross if he is to aid Gen Walther Nehring in the defense of Tunisia.)

Hurricane bombers of the R. A. F. joined in the attack. With a Spitfire escort they struck at an Axis repair depot southeast of Pont-du-Fahs and then destroyed two trucks on their way home.

R. A. F. fighters also engaged German fighters and bombers over the forward battle areas of Tunisia, but the headquarters spokesman said the combats were "inconclusive because of cloud conditions." One R. A. F. plane was reported missing. Destruction of an additional Messerschmitt 109 by R. A. F. fighters Dec. 30 also was announced.

The only ground activity yesterday, a spokesman said, was an artillery exchange in the northern sector.

U. S. Planes End Year With Widespread Raids

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 1—(AP)—United States bombing and fighting planes ended the old year with concerted attacks upon Axis communications and supply facilities from the northern tip of Tunisia to Tripolitania, Allied authorities announced today.

Four American and one R. A. F. craft were reported lost.

Light Douglas A-20 bombers paced the aerial onslaught with two raids on the port of Sousse, where heavy anti-aircraft fire knocked down three of the explosive carriers but failed to prevent widespread destruction.

P-38 fighters escorted the first raiders; P-40's the second.

The first group concentrated about the Sousse railway yards and a spokesman said much smoke arose from the yards, the neighboring dock area to the north and storage sheds to the east.

The Allied headquarters announced that enemy planes attacked Casablanca early yesterday morning but that material damage was "negligible" and there were few casualties, "largely civilians."

GIRAUD RELEASES POLITICAL GROUP

Prisoners Get Amnesty as General Becomes Chief in Africa.

ALGIERS, Jan. 1—(AP) Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, French high commissioner, has ordered the liberation on the new year of a "certain number of persons detained because of certain political tendencies," it was announced officially tonight.

(The announcement indicated that the persons liberated had been held on political grounds. It made no reference to the 12 persons arrested earlier this week on orders of General Giraud in connection with an alleged plot to assassinate himself and Robert Murphy, President Roosevelt's personal representative).

The text of a communique issued by the French high commissariat follows:

"General Giraud has decided in the interest of unity that a certain number of persons detained because of certain political tendencies will be liberated on the occasion of the new year and coincident with his taking command as high commissioner of France resident in French Africa. These liberations have been pronounced with complete impartiality and without regard to the ideology of their interests but inspired solely by their war records and proofs of patriotism they have shown under various circumstances."

EISENHOWER HONORS GENERALS IN AFRICA

Fredendall and Ryder Decorated for Distinguished Service

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Dec. 31 (Delayed) (AP)—Two United States major generals, Lloyd R. Fredendall and Charles W. Ryder, today received the Distinguished Service Medal for "exceptionally meritorious service" in the North African war.

Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied Commander, awarded the medals. It also was understood that a similar medal went to Major Gen. George S. Patton, commander of the American forces that landed in West Africa.

The Fredendall and Ryder citations said:

"General Fredendall, commander of a center task force, demonstrated the highest qualities of leadership. The capture of the Oran area was vigorously opposed and it was due largely to General Fredendall's brilliant leadership and resolute force that the opposition was overcome so quickly and the surrender of the opposing forces secured.

"General Ryder was responsible for the planning and execution of the attack of the eastern task force. He demonstrated the highest qualities of leadership in training his troops and in conducting the assault. By his vigorous advance and tactful handling of negotiations with the local authorities he minimized the resistance and contributed to early capitulation of the area of Algiers."

Rome Claims Prisoners

JAN 2 1943

New York, Jan. 1—The Associated Press listening post recorded a Rome broadcast which said the Italian High Command declared today that Axis patrols had seized prisoners and materiel during raids in Libya and in Tunisia. No details were announced.

Two medium-sized merchantmen were reported damaged, probably fatally, in an attack by German planes upon Allied convoy off Bone, Algeria. Italian submarines were credited with sinking one ship in the Atlantic and damaging two others.

Fezzan Area Active

Following is the text of the Italian communique:

"In the Sirte region and in Tunisia there were successful patrol attacks by Axis troops which took prisoners and material.

"Enemy motor transport formations were dispersed in the Libyan desert by our garrison at Fezzan. In the Fezzan area there was lively explorative activity.

"In the course of an attack by German planes against an airfield in Algeria several enemy planes were destroyed on the ground. In the same attack more planes were scoring successful hits on two merchantmen of medium tonnage whose loss can be considered as certain.

"In the Atlantic one of our submarines commanded by Captain Mazza sank on November 29 the ship Argos of 5,500 tons. Another Italian submarine commanded by Captain Di Costato scored direct hits December 21 on the ships Queen City and Bon Aurora, totaling 9,925 tons."

(Of the three ships reported sunk or damaged by the Italians, only the Queen City, a British freighter of 4,814 tons, is listed in Lloyd's register. The only Argos listed is an Estonian freighter of 1,857 tons.)

ROOSEVELT TELEGRAPHS U. S. PLEDGE TO GIRAUD

LONDON, Jan. 1.—(AP) Reuters reported tonight that the Morocco radio had broadcast the text of a telegram which it said President Roosevelt sent to Gen. Henri Giraud, French commissioner for North Africa:

"The government of the United States is happy to learn that you will fight the present war against the Axis in collaboration with the United Nations.

"You have taken on a great responsibility and you may be assured that my government will give you every possible assistance.

"We shall receive a common reward when France is restored to her true position among the nations of the world."

Status of Consulate At Dakar Raised

N. Africa Gets U. S. Food

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 1—The War Department said today that large quantities of American consumer goods have arrived in North Africa, where, Assistant OWI Director Milton Eisenhower has reported, there is a grave food and clothing situation among the population.

These supplies, the department said, have relieved the urgent need for food, clothes, fuel and medical supplies. It reported also that progress was being made in restoring normal economic life. Fuel has been supplied for fishing boats and for farm tractors. Consumer goods are rationed under French supervision.

The North African subject came up also at President Roosevelt's press conference today. He told questioners that, while he had no actual figures, most of the political prisoners in North Africa had been released since the American-British occupation.

ENEMY DEFENSES SPLIT NEAR BUNA

JAN 2 1943

MacArthur's Troops Drive to Coast—Jap Ships Damaged at Rabaul.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Saturday, Jan. 2—(AP) The Allied air force in the southwest Pacific started the New Year right with daring raids off New Britain, damaging a Jap submarine and three vessels while ground troops, fighting savagely, again split the Japanese defenses along the Buna beach area in New Guinea.

Rabaul, which has been the object of a number of successful raids recently, again was hit at dawn New Year's day. Three waves of B-17s (Flying Fortresses) and B-24s roared over, dropping thousand pounders from low level.

Large Ship Hit

One large vessel, estimated at 10,000 tons, was hit in the center of the harbor. Ships of 8,000 and 6,000 tons were hit further out. All three burst into flames and were burning fiercely as the raiders left.

Ninety miles south of Rabaul at Widebay, an Allied heavy bomber strafed a Jap submarine, inflicting damage.

B-17s also raided Gasmata airdrome early New Year's day, plastering the area with 1,000-pound bombs. One Zero fighter on the ground was destroyed.

Japs Lose Two Planes

The Japs also lost two out of five fighters which attempted to intercept the Rabaul raiders. All Allied planes returned.

An Allied medium unit also bombed Buin in the Solomons. On their part, the Japs sent a formation of medium bombers over Merauke in Dutch New Guinea. The enemy has been devoting considerable bombing attention to this village on the south coast.

At Buna, ground troops supported by tanks and artillery drove through the Japs near the mouth of Giropa creek to reach the coast, splitting the enemy lines anew. This was part of a systematic job of splitting the Japs, then mopping them up.

Artillery fire reduced at least six Jap bunkers. Jap troops were machinegunned while running from them.

Heavy fighting continues on the Allied left but on the right all the job that remains is to dispose of small enemy pockets in the airstrip dispersal area and at other scattered points.

9 Planes Shot Down In U. S. Raid on Jap New Guinea Base

1,286 Destroyed Since Start of War, Allied Headquarters Reports

By the Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 1.—American P-38s led an assault yesterday on Lae, Northeast New Guinea Japanese base, and shot down nine enemy fighters and damaged two others, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters declared today in a communique supplemented by an Air Force announcement reporting that 1,286 Japanese planes have been destroyed in the Southwest Pacific since the war began.

The smashing blow delivered at Lae was part of wide-ranging Allied air activity which saw four Japanese airdromes bombed and strafed and at least 23 Japanese planes destroyed or damaged.

It was the second big victory for the P-38's. Last Monday's communique told of the first appearance of the fleet Lockheed Lightning fighters on the Buna front and the resulting destruction of 14 Japanese planes.

Engaged 11 Zeros.

Today's headquarters said the attack on Lae was a co-ordinated assault by fighters, attack planes and medium bombers.

"The attack was initiated by 11 of our P-38's which engaged 12 enemy Zeros guarding the airfield," it said. "The P-38's swept the air, shooting down nine of the enemy and damaging two, while sustaining only two damaged planes which reached their base."

"The attack elements then strafed the field, destroying four bombers and one Zero on the ground. Our medium bombers then finished by bombing enemy ground installations with heavy damage.

"In an earlier sortie, our reconnaissance planes surprised and destroyed six enemy planes caught on the ground with no air support."

In other air action, a heavy bomber fired a twin-engined Jap plane on the airdrome strip at Gasmata, and planes bombed the airdrome at Wewak, New Guinea, and swept over the Northern Solomons in a night raid to hit the airdrome at Buka on Bougainville Island.

An enemy schooner was reported strafed and damaged by an Allied medium unit in Jacquinot Bay, New Britain, and the area about Madang, New Guinea, also was bombed.

Enemy bombers raided Merauke, in Dutch New Guinea, headquarters said.

Mopping Up Activity.

The land fighting in the Buna area consisted mainly of mopping up along the corridors driven through the Japanese defense zone to the sea, but there was heavy fighting again on the Sanananda track, north of Buna, the communique said.

The air force report for the year of war said that at least 723 Japanese planes of the 1,286 total were definitely destroyed, 250 others were probably destroyed, and 313 were damaged—all in straight aerial combat.

Those destroyed on the ground were not included in the tally unless photographs proved their destruction.

Allied losses, the announcement said, were comparatively small for the period.

Allied Forces Prepare For Final Buna Drive

By William F. Boni

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 1. (AP)—With their air squadrons virtually shooting the enemy from the skies in a series of savage sweeps, Allied forces here moved confidently ahead at the New Year with their preparations for eliminating the last of the Japanese troops from the Buna area.

Next on the schedule facing the American and Australian ground fighters was to wipe out the enemy holdings at Giropa Point and at the Buna government station, which would leave the Sanananda sector the last Japanese stronghold in this area.

The lockheed Lightnings saw the old year out in glorious style yesterday.

Eleven of these twin-bodied P-38s of the Southwest Pacific Air Force tangled with a dozen Japanese Zeros over the enemy's home ground at Lae and brought down nine of them for certain, as well as another probable victim and two damaged.

For the second time in four days the squadron commanded by sandy-haired Major George Prentice of San Antonio, Texas, scored a decisive victory over the enemy air force.

JAN 3 1943

Last Sunday 12 of the two-engined American fighters shot down 13 Zeros and two dive-bombers out of 27 Zeros and 15 dive-bombers that tried to attack Allied dispositions in the Buna salient.

But today's was a different type of assignment. This time the Lightnings provided protection for a group of light and medium American bombers attacking the Lae airdrome.

The bombers made a successful run, blasting a Japanese bomber on the runway, destroying a Zero as it attempted to take off, and getting four other enemy planes in dispersal bays.

Then the bombers cleared out—and that was the signal the P-38s had been waiting for. From their post at about 12,000 feet they had spotted a dozen Zeros at 5,000.

The commander of the leading flight, Captain Thomas J. Lynch of Catasqua, Pa., dived and on his first pass got a Zero. Then the other two flights joined in.

Lynch bagged another Jap before the 20-minute scramble ended, running his personal score to four Zeros in two fights and raising himself to the status of an ace, since he shot down two last May when flying a P-39 Airacobra.

Allies Line Up Forces To Clear Buna Pockets

By William F. Boni

JAN 2 1943

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Somewhere In New Guinea, Jan. 1—Allied forces facing the Japs in the Buna area spent the last day of 1942 chiefly preparing to eliminate enemy holdings at Giropa Point and eastward, also the Buna Government Station.

This would leave the Sanananda sector as the last Jap strongpoint in this area.

In the air, American P-38s provided the highlight, with a smashing victory over a group of Zeros—proof that the "bugs" which once hampered the performance of these heavily armed speedsters have been effectively overcome.

Young American pilots, after the second major combat and the second major triumph of these fighters, said they had the advantage over the Zeros in everything except the qualities the Zero gained through light construction which was achieved at the sacrifice of armament, armor and hence pilot safety.

(A communique from General MacArthur's headquarters said eleven American P-38s led an assault yesterday on Lae, northeastern New Guinea Jap base, shot down nine out of twelve Zeros guarding the airfield and damaged two others, while sustaining only two damaged planes, both of which returned safely to their base.)

damaged.

These planes all were destroyed or damaged in straight aerial combat and do not include those destroyed on the ground, except in such cases as have been definitely confirmed by photographs. Machines lost through normally flying hazards also were not included.

Allied Losses Not So Big

The airforce announcement said that Allied losses over the same period were comparatively small.

Most of the enemy planes were shot down in the New Guinea zone.

The air force headquarters said United States Flying Fortresses, though bombers, had especially shown their superiority over Japanese fighter planes.

Fortress gunners in the last six months have shot down, in air combat, sixty Zero fighters, probably destroyed sixty-seven others and damaged sixty more.

Daily tallies of Jap planes destroyed reached as high as twenty-one in air combat and twenty, confirmed by photographs, in ground strafing.

Lightnings Hold Record

Kittyhawks shot down eleven Jap planes in a single battle over Darwin. Beaufighters destroyed or damaged eighteen in a surprise raid on Koepang.

Lightnings hold the record in fighter combat. Twelve in their first battle recently shot down thirteen Zeros and two divebombers. New Year's Eve eleven of them shot down nine Zeros and damaged two, letting only one of the enemy formation escape.

The air force release praised the work of Australian and American bombing and strafing crews. It added that the Allies claimed only losses confirmed beyond reasonable doubt and observed that the actual Jap toll probably was much greater.

723 Regarded Total Loss, 250 Probables

JAN 2 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Jan. 1—Allied air force headquarters said today a total of 1,286 Japanese airplanes have been destroyed or damaged in the southwest Pacific since the beginning of the war.

Of this total, at least 723 planes definitely were destroyed. Two hundred fifty others were listed as probably destroyed, and 313 as

JAPANESE CENTER WEST OF SALWEEN DESTROYED IN RAID

Tons of Bombs Flatten Buildings, Explode Gasoline and Ammunition.

By J. REILLY O'SULLIVAN

WITH THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCES IN CHINA, Dec. 30—(Delayed)—(AP) The Japanese troop and supply center of Mengmao, 30 miles west of the Salween river in western Yunnan province, was virtually blasted off the map today as U. S. bombers and fighters continued their sweeps of the Burma-Yunnan border area.

Mengmao, a valley town near Tengyueh, was hit in two raids which followed two other terrific attacks Sunday.

Buildings Flattened

Tons of bombs flattened buildings and set off shattering explosions in gasoline and ammunition dumps.

"When we came over the second time the town was ablaze," said Capt. Alan Forsyth of Houston, Minn., leader of the second bomber flight. "Three big fires were burning fiercely."

A fighter escort led by Lieut. Clinton Vincent of Natchez, Miss., went down after the bombers and strafed wreckage in which Japanese soldiers were scrambling.

Lieuts. Teddy Shapou of New Bern, N. C., and Charles Crysler of New York were among those who swooped over baracks and enemy personnel with chattering machine-guns.

"There was very little left of Mengmao," said Lieut. Col. Herbert Morgan of Freedom, Pa.

Fighters Roar Over Lashio

Another fighter sweep over much-bombed Lashio, terminal of the Burma railroad, encountered six enemy planes and Lieut. William Di Stefano of Syracuse, N. Y. downed one of them.

"My bullets tore off part of the Zero's wing," he said.

Lieut. Mortimer Marks of Bayonne, N. J., made a head-on attack on two Zeros and saw his tracers going into the tail of one.

Capt. Grant Mahoney of Vallejo, Calif., also gave chase to three Zeros.

"But they wouldn't come in and it ended by the Zeros diving away from us," he said.

In another fighting sweep yesterday near Lashio, Lieut. Arthur Crulkshank of Ruston, La., attacked three Zeros and shot one down in flames.

"The others got on my tail and I had to leave," he said.

Burma Border Base Ruined

[By the Associated Press]

With the United States Army Air Force in China, Dec. 30 (Delayed)—A Japanese troop and supply concentration at Mengma, in the upper Salween Valley, was given a punishing blow today as American Army bombers and fighters continued their sweeps over the Burma-southwest China border area.

Returning airmen said the Japanese base was virtually blasted off the map by the bombers led by Lieut. Col. Herbert Morgan, of Freedom, Pa. Two Japanese Zero fighters were shot down and another damaged. Today's attack followed two raids on the same area last Sunday.

RAF Bombs Akyab, Shwebo

[By the Associated Press]

New Delhi, Jan. 1—RAF Blenheim bombers attacked the Japanese-occupied port of Akyab on the west coast of Burma yesterday in a follow-up to daylight assaults on coastal shipping and a raid on the airdrome at Shwebo, seventy miles west of Mandalay, a British communique reported today.

Bomb hits were reported on the dock area at Akyab and on airfield runways at Shwebo. The sweeps were carried out without the loss of a single aircraft, the bulletin said.

The communique also disclosed that British land forces had clashed again with Japanese patrols east and west of the Mayu river near Rathedaung, some twenty-five miles northwest of Akyab.

Chinese Gift To Chennault

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, Jan. 1—The All-China Troop Comforting Association presented Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault with a New Year gift of 50,000 Chinese dollars ($2,500) today and a note expressing "our admiration and love."

"Every Chinese admires and loves you from the bottom of the heart and is looking forward to the time when you and your fighters will strike more disastrous blows at the common enemy," the association told the commander of the United States air task force in China.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek awarded monetary gifts to all China's "honor" officers and men—the wounded, sick and disabled. Officers received 100 Chinese dollars and the men 50.

Japs Repulsed In Kwantung

JAN 2 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, Jan. 1—Japanese troops landed on the Kwangtung coast opposite Formosa on Christmas Day and drove inland, but the Chinese high command said today that the thrust had been repulsed and Chinese forces were "mopping up" the last of the enemy.

A communique said the landing was made under cover of a naval barrage northeast of Swatow, more than 200 miles up the coast from Hongkong, after "numerous warships" appeared offshore.

The Japanese thrust inland toward Takang and fighting continued until last Tuesday, when the Japanese were forced to retreat, the communique said.

Standley Stops Off in Cairo

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 1 (AP)—Admiral William Harrison Standley, United States Ambassador to Russia, stopped off here yesterday on his trip back to Moscow and inspected a United States Army depot. Admiral Standley went to Washington in October to report to President Roosevelt on the Soviet's war prospects.

INDIAN PAPERS CALLED TO CENSORSHIP STRIKE

NEW DELHI, Jan. 1—(AP) Indian newspapers have been called to go on a one-day strike Jan. 6 in protest against censorship incidents growing from disturbances in August relative to Mohandas K. Gandhi's non-cooperation campaign for independence. The president of the All-India Newspaper Editor's conference issued the strike summons today.

Incidents in question revolve around the activity of authorities in quelling an outbreak of violence in the central provinces. Nationalist observers said there were charges of 'serious misbehavior by troops."

Jap Zeros Get 3 Yanks Raiding Kiska Bay

JAN 2 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 1—The navy reported today that four Japanese Zero float planes had shot down two American Lightning fighters and a bomber while losing only one of their own number in a battle over Kiska, in the Aleutian Islands.

Communique No. 235 said:

"North Pacific:

"1. On December 30, at 9.30 P. M., a force of Mitchell medium bombers (North American B-25) escorted by Lightning fighters (Lockheed P-38), was intercepted by four Japanese Zero float planes while proceeding to attack two enemy cargo ships (or transports) in Kiska harbor. Two Lightnings and one Zero were shot down during the fight. The Mitchells attacked the enemy ships with uncertain results. One of our bombers was shot down.

Two Jap Ships Bombed

"2. On December 31, at 1.47 A. M., United States medium bombers again attacked the enemy ships in Kiska harbor. Three hits were observed on one of the ships and two hits on the other. No United States planes were lost.

"South Pacific: (All dates are east longitude)

"3. On December 31:

"(a.) At 4.30 P. M. task force of Marauder medium bombers (Martin B-26), escorted by Lightning (Lockheed P-38) and Airacobra (Bell P-39) fighters, bombed the airfield at Munda on New Georgia Island. Results were not reported.

"(b.) United States troops on Guadalcanal Island killed twenty Japanese in routine patrol activity."

Presence A Surprise

The reported presence of Japanese fighter planes at Kiska came as something of a surprise to naval men here since it had been many weeks since the Japanese had offered any aerial resistance over that base.

The best they had been able to do since last fall was oppose repeated American air attacks on their shipping and shore installations with anti-aircraft fire which, at times, was weak.

The sudden appearance of four Zero float planes apparently indicated not only a determination on the enemy's part to hold on to the island as long as possible but also an ability to get in sufficient supplies of aviation gasoline and other necessities for the operation of at least a few planes.

3 U.S. Planes Downed By Japs Over Kiska

Enemy Force on Island in Aleutians Appears Reinforced—Air Action Is Surprise —One Enemy Zero Bagged.

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1—(AP)—The Japanese apparently have strengthened their hold on Kiska in the Aleutians and, in an air battle which may have been fought by the eerie glow of the northern lights, have destroyed two swift and powerful American P-38 Lightning fighter planes and a medium bomber, the Navy diclosed today.

One Jap Zero Downed

The P-38's were downed by comparatively clumsy float-type Zero fighters, and the bomber was destroyed either by the fighters or anti-aircraft fire. One Zero was lost in the engagement.

The Navy communique thus revealed that the Japanese have succeeded in delivering at least small aerial reinforcements to an island where their hold had been believed to be growing steadily less secure.

The communique said the encounter—the first in many weeks at Kiska in which our forces have suffered more damage than they inflicted—began about 9:30 p. m., Wednesday, when a force of North American B-25, twin-engined medium bombers with a Lightning escort attacked enemy shipping in Kiska harbor with "uncertain results."

The Zeros intercepted and, possibly taking advantage of cloud cover to gain full surprise, they succeeded in shooting down the two P-38s.

This was the first time since last Fall that the Japs had offered any kind of fighter plane resistance at Kiska, but American attacks on the island during the last Fall and Winter have been sporadic because of the bad weather common to the North Pacific in these seasons.

Hits on Jap Ships

A few hours after their first attack on the enemy ships had concluded with uncertain results, the medium bombers returned to Kiska at 1:47 a. m., Thursday, and scored two hits on one Jap cargo ship and three on another. All U. S. planes returned from that action.

In the south Pacific meanwhile, the enemy air field at Munda on New Georgia Island in the central Solomons was heavily attacked late Thursday afternoon (Guadalcanal time) by Martin B-26 medium bombers, and by both Lightning and Airacobra fighters. "Results were not reported," the communique said.

Land action on Guadalcanal island, where American patrols are rapidly hacking away at the enemy's hungry and ill-equipped troops, resulted in the killing Thursday of 20 Japanese under circumstances which were not reported.

No Opposition at Munda

Possibly significant in the official statement of the raid on Munda was the absence of any mention of enemy fighter plane resistance. The Japanese lost heavily in their first attempts to protect the field and in the past few days their planes have been conspicuously lacking in the air over Munda.

This may be due not only to their severe losses, however, but also to their need for concentrating aerial strength on the New Guinea are a even at the expense of other sections. Allied headquarters in Australia announced today that nine Jap fighters were shot down and two others damaged out of a flight of 12 engaged yesterday by 11 P-38s leading an attack on the air base at Lae.

This was the second time that the P-38s have distinguished themselves over New Guinea. In a battle last Monday they bagged 15 Japanese fighter planes. The air section of Allied headquarters also reported that in the southwest Pacific theater of the war to date the Japanese had lost 723 planes, probably lost 250 and had 313 damaged in combat or blasted on the ground.

Thus Japan's combat plane losses over the whole south Pacific area stand at approximately 1,400 craft, since they have lost 667 planes in the Solomons campaign, according to tabulations of Navy communiques made here.

U. S. Flyers Rain 76,000 Pounds Of Bombs on Japs on Wake Island;

By OLEN W. CLEMENTS

Correspondent Representing All Press Associations on This Special Assignment.

ABOARD A BOMBER OVER WAKE ISLAND, Dec. 24 (Delayed).—Huge American bombers plunged from the high heavens today on unsuspecting Wake Island and plastered the Japs with 76,000 pounds of bombs in the biggest mass raid of the Pacific war.

JAN 2 1943

Possibly more than half the Jap defenders were killed. There were no American casualties.

Intense fires were started both on Wake Island and adjoining Peale Island. The Japs were caught in bed one minute after midnight. Their anti-aircraft fire, which didn't start until long after the first bombs exploded, was wild and the frightened Japs could be seen in the brilliant moonlight running madly for their dugouts.

In a split second the bombs crashed all over both islands. Fires crackled everywhere.

(A Tokio communique was quoted by the Berlin radio Christmas Day as saying that United States Flying Fortresses which struck "from the region of Midway" the night of December 23 had caused "four small fires," killed one Japanese and wounded four on Wake Island. It declared four of the raiders were shot down and six were damaged.)

Long Line of Planes.

Precisely at midnight the flight leader, Col. William A. Matheny of Carrington, N. Dak., flipped on his radio and called to the long line of planes behind him:

"This is it, boys. I'm going to get those yellow ——."

The nose of his plane slanted down. The engines roared. There beyond the nose of his bomber lay Wake Island, where for 16 days during December, 1941, United States Marines made one of the most gallant stands in history.

Faster and faster the bomber plunged in, its nose pointed at a long row of buildings on Peacock Point. The island was blacked out. Co-Pilot Lt. E. H. Carey of Gridley, Calif., "was pouring coal to four engines" and droning out the increasing speed and the decreasing altitude to Col. Matheny.

Down and down the plane sped, its occupants watching on all sides for signs of anti-aircraft fire. None came.

Brilliant Red Flashes.

Col. Matheny pulled her nose up. Suddenly brilliant red flashes were seen below. Then more and more. The bomber was streaking through the air at terrific speed.

"When are you going to turn loose those incendiaries?" Col. Matheny asked the bombardier, Lt. D. D. Manchester of Spokane, Wash.

"Gone, sir," the lieutenant replied. And at that moment a huge flash was seen.

Planes on each wing let theirs go at the same time. When the colonel turned his ship, every one of the buildings in that long row were afire. No Japanese was seen to run from them.

Still there was no anti-aircraft fire.

Dozens more bombers began to hit all sections of both islands.

Finally after what seemed an eternity, a few Japs managed to reach two ack-ack guns and let go wildly. Shells burst fully 6,000 feet above and two miles away from the nearest American plane. Then machine guns unlimbered and tracers began to hunt the planes above.

Two searchlights popped on below. Their beams caught the leading plane, but almost instantly they went out.

Tracers Fell Short.

Tailgunner Sergt. W. C. Will of Lehighton, Pa., who was instructed to shoot out any light that caught the plane in its beam, didn't even fire a shot at them. Nor did he return the fire of machine guns. Instead he just sat and watched the tracers fall far short of their target.

More searchlight beams began to sweep the sky. Gunners in other bombers let go at them and started putting them out.

One Jap plane started rolling down the airfield, which bordered the flaming aircraft. As the enemy plane gained speed, Lt. Lou Camperini of Torrance, Calif., famed University of Southern California miler, tried to hit it with a hundred pound bomb. It fell just behind the Zero and the fighter got into the air.

That was the only Jap plane seen to take the air, but bomber crews saw three others flying around. One bomber and a Jap plane exchanged shots at a distance, but the Japs didn't want to mix it at all and that was the nearest to an air fight in the raid.

One squadron leader, Maj. Glen R. Birchard of Bay City, Mich., dropped bombs near oil tanks, starting huge fires. Peering out the window, he saw Japs running for cover in their underwear. No fight was left in them.

Large Fires Observed.

A quick look at Wake and Peale Islands showed that by this time fires were burning between Peacock Point and the east-west runway in the vicinity of the underground hangar; large fires were observed in the area of the bachelor officers' quarters on the heel of the point, in the building area southeast of the bridge between Peale and Wake, in a large building in that area which had received a direct hit.

Oil tanks were afire in the middle of Peale Island. More tanks were flaring near the south channel entrance to the harbor and columns of black smoke were rising from Kuku Point.

Their bombs gone, the bombers started for their "Shangri-La" base. Forty miles from Wake, the Zero that had got off the ground timidly fired a burst at one bomber, which promptly replied. Apparently neither was hit.

Fires Visible 75 Miles.

Fires on Wake Island were visible for 75 miles.

As they faded in the distance the top turret gunner, Sergt. E. J. Bislew of Racine, Wis., climbed down to the flight deck.

"Hell," he said, "what am I going to tell my 6-year-old son that I did on this raid? I just sat up there like a dummy and didn't fire a shot. I wish I could have gotten a shot at a Zero."

The bombers flew in absolute radio silence on their trip to Wake Island, guided only by the moon and stars. On the return trip they hit an intense weather front and visibility was reduced to a few feet.

This was the first combat action for all but two of the pilots, but despite the rain and fog every plane found its base and landed safely.

Brig. Gen. Howard K. Ramey of Mississippi, the bomber commander, stood anxiously waiting on the rain-swept airbase. He rushed up to congratulate Col. Matheny and each man in the squadron.

Two Holes in Wing Flaps.

The general ordered each plane examined immediately and an official report delivered to him later read:

"Two bullet holes in the wing flaps of one plane. No wounded or dead."

The tired crew members whooped and hollered and went to bed.

When they were awakened Gen. Ramey read them a congratulatory message from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Lt. Gen. Delos Emmons and Maj. Gen. Willis H. Hale. It said, in effect:

"Congratulations on a job well done."

The raiding bombers had executed the longest flight and biggest raid of its type of the war. The record was the more amazing because all the planes returned safely and not one of the raiders was injured or killed.

(This was the raid, third on Wake, which Admiral Chester W. Nimitz characterized as the largest mass Army heavy bomber action of the Pacific war.)

The colonel flips on his radio.

"This is it, boys: I'm going in and get those yellow ——."

He noses the plane over and down we come hell bent for leather. The wind shrieks outside the cabin. A piece of tape on the outside flaps and flaps and flaps.

Plane Speeds Downward

Down, down, down! Our eyes are glued on the hallowed isle where American Marines made history December a year ago in their historic 16-day stand.

In wonder when the Japs are going to open up with ack-ack. I hope they don't stop the lead plane.

Down, down, down! Still no ack-ack. I hope they cut loose—anything to break the suspense.

The island is getting bigger with each tick of the clock.

I hope there aren't any American prisoners below. This plane and dozens behind it are going to rain death on that island.

Still no ack-ack! It's 40 seconds past midnight. The island is dead to the world. It may never wake up. What's the matter with them!

Just beyond the Colonel's head the altimeter and speed indicator are really hopping. She's burning air now. There's a funny feeling in my stomach. It's 45 seconds past midnight now. We are still hurtling downward.

The Colonel shoves the wheel further forward, kicks the rudder, and ABOARD A BOMBER OVER WAKE ISLAND, Dec. 24—(Delayed)—(AP)—In a few seconds, we are going to drop 76 thousand-pound bombs on Wake.

Island Grows Larger

Standing behind Col. William A. Matheny of Carrington, N. D., and co-pilot Lieut. E. H. Carey of Gridley, Calif., I watch that tiny island grow larger and larger over the nose of the bomber.

the bomber sways crazily. Maybe we've been hit! No, that's a new kind of dive the Army has perfected.

Lacks Parachute

It's 50 seconds past midnight now.

There still is no anti-aircraft fire, nor signs of life, on Wake. Where's a parachute! I forgot to put it on. I clutch feebly at a Mae West life jacket. I can't swim a lick. It's too late to get a 'chute now. I hope we don't get hit.

Glad no guns are spouting upward now. The target looms bigger. It is a long barracks.

It's one minute after midnight Christmas Eve day. What a surprise package the Japs are going to get pretty soon now.

On and on we plunge. The speed is terrific, the wind mad. I'm thinking about friends and relatives and wishing I was a little boy. Then I wouldn't be here. Why did I ever get into this weird business. Wish I was a grocery clerk back in Texas, San Francisco, New York, Atlanta—anywhere but here.

Maybe we'll make it. Suddenly the Colonel levels her off.

Wham! Wham! Bombs go off below. The bomber shoots out over the water. My knees almost collapse. It's over, and we are still alive. Every bomb hit the target fair and square.

The colonel sees this, too, and hollers: "hot dog!"

I'm elated. Start to pound colonel on back. Suddenly remember his rank and the fact I just met him a few hours ago.

Now for home. The boys behind are certainly filling the atmosphere with steel. The fires are getting bigger and more numerous. The Japs must be having a hell of a time. Up comes some wild ack-ack. It missed us by miles. Bum shooting. Finally the fires fade in the distance.

Jap Belittles Claims

(Tokyo claimed "four small fires" were started and that one Japanese was killed. Four raiders also were claimed to be shot down. Admiral Nimitz said fires were reported visible for 75 miles and that all planes returned safely).

Nobody says much except the top turret gunner, Sergeant E. J. Bislew of Racine, Wis. He's miffed. Didn't get a shot at a Zero and won't have anything to tell his six-year-old son after the war.

Someone reaches for a cigaret, then suddenly realizes can't smoke because engineer is transferring extra gasoline and there's too much danger of explosion.

Munch a good roast beef sandwich instead. Drink pineapple juice, too. Everybody has a go at the food. Stand around awhile and watch the moon and stars and beautiful clouds below.

Yawn, getting sleepy. Stretch out on floor of the flight deck and pound ear.

Good sleep. Awaken to find I'm the only wounded man in the whole raid. Got my ear tangled up with a metal piece of the deck floor. Tiny cut in front of the right ear lobe.

Nearing Home Base

Getting close to base now. Boggiest place ever seen. Can't see 10 feet. Hitting that base is going to be some job, the hardest of the night. Boy, hope Capt. P. Kreig of Oak Harbor, Wash., the navigator, does his stuff. These planes float all of 20 second on the water. Where's that exit just in case!

It's time we were letting down. It's past time! Still no place to land. Where's those lights! Can't see any.

The colonel turns on the landing lights and vainly tries to see the water below. It's impossible. Getting lower and lower. Still can't find the horizon.

Nervous as hell. Sweating, too. Air is full of bombers. None of these kids even knew how to fly a year ago. Suppose we collide in this fog!

Down, down, down! Still no place to land. Finally, at 200 feet, we see water. The colonel holds her there and the bomber hurtles on in the fog.

Oh, where is that base!

Suddenly there's light ahead. It gets bigger and bigger. There's that base. Oh boy! Safe!

American Bombers Blast Wake Island

Planes Meet Weak Opposition, Return Undamaged to U. S. Base.

HICKMAN FIELD, Honolulu, Jan. 1.—(AP) Admiral Chester W. Nimitz declared today the Japanese could conclude that the U. S. air raid on Wake Island on Christmas Eve, when more than 75,000 pounds of bombs were dropped, was only a sample of things to come.

Select target areas were blasted by low-sweeping bombers in that raid, and fires were started which were visible for 75 miles over the sea. Not a plane was damaged in the raid, which took place a year and two days after a large Jap force overpowered a small American garrison on the island. Japs raised a futile anti-aircraft fire, and two planes rose to meet the Americans, but fled when fired upon, the Navy said.

Army Planes in Raid

Of the Dec. 24 raid on Wake, which caused devastating damage, Admiral Nimitz said "I am glad to have this opportunity of starting the new year by making recognition of the splendidly executed mission of our Army air forces.

"Without warning the morning before Christmas the Japanese on Wake island were suddenly presented with 75,000 pounds of aerial bombs, most of which struck and damaged military targets. All our planes attacked from low altitudes and returned to base on schedule, with neither planes nor personnel harmed by enemy artillery which was finally awakened by the visitors.

"To me, this operation epitomizes the complete unity with which all fighting forces in the Pacific — the Army, Navy, Marine corps and Coast Guards — are coordinating their strength and skill against the enemy.

"This raid and others like it will not eject the enemy from Wake. Such raids will, however, serve notices on the enemy as well as give assurance to our countrymen, that we have men with spirit and resolution and skill to handle the tools that are going to drive the Jap back to his own islands.

"To those of us in the theater of operations there have been vexatious delays in getting ready. Building of bases and transport of troops and material are but a few of the tasks that had to be done before we could undertake such an operation as this raid on Wake."

Raid Only a Sample

"Let the enemy take such consolation as he may from the thought that this raid was only a sample of things to come," the admiral declared.

"For the preparation and planning of this operation, Brigadier General Howard Ramey deserves great credit. (General Ramey, of Waynesboro, Miss., is head of the mid-Pacific bomber command). For its efficient execution we thank Colonel Matheny and his flight group. (Col. William A. Matheny of Spokane, Wash, led the Wake Island raid). It is heartening to know that thousands of other young airmen of the armed services are eager and ready to carry out similar missions.

"The courage, determination and airmanship of Colonel Matheny and his officers and men indicate the response we can expect from the personnel of all services in maintaining a common front against the enemy in the Pacific

"Made of exactly the same stuff are two destroyer skippers and two submarine commanders who receive awards this morning.

"One, Commander Orville Gregor took his destroyer, Aaron Ward, under the very guns of an enemy battleship to deliver a torpedo attack in the third battle of Savo Island. His ship was hit by a salvo of 14-inch shells and was raked by cruiser fire, but she lives to continue the fight.

"All of you know the story of the seaplane tender McFarland. The determination and resourceful tenacity of her captain, Lieut. Commander John Alderman, is an inspiration to the rest of us

"It is the American way of life that produces such men as these. It is their individual enterprise and initiative and common courage that are our principal weapons for victory. We are thankful for the valorous devotion of our brothers-in-arms who have stopped the enemy during the precarious months of the past year.

"The new year begins heartening assurance. We are getting trained personnel and shipment for our tremendous task.

"We have the unity and the will to destroy the enemy."

Weathermen Fulfill Important Duties in Solomon Islands

Group Includes J. E. Finn, First-Class Aerographer, From Washington

(The following article was written by Technical Sergt. James W. Hurlbut of Arlington County, Va., a Marine Corps combat correspondent in the Solomons.)

GUADALCANAL, Nov. 3 (Delayed).—Early this morning a mysterious light bobbed and swayed high over Henderson Field. As puzzled marines watched, rumors began to materialize. Some guessed that it was "Louie the Louse," marine name for any lone Jap pilot venturing into our area at night. But there was no sound of a plane motor and no exhaust flame.

Others thought that it might be a parachute flare, shot from enemy lines. But it moved in circles. As it moved sedately across the sky, the more imaginative saw in it some new enemy weapon. And then it disappeared in the darkness. Nothing further occurred that morning to clarify the mystery.

Solved by Weatherman.

Then, suddenly, it was solved. A Navy weatherman sitting down to lunch turned to his neighbors and brightly inquired:

"Did you fellows see the light on the ceiling balloon I sent up last night?"

So all the excitement turned out to be nothing more than additional proof that the Navy and marine weathermen, known technically as "aerographers," spend 24 hours a day on the job of charting weather conditions for the benefit of the flyers and artillerymen here.

"We supply weather information and flight forecasts, including velocity and direction of the upper air currents, for navigational purposes and for ballistic data for artillery batteries," explained Technical Sergt. Gordon Boyd of Auburn, Calif., one of the several marine and Navy aerographers stationed here.

"One of our jobs is making a pilot balloon ascension daily come hell or high water, to ascertain wind velocity or determine ceiling. That's what everybody saw last night.

Information for Fleet.

"We also transmit weather information to fleet and shore stations throughout the South Pacific. We keep complete meteorological records for research purposes.

"We have practically the same equipment as a weather bureau back home. The field equipment, however, is designed to fit each unit's needs."

Sergt. Boyd's description of an aerographer's duties may seem routine to the casual reader. And it might be commonplace elsewhere, but not on Guadalcanal.

Not when you realize that they continue working in spite of bombings and shellings. Not when you consider that Japanese snipers take perverse delight in shooting down the pilot balloons. Not when you learn that the aerographers have been bombed out of two offices in the last three months, without casualties, fortunately.

Plays Vital Role.

And especially not when it's understood that the success or failure of every fighting plane that takes the air, every bomber that goes out on a mission, every burst of anti-aircraft fire, and every round of land artillery depends, in a measure, on the accuracy of the work of the service meteorologists.

In addition to Sergt. Boyd, weathermen here include Master Technical Sergt. Thomas G. Murphy, Los Angeles; Staff Sergt. Max Nebergall, Des Moines; Aerographer Third Class David Horowitz, U. S. N., Elmyra, N. Y.; Aero Third Class Donald L. Keebler, U. S. N., Albany, Oreg.; Aero First Class Joseph E. Finn, U. S. N., Washington; Aero Third Class Marion Shirley, U. S. N., Oklahoma City; Staff Sergt. Ferdinand J. Ross, New York City, and Staff Sergt. George M. Abbott, Cambridge, N. Y.

Sergts. Boyd, Murphy and Nebergall, first Marine Corps aerographers on Guadalcanal, were recently promoted to their respective ranks in recognition of their outstanding work during the first three months of our occupation here.

Installations Ripped Apart In Low-Level Attack

By Walter B. Clausen JAN 2 1943
[Associated Press Correspondent]

Pearl Harbor T. H. Jan. 1—The third pulverizing American raid on Wake Island, executed a few minutes after midnight December 23-24, was the largest mass army heavy bomber raid in the Pacific war, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific fleet, disclosed today.

Nearly 76,000 pounds of bombs were dropped, not in an ordinary high level attack, but at a low level, by huge four-engine army bombers which ripped apart the installations of the Japanese-held island. All bombers returned safely to their bases, and there were no casualties.

The number of aircraft involved in the raid was not disclosed, but it can be said there were more than in the army's previous heavy bomber Wake Island raid last June 27.

Navy Attacked By Day

The first American raid on Wake was a navy carrier-plane attack last February 24 when two Japanese patrol boats were sunk, three large seaplanes demolished, and major shore installations were destroyed. That naval air raid was a daylight attack while the two army raids were night attacks.

Wake Island was captured by the Japanese December 23, 1941, after a sixteen-day siege during which less than 400 heroic marines held out against a force more than ten times their number. The marines sank seven Jap warships and shot down many planes before they were overpowered.

Since that time, no effort has been made by American forces to recapture Wake Island, but the successive raids have been carried out to destroy its usefulness to Japan as an advance base.

All Planes Return Undamaged

Here is the text of the announcement by Admiral Nimitz:

"Just after midnight December 23-24, East Longitude Time, a force of United States Army aircraft conducted a bombing attack on enemy installations on Wake Island.

"All of our participating aircraft returned undamaged to their bases. There were no injuries to our personnel. The enemy was apparently completely surprised by the attack, in which more than 75,000 pounds of bombs were dropped from low altitudes on designated target areas.

"Ineffectual anti-aircraft fire was observed after the first bombs had been dropped on Wake and Peale islands. Two enemy aircraft approached two of our planes but retired when fired upon with no damage sustained by our planes.

"The crews of our planes report that fires started by the attack were visible from a distance of seventy-five miles."

THEIR BOMBS GONE, THE BOMBERS STARTED FOR THEIR "SHANGRI-LA" BASE. FORTY MILES FROM WAKE, THAT ZERO THAT HAD GOT OFF THE GROUND TIMIDLY FIRED A BURST AT ONE BOMBER WHICH PROMPTLY REPLIED. APPARENTLY NEITHER WAS HIT. JAN 2 1943

FIRES ON WAKE ISLAND WERE VISIBLE FOR 75 MILES.

AS THEY FADED IN THE DISTANCE, THE TOP TURRET GUNNER, SERGEANT E.J.BISLEW, OF RACINE, WIS., CLIMBED DOWN TO THE FLIGHT DECK.

"HELL," HE SAID, "WHAT AM I GOING TO TELL MY SIX-YEAR-OLD SON

Add Pearl Harbor. Jan. 1.

ONE SQUADRON LEADER, MAJOR GLEN R.BIRCHARD OF BAY CITY, MICH., DROPPED BOMBS NEAR OIL TANKS, STARTING HUGE FIRES. PEERING OUT THE WINDOW, HE SAW JAPS RUNNING FOR COVER IN THEIR UNDERWEAR. NO FIGHT WAS LEFT IN THEM. JAN 2 1943

A QUICK LOOK AT WAKE AND PEALE ISLANDS SHOWED THAT BY THIS TIME FIRES WERE BURNING BETWEEN PEACOCK POINT AND THE EAST-WEST RUNWAY IN THE VICINITY OF THE UNDERGROUND HANGAR; LARGE FIRES WERE OBSERVED IN THE AREA OF THE BACHELOR OFFICERS' QUARTERS ON THE HEEL OF THE POINT; IN THE BUILDING AREA SOUTHEAST OF THE BRIDGE BETWEEN PEALE AND WAKE; IN A LARGE BUILDING IN THAT AREA WHICH HAD RECEIVED A DIRECT HIT.

OIL TANKS WERE AFIRE IN THE MIDDLE OF PEALE ISLAND. MORE TANKS WERE FLAMING NEAR THE SOUTH CHANNEL ENTRANCE TO THE HARBOR AND COLUMNS OF BLACK SMOKE WERE RISING FROM KUKU POINT.

THAT I DID ON THIS RAID? I JUST SAT UP THERE LIKE A DUMMY AND DIDN'T FIRE A SHOT. I WISH I COULD HAVE GOTTEN A SHOT AT A ZERO."

THE BOMBERS FLEW IN ABSOLUTE RADIO SILENCE ON THEIR TRIP TO WAKE ISLANDGN GUIDED ONLY BY THE MOON AND STARS. ON THE RETURN TRIP THEY HIT AN INTENSE WEATHER FRONT AND VISIBILITY WAS REDUCED TO A FEW FEET.

THIS WAS THE FIRST COMBAT ACTION FOR ALL BUT TWO OF THE PILOTS BUT DESPITE THE RAIN AND FOG EVERY PLANE FOUND ITS BASE AND LANDED SAFELY.

BRIG. GEN. HOWARD K.RAMEY, OF MISSISSIPPI, THE BOMBER COMMANDER, STOOD ANXIOUSLY WAITING ON THE RAINSWEPT AIRBASE. HE RUSHED UP TO CONGRATULATE COLONEL MATHENY AND EACH MAN IN SQUADRON.

THE GENERAL ORDERED EACH PLANE EXAMINED IMMEDIATELY AND AN OFFICIAL REPORT DELIVERED TO HIM LATER READ:

"TWO BULLET HOLES IN THE WING FLAPS OF ONE PLANE. NO WOUNDED OR DEAD."

THE TIRED CREW MEMBERS WHOOPED AND HOLLERED AND WENT TO BED.

WHEN THEY WERE AWAKENED GENERAL RAMEY READ THEM A CONGRATULATORY MESSAGE FROM ADMIRAL CHESTER W. NIMITZ, LIEUT. GEN. DELOS EMMONS, AND MAJOR GEN. WILLIS H.HALE: IT SAID IN EFFECT:

"CONGRATULATIONS ON A JOB WELL DONE."

THE RAIDING BOMBERS HAD EXECUTED THE LONGEST FLIGHT AND BIGGEST RAID OF ITS TYPE OF THE WAR. THE RECORD WAS THE MORE AMAZING BECAUSE ALL THE PLANES RETURNED SAFELY AND NOT ONE OF THE RAIDERS WAS INJURED OR KILLED.

ROOSEVELT CALLS FOR WORLD UNITY AFTER WAR IS WON

President Suggests International Cooperation to Prevent Warfare.

PLANNING NEEDED NOW

United Nations Must Continue Alliance, Chief Executive Indicates.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. — (AP) President Roosevelt called with all emphasis today for post-war international cooperation aimed at making another war impossible and at spreading the blessings of peace to all mankind.

The United Nations must remain united, he said in a New Year's day statement, easily his strongest utterance to date on post-war plans. The "unity achieved on the battle line" must be prevented and applied to the problems of the years to come.

Need for Planning Now

"In this as in no previous war," he said, "men are conscious of the supreme necessity of planning what is to come after—and of carrying forward into peace the common effort which will have brought them victory in the war. They have come to see that the maintenance and safeguarding of peace is the most vital single necessity in the lives of each of us."

By plain implication, Mr. Roosevelt's statement pledged — so far as he was able to give such a pledge —the United States to full participation in the projected international effort. It was obviously destined to have a profound effect upon post-war planning both here and in other capitols.

Mr. Roosevelt offered no suggestions as to the form that that post-war international organization should take. The details were unimportant, he said, and the main thing was the objective. Some thought that his ideas on methods might be presented in his annual address to Congress, next Thursday.

May Endorse Wallace Proposal

It was thought possible that he would follow up then with perhaps a partial endorsement of the "world council" proposal recently set forth by Vice President Wallace. Under the Wallace plan the "council" would have responsibility for general world-wide conditions, with regional matters to be adjusted by the nations of the regions affected.

One thing seemed certain: That ration insistence upon course of ration insitence upon the course of action suggested today would draw into the open the opposition of those who opposed his foreign collaboration policies before Pearl Harbor. They have been quietly preparing to meet this rising issue.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement was made in observance of the first anniversary of the signing, on Jan. 1 and Jan. 2, 1942, of the declaration of the United Nations, a document to which 29 countries have now adhered and in which they endorsed the principles of the Atlantic Charter, pledged themselves to fight the war through to the end with all their resources and promised to make no separate peace.

After speaking of the "grim" outlook a year ago, and of today's improved prospects—"The United Nations are passing from the defensive to the offensive"—and calling for united action, the President set forth what he considered "our task on this New Year's day." It was, he said, three-fold:

Victory Is First Aim

"First, to press on with the massed forces of free humanity until the present bandit assault upon civilization is completely crushed;

"Second, so to organize relations among nations that forces of barbarism can never again break loose;

"Third, to cooperate to the end that mankind may enjoy in peace and in freedom the unprecedented blessings which divine providence through the progress of civilization has put within our reach."

The President read his prepared statement to newspapermen at a press conference. They were so impressed with its importance that they asked for amplification, and the President discussed the situation informally.

In these remarks he heavily stressed a thought brought out by Mr. Wallace in presenting his world council idea. This was that first of all there must be peace, and enforceable peace. Otherwise there could be no enjoyment of the "blessings x x x of civilization" which he mentioned in his prepared statement.

At the insistence of the newsmen, Mr. Roosevelt authorized direct quotation of his informal remarks.

Many Objectives

"Of course," he said, "As I think has been intimated before, there are a great many objectives when peace comes, so that we won't go back to the old menace of the pre-war period—a great many things the United Nations ought to do and I think will certain ly do for.

"However, there is one thing which at the present time stands out as the most important war objective, and that is to maintain peace, so that all of us, in going through this war, including the men on the fighting fronts and on the seas, will not have to go through a world cataclysm again—that they will have some reasonable assurance that their children won't have to go through it again.

"Almost all the other things we hope to get out of the war are more or less dependent upon the maintenance of peace—all kinds of planning for the future, economic and social, and so forth and so on. It isn't much use if there is going to be another world war in ten years, or 15 years, or 20 years. All the planning for the future is dependent, obviously, on peace."

Hsiung To Visit War Plants Before Leaving

JAN 2 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 1—President Roosevelt told reporters today that Gen. Hsiung Shih-fei, head of the Chinese military mission in this country, was going back to China to report to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek but would make a tour of United States war plants before doing so.

The President added that the Chinese general would require about a month and a half for the plant tour and that he would come back to Washington and see the President again before leaving for Chungking.

Chinese authorities here discussing Hsiung's return to China have said there is dissatisfaction at Chungking over the amount of Allied aid which has reached China.

Philip Murray Receives Canadian College Award

Honored as 'Outstanding Lay Exponent of Christian Ideals'

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 1 (AP).—Philip Murray, international president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, was chosen today as the 1943 recipient of the Christian Culture Award presented annually by Assumption College to an "outstanding lay exponent of Christian ideals."

An announcement of Mr. Murray's selection praised the labor leader for his "statesmanlike qualities," plus a "rare degree of the virtues of prudence, justice, temperance and fortitude." He will receive the award in a formal ceremony on Jan. 24.

Last year's winner was Jacques Maritain, French philosopher. The 1941 award went to Mme. Sigrid Undset, Norwegian novelist.

HAMILTON, Canada, Jan. 1 (AP)—Fire early today swept through the service canteen in the Lennox Building, causing damage estimated at more than $100,000.

New Emergency Ration For Shipwrecked Seamen

JAN 2 1943

Canadian Kit, Overnight-Bag Size, Holds 16 Days' Food

OTTAWA, Jan. 1 (AP).—Canadian naval headquarters announced today that a new emergency ration kit has been devised which will give a better chance of survival to shipwrecked sailors huddled on life rafts.

Each kit, no bigger than a woman's overnight bag, will hold eight sixteen-ounce tins of water, eight tins of high caloric food and eight packets of sealed milk tablets. Four of the kits will be fastened to each ten-man raft, the announcement said.

The food tin is little bigger than a sardine can and holds twelve chocolate tablets, plus two bars of chocolate. These, with concentrated biscuits, are supposed to last one man two days.

The whole kit is covered by salt water-resisting paint. The tins will not rust or break at fifteen degrees below zero, and the chocolate will not melt below 212 degrees, it was said.

"Eat slowly" is the only direction on the packages. This is suggested because of the high caloric content of the food.

American and British naval authorities may also adopt the kit, which was designed after weeks of research under the direction of Surgeon Lieutenant Commander Charles Best, of Toronto, co-discoverer of insulin, the announcement said.

U. S. Moves To Deprive German Of Citizenship

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 31 (AP)—Capt. William Drechsel, identified by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as a close friend of the late Kaiser Wilhelm II and former operating manager for the merged Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd Steamship Lines, was named a defendant today in denaturalization proceedings filed in United States District Court by United States District Attorney Charles E. Phillips.

E. E. Conroy, New Jersey FBI chief, said Drechsel, 63, a resident of West Englewood, at one time had financial interest in the Oceanic Service, Inc., one of the concerns which contracted to supply guards for the S. S. Normandie when it was being converted for the United States Navy. The Normandie burned at its New York pier.

Conroy stated Drechsel admitted he was at one time a member of the Nazi party and owed allegiance to Adolf Hitler.

Ten U. S. Reporters Killed 33 Hurt in Covering War

JAN 2 1943

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—A recapitulation of the casualty list of American war correspondents at the end of 1942 showed 10 killed, two missing and 23 wounded or injured in line of duty since the outbreak of war in September, 1939, Editor and Publisher said today.

Twenty-three correspondents still are in Axis custody out of 65 captured in front-line action or interned in enemy or captured territory, the compilation showed.

Pre-Pearl Harbor casualties included two United States correspondents killed and seven wounded or injured. Since the attack on Pearl Harbor, eight more have died in the performance of their newspaper duty.

Between Pearl Harbor and the third anniversary of the outbreak of war last September, when the first compilation was made, 10 correspondents were wounded and injured. In the four months since September this total was more than doubled, 16 names having been added to the list. Since the march into Poland the total is 33.

LONDON, JAN. 1---(AP)---THE TASK OF THE UNITED NATIONS WILL NOT BE DONE WHEN THE WAR ENDS, SIR STAFFORD CRIPPS, MINISTER OF AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION, WARNED TODAY AT AN ALLIED NATIONS' NEW YEAR PAGEANT IN ALBERT HALL.

IT WILL BE NECESSARY TO KEEP THE MACHINERY OF THE ALLIANCE WORKING TO INSURE THE WINNING OF THE PEACE, SAID THE FORMER MEMBER OF THE BRITISH WAR CABINET.

"WE MUST REALIZE THAT THIS WAR IS BEING WAGED BY THE COMMON PEOPLE AND MUST BE FOLLOWED BY A PEACE FOR THE COMMON PEOPLE," HE SAID.

CRIPPS DEVOTED THE FOREPART OF HIS SPEECH TO A REVIEW OF THE PAST YEAR OF WAR, WHICH HE SAID WAS "A PLEASURE AND A RELIEF."

HE WARNED THAT "THE STRUGGLE MAY YET BE LONG AND BITTER AND THERE MAY YET BE TIMES OF DEFEAT AND STRUGGLE," BUT ADDED "OUR ENEMIES KNOW AS WE KNOW THAT THEIR DOOM IS SEALED."

LONDON, JAN.1--(AP)-PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL COMPLETED HIS SHAKEUP OF GOVERNMENT POSTS TODAY WITH NEW OFFICES FOR TWO PEERS.

THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE WAS MADE PARLIAMENTARY UNDERSECRETARY FOR COLONIES, WHICH POST HAROLD MACMILLAN, WHO IS MARRIED TO DEVONSHIRE'S SISTER, LEFT ON WEDNESDAY TO BECOME MINISTER RESIDENT IN NORTH AFRICA.

THE EARL OF MUNSTER WAS MOVED INTO THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE'S PLACE AS PARLIAMENTARY UNDERSECRETARY FOR INDIA AND BURMA.

DEVONSHIRE, ONE OF BRITAIN'S RICHEST LANDLORDS, OWNS CHATSWORTH, ONE OF THE LARGEST ENGLISH COUNTRY HOUSES. IN PRE-WAR DAYS HIS SERVANTS HAD THE TASK OF LIGHTING 111 COAL FIRES EACH MORNING.

LONDON, SATURDAY, JAN. 2----(AP)-----A SPOKESMAN FOR THE FIGHTING FRENCH ASSERTED TODAY THAT HOLDOVERS FROM THE VICHY REGIME IN NORTH AFRICA MUST BE 'ELIMINATED' BEFORE UNIFICATION OF FRENCH FORCES CAN TAKE PLACE.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR SUCH UNIFICATION ARE UNDER WAY, THE SPOKESMAN SAID.

'I AM OPTIMISTIC', HE DECLARED, 'BUT DON'T EXPECT ANY EASY OR RAPID SOLUTION. WHILE GENERAL GIRAUD IS ALL RIGHT, THE PRINCIPAL OBSTACLE IS THEMEN UNDERNEATH HIM WHO ARE HOLDOVERS FROM THE VICHY REGIME. THEY MUST BE ELIMINATED.'

THE SPOKESMAN SAID THAT GENERAL DE GAULLE HAD TAKEN THE INITIATIVE IN NEGOTIATIONS 'TRYING TO GET TOGETHER' THE FRENCH FACTIONS.

HE ASSERTED THAT THE 'STATE OF AFFAIRS' RATHER THAN THE PERSONALITIES INVOLVED MUST BE CHANGED TO BRING ABOUT THE RETURN OF THE REPUBLIC OF FRANCE. AS AN EXAMPLE, HE SAID, WHEN THE FIGHTING FRENCH TOOK OVER REUNION ISLAND ALL LAWS PASSED SINCE 1940 WERE NULLIFIED.

'A NUMBER WHO HAVE DONE WELL UNDER VICHY STILL HAVE KEY JOBS IN NORTH AFRICA,' THE SPOKESMAN SAID. NATURALLY, HE ASSERTED, THAT WOULD BE AN OBSTACLE IN THE WAY OF UNITY.

GENERAL GIRAUD KNOWS THE NAMES OF THESE MEN, THE SPOKESMAN CONTINUED, AS "THEY ARE QUITE OBVIOUS." THE MEN WHO MUST BE ELIMINATED ARE PARTICULARLY THOSE THOSE PREACHED COLLABORATION AND PERSECUTED THEIR FELLOW FRENCHMEN, HE ASSERTED.

A RETURN TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE REPUBLICAN REGIME IN FRANCE MUST BE THE BASIS FOR THE UNITED FIGHT, THE SPOKESMAN CONCLUDED.

LONDON, JAN. L----(AP)-----AN IMMINENT TEST OF STRENGTH BETWEEN THE ALLIED AND AXIS GROUND FORCES IN TUNISIA WAS FORECAST BY BRITISH OBSERVERS TODAY ON THE BASIS OF REPORTS OF UNRELENTING AIR ACTIVITY OVER THE BATTLE AREA, OFTEN THE PRELUDE TO A LARGE SCALE OFFENSIVE.

ADVICES FROM THE FRONT LAST NIGHT TOLD OF HEAVY ALLIED AERIAL ASSAULTS ON THE AXIS SUPPLY PORTS OF SFAX AND GABES AND OF A THRUST BY P-38 FIGHTERS INTO TRIPOLITANIA, WHERE THE COASTAL ROAD LINKING GEN. WALTHER NEHRING'S TUNISIAN FORCES WITH FIELD MARSHAL ROMMEL'S RETREATING AFRICA CORPS WAS VIOLENTLY STRAFED.

THE RAIDS CLIMAXED A WEEK OF UNREMITTING AIR ATTACKS ON AXIS BASES AND SUPPLY LINES AND INTERMITTENT ENEMY ASSAULTS ON ALLIED REAR POSITIONS.

WHETHER THE ALLIES WERE PREPARING FOR AN ATTEMPT TO SMASH THE AXIS DEFENSE LINES BEFORE TUNIS AND BIZERTE OR WHETHER THEY WERE TRYING TO BREAK UO ENEMY PREPARATIONS FOR AN ATTACK IN FORCE WAS A MATTER OF CONJECTURE.

THE LATTER POSSIBILITY WAS GIVEN SOMEWEIGHT BY FRENCH REPORTS DURING THE PAST FEW DAYS INDICATING THAT THE GERMANS WERE BRINGING UP HEAVY REINFORCEMENTS --INCLUDING TANKS -- ON T THE SOUTHERN FLANK OF THE FRONT NEAR PONT DU FAHS, 30 MILES SOUTHWEST OF TUNIS.

BRITISH OBSERVERS, WHO KNOW GENERAL REHRING AS A HARD-HITTING LEADER WITH A PENCHANT FOR THE ATTACK, REGARDED IT AS HIGHLY POSSIBLE THAT THE GERMAN COMMANDER MIGHT BE PREPARING A POWERFUL ATTEMPT TO TURN THE ALLIED FLANK AND REMOVE THE THREAT TO HIS LAND COMMUNICATIONS WITH ROMMEL.

NEWS OF THE GROUND ACTION, IN THIS SECTOR, HOWEVER, WAS LIMITED TO AL ALLIED COMMUNIQUE FROM NORTH AFRICAN HEADQUARTERS YESTERDAY WHICH SAID THAT ALLIED PATROLS HAD BEEN IN CONTACT WITH THE ENEMY IN THE VICINITY OF DE BOU ARADA, 15 MILES WEST OF PONT DU FAHS, AND THAT AXIS ARTILLERY HAD SHELLED THE ROAD NORTHEAST OF THAT POINT.

THE COMMUNIQUE ALSO REPORTED THAT FRENCH TROOPS, WITH BRITISH SUPPORT, HAD CAPTURED AN UNSPECIFIED POSITION ON THE CENTRAL FRONT NORTHWEST OF HEIDOUS. HEIDOUS IS A FEW MILES NORTH OF MENJEZ EL BAB, WHICH IS 35 MILES SOUTHWEST OF TUNIS.

NEW YORK, JAN. 1-(AP)-THE MOROCCO RADIO SAID ODAY THE AXIS AIR ATTACK ON CASABLANCA WEDNESDAY NIGHT CAUSED ABOUT 40 CASUALTIES, MOSTLY AMONG MOROCCAN NATIVES, AND DESTROYED OR DAMAGED SEVERAL MOSLEM HOUSES.

"AIR RAID PRECAUTION DEFENSES WENT INTO ACTION IMMEDIATELY, DISPLAYING THE GREATEST CALM AND PRAISEWORTHY DEVOTION," SAID THE BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION. MONEY AND OTHER HELP WERE REPORTED DISTRIBUTED IN THE STRICKEN AREAS BY THE RESIDENT GENERAL.

THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY THAT LONG-RANGE GERMAN BOMBERS HAD ATTACKED THE ALLIED ATLANTIC PORT.

JAN 2 1943 JA951AEW

LONDON, JAN. 1----(AP)-----The VICHY RADIO REPORTED TODAY THAT PIERRE LAVAL, ACCOMPANIED BY SEVERAL AIDES, HAD ARRIVED IN VICHY LAST NIGHT AFTER A VISIT TO PARIS.

LONDON, JAN. L----(AP)----A SPECIAL SQUAD OF BOBBIES HAS BEEN ASSIGNED TO GUARD UNITED STATES SOLDIERS IN LONDON FROM BEING "CLIPPED" BY CABBIES.

IT WAS DISCLOSED TODAY THAT THE LONDON POLICE WERE STATIONED AT THE ENTRANCE TO HOTELS AND CLUBS FOR THAT PURPOSE AFTER A MAGISTRATE REMARKED THAT THERE HAD BEEN A HIGH NUMBER OF CASES OF OVERCHARGING BY TAXICAB

LONDON----ADD-----OBSERVERS SUGGESTED THE GERMANS MIGHT HAVE GAMBLED ON THE POSSIBILITY THAT A LARGE PROPORTION OF BRITAIN'S NAVAL STRENGTH NOW IS CONCENTRATED ALONG NORTH AFRICA SUPPLY ROUTES AND THAT THE TIRPITZ COULD SAFELY VENTURE FORTH.

THE ALMOST PERPETUAL DARKNESS OF THE LONG ARCTIC NIGHT ALSO IS IN FAVOR OF SUCH A MOVE, FOR IT HAS REDUCED ALLIED AERIAL RECONNAISSANCE AND MADE IT DIFFICULT TO DETECT ENEMY NAVAL OPERATIONS.

BERLIN, (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS)----JAN. 1---(AP)----A GERMAN TRANSOCEAN DISPATCH FROM VICHY REPORTED TONIGHT THAT MARSHAL PETAIN RECEIVED NEW YEAR'S GREETINGS FROM MEMBERS OF THE DIPLOMATIC CORPS TODAY AT THE HOTEL DU PARC IN VICHY AND THANKED EACH DIPLOMAT PERSONALLY FOR HIS GOOD WISHES.

———

NEW YORK, JAN. 1----(HITLER)----A PARTIAL TEXT OF HITLER'S PROCLAMATION:

'FIRSTLY, WE HAD HARMED NEITHER BRITAIN NOR FRANCE NOR THE UNITED STATES. WE HAD MADE NO DEMANDS WHICH MIGHT HAVE CAUSED ENEMIES TO DECLARE WAR ON US.

'IN FACT, EVEN EVERY PEACE SUGGESTION DURING THE WAR WAS CURTLY TROD DOWN BY THE INTERNATIONAL CLIQUE OF WAR CRIMINALS AND INTERPRETED AS A SIGN OF GERMANY'S WEAKNESS.

'SECONDLY, AFTER EVENTS HAD PROVED WAR WAS INEVITABLE, WE RESOLVED TO WAGE WAR WITH ALL THE FANATICISM OF WHICH NATIONAL SOCIALISTS ARE CAPABLE. WE ARE MOST PARTICULARLY DETERMINED TO CARRY ON WITH THE WAR UNTIL A FINAL DECISION, SO THAT WE OURSELVES AND OUR DESCENDANTS WILL IN THE FUTURE BE SPARED SUCH A CATASTROPHE.

(HITLER THEN DEALT WITH VARIOUS MATTERS THAT HAVE BEEN OUTLINED BY THE ALLIED NATIONS FOR THE SUBJUGATION OF GERMANY AFTER THE WAR.)

'GERMANY IS AN UNSUITABLE OBJECT FOR SUCH EXPERIMENTS.

GERMANY WILL NEVER BE CONQUERED AND NEVER WILL CAPITULATE. ON THE CONTRARY, GERMANY IS DETERMINED AND IMBUED WITH THE SPIRIT OF THE GREATEST TIMES OF GERMAN HISTORY TO FIGHT UNTIL FULL VICTORY IS WON.

"OUR STRENGTH, THE COURAGE OF OUR TROOPS AND THE FAITH OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE AS WELL AS THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF OUR BRAVE ALLIES IN EUROPE AND ASIA GIVE US THE RIGHT TO BELIEVE IN OUR VICTORY.

"OUR ENEMIES IN THE COMING YEAR WILL HAVE TO REALIZE WHAT GERMANY AND EUROPE ARE CAPABLE OF ACHIEVING IN THE LAST ANALYSIS.

"THIS WINTER MAY BE HARD, BUT IT CANNOT POSSIBLY BE HARDER THAN LAST WINTER. THEN THE HOUR WILL COME WHEN WE SHALL CONCENTRATE ALL OUR STRENGTH IN ORDER TO SERVE THE CAUSE OF FREEDOM AND THE FUTURE LIFE OF OUR PEOPLE.

"AND THEN ONE POWER WILL BE THE FIRST TO COLLAPSE IN THIS STRUGGLE. THIS POWER WILL NOT BE GERMANY. THIS TIME THE GERMAN PEOPLE WILL REMAIN VICTORIOUS ON THE BATTLEFIELD. THEN, AT LAST, WE SHALL HAVE THAT LONG PEACE WHICH WE NEED FOR THE GREAT CONSTRUCTION OF OUR PEOPLE'S COMMUNITY.

THIS WILL BE THE ONLY RIGHT WAY IN WHICH TO THANK OUR DEAD HEROES."

CAIRO, JAN. 1---(AP)-----ALLIED AIRPLANES CARRIED OUT A HEAVY ATTACK YESTERDAY ON THE TUNISIAN PORT OF SFAX YESTERDAY, FOLLOWING UP AN ASSAULT ON THE SAME TARGET THE PREVIOUS NIGHT, A BRITISH COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED TODAY.

HITS WERE SCORED ON DOCKS, RAILWAY SIDINGS, A POWER STATION, WAREHOUSES AND OTHER BUILDINGS IN THE TWO RAIDS, THE BULLETIN SAID.

ALLIED PLANES ALSO WERE REPORTED TO HAVE MADE A HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL ATTACK ON THE AXIS AIRDROME AT CANDIA, CRETE, ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT, SETTING AT LEAST 20 FIRES. THE SAME NIGHT, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, AN AXIS SUPPLY SHIP WAS ATTACKED AND SET AFIRE OFF SICILY BY TORPEDO PLANES.

OF OPERATIONS ON THE LIBYAN FRONT THE COMMUNIQUE HAD ONLY THIS TO SAY:

"YESTERDAY THERE WAS NOTHING TO REPORT FROM OUR TROOPS WEST OF WADI BEI EL CHEBIR."

NEW DELHI, Jan. 1----(AP)----The RAF AERIAL ATTACKS ON ENEMY SHIPPING, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, WERE CONCENTRATED IN THE VICINITY OF TAUKOP, WHICH IS ABOUT 130 MILES SOUTH OF AKYAB.

HELSINKI, JAN. 1---(AP)---PREMIER JUKHA RANGELL ASSERTED IN A NEW YEAR'S BROADCAST TODAY THAT FINLAND IS DEFENSIVELY STRONGER NOW THAN EVER BEFORE.

FINLAND'S WORST THREAT ISN'T ITS WAR ENEMY, RANGELL SAID, BUT A SHORTAGE OF WOOD. DANGER OF INFLATION HAS BEEN SAFELY PASSED, HE DECLARED, AND THE MILITARY SITUATION "NEVER FOR A MOMENT HAS BEEN THREATENING."

RANGELL ASSERTED THAT FINLAND'S DEFENSE LINES REMAIN UNTOUCHED AND THE ARMY INTACT. SINCE THE OFFENSIVE PHASE OF THE WAR HAS ENDED THE FINNS HAVE PROGRESSIVELY REINFORCED THEIR DEFENSES, HE SAID, BUT ADDED THAT ONLY AFTER THE SHORTAGE OF RAW MATERIALS FOR THE WOOD INDUSTRIES HAS BEEN OVERCOME COULD THE FINNS FACE THE FUTURE CONFIDENTLY.

MOSCOW, JAN. 1---(AP)-----PRESIDENT MIKHAIL KALININ OF THE SOVIET UNION SAID IN A NEW YEAR'S MESSAGE TODAY THAT TERRIFIC LOSSES SUFFERED BY THE GERMAN ARMIES IN RUSSIA HAD EXHAUSTED THEIR OFFENSIVE POWER.

"TODAY THE WAR SITUATION IS MORE FAVORABLE FOR US THAN IT WAS AT THE CORRESPONDING DATE LAST YEAR, THOUGH AT THAT TIME, TOO, OUR ARMY WAS DEALING HEAVY BLOWS TO THE ENEMY," HE SAID. THIS YEAR THE GERMANS LAUNCHEDAN OFFENSIVE, NOT ALONG THE WHOLE FRONT, BUT ONLY IN THE SOUTHERN AND SOUTHWESTERN DIRECTIONS AND STILL THE GERMAN COMMAND FAILED TO ATTAIN ITS PURPOSE.

"IN THE COURSE OF HOSTILITIES THE GERMAN ARMY SUSTAINED LOSSES WHICH EXHAUSTED ITS OFFENSIVE POWER."

MOSCOW, JAN. 1-----(AP)------THE OPENING OF A NEW FOUR-MILE EXTENSION OF THEMOSCOW SUBWAY WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY. THE EXCAVATION WAS COMPLETED DESPITE HEAVY WARTIME DEMANDS ON MANPOWER AND MACHINERY.

MOSCOW, Jan. 1----ADD------"SOVIET TROOPS OPERATING NORTHWEST AND SOUTHWEST OF STALINGRAD WERE GIVEN THE TASK OF ROUTING THE GERMAN TROOPS AT THE STALINGRAD APPROACHES BY A FLANKING MOVEMENT TO SURROUND THE MAIN BODY SITUATED BEFORE THE CITY," THE COMMUNIQUE DETAILED.

"SOVIET TROOPS WAGING OFFENSIVE ENGAGEMENTS IN THE MIDDLE DON WERE GIVEN THE TASK TO BREAK THROUGH THE ENEMY DEFENSE X X X AND TO COME OUT INTO THE REAR OF THE GERMAN FASCIST ARMY OPERATING IN THE GREATER BEND OF THE DON SO AS TO PREVENT THE ENEMY TROOPS SURROUNDED BEFORE STALINGRAD FROM GETTING AWAY AND FROM RECEIVING HELP FROM THE OUTSIDE. X X X

"THE GERMAN COMMAND, HAVING BROUGHT ITS TROOPS TO AN IMPASSE BEFORE STALINGRAD AND FACED THEM WITH CATASTROPHE, LAUNCHED DESPER* ATE ATTEMPTS TO LIBERATE ITS TROOPS, SURROUNDED BEFORE STALINGRAD BY THE RED ARMY. X X X RUSSIAN TROOPS OPERATING SOUTH OF STALINGRAD WERE CONFRONTED WITH THE TASK OF ROUTING A NEW SHOCK GROUPING OF ENEMY TROOPS, THROWING THE GERMANS BACK TO THE SOUTH AND DEPRIVING THEM OF THEIR LAST CHANCE TO CLEAR THE WAY FOR THEIR DIVISIONS SURROUNDED BEFORE STALINGRAD."

THE ENCIRCLEMENT OF THE STALINGRAD BESIEGERS NOW HAS A PARALLEL IN THE THREATENED FLANKING OF THE GERMAN ARMIES IN THE CAUCASUS, WHILE THE SUCCESS OF ARMIES STRIKING FOR ROSTOV, ON THE SEA OF AZOV AT THE MOUTH OF THE DON, WOULD ACCOMPLISH THE VAST PROJECT OF SLICING AWAY THE ENTIRE GERMAN ARMY WEST OF THAT LINE FROM ITS SOURCES OF SUPPLIES IN THE WESTERN UKRAINE AND IN POLAND.

AS WITH STALINGRAD, PREMIER STALIN HAS UTTERED A SPECIAL PLEA FOR THE RECLAMATION OF THE UKRAINE AND SOME OF THE MIDDLE DON ARMY ALREADY HAS STRUCK WEST OF THE MOSCOW-ROSTOV RAILWAY INTO THE UKRAINE.

MEANTIME, THE RUSSIAN NEWS AGENCY TASS REPORTED THAT RUSSIAN ARMAMENT PRODUCTION WAS SEVERAL TIMES LARGER IN 1942 THAN IN THE PRECEDING YEAR, DESPITE THE GERMAN OCCUPATION DURING THE SUMMER OF LARGE INDUSTRIAL CENTERS AND FUEL-PRODUCING REGIONS. ANTI-TANK WEAPONS WERE PRODUCED TENFOLD AND HEAVY ARTILLERY AND PLANE PRODUCTION INCREASED ON A SIMILAR SCALE, TASS SAID.

(EDITOR'S NOTE----FOR 10 YEARS GEORGE TUCKER COVERED THE DOINGS OF BROADWAY BUT LAST FALL HE GAVE UP HIS COLUMN, "MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN", AND WENT TO THE WAR. HERE IS HIS ACCOUNT OF THE STRANGEST NEW YEAR'S EVE HE EVER SPENT. TUCKER, 39 YEARS OLD, WAS BORN IN BEAUMONT, TEXAS, AND FORMERLY WORKED ON THE COLUMBUS, OHIO, DISPATCH.)

-DASH-

BY GEORGE TUCKER

WITH ADVANCE RAF FIGHTERS IN TRIPOLITANIA, JAN. 1---(AP)----AS AN OLD BROADWAY OBSERVER WITH TEN YEARS OF EXPERIENCE REPORTING YEAR-END CELEBRATIONS, I'D LIKE TO SAY THAT NEW YEAR'S EVE IN NEW YORK WAS NEVER LIKE THIS.

A YEAR AGO LAST NIGHT I SAT IN A FAMOUS NEW YORK NIGHT CLUB AND INHALED CONFETTI WHILE THE CLARINETS AND SAXES AND REEDS AND BRASSES WAILED "AULD LANG SYNE". THERE WAS A BIG RED CARNATION IN MY LAPEL, AND I DINED ON PHEASANT OFF A GOLD PLATE.

THE TABLE COVER WASTHE FINEST OF IMPORTED LINEN, AND AS MIDNIGHT STRUCK, THE SPOTLIGHTS THREW CASCADES OF RAINBOW HUES OVER THE FLUSHED AND EXCITED FACES OF WOMEN IN LOVELY EVENING GOWNS AND THEIR COMPANIONS IN BROADCLOTH.

LAST NIGHT I SAW IN A TENT IN THE LIBYAN DESERT INHALING SAND AND PLAYING POKER BY THE LIGHT OF A SMOKY KEROSENE LAMP. MY PLAYMATES WERE A SCOTCH OFFICER AND TWO NEWSPAPERMEN.

THERE WAS NO FINE IMPORTED LINEN CLOTH AVAILABLE, SO WE USED A CAPTURED NAZI BATTLEFLAG, WITH ITS BIG BLACK SWASTIKA ON A WHITE OVAL AGAINST A RED FIELD. IN PLACE OF PHEASANT OFF GOLD PLATE, WE ARE BULLY BEEF OFF ALUMINUM MESSKITS. AND SINCE WHITE TIE AND FORMAL DRESS ARE A BIT OUT OF PLACE IN THE DESERT, WE WERE DECKED OUT IN KHAKI TIES WITH BATTLE DRESS.

OFF TO THE RIGHT OF OUR TENT A FEW HUNDRED YARDS, THE BLUE MEDITERRANEAN MURMURED A SOFT MIDNIGHT LULLABY, WHILE TEN MILLION BIG WHITE-HOT STARS CAME DOWN LOW TO KIBITZ OUR GAME.

A YEAR AGO I MOVED IN A WORLD OF PURRING CROONERS AND DRUMMERS WHO BEAT SYNCOPATED RATTA-TAT-TATS ON DRUMS, BUT THE ONLY PURRING LAST NIGHT WAS THE MOTORS OF OUR NIGHT FIGHTERS, AND THE ONLY RATTA-TAT-TATS THEIR MACHINEGUNS.

A YEAR AGO I REMEMBER MINGLING WITH SWARMS OF PEOPLE ON BROADWAY. YESTERDAY I FLEW A THOUSAND MILES ACROSS THE LIBYAN DESERT AND DESERT AND SAW THE BLACKENED RUINS OF HUNDREDS OF TANKS, PLANES, TRUCKS AND OTHER VEHICLES. THE WHOLE DESERT IS STREWN WITH THE BAGGAGE OF WAR.

I COUNTED MORE THAN A HUNDRED GERMAN PLANES, MANY OF THEM STUKAS, BUT THEY NEVER WILL DIVEBOMB ALLIED TROOPS AGAIN. THEIR NOSES ARE BURIED IN SAND, AND THEIR TAILS, WITH THEIR EVIL BLACK CROSSES, POINT DEJECTEDLY AT THE FLEECY CLOUDS OVERHEAD.

ONCE WE LANDED TO SPEAK WITH AN RAF OBSERVER, AND I WALKED OFF A FEW YARDS TO THE RUINS OF TWO STUKAS AND A NAZI TRANSPORT SHIP. ALL OVER THE GROUND WERE FRAGMENTS OF MACHINEGUN BELTS BLACKENED BY FIRE, WITH THE BULLETS STILL IN THEM.

CLOSE AT HAND WERE THE GRAVES OF THREE GERMANS WHOSE NEW YEAR NEVER CAME. THEY WERE MARKED BY RUDE CROSSES, AND ON EACH CROSS THERE WAS A GERMAN HELMET.

BACK IN NEW YORK A YEAR AGO I SAW HERDS OF EXCITED

MERRYMAKERS PICKING THEIR WAY THROUGH TIMES SQUARE TRAFFIC. YESTERDAY I SAW HERDS OF CAMELS DRIFTING OVER ABANDONED BATTLEFIELDS STILL LETHAL WITH HIDDEN MINEFIELDS.

THERE ARE NO COLORED SPOTLIGHTS HERE, BUT THE RAINBOW HUES ARE JUST AS APPARENT IN THE DESERT, WHICH CHANGES FROM YELLOW AND WHITE TO CREAM AND GOLD WITH THE PROGRESS OF THE SUN.

BUT THERE WAS PLENTY OF NEW YEAR'S SPIRIT IN THIS OUTFIT TODAY AS THE BOYS TOOK OUT AFTER JERRY. NEXT NEW YEAR, THEY SAY, THEY WILL BE CELEBRATING AT HOME.

BY WILLIAM McGAFFIN

NEW DELHI, Dec. 31---(DELAYED)----Brig. Gen. Clayton L. BISSELL TOLD WAR CORRESPONDENTS IN A NEW YEAR EVE CONFERENCE TODAY THAT THE GROUND WORK WAS WELL LAID BY THE AMERICAN FIGHTING MACHINE CREATED IN THIS DISTRICT IN 1942 AND "WE ARE PREPARED TO MOVE FORWARD IN THE NEW YEAR."

GENERAL BISSELL, WHO HEADS THE U.S. AIR FORCES IN INDIA, BURMA AND CHINA, SAID COOPERATION AMONG THE INDIANS AND CHINESE AND MILITARY UNITS HAD BEEN "ALL THAT WE COULD WISH."

"MUTUAL RESPECT, CONFIDENCE AND ADMIRATION ARE GROWING DAILY ON THE PART OF ALL CONCERNED," HE SAID.

"THE 10TH AIR FORCE LOOKS FORWARD TO THE NEW YEAR WITH ANTICIPATION OF GREATER SUCCESSES AND WITH BEING ABLE TO CONTRIBUTE AN EVER INCREASING PART IN THE FINAL VICTORY."

JAPANESE HAVE BEEN ATTACKED IN THE PAST FEW WEEKS "WHEREVER WE COULD FIND THEM," HE SAID, ADDING "WE HAVE RATHER THOROUGHLY COVERED MOST OF BURMA."

ON THE RAID THE NIGHT OF DEC. 26 ON BANGKOK, THAILAND'S CAPITAL, THE GENERAL SAID IT WAS BELIEVED THE 1,600-MILE ROUND TRIP "INVOLVED A GREATER DISTANCE THAN ANY FLOWN IN ANY THEATER OF THIS WAR" PREVIOUSLY.

GENERAL BISSELL, HOWEVER, EMPHASIZED THAT HE HAD NO DESIRE TO DETRACT IN ANY MEASURE FROM THE SPLENDID LONG-RANGE FLIGHTS IN OTHER THEATERS. HE SAID THE DISTANCE FROM ENGLAND TO NORTHERN ITALY WAS NOT SO GREAT, "BUT IT IS OVER A MUCH GREATER STRETCH OF HOSTILE TERRITORY."

AMERICAN AIR FORCE PLANES MADE 25 RAIDS FROM INDIAN BASES DURING DECEMBER WHILE THE RAF AVERAGED ONE ATTACK EVERY 24 HOURS IN THE HEAVIEST AIR OFFENSIVE YET LAUNCHED AGAINST THE JAPANESE FROM THIS REGION, AUTHORITIES SAID.

A PRESS NOTE REPORTED THAT THE AMERICANS CONCENTRATED ON ENEMY COMMUNICATIONS, DOCKS, SHIPPING AND INDUSTRIAL TARGETS WHILE THE BRITISH STRUCK AT JAPANESE-OCCUPIED AIRDROMES IN BURMA.

THE AMERICANS, IN ADDITION, HEAVILY BOMBED A NAVAL YARD AND ARSENAL IN JAPANESE SERVICE IN THE ATTACK UPON BANGKOK.

THE RAF PAID PARTICULAR ATTENTION TO THE LARGE FORWARD AIR BASE AT MAGWE, BURMA, AND SUPPORT OF THE BRITISH LAND INVASION ABOVE AKYAB.

IN THE MONTH'S OFFENSIVE THE BRITISH LOST EIGHT PLANES. THEY DESTROYED AT LEAST TWO JAPANESE PLANES AND DAMAGED MANY OTHERS. ON THE DEFENSIVE SIDE, THE BRITISH LOST SIX PLANES DURING JAPANESE ATTACKS ON INDIAN OBJECTIVES DURING THE MONTH, BUT DESTROYED 13 AND DAMAGED MANY OTHERS. ALL OF THE BRITISH PILOTS WERE REPORTED SAFE. #

Add-Churchill-Jan 1.

A COMMUNIQUE SAID THE LANDING WAS MADE UNDER COVER OF A NAVAL BARRAGE NORTHEAST OF SWATOW, MORE THAN 200 MILES UP THE COAST FROM HONG KONG, AFTER "NUMEROUS WARSHIPS" APPEARED OFFSHORE.

THE JAPANESE THRUST INLAND TOWARD TAKANG AND FIGHTING CONTINUED UNTIL LAST TUESDAY, WHEN THE JAPANESE WERE FORCED TO RETREAT, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

BY GLENN BABB

THE JAPANESE ALSO CELEBRATE NEW YEAR, THE ONE ANNUAL FESTIVAL THEY SHARE WITH THEIR ENEMIES. THEY MAKE EVEN MORE OF IT THAN WE DO, CONSIDER IT THE BIRTHDAY OF THE WHOLE NATION, A SOBER OCCASION FOR REDEDICATION AND FOR THOUGHTFUL APPRAISAL OF THE OLD AND NEW

YEARS. WE CAN BE SURE THAT ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE PACIFIC WAR FRONT THE OUTLOOK FOR 1943 IS BEING JUST AS SERIOUSLY WEIGHED AS ON OUR SIDE.

IF THE JAPANESE HAD NOT DECIDED A FEW YEARS AGO TO TURN THEIR BACKS ON CHRISTIAN CIVILIZATION THEY PROBABLY WOULD BE CALLING THIS 1943 JUST AS WE DO. THE GENERATION BEFORE 1931--WHEN THE INVASION OF MANCHURIA ENDED AN ERA--WAS GLAD TO ADOPT MANY OF OUR WAYS INCLUDING THAT OF COUNTING THE YEARS FROM THE BIRTH OF CHRIST. BUT THAT WAS PUT ASIDE WITH OTHER FEATURES OF OCCIDENTAL CIVILIZATION WHEN THE MILITARY CLIQUE DETERMINED TO RECALL THE NATION TO WORSHIP OF ITS ANCIENT, SAVAGE GODS.

TO THE JAPANESE THIS IS EITHER THE YEAR 2603, THE 18TH YEAR OF SHOWA OR THE YEAR OF THE GOAT.

THEY COUNT TIME FROM THE MYTHICAL FOUNDATION OF THEIR EMPIRE, SUPPOSEDLY IN 660 B.C., BY JIMMU TENNO, GREAT-GREAT-GRANDSON OF THE SUN GODDESS, WHICH EXPLAINS THE 2603. SHOWA IS THE TERM FOR EMPEROR HIROHITO'S REIGN. IT MEANS "PEACE MADE MANIFEST." JAPANESE MILITARISTS SPEAK OF THEIR SEIZURE OF POWER WITHIN JAPAN AS THE SHOWA RESTORATION; THEIR RECENT AND CURRENT ACTIVITIES ABROAD THEY INSIST COME UNDER THE HEADING OF MAKING PEACE MANIFEST TO THE WORLD.

THE POPULAR CUSTOM OF GIVING YEARS THE NAMES OF THE TWELVE ANIMALS OF THE JAPANESE ZODIAC EXPLAINS THE YEAR OF THE GOAT. TO RECALL A LITTLE RECENT HISTORY, 1941 WAS THE YEAR OF THE SNAKE. REMEMBER PEARL HARBOR? NINETEEN FORTY-TWO WAS THE YEAR OF THE HORSE, SYMBOL OF SWIFTNESS, STRENGTH, VICTORY. THE JAPANESE, REMEMBERING MUCH THAT HAPPENED IN THE FIRST HALF OF 1942 AND CONVENIENTLY FORGETTING OR IGNORING THINGS THAT OCCURRED IN THE LATTER HALF, FIND THE HORSE SYMBOL APPROPRIATE. CONCERNING THE YEAR OF THE GOAT WE CAN WRITE OUR OWN TICKET.

A18

HOW, THEN, DOES THIS 18TH YEAR OF SHOWA LOOK TO OUR ORIENTAL ENEMY? BRIGHT ENOUGH, TO LET HIM TELL IT. HIS REAL THOUGHTS PROBABLY ARE HIDDEN BEHIND THAT BROWN MASK OF A FACE AND BEHIND THE WALL OF SECRECY HE HAS THROWN AROUND HIS WIDESPREAD DOMINIONS. BUT HIS RADIO AT LEAST REVEALS WHAT HIS LEADERS ARE TELLING HIM ABOUT THE NEW YEAR OR WHAT HE WANTS US TO BELIEVE HE IS THINKING.

HERE IS PREMIER GENERAL TOJO, IN HIS NEW YEAR MESSAGE TO THE NATION:

JAN 2 1943

"IN THE LAST YEAR THE FIGHTING SERVICES OF JAPAN HAVE ACHIEVED BRILLIANT WAR RESULTS UNPARALLELED IN THE HISTORY OF THE WORLD. X X JAPAN HAS SUCCEEDED IN SWEEPING THE BRITISH, AMERICAN AND DUTCH FORCES FROM GREATER EAST ASIA. X X X JAPAN HAS STABILIZED ITS POSITION FOR COMPLETE VICTORY, HAS SOLIDIFIED ITS FOUNDATIONS FOR ACHIEVING THE GREATEST IDEAL IN THE NATION'S HISTORY, NAMELY CO-PROSPERITY FOR ALL THE NATIONS CONCERNED."

THE JAPAN TIMES AND ADVERTISER, THE FOREIGN OFFICE NEWSPAPER:

"IN THE 2600 YEARS OF THE HISTORY OF THIS NATION THERE HAS NEVER BEEN A YEAR TO MATCH IN SIGNIFICANCE THAT WHICH HAS CLOSED. X X X ALL THE THOUSANDS OF PAST YEARS OF HER HISTORY HAVE BEEN IN A SENSE BUT PREPARATION FOR THE GREAT TASK UPON WHICH JAPAN HAS BEEN ENGAGED THIS PAST YEAR."

THIS PRESENTS A MAGNIFICENT PICTURE, BUT ONE THAT LOOKS BACKWARD RATHER THAN FORWARD. THERE IS REALIZATION THAT FOR JAPAN THERE CAN NEVER BE ANOTHER YEAR LIKE THE ONE JUST GONE. AND THE PICTURE IS MADE UP OF HALF TRUTHS. HOWEVER, THERE IS ENOUGH TRUTH IN IT TO BOLSTER JAPANESE SPIRITS AND MORE THAN ENOUGH TO TOUGHEN THE RESOLUTION OF THE UNITED NATIONS. PREMIER TOJO'S MESSAGE AT THE BIRTH OF SHOWA 19---IF HE STILL IS PREMIER---SHOULD BE OF AN ENTIRELY DIFFERENT TENOR. JAPAN IS SWAPPING THE HORSE FOR THE GOAT. #

BUENOS AIRES, JAN 1-(AP)-A VIGOROUS ARGENTINE RETORT TO AN OFFICIAL BRITISH STATEMENT CRITICIZING ARGENTINE FOREIGN POLICY LED POLITICAL OBSERVERS TO BELIEVE TODAY THERE IS SMALL CHANCE OF THIS COUNTRY'S SEVERING RELATIONS WITH THE AXIS POWERS--AT LEAST FOR THE PRESENT.

JAN 2 1943

THE ARGENTINE REPLY WAS CONTAINED IN A 200-WORD COMMUNIQUE ISSUED LAST NIGHT BY FOREIGN MINISTER ENRIQUE RUIZ GUINAZU IN WHICH HE EXPRESSED "ASTONISHMENT" AT THE BRITISH STATEMENT AND DECLARED IT HAD BEEN COUCHED "IN TERMS WHICH ARE NOT IN KEEPING WITH THE FRIENDLY RELATIONS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES."

THE STATEMENT TO WHICH HE REFERRED, ISSUED YESTERDAY BY THE BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE, HAD DEPLORED THE FACT THAT ARGENTINA HAS CONTINUED TO MAINTAIN RELATIONS WITH "THE ENEMIES OF HUMANITY."

IN ISSUING THE STATEMENT THE BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE DECLARED IT WISHED TO CORRECT REPORTS WHICH IT ATTRIBUTED TO BUENOS AIRES NEWSPAPERS AND AN ARGENTINE OFFICIAL PUBLICATION CREATING THE ERRONEOUS IMPRESSION THAT ENGLAND WAS SUPPORTING ARGENTINA'S NEUTRALITY POLICY.

IN HIS REPLY RUIZ GUINAZU DECLARED THE BRITISH STATEMENT HAD BEEN BASED "ON A SERIOUS ERROR BY THE BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE IN ATTRIBUTING TO AN ARGENTINE OFFICIAL PUBLICATION WHAT THAT PUBLICATION NEVER SUGGESTED OR INTENDED TO SUGGEST."

JAN 2 - 1c

"AT THE SAME TIME," THE FOREIGN MINISTER ADDED, "THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT IS ASTONISHED THAT THE ENGLISH FOREIGN OFFICE PRONOUNCES ITSELF REGARDING THE ARGENTINE POLITICAL ATTITUDE IN TERMS WHICH ARE NOT IN KEEPING WITH FRIENDLY RELATIONS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES."

THE COMMUNIQUE ALSO CALLED ATTENTION TO THE ACTION OF THE UNITED STATES STATE DEPARTMENT IN ENDORSING THE BRITISH STATEMENT BY REMINDING AMERICAN OFFICIALS THAT, IN KEEPING WITH THE RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE RIO DE JANEIRO CONFERENCE, ARGENTINA CONSIDERS SHE CAN ONLY BREAK RELATIONS WITH THE AXIS POWERS WHEN IT IS CONVENIENT TO HER OWN INTERESTS.

"IN THE CASE OF THE UNITED STATES," RUIZ GUINAZU SAID, "THIS GOVERNMENT IS SURPRISED THAT THE STATEMENT BY THE STATE DEPARTMENT PASSES JUDGMENT ONE YEAR AFTER THE RIO DE JANEIRO CONFERENCE WHEN IT WAS UNANIMOUSLY AGREED TO RECOMMEND A RUPTURE OF RELATIONS WITH THE AXIS COUNTRIES "WITHIN THE POSITION AND CIRCUMSTANCES EACH COUNTRY HAS IN THE CONFLICT."

WASHINGTON, JAN. 1-(AP)-COMMANDER CHARLES W. WILKINS, A HERO OF THE UNITED STATES SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN AGAINST JAPANESE SHIPPING AND NAVAL OPERATIONS IN THE PACIFIC, RECEIVED FROM SECRETARY OF THE NAVY KNOX TODAY A GOLD STAR IN RECOGNITION OF HIS ACHIEVEMENT IN SINKING 14,500 TONS OF ENEMY CRAFT DURING A CRUISE OF MORE THAN SIX WEEKS LAST SUMMER.

WILKINS, OF THOROFARE, N.J., PREVIOUSLY HAD RECEIVED A NAVY CROSS FROM ADMIRAL CHESTER W. NIMITZ, PACIFIC FLEET CHIEF, FOR SUBMARINE OPERATIONS IN THE PACIFIC LAST WINTER. TODAY'S DECORATION WAS GIVEN IN LIEU OF A SECOND NAVY CROSS.

ON THE WINTER CRUISE, THE 40-YEAR-OLD WILKINS AND HIS CREW WERE CREDITED WITH SINKING 12,000 TONS OF ENEMY MERCHANT SHIPPING. THAT PLUS THE TONNAGE REPORTED TODAY GAVE HIM A TOTAL OF AT LEAST 26,500 TONS OF JAPANESE SHIPS DESTROYED.

THE CITATION READ TO WILKINS BY KNOX SAID: JAN 2 1943

"FOR EXTRAORDINARY HEROISM AND DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AS COMMANDING OFFICER OF A SUBMARINE IN AGGRESSIVE ACTION AGAINST ENEMY JAPANESE SURFACE UNITS, DURING THE PERIOD FROM JULY 8, 1942, TO AUGUST 26, 1942. WHILE ENGAGED IN HAZARDOUS SUBMARINE PATROL, COMMANDER WILKINS, AVAILING HIMSELF OF EVERY ATTACK OPPORTUNITY, PRESSED HOME ALL CONTACTS AND SUCCEEDED IN SINKING A TOTAL OF 14,500 TONS OF ENEMY SHIPPING. HIS EXPERT SEAMANSHIP AND HIS GALLANT AND COURAGEOUS DEVOTION TO DUTY WERE IN KEEPING WITH THE HIGHEST TRADITIONS OF THE UNITED STATES NAVAL SERVICE."

REDS CAPTURE RAIL CENTER ON SAL RIVER

Drive Beyond Kotelnikovski To Remontnaya, 117 Miles From Stalingrad

Caucusus Forces Regain Elkhotovo, Taking Large Amount Of Booty

JAN 3 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sunday, Jan. 3—The Red army driving down the North Caucasian railway beyond Kotelnikovski captured Remontnaya, 117 miles southwest of Stalingrad, yesterday, the Russians announced early today in a communique broadcast by the Moscow radio.

Elkhotovo, thirty miles southeast of Nalchik, in the mid-Caucasus, also was retaken by the Russians, along with large amounts of booty, the communique said.

At Crossing Of Sal River

Remontnaya is twenty-seven miles beyond Kotelnikovski at a point where the railroad crosses the Sal river.

German tanks, artillery, food stores, cattle and other supplies were taken at Ramontnaya, and the Russians now are almost midway between Stalingrad and Tikhoretsk, the junction where the North-South railway meets the North Caucasian line.

Russian troops also are operating midway between Stalingrad and the Nalchik sector in an effort to clean out the enemy from the area of Elista, a provincial capital in the Kalmyck area.

Reviews Elista Battle

In the recent capture of Elista, the communique heard here by Soviet monitors said, Soviet troops routed the Sixtieth German Motorized Regiment, a sapper battalion, a battalion of the One Hundred and Fifty-sixth Motorized Regiment and other units.

"Pursuing the retreating enemy," the communique said, "our detachments annilhilated 800 officers and men, took 200 prisoners, and captured six guns, many machine guns, trucks and other trophies."

More than 1,100 Germans were reported to have fallen on the battlefields of Russia yesterday in operations ranging from Velikie Luki northwest of Moscow, to the mid-Caucasus.

JAN 3 1943

Push West Of Velikie Luki

After capturing Velikie Luki the Russians said their troops pushed on west of that key town to destroy five tanks and kill 160 Germans in another engagement.

[The Berlin radio repeated again tonight that the Nazis still hold Velikie Luki. "The city still is firmly in German hands," the broadcast said, adding that the area had "become a mass grave of Soviet infantrymen."]

In the operations at the other end of the Soviet front, the middle

25 Miles From Gateway

This fighting is going on in the northern foothills of the Caucasus mountains, and Elkhotovo is about twenty-five miles northwest of Ordzhonikidze, the gateway to the Georgian military highway that cuts through the mountains.

Of the middle Don offensive, the communique said:

"In the area of the middle Don our troops continued their offensive. Our "X" units, advancing, cut a road that connects two big populated places. More than 300 enemy officers and men were killed.

"On a neighboring sector an enemy counter-attack was repelled. Sixteen German tanks were disabled and burned out."

Velikie Luki Fall Imperils Main Nazi Defenses

JAN 3 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Jan. 2—The red flag of the Soviets flew over the ancient Russian town of Velikie Luki today to signal a major Russian victory on the central front.

Recapture of the Nazi strong point was officially announced after a bitter siege in which hedgehog fortifications were slowly and painstakingly reduced. Thereby the main German line of defenses in the central area and, perhaps, the invaders' entire eastern front from the Baltic Sea to the Caucasus, were placed in danger.

Nazi Peril Growing

As the Russians, with seemingly inexhaustible offensive power, pushed through Velikie Luki they formed a salient threatening German positions to the northeast about Leningrad and southeast about Smolensk, the latter a major rear base for German operations on the whole front.

The Germans showed no signs of taking any decisive counter-action toward averting further catastrophies in the central area.

Nazi Garrison "Wiped Out"

Velikie Luki fell yesterday, after a fight to the death in which Red army artillery and infantry encircled and crushed all resistance.

"The German garrison in the town, which refused to lay down its arms, was wiped out," the regular early communique of the Russian command said.

(The Germans insisted today that Velikie Luki still was being stubbornly held yesterday.)

Battlefront dispatches said that the town had been elaborately fortified and surrounded by thousands of mines, tank traps and pill boxes and that even a special system of hooks had been hidden under the snow to tip the legs of attacking troops.

Great Break-Through

Preceding their final assault, the Russians captured a ring of hills overlooking the city. Working from there they finally forged through the tremendous fortifications in the first great break-through on the central front since the Soviet started their winter offensive in that area.

Possession of Velikie Luki gives the Russians a vitally important point from which to conduct their operations, for it stands at a junction point of the Moscow-Riga and Leningrad-Vitebsk railroads. There also is a vast airport on its outskirts.

Elista Reported Destroyed.

Elista, capital of the wind-swept desert-like Kalmyck steppe region, was gathered in by Russian columns which had speared swiftly south from the Stalingrad-Kotelnikovski battle line. Little towns in their path tumbled into their hands as they sped southward to provide a new threat behind the German forces busied with the frontal assault of the Russian offensive in the Caucasus.

(Elista has been evacuated by German troops after complete destruction of the place, authoritative German quarters announced in Berlin today.)

In that offensive the capture of Chikola, a district center southeast of Nalchik, and of the towns of Kaznedo and Saldun, also was announced in the communique. The Russian Caucasus army has thrown units across the Terek River in a flanking attack to insure further the safety of the Grozny oil fields.

War Materials Seized.

The ponderous but closely-meshed Russian campaign moved ahead on other fronts, the third war bulletin of the day said. The Soviet midday communique reported that large quantities of war materials were seized in the capture of Velikie Luki.

Enemy counterattacks were beaten off in sectors of the central front, the latest communique said, especially in the arear west of Rzhev, where it reported that "large enemy formations supported by tanks several times attempted to attack our positions."

Southwest and south of Stalingrad a number of villages were reported taken, but they were not identified. In their retreat the Germans were abandoning large quantities of arms, raw materials and supplies, the Soviet authorities said.

The capture of another town in the Middle Don area also was claimed.

Violent Engagement.

Northwest of Stalingrad, the midday bulletin announced, Red Army units clashed in a violent engagement which carried them into dozens of the enemy's trenches and dugouts, while in Stalingrad itself Red Army shock troops kept up their plodding task of pushing the Germans out of the ruins of the city's buildings.

Advices from the front yesterday pictured the Germans, part of the force of 22 Axis divisions reported pinned before the city, as suffering from the lack of water, food and ammunition, and living in underground dugouts "like moles."

(First reports of the Russian New Year communique late Thursday, detailing the successes of the vast Soviet Stalingrad-saving campaign, said the "German Army in Stalingrad is liquidated completely." This was based on a recording made in London of a broadcast of the special communique. Inspection of the text which became available later revealed that the phrase was not in the official communique and the error was traced to faulty reception and translation in London.)

Important Rail Sector.

The reported capture of Velikie Luki laid open the heart of a large transportation system over which the Germans have moved reinforcements.

The town is 260 miles northwest of Moscow and only 90 miles from the Latvian border. Westward a rail line stretches to Novosokolniki, 20 miles away, and to Riga, Baltic Sea port and capital of Latvia. To the eastward is Rzhev, 140 miles on the rail line.

A north-south railway runs through Velikie Luki from Polotsk in White Russia to a union with the Moscow-Leningrad line above Kalinin.

Through Novosokolniki, another railway runs between Leningrad and Vitebsk, a major supply route for the Germans.

Rzhev also is surrounded by Russian troops, one column of which has pushed to Bely, 75 miles southwest of Rzhev and 98 miles southeast of Velikie Luki. Another column is fighting along the Rzhev-Vyazma railway. Vyazma is 75 miles south of Rzhev.

Nazis Deny Velikie Luki Loss

BERLIN (From German broadcasts), Jan. 2 (AP).—The German high command declared at noon today that Velikie Luki still was holding out, as of yesterday, despite fierce Soviet attacks.

Authoritative sources admitted the fall of Elista, on the Kalmuck steppes, but said the city had been destroyed by Axis forces which evacuated the place.

The high command report on Velikie Luki said that the defense of the city was "successfully continued also Friday." (It did not tell of the progress of the battle Saturday.)

Strong infantry and tank formations of the Red Army tried to break through German lines in the eastern Caucasus, but were repelled with a loss of twenty-nine tanks, a communique said. Russian attacks in the Don area were reported shattered, with thirty-nine tanks knocked out and a tank brigade mauled.

JAN 3 1943

In the Rzhev area, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, the Russians have lost 8,500 prisoners and 1,900 tanks since they launched their counter-offensive Nov. 25, the communique said.

The Russians lost twelve tanks in fighting in the Lake Ilmen area, the war bulletin added.

Velikie Luki Battle Described

MOSCOW, Jan. 2 (AP).—A correspondent for "Pravda," the Communist party newspaper, describing the Russian capture of Velikie Luki, said today that the city fell after one of the most sanguinary battles of the war.

It was the second time the Russians had recaptured Velikie Luki. During the first summer of war the Germans entered the town and held it for several days, but were driven out by infantry from the Urals which overpowered superior numbers of Germans. It was retaken by the Germans and held for more than a year. In ancient times Velikie Luki was a Muscovite fortress in the path of invasion.

"The besieged German garrison had been ordered by General Scherer to hold to the last," the dispatch said. "Every soldier was promised an Iron Cross for successful defense. For surrender, shooting and reprisal upon their families were threatened."

City Was Stormed at Dawn

The Russians encircled the city with a strong ring on Christmas Day. The German defenses consisted of powerful field fortifications, abundantly supplied with cannon, machine guns, mortars and plentiful ammunition dumps.

"These, however, could not withstand the onslaught of Soviet troops," "Pravda" said. "The storming of the town began at dawn after intense artillery and mortar preparation. When the artillery shifted its fire to the depth of German defenses Soviet infantry rushed forward under its cover. Artillery accompanying the infantry destroyed blockhouses with point-blank fire. The Germans resisted furiously.

"Sanguine engagements were fought for every trench and every blockhouse."

The fighting was particularly intense near the suburbs, where the Nazis had planted thousands of mines, built tank traps and placed concrete shields before blockhouses. Tank hooks were concealed in the snow.

At a difficult moment in the battle Red Army tanks arrived to assist the infantry, and the mopping-up ensued, house by house.

"Fierce engagements were fought near every big building on every street corner," "Pravda" said. "The whole town was enveloped in dense smoke and shells, and mines exploded through the length and breadth of the streets. In areas of the most acute struggle sappers raised a smoke screen to cover the advance of Russian troops.

"The population, including women and even children, climbed out of basements at the risk of their lives to indicate to Red artillerymen firepoints and secret approaches to German blindages (armored trenches).

"The fighting continued unabated after nightfall. Platoons of automatic rifiemen infiltrated the German rear, and the Germans retreated in panic at the sound of shots and grenade explosions."

By night a red glow hung over the town, illuminating the near-by hills. When dawn broke the Red banner flew triumphantly over Velikie Luki.

Rommel Forced

Further Back Toward Tripoli

JAN 3 1943

Passes Up Stand in Libya; Decisive Fight Impends in Tunisia

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—The British were over another hurdle today in pursuit of the Axis across Libya as Marshal Erwin Rommel, still preferring to run rather than fight, pulled his retreating army farther west of Wadi Bei el Chebir.

The headquarters communique in Cairo said 8th Army vanguards had driven Axis motorized units back after a clash west of the Wadi, a series of gulches in a row about 195 miles east of Tripoli.

It was one of the last places in the Libyan wilderness where Marshal Rommel might have risked a stand by the remnants of his retreating army. Dispatches from the desert said the British had expected him to do so.

Marshal Rommel's decision may have been impelled by recent activity of Allied bombers and fighters over the Tripolitania and Western Libya coast areas, harrying his exposed forces and depriving them of time and security to dig in.

May Stand in Tripoli.

Although it has been surmised that he may be racing westward, prepared to abandon all Libya, in order to join forces with the Axis army in Tunisia for the final showdown in North Africa, it still was possible that Marshal Rommel intends to make Tripoli itself a fortress from which to try to stall the advance.

The Morocco radio today broadcast a Cairo report that the Germans recently had reveived reinforcements to bolster resistence in the Tripoli area.

Don Whitehead, Associated Press correspondent on the Libyan front, yesterday described Wadi Bei el Chebir as a great valley where Axis machine guns might have caused heavy damage. Such sandy barriers, he said, make tough going for tanks—much more so for supply vehicles—yet the British rolled through, pennants flying, without a shot being fired at them.

A Fighting French force under Brig. Gen. Jacques Leclerc was reported still advancing slowly northward from Southern Libya, possibly aiming at Mareth where the British.

JAN 3 1943

Axis Supply Lines Struck.

Aerial attacks against supply lines and bases still provided the main action in Tunisia, where both sides were massing ground forces, for the impending decisive struggle. The Italian communique, however, reported local thrusts in which, it said, Axis forces reached "positions of particular importance."

The German radio said six grounded aircraft, including four long-range bombers, were destroyed by machine-gun fire from bombers and fighters that swooped on a British airfield near Bone, Allied supply port in Algeria.

German planes also heavily damaged a merchantman of about 8,000 tons and another fully-laden, of 4,000 tons in the Mediterranean north of Bone, the Germans said.

Advance units of Leclerc's army broke up an enemy motorized column, inflicting some losses and capturing equipment, in its progress northward across the Fezzan or desert region, Gen. Charles de Gaulle's headquarters reported.

Bombers Attack Italians.

Fighting French bombers attacked Italian outposts at Murzuch, 470 miles south of Tripoli, and machine gunned enemy ground troops, the communique added.

French headquarters in North Africa reported in a communique broadcast by the Algiers radio today that French troops repulsed an Axis attack in the region east of Pichon, 27 miles west of Kairouan in Tunisia and inflicted losses on the enemy. On the rest of the front, it was added, patrol activity was on a reduced scale.

United States bomber and fighter planes roaring out in the closing hours of the old year smashed at the Axis Tunisian strongholds of Sousse, Sfax and Gabes, with four American and one British plane lost in widespread air operations.

Three American bombers fell to anti-aircraft fire in two raids on railway yards and dock areas at Sousse. Flying Fortresses scored direct hits on two medium sized merchant ships at Sfax and blasted harbor installations.

Fourth Big Plane Lost.

A fourth American bomber was lost in a raid by Martin B-26s on troop barracks and the airdrome at Gabes.

Twin-engined Lightning fighters destroyed Axis cars and trucks near the Tunisian-Libyan frontier, and RAF bombers hit at an enemy repair depot south of Pont-du-Fahs, in Tunisia.

The British, meanwhile, had reported that naval torpedo planes fired an enemy merchant ship off Sicily and that submarines off Tunis and Bizerte had sunk two other Axis cargo vessels, while an enemy destroyer was torpedoed and probably sunk off Bizerte.

The Axis retaliated with an aerial attack on Casablanca. An Allied communique said there were "few casualties, largely civilians," and negligible damage from the Thursday raid.

6 Raiding Planes Downed, Axis Lose 4 Craft In Thrust At Bone

JAN 3 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 2—Allied bombers left fires burning in Axis-held docks and railroad yards at Tunis yesterday in the continuing aerial struggle over Tunisia, but the attack cost the Allies six planes.

Four Axis planes were destroyed and others damaged in an enemy thrust at Bone, an Allied communique said.

Attacked By Spitfires

The RAF reported a small force of Junkers 87's with escorting Messerschmitt 109's dive-bombed the harbor and were attacked by Spitfires yesterday morning.

A considerably larger force of Junkers 87's, flying in waves and escorted by Focke-Wulf 190's, was intercepted by Spitfires two hours later at 12.20 P. M., before they reached Bone. The rear formation of dive-bombers hastily turned tail upon seeing the RAF fighters battling the advanced sections.

Two Focke-Wulfs and one Junkers were destroyed and others damaged in these two encounters.

Focke-Wulf Shot Down

The third battle came at 3.25 P. M., when a large force of Focke-Wulfs and Messerschmitts were intercepted en route to Bone. One Focke-Wulf was shot down and others were damaged.

The night bombing of Axis and troop concentrations in Tunisia was suspended because of bad weather.

The New Year brought almost a complete cessation of ground activity in the Tunisian battle area. There was nothing to indicate an early resumption of large-scale fighting.

JAN 3 1943

3 Or 4 Weeks More Rain

North African residents explained that the winter rainy season is likely to continue with probably only brief intervals of clear weather for the next three or four weeks, although sometimes frequent downpours continued toward the end of February.

A French communique broadcast by the Morocco radio and heard by Reuters announced French troops had seized an important point in the regions northwest of Kairouan, which is sixty-three miles south of Medjez-El-Bab, a vital point in the Allied-Axis fighting.

The French also were said to have shot down a German plane by anti-aircraft fire.

Damage Is Revealed

A Cairo dispatch said aerial reconnaissance had disclosed considerable damage in the enemy-held ports of Sfax and Sousse, in eastern Tunisia, and that the enemy appeared to be making little effort to repair it.

The railway roundhouse at Sfax and other buildings were said to have been gutted, and a large factory north of the harbor and warehouses on the northern quay were heavily damaged.

The railway line to Sousse was said to have been slashed in eleven places, with freight cars blown up on the sidings.

Eighth Army Rolls West

In Libya the British Eighth Army rolled on westward toward Tripoli after Marshal Rommel's troops abandoned the Wadi Bei el Chebir area.

The British had expected the Axis to put up a fight in this zone about 195 miles east of Tripoli because the terrain favored it.

[A BBC report from the Libyan desert heard by CBS said there were signs that the Axis troops were fortifying the Wadi Zem-Zem, about forty miles west of Wadi Bei el Chebir.

[Gun pits and strong points were being blasted out of this big boulder-strewn valley which runs forty miles inland from the desert coastal road at a point about 100 miles south of Misurata, the BBC broadcast said.]

The Berlin radio claimed that six Allied aircraft, including four long-range bombers, were destroyed on the ground in an Axis attack on a British airfield near Bone.

Claim Hits On Ship

German planes also were said to have inflicted heavy damage on two Allied merchant ships off Bone.

The Axis broadcasts quoted military commentators as predicting that the main battle for the strategic French protectorate of Tunisia was about to begin. This prediction apparently was based on the increasingly heavy Allied aerial blows at Axis communications.

Some of Britain's most famous regiments were reported operating with the Allied troops in Tunisia. They include the Coldstream Guards, the Grenadier Guards, the Northamptonshire Regiment, the East Surrey, the Hampshire and the Lancashire Fusiliers.

Attack Predicted.

Britain's Eighth Army in Libya "obviously intends to make a fairly large attack on the positions of Marshal Rommel's German-Italian tank army in the next few days," the Berlin radio said tonight.

This Axis prediction came after Cairo dispatches said the Germans had abandoned without a fight the Wadi Bei El Chebir about 195 miles east of Tripoli. The next good site where the terrain is suitable for defensive purposes is the Wadi Zem-Zem, about 40 miles west of Bei El Chebir. (A BBC report heard by CBS said the Germans were digging in at that point).

The Berlin radio gave no details as to the disposition of either the British or Axis armies, and has been very reticent about the entire Libyan theater since Marshal Rommel began his long retreat out of Egypt.

In Tunisia Allied planes set fires in the locks and railroad yards at Tunis, an Allied communique said. Six Allied bombers were missing.

U. S. LIGHTNINGS BEAT FOE'S BEST

Fighter Planes In Africa Bag Forty Germans, Including

Crack Focke-Wulfs

[By the Associated Press]

An Advanced American Fighter Base Somewhere in North Africa, Jan. 1 (Delayed)—Flying from a mountainside and living on a diet of canned hash, young American pilots fresh from colleges, factories and country towns have proven what a great fighter plane the P-38 (Lockheed Lightning) is by shooting down forty German planes with it for a loss of only nine.

The pilots, who less than six weeks ago were upset by the allegation on both sides of the Atlantic that American fighter planes were inferior to the models of other nations, declared the P-38 was master of the Luftwaffe's highly rated Focke-Wulf 190's and Messerschmitt 109-G's.

Field On Mountainside

This field is so situated on the side of a mountain that the constant rains of recent days have drained off and left the area clear. The flat plateaus are soggy with rain at this time of year.

The first six P-38's started operations here without ground crews, and even without tents for the flyers to live in.

Originally designed only as an interceptor type to protect cities from bombing raids, the P-38 has proven itself capable of every rough job assigned it.

Besides as a fighter, it is used in strafing ground troops and positions. Two squadrons here shot up twenty locomotives behind the German lines and ripped several motor convoys to pieces.

Also Long-Range Escort

The P-38 has also been used in long-range escort for bombers and in the last two weeks, while escorting Boston A-20 Douglas light bombers, has not yet let a German plane through the fighter screen to reach the bombers.

"This record has been established against the best the Germans have to offer," said Major Stephen Avery, 48-year-old veteran of the last war, who comes from Hollywood and is the intelligence officer of this outfit.

"Our planes are faster than anything the Germans have and can outmaneuver them too, if necessary," Avery said as he told how one captured German pilot of a 109-G, pursued seventy miles by a P-38, expressed amazement at the tenacity of the American fighters.

Benefit Of Long Range

Avery asserted that the long range of the P-38's enables them to keep up the fight deep into enemy territory instead of confining themselves to the brief dogfights which have been characteristic of the European theater.

Pilots at this field, who fly every day and stay on the alert against German raiders on their day of rest, labeled as "tommyrot" the opinion of many "experts" that the P-38 was a "hot" ship, unmaneuverable, and its twin engines too much for one pilot to handle.

"Our ships were built for high-altitude work, but we have been fighting anywhere from the ground up to high altitudes and our craft have been good at any level," said Lieut. Virgil Lusk, Santa Rosa, N. M., who has an ace's rating for destruction of five Italian Savoia Marchettis.

"The new German 109-G's," he said, "are extremely fast and maneuverable, while the Focke-Wulf 190 is great for high-altitude fighting, but our group has been shooting down both types."

U. S. Bomber Squadron Loses One Plane in 41 Tunis Raids

By WES GALLAGHER,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

AN ADVANCED AMERICAN BOMBER BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 2.—Men of the American light bomber squadron, living in tin huts and pup tents on a field attacked almost daily by the Luftwaffe, have hung up the remarkable record of carrying out 41 raids on the Germans in Tunisia with the loss of just one plane—and the crew of that one is safe.

Led by Maj. Charles C. Kegelman of El Reno, Okla., who struck the first American air blow against the Nazis in a raid over Holland on July 4, the small group of light bombers put their wheels down on the African plain surrounded by mountains.

The field was empty—no runways, no gasoline, no bombs, no ground crews, no hangars.

"All we had was our toothbrushes," Maj. Kegelman said.

Mechanics Follow Planes.

Today tents dot the plain and mechanics and ground crews swarm over speedy American bombers.

The day after the original landing a few trucks loaded with bombs and gasoline arrived, and the bombers took off on their first mission. Forty-one raids, Maj. Kegelman says, make this "the most experienced light bomber squadron in the American Air Force."

The strength of their blows can be seen from the fact that the Germans send over planes every day to blast the nest. The answer of the grinning ground crews was to build an air-raid shelter over a convenient bomb crater.

There is no recreation and no place to go and nothing to do but fly and eat. Rations come out of cans and there is no surprise element. Always it's hash.

"Our record of not losing planes can be attributed to the wonderful support given by American P-38s and to our speed and the experience that the boys are getting all of a sudden," said the major, who looks more mature than he did six months ago. Lt. Randal Dorion of Long Beach, Calif., his navigator and bombardier, nodded agreement.

In Need of Rest.

Maj. Kegelman has three of the four members who made the original flight with him over Holland. The fourth, Sergt. Golay, is back in the United States studying for a commission.

JAN 3 1943

"The boys used to complain the weather never was good enough for flying, but now they are wishing for some bad days and a little rest," Maj. Kegelman said.

Although the weather is clear enough for flying, it is miserable most of the time, as the field on the plateau is swept by rain and snow squalls. It is almost always bitterly cold at this time of the year, with the flyers going to bed at 7 o'clock in order to keep warm.

Giraud Fails To Answer Unity Appeal

Fighting French Are Puzzled by Silence on Proposal for Merging Forces in War

Harbors Damaged At Tunis, Bizerte

Berlin Predicts Large-Scale Action as British Eighth Army Moves Toward Tripoli

JAN 3 1943

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

London, Jan. 2.—General Charles de Gaulle, fighting French leader, today disclosed that he had suggested to General Henri Giraud, high commissioner in French Africa, on Christmas Day that they meet "immediately" to unify the French war effort and by implications made it clear he was disappointed that this invitation had not been answered more than a week later.

Fighting French spokesmen declined to amplify the general's statement in which he made public the invitation to General Giraud, holding that it was plain enough.

Baffled By Silence

However, informed observers said it seemed certain that the DeGaullists were baffled by the Giraud silence, particularly in view of the latter's repeated assertions of his desire for unity.

There have been reports that De Gaulle would go to Africa soon to see Giraud before the Fighting French leader crosses the Atlantic to confer with President Roosevelt but there still was nothing said here of a reply from Giraud.

It was not disclosed how De Gaulle's suggestion was dispatched, but it is believed to have been relayed through American military authorities. If this was the case it may have been cleared through Washington and not received by Giraud for a day or two.

Says Confusion Increasing.

De Gaulle suggested the meeting in an effort to fuse all anti-Axis Frenchmen under a temporary government founded on the laws of the Third Republic that Vichy killed.

General De Gaulle said "Internal confusion is steadily increasing in French North and West Africa," a situation which he said "is and will be embarrassing for the operation of the Allied armies."

Another result of this confusion is "that France at this decisive moment is deprived of that powerful trump card which would be represented by union for the pursuit of the war by her vast empire in liaison with the movement of resistance in France itself.

"The remedy for this situation," the statement continued, "is the establishment in French North and West Africa, as in all other French territories overseas, of a temporary and enlarged central power founded on national union, inspired by the spirit of war and of liberation, with laws which are the laws of the republic, to last until such time as the nation has made known her will."

De Gaulle cited the precedent of the military provisional government that took power after the fall of the empire in 1870, and concluded:

"On December 25, 1942, in full agreement with the national committee and the council for defense of the empire, I suggested to General Giraud that we should meet immediately on French soil in order to study the means of attaining this object.

"I believe, in fact, that the situation in France and the general situation of the war admit of no delay."

The complete text of General De Gaulle's statement follows:

"Internal confusion is steadily increasing in French North and West Africa. The reason for this confusion is that French authority has no basic point following the collapse of Vichy, since the great force of national fervor, coherence and experience which constitutes Fighting France and which has already returned to war and has returned to the republic a large part of the empire is not officially represented in these French territories.

"The results of this confusion are, firstly, a situation which is and will be embarrassing for the operation of the Allied armies.

"Secondly is the fact that France at this decisive moment is deprived of that powerful trump card which would be represented by union for the pursuit of the war by her vast empire in liaison with the moyement of resistance in France itself.

"Finally—and perhaps most important of all—is the amazement of the French people, staggered in their misery by the strange fate of that part of the empire most recently liberated.

"The remedy for this situation is the establishment in French North and West Africa, as in all other French territories overseas, of a temporary and enlarged central power founded on national union, inspired by the spirit of war and of liberation, with laws which are the laws of the republic, to last until such time as the nation has made known her will.

"Such is the tradition of French democracy.

"It was thus that in 1870, after the fall of the empire, men of national defense provisionally took power in the name of the republic in order to direct the war effort of the nation.

"On Dec. 25, 1942, in full agreement with the National Committee and the Council for Defense of the Empire, I suggested to General Giraud that we should meet immediately on French soil in order to study the means of attaining this object.

"I believe, in fact, that the situation in France and the general situation of the war admit of no delay."

Giraud Declared Ready To Reach Agreement

Algiers, Jan. 2 (AP)—Gen. Henri Giraud's French African regime wants "to come to an agreement with all Frenchmen who are fighting against Germany," a spokesman said today when asked about the prospects of an understanding with Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Fighting French.

A French African Government spokesman told a press conference of American and British correspondents that it was the policy of the Giraud Government to broaden the basis of its representation of various French elements as soon as possible.

He gave an assurance that pro-Allied political prisoners arrested before the Allied landings all will be released as soon as an investigation of their cases is made.

The spokesman disclosed that the prisoners freed in a New Year's order by General Giraud were all arrested prior to November 8, the date of the Allied invasion, and thus failed to include those seized because of what Giraud said was a plot to assassinate himself and Robert Murphy, the personal envoy of President Roosevelt.

Giraud Amnesty Held Move To Merge Many Elements

ALGIERS, Jan. 2 (AP).—Gen. Henri Giraud's New Year's Day release of an unspecified number of political prisoners was generally construed today as the forerunner of an effort to unify the many diverse political elements of France behind the Allied war effort.

Although official quarters were silent, reliable sources reported steps already were under way to make the French government in North Africa representative of all the elements backing the Allied cause, possibly by bringing into Gen. Giraud's council well-known French leaders of many political and ideological hues.

They said Gen. Giraud had paved the way for unification by freeing the prisoners on grounds of their proved patriotism to France under various circumstances, regardless of their individual political beliefs. Gen. Giraud is trusted by most sectors of French political opinion because they believe he told the simple truth when he declared he was a soldier, not a politician, and had but one aim—the defeat of the Axis.

A. E. F. Feted in Fijis

Residents Provide Happy Holidays, And Even Weather is Cooler

SUVA, Fiji Islands, Jan. 2 (AP).—American fighters in the Fijis passed a tolerably comfortable Christmas and New Year's, because the weather was cooler than usual. And residents of the islands did everything to make them happy. Residents of the islands extended the hospitality of their homes to American soldiers and sailors, and there were parties for them at clubs.

The Governor gave a party at Government House for wounded service men and their nurses. The highlight was a welcoming ceremony by the natives, an appreciation, they said, of the presence of the sailors and soldiers.

American Raid On Tunis Fires Axis Rail Yards

Harbor Also Is Hammered at Cost of One Bomber; R. A. F. Fells Four Nazis

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 2 (AP). — Heavy and medium American bombers battered railroad yards in the harbor area in Tunis in a New Year's attack yesterday, while the Royal Air Force turned back two out of three waves of German dive-bombers and fighters sent to raid Bone, Algeria. The R. A. F. destroyed four Nazi aircraft.

Martin B-26 bombers with an escort of P-40s scored hits on rail yards in Tunis, starting several fires. OneB-26 was lost because of anti-aircraft fire, but the P-40s turned back Messerschmitt 109 fighters attempting to intercept the bombers. One Nazi plane was damaged.

Fortress bombers attacked Tunis Harbor "successfully," a headquarters spokesman said, but details were lacking.

The R. A. F. reported a small force of Junkers 88s with escorting Messerschmitt [illegible] dive-bombed Bone Harbor ar[illegible]re attacked by Spitfires yester[illegible]morning.

U. S. PLANES BLAST FOE IN MID-BURMA

Bombers Fly 300 Miles From China To Strike At Japs Around Shwebo

By J. REILLY O'SULLIVAN

[Associated Press Correspondent]

With the American Air Forces in China, Jan. 1 (Delayed)—The Japanese air base at Shwebo, almost in the center of Burma, was given a New Year's Day blasting today by American bombers which flew nearly 300 miles from China into enemy territory over towering mountains and dense jungle.

[The raid was a quick follow-up to an attack from the other direction by American planes which flew in from India Wednesday to strike this Jap base.]

Heavy bombs tore up the main runway of the airfield and blasted dispersal areas on either side.

Meet No Opposition

The American flyers met no opposition. Ever the anti-aircraft guns were silent as the American bombers, escorted by fighters, wheeled out of the sun for the long run over the airfield.

In the navigator's compartment of the "Texas Tornado," one of the leading flight bombers, piloted by First Lieutenant Lucien Youngblood, of Waco, Texas, I saw a huge black explosion mushroom up at the start of the runway and striking out down most of its length.

It will take much labor before the Japs use that runway again.

Commander's Farewell

Lieut. Col. William Baseye, of Independence, Mo., led the bombers in a farewell to his brilliant record as a squadron leader in China. Baseye is being transferred to a staff post in India.

He described our mission as "successful, but uneventful."

The fighter escort was led by Lieut. Col. Bruye Hollaway, of Knoxville, Tenn.

This trip "on the road to Mandalay"—Baseye remarked, "you could almost spit on Mandalay"—was not wholly uneventful for me, however.

Right Engine Quits

Coming home, the right engine of the Texas Tornado quit cold, while I and the members of the crew "seated it out" as they put it.

In the crew were Lieuts. James Routt, Nicholsville, Ky., and Charles Bethea, McColl, S. C., and Sergts. Maurice Paynter, Kingston, W. Va.; Norman Parker, Greenville, Ala., and James Ayers, Blountstown, Fla.

Youngblood pulled us across two mountain ridges on one engine. Then, after we had fallen far behind our formation, completed motor adjustments. The right propeller began whirling again, and the engine picked up beautifully.

We reached for cigarettes, and caught up with the other planes near our home base.

MILITARY RITES FOR FLIERS

Americans and Chinese Honor Two Shot Down by Japanese

A UNITED STATES ARMY AIR BASE, in China, Dec. 31 (Delayed) (AP)—First Lieutenant Robert Mooney, Kansas City, Mo., a fighter pilot, and First Lieutenant Rowland Hill of Margaretville, N. Y., a bomber naviagtor, killed in combat with the Japanese, were buried with military honors today at an American air base cemetery. Both were sons of newspaper men.

Their bodies were laid to rest in brick and concrete vaults as their comrades flew overhead in a last salute, and Chinese buglers blew taps.

Lieutenant Mooney lost his life shooting down two Japanese planes, and he was largely responsible for breaking up a formation of enemy bombers and preventing them from reaching an American-Chinese airdrome in Western Yunnan Province. He had three confirmed air victories to his credit.

Lieutenant Hill, one of the youngest bomber crew members, was fatally wounded by terrific anti-aircraft fire on a low-level attack that blasted an enemy troop and supply concentration at Mengmao in Western Yunnan.

U. S., British Airmen Hammer Japanese Targets in Burma

Shipping Also Blasted Off Arakan Coast; Railways Pounded

By the Associated Press.

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 2.—RAF Blenheim bombers swept over Kalemyo, in the Myittha Valley of Burma, yesterday afternoon and set it afire with bombs that hit in the center of the target area, a British communique said today.

Patrol bombers also hit shipping on the Arakan Coast and fighter planes strafed river boats, the British said. One plane was reported lost in the sorties.

At the same time it was disclosed that fighter planes of the United States 10th Air Force loaded up with small bombs two days ago and set out on forays that dealt sharp blows to Japanese rail communications in North Burma.

An American Air Force communique revealed that the bomb-laden fighter planes did their work in the area below Myitkina, less than 50 miles from the China border.

Nine cars of a southward moving train were bombed at Hopin and among them two fuel cars were badly damaged and the locomotives destroyed, the announcement said. Eleven miles south, at Mohnyin, a train and six cars were strafed and the locomotives destroyed.

At Mawlu, 20 miles south of Mohnyin, water tanks were reported shot up and 20 miles farther south, at Naba, direct hits were reported on rolling stock and installations. About 50 freight cars were strafed at Pinbaw.

The official statement also said that medium bombers of the 10th Air Force attacked the Japanese air base at Shwebo last Wednesday, hitting hangars and installations and starting a large oil fire.

Chinese Take Two Towns

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, Jan. 2 — Chinese dispatches from the front today reported that Chinese troops had recaptured Tsienshin and Taihu, in southwestern Anhwei province, and that the Japanese were retreating southward in the direction of Susung, twenty-two miles below Taihu, on the Yangtze.

General Hsiung Will Return

Chungking, Jan. 2 (AP)—A spokesman for the National Military Council said tonight that Lieut. Gen. Hsiung Shih-fei, head of a Chinese Military Mission in Washington which has been called home, would return to the United States after making a report to the Chinese Government.

Fighter Planes Bomb Japanese

Bombay, India, Jan. 2 (AP)—Hits at both ends of an important raidroad bridge at Vyitnge, south of Mandalay in Japanese-held Burma, were scored by United States medium bombers yesterday, an American communique announced today. It said all the planes returned undamaged.

19 AMERICANS DECORATED

Major and Captain Among Those Cited for Heroism in Morocco

the American landings in Morocco, has received the Silver Star from Major Gen. Jonathan W. Anderson.

The same decoration went to Major Edward C. Robertson of Philomath, Ore., who [illegible] the open fire to rally his field artillery battalion.

Another Silver Star award went to Private Milton L. Gerobetz, 260 Pacific Street, Brooklyn.

Sixteen Purple Heart recipients included Second Lieutenant Basil Antonelli, Landisville, N. J., and Private Joseph Borek, 298 Oliver Street, Newark.

British Raid Four Days Behind Rommel's Lines

Armored Cars Destroy 200 Enemy Vehicles

LONDON, Jan. 2 (AP).—In a spectacular raid behind the Axis rear guard, two squadrons of the British 8th Army's Royal Dragoon armored cars destroyed 200 enemy vehicles and captured more than thirty guns and many prisoners, the British announced tonight.

During four days behind the enemy's lines, a military informant said, the squadron's losses were only three men killed and twelve wounded and seven armored cars and three trucks smashed.

He said the raid began Nov. 2, when the front line still was at Alamein, Egypt, and the leader of one of the squadrons added that the raiders stayed fifteen miles inside German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's lines until the day the 8th Army broke through and caught up.

AUSTRALIA PRESSES FOR INCREASED AID

Curtin Asking Allies to Send More Land, Naval and Sea Power, Aide Asserts

INDUSTRY FACING CHANGES

Several Hundred Leaders of 37,000 Who Idled New Year's Day to Be Prosecuted

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 2 (AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin is making representations "to the proper quarters" to try to get the Allies to increase their anti-Japanese forces in the Pacific, J. J. Dedman, Minister of War Organization and Industrial Research, said today.

Two days ago Mr. Curtin warned that Japan was consolidating her gains and said "the policy of dealing with Hitler and the European phase of the war first is being overdone." He asked that the United States send more land, naval, and air power to the Pacific theatre.

Mr. Dedman expressed the belief that if the Australians would make a maximum contribution to the war against Japan there would be more chance of obtaining greater aid from sources outside Australia. Toward this end he predicted that the Cabinet would "take measures transcending in scope and severity any that have been taken hitherto," steps that would include a thorough reorganization of industry and commerce.

[The British radio, recorded yesterday by the Columbia broadcasting system, said Mr. Dedman "announced today that Australia would have to make drastic changes in her industrial and commercial system if the requirements of manpower were to be met." The broadcast then said: "These measures, Mr. Dedman said, would have to be carried through with a ruthlessness and speed which might arouse considerable opposition. They included the rationalization of the manufacturing industry and the reconstruction of the distribution side."]

The government plans to try to enact legislation soon enabling Australia's military to serve outside the country.

Curtin Demands Allied Drive on Jap-Held Areas

Appeal for Greater Strength Is Made by Australian Leader

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 2.—Prime Minister John Curtin is making representations "to the proper quarters" to strengthen Allied Pacific forces and drive the Japanese out of conquered areas, J. J. Dedman, Minister of War Organization and Industrial Research, said today.

Mr. Curtin had warned only two days ago that Japan is consolidating her gains, and said the policy of dealing with Hitler and the European phase of the war first was being overdone.

Maximum Contribution

Mr. Dedman asserted that Australia herself must make the maximum contribution to obtain the assistance she wants and said the cabinet would "take measures transcending in scope and severity any that have been taken hitherto."

These would include thorough reorganization of industry and commerce, he added.

Mr. Curtin declared in his Thursday statement that the "United Nations in the Pacific area are being denied resources for their total war effort which is invaluable to them, and resources are being reserved by Japan for building up her capacity not only to wage war, but to resist an offensive."

Consolidating Gains.

He said there was "no doubt that Japan is consolidating the gains she has made. Delaying an offensive against her makes it certain that the offensive when undertaken will experience greater resistance."

He asserted that the United States should send more land, naval and air power to the Pacific area.

He said these were the "views which the Australian government has repeatedly put to leaders of the United Nations."

Australians Take Giropa Point, Americans Circle Last Defense Position

7 More Ships Sunk By U.S. Submarines

Bombers Blast Japanese on Guadalcanal, Pound Kiska and Munda Again

By The Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 3 (Sunday).—The Allies' New Guinea ground forces broke the back of long, tough Japanese resistance on the right of the line at Buna yesterday after a general assault smashed organized defenses in two of the three sectors into which the enemy had been split by wee[k] driven last week, a communi[que] announced today.

Supported by tanks and artillery, Australians drove [to] the right to overwhelm t[he] strong point around Giro[pa] while American infa[ntry] widened a wedge betw[een] point and the Buna gov[ernment] station. To the left of the [govern]ment station, the American[s] consolidated their hold on a beachhead gained earlier, thus leaving a few hundred square yards around the government station as the only enemy-held sector in the Buna area.

Enemy Quits Giropa Point

Evidence that the Japanese have abandoned defense of the bitterly contested sector around Giropa Point was provided yesterday afternoon when Japanese, wearing lifebelts and clinging to logs, were seen swimming from the point toward the government station. They were fired on by advanced Allied infantrymen. Douglas attack planes also swept low over the water, machine-gunning the swimming Japanese.

[Other blows against the Japanese were reported by the Navy Department on Saturday, when two communiques listed seven enemy ships sunk and a destroyer damaged by American submarines in Far Eastern waters and told of a new American heavy bomber attack on enemy positions at Kiska Island, in the Aleutians.]

Shatter Enemy's Resistance

The success of the wedge-driving assaults yesterday enabled the Allies to close in on the only remaining pocket of resistance at the Buna government station from the south and east.

Of the Buna area, where Allied tanks, artillery and planes have helped Australians and Americans cut up the jungle-intrenched Japanese into ever diminishing pockets of resistance, the communique gave this report: "On the right our troops in a general assault have broken the back of enemy resistance and are destroying his shattered forces."

While the ground troops moved in for the kill, Allied airmen pounded the airdrome at Lae, above Buna to the northwest, in a series of strong attacks. B-26 medium bombers led the assault, dropping 1,000-pounders on the runways, dispersal bays and hangars. With American P-38 Lockheed Lightnings and Australian Beaufighters supplying a covering air screen, Douglas A-20's followed in a low-level sweep over the enemy's field. When the attack was over, fires were burning all around the airdrome.

Giving details of Friday's air raid on Rabaul, New Britain, a spokesman said Flying Fortresses dropped 500-pounders and clusters of fragmentation and incendiary bombs on Lakunai Airdrome, starting fires which were believed to have destroyed a number of planes caught on the ground.

Allies Again Pierce Jap Forces in Buna Area of New Guinea

Bombs Damage Destroyer, Fire 3 Big Ships in Attack on Rabaul

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 2.—Allied ground forces in New Guinea have driven another wedge in the Japanese positions in the Buna area, and the Air Forces have carried out new punishing raids on Japanese bases in New Britain, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported today.

A Japanese submarine was struck and damaged by an Allied heavy bomber that attacked at Widebay, in New Britain, and three large enemy vessels were left enveloped in flames after a dawn bombing force struck the harbor at Rabaul on New Year Day, a communique said.

The bombers dropped 1,000-pounders on the shipping and shot down two of the enemy fighter planes that rose to meet them.

The air force also laid 1,000-pound bombs on the airdrome at Gasmata, in Southern New Britain, and bombed the air field at Buin, on the southern tip of Bougainville Island, in the Solomons.

The Japs replied with another bombing of Merauke, on the Dutch New Guinea south coast.

The new split in the Japanese beachhead forces was on the right flank near Buna. Tanks and artillery pounded a path for the ground forces which hewed their way to the coast.

"Fighting is savage and desperate and is continuing," the headquarters report said.

Dispatches from the front said the Allied objective now was to eliminate the enemy holdings at Giropa Point and eastward, and at the Buna government station, leaving the Sanananda sector as the last Japanese strong point to be mopped up.

GERMANS SINK OWN SHIP ON BLOCKADE RUN

Scuttle 10,000-Ton Craft Overtaken By British. Crew Captured

Admiralty Silent On Naz Claims Of Success In Convoy Battle

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 2—A 10,000-ton German blockade runner was scuttled by her crew when she was overhauled in the Atlantic by British naval patrols and her personnel was taken prisoner, the Admiralty announced today.

The sea lords kept silent, however, on unsupported German claims of success in a running clash in far northern waters.

The Germans declared they torpedoed four steamers, damaged several cruisers and destroyers and sank a destroyer on the Russian convoy route north of Norway. Berlin admitted the loss of a destroyer.

Action In Foul Weather

The Germans said the action took place Thursday in foul weather which made observation difficult. They did not say whether the convoy was bound to or from the ice-free Arctic port of Murmansk.

On Thursday the Admiralty announced that a German cruiser had been damaged heavily and forced to withdraw and that a Nazi destroyer was left sinking in a continuous battle.

No subsequent report has been made here, probably because of radio silence in the convoy. The Admiralty announced earlier this week that convoys to north Russia were proceeding on a "time table."

Name Of Ship Not Given

Nor were further details given about the blockade runner. Even its name was kept secret.

The Germans announced, over a year late, also that their auxiliary cruiser Atlantis had been sunk by the British cruiser Devonshire. The Admiralty told of this December 1, 1941, and placed the victory in the South Atlantic. The Devonshire was undamaged after exploding the Atlantis' magazine.

Berlin's account said the Arctic convoy battle was fought near Bear Island, about midway between Spitsbergen and the tip of northern Norway, and that the engagement with escorting British cruisers and destroyers lasted several hours.

Admit Destroyer Lost

"One enemy destroyer damaged in the engagement was sunk by a German destroyer," the German high command said.

"One German submarine torpedoed four steamers in the convoy but could no longer observe sinkings owing to the situation of the battle. One of our destroyers did not return from the engagement."

The Berlin radio, as recorded by The Associated Press, said the Atlantis was sunk off Ascension, a British island in mid-South Atlantic, just below the bulges of Brazil and Africa. She had been stalking a three-funnel steamer when the Devonshire appeared over the horizon.

"There was no escape because our engines were no match against the great speed of the man-of-war," said a report from Dr. Hans Reinhardt, war correspondent said to have been aboard the Atlantis. For some time the antagonists exchanged messages as the British cruiser sought to establish the raider's identity, sending catapult planes overhead.

The report said the Devonshire lay about twelve miles from the Atlantis, beyond range of the German guns, and started pounding the Nazi ship with salvos. The German ship tried in vain to escape by throwing up an artificial fog. The fog temporarily interfered with British marksmanship, but a salvo soon hit the Atlantis, setting her afire near the bow.

"Everything was done to blow up the ship, but at last the men with their captain jumped overboard and started swimming toward their lifeboats," the report said. "Another salvo from the Devonshire shattered the upper structure and fragments flew over the heads of the men in the water. Soon the Devonshire found her range again and the swimming Germans could see their ship sinking. When the Atlantis's magazine blew up, the men gave a final cheer."

After two hours, the last German had reached a lifeboat and they subsequently were reported found by German and Italian submarines, which took them on board.

The Berlin radio said the Atlantis was sunk off Ascension a British island in mid-south Atlantic, just below the bulges of Brazil and Africa. She had been stalking a three-funnels steamer when the Devonshire appeared over the horizon.

The report said the Devonshire lay about 12 miles from the Atlantis beyond range of the German guns and started pounding the Nazi ship with salvoes. The German ship tried vainly to escape by throwing up an artificial fog. The fog temporarily interfered with British marksmanship but a salvo soon hit the Atlantis, setting her afire near the bow.

Allied Destroyer Sunk, Cruisers Hit in Sea Battle, Nazis Say

JAN 3 1943

Four Merchantmen Declared Damaged; Loss of One Destroyer Admitted

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 2.—German warships and U-boats, combining in an attack on and beneath the Arctic Ocean, damaged several Allied cruisers, sank a destroyer and torpedoed four merchantmen in a naval battle, a Nazi communique reported today.

The only ship listed as sunk was the destroyer, and the communique said the Germans also lost a destroyer in the action which, it said, developed from the pursuit of a convoy.

The communique said the action occurred December 31 near Bear Island which lies about midway between Pitzbergen and the northern tip of Norway.

The German communique coincided in time and approximate location with the British Admiralty announcement Thursday that British warships had contacted German naval units in northern waters early that morning and that the action was continuing.

There was no confirmation of the German claims, however, which bore at least surface evidence of covering a Nazi naval failure. It was noteworthy that the German statement claimed destruction of none of the cargo ships of the convoy—presumably bound to or from Russia—and only claimed torpedo hits on four.

The British announced last night the loss of a destroyer, the war-built H. M. S. Blean, but told neither the time nor circumstances of her sinking.

The Admiralty said a German cruiser was damaged and forced to withdraw and another destroyer was last seen in a sinking condition.

The British have issued no subsequent report on the battle.

De Gaullists Demand Ousting by Giraud of

Vichy 'Holdovers'

London Agitation Seen Posing New Obstacle To Speedy French Union

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—A demand from the Fighting French of Gen. De Gaulle for elimination of the "holdovers from the Vichy regime" in North Africa has posed a new obstacle to speedy union of all anti-Axis Frenchmen into a single, cohesive force seeking the liberation of France.

A spokesman for the Fighting French said today that negotiations for unification are under way, and "I am optimistic, but don't expect an easy or rapid solution."

"While Gen. Giraud (Gen. Henri Giraud, French high commissioner in North Africa in succession to the assassinated Armiral Jean Darlan) is all right, the principle obstacle is the men underneath him who are holdovers from the Vichy regime. They must be eliminated."

Called Collaborationists.

"A number who have done well under Vichy" still hold key jobs in North Africa, this spokesman said. Although he did not name them, he said they are the ones who preached collaboration and persecuted fellow Frenchmen.

A return to the constitution of the republican regime in France must be the basis for the united fight and Gen. De Gaulle has taken the initiative in trying to get the various factions together, he continued. The "state of affairs" rather than personalities involved must be changed to bring about the return of the republic of France, the spokesman asserted.

Meanwhile, Gen. Giraud ordered the New Year Day liberation of "a certain number of persons detained because of certain political tendencies." The liberations were "without regard to the ideology of their interests, but inspired solely by their war records and proofs of patriotism they have shown under various circumstances."

The announcement made no reference to the 12 persons arrested earlier this week in connection with an alleged plot to assassinate Gen. Giraud and Robert Murphy, President Roosevelt's personal representative to North Africa.

RAF KEPT EDGE OVER FOE IN '42

JAN 3 1943

Bagged 738 Nazi Planes Against Loss Of 593 On European Front

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sunday, Jan. 3—Royal Air Force fighters and anti-aircraft fire destroyed 738 enemy planes over the British Isles and the Continent during 1942, it was announced today.

The Air Ministry's news service said that as in the preceding two years the fighter command had maintained the balance of losses in its favor, although most of its actions were over enemy-held territory. It lost 593 planes, but the pilots of forty-nine of the machines were saved and many others bailed out and are believed to be prisoners.

German Losses Listed

German losses, equivalent to sixty-two squadrons, included 443 planes shot down on the enemy's side of the Channel, the report said. Over England, 118 enemy planes were shot down during daylight hours and 177 during night raids.

The latest figures brought to 10,573 the number of enemy aircraft Britain has destroyed in Europe and the Middle East since the war started.

Scores for the Far Eastern operations and by American forces were not included in the report.

Enemy Casualties Drop

Discussing operations in Europe, the Air Ministry said the enemy's air casualties were slightly less in 1942 than in 1941 despite the increased weight of the Allied offensive, because "the Germans showed a marked reluctance to engage our formations unless holding tactical or numerical superiority" and because many of the raids lately had concentrated on ground targets.

"The Luftwaffe's shyness of battle . . ." the report said, "helped our daylight bombers to penetrate deeper into enemy territory in 1942 than ever before. Flying Fortresses and other heavily armored bombers frequently operated beyond the range of our fighters."

Fighter command pilots flew on 40,000 sorties in providing protection for convoys, the report said, adding "the effectiveness of this cover was proved by the fact that a big increase in the number of enemy attempts to raid coastwise shipping in the early part of the year showed no corresponding increase in shipping losses."

Claims Of Nazi Successes At Sea Hit

JAN 3 1943

(By the Associated Press)

London, Jan. 2 — The German high command reported today the first venture in which it had risked any of its strong northern naval squadron to prey on the convoy route to Russia since last August and, at best, it boasted only a minor success.

Only one Allied vessel, a destroyer, was listed as sunk, and the communique acknowledged that the Germans, who can ill afford to trade ship for ship, also had lost a destroyer.

It reported gunfire hits also on several Allied cruisers, destroyers and merchantmen and torpedo hits on four other cargo ships, but conceded that none of these fighting ships or merchantmen was seen to sink.

Encounter Near Norway

The communique said the encounter occurred December 31 near Bear Island, which lies about 300 miles north of the northernmost tip of Norway, roughly midway to Spitzbergen. Allied convoys on the supply route to northern Russia ply within closest range of German sea and air interceptors in those waters.

The British Admiralty previously had reported an engagement with German surface vessels on the same day and in approximately the same area, but the Nazi communique gave the first information that a convoy was involved.

The Admiralty said then that a German cruiser had been hit and forced out of the action, and that an enemy destroyer was left in sinking condition. There has been no further British word and official sources made no comment on the new Nazi claims. Another communique is expected, however, when the Allied ships are safely back in port.

Nazis Admit Loss

The German radio told today also of the sinking of another Nazi surface raider, the auxiliary cruiser Atlantis, by the British cruiser Devonshire.

The Atlantis, presumably a converted merchantman, was not further identified and no details were given of the sinking. This may be only belated confirmation, however, of a British Admiralty communique of December 1, 1941, announcing that the Devonshire had sunk an armed German merchant raider in the South Atlantic the previous November 22, but had picked up no survivors because a U-boat was near by.

Planes Return To Britain

Folkestone, Jan. 2 (AP)—Hidden in the clouds, aircraft were heard roaring back to their British bases today from the direction of the Calais area in France, presumably returning from a bombing mission against Axis bases.

Mrs. Churchill Sees Hitler's Fall

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—Mrs. Winston Churchill, speaking on a BBC overseas broadcast service program, said today: "We have good reason to hope, and indeed expect, that the victories in Russia, Africa and in the Pacific are the beginning of a gathering avalanche that in the fullness of time will overwhelm Hitler and all his fanatic works."

She described 1942 as an eventful year in which retreats and defeats were followed by triumphant successes.

Her address was a rebroadcast of a New Year's Eve appeal for her aid to Russian fund, subscriptions to which totalled $10,000,000. Nearly 3,000 tons of supplies have been sent to Russia, including drugs, X-ray units, surgical instruments, blankets and clothing.

More Commando Training Needed, Allied Chiefs Say

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—Further development of facilities to train Commandos and United State Rangers for amphibious warfare "important in 1942, will be even more so in 1943," the combined operations command said today.

The command's training centers whipped into shape thousands of United Nations fighting men who participated in the landings in North Africa.

Heavy Damage Seen At Tunis And Bizerte

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—British correspondents reported from North Africa today that Tunis and Bizerte harbors have been so damaged by constant Allied aerial attacks that the Axis is forced to divert ships on the Sicily-Tunisian ferry service to the ports of Sousse, Sfax and Gabes.

These ports now are in the main targets of the Allies' three-way bombing forays — from North Africa, the Middle East and Malta, the dispatches said.

A Reuters correspondent in the Middle East reported reconnaissance photographs show Sfax harbor badly damaged, with many installations put out of action, and that "there is an appearance of desolation there."

Czechs Say Nazis Executed 1,940 Citizens In 1942

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—Using the Germans' own announcements as a basis for its figures, the Czech Government in exile reported today that a total of 1,940 Czech citizens, including 137 women, had been executed during the last year.

The number, it was explained, did not include those killed in the villages of Lidice and Lezaky, which were razed by the Germans, nor the many Jews slain outright or who died of wounds received in anti-Jewish drives.

A total of 72,000 Jews have been deported from Czecho-Slovakia, the report said.

Exiled Yugoslav Cabinet Rearranged In London

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Yugoslav Government-in-exile announced tonight a new Cabinet in which the number of ministers was reduced and Premier Slobodan Jovanovich assumed the duties of Momtchilo Nincic, who resigned as Foreign Minister.

The Yugoslav guerrilla leader, Gen. Draja Mihailovic, was retained as Minister of the Army, Navy and Air Force with Jovanovich acting as the general's representative in London while he carries on warfare against the Germans and Italians in Yugoslavia.

Former Aide to Benes Reported Shot by Nazis

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Members of the provisional Czechoslovakia Government here said today they had learned in advices from Zurich, Switzerland, that Jiri Sedmik, 49, for many years secretary to President Eduard Benes, had been executed with six others at Prague for fostering an anti-German organization.

Shell Exploded in Plane

LONDON, Jan. 2 (AP). — Lieutenant Walter Holmes jr., of Denton, Tex., one of the few flyers who ever saw a 20-millimeter cannon shell explode in his cabin and come back to tell about it, will receive the Distinguished Flying Cross, United States Army headquarters announced tonight. Holmes was piloting a four-engined Liberator B-24 over enemy-occupied territory when one of a flock of Nazi Focke-Wulf 190 fighters sent the cannon shell into the cabin.

Report Hits on Allied Ships

BERLIN (From German broadcasts), Jan. 2 (AP).—The high command said today that German bombers had scored hits with heavy-caliber explosives on an Allied cruiser and two freighters in the Algerian harbor of Bone and had caused "great havoc" to port establishments of the Allies' North African base.

JAN 3 1943

Fighter planes protecting the bombing mission were declared to have shot down seven Allied planes over Tunisia without loss to themselves, while anti-aircraft fire was credited with destroying another enemy craft.

In Libya, the report said, German fighter planes made a surprise low-altitude attack to destroy numerous British motor transports and shot down three Allied planes.

Brussels Gets New Bans As Attacks on Nazis Rize

Public Places Are Closed to Forestall Further Murders

BERLIN (From German broadcast), Jan. 2 (AP).—Because of "further murders" and attempts on the lives of three German soldiers New Year's night, the German military commander at Brussels, the Belgian capital, has announced that all places of entertainment will be closed until further notice.

Restaurants will have to close at 8:30 each night and a curfew will be in force from 9 p. m. The command said drastic steps were being taken against "persons under suspicion."

The British radio, recorded by the Columbia Broadcasting System in New York, said some of the murder victims were Belgian "Quislings" and members of the Flemish sentry service organized to guard factories working for Germany against sabotage.

The chalking up of the slogan "1918" on walls, reminding the Germans of their military collapse at the end of the first World War, has assumed wide proportions in Belgium, the radio added.

HITLER SHUFFLES REICH DIPLOMATS

Recalls From Tokyo, Madrid And Stockholm Reflect Nazi Displeasure

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 2—Adolf Hitler has replaced and called home his ambassadors to Japan and Spain and his Minister to Sweden in a diplomatic shakeup regarded by informed sources as a reflection of Nazi displeasure over the one-way course of the Axis ally, Japan, and the cool neutrality of Spain and Sweden.

JAN 3 1943

The Berlin radio announcement of the changes said they were made "within the ambit of a general retirement of German diplomatic representatives," and that Hitler had acted upon the suggestion of Joachim von Ribbentrop, German Foreign Minister.

To Get "New Posts"

Gen. Eugen Ott, Ambassador to Tokyo; Prince Viktor zu Wied, Minister to Stockholm, and Eberhard von Stohrer, Ambassador in Madrid, were recalled and "will be given new posts in the German Foreign Office," the announcement said.

Henrich Georg Stahmer, German Ambassador to Japan's puppet Chinese regime at Nanking, is going to Tokyo; Hans Adolf von Moltke will take the Madrid post, and Dr. Hans Thomsen, former charge d'affaires at Washington, will take over the Nazi Ministry at Stockholm.

Minister Erich Kordt, attached to the German Embassy in Tokyo, will act as charge d'affaires at Nanking until a new ambassador is appointed for that post.

No Clue To Motives

Informed sources said the mixed characters of the newly appointed representatives gave no clue as to Hitler's motives, but it is no secret that many Germans are disappointed about the failure of Japan to hit Russia in Siberia at a time when Germany is taking heavy punishment from the Soviets in the west.

Stahmer is regarded here as the most sinister of the three new envoys. He was a key figure behind the scenes in the negotiation of the German-Italian-Japanece past of alliance. It may be the Germans believe he is better suited to try to strengthen ties with an ally which has shown no disposition to actively aid Germany.

Stahmer has been active throughout the Far East and is widely regarded as director of a Nazi spy network on that side of the world. One unconfirmed report said that General Ott's removal may have been forced because of the arrest of two Japanese workmen on a charge of selling plans of a secret Japanese battleship weapon. This report said the purchasers of the data were Germans.

Field Marshal's Nephew

Von Moltke, a nephew of the famous field marshal, was the chief negotiator of the 1934 Polish-German non-aggression pact which Hitler broke in 1939. He is regarded as an old-school diplomat and not an ardent Nazi.

Spain has been more rigidly neutral in the war ever since the Allies went into North Africa, and General Franco was reported to have told both the Axis and Allied representatives that if Spain were invaded he would join the opposite side.

"Velvet-Glove" Diplomat

Although von Moltke was Ambassador to Poland preceding the invasion, London sources said it was highly unlikely his appointment to Madrid was any indication that Hitler was planning a similar stroke in Spain. These sources believed he was appointed because he is a "velvet-glove" diplomat in a situation where those tactics are needed.

The change of representation in Stockholm comes at a time when German officials have been criticizing neutral Sweden because that country's press often has shown its admiration for the Allies.

Thomsen, a long-time Nazi party man, is regarded here as a clever diplomat who is a close friend of both Hitler and Ribbentrop.

radio announced today, and has called home his ambassadors and ministers to Spain, Japan and Sweden.

JAN 3 1943

"Within the ambit of a general retirement of German diplomatic representatives, the Führer, acting upon the suggestion made by German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, has recalled Eberhard von Storer, German Ambassador to Madrid; Gen. Eugen Ott, German Ambassador to Tokyo, and Prince Viktor zu Wied, German Minister to Stockholm, as of January 1," the radio announcement said.

New Posts At Home

"They will be given new posts in the German Foreign Office," it added.

The announcement said Hans Adolf von Moltke would take over the Ambassadorship at Madrid.

Heinrich Georg Stahmer, one-time special envoy to Tokyo and now the German Ambassador to Japan's puppet Chinese regime at Nanking, is being sent to Tokyo, it continued, and Dr. Hans Thomsen, former counsellor to the German Embassy at Washington, is to take over the German diplomatic representation at Stockholm.

Kordt At Nanking

Minister Erich Kordt, attached to the German Embassy in Tokyo, will act as charge d'affairs at Nanking until a new ambassador can be appointed.

Stahmer, who is reported to have played a behind-the-scenes role in the negotiation of the German-Italian-Japanese pact of alliance, is being sent to Japan apparently to strengthen the ties between Berlin and Tokyo at a time when those ties apparently are loosening.

Recent French dispatches from Turkey told of the departure from Berlin of the Japanese liaison commission which had been maintained to dovetail Axis strategy and apparently to act as the Japanese high command's eyes and ears in Germany.

The dispatches said the commission was returning home by way of Russia, and observers suggested that in view of German reverses in Russia and North Africa that the Japanese were less eager to coordinate their strategy with that of the Axis than ever before.

Moltke's record, too, would seem to indicate that he is being sent to Madrid at a time when Hitler is anxious either to tighten the slipping bonds with Generalissimo Francisco Franco or of increasing his pressure there.

Negotiated Polish Pact

Moltke was the chief negotiator of the Polish-German non-aggression pact in 1934, a pact which was broken by Hitler in 1939. Moltke stayed on in Warsaw as Ambassador until the outbreak of the war.

General Franco has recently declared his neutrality in the war, even going to the extent, it is reported, of announcing to Allied and Axis representatives that if invaded, Spain will join the opposite side.

Franco replaced his ardently pro-Axis brother-in-law, Ramon Serrano Suner, as Foreign Minister a few months ago, and has also changed his Ambassador in Berlin.

The change of the diplomatic guard in Stockholm follows rumors that Germany was considering changes there with a view, perhaps, to increasing her pressure on Sweden. The Swedish press has been frequently criticized recently by German spokesmen, who have insisted that its reporters and editorial writers were giving too favorable a reception to Allied war reports.

Admiral Halsey's 1943 Forecast: 'Complete, Absolute' Axis Defeat

Chief Of South Pacific Naval Force Says His Men Will Not Stop Before That Point

JAN 3 1943

By J. NORMAN LODGE

[Associated Press Correspondent]

With the United States Fleet in the South Pacific, Jan. 2—Victory for the United Nations this year is the prediction of Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., commander of the South Pacific force of the Pacific Fleet.

The admiral made this statement in an interview during which I learned that you don't beat about the bush when talking to him. Direct approach brings direct answers.

I wanted him to gaze into the crystal ball to see what the year 1943 would bring forth, so I put the direct question:

Predicts A Complete Job

"Can you give us an idea what the new year holds in store?"

This was his answer:

"Victory for the United Nations. Complete, absolute defeat for the Axis powers. But let's not be stopped this time until we fix things up so they will never be able to rise again."

"This year?"

"Yes."

"Do you include Japan?"

"Yes, sir, and here're a few messages I wish you would send to Japan for me.

"To Hirohito:

"As Emperor and leader of traitorous and brutal Japan during the years of her foul attacks on peaceful peoples, your time is short.

Sees Tojo Reaping Whirlwind

"To Tojo:

"When you unleashed your cowardly attack on December 7 you started something you can't finish. Beneath your thin veneer of civilization lies the dominant instinct to kill. Because of this you have released the greatest instinct to fight in the American people ever in history.

"We have good evidence of your atrocities and know where they were perpetrated. They'll be properly repaid.

"To the American People:

"Under my command the United Nations in the South Pacific have the finest fighting men our country ever produced. They are imbued with a fighter instinct and it is conceded we will not stop until there is a complete victory.

Japs "Hear The Rumbling"

"To the Japanese People:

"That heavy rumbling you hear now will gradually grow into a shock of bursting bombs, the shrieking of shells and the clashing of swords on your own soil. You had better stop now before it is too late."

Capt. Miles Browning, chief of staff, interposed, saying:

"I think the admiral will agree it is safe to say at this instance that we are engaged in a highly hazardous effort to rescue some white women from an island where they are in imminent danger of personal violation and death."

There was no further elucidation or approximate location of the island.

Halsey To Yamamoto

[By the Associated Press]

With the United States Fleet in the South Pacific, Jan. 2—Addressing a "message" to Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander in chief of the Japanese navy, in the course of an interview, Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., today said:

"You will be present at the peace if you are still alive. That peace will be in the White House, but the White House will not be as you envisaged."

In a broadcast by Domei December 16, 1941, Admiral Yamamoto was reported to have written to a friend on January 24 of that year:

JAN 3 1943

"I am looking forward to dictating peace to the United States in the White House at Washington."

Handwriting On The Wall

"What do you think is the significance to Tojo's recent remarks?" I asked Admiral Halsey.

"He sees the handwriting on the wall," he replied, adding:

"It was only a month ago that he annihilated the United States fleet for the fourth time."

"Do you foresee a United Nations offensive in all parts of the world in a short space of time?"

"I definitely hope so," the admiral said as his eyes twinkled. "And I hope Hitler, Mussolini and Hirohito will see the same thing."

Air Power Coordinated

"What is the importance of air power as demonstrated in the Solomons?" a correspondent asked.

"Air power, when properly used in conjunction with necessary ground and sea forces, is a tremendous factor in warfare."

"Do we have enough materiel here to conduct the offensives previously mentioned?"

"No man in military history ever had enough men and materiel, but he has always gone ahead and done it just the same."

"Have we passed from the defensive to the offensive?"

"Definitely. All the Axis is hearing the tolling of the bells. And we are doing the rope pulling." He smiled.

Hunting Action Everywhere

"Do you anticipate further Japnese action against the Solomons?"

"I foresee action wherever we can find one."

"Do you mean that the Japs are harder to find now?"

JAN 3 1943

"Definitely."

"Do you foresee the bombing of the Japanese mainland?"

"I hope so."

"You have given us messages to the Japanese war lords, the Emperor and the American people. Can you give us a message to the fighting forces as to whether there is a good liberty town in the offing?" I asked as a personal favor for my navy friends.

Admiral Halsey swung around in his swivel chair, pursed his lips, again let a twinkle come into his eyes and with all seriousness replied:

"Liberty for the boys, yes. We will bypass all smaller towns and let them loose in Tokyo. That will be a liberty town they'll really enjoy."

Praises Naval Personnel

And if the dreamy look on his countenance meant what I took it to mean, Halsey will not be loath to take liberty in Tokyo himself.

He was asked his opinion of young recruits and naval reserves in the Pacific.

"There is only one word to describe them," Halsey said quickly. "Superb. The officers and men of the USNR are doing things we didn't dream them capable of and didn't think possible. As for the regulars—God bless them—there is nothing our country can do for them that is too good."

And, as abruptly as the interview began, it stopped. Halsey is like that.

Japs Split At Buna

By William F. Boni

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 1 (Delayed)—Following a policy of seeking to break enemy holdings in progressively smaller segments, Allied tanks and infantry artillery succeeded today in isolating the Japanese on the Buna front into two sectors as well as a small pocket.

A parachute attack coupled with tanks which began in the morning had reached the beach at East Giropa Point along a 400-yard front by noon. Then, wheeling east by mid-afternoon, the attackers pocketed a force of Japanese in a heavily bunkered area bordering on the north by Seni Mi creek.

In Coconut Grove

The terrain was described as a coconut grove, in which the Japs had cut down many trees and had used them for building connecting pillboxes almost entirely hidden by grass four to five feet tall.

This pocket was under our infantry and tank attack from the west and southwest, and also was under the artillery fire of Australian 25-pounders.

The artillery units had to fire with exceptional accuracy, since the target was small and a slight miscalculation would have endangered our own troops.

Two other Jap concentrations in the area running south from Giropa Point and Buna Government station were being whittled down steadily.

An attack on a Jap submarine, mentioned in the latest communique from General MacArthur, was carried out December 31 by a Liberator plane returning from an attack on Rabaul. The B-24 bomber spotted the sub, dived and strafed it several times.

field, and a mixed force of Fortresses and Liberators which dropped thousand-pound bombs on a shipping concentration in the harbor.

JAN 3 1943

At Least Three Ships Set Afire

Because of weather conditions the full effect of the attacks is not known, but they are believed to have been highly satisfactory.

At least three ships, totaling 24,000 tons were set afire and others were possibly hit and damaged.

The airdromes were so thoroughly sprayed with fragmentation bombs that only three Jap Zero fighter planes were able to take off in an attempt to intercept the last American formation, which came over Rabaul at daybreak.

Gasmata Airdrome Pounded

The Gasmata airdrome on the south side of New Britain Island was hammered with thousand-pound bombs by American B-24s and B-17s which had failed to unload their bombs at Rabaul.

One Zero fighter was destroyed on the ground at Gasmata and two out of a force of five which attacked a single American Liberator were knocked down.

Definite hits on the shipping were reported by Lieut. John R. Arant, a boyish-looking B-24 pilot from Winnemucca, Nev., and by Lieut. Charles Hesse, Chicagoan who is a newly-arrived B-17 pilot.

Straddles Merchant Ship

Arant said his bombardier laid thousand-pounders right across a large merchant ship. Because of anti-aircraft fire and searchlights the plane was unable to linger to confirm its results, but Arant said that "when that size bomb comes even close it is bound to do considerable damage."

Hesse also did not waste time over the target area because, he said, anti-aricraft tracer shells were coming up "like they were throwing it up out of a fire hose."

Bombs Of All Sizes Hit Airdromes And Shipping

By William F. Boni

JAN 3 1943

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 1 (Delayed)—Allied heavy bombers, lashing out in heavier force than has been employed in this area in weeks, continued their pounding of Japanese bases in the southwest Pacific this morning by plastering the Rabaul area in northern New Britain with everything from small fragmentation bombs to thousand-pounders.

The target area was divided among four flight formations: A Flying Fortress flight led by Major Ed. Scott, of Hollandale, Miss., which attacked the Lakunai airdrome; a force of Liberator bombers which struck Vunakanau air-

6 Americans Brave Fire At Damaged Buna Bridge

One Volunteer Is Killed on Perilous Repair Mission

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN NEW GUINEA, Dec. 31 (delayed) (AP).—Six American soldiers volunteered for a bridge-repair mission on a shell-pocked spot near the Buna government station. One lost his life under the fire of Japanese machine guns. The survivors failed to fulfill their assignment, but their heroism will be remembered.

They volunteered Dec. 28 after a severe artillery barrage, in pounding the Japanese station area, also knocked out a twenty-foot section of the bridge leading from an American-held island in Entrance Creek to enemy terrain. The bridge had to be repaired if infantrymen were to assault the enemy positions.

Survivors of the bridge-repair squad—Privates E. R. Hangartner, of Osseo, Wis.; Edward G. Squires, of Akron, Ohio; Arthur Melanson, of Lynn, Mass., and Corporals Bert McDonough, of Redding, Mass., and Charles Gray, of Petersham, Mass.—didn't seem to consider the job extraordinary. But their commanding officers had only the highest praise for them. Officers knew the job was dangerous, particularly since speed was essential and because it had to be done in daylight.

Admiral Halsey Predicts Victory For United Nations In Current Year

'Absolute Defeat' of Axis Seen; Warns Japanese Emperor Time is Short

Halsey Predicts Victory In 1943

At Wake Island

JAN 3 1943

By Charles McMurtry

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Headquarters, Seventh Airforce, Jan. 2—Lou Zamperini, former national collegiate mile champion, finds it easier to face Japanese anti-aircraft fire on a bombing raid than to compete against Cunningham or Venzke on the cinder track.

Zamperini, 25-year-old former U.S.C. distance star from Torrance, Cal., was a bombardier on the Army Air Force's Wake Island raid December 24. Lou, a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps, bombed a runway and bunkers on Wake. He was one of those awarded an air medal for their deeds.

Says He Feels Jumpy

"Nobody was scared," said Zamperini after his return. "I think everyone had an excited, jumpy feeling—exactly the same as that one gets before a big race. I've been scared more before a race against Cunningham, Venzke and Fenske than I was that night."

The Wake Island raid was the first combat flight for this group, which was organized a few months ago and is comprised of young men just out of Randolph and Kelly and Midland, Texas, flying schools.

Only One Bomb Miss

"As bombardier," Zamperini continued, "I have all the fun. We had orders to watch everything. We checked everything carefully. There was only one miss by our whole squadron. That was a bomb that fell offshore only twenty feet and it might have done some damage.

"The Japs were asleep for a long while. My plane was one of the last in the formation. We thought we'd get out without having to face gunfire. Then they opened up but none of our planes was hit and we got back all right.

Aimed Bomb At Jap Plane

"Only one Jap plane pursued us. I made certain that he did not land on his return. I saw him taking off and dropped a 500-pound bomb on the runway. My objectives were the bunkers, but I figured it would do more good to place one bomb there. I aimed at the plane, but knew I couldn't hit it since it was taking off. I had a good chance to hit the airfield so he couldn't land again, however. My bomb blasted a hole in the north-south runway.

"I dropped the rest of my bombs on my objective. I saw flashes as the bombs hit, but it was too cloudy to see the direct damage.

On Alert For Pursuit

"Everybody was on the extreme alert against possible pursuit for an hour after the attack. That's what happened to Colin Kelly,. His crew thought the Japs would not pursue and were surprised.

"It's very hard to keep awake on these bombers. The vibration puts you to sleep.

"A raid like that burns up as much energy as a good mile race."

Compliments Pilot

Zamperini had high praise for his pilot, Lieut. R. A. Phillips, 23, of Terre Haute, Ind.

"Phil is so short he has to get cushions to sit on to be able to see where he's going, but he's a damn swell pilot."

"But now I would like to return and bomb Berlin," he said.

"The Japs didn't put up too much of a fight," he continued. "Our first planes might have knocked out their planes with bombs around the airfield.

JAN 3 1943

"But they did put up some ack-ack. It came up mostly in clusters. I saw lots of tracers. The closest any came to us was just off our wings and tail.

"I was most excited when we were diving and saw the tracers coming up toward us. It's a big thrill to see your bombs hit their target. There was a big grin on my face. I know that. There were some pretty big fires as we approached and when we left.

"The thrill you get is worth the chances you take. That's why I'm in the Air Corps."

Aversion To Marriage

Zamperini is not interested in marriage—for a strange reason.

"I'm afraid to get married for fear I'd have lots of daughters," he said. "Look at Cunningham and Venzke (Glenn Cunningham, of Kansas, and Gene Venzke, of Pennsylvania, milers whom Lou used to race).

"I just got a picture of Venzke and his daughter. Look at all Cunningham's daughters. One daughter is all right but I want sons.

"You ever hear of a miler having a son?"

Pan American Says Araujo, Now In Prison, Is Leaving Panair Do Brazil

Rihl Announces A Clear-Cut Division Of Operations By Two Companies

[By the Associated Press]

Rio de Janeiro, Jan. 2 — Pan American Airways announced reorganization of its Brazilian operations and said Cauby Da Costa Araujo, who is in prison accused of "crime against the national security," was taking leave from the presidency of Panair Do Brasil.

Paulo Sampaio, widely known in Brazilian aviation circles, who returned from the United States in October after a year's study of civil aeronautics, will become managing director and acting president of Panair Do Brasil, said an announcement by George L. Rihl, vice-president of Pan American Airways.

Rihl said Panair Do Brasil, which started operations eleven years ago and which has financed it through loans will increase its capital to 35,000,000 cruzeiros ($1,750,000), of which a third will be offered for sale in the form of securities.

Clear-Cut Division

A clear-cut division will be made between Pan American and Panair Do Brasil, including the setting up of separate offices at Rio de Janeiro, but Panamerican will continue to give the Brazilian company "technical and financial assistance."

Araujo, whose death was demanded this week by the government prosecutor in an espionage trial, retained his post in Panair Do Brasil through many weeks of imprisonment. Rihl said "he requested to be relieved as soon as convenient, at least for the present from active duty."

History Of Decade In Which Germany, Japan And Italy Moved Into War Related In White Book

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 2—The story of a decade in which Japan, Germany and Italy moved toward and into total war was told tonight from the American diplomat's viewpoint in a White Book issued by the State Department.

The report, entitled "Peace and War—United States Foreign Policy 1931-1941," reveals how American diplomats and consular officials, reporting from widely separated posts of observation, were perturbed very early in the decade by evidence of an emotional storm brewing in the minds of the German, the Japanese and the Italian peoples.

Report From Berlin

In April, 1934, Consul General Messersmith transmitted from Berlin a report on the German situation by Douglas Miller, acting commercial attache. In this report Miller said the Germans were "suffering from a traditional inferiority complex, smarting from their defeat in the war and the indignities of the postwar period, disillusioned in their hopes of a speedy return to prosperity along traditional lines, and inflamed by irresponsible demagogic slogans and flattered by the statement that their German racial inheritance gave them inherent superior rights over other peoples."

The real emotional drive behind the Nazi program, he said, was "not so much love of their own country as dislike of other countries."

"Inferiority Complex" Of Japs

In December of the same year Ambassador Joseph C. Grew drew attention to the "marked inferiority complex" of the Japanese people and a certain "swashbuckling temper" in the country. He reported that things were constantly being said and written in Japan "to the effect that Japan's destiny was to subjugate and rule the world."

Dislike of other countries now manifest, he declared.

Some nine months later Ambassador Breckinridge Long cabled to the Secretary of State from Rome that Mussolini had the emotional support of the entire Italian population; that the army and navy were "almost fanatic in their idolatry of and devotion to" the Duce, and idolatry and devotion which was "worked up to an emotional pitch unique in modern times."

Remark By Hull Recalled

This was on the eve of Italy's invasion of Ethiopia in defiance of the League of Nations.

Later, just before Hitler flaunted the League by sending his troops into the demilitarized Rhineland, Secretary Hull remarked in a conversation with the British Ambassador in Washington that:

"The most incomprehensible circumstance in the whole modern world is the ability of dictators, overnight almost, to stand 35,000,000 Italians and 65,000,000 Germans on their heads and so dominate their mental processes that they arise the next morning and insist on being sent to the first-line trenches without delay."

U. S. Offer Is Declined

In July, 1937, Japan launched her attempt to conquer all China. Secretary Hull offered informally, through Ambassador Grew in Tokyo, the good offices of the United States toward settlement of the conflict. This offer was ignored.

In October of the same year President Roosevelt delivered his famous "quarantine" address, deploring the spread of the "epidemic of world lawlessness" and suggesting a "quarantine" of aggressors by the peace-loving nations.

The following year brought Germany's annexation of Austria and the crisis of Czechoslovakia, culminating in the peace of Munich after personal appeals by President Roosevelt to the heads of Governments in Czechoslovakia, France, Germany and Great Britain.

In 1938 Nazi persecution of the Jews in Germany flared up anew, and President Roosevelt recalled the American Ambassador as an expression of this country's conday forward, through three subsedemnation. From that day forward, through three subsequent years of crisis and widening European war, the United States was without an ambassador in Berlin.

The false peace after Munich crumbled when Hitler tore up the settlement and took what was left of Czechoslovakia in March, 1939.

Vainly President Roosevelt appealed to Hitler and Mussolini for maintenance of the peace of Europe; in vain, after Berlin and Moscow signed a non-aggression pact and Hitler threatened Poland, did the President appeal to the King of Italy and to Hitler.

The die was cast: Germany invaded Poland; and Britain and France, fulfilling their pledges to that country, declared war on the Third Reich September 1.

Welles Tours Europe

Of the period following the conquest of Poland, little is said except that Sumner Welles, Under Secretary of State, toured Europe surveying the possibilities of peace.

Then came Hitler's invasion of Denmark and Norway, his drive through the lowlands, Britain's Dunkirk and the fall of France. President Roosevelt made repeated appeals to Mussolini to stay out of the war, Il Duce finally sent word to the President to refrain from "further pressure," after which he declared war on France and Britain, just a week before aged Marshal Petain asked Hitler for an armistice.

It was then, between Mussolini's act and the armistice, that the United States Government "took immediate steps to send the British and French large quantities of aircraft, rifles, field artillery, machine guns and ammunition." The weapons were too late to help France, but they helped to save Britain.

Grew Cabled Warning on Impending Pearl Harbor Attack in January of That Year

State Department Issues White Book

Cablegram Admitted One of Cautionary Series Dating From 1932: Tokyo 'Welcomed War'

Washington, Jan. 2.—(AP.)—An American White Book issued by the State Department tonight disclosed that Ambassador Joseph C. Grew cabled from Tokyo on January 27, 1941, that the Japanese had plans for a "surprise mass attack at Pearl Harbor in case of 'trouble' with the United States."

The Grew cablegram was one of a series of warnings dating back to 1932 and growing progressively urgent in the subsequent years until on November 29, 1941, Secretary of State Hull told the British ambassador that the diplomatic part of our relations with Japan was virtually over and that the matter will now go to the officials of the Army and Navy."

Moreover, the White Book reported, Hull said that it would be a "serious mistake for our country and other countries interested in the Pacific situation to make plans of resistance without including the possibility that Japan may move suddenly and with every possible element of surprise and spread out over considerable areas and capture certain positions and posts before the peaceful countries interested in the Pacific would have time to confer and formulate plans."

Fateful Decade.

The references to the Grew cablegram and Hull's conversation were contained in the 144-pages book entitled "Peace And War, United States Foreign Policy 1931-1941." A foreword to the document said:

"The fateful decade, 1931-1941, began and ended with acts of violence by Japan. It was marked by the ruthless development of a determined policy of world domination on the part of Japan, Germany and Italy."

Accordingly, the book devotes much space to the rise of Italian and German aggression and the counter-measures adopted by this country; but Japan dominates the report. Japan's troops move into Manchuria in the opening pages, Japan's torpedo-planes at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, write the crashing climax.

The attack launched by Japan on Manchuria Septemeber 18, 1931, was warning enough for Henry L. Stimson, then Secretary of State and now Secretary of War.

Stimson Proposal.

"In February 1932," says the White Book, Secretary of State Stimson proposed to the British Government that the United States and British governments issue a joint statement invoking the Nine-Powers Treaty and the Kellogg-Briand pact in the Far Eastern controversy, making clear that the two governments considered these treaties as fully binding and declaring that they would not recognize as valid any situation created in violation of these treaties. The British Government did not adopt the Pacific suggestion made by Secretary Stimson."

A few months later Ambassador Grew called Stimson's attention to the growing animosity in Japan toward "foreign nations in general and the United States in particular," and "stated that the Japanese military machine had been 'built for war,' felt prepared for war, and would 'welcome war'; that it had never yet been beaten and possessed unlimited self-confidence."

On December 27, 1934, Grew reported that things were being constantly said and written in Japan to the effect that Japan's destiny was to subjugate and rule the world," and "declared it would be 'criminally shortsighted' to discard from calculations the possibility of eventual war with Japan."

President met Prime Minister Winston Churchill at sea in the historic Atlantic Charter conference it was agreed that the United States should continue conversations with the Japanese. But Japanese-American relations did not improve.

Suggests Meeting.

Nomura suggested they would improve if a meeting could be arranged between President Roosevelt and Premier Prince Konoye, possibly aboard a Japanese warship. Secretary Hull insisted an agreement in principle on at least the major Far Eastern questions should be reached before such a meeting. The Japanese repeated the invitation and finally warned that the Konoye government might fall if the meeting failed to take place; in which case "a less moderate government" might take the helm. Konoye did fall and General Hideki Tojo took over.

Ambassador Grew cabled from Tokyo, warning of the possibility of Japan's acting "with dramatic and dangerous suddenness." On November 7 the situation looked so bad that Secretary Hull advised the Cabinet that the public should be informed in public speeches of the gravity of the crisis the report said.

But soon thereafter there arrived in Washington Japan's flying emissary, Saburo Kurusu, and on November 17 Kurusu and Nomura began their conferences with Hull for negotiation of a Far Eastern settlement.

The same day, November 17, Grew again cabled urging "vigilance against sudden Japanese naval or military attack."

The negotiations pursued their futile course.

Hull Cites Precautions.

On November 27 the President, with Secretary Hull, received Nomura and Kurusu and emphasized that this country could not relax its economic sanctions and resume normal trade with Japan "unless Japan gave some clear manifestation of peaceful intent."

Next day Hull informed the Cabinet that precautions should be taken against surprise moves by Japan.

On December 1 he bluntly told the Japanese emissaries that "Japan might just as well ask us to cease aiding Britain as to cease aiding China." The White Book adds:

"He emphasized that we did not propose to go into partnership with Japan's military leaders; that he had not heard one whisper of peace from them, 'only bluster and blood-curdling threats.'"

President Roosevelt's eleventh-hour appeal to Emperor Hirohito followed and then, on Sunday, December 7, the Japanese "reply", delivered by Nomura and Kurusu one hour after bombs crashed on Pearl Harbor.

Panay Attack.

Three years later the United States Gunboat Panay was bombed by Japanese in Chinese waters, but Japan apologized, and American attention turned back to domestic affairs and the growing threat of a war in Europe. With the actual outbreak of war, and the subsequent catastrophic events of 1940, Europe dominated the foreign scene and the question of aid for Britain dominated affairs at home.

But in September, 1940, the threat of war with Japan again flashed briefly across the horizon, when Tokyo signed the tripartite pact with Rome and Berlin aimed directly at the United States.

The White Book records that three days after the signing of this pact Secretary Hull, in a conversation with the British ambassador, characterized the tripartite pact as "Hitler's effort to divert attention from his failure to invade Great Britain and to preserve his prestige by a sensational announcement of something that already existed."

In the same interview Hull "emphasized to the Ambassador that the special desire of this government was to see Great Britain succeed in the war, and that its acts and utterances with respect to the Pacific area would be more or less affected by the question what course would most effectively and legitimately aid Great Britain in winnig the war."

Grew Again Warns.

Meanwhile, Grew was cabling from Tokyo that German victories, "like strong wine," had intoxicated Japan with dreams of a "golden opportunity."

Then on January 27, 1941, Grew informed the State Department of "reports from many sources, including a Japanese source, that Japanese military forces planned a surprise mass attack at Pearl Harbor in case of 'trouble' with the United States."

Soon thereafter the new Japanese ambassador, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, presented his credentials to President Roosevelt, and efforts were begun to persuade the Japanese that their real opportunity lay in collaborating with Britain and the United States against the German menace. In a conversation with Nomura, Hull said that "unless the civilization of the world was to run the great risk of being destroyed by Hitler, the United efforts of nations like Japan, the United States and Great Britain would be required to shape the course of the world in a different direction."

Russian Invasion.

Germany invaded Russia in June, 1941, and in July the Japanese moved troops into southern Indochina. Although on July 24 President Roosevelt received Nomura and told him the new move by Japan in Indochina created an exceedingly serious problem for the United States. He proposed neutralization of Indochina by international agreement. The White Book continues:

"The President then said that it was believed in the United States that such policies as Japan was pursuing were due to German pressure upon Japan; that the Japanese government did not understand as clearly as we that Hitler was bent upon world domination; that if Germany succeeded in defeating Russia and dominating Europe and Africa, Germany thereafter would turn her attention to the Far East and to the Western Hemisphere; and that it was entirely possible that after some years the navies of Japan and of the United States would be cooperating against Hitler as a common enemy."

When, in the following month, the Text of Hull's Statement

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—Following is the text of the statement issued today by Secretary Hull:

We are issuing today a publication entitled "Peace and War," prepared in the Department of State. It is an introduction to a collection of documents concerning the foreign relations of the United States during the fateful decade 1931-1941.

This book and the collection of documents which is in the process of publication present a record of policies and acts by which the United States sought to promote conditions of peace and world order to meet the world-wide danger resulting from Japanese, German and Italian aggression as those dangers arose.

That record shows, I think, that throughout this period our government consistently advocated, practiced and urged upon other countries principles of international conduct on the basis of which the nations of the world could attain security, confidence and progress. Much was accomplished in the face of immense difficulties.

It is for the establishment of those principles that we and our associates are fighting today.

I am convinced that, had those principles been adopted and applied by the nations of the world, all legitimate grievances and controversies between nations could have been satisfactorily adjusted by peaceful processes and without resort to force. We and all mankind would have been spared the horrors of this world-enveloping war thrust upon us by the criminal ambitions of the leaders of Japan, Germany and Italy, who—intent upon conquest—rejected all principles of law, justice, fair dealing and peaceful negotiation and resorted to the sword.

In making this information more fully available to the people of the United States we earnestly hope that a study of it will help our citizens to a clearer understanding of the problems and tasks which have confronted us, of those which confront us now and of those which will confront us in the crucial days ahead.

There will be confident hope for the future provided our people and other peoples hold fast to the eternal principles of law, justice, fair dealing and morality which we have constantly proclaimed and sought to apply and which must underlie any practicable program of peaceful international collaboration for the good of all.

Our people and the peoples of the United Nations will need to have in the future, as they have today, a unity of purpose and a willingness to make appropriate and indispensable contributions toward the achievement of military victory and toward the establishment and maintenance of a peace that will endure.

With unity of purpose and common effort there can be achieved a peace that will open to all mankind greater opportunity than has ever before existed for welfare and progress in every avenue of human endeavor.

U. S. Publishing Record Of 1931-41 Diplomacy

JAN 3 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 2 — Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, appealed tonight to the United Nations to "hold fast to the eternal principles" of international morality.

"There will be confident hope for the future," he asserted in a statement announcing publication of documents covering ten years of American diplomacy prior to Pearl Harbor, "provided our people and other peoples hold fast to the eternal principles of law, justice, fair-dealing, and morality which we have constantly proclaimed and sought to apply."

Introduction To Documents

The Secretary said that a White Book, issued tonight as an introduction to the documents now in process of publication, would help Americans "to a clearer understanding of the problems and tasks which have confronted us, of those which confront us now, and of those which will confront us in the crucial days ahead."

Hull asserted that the ten-year record shows the United States "consistently advocated, practiced and urged upon other countries" principles of international conduct "on the basis of which the nations of the world could attain security, confidence and progress.

"I am convinced that, had those principles been adopted and applied by the nations of the world, all legitimate grievances and controversies between nations could have been satisfactorily adjusted by peaceful processes and without resort to force," he added.

British Women Vie With Men In War Plants

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Office of War Information said today that employment of women in British war production and essential civilian services was growing to the point where women workers would soon equal the number of men.

More than forty per cent. of all British war production workers are women, OWI said. Aircraft plants have particularly large forces of women, with one hundred per cent. of the welding, detail fitting and sub-assembly done by them. In one plant, ninety per cent. of the riveters are women.

Out of approximately 639,000 employes on British railroads, 105,000 are women, the report said.

ARMY REPORTS 407 KILLED IN ACTION

Casualties on Four Fronts Are Announced in First List Issued Since Dec. 7

MANY FROM HERE IN GROUP

Men From All but Six States and One Native of Germany Are Among Those Named

JAN 3 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP)—The names of 407 United States soldiers killed in action in the Southwest Pacific, South Pacific, African and European war areas and at sea were made public by the War Department today.

It was the first Army casualty list issued since a recent change in policy authorized general publication of the entire list. Previously, newspapers had been restricted to publication of the names of men who enlisted from or had relatives living in their circulation areas or were of national prominence.

The list gave the names of 27 officers and 197 enlisted men killed in action in Africa; 15 officers and 33 men in the European area; 14 officers and 85 enlisted men in the South Pacific; 10 officers and 21 enlisted men in the Southwest Pacific, and 5 enlisted men killed in action at sea.

As of Dec. 7 aggregate Army casualties since the war began were listed as 2,009 killed, 3,332 wounded, 30,119 missing, 112 prisoners of war, and 106 interned in neutral countries.

The latest casualties cannot be simply added to the Dec. 7 figure of total dead, however, due to a time lag between reports of total figures and announcements of the names of the dead, the War Department explained. The names are not made public until the next of kin has been notified.

The list included soldiers from forty-two States, District of Columbia, Germany and Puerto Rico. The native of Germany was Private Gerhard P. Mokros, who died in the Southwest Pacific. Army records listed his nearest relative as his mother, Mrs. Louise Mokros of Vienenburg, Hanover, Germany.

States from which there were no casualties on today's list were Arizona, Montana, Nevada, Rhode Island, Washington and Wyoming.

7 JAP SHIPS SUNK BY U. S. PACIFIC SUBS

Transport, Tanker Among New Victims—Enemy Destroyer Damaged

Allies Jam Nipponese At Buna Into Single Small Pocket

JAN 3 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 2—The navy reported today that American submarines in the Pacific had sunk seven merchant-type Japanese ships and damaged a destroyer in recent operations.

The sinkings were announced in the following communique No. 237:

"Pacific and Far East:

"1. United States submarines have reported the following results of operations against the enemy in the waters of these areas:

"(a) Two large cargo ships sunk.

"(b) One medium sized passenger-cargo ship sunk.

"(c) One medium sized cargo ship sunk.

"(d) One medium sized transport sunk.

"(e) One medium sized tanker sunk.

"(f) One small cargo ship sunk.

"(g) One destroyer damaged.

Not Previously Announced

"These sinkings have not been announced in any previous Navy Department communique."

These successful attacks by American undersea craft on the enemy's supply and transport shipping raised to 112 the total number of Japanese ships of all types announced as sunk by American submarines in the war to date.

Noted Chinese Scholar To Remain for Research

Washington, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Dr. Hu-Shih, former Chinese ambassador to the United States, has accepted appointment as research associate and consultant of the American Council of Learned Societies, it was announced tonight.

The director of the council, Dr. Waldo K. Leland, said Dr. Hu planned to continue his research in the history of Chinese thought, on which he was engaged before his appointment as ambassador. He is expected to remain in the United States for at least another year.

AERIAL BLOWS OVER PACIFIC START YEAR

Navy Flyers' Attacks On Foe Range From Aleutians To Solomons

JAN 3 1943

Ships Bombed In Kiska Harbor; Jap Base Pounded On Guadalcanal

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 2—The army's Aleutian Islands air force, determined to eliminate the newest Japanese menace at Kiska, returned in force to that enemy base on New Year's Day, shot down one of six Zero fighters which attempted to intercept and scored at least a near hit on one small ship in the harbor.

"Clouds prevented complete observation of results," a navy communique said today. "No United States planes were lost."

Heavy Solomons Raids

This action was paralleled by heavy American air raids the first day of 1943 in the Solomons area of the South Pacific, where bombings were concentrated on breaking up Japanese resistance on Guadalcanal Island and preventing use of the Munda air base on New Georgia Island.

On Guadalcanal, Douglas Dauntless dive bombers dropped their explosives in the vicinity of Kokumbono, about seven miles west of Guadalcanal airfield, where Japanese headquarters for the island is believed to be located. The section is heavily overgrown with jungle and no observation could be made of exact results.

Meanwhile the Solomons command threw a formidable force of planes against Japan's Munda base but "results of the raid were not reported," the communique said.

First Use Of Warhawks

The attack was made by Marauder medium bombers escorted by Airacobra, Lightning and Warhawk fighters. The Airacobra and Lightning types previously had been in action in the Solomons but this was the first official mention of the use of the Warhawk in that area.

JAN 3 1943

"All United States planes returned undamaged," the navy said.

The raid against shipping at Kiska harbor was the third in three days. The first turned out badly when four Japanese Zeros equipped with floats for landing and taking off from Kiska harbor, shot down two Lightning fighters and one medium bomber and lost only one of their own number.

The bombers attacked enemy ships in the harbor at that time with uncertain results but a few hours later, early December 30, they returned and scored three hits on one ship and two on another without losing any planes.

Return To Bomb Ships

It was evident from the fact that the Japanese were able to put four Zeros in the air December 30 and six more on New Year's Day that they had considerably strengthened their Kiska base. For many weeks last fall and early this winter it was without any protection except weak anti-aircraft batteries.

Measures to strengthen the base probably were taken under cover of winter fogs and storms which have greatly hampered American aerial operations.

Mexico Pays $500,000 On American Claims

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—Francisco Castillo Najera, Mexican Ambassador, today handed Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, a check for $500,000, representing Mexico's ninth payment on a total of $8,000,000 in claims of Americans for damages suffered from revolutionaries to 1920.

The payment was made under an agreement signed in 1934.

Willkie Calls For Peace-Planning During War

JAN 3 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 2—Wendell L. Willkie today called for the formation of a working common council of the United Nations to plan war and economic strategy now and cooperation after victory.

Addressing an opera Victory rally at this afternoon's performance of the Metropolitan Opera Company, the Republican candidate for President in 1940 asserted that the United Nations must be made "a fact and not a mere euphonious phrase." The program was broadcast over the Blue network.

Must Win Peace Now

"If history has taught us anything," Willkie said, "it was taught us that people obtain in a peace only what they win while they fight.

"What I want to emphasize is that planning will do no good unless we give our plans reality; that we will have no United Nations after the war unless we make the United Nations now a fact and not a mere euphonious phrase."

Council Is Necessary

Willkie declared that today, a year after the signing of the United Nations pact, "we should face the fact that if hopeful billions of human beings are not to be disappointed the United Nations must become a common council, not only for the winning of the war but for the future welfare of mankind."

Willkie asserted that the "dream of Woodrow Wilson" had failed because the Allied nations, while they fought, had not developed a mechanism of working together that would survive after the fighting was over.

Study Economic Cooperation

A United Nations common council, Willkie said, must not be "a council of the few, who direct or merely aid others as they think wise. We must have a council of grand military strategy on which all nations that are bearing the brunt of the fighting are represented. . . . We must have a common council to amalgamate the economic strength of the United Nations toward total war production and to study jointly the possibilities of future economic cooperation.

"And most important of all, as United Nations, we must formulate now the principles which will govern our actions as we move step by step to the freeing of the conquered countries."

Allies Could End All Wars Says Phelps

Should Retain War-Made Friendship When Peace Comes, Yale Professor Believes

JAN 3 1943

BY GEORGE MACKIE.

New Haven, Jan. 2.—(AP.)—If the allied nations remain on as friendly terms with one another through choice as they now are through necessity, the present war will be the world's last large-scale conflict, believes Professor William Lyon Phelps.

And he reminds us he is serious when he says the climate is responsible for "superficial" ill-feeling between Americans and the English.

Unlike a lot of people, Yale's eminent man of letters does not care to talk about the war because "in these times we need to hear more about religion, the theater, sports and such things."

But, naturally, a man who has keenly observed the world scene for three score years and more has many ideas about a war "unlike any other war the world has ever seen." He expounded some of them in an hour-long talk in the book-lined study of his home only a few short blocks from downtown New Haven and the Yale campus where he has been long and affectionately known as "Billy" Phelps.

"It is, of course, my hope that after the war all the nations that are allied now against Hitler, while keeping their absolute integrity as separate nations, will remain as loyal and devoted friends in peace as necessity has forced them to be in war. Because if we win this war and the allies can all remain in harmony, there will be no next war—not on a large scale, anyhow."

He believes that it is necessary for English-speaking Americans to forget the "superficial" difference between them that has been a source of "irritation," that the unity seen in America and England since the war is downright astonishing.

Sunshine vs. Drizzle.

"The British and Americans differ superficially. They differ in temperament, and so the difference has aroused irritation on both sides. Their difference in temperament is largely caused by the climate. We have sunshine and the British have rain.

"This makes all the difference in the world because, even in January, the American gets up in sunshine, eats his breakfast in sunshine, goes out in the sunshine and greets strangers as if they were old friends. The British get up in a drizzle, eat breakfast in a drizzle and go out and greet old friends as if they were strangers.

"In fact, the difference between the British and American temperament can be expressed in one word—the American runs for Congress; the Englishman stands for Parliament. No Englishman ever runs; no American remains stationary.

"Thus, superficially, the American thinks that the British are cold and reserved, and the Englishman thinks the Americans will slap a bishop on the back."

Declaring that three things, "agriculture, the love of the sexes and the theater," always have continued during all wars, Professor Phelps said a lesson from the ancient Greeks proved that "It is very important that during this war we should keep up as far as possible the elements of civilization for which we are really fighting."

"The schools and colleges should continue to give a liberal education in addition to whatever military services they can render. It would be terrible if young men and women should be deprived of a general education. I believe also in maintaining as far as possible all the fine arts.

"School, college, amateur and professional sports should be maintained, and for two reasons—they are good for all participants and, as a relaxation, for older people in every locality. But, like the theater, they are extremely good for soldiers and sailors. There are, of necessity, an immense number of soldiers and sailors already in service in every part of the United States. They all have some spare time. It would be an absolute calamity to deprive them of the privilege of seeing professional baseball and of going to the theater and motion pictures."

No War Like This One.

"It is very interesting to see how much more united our country is in this war than it was in World War One. The same is true of Great Britain and Canada.

"The number of conscientious objectors is surprisingly few because it is clear to everybody that this war is an out and out fight between liberty and slavery.

"It is unlike any other war the world has ever seen. Napoleon conquered nearly all Europe, but every conquered nation went on with its own life and its own customs. In this war, conquest by Hitler means complete slavery."

Then he added:

"And we might consider not only the terrible injury that Hitler has done to other countries—for I think he has done more harm than any other person in the history of the world—but the fatal injury he has done to Germany which used to be the resort of people all over the world who wished to study things as different as music and chemistry. It was the Mecca of graduate students in every country.

"He has succeeded in his own country in turning Athens into Sparta, and Sparta contributed absolutely nothing to the world except physical courage, a quality common to all the races of mankind."

Professor Phelps expressed great admiration for the way President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill are conducting the war, and of the latter he said: "Never have so many British people owed so much to one man."

Asked what he thought lay in store for people of Axis nations if they are defeated, Professor Phelps termed it a "tremendously difficult" question to answer, but predicted that "within what will seem like a surprisingly short time we will be on frendly terms with those people."

U.S. Is Ready If Germans Use New Gas

Chief of Chemical Warfare Doubts, However, Any Radically Different Element Exists

Edgewood Arsenal, Md., Jan. 2.—(AP.)—The American Army, forewarned that Germany may have a new type of gas, is fully prepared, Major General William N. Porter, chief of chemical warfare, said today.

He expressed doubt, however, that any radically new gas would appear although he expected Germany to resort to gas warfare whenever the Nazi high command thought it advantageous.

The principal poison gases still are those used or developed during the last war, said Porter, such as mustard, phosgene, lewisite and chlorpicrin. Despite rumors of new gases developed by our enemies, the principal advances have been in manufacturing processes and methods of use. The protective devices against gas have been improved immeasurably, he added.

American soldiers going into combat now carry not only gas masks but two mustard-proof "Capes," or treated-fabric bags with clear plastic tops with which the soldier covers himself completely at the first sign of a mustard attack, remaining covered while he puts on his mask.

The masks themselves have been greatly improved so that they are lighter in weight and more efficient. Most of the manufacturing is of masks for the usual war gases, but Brigadier General William G. Kabrich, technical director here, noted that the center was careful to prepare for even the most remote possibilities. As an example, he cited carbon monoxide, completely unsuitable for a war gas. Monoxide difficulties appeared in other battle operations, however, and the center was prepared with a special attachment for the usual mask to filter the monoxide.

Allies On Victory Path–Boisson

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)—Governor General Pierre Boisson of French West Africa said today in a New Year's message broadcast over the Dakar radio that the Allied landings in North Africa had put France on the path to victory and that "tomorrow we will be on the firing line with all our forces."

"General Giraud, who has taken charge of our victory, has, just as much as anyone, the ardent desire to see us participate in the struggle," Boisson said in the broadcast, heard by the Federal Communications Commission.

Marines Ride Bucking Seas on 'Cruise' to Tourist Isles

Trip to Bahamas Proves Pleasure and 'Horror,' With Work at End

By SERGT. MAURICE E. MORAN
Marine Corps Combat Correspondent.

GREAT EXUMA, The Bahamas, Nov. 22 (Delayed).—A detachment of marines rode sea-going versions of bucking broncos from a southern seacoast city to join a garrison at this Caribbean base—and ran the gamut in experiences from the sublime to the ridiculous en route.

Most of the detachment were former "underground farmers" from Pennsylvania—coal miners to the uninitiate. Before they reached their destination they had ridden seas rough enough to try old salts. And they had suffered the miseries of sea-sickness like the veriest of landlubbers.

But they also interspersed in their buffetings by the sea visits to surroundings usually reserved for those with fat wallets.

JAN 3 1943

Pleasurable at First.

The first stages of the trip were a rare pleasure—travel in a special Pullman and eating excellent meals aboard train, followed by a few days of sight-seeing, "dating" and just plain idling in one of the most famous peacetime winter resort cities.

Then came the horrors. The marines were put aboard two small, fast United States Navy ships before dawn one morning. As the voyage started a brisk wind was blowing and the sea—even in the protected harbor—was kicking up a fuss.

"All I have to do is to show my face in a harbor and the wind starts howling," growled Chief Quartermaster Ralph G. Criswell of Los Angeles, a member of one of the ships' crews.

Before land was lost to sight, marines—who had been riding topside in high glee at the prospect of heading for their base at last—were stricken with the first qualms of seasickness.

Less than an hour later virtually all of the Leathernecks—with many of the crew members—were huddled in common misery below.

Seas Break Over Ships.

Great seas burst over the bows of the sturdy craft which pitched, bucked, rolled and "sunfished." After some six hours of dizzy bouncing on the heaving seas, the small "fleet" put in at Cat Key to ride out the wind.

Here the marines had their first taste of the trip's sublimity. Cat Key, in peacetime, is a paradise for the very wealthy. On this voyage it became paradise to a gang of young servicemen because it enabled them once more to plant their feet on solid ground.

"Mother earth was only a corny phrase to me," cracked one irrepressible Leatherneck, "but I know what it really means now."

At Cat Key the resident manager, R. J. McDonald, a handsome, thin-faced Scot, provided the marines, Navy officers and ships' crews with all the hospitality the island afforded.

Marine quarters were spacious, comfortable buildings once used to house peacetime employes. A small store provided the nucleus for morning chow and a well-equipped galley held the implements necessary for a warm mess.

Rough seas were encountered as the ships put out again. But the Leathernecks' stomachs were more inured to the "pitch and roll treatment," so the next leg of the trip to Nassau, New Providence, was relatively routine.

Find "Bit of America."

At Nassau, the marines found a "little bit of America" in an American-operated pier and a garrison of the United States Army military police. The Leathernecks were quartered with British and transported by the Americans.

The visit to Nassau—expected to last only overnight—developed into something longer when an inspection of one of the ships disclosed some damage from heavy seas. Consequently, marines had an opportunity to discover what magic made the island such a Mecca to peacetime American tourists.

Some of our boys saw the Duke and Duchess of Windsor at close hand in a movie house one night. Others were fortunate enough to run across two American Roman Catholic priests, Fathers Leonard and Bonaventure. They rounded up some boys and conducted them on a tour of the island. This included a stop at historic Fort Montague, where the then-infant United States Marine Corps set an always-winning tradition in their first invasion of foreign soil during the Revolutionary War.

After the interlude at Nassau, the marines set out on the final lap of the journey, some aboard the ship-shape vessel and others by air.

The groups arrived only a few hours apart at this base. The men were in excellent physical condition. The "honeymoon" was over. They were going to work. But, as one member of the detachment expressed it:

"That's what we came here to do."

TORPEDOED SEAMEN ADRIFT FOR 17 DAYS

Nineteen From British Vessel, Victims of Two Submarine Attacks, Reach Port

JAN 3 1943

SAVED BY MERCHANTMAN

Eleven Days in First Lifeboat, Six in Second as Rescue Ship Is Sunk by Raider

JAN 3 1943

AN EAST COAST PORT, Jan. 2 (AP)—Nineteen crewmen from a British merchant vessel, the survivors of two torpedoings, spent seventeen days in lifeboats in the South Atlantic Ocean far off the coast of South America last month.

They first entered a small boat early in the month when a submarine sent their medium-sized merchantman to the bottom with three torpedoes, two of which hit home.

After eleven days afloat in the tiny craft, they were picked up by another British merchantman—which fell victim to a submarine torpedo attack twenty-four hours later.

This time the original nineteen seamen were in lifeboats six days before they were taken aboard a Swedish vessel and landed at a South American port.

The captain of the first ship was taken prisoner aboard the submarine, and forty-two other members of the crew are missing—although most of them last were seen in lifeboats sailing toward land and may have been rescued already.

The second British ship sank in two minutes after one torpedo struck, and seventeen members of the crew of forty-five are missing and feared lost. The twenty-eight survivors plus the nineteen men from the first ship found room in two lifeboats.

2 British Cargo Ships Sunk

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Navy announced today that two British merchant vessels were torpedoed and sunk by enemy submarines in the Atlantic off the northern coast of South America last month. Survivors have landed at an east coast United States port.

One of the ships, a medium sized vessel, went down early in December and the second, a small ship, in mid-December.

Canada Sets Hospital Suite Apart for Birth Of Child to Juliana

JAN 3 1943

Ottawa, Jan. 2.—(AP.)—The hospital suite where Princess Juliana awaits the imminent birth of her third child was set apart from Canada by royal decree today and became, in legal effect, a bit of Holland.

The proclamation was published in a special edition of the Canada Gazette under authority of the War Measures Act.

Its purpose as set forth in the preamble is "to provide an extra-territorial character to any place in which the heir presumptive to the throne of the Netherlands may be confined and in which an heir to such throne may be born."

Allied Victory in Two Years Seen by Albert Bushnell Hart

Famous Teacher Warns of German Menace to Indies

JAN 3 1943

(Here are the war predictions and views of Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart, 88, internationally known professor of history emeritus at Harvard University, whose forecasts of great events in history have come true with almost uncanny regularity for almost a generation.)

By ALBERT BUSHNEL HART,
Written for the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 2.—It is my belief that the United States and her Allies will be victorious over Germany in two years. Japan will give up soon afterward, because with Germany out of the conflict, Japan wouldn't stick it out. The Nazis of Hitler still are our primary foes.

I say it will take two years to end this terrible war—a war in which we must be prepared to lose at least 1,000,000 men—because it will take that long to solidify the mastery of the seas we must have in order to make possible a large-scale Allied invasion of the Reich.

Our production of ships and planes is approaching the ideal peaks now, but it will take time to etch these gains into the picture of military strategy. It will take time to overcome the delays and bungling at the start. It will take time to overcome the production months that were lost when, before the war, America was torn between the forces who foresaw the danger and those who did not.

Japan Upset Time Table.

In January, 1941, before this country was attacked by Japan, I made the prediction that Great Britain would overcome Germany by 1943 if the United States gave "all out" aid in the form of supplies and materiel to Britain. And I still believe that would have eventuated—if Japan had not upset the time table and forced us to equip armies of our own as well as those of our Allies.

I would like to establish several points for discussion in this article and then I will elaborate on them.

1. Victory over Germany will come in two years, but meanwhile an attempt by Germany to invade this country by way of the West Indies is not out of the question.

2. We must strengthen our Latin American relations so there will be a favorable answer to the question that is all-important: "Will our southern neighbors stick?"

3. Italy is practically out of the war now—was scarcely ever in it wholeheartedly in fact—and we have little to fear from the anti-Allied factions of France.

4. Russia's ability to stick it out against the Germans will be one of the keys to eventual victory, but the United States should annex Canada in the peace settlement lest the Russians, in a post-war expansion of Siberia should have designs on an independent, or British-dominated, Canada.

5. The United States should take the lead in the post-war settlement and prevent any attempts at remaking the map of Europe. We should work toward the gathering of a "Congress of Nations"—not a permanent league—in which even the vanquished would have a right to state his case.

Not a Military Strategist.

In making such statements, it would appear that I'm setting myself up as a sage. Such is not the case. I'm an old man, a teacher in retirement. But I have taught perhaps 10,000 students. I have traveled over much of the world, and I believe I know the men and ways of many nations.

I am not a military strategist, but I am the son of a soldier and I'm the father of two soldier sons. I'm from a fighting family, and I believe in the American stock right down to the hem. Instead of making any claims at clairvoyance, I base my predictions on what will come to pass on my unswerving faith in the grit and perseverance of the American people. And I am encouraged by the fact that nowhere in America is there any strong, organized group that is against the war. Nowhere is there the plea, "Let us try to save ourselves by asking for peace now."

Instead, every man, woman and child burns with the understanding that unless we defeat Hitler and all he stands for we're headed for the slave gang.

To return to the points I outlined.

JAN 3 1943

It has been surprising to me that Germany has not attempted to seize one of the West Indies islands as a stepping stone toward invasion of the coast of Florida. Even though Hitler is occupied in Russia, and in Africa, we should not dismiss the possibility he might launch another adventure by way of the West Indies Islands where he might establish bases for bombers and troop-transport planes.

Nor should we ever lose sight of the need for impressing upon our neighbors in Central and South America that unless they actively resist Hitler they will become enslaved.

Hitler Is Losing His Grip.

We can count on a constantly lessening strength of Italy as a factor in the war. The Italian people as such never were wholeheartedly in the war. They are not allies of Germany. There is no such a thing as an ally of Germany—only slaves.

The same is true of conquered France.

And we can look to increasing unrest and dissatisfaction with Hitler among the real German people. I know the stock. I lived among them when I was a student in Germany many years ago. They are just like friendly families down in Maine.

Hitler is losing his grip. The surprising thing to me is that some of the German generals haven't got together and assassinated him. One factor may be that Hitler has engendered such deceit and distrust among his people that the generals can't even trust one another.

My predictions about Russia through the years have happily held true. When most of the world was pointing to Russo-German pacts and saying Hitler and Stalin would always share the same bread basket, I held to the belief that Russia always would be a stumbling block to Germany's aims of conquest.

But if Russia is victorious, as I confidently feel she will be, she may want new territory, and no one can foresee how far the Russians would go toward taking possession of Canada if it remained a dominion of war-weary Britain, or even became independent.

That is why I say the United States should seek to annex Canada so as to be in a better position to protect the country beyond its frontier not only from Russia which might have legitimate post-war aims, but even from a reborn and ambitious Germany.

U. S. Must Take Lead.

And on the point of a reborn Germany the United States can help prevent a reborn Germany from becoming a remilitarized Germany if this country takes the lead in shaping the post-war peace.

If we're realistic we must admit that the peace after the first World War failed because Germany was trampled on to the extent that the embers of unrest among the people were easily fanned into flame by Hitler.

Let the United States take the lead in calling a world congress of nations at which all the countries—the victorious and the vanquished—will have their say.

I don't say that Germany and Japan should be patted on the back for starting all this trouble, but I do say that after the military leaders are properly chastised the countries themselves should not be relegated to the slave column.

Territory that is known to be German speaking and German trained should be left to Germany, and territory that Japan had legitimately before she launched on her war adventures should be left to her.

Territorial expansion by any nation—except for protective purposes as I have outlined in the case of Canada—should not be a factor in the post-war peace. The accent should be on restoration of international trade and world-wide development of free, liberal government.

I don't say that monarchies should become a thing of the past, but I do say that the United States, after spending money and lives to lead to victory, should not play a part in putting kings on thrones who would seek to expand their own territories needlessly.

BERLIN (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS), JAN. 2—(AP)—THE BERLIN RADIO, QUOTING ADVICES FROM LA LINEA, SPAIN, REPORTED THAT A POWERFUL FORMATION OF BRITISH WARSHIPS HAD LEFT GIBRALTAR TODAY HEADED EASTWARD INTO THE MEDITERRANEAN.

JAN 3 1943

THE BROADCAST SAID THE FORMATION INCLUDED THE AIRCRAFT CARRIERS

FORMIDABLE AND FURIOUS, THE BATTLESHIPS NELSON AND RODNEY, TWO CRUISERS AND EIGHT DESTROYERS.

JAN 3 1943

(THE FORMIDABLE IS A 23,000-TON CRAFT COMMISSIONED IN AUGUST, 1939. THE 22,450-TON FURIOUS, ORIGINALLY DESIGNED AS A CRUISER, WAS COMMISSIONED IN 1916 AND REMODELED IN 1918 AND AGAIN IN 1925. THE NELSON AND RODNEY, BOTH 33,950-TON SHIPS, WERE COMMISSIONED IN BERLIN (FROM G[illegible] BROADCASTS), JAN.2-(AP)-THE QUESTION OF SHACKLING WAR PRISONERS IS STILL IN THE DIPLOMATIC DISCUSSION STAGE AND "IT SEEMS GERMANY HAS DEMANDED EFFECTIVE GUARANTEES THAT BRITISH ORDERS LIKE THOSE WHICH LED TO THE SHACKLING OF GERMAN WAR PRISONERS ON PREVIOUS OCCASIONS WILL NOT BE REPEATED," THE BERLIN RADIO SAID TONIGHT. IT BROADCAST A GERMAN TRANSOCEAN AGENCY DISPATCH.

(BRITAIN AND CANADA UNSHACKLED GERMAN PRISONERS LAST DEC. 12 AND NOTIFIED GERMANY TO THAT EFFECT THROUGH THE SWISS GOVERNMENT IN THE HOPE THAT BRITISH PRISONERS SHACKLED BY GERMANY WOULD ALSO BE FREED. A FEW DAYS LATER THE GERMANS SENT A NOTE TO BRITAIN VIA THE SWISS, BUT APPARENTLY THE NAZIS HAVE NOT YET UNBOUND THEIR PRISONERS).

LONDON, JAN 2-(AP)-ANETA, NETHERLANDS NEWS AGENCY, SAID TODAY THAT THE DEATH IN A GERMAN CONCENTRATION CAMP OF THE REV. "THERE IS NOTHING TO REPORT. THERE IS NO NEWS AVAILABLE FOR THE TIME BEING."

LONDON, JAN. 2-(AP)— THE GERMAN RADIO TODAY [illegible] THE SINKING OF [illegible] THE NAZI AUXILIARY CRUISER ATLANTIS BY THE BRITISH CRUISER DEVONSHIRE.

JAN 3 1943

THIS PROBABLY WAS THE SAME SINKING ANNOUNCED BY THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY DEC. 1. THE ADMIRALTY SAID THEN THAT THE DEVONSHIRE HAD SUNK AN ARMED GERMAN MERCHANT RAIDER IN THE SOUTH ATLANTIC NOV. 22, AND THAT "IT WAS NOT PRACTICABLE TO PICK UP SURVIVORS" BECAUSE A NAZI SUBMARINE WAS NEARBY. It did not identify the ship.

TODAY'S ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE GERMANS DID NOT LOCATE THE SINKING, BUT INDICATED IT HAD OCCURED IN THE SOUTH ATLANTIC.

30.24 — 39

THE ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCED THE DEVONSHIRE SHELLED AND THE GERMAN RAIDER, AND THAT ITS MAGAZINE EXPLODED SHORTLY AFTER THE CREW TOOK TO LIFEBOATS. THE DEVONSHIRE SUFFERED NO CASUALTIES OR DAMAGE.

First Night Lead Russian

By Henry C. Cassidy

JAN 3 1943

Moscow, Jan. 2-(AP)-The main German defense line on the entire Russian front from the Baltic Sea to the Caucasus mountains lay [illegible] today in the center with the capture of ancient Velikie Luki and the Red Army ground relentlessly forward in the south around Stalingrad and in the [illegible] Khalyuk Steppes.

JAN 3 1943

(The Germans denied Velikie Luki had fallen but admitted the loss of Kletsk, 170 miles south of Stalingrad, which they said was destroyed. They claimed 8,500 prisoners in the Rzhev area since Nov. 19. Russian attacks were reported repulsed in the eastern Caucasus, the Don area and around Lake Ilmen.)

The noon communique listed Russian successes on all the erupting fronts:

In the Middle Don sector where the Red Army is driving within 100 miles of Rostov, the Russians reported the capture of a populated place and 230 prisoners and the seizure of "favorable lines."

Northwest of Stalingrad "dozens of enemy trenches and dugouts" were overrun. Inside the ruined Volga city, the reduction of 39 blockhouses and dugouts was reported.

JAN 3 1943

To the southwest where the Russians are within 90 miles of the major rail city of Salsk in the Caucasus, the communique said a number of villages fell.

"The retreating Germans are abandoning large quantities of arms, raw material and supplies," the high command added.

Large enemy formations assaulted Russian positions on the Centra front opposite Moscow west of Rzhev without success. Counterattacks al were beaten back in the Velikie Luki area. Large quantities of arms were captured there yesterday when the German garrison was slaughtered when it stubbornly refused to yield.

JAN 3 1943

(The British radio said the Russians were continuing to advance in the Velikie Luki region and that the Germans were trying to break out of encircled Rzhev to the west. The Russians were said to have beaten back all these efforts.)

Velikie Luki is only 90 miles from Latvia and astride the major German railway supply line from Riga. Its capture placed the Russians at their westernmost point and formed a salient threatening enemy positi to the northeast around Leningrad and to the southeast around Smolensk.

JAN 3 1943

At one point, the Russians were within 60 miles of Smolensk, pivot of th main German line before Moscow. Velikie Luki also is on the Vitebsk-Lenin grad railway and has a vast airport.

Despite the series of catastrophic blows, the German army showed no signs of making decisive action to halt the Russian avalanche.

It was the second time the Russians had recaptured Velikie Luki. During the first summer of war, the Germans entered the town and held i for several days but were driven out by infantry from the Urals which overpowered superior numbers of Germans. It was retaken by the Germans and held for more than a year. In ancient times, Velikie Luki was a Muscovite fortress often in the path of invasion.

Moscow, Jan. 2-(AP)-Gen. Gregory K. Zhukov, hero of the battle for Moscow last year, was disclosed yesterday to have been the commanding general in the triumphant Stalingrad offensive.

When he replaced Marshal Semeon Timoshenko, previously reporte as commander in the south, was not reported. Nor was the present standing of Timoshenko clarified although it is believed that he still occupies an important post somewhere in the vast soviet.

JAN 3 1943

Zhukov as vice commissar of defense is second only to Stalin as a Russian military leader. He was last mentioned in dispatches during the summer when he led an offensive against Rzhev opposite Moscow.

With a British Armored patrol west of Sirte, Tripolitania, JAN 3 1943

Dec. 29-(Delayed)-(AP)-A desolate loneliness settled over no man's land tonight in this vast expanse of desert waste which lies between the British advanced columns and the rearguard of Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating Africa Corps.

It is a pitiless land of rocky plateaus, gashed by deep wide wadis and soft sand. It is a place of frightening distances and only a few patches of green to soften the harsh brown sand and stone.

I got a look at this no man's land today from atop a lunging, bucking American-made Honey tank, scouting ahead of the advance columns of the British Eighth Army to check on the disposition of the Germans.

There has been a lot of talk of the way Rommel personally reconnoiters enemy positions, but little has ever been said about the British generals who do the same thing. I saw one today who not only did his own scouting but he spearheaded the entire British advance in this sector.

JAN 3 1943

Every bone and muscle in my body aches. My arms feel as though they [illegible] been pulled from their sockets. My backbone is telescoped into the back of my neck. That is what happens when one hangs onto a tank lunging across this country.

We crossed in a sweep that led us almost to within sight of the German defenses. The general and his tank crews took some of the same punishment but when he climbed from his tank at the end of the day's run, he appeared fresh despite a dust coating from head to foot. His men didn't think he had done anything unusual because they frequently had banged about the country with their general.

JAN 3 1943

Our tour took us within sight of Bzerat El Hsun, 200 miles west of El Agheila and about 190 miles short of Tripoli. We traveled the coastal road. German defenses run from a point about ten miles [illegible] north of Bzerat El Hsun in a southwesterly direction along a Wadi. Their guns shell patrols venturing too close.

and his aide were in one tank and Edmund [illegible] and I were in another.

There is no such thing as [illegible] a road in the desert. Tanks set out on compass bearings and make their own roads. There were signs that Jerry was in the sands as we passed tank and truck tracks. The tank commanders scanned the horizon continually.

JAN 3 1943

Once we roared over a ridge and there in front of us was an armored car. Our tank churned to a halt. The crews eyed each other through binoculars. It turned out to be one of our cars or reconnaissance. The officers exchanged information and we took off on another track.

Churning over the wadis, we passed two arab encampments and plowed through their barley patches scratched in the sand. The Arabs ran from their tents to wave.

JAN 3 1943

Shortly after noon, we stopped to brew tea while the general listened to radio reports of other scouting units. Then we set out for home. I was hanging on to keep from being plothed out by this time and was weaker than I had ever been before. The encampment was a welcome sight.

I climbed stiffly from the tank when it halted. The general jumped out of his briskly.

"Sorry I couldn't show you more action," he said. "But some days are rather dull."

NEW DELHI--FIRST AID PLANES ADMINISTERED TO X X HERE SHORTLY.

MAJOR PAUL DROZ OF (1363 HARRISON AVE.) SALT LAKE CITY LOST ONE OF THE FIGHTER PILOTS FROM HIS SQUADRON, LIEUT. WILLARD S. WENDT, OF WEST POINT, NEB., IN THE MILITARY BOMBING OPERATION NEW YEAR'S EVE, BUT WENT BACK AND PICKED HIM UP, FLYING AN UNARMED LIGHT TRAINING PLANE, ON NEW YEAR'S DAY.

JAN 3 1943

WENDT'S P-40 FIGHTER WAS DISABLED SO HE BAILED OUT TO SPEND HIS TWENTY-THIRD BIRTHDAY IN AN AREA BORDERING JAPANESE-HELD TERRITORY.

HIS SQUADRON MATES NOTED HIS POSITION AND DROPPED HIM TINS OF FOOD. NEXT DAY DROZ TOOK OFF IN AN UNARMED PRIMARY TRAINER, ACCOMPANIED BY A FORCE OF FIGHTERS.

HE FOUND WENDT HAD USED HIS PARACHUTE TO MARK THE ONLY POSSIBLE LANDING STRIP, A 300-FOOT STRETCH ALONG A RIVER BEACH. DROZ SET THE LIGHT PLANE DOWN HEAVILY AND TOOK ABOARD THE UNINJURED WENDT.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: WES GALLAGHER HAS HAD NUMEROUS EXCITING ADVENTURES DURING HIS TRAVELS THROUGH 16 COUNTRIES AS AN ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT BUT THEY WERE NOTHING LIKE RIDING

JAN 3 1943

A FLYING FORTRESS IN THE SECOND BIGGEST RAID OF THE WAR ON TUNIS, ABOUT WHICH HE TELLS IN THE FOLLOWING DISPATCH. HE WAS FRANKLY SCARED, BUT HIS NOTES INDICATE HE THOROUGHLY ENJOYED THE SHOW. GALLAGHER, BORN IN SAN FRANCISCO, FORMERLY WORKED IN WATSONVILLE, CALIF., AND ROCHESTER, BUFFALO AND ALBANY, N.Y., BEFORE JOINING THE AP CABLE DESK STAFF IN NEW YORK. HE IS 31 YEARS OLD. HE LANDED WITH THE FIRST AMERICANS IN NORTH AFRICA LAST NOVEMBER AND HAS BEEN COVERING THAT CAMPAIGN SINCE THEN.)

BY WES GALLAGHER

IN A FLYING FORTRESS ON A RAID ON TUNIS, JAN. 2-(AP)-AS THESE NOTES ARE BEING SCRIBBLED TODAY IN A SHAKY HAND, NAZI FLAK IS RIPPING HOLES IN OUR FORTRESS, A 50 CALIBER MACHINE GUN SIX INCHES AWAY IS CHATTERING AT ATTACKING MESSERSCHMITT 109S AND, THOUSANDS OF FEET BELOW, BOMBS ARE BURSTING AROUND NAZI SHIPPING IN THE SECOND BIGGEST RAID OF THE WAR BY AMERICAN PLANES ON THE DOCKS AND HARBOR INSTALLATIONS OF TUNIS.

I AM LEARNING THE HARD WAY WHY THE "DAISY CHAIN" OVER TUNIS AND BIZERTE IS ONE OF THE HOTTEST AIR SPOTS IN THE WORLD TODAY FOR ALLIED BOMBERS.

IN A FLYING FORTRESS ON A RAID ON TUNIS--FIRST ADD GALLAGHERS RAID X X X ALLIED BOMBERS.

THIS IS THE STORY OF ONE OF THE HEAVIEST RAIDS OF THE NORTH AFRICAN CAMPAIGN.

(GALLAGHER LATER NOTED THAT WHEN THE DAY WAS OVER SEVERAL MESSERSCHMITT 109S WERE TWISTED MASSES OF WRECKAGE--VICTIMS OF THE GUNS CHATTERING NEARBY. OTHERS FELL BEFORE THE TWISTING AND

30.24 —47

TURNING P38S WHICH WERE DOGFIGHTING ABOUT 4,000 FEET BELOW HIM AS HE WROTE HIS STORY OVER TUNIS.)

OUR CREW CONSISTS OF MAJOR JEAN BYERLY OF ESTES PARK, COLO., VETERAN ARMY FLIER WHO IS LEADING THIS RAID; CO-PILOT JAMES HAIR, WHO WON THE AIR MEDAL FOR HIS EXPLOITS IN ENGLAND AND WHO IS A FORMER TEXAS FOOTBALL PLAYER (HOMETOWN NOT GIVEN.).

IN THE BOMBARDIER'S COMPARTMENT ARE LIEUT. FRANK M. LOONEY, 26, OF PARIS, TEXAS, A FORMER TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEER, WHO IS THE BOMBARDIER, AND LIEUT. ARTHUR L.MACADAMS, 24, OF PONTIAC, MICH., WHO IS A FORMER SCHOOL TEACHER AND NOW NAVIGATOR.

JAN 3 1943

IN THE BACK ARE LOUIS F.PATRIQUIN, 34, OF MIDDLETOWN, CALIF., WHO WAS AWARDED THE PURPLE HEART FOR HIS PART IN RAIDS OVER EUROPE, AND THE RADIO OPERATOR-GUNNER, WILLIAM J.GARRETT, 24, OF YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO, IN WHOSE COMPARTMENT I AM RIDING.

IN A FLYING FORTRESS ON A RAID ON TUNIS--SECOND ADD GALLAGHER'S RAID X X X AM RIDING.

THE NAME OF THE YOUNGEST MAN OF OUR CREW AT THE WAIST GUN I CANNOT TELL NOW BECAUSE HE IS A CASUALTY, BUT THIS 20-YEAR-OLD BOY IS ONE OF THE HEROES OF OUR FLIGHT. ALTHOUGH WOUNDED EARLY IN THE BATTLE, HE FOUGHT ON.

JAN 3 1943

SGT. ANDREW SEMAN, 25, OF UNIONTOWN, PENNA., ANOTHER PURPLE HEART WINNER, IS IN THE BALL TURRET, WHILE SGT. DOUGLAS J.UPTON, 31, OF GRASS VALLEY, CALIF., A CRACK SHOT, IS IN THE TAIL TURRET.

IT ADDED NOTHING TO MY PEACE OF MIND AS I ENTERED THE FORTRESS, WHICH THE BOYS CALL "HOLY JOE" TO KNOW THAT THE FLIERS SAY THERE IS MORE FLAK OVER TUNIS AND BIZERTE THAN THERE EVER HAS BEEN AT BREST OR ANY PLACE IN EUROPE.

THAT RUN IS CALLED "DAISY CHAIN" BECAUSE OF THE ALLEY OF FLAK THE AXIS CAN PUT UP. THE CONCENTRATED AREA HAS ENABLED THE GERMANS TO INSTALL PLENTY OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS IN PROTECTION OF THE HARBORS WHICH ARE THEIR MAIN SUPPLY PORTS.

AS I CLIMBED INTO THE FORTRESS, I LEANED OUT AND WISECRACKED TO THE GROUND CREW "DON'T LET ANY OF THOSE JUNKERS 88S GET YOU WHILE WE ARE GONE."

JAN 3 1943

AS WE LEFT, WE CIRCLED THE FIELD IN THE SUNLIGHT WHILE THE FORTRESSES ON THE RAID FLEW INTO FORMATION.

BY THE TIME I HAD GOT ON MY FLYING CLOTHES, THE INTERCOMMUNICATION TELEPHONE AND OXYGEN TANK, I LOOKED LIKE SOMEONE FROM MARS.

IN A FLYING FORTRESS ON A RAID ON TUNIS--THIRD ADD GALLAGHER'S RAID X X X FROM MARS.

A FORTRESS IS NOT A PLACE FOR A TALL MAN AND THERE WERE ANXIOUS MOMENTS IN ME WHILE THE CREW STIRRED ABOUT TRYING TO FIND A PARACHUTE.

AS WE LEFT THE GROUND I SAT DOWN ON THE RADIO OPERATOR'S CHAIR TO MAKE SOME NOTES.

JAN 3 1943

I WAS REMINDED OF THE BUSINESS AT HAND WHEN GARRETT STARTED MANEUVERING THE 50 CALIBER GUNS INTO POSITION AND SEMAN CLIMBED DOWN INTO THE BALL TURRET.

I COULD SEE THE OTHER FORTRESSES JOINING WING TO WING WITH US.

AS WE SPED INTO TUNISIA OVER MOUNTAINS WHERE A FEW DAYS BEFORE I HAD TROD IN MUD TOWARD THE FRONT LINES, DUCKING INTO DITCHES EVERY TIME I SAW AN AIRPLANE, I TOOK A PICTURE AND THEN PLOUGHED INTO THE PILOTS' COCKPIT WHERE BYERLY AND HAIR SAT AS NONCHALANTLY AS THOUGH THEY WERE GOING TO THE MOVIES.

IT WAS DECIDEDLY COMFORTING TO SEE SO NEAR THE GUNS OF THE OTHER FORTRESSES BULGING FROM DIFFERENT ANGLES. IT WAS ALSO COMFORTING TO KNOW THAT "HOLY JOE" HAD BEEN ON 17 MISSIONS AND HAD RETURNED EVERY TIME.

WE CLIMBED INTO THE HIGHER ALTITUDES AND GARRETT, WHO IS SOMEWHAT MY JUNIOR, WAS LOOKING AFTER ME LIKE A HEN AFTER HER CHICKENS. WE FASTENED ON MY OXYGEN MASK AS WE HIT THE HIGHER AIR.

I SAW A RED GAUGE ON THE WALL AND ASKED GARRETT WHAT IT WAS.

HE REPLIED "IT WAS A THERMOSTAT".

JAN 3 1943

I DID NOT ASK ANY MORE QUESTIONS.

AS WE NEARED THE TARGET I STUCK MY HEAD OUT. AND I SUDDENLY DECIDED TO PULL IN MY HEAD. I DISCOVERED I WAS STANDING ON MY OWN OXYGEN TUBE.

GARRETT GRINNED AT THAT AND THEN TURNED HIS EYES TOWARD THE SKY FOR FIGHTERS.

IN A FLYING FORTRESS ON A RAID ON TUNIS--FOURTH ADD GALLAGHER'S RAID X X X FOR FIGHTERS.

I SAT DOWN A MOMENT AND THEN LOOKED UP AND SAW BLACK PUFFS AROUND THE FORTRESSES AT THE RIGHT. I JUMPED UP AND TRIED TO GET A PICTURE OF THE FLAK.

WHOOSH--AND I SAW A BLACK BALL HURTLE BY OUR PLANE.

I DUCKED DOWN AND THEN POPPED UP AGAIN FOR THE NEXT PICTURE ATTEMPT AND THERE WERE TWO MORE WHOOSHES AND BALLS OF SMOKE.

I WAS BREATHING MORE RAPIDLY AND I SAT DOWN IN THE RADIO CHAIR WITH COLD FEET LITERALLY AND FIGURATIVELY.

THEN I SAW A COUPLE OF THOUSAND FEET ABOVE US ON THE RIGHT GERMAN FIGHTERS COMING DOWN IN A TWISTING DIVE ON OUR FORMATION.

I JUMPED AGAIN AND POINTED WITH MY THUMB TO GARRETT, AND HIS MACHINE GUN RATTLED IN A PROLONGED BURST WHILE I SAT DOWN IN THE RADIO CHAIR AND PRETENDED TO LOOK OUT THE WINDOW.

BUT I REALLY WAS DISCONCERTED WHEN A BURST OF MACHINE GUN BULLETS CAME RIPPING IN AT ME.

(GALLAGHER WROTE LATER THAT WHEN HE GOT BACK TO THE BASE HE FOUND HIS NOTES WERE IN SUCH BAD SHAPE WHILE OVER TUNIS THAT THEY WERE HARDLY READABLE AND HE ATTRIBUTED IT TO JUST PURE FRIGHT.)

MEANWHILE THE BOMBS WERE DROPPED AND THE PLANE, WHICH WAS UNDER A BURST OF FLAK, GAVE ANOTHER LURCH.

JAN 3 1943.

I COULD SEE THE GUNS GOING FULL BLAST.

I COULD SEE BLOOD ON A BOY'S FINGER. THE FLOOR WAS COVERED WITH SHELLS.

WE HAD BEEN IN A 45 SECOND BOMBING RUN AND I BEGAN TO WONDER IF WE WOULD EVER GET OUT OF IT. BUT WE MADE IT AND SUDDENLY GARRETT LEANED BACK AND SMILED AND SAID THAT WE WERE OUT OF THE "DAISY CHAIN."

WE SETTLED BACK AND I LOOKED TO THE REAR AND SAW THE OTHER ELEMENTS OF THE FORMATION ENVELOPED IN PUFFS OF SMOKE.

AS WE LOOKED BACK WE SAW THE WAIST GUNNER SITTING ON THE FLOOR AND FOR THE FIRST TIME WE REALLY KNEW HE WAS HURT.

WE DASHED BACK THROUGH THE PLANE AND OUR WAIST GUNNER, WHO IS ALMOST FRESH OUT OF HIGH SCHOOL, MET US WITH A GRIN, ALTHOUGH HE WAS BLOOD SOAKED.

JAN 3 1943

HE POINTED TO A HOLE IN THE FLOOR AND FOR THE FIRST TIME I SAW A FLAK HOLE. ABOVE US WAS A BIG HOLE FOUR INCHES WIDE.

THE GUNNER HAD BEEN HIT EARLY IN THE BATTLE.

AS WE KNELT BESIDE HIM I SAID "YOU WERE HIT AND KEPT ON FIGHTING?"

"WHY NOT," HE REPLIED. JAN 3 1943

GARRETT AND I HELPED HIM INTO THE BOMBARDIER'S COMPARTMENT WHERE IT WAS WARM AND AS WE WERE APPARENTLY OUT OF RANGE OF THE FIGHTERS WE CLIMBED IN BESIDE HIM FOR A BULL SESSION, THOUSANDS OF FEET ABOVE THE SNOW-CAPPED MOUNTAINS.

AS WE LANDED ON THE FIELD WITH THE OTHER FORTRESSES FOLLOWING US IN, IT WAS DISCOVERED FIVE PLANES WERE MISSING.

AT THE SAME TIME, PROGRESS IS BEING MADE IN SORTING OUT AND DETERMINING THE DISPOSITION OF MANY THOUSANDS OF REFUGEES WHO FLOCKED INTO NORTH AFRICA AS A RESULT OF THE NAZI CONQUEST OF MUCH OF EUROPE.

THERE ARE MANY HUNDREDS OF MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN LITERALLY WITHOUT A COUNTRY UNTIL HITLER'S HOLD ON THEIR HOMELANDS IS BROKEN.

SO FAR, PROPOSALS TO TRANSPLANT SOME OF THESE REFUGEES TO COUNTRIES OF THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE HAVE YIELDED NO TANGIBLE RESULTS. CONSEQUENTLY A MAJORITY OF THOSE HELD IN CONCENTRATION CAMPS AS LONG AS FRENCH AFRICA WAS UNDER THE HEEL OF THE GERMAN-ITALIAN ARMISTICE COMMISSION ARE LIKELY TO REMAIN HERE UNTIL THE WAR'S END.

SHALL BE FAVORING ONE OF HIS CHARACTERISTICS IF THE ACCOMPLISHMENT COMES FIRST.

JAN 3 1943

PERHAPS WE MIGHT BEGIN BY SAYING THAT INDIA NOT ONLY IS AMONG THE MAJOR ALLIED ARSENALS BUT MAY WELL BECOME THE MOST IMPORTANT BASE FOR OPERATIONS AGAINST THE JAPS.

DON'T FORGET THAT ONCE HERR HITLER HAS BEEN HUNG, DRAWN AND QUARTERED THE UNITED NATIONS WILL CUT LOOSE WITH ALL THEIR POWER AGAINST NIPPON.

WHEN THAT HAPPENS IT IS QUITE LIKELY, AS I SEE IT, THAT A TORNADO OF AIRPOWER WILL SWEEP FROM INDIA THROUGH BURMA ACROSS CHINA AND RIP THE MIKADO'S LITTLE ISLAND UP BY THE ROOTS. THAT RATHER FIXES THE STATUS OF INDIA IN THE ALLIED SCHEME OF THINGS.

AS LATE AS LAST SPRING THIS GREAT SUB-CONTINENT, WHICH HANGS DOWN INTO THE STORMY INDIAN OCEAN FROM THE HIMALAYAN "ROOF OF THE WORLD" LIKE A GIANT HEART, LAY VIRTUALLY UNPROTECTED AGAINST AN ATTACK BY THE JAPS IN THEIR TRIUMPHANT WESTWARD DRIVE.

HAD THE MIKADO'S BARBARIANS DESIRED TO EXTEND THEIR CONQUEST TO INDIA AT THAT MOMENT, THEY PROBABLY COULD HAVE RAPED AND MASSACRED THEIR USUAL WAY THROUGH THE DEFENSELESS COUNTRY UNTIL ITS VERY VASTNESS HALTED THEM THROUGH OVER-EXTENDED COMMUNICATIONS.

CERTAINLY THE LONG VULNERABLE EASTERN COASTLINE LACKED PROTECTION BY LAND, SEA AND AIR.

JAN 3 1943

INDIA, LIKE A LOT OF OTHERS, HAD BEEN CAUGHT UNPREPARED. BUT NIPPON DIDN'T STRIKE, PROBABLY BECAUSE SHE ALREADY HAD OVERRUN ALL THE TERRITORY SHE COULD CONSOLIDATE. NOW AN ATTEMPT AT INVASION WOULD BE A TERRIBLE RISK FOR THIS COUNTRY HAS BEEN SOUNDLY ARMED.

INDIA'S CHIEF WEAPON OF BOTH DEFENSE AND OFFENSE AT THIS JUNCTURE IS THE ROYAL AIR FORCE AND ITS YOUNG COLLEAGUE, THE INDIAN AIR FORCE, WHICH MUSHROOMED UP HERE FROM NOTHING TO A TOWER OF STRENGTH. IT WOULD BE ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO OVEREMPHASIZE THE IMPORTANCE OF THIS FIGHTING ARM. AND HERE I MUST REPEAT WHAT I SAID BEFORE--THAT OUR TENTH AMERICAN AIR FORCE IS DOING A MAGNIFICENT JOB IN COOPERATION WITH OUR BRITISH COLLEAGUES.

JAN 3 1943

THIS COORDINATED AIR FLEET HAS A STRIKING POWER WHICH CAN PREVENT THE JAPS FROM SENDING A SEA-BORNE EXPEDITION ACROSS THE BAY OF BENGAL BUT IT CAN DO FAR MORE THAN THAT FOR IT HAS ACHIEVED SUPERIORITY AND HAS DESERTED THE DEFENSIVE FOR THE OFFENSIVE. THE NIPPONESE DEFENSES IN BURMA ALREADY ARE BEING SOFTENED UP BY BOMBING IN PREPARATION FOR THE BIG ALLIED DRIVE WHICH WILL COME IN DUE COURSE.

WITH THAT BACKGROUND IT WOULD SEEM TO BE TIME FOR THE DELAYED ENTRANCE OF THE MAN. MEET AIR CHIEF MARSHAL SIR RICHARD PEIRSE, AIR OFFICER COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE AIR FORCES IN INDIA.

THAT IS A BIG BATTLE TO CARRY AROUND BUT THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF HAS THE STATURE. HE IS A BIG CHAP, BOTH PHYSICALLY AND MENTALLY, AND IS AMONG THAT TOP FLIGHT OF BRITISH AIR CHIEFS WHO CAN BE COUNTED NEATLY ON THE FINGERS OF ONE HAND.

I FOUND HIM TEMPORARILY BEREFT OF HIS WINGS AND PERFORMING SOME LANDSMAN'S JOB AT HIS DESK. I CAN'T SAY HE LOOKED OUT OF PLACE IN HIS SURROUNDINGS BUT MY FIRST IMPRESSION WAS THAT HE BELONGED IN THE GREAT OUTDOORS IN THE MIDST OF PLENTY OF ACTION.

JAN 3 1943

THE AIR CHIEF MARSHAL IS A TALL, WELL SET UP, RANGY INDIVIDUAL WHO WEARS THE TAN OF MANY SUNS. AS I SHOOK HANDS WITH HIM IT PASSED THROUGH MY MIND THAT IF HE WEREN'T AN ADVENTUROUS AIRMAN HE LIKELY

WOULD BE AMONG THE COSSACKS RIDING A WILD HORSE LIKE THE DEVIL.

OF COURSE THAT IS A FANCIFUL IDEA BUT LONG EXPERIENCE HAS TAUGHT ME THAT THESE ODD FLASHES GENERALLY REGISTER THE TRUTH. THIS ONE MEANT I HAD ENCOUNTERED AN INDIVIDUAL WHOSE TEMPERAMENT DEMANDED INTENSE ACTIVITY.

JAN 3 1943

LATER I WAS INFORMED THIS WAS TRUE AND IT WAS CITED THAT HE STILL FLIES HIS OWN SHIP JUST AS HE DID 30 YEARS AGO.

THE MARSHAL WAS BORN INTO THE ROYAL NAVY. HIS FATHER WAS AN ADMIRAL AND FAMILY TRADITION LANDED YOUNG RICHARD ON THE SEA IN 1909. HE IS 50 NOW AND LOOKS ABOUT 45 AND YOU CAN FIGURE THE REST OUT FOR YOURSELF. WHEN FLYING WAS STILL IN ITS INFANCY PEIRSE DECIDED HE WANTED TO BE AN AIRMAN AND ON FORMATION OF THE ROYAL FLYING CORPS IN 1912 HE JOINED IT, THUS BECOMING ONE OF THE FIRST OFFICERS IN THE SERVICE WHICH DEVELOPED INTO THE ROYAL AIR FORCE.

THE [illegible] DECORATIONS FOR DARING AND SKILL. HE ROSE RAPIDLY UNTIL, IN THIS WAR, HE HAS HELD SEVERAL TOP POSITIONS IN THE AIR FORCE.

JAN 3 1943

HE WAS KNIGHTED IN 1940 AND IN THE SAME YEAR BECAME CHIEF OF BRITAIN'S GREAT BOMBER FORCE. A YEAR AGO HE CAME TO INDIA TO TACKLE THE ORGANIZATION OF ONE OF THE WORLD'S KEY AIR FORCES.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE ROYAL AIR FORCE HERE HAS BEEN A TASK CALLING FOR SUPREME ORGANIZING SKILL AND GREAT DRIVING FORCE. AT THE OUTSET THERE WAS OF COURSE A LACK OF AIRPLANES SINCE BRITAIN AND AMERICA WEREN'T PRODUCING ENOUGH FOR ALL DEMANDS. OTHER NECESSITIES WERE LACKING.

THIS SUPPLY PROBLEM WAS COMPLICATED BY THE SEVERANCE OF THE MEDITERRANEAN ROUTE WHICH FORCED BOTH BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES TO SEND THEIR SHIPS OVER THE LONG HAUL AROUND SOUTH AFRICA. IT WILL BE A GODSEND TO INDIA WHEN THE AXIS FINALLY IS DRIVEN INTO THE SEA FROM NORTH AFRICA AND THE SHIPPING LANES ARE REOPENED.

ONE OF THE GREATEST ACHIEVEMENTS HAS BEEN THE CREATION OF INNUMERABLE FLYING FIELDS AND BASES FOR THE MAINTENANCE OF SUPPLY THROUGHOUT THIS HUGE EMPIRE. PEOPLE SOMETIMES FORGET THAT NO MATTER HOW GREAT A FLEET OF PLANES YOU HAVE THEY ARE USELESS WITHOUT BASES.

JAN 3 1943

INDIA IS NOW PROVIDED WITH A STRATEGIC NETWORK WHICH PERMITS OF QUICK TRANSFERENCE OF AIR STRENGTH FROM ONE PLACE TO ANOTHER.

NATURALLY, WITH INCREASED PRODUCTION IN AMERICA AND BRITAIN, INDIA'S AIR FLEET HAS GROWN GREATLY. HOW BIG IS IT? WELL, IT'S ALL RIGHT FOR YOU TO ASK WHILE THE MARSHAL IS STANDING BESIDE THAT BIG AIR MAP OF INDIA. HOWEVER, THE ANSWER WILL HAVE TO BE ALONG THE LINE OF ABE LINCOLN'S REPLY TO THE QUESTION OF HOW LONG A MAN'S LEGS OUGHT TO BE. ABE OPINED THEY SHOULD REACH FROM THE BODY TO THE GROUND.

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN AIR FORCE IS BIG ENOUGH TO DO THE VASTLY IMPORTANT DEFENSIVE JOB TO WHICH IT HAS BEEN ASSIGNED. IT IS ALSO BIG ENOUGH TO TAKE ON THE ADDITIONAL OFFENSIVE WORK OF SOFTENING UP THE JAPS FOR THAT BIG PUSH WHICH SOME DAY WILL BE LAUNCHED BY THE UNITED NATIONS. AND IT WILL GET BIGGER ALL THE TIME.

YOU CAN WHOLEHEARTEDLY WISH A MAN LIKE AIR CHIEF MARSHAL PEIRSE A LOT OF LUCK WHEN YOU SEE SUCH A PRODUCT OF HIS SKILL. THAT'S WHAT I DID TOO WHEN HE ESCORTED ME TO THE DOOR TO SAY GOODBYE.

RUSSIANS TAKE MOZDOK IN CAUCASUS, TURNING BACK NAZI THREAT TO OIL AREA; ALLIES DOWN 28 PLANES OVER AFRICA

Mozdok Falls To Russians

Retaken With Malgobek, After Sudden Blow Is Delivered.

GERMAN HOPE OF OIL ENDED

Fanning Out West of Velikie Luki Reds Cut Leningrad-Vitebsk R. R.—Hitler Lie Nailed.

MOSCOW, Monday, Jan. 4—(AP)—The capture of the important town and railway station of Mozdok deep in the Caucasus and the nearby town of Malgobek by the Russian Army in a surprise thrust against the Germans was announced early today by the Soviet Bureau of Information.

A Tass dispatch reported that the Bureau of Information issued the following brief special communique:

A Surprise Thrust

"On January third, our advancing troops captured by a surprise thrust the town and railway station of Mosdok, also the town of Malgobek."

Mozdok is 60 miles northwest of Grozny, a Caucasus oil center, and Malgobek is 15 miles southeast of Mozdok

(The regular Soviet midnigh communique announced).

Reds Cut Railroad

Earlier dispatches from the battle front said the Red Army, fanning out west and north of recaptured Velikie Luki, cut the Leningrad - Vitebsk railway yesterday and pushed 14 miles along the Moscow-Riga line to Novosokolniki to a point 70 miles from the Latvian border.

The two railways, vital to the Germans in supplying their siege army at Leningrad and the whole central front pivoted on Smolensk, cross at Novosokolniki.

The continued advance widened the breach in the main German defense lines from the Baltic Sea to the Caucasus.

Germans Deny Capture

(The Germans again denied that Velikie Luki had fallen, saying fresh Russian attacks failed. The communique said German attacks west of Kaluga, 90 miles southwest of Moscow, had overrun communique as heard in London by the Soviet Monitor there repeated the announcement that the two places had been taken and declared the Russian armies were advancing in their offensives in the area of the middle Don, southwest and south of Stalingrad, on the central front and in the southern Caucasus.

JAN 4 1943

(The fall of Mozdok to the Russians represents an apparent hurling back of the German thrust toward the Grozny oil fields The Germans reached the Mozdok area last August but never were able to advance much beyond it to reach the real oil riches of the Caucasus.

(The midnight communique also said that the Axis enemy was dislodged from several inhabited localities in the Caucasus and 500 Germans were killed.

(Of the fighting on the central front, the midnight communique reported that the Russians occupied a fortified and inhabited locality southwest of Velikie Luki after breaking down "fierce resistance."

(The Germans are rushing reinforcements to the area southwest and south of Stalingrad to meet the advancing Russians, the 95 strongholds and pillboxes. "Heavy defense struggles" were reported in the Don area and Russian attacks were said to have been repulsed on the entire front).

The midday communiue simultaneously said that a strongly-defended German defense base north of Velikie Luki was occupied. The Russian drive was reported pressed along a 30-mile front north of that ancient fortress, one of the strongest German hedgehog positions on the central front.

Pursuit of Enemy Continues

Red army forces driving southwest of Stalingrad continued their pursuit of the enemy 27 miles beyond Kotelnikovski on the Stalingrad-Tithoretsk railway across the Caucasus. The towns of Duboyskoye and Remontnaya, occupied yesterday, lie close together 117 miles from the ruined Volga city.

Red Star said the enemy attempted to make a stand at a waterline, perhaps the Sal river which flows into the Don. The Germans launched a number of counterattacks with tanks, but resistance was declared shattered by the fast moving Red Army and artillery. Dubovskoye was taken in a street battle after a flank attack, the dispatch said, and the Germans retreated to Remontnaya, which in turn was captured.

A long stretch of the Tikhoretsk railway farther southwest already is outflanked by the Soviet advance guard which had passed the recaptured Kalmyck capital of Elista.

Advance in Nalchik Area

The noon communique told of a continued advance southeast of Nalchik in the central Caucasus, south and southwest of Stalingrad, adding:

"Red Army men annihilate enemy covering detachments and successfully advance. In one sector our units routed the remnants of a Rumanian division and surrounded the German garrison of a populated place."

A number of popuplated places were reported taken in the middle Don area, where the Soviets are within 100 miles of Rostov.

The cutting of the Leningrad-Vitebsk rilway 274 miles northwest of Moscow raised Russian hopes that the long siege of Leningrad might be lifted. A secondary railway runs through Pskov, 130 miles northwest of Velikie Luki while a third extends througha narrow strip from Estonia north of Lake Chudskoye along the Gulf of Finland.

Leningrad was undergoing its second Winter of siege in a great epic of the war rivalling in drama in battles for Stalingrad and Moscow.

Central Offense Slows Up

The progress of the ceneral front offensive was admittedly slow because the Germans had been dug in for more than a year behind a formidable system of fortifications including concrete pillboxes, earth eastworks, trenches, anti-tank traps and firepoints manned by some of their best troops.

JAN 4 1943

The German 83d infantry division was said to have been trapped inside Velikie Luki, while its commander, Gen! Sched, escaped with staff west to Novosokolniki. Six enemy garrisons were also reported encircled and crushed southwest of Velikie Luki.

The Nazi command put an S. S. cavalry division and several tank divisions into the battle, but failed to check the Soviet avalanche, dispatches said.

The Russians were reported to have reopened railway service from Moscow to Velikie Luki.

The Germans counter - attacked from the virtually surrounded city of Rzhev, attempting to break out to the west, but the Russians said these attempts were frustrated.

Germans Mauled

The survivors of 300,000 Germans trapped in a contracting pocket between the Volga and Don west of Stalingrad continued to dwindle. The 22 encircled divisions became 21 when the remnants of the shattered 76th infantry division were merged with the 376th and 44th, Red Star reported. The 76th was said by prisoners to have lost from 40 to 50 per cent of its men and its commander, Gen. von Hablenz, and his staff escaped to the west.

The encircled force is in an area of about 300 square miles. The Germans maintained resistance behind a strong system of fortifications but the Russian band of steel around them was gradually narrowing their position and the German situation was becoming more critical by the hour.

Private Rudolph Richter, captured from the 44th infantry division, was quoted as saying the trapped troops were receiving 200 grams of horsemeat daily.

"We have eaten up our cavalry," he said.

Of the original 100 horses in his outfit, Richter was quoted as saying only 12 were left.

Other prisoners complained of a lack of Winter clothes.

The Russian offensive in the North Caucasus was hampered by heavy rains and stubborn enemy resistance, but continued to roll the Germans back through the foothills. The capture of Elkhotovo yesterday cut the Ordzhonikidze-Prokhladny railway southeast of Nalchik.

Russian Advance Continues

LONDON, Monday, [illegible] The capture of Mozdok, announced by Moscow today, apparently meant not only that the German push into the Caucasus toward the oil center of that region had ended but also that the Russians now were engaged in rolling back the Nazis and their Fascist allies. The Russians already have broken the Nazi right spearhead thrust through Nalchik. The latest communiqué said the Red Army advance on the Caucasus front was continuing.

Earlier, dispatches from the Russian front reported that the Red Army, fanning out west and north of recaptured Velikiye Luki, had cut the Leningrad-Vitebsk railway yesterday and had pushed fourteen miles along the Moscow-Riga line to Novo Sokolniki to a point seventy miles from the Latvian border.

Novo Sokolniki is the junction of two railways that are vital to the Germans in supplying their army on the Stalingrad front and their forces on the central front, pivoted on Smolensk.

Moscow's communiqué, heard here by the Soviet monitor, announced that the Red Army forces in the areas of the middle Don, southwest and south of Stalingrad and on the central front as well as the Caucasus were continuing their offensive.

JAN 4 1943

It reported during the week ending Jan. 2 a total of 266 German aircraft was destroyed on the front by the Russians, including ninety eight transport planes in the Stalingrad area, while the Russians lost 122 planes in the same period.

Reinforcements Go by Plane

In the fighting southwest and south of Stalingrad, the communiqué said, "the enemy is hurriedly bringing up reinforcements by air" to meet the steadily advancing Red Army.

JAN 4 1943

Fierce fighting on the central front was reported.

Southwest of Velikiye Luki, the communiqué said, Russian troops captured a fortified inhabited locality after breaking down "fierce resistance."

"At the approaches to this point and in the streets the Germans abandoned many killed and a large quantity of arms," it said. "West of Rzhev the German infantry, supported by twelve tanks, launched a counter-attack. The Germans were thrown back, losing six tanks."

Several inhabited localities were occupied in the middle Don offensive, the Russians reported. Seventeen tanks were said to have been destroyed in that area. In the middle Don sector the Russians now are within 100 miles of Rostov and are pushing on.

The midnight communiqué said that German prisoners had revealed that their division was hurriedly transferred to the Soviet front from France.

The fighting in the Caucasus apparently is intense, with the Russians reporting that the Germans JAN 4 1943 of street warfare enabled the enemy to escape pursuit, to change houses, regroup their forces and fire weapons. In the first day's fighting on some occasions the enemy re-appeared in houses which seemed already captured and opened heavy fire.

"The Germans donned Red army uniforms and civilian clothes and attempted to penetrate blocks occupied by our troops and fire at Red army men from behind. To prevent this, each company had securing squads which patrolled particularly important objectives and annihilated small enemy groups.

"In the last attack our artillery subjected to protracted fire important centers of the enemy defense and destroyed them. A number of attacks were launched simultaneously from several directions. The German's defense was cut into separate zones. As the German command refused to surrender, our troops proceeded to the final annihilation of the enemy garrison. Soon it was completely routed.

"Blocks recently occupied by the enemy were littered with piles of bodies, damaged war equipment and arms."

Velikie Luki Littered With German Dead

Russian Reports Call City 'Dismal German Cemetery.'

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 1943 (AP)—The German losses in dead in the fall of the Russian city of Velikie Lukie Friday to the Soviet army amount to thousands and, after extremely bitter street and house fighting, the city is "an immense German cemetery," Russian reports said tonight.

"In every house," the report as heard by CBS said, "there lie dozens of bodies of German soldiers. The German losses in dead amount to thousands."

The German High Command insisted again today that the Germans still hold Velikie Luki.

The British radio further announced that a Russian column pushing on after the capture of Velikie Luki had captured a strong German key position in the area of the marshes of Kholm, between Velikie Luki and Lake Ilmen. This report was heard by CBS also.

Details of the fighting in the houses and streets of Velikie Luki were told by Tass, official Soviet news agency, in a broadcast heard by the Federal Communications Commission.

Quoting a correspondent for Red Star, Soviet army newspaper, Tass said:

Every Block Contested

"Every block and house in the town was contested. There was not a demarcation line between the Red army troops and the Germans JAN 4 1943

"Conditions of street warfare enabled the enemy to escape pursuit, to change houses, regroup their forces and fire weapons. In the first day's fighting on some occasions the enemy re-appeared in houses which seemed already captured and opened heavy fire.

"The Germans donned Red army uniforms and civilian clothes and attempted to penetrate blocks occupied by our troops and fire at Red army men from behind. To prevent this, each company had securing squads which patrolled particularly important objectives and annihilated small enemy groups.

"In the last attack our artillery subjected to protracted fire important centers of the enemy defense and destroyed them. A number of attacks were launched simultaneously from several directions. The German's defense was cut into separate zones. As the German command refused to surrender, our troops proceeded to the final annihilation of the enemy garrison. Soon it was completely routed.

"Blocks recently occupied by the enemy were littered with piles of bodies, damaged war equipment and arms."

Berlin Reports Reds Repulsed

BERLIN (From German broadcasts), Jan. 3 (AP).—The German high command declared today that "fresh enemy attacks made against strong points of Velikie Luki failed on account of the stubborn resistance of the garrison."

"Heavy defensive struggles continued in the Don area," a communique said. "The enemy was repulsed on the entire front and lost thirty-eight tanks."

The Germans were reported successful in a minor drive on the central front. "West of Kaluga one enemy battalion was routed, ninety-five strongholds and pillboxes were destroyed and prisoners were captured," the high command declared.

Soviet Midnight Report

LONDON, Jan. 3—(AP)—The Soviet midnight communique as broadcast by the Moscow radio and heard here by Reuters and the Soviet Monitor follows:

During Jan. 3 our troops in the area of the middle Don, southwest and south of Stalingrad, on the central front and in the northern Caucasus continued offensive operations in the same directions as before. JAN 4 1943

Our advancing troops by a sudden blow captured the town and railway station of Mozdok and the town of Malgobek.

During the week ended Jan. 2, 266 German aircraft were destroyed in air combat, on enemy airdromes and by our ground defenses, including 98 transport planes in the Stalingrad area. Our losses in the same period were 122 aircraft.

(The remainder of the communique was heard in London by the Soviet Monitor).

In the Stalingrad area our troops shelled enemy positions. In the factory area our shock detachments penetrated into the enemy lines and fought the enemy with hand grenades. In another sector our men blew up one munition dump and destroyed several dozen dugouts, killing about 400 of the epemy.

Southwest and south of Stalingrad our forces, overcoming enemy resistance, continued to advance. The enemy is hurriedly bringing up reinforcements by air.

In the captured places of Zavodskoye and Termosin our troops captured 15 stores of equipment and a railway train with munitions.

One million shells, 20,000,000 rounds of ammunition, 15 tanks, 150 lorries and 8,000 head of cattle also were taken.

In the area of the middle Don our troops continued to forge ahead and occupied several inhabited localities. On one sector Soviet troops penetrated into the enemy rear and captured an artillery battery and 10 heavy machineguns and killed 300 Germans. One tank was destroyed.

The "Nth" motorized unit in the area of Oblivskaya cut the enemy's ways of retreat and inflicted heavy losses in manpower on the Germans. Sixteen enemy tanks were destroyed.

Another unit cleared the Germans out of three inhabited localities. Over 100 of the enemy were killed. Six tanks, three guns and four lorries were destroyed.

German prisoners taken in these operations stated that their division had been hurriedly transferred to the Soviet front from France.

On the central front our troops southwest of Velikie Luki, having broken down the fierce resistance of the enemy, captured a fortified inhabited locality. At the approaches to this point and in the streets the Germans abandoned many killed and a large quantity of arms.

West of Rzhev German infantry, supported by 12 tanks, launched a counterattack. The Germans were thrown back, losing six tanks.

In the northern Caucasus our troops continued offensive operations and dislodged the enemy from several inhabited localities. about 500 Germans were killed. Seven enemy tanks were destroyed and eight tanks damaged. Our troops destroyed 21 anti-tank guns, 13 lorries and three six-barrelled mortars. They also captured 15 guns, 16 machineguns and other war materiel. Prisoners were taken. JAN 4 1943

The German High Command persistently denies the capture of Velikie Luki by our forces. A communique from Hitler's headquarters on Jan. 2 states: "The garrison of Velikie Luki is offereing stubborn resistance to the enemy and has repelled repeated counterattacks."

The German garrison of Velikie Luki is offering neither stubborn nor even passive resistance. It is three days since not a single armed German remained in this Soviet town. The German garrison refused to lay down arms and was completely wiped out.

Our troops occupied Velikie Luki and captured, according to incomplete figures, 17 tanks, 47 guns, many mortars, including 33 six-barrelled mortars, 136 machineguns, 400 lorries, 42 radio transmitters, a large quantity of infantry arms, stores of ammunition, equipment and provisions and other war material. The booty is still being counted

The German command, of all people, knows all this well. The charlatans of Hitler's headuarters deem it necessary, however, to conceal the truth of the fate of the Velikie Luki garison.

The Hitlerites fear that soldiers of other surrounded garrisons on the Soviet-German front, hearing on the radio the fate of the Velikie Luki garrison, will refuse to accept senseless death for the sake of Hitler. By inventing fables the Hitlerites have once again showed themselves as inveterate liars. Not one word of the output of Hitler's headuarters is to be believed for it is not worth a brass farthing.

34 More Reported Damaged

Most Intense Air Activity of Campaign Thus Far.

ALLIES LOSE BUT 7 PLANES

Axis Harbors, Railways At Tunis Blasted — Ship Sunk, Another Hit.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 3—American and British airmen knocked 28 enemy planes out of Tunisia's skies, rocked Tunis and its port of La Goulette in the second greatest raid of the campaign, and blasted Axis harbors and railways in a fiery burst of activity, a communique from North Africa reported tonight while the British Eighth Army from the east pushed forward in Libya. JAN 4 1943

Activity Most Intense

In the air operations over Tunisia, which North African dispatches said were the most intense yet seen there, American fliers were credited with 23 of yesterday's bag of 28 Axis planes. Nineteen of them were brought down in a fierce air encounter when a swarm of about 50 German and Italian fighters rose in an attempt to beat off a flying fortress attack on Tunis

Thirty-four more enemy planes were reported damaged, and in the tremendous activity which seemed to be establishing Allied air superiority, only seven Allied planes were lost, two of them American. Not a single flying fortress was shot down, though some of them were badly riddled.

52 Flying Fortresses Engaged

(A list of personnel in the Tunis attack, as received in dispatches from Allied headquarters, indicated that at least 52 flying fortresses were used in the raid if each crew was composed of seven men.)

Besides hitting Tunis where one ship was probably sunk and another hit, the powerhouse left in flames, docks smashed and oil tanks set alight so they could be seen for 40 miles, the Allied airmen swooped upon Sousse harbor where they hit another merchant vessel, docks and a military camp, and again bombed the railway to the south.

Allied fighters swept over the Faid, Stax and Sousse areas, destroying enemy motor vehicles and armored cars, and battled German and Italian raiders who attempted attacks on Bone. Less than half of one enemy formation reached Bone, dispatches from North Africa said.

Only Slight Patrol Duty

While only slight patrol activity in the north was reported on the ground by an Allied headquarters communique, a German broadcast said a large number of United States troops and a complete American tank division had just arrived at the front.

A French headquarters communique from Algiers announced the capture of an "important position" northwest of Kairouan, about 60 miles south of Tunis, and successful local attacks further south.

On the opposite end of the Allied wing in Africa bristling armored British columns were poking forward cautiously around the curve of the Gulf of Sirte in Libya toward the Wadi Zem-Zem, 160 airline miles southeast of Tripoli, where it appeared that Marshal Erwin Rommel might be preparing to make his first stand since breaking away from his El Agheila line and beginning his 240-mile retreat.

An increasing threat to Rommel's southern flank, however was the motorized fighting French column of Brig. Gen. Jacques Le Clerc from the Lake Chad area. A French communique said this force had driven "several hundred miles" into southern Libya and was continuing northward.

U. S. Reinforcements Arrive

A Berlin report by DNB said a large number of United States troops and a complete American tank division had just arrived at the Tunisian front.

While the Axis claimed continued advances in Tunisia and heavy air action, Allied dispatches indicated there was relatively little ground activity in that sector to Rommel's rear.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's war bulletin from Cairo said British Eighth Army troops were "in contact" with the enemy in the Wadi Bei el Chebir-Buerat el Hsun area yesterday, apparently and it was unsupported by any other source.

Rome said two Allied tanks and a dozen American parachutists were captured in a lively action.

Twenty-two Allied planes were shot down, the Italians asserted, while the Germans announced, without Allied corroboration, that an American 8,000-ton ammunition carrier had been sunk from a convoy near Oran by a U-boat and another 10,000-ton ship sunk by bombing at Bone.

Earlier the Berlin radio had reported the departure from Gibraltar of a large east-bound convoy, including the aircraft carriers Formidable and Furious, the battleships Nelson and Rodney, two cruisers and eight destroyers. JAN 4 1943 a slight advance from the area of previous contacts described as west of the Wadi.

The Italians declared that a fighting French column driving into Libya from the south was meeting with "brave resistance" from Italian garrisons in the Gazzan and Fezzan area.

British dispatches earlier had reported the Germans digging in in the boulder-strewn valley of Zem-Zem, about 20 miles beyond the Wadi Bei el Chebir.

Both the Berlin and Rome communiques today said their forces had repulsed the British with shell fire, indicating that the Axis may have concentrated considerable artillery among the gulches and hillocks.

Rommel may not be prepared to make a prolonged stand there, however, for Berlin broadcasts nervously reported that Montgomery obviously was making preparations for a large attack in a few days.

This suggested that the British commander in the last few days of apparent inactivity had been pursuing his usual tactics of drawing up an overwhelming force when a line of enemy resistance is encountered.

The Wadi Zem-Zem afforded one such natural line, for it runs at right angles to the line of the British advance, between the southern end of extensive coastal salt marsh on Montgomery's right and the highlands on his left. About 75 miles to the north is Misurata, and 100 miles to the west of Misurata is Tripoli.

Tunisia Useless As Port

While seasonal conditions in Tunisia were reported to be such that no large-scale ground activity might take place for another three or four weeks, allied air forces continued their intense and growing offensive which was said already to have made Tunis virtually useless as an Axis port and to be rapidly disorganizing other Axis-held coastal bases and railways.

"Large forces" of Allied aircraft, including American four-motored and medium bombers and light British bombers smashed a number of targets on the Greek island of Crete by daylight yesterday, British and American communiques from Cairo reported.

Pushing home their assault through muggy skies ,the American and British fliers observed numerous hits on Axis targets in the port of Suda bay, Timbaki airfield and Kasteli.

The attack followed in quick succession a night raid on Candia airfield on Crete in which hits were scored on runways and planes, and on the Sicilian air base of Palermo, where fires were started in the harbor area.

The Allies lost three planes in all these operations, the communiques said.

North African dispatches said American four-motored bombers carried out the second biggest raid of the campaign on Tunis yesterday, despite a "daisy chain" of anti-aircraft fire. Ten enemy planes were shot down in a fierce air fight.

JAN 4 1943

The Rome communique admitted "some damage" had been caused by these raids on Tunisian centers and said seven persons were killed and 20 wounded at Gabes.

Shipping Diverted From Tunis

British correspondents said Tunis and Bizerte were so badly battered that Germans and Italians had been forced to divert their shipping to Gaoes, Sfax and Sousse on the east coast, and that these were being pounded in turn.

The railway between Sousse and Sfax was reported by Allied reconnaissance to be broken in 11 places, wit hthe Germans and Italians apparently unable to make rapid repairs. Damaged equipment was still to be seen along the tracks several days after the bombing attacks.

Both the German and Italian com-muniques declared ground had been gained by their forces in Tunisia and the German-controlled Paris radio claimed an advance of 25 miles had been made by the Axis, but it did not specify the area

34 Axis Planes Damaged; U. S. Reported Sending New Divisions to Front

JAN 4 1943

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 3.—Allied air forces destroyed twenty-eight enemy planes yesterday and damaged thirty-four more in a burst of aerial activity described as the greatest yet in North Africa. Twenty-three of the enemy planes were shot down by Americans and five by the Royal Air Force. The Americans lost two planes and the R. A. F. five.

Nineteen of the Axis planes were destroyed in a single encounter which involved Flying Fortresses being escorted by P-38 fighters on a raid on Tunis and the Tunis harbor at La Goulette, where bomb bursts were registered on two ships, docks, the power house and oil tanks.

In that battle the Fortresses brought down the biggest share of the bag—seventeen of about fifty attacking German Messerschmitt and Italian fighters. Not a single Fortress was lost anywhere in the day's operations.

Patrols Active on Ground

On the ground in Tunisia there was only slight patrol activity in the northern sector of the front but the air action went forward at a furious pace as British and American airmen sought to knock out Axis centers and communications. The railway between Sousse and Sfax, on the east coast, was bombed, as well as Tunis, and docks and military camps at Sousse were hit, an Allied communique said.

R. A. F. Hurricanes and Spitfires supported the ground troops in their patrol activity in the north, shooting up enemy targets and planes, while P-40 fighters and P-38's strafed vehicles in the southern zone.

On New Year's Day, the communique said, three of four Axis transport planes encountered off the Tunisian coast were shot down.

In turn, the Germans and Italians raided Bone, Algeria, twice, sending bombers over with strong fighter escorts. But each wave was met by Spitfires, which shot down four bombers and two fighters.

7 U. S. Bombers Lost In Raid on Sub Base

St. Nazaire Attack Nets Biggest Loss Since American Planes Started Raids On Nazi-held Territory.

JAN 4 1943

LONDON, Jan. 3—(AP)—Seven big U. S. bombers were reported missing tonight after a heavy daylight raid on St. Nazaire, Germany's huge submarine base and repair station in the Bay of Biscay, marking the largest loss since U. S. airmen began large bomber raids on German-held territory in July.

Previous Heavy Loss

Until today the greatest loss was six heavy bombers which failed to return from the raid on Romilly Sur Seine Dec. 20. In the attack on that air base and plane repair station 80 miles southwest of Paris, 44 enemy fighters were shot down.

It was assumed that both Flying Fortresses and Liberators made the raid, and official reports had not been received late tonight as to the types of planes among the seven missing.

A joint communique of the U. S. Eighth Army airforce and Air Ministry said no German planes were encountered on the long flight to or from St. Nazaire, but the enemy fighters apparently were heavily concentrated at the port and "a number" were shot down by the bombers in a long running fight.

The raid was a nearly 1,000-mile round-trip jaunt for the bombers. It was carried out in good weather, and bombs were seen to hit in the target area, starting fires.

The bombers were escorted part of the way by hundreds of Allied fighter planes, and meanwhile other hugh numbers of fighter and bomber aircraft ranged through Holland, Belgium and northern France, striking at railways, docks, and airfields. One plane was missing in this series of raids.

Previous Attacks

Heavy bombers previously had smashed at St. Nazaire Nov. 9, Nov. 14, Nov. 17 and Nov. 23.

Mosquito bombers struck at railway targets in northern France, the Air Ministry said, and bomber command aircraft showered explosives on the docks at Bruges in Belgium.

An airfield in Holland was attacked by ships of the Army Co-operation command in the broad sweeps to harass Nazis in conquered territories.

The Air Ministry news service described the day's operations, which extended from 10:30 a. m. until 4:00 p. m., as being on a "large scale," and it was added that nearly 300 aircraft of the fighter command took part.

Because St. Nazaire is beyond fighter range, heavy bombers made a large part of the flight without escort, but they were escorted part of the way out and part of the way back by fighters flown by Canadians, New Zealanders, Norwegians, Poles and Czechs.

Nazis Strike Back

Nazi planes struck back again at England tonight after two raids during the day. Enemy raiders loosed flares over a northeast coast town late tonight, and distant detonations indicated they were dropping bombs.

Searchlights criss-crossed the sky and there was a heavy anti-aircraft barrage.

A small group of German planes struck at the Isle of Wight and a southeast coastal town today, killing several persons on the Isle of Wight and injuring others, the Air and Home Security communique said.

Four Focke-Wulf 190 fighters damaged a school, a church and several cottages and injured a number of persons in a daylight bombardment of the southeast coast town.

Gen. de Gaulle, Giraud Likely To Meet Soon

Commissioner Reported to Have Replied to Suggestion of Fighting French Leader.

LONDON, Jan. 3. (AP)—A spokesman for Gen. Charles deGaulle's Fighting French said today a preliminary reply had been received from Gen. Henri Giraud, high commissioner for North Africa, to de Gaulle's suggestion of a meeting ing on French soil to find a formula for uniting the empire against the Axis.

The spokesman indicated several days would be required for further correspondence before it would be known if the generals could get together.

JAN 4 1943

Desire For Speed

De Gaulle's desire for speed was seen in his Christmas Day request to Giraud to meet him "immediately" and in the Fighting French statement issued here last night that "internal confusion steadily is increasing in French North and West Africa."

The Fighting French, who have opposed Hitler since the fall of France, objected violently to U. S. negotiations with Admiral Darlan, killed Christmas Eve by an assassin. Giraud was unanimously chosen successor by the imperial council Darlan appointed.

Giraud's Record

While Giraud's record of opposing the Germans and refusing to cooperate with the Petain-Laval regime of Vichy is clear, the de-Gaullists have shifted their objections from Darlan to the council. The council is composed of Pierre Boisson, governor general of West Africa; Gen. Auguste Nouges, governor general of French Morocco; Yves Chattel, governor of Algieria; Gen. Marie Bergeret, former Vichy minister for aviation; and Gen. Alphonse Juin, French commander in Tunisia.

British observers in close touch with the differences between French factions said the fighting French susupected Giraud's administration in North Africa still included Vichy political elements. These Britons, who cannot be identified by name, said they believed unity could not be achieved if any Vichy elements remained in office.

De Gaullist Groups Released From Jail

JIBUTI, French Somaliland, Jan 3 (AP)—Governor Bayerdelle, new Fighting French executive, released all de Gaullist sympathizers jailed under the Vichy regime after taking over this east African colony, it was disclosed today.

His second action was to return confiscated radios.

Gen. Paul Le Gentilhomme, commander in chief of Fighting French forces in Africa, told the populace "now you are free to listen to any radio programs, read any newspapers, express and opinions," he said.

Telling French soldiers that there were no conscripts in the Fighting French forces, Gen. Le Gentilhomme secured the promise of adherence of the Senegalese garrison to the Cross of Lorraine.

Thirty-three members of the Italian Armistice Commission who were trapped in the colony were arrested.

Eye of Goat Proof of Arabs' Esteem for U. S.

American Flier Forced Down in Desert, 'Wined, Dined' Lavishly

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 3. — (AP) "New York" was the pass word which saved Lieut. George Humbrecht, of St. Louis, from Arab suspicion and opened up their bountiful hospitality which never let his plate or glass go empty, the American flier said today after returning to his Twelfth Air Force unit.

Lieut. Humbrecht was forced down in the desert when his right motor went bad and he was not sure how he would be welcomed by the Arabs who rushed toward him.

"For a while nobody knew just what to do," the flier said. "Finally an Arab managed to say 'New York' and I said 'yes' and then everything was fine."

Puzzled by Name

When he was taken to a French colonel there was momentary doubt about his identity because of his name. Lieut. Humbrecht said, but he quickly convinced the officer he was an American.

While with his hosts, he had virtually a private car, a chauffeur, and a bodyguard.

On New Year's eve he was entertained at a party, which included an enormous dinner, lasting until 3 a. m.

But perhaps the lieutenant said, could surpass the food thought by the Arabs.

JAN 4 1943

No Rationing There

"My first meal among them," he said, "was made up of four fried eggs, steak, fried potatoes, and dressing, native dishes, and four kinds of dessert and coffee. An Arab servant was placed at my right and my left, one with red wine, one with white. They never let the glass become empty."

He explained that wherever he went he was served steaks, roasts and chicken.

"At one place," the lieutenant said, "they even went out and shot an antelope and I had antelope steak."

At one stage of his adventure, he was transported in state to a French general's quarters in a garrison town.

It is an old Arab custom to offer the eye of a goat to esteemed guests. Lieut. Humbrecht was so honored but "I couldn't see eating that so I had to make the best apologies possible."

PURPLE HEARTS, MEDALS AWARDED U.S. AIRMEN

LONDON, Jan. 3—(AP) Eighth Air Force headquarters today announced award of Purple Hearts to six U. S. airmen wounded in raids over Axis-held territory.

Nineteen air medals also were awarded for "exceptionally meritorious service" — 10 to enlisted men for shooting down enemy planes while serving as gunners, and nine to officers for other exceptional work.

872 British Citizens Are Awarded Medals

LONDON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Great Britain conferred medals and decorations for heroism and devotion to duty during the war today on 872 men and women who rarely, if ever, made the headlines.

Some of the recipients were school teachers, telephone operators, station masters, shipbuilding draftsmen and factory workmen. One was a farmer, decorated "for services in breeding new types of potatoes."

The first man who ever flew a Spitfire plane—on June 18, 1936—received the Order of the British Empire. He is Flying Officer Jeffrey Kinderaley Quill, chief test pilot of a Spitfire factory.

The recipients' names appeared in the second half of the New Year's honors list, the first half of which contained the names of the headliners.

JAN 4 1943

ANOTHER NAZI GENERAL REPORTED DISMISSED

LONDON, Monday, Jan. 4—(AP) The London News Chronicle said today in a Stockholm dispatch that it was reported there that Field Marshal General Wilhelm Keitel "has followed his colleagues Col. Gen. Franz Halder, Field Marshal Gen. Fedor von Bock, Field Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Ritter von Leeb, Field Marshal Gen. Ewald von Kleist, and Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian into oblivion."

"The report of Keitel's dismissal, however, remains unconfirmed," the newspaper added.

Stockholm Reports Hitler Turning Gray

STOCKHLOM, Jan. 3. (AP)—Problems of the eastern front and the Mediterranean have thrown such a load of work and worry on Hitler that his hair is becoming noticeably gray the Berlin correspondent of the newspaper Allehanda said today.

(The British last week released a picture said to have been taken recently, showing growing paunchiness in Hitler's face.)

Enemy Driven Into 'Hopeless' Buna Position

MacArthur Reports Allies Have Destroyed Foe at Mission, Press Remnants

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 4 (Monday) (AP).—General Douglas MacArthur reported in a communique today that Allied troops in New Guinea have completed destruction of Japanese forces in the Buna Mission area and that the "enemy's situation is now hopeless."

A spokesman disclosed that 650 Japanese had been killed in bitter fighting in the Buna area yesterday. He added that an undisclosed number of prisoners had been taken, including thirty-five "coolie' laborers.

"On the right (in the Buna area)," said the communique, "we have completed destruction of the enemy's defeated forces. His losses were heavy. The only remaining remnants of the Japanese Papuan army are confined in a narrow salient extending from Sanananda Point, which we are preparing to envelop. The enemy's situation is now hopeless."

(Papua Territory includes the southeastern portion of New Guinea.)

The Japanese remaining in the Buna area, save for a few snipers lurking in trees or dugouts in the swamps around the government station, are intrenched around Sanananda Point—between Buna and Gona—and along the trail to the point which extends about two miles inland.

Clearance of the Buna area yesterday makes it possible for Allied ground and air forces to concentrate on smashing the enemy at Sanananda, the foothold left in the area he occupied last June.

Throughout yesterday American and Australian troops combed the occupied area for snipers. The spokesman emphasized, however, that organized resistance around Buna and Giropa Point, which had been the core of Japanese strength in this area, was definitely broken.

Meanwhile, Flying Fortresses struck at large concentrations of Japanese shipping at Rabaul, New Britain. Cloud cover prevented positive observation, but returning airmen said they saw flames rising from a 10,000-ton vessel which they believed had received two direct bomb hits. At Gasmata an Allied unit strafed the airfield, the communique said.

Another Allied unit bombed the enemy-occupied town and airdrome at Madang, more than 300 miles northwest of Buna. Results there were not disclosed, but at Lae, southeast of Madang, the bombers destroyed a medium bomber and damaged two fighters caught on the ground.

Nine enemy dive bombers attacked the government station at Tufi, southeast of Buna, but caused no damage, the communique said.

Local Soldier Again Honored For Gallantry

Staff. Sergt. Penwarden Gets Oakleaf Cluster, Purple Heart.

ALLIED HEAD QUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Monday, Jan. 4 (AP)—A United States Soldier who ran a mile to man a machine gun and shoot down an enemy plane, and another who showed he could forget his wounds for the good of the service, received decorations for bravery today.

Two Honored

Staff Sergeant Victory Lorber of San Bernardino, Calif., who hurried the mile to fight a Jap air attack on an airdrome at Malang, Java, Feb. 20, 1942, was given the Oakleaf Cluster for gallantry by U. S. Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of Allied air forces in the southwest Pacific.

Lorber, who also has received the Silver Star and another Oakleaf Cluster for gallant action, fought off the enemy aircraft before they could strafe a Flying Fortress. As a result of his fire, one Jap fighter crashed.

Gen. Kenney also presented the Oakleaf Cluster and the Purple Heart decoration to Staff Sergeant Leroy H. Penwarden of 192 Dwight street, New Haven Conn., a side gunner in a flying fortress bombing mission against Jap shipping at Milne Bay, New Guinea, Aug. 26.

Penwarden's plane conducted a low altitude attack through anti-aircraft fire from three cruisers and two gunboats escorting a convoy. Although wounded in the first bombing run, Penwarden continued to man his gun, strafing the warships.

After the bombs were dropped, Penwarden was given the choice of landing at an advanced base or returning to the home field. He knew the shell-damaged plane couldn't take off again after landing but could be used at the home base for repair purposes, so despite his wounds, he chose to return to the home field.

Still at Home Here

Sergt. Penwarden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy C. Penwarden, is still at his home here, recuperating from wounds received in the action for which he was decorated. He received the notice with calm gratification that he had again been decorated.

Last June he was awarded the

Purple Heart for "A meritorious act" over Rabaul, and in August he received the Silver Star for another exploit over Buna.

Penwarden, now 28, has been in the army since 1936, and says he is ready to rejoin his outfit "as soon I can see well enough to shoot."

Japs Slaughtered in Droves As Allies Gain at Giropa

New Year's Day Push Forces Foe from Point in New Guinea.

JAN 4 1943

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 1—(Delayed)—(AP) Japanese were slaughtered in droves in the New Year's day push by Australian troops, with American help, which took Giropa point, the Japanese command post in the Buna area.

Japanese lying atop cocoanut-palm bunkers were mowed down by machine-gun fire and others fighting from inside the bunkers were flushed out and destroyed by cannon, rifle fire, and grenades as Australian veterans teamed up with U.S.-built tanks to take this strongly defended spot near the Buna government station.

Hundred Killed

While there was no official estimate of the enemy dead, the Australians spoke of "hundreds killed."

The taking of Giropa point was primarily an Australian show, but the American forces gave support by keeping heavy pressure on the Japanese between the point and the government station to prevent them from withdrawing troops to reinforce the point.

Tanks Used Sixth Time

The Giropa push was the sixth time the 13-ton General Stuart tanks had been used in the Buna campaign.

Fighting opened with a heavy artillery barrage from 25-pounders firing at almost point-blank range. In the early morning the tanks went into action with their 37-millimeter cannon hammering and their treads plowing the black earth. Forty-five minutes later the first tank breached the defenses and pushed through to the coast.

Americans holding the narrow corridor between the station and the point watched as the tank pushed into the white sand, swung around, stopped, and blasted at the bunkers in a cocoanut grove.

Then it returned to the grove and, as one soldier said, "began raising hell again."

Fire Proved Deadly

The fire of the tanks and the Australian veterans was deadly.

Some Japanese were lying atop airplane revetments in dispersal bays at the end of an old air strip. In one case a number were wiped out by cannon and machine-gun fire from less than 30 feet.

The cannon drove the Japanese out of bunkers. The infantry followed the tanks closely, tossing grenades.

Seven Japanese supported by watering sought to swim to safety.

American machine-gunners commanded by Maj. Edmund Schroeder of Oconto, Wis., wiped them out.

In another instance two Japanese were sighted in the ocean off Siwori village, northwest of Buna. Lieut. Louis Chagon of Rhinelander, Wis., called to them to surrender. But the Japanese refused and were killed.

Line of Bunkers

The defenders had built a line of bunkers from palm logs and had even drawn up trucks and automobiles as defenses. I was told, however, that the bunkers were not so solid as those the enemy had built at nearby Cape Endaidere, recently taken by Allied forces.

A direct hit on the gas tank of one of the trucks sent flames high and soon ended the defense of that particular spot.

Instead of making a frontal attack, the tanks struck the Japs from the side of drive through to the point. Then the force turned westward and pushed to Giropa creek, which was their objective for the first night.

Another force turned and started mopping up Jap remnants in between the point and Sinen creek, to the east, but this position was not completely cleaned up by tonight.

(Later dispatches indicate that except for snipers, the Japanese abandoned defense of the point swimming with life belts and on logs to reach their comrades at the government station.)

All Types of Planes Put to Effective Use

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 2—(Delayed)—(AP) Virtually all types of twin-engined combat aircraft operated by the Allied air force in this theater were employed effectively today in a bombing and strafing attack on the Japanese base at Lae.

Escorted by a strong force of P-38 fighters, the bombing and strafing force was made up of A-20's, B-25's and B-26's, all from American squadrons, with a formation of Australian Beaufighters acting as a cleanup squad.

JAN 4 1943

Thorough U. S. Job

But the Americans did the job so thoroughly that the Australians didn't have anything to do, according to their reports after returning home.

The force approached Lae en masse, then split up.

The A-20's went in low over an airdrome—so low in fact that they encountered a special Japanese ack-ack defense—a mortar barrage set to explode at about tree-top level.

While the Beaufighters found nothing to do they were good witnesses as to the results of the attack.

The Australians said that when they were over Salamaua on the way home, 30 miles from Lae, they still could see fires burning.

The fact that all attacking planes were twin-engined made the orders simple. The boys were told to fire on anything with a single engine. But they did not meet anything in the way of interception to shoot at.

Ship Hit Only Once

The ship took only one bomb hit, on a turret, and damage was so quickly repaired that it was able to go into the battle of Guadalcanal Nov. 14.

The whole, thrilling story of this unidentified vessel's part in south Pacific fighting during October and November was told today by the Navy Department in the first detailed account of how an American battle wagon had acquitted itself under enemy air and surface attack.

The ship was commanded by Captain Thomas Leigh Gatch, Annapolis, Md. In the battle of Santa Cruz Island Oct. 26, it was part of an aircraft carrier task force which was attacked by the planes of a Japanese force of three carriers moving southward from north of the Solomon Islands. The battleship was assigned to escort one of our carriers.

20 Downed First

The enemy planes apparently had this carrier as their first objective, but upon spotting the battleship, they veered to attack it. The first assault was made by 20 enemy dive bombers and Capt. Gatch reported tersely:

"All were shot down."

There were two more assaults by torpedo planes and dive bombers. With the help of fighter planes from the American force, the battleship, scoring destruction of 12 more enemy aircraft with its own

32 Jap Planes Shot Down By Battleship

Thrilling October Saga of U. S. Vessel Revealed—Vessel Hit Only Once and Entered Guadalcanal Battle Few Weeks Later.

JAN 4 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—An American battleship bristling with anti-aircraft guns destroyed an entire flight of 20 enemy dive bombers in an October sea-air battle in the south Pacific, the Navy reported today. The battleship destroyed a total of 32 Japanese planes before the enemy finally ceased trying to sink it.

American Planes Hit Two Jap Destroyers

JAN 4 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—Two enemy destroyers were blasted and the Japanese airfield at Munda was twice heavily bombed in a series of air raids made by American forces against enemy warships and shore bases in the Solomon Islands during the past two days, the Navy reported today.

Are Set Ablaze

One of the destroyers was set afire and when last seen was "burning badly," a communique said, while the other "appeared to be in a sinking condition."

At Munda, on New Georgia Island, bomb hits were scored on anti-aircraft emplacements and other installations in the first attack Saturday (Solomons Time.) In the second attack three Japanese guns were hit and some United States planes suffered minor damage from anti-aircraft fire. The report of the second raid stated specifically that no enemy planes were seen either in the air or on the field.

Meanwhile, fierce patrol activity continued on Guadalcanal Island, and on Saturday our forces killed between 30 and 35 Japanese. The Japs countered by shelling our positions, the first time in several weeks that such a bombardment has been reported here.

The first of the two raids at Munda, which has been attacked almost daily for a month, was delivered at 8:20 a. m. Saturday by Army Marauder medium bombers and Navy-Marine Corps Dauntless dive bombers escorted by Wildcat, Airacobra and Warhawk fighter planes. The Wildcat is a Navy fighter, the Airacobra an Warhawk are Army types. It was not stated whether any resistance other than indicated anti-aircraft resistance was encountered during this attack.

Then at 2:26 p. m. on Saturday Army Flying Fortresses with an escort of Lightning (Army twin-engined) fighters located and attacked a formation of enemy destroyers 30 miles south of Shortland Island. However, the communique said that no hits were observed. Shortland is 290 nautical miles northwest of Guadalcanal airfield in an area where the Japanese have long been active.

About four hours later a flight of Dauntless dive bombers, accompanied by Wildcat and Lightning fighters, also discovered a detachment of enemy destroyers—this time 30 miles northwest of Rendova island in the Munda area of New Georgia.

This may have been the same group of destroyers earlier attacked by the Flying Fortresses. This squadron was protected by 10 guns, was so fully protected that it suffered only the turret hit.

A fragment of this bomb struck Captain Gatch in the neck, severing an artery, and the explosion threw him against the ship's conning tower, knocking him unconscious and tearing shoulder muscles. He recovered quickly and less than three weeks later again took his battleship to sea—and into the second phase of the battle of

JAN 4 1943

Guadalcanal, which in mid-November broke the Japanese drive to take that island (the first phase was that in which an American cruiser force, including the Boise and San Francisco, distinguished themselves early Nov. 13.)

Gatch reported that the American battleship force moved into the strait between Guadalcanal and nearby Savo island, expecting a trap—"we wanted to get 'caught.' They had set this trap for foxes and we didn't think it would hold bears."

The battleships were cruising leisurely when they spotted enemy war vessels several miles off—a large cruiser and two smaller cruisers in column.

Enemy Cruisers Sunk

The battleships opened with 16-inch guns and almost immediately flames from the large enemy cruiser illumined the entire sea-scape. All three cruisers were sunk before they could get within range of our ships.

"They never knew just what sank them," Captain Gatch reported. At this point the Japanese sprang their trap. The American force picked up an enemy destroyer or light cruiser dead astern and the battleship fired three salvos from its after-turret. The Jap vessel burst into flame, threw its bow high into the air, and sank stern first.

The American battleship force went into the narrow, dangerous channels west of Savo and struck out in column with Gatch's ship last. As they neared Savo's southern end Japanese cruisers and destroyers, lying in wait, launched a torpedo attack on American destroyers preceding the battleships. A Japanese cruiser turned four searchlights on our column as it and other cruisers and a Japanese battleship opened fire.

"Within a second after the searchlights were on us," Gatch said, "our secondary batteries opened up and their searchlights went out. Then, 30 seconds later, our main batteries fired. We were fighting the cruiser. One of our own battleships ahead of us was pouring shells into the Jap battleship, but now and again the big enemy ship would turn one our way, until the U. S. battleship ahead silenced it."

Gatch's ship received a hit on the conning tower. A fire started there was quickly extinguished.

The U. S. battleships and their destroyers had sunk one Jap battleship or heavy cruiser, three cruisers and one destroyer, and had damaged another battleship, a cruiser and a destroyer.

In the earlier Santa Cruz battle the enemy lost more than 100 aircraft, according to Navy reports previously released, and probably lost about 50 more. American planes from the carrier task force, including Gatch's ship damaged two Japanese aircraft carriers, a battleship and five cruisers. U. S. surface ship losses in this battle were an unidentified aircraft carrier and the destroyer Porter. The carrier, severely damaged in the battle, went down several hours later.

Text of Report

JAN 4 1943

The text of the Navy's report follows:

On the night of last November 14, three Japanese cruisers in close column wheeled around the point of Savo Island, off Guadalcanal—and steamed right into 16-inch jaws of death.

Several miles away, a United States battleship prowled in search of just such prey. The battleship's big guns swung on the target, and the first salvo struck and set ablaze one of the oncoming cruisers.

Before the enemy warships could get within range to retaliate—or, for that matter, even discover what had hit them— the U. S. battleship had sunk them all with its far-reaching heavyweight blows.

The battleship was one of several operating with the U. S. Naval forces in the southwest Pacific. Already it had slugged through the heaviest air attack yet made on a battleship, and on its conning tower was recorded a victory score of 32 enemy planes shot down in that engagement.

The following account of the above two actions has been compiled from reports reaching the Navy department. Both engagements were previously reported in Navy communiques Nos. 169-171-177-194-195-198.

When the battleship joined the naval forces in the southwest Pacific, many of the enlisted men in the crew were entering a battle area for the first time, and some of the junior officers were recently commissioned naval reservists.

"Ask the ship's company if they are ready for action," Captain Thomas Leigh Gatch, U. S. Navy, of 90 Annapolis, Maryland, the commanding officer, directed—not in the manner of a "grandstand play," but as a leader's way of letting his men know it soon would be up to them.

JAN 4 1943

The communications officer signaled for attention on the ship's public address system. He read the message. From end to end of the ship, from conning tower to engine room, nearly 2,000 voices chorused reply: "Aye! Aye!"

Move To Meet Carriers

American carriers, each with its own protecting force, moved out to meet three Japanese carriers coming from the north of the Solomons. The U. S. battleship escorted one of our carriers. The enemy went after this carrier and made determined attempts to reach it, but when the Japanese flyers spotted the battleship, they had visions of a second Repulse and Prince of Wales, and dove in confidently, expecting to blast it apart. But. . .

"The first attack lasted from 11:12 to 11:20 on October 28," Captain Gatch wrote in his report. "There were 20 enemy dive bombers. All were shot down."

The battleship had automatic anti-aircraft guns that fairly bristled along its length. It had a secondary battery of larger guns that placed a barrage of flying steel thousands of yards away through which planes must pass to meet the burning metal of the smaller—but not small—automatic weapons.

There were, too, as Captain Gatch reported, fighter planes up from the carrier. Bteween them and the ships' guns, they took a terrific toll of enemy planes.

"Our ship was cutting circles and figure-eights and other maneuvers without names," he said. "I was more afraid of ramming the carrier we were protecting than of the attacking planes."

Second Assault

The second assault came about an hour later. Forty torpedo planes and dive bombers in this group approached in waves about five miles (one minute to a minute and a half) apart. They maneuvered into position to strike together, the bombers a moment before the torpedo planes swept down to release their charges. A curving wall of glowing steel from the great ship met them. Only one, a torpedo plane, did not fall or turn back.

"It came at the stern of the ship," Captain Gatch reported. "It appeared that millions of tracer shells went right past that plane without hitting it, but some did strike it, and at the right time. They struck just before the pilot released his torpedo. The plane was jarred out of its line of flight and its torpedo was released well up in the air. It seemed that the torpedo would drop on the ship, but it passed over the fantail and fell in the sea on the other side aft. The plane's wings were shot off. It struck the water and sank."

A third attack came 59 minutes after the first, at 12:19. It lasted 11 minutes, longer than either of the others.

JAN 4 1943

This time 31 dive bombers and torpedo planes came at the battleship.

"I was out on the catwalk in front of the bridge," the captain's report stated, "where I had no business to be."

The battleship's bridge is armored. Captain Gatch presumably was out on the open catwalk so that he could con his ship during an air attack, for planes directly above cannot be seen from the bridge. This time a dive bomber got through.

"I saw its bomb released from not more than 100 feet above the forward part of the ship. I hoped that it would strike a turret and not the deck, for it was a good-sized bomb, probably a 500-pounder, and it might blow a hole in the deck and kill people underneath; and certainly it would kill many in gun crews on the deck itself.

"The automatic guns forward were manned by mess attendants, some Filipinos, some Negroes. They never stopped firing for a second. Those men are good.

"The bomb did land on top of a turret. That was the only hit we took, and it was the one that got me." (Damage to the ship long since has been repaired).

A fragment of the bomb struck Captain Gatch in the neck, severing an artery, and the force of the blast hurled him against the conning tower, knocking him unconscious and tearing the muscles of his shoulder. The captain fell and the executive officer took over the ship. The attack passed.

Less than three weeks later Captain Gatch was up and declaring himself ready for another fight, although his left arm hung injured, as it still does. The Admiral in command said, "I don't expect you to strangle Japs," and Captain Gatch despite the injury, took the battleship into its second action.

This was a night battle, part of what has since been called the battle of Guadalcanal, where the cruisers Boise and San Francisco distinguished themselves. Those cruisers, however, were not part of the task force in which the battleship moved. This latter force was made up of battleships and destroyers.

"We headed into Windy Gulch (the Americans' name for the Strait between the islands of Guadalcanal and Savo.) We got into a far corner and slowed down. We found no Japs, although we knew that they were somewhere about waiting for us. They had set a trap, and we were trying to find it, so we could go into it and get caught. We wanted to get 'caught'. They weren't expecting us; they had set this trap for foxes and we didn't think it would hold bear."

When above the northern tip of Savo, the ships turned west. They were cruising at a leisurely pace so that the trap could be sprung on them easily. It was. The battleship's lookouts spotted enemy ships several miles away. These turned out to be a large enemy cruiser with two smaller cruisers following closely in column.

The battleship's 16-inch guns swung to drop their monstrous projectiles at the range. They were on the beam; flames from the big leading cruiser illuminated the others. All three cruisers were sunk before their own guns were within range of the battleship.

In a desperate effort to see the thing that was hitting them, the Japanese fired a salvo of star shells which fell thousands of yards short.

Never Knew What Sank Them

Captain Gatch reported: "They never knew just what sank them.

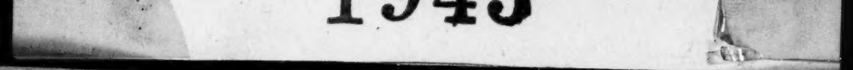
"The enemy now sprang the 'trap' he had set. Dead astern of us a destroyer (or light cruiser) was picked up. Our after turret fired three salvos. We could see the Jap burst into flame. His bow rose to 45 degrees and he went down stern first."

The American force passed north of Savo and turned south into a narrow passage west of that island. These were bad waters for battleships, with narrow channels and numerous shoals, so that maneuvering was impossible. There was no more casual speed; destroyers out ahead, the big men o' war in column, they went up near top speed. The battleship whose actions are herein reported was astern.

Near the southern end of Savo island Japanese cruisers and destroyers dashed out from alongside the cliffs, where they had been safe from detection, and launched a torpedo attack on the American destroyers.

Four searchlights from a Japanese cruiser lighted the battleship, and fire was opened by cruisers and a Japanese battleship which joined the fight at that time.

"Within a second later the searchlights were on us, our secondary batteries opened up and their searchlights went out; then, 30 seconds later, our main batteries fired. We were fighting the cruisers. One of our own battleships ahead of us was pouring shells into the Jap battleship, but now and again the big enemy ship would turn one our way, until the U. S. battleship ahead silenced it."



An enemy cruiser had scored a hit on the conning tower of Captain Gatch's ship, starting a fire.

"I was on the catwalk," the captain said. "I'd been dying for a cigarette, and now I thought I could have one, so I drew my lighter. One of the men shouted, 'Captain, sir! You'll give away our position!' I just looked up at the flames near the top of our mast and finished the cigarette."

The batle ended and flames aboard Captain Gatch's ship were quickly extinguished.

The U. S. battleships and destroyers had sunk one Japanese battleship (or heavy cruiser), three cruisers and one destroyer, as well as inflicting damage on other vessels.

The battle report of Captain Gatch concluded: "not one of the ship's company flinched from his post or showed the least disaffection."

Japanese fighters of an unidentified type and by one dive bomber. The American planes pressed home their assault and scored hits on the two ships, one of which was left afire and the other sinking.

On Sunday, which was yesterday in the Solomons, Dauntless dive bombers with Lightning, Wildcat and Airacobra fighters as escort, again attacked the Munda field, knocking out three enemy guns with only minor damage to themselves.

by Lockheed "to pinch hit as a medium bombing plane." Its aerodynamic lines are so clean, the statement continued, "that 60 per cent of the plane's 'drag' is in the tricycle landing gear — until the gear folds up into the wing immediately after takeoff. The drag of the remaining 40 per cent in flight is less than that of an ordinary card table 27 inches square. It can fly with comparative ease on one engine alone."

In adopting popular names, the Army and Navy fall in line with a practice long in effect in England. Some of the British names for U. S. aircraft have been approved, and the British are being asked to call the Navy's carrier fighter the Grumman Wildcat instead of "Martlet," as it is known in England.

At the request of the manufacturer, North American's advanced trainer, known in Britain as the "Harvard," will be called the "Texan" in the Army-Navy listing. The name "Warhawk" was adopted for the Curtiss P-40 which has been called in series the "Tomahawk," "Kittyhawk" and "Warhawk."

Code Designations

Here are the Army and Navy code designations, the manufacturers and the approved popular names of some other planes:

Medium bombers—B-18, Douglas Bolo; B-23, Douglas Dragon; B-25 and PBJ, North American Mitchell; B-26, Martin Marauder; B-34 and PV, Vega Ventura.

Light bombers—A-20 and BD, Douglas Havoc (attack); A-24 and SBD, Douglas Dauntless (dive); A-25 and SB2C, Curtiss Helldiver (dive); A-29 and PBO, Lockheed Hudson (patrol); A-34 and SB2A, Brewster Buccaneer (dive); A-35, Vultee Vengeance (dive); SB2U, Vought-Sikorsky Vindicator (dive); TBD, Douglas Devastator (torpedo); TBF, Grumman Avenger (torpedo).

Patrol bombers of flying boats—OA-10 or PBY, Consolidated Catalina; PB2Y, Consolidated Coronado; PBM, Martin Mariner.

Scouting observation seaplanes—Curtill Seagull; OS2U, Vought-Sikorsky Kingfisher.

Transports—C-43 and GB, Beech Traveler; C-45A and JRB, Beech Voyager; C-46, and R5C, Curtiss Commando; C-47, Douglas Skytrain; C-53 and R4D, Douglas Skytrooper; C-54 and R5D, Douglas Skymaster; C-45 and R50, Lockheed Lodestar; C-61 and GK, Fairchild Forwarder; C-69, Lockheed Constellation; C76, Curtiss Caravan; C-87, Consolidated Liberator Express; JR2S, Vought-Sikorsky Excalibur.

U.S. Planes Can Cope With Nazis and Japs

Able to Dispose of German Craft in the Same Successful Manner They Smash at Nipponese.

JAN 4 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—American war planes have shown their ability "to dispose of Hitler's newest Focke-Wulf 190s and his Messerschmitt 109s in the same successful manner in which they have been destroying Japan's air forces in the South Pacific," the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce said today.

277 to 114 Score

Between the opening of the African campaign and Jan. 1 the Allies lost 114 planes in North Africa —59 of them American—while destroying 277 enemy combat craft, the chamber reported.

At the same time the War and Navy departments announced official adoption of popular names, such as Flying Fortress and Liberator bombers, for combat aircraft. The two services have been using code letters to identify types of planes. They adopted popular names "in order that the general public may get a better idea of the character of military aircraft and more easily identify the combat planes mentioned in press dispatches from the battlefields of the world."

The aeronautical chamber, an organization of aircraft companies, said the Allies' successful operations against German and Italian air fleets had been carried out "despite the fact that the Nazis to date have had every advantage, operating from short lines of communication, adequate airfields and with vastly smaller areas to defend. Great numbers of America's most deadly fighters and bombers are being concentrated in the North African war theatre for the final full-scale lunge against the Axis."

Among these U. S. planes, the chamber noted, is the P-38 Lightning, a twin-engined fighter built

Blockade, Bombardment Seen Plan To Wreck Jap's Military Might Allied Strategy Considered Cheaper Method Than Island-by-Island Advance Against Enemy in Pacific.

JAN 4 1943

Interpreting the War News
By John M. Higthtower

A strategy of blockade and bombardment seems to be developing as the basic Allied strategy for destroying Japan's military might, breaking down her home front and winning final victory in the Pacific and east Asia.

Cheaper Method

This plan for victory is regarded by highly placed military authorities as a cheaper method of winning the war in the Orient than an island-by-island advance climaxed by a bitterly resisted invasion of the Japanese homeland.

There will be some island-by-island advancing, of course, but it will have the primary objective of wearing down Japanese forces rather than gaining territory. And certainly there will be an invasion of Japan, but probably not until Japanese resistance is weakened severely by other measures.

The American-Australian conquest of Buna, New Guinea, may be regarded as the successful completion of one initial move in fulfillment of the blockade and bombardment strategy. Buna, as a forward base for General Douglas MacArthur's southwest Pacific forces, should serve somewhat the same purpose as Guadalcanal has in its role of forward base for Admiral William F. Halsey's south Pacific command.

Guadalcanal for all its cost in American lives, has been a highly profitable military investment. The Japanese, reluctant as ever to relinquish any point they have once held, made it profitable by throwing prodigal uantities of ships, planes and troops into the fight to retake it.

They have lost at Guadalcanal about five times as many ships, planes and men as the United States and this in the face of the fact that our military might has been constantly in the increase while their problems of production and replacement are difficult.

It is now almost five months since the Navy and Marines took Guadalcanal and no effort has been made to advance beyond there. Why? The best answer seems to be that our strategy primarily is not to advance but to destroy the Japanese army, navy and air forces. So long as we can do that from Guadalcanal, no great purpose is served by going elsewhere to accomplish it.

An eventual advance from Guadalcanal must, of course, be in the books. The time for that will be when the Japs no longe go there in profitable numbers to get knocked off. And the time will be determined, too, by the availability of new aircraft carriers for our Navy.

Buna Win Another Victory

By their victory at Buna, MacArthur's forces have won another point from which great attrition may be worked on Japanese land, sea and air forces at the very ends of their long supply lines. Even if the Japs do not attempt to retake Buna as they repeatedly tried to recapture Guadalcanal, our air forces from that new base can bring disaster on their shipping at Lae and Salamaua about 100 miles up the coast to the northeast and can neutralize those two bases for enemy aerial operations.

Moreover lanes from Guadalcanal and Buna are now in position to hammer the enemy base at Rabaul, New Britain, from two directions. Since the Japanese certainly will not give up strategic Rabaul short of imperative necessity, it seems likely that they will lose heavily in shipping there, as they have in fact already done, and at the same time further overload their cargo tonnage by moving in supply and troop replacements to make up for those destroyed by our aircraft.

Further Steps

If and when it becomes desireable to do so in order to continue wearing down Jap land, sea and air power, it seems likely that our Pacific and Australian commands will take Rabaul or any other strategic places which will best serve the purpose at the time.

As Japanese maritime strength wanes it will become more and more difficult for her to supply even those bases not attacked and her production at home will be under an increasingly heavy load to provide not only for her Pacific outposts but also for her armies in China and Burma where the Allies are already putting on pressure.

Thus it may turn out, as some American military men confidently expect, that the Japs will have to withdraw from some of her conquered aras even though not under attack.

Once the process of attrition has done its work against Japan, the final step, short of actual invasion, probably will be a blockade of the enemy's home islands by combined British and American naval forces and bombardment of the Japanese homeland by our planes which, it is expected, will then have bases for such operations.

BURMA HIGHWAY STRAFED BY ALLIES

Five Enemy Trucks Destroyed, Jap Bomber Shot Down.

WITH THE AMERICAN AIR FORCE IN CHINA, Jan. 2—(Delayed)—(AP) Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's fighters shot down a Japanese I-45 reconnaissance bomber in another sweep over Burma today and strafed the Burma highway, destroying five enemy trucks and possibly two others.

Capt. Charles Wellborn of Hugee Springs, Tex., sent the I-45 down in flames in combat 40 miles east of Bhamo, itself 180 miles northeast of Mandalay.

Lieut. Col. Bruce Holloway of Knoxville, Tenn., and Lieut. William Miller of Stevens Point, Wis., flew to the enemy base at Lashio where the Japanese failed to give combat, and then turned their guns upon objectives on the highway near Loiwing.

"One truck we shot up hurtled off the road into a valley, Colonel Holloway said. "Most of the Japs in it apparently jumped before it crashed, however."

R.A.F. PLANES ATTACK JAP AIRFIELD IN BURMA

NEW DELHI, Jan. 3 — (AP) R.A.F. planes shot up a Japanese air field of Magwe in central Burma yesterday and also probably sank two small Japanese steamers with cannon fire, a British communique said today.

A bomber on offensive patrol damaged other coastal ships south of Akyab, the communique reported.

In the attack at Magwe, Hurricane fighters swooped low over the field, spraying gun positions with bullets and setting fire to a number of Japanese planes parked in the dispersal area, it was said.

Japanese Gain Near Hankow

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 3 (AP)—The High Command said today that Japanese troops had captured Macheng, a transport center sixty miles northeast of Hankow, but that Chinese troops were resisting in the neighborhood.

Chinese Base Is Bombed

A German broadcast recorded by The Associated Press said a dispatch from Nanking reported that a large formation of Japanese army bombers supportetd by fighters made a heavy attack yesterday on Yungan, Chinese base in Fukien Province, about 110 miles west of Foochow. Fuel depots and munitions dumps near the city were reported to have been destroyed.

All the Japanese planes returned safely to their bases, the dispatch said.

China Badly Needs Fighting Equipment

CHUNGKING, Jan. 3 (AP) — The Allies must rush planes, tanks and heavy artillery to China "at all costs and at all risks" so that the Chinese army can rout the Japanese from the mainland of Asia, Shao Yu Lin, director of information for the Chinese foreign office, said today in an article in the newspaper Ta Kung Pao.

Allied naval and air forces must come to the aid of the Chinese army, he said, for even if the Burma Road eventually is reopened, much valuable time will be lost.

JAN 4 1943

The Japanese, anticipating Allied aerial attacks on their islands, have moved many important industrial plants to Manchukuo and North China, the director said.

"Japan's air strength is particularly weak. With a monthly output of about 300 planes she already is finding it difficult to meet the needs of her far-flung war front. Quantitatively and qualitatively the Japanese air force is no match for the Allies," he added.

NEWSPRINT QUOTAS SET FOR 25 MAKERS

Canada's Prices Board Assigns Percentages of Total Production to Plants

COMPENSATION IS FIXED

Adjustments Are Provided for, Involving Basic and Net Mill Prices

OTTAWA, Jan. 3 (AP)—To each of Canada's twenty-five newsprint manufacturers has been assigned an established percentage of total production under a compensation plan for the newsprint industry, which was made public tonight by the Prices Board. The allocation schedule was made necessary by previous orders curtailing newsprint production.

The percentage of total production, however, will remain constant unless, and until, changed by R. L. Weldon, Administrator of Newsprint.

"This is a fixed percentage of the total amount of newsprint invoiced by all manufacturers in any month," the statement of the Prices Board read. The established percentages of the various manufacturers were determined by the Administration after many consultations with members of the industry's advisory committee.

Here is how the compensation plan will function: JAN 4 1943

Functioning of Scheme

When, in any calendar month, a manufacturer invoices to his customers, and to other manufacturers, a quantity of newsprint manufactured by him to excess of his established percentage, he will be required to remit a proportionate sum of a fund established by the Prices Stability Corporation for the purposes of the order. When, in any month, a manufacturer invoices newsprint in an amount short of his percentatge, he is to receive from the fund a corresponding sum. Cost of operating the compensation plan is to be borne by the stabilization fund.

Amounts which manufacturers are to remit, or receive, in consequence of allocation and other controls exercised since last Sept. 1 are to be set by the administrator on or before Jan. 20. Remittances to the fund, and payments to other manufacturers, are to be made on or before Jan. 25, and payments out of the fund must be made by Feb. 1.

Arrangement for Payment

The announcement said that in the case of "transferred tonnage" —newsprint tonnage which the administrator orders transferred by one manufacturer to another for production—the manufacturer who produces and ships it is to invoice it at full price to the transferring mill, which is to pay on or before the 25th of the month following invoice date.

Each manufacturer who produces and ships transferred tonnabe is required, when directed by the administrator, to pay into or receive from the fund whatever amount is necessary to adjust the basic mill net price of the tonnage to the basic mill net price of the manufacturer's own tonnage of newsprint.

The order defines "basic mill net price" as that received by each manufacturer from his customer after deducting:

(1) All transportation and delivery charges paid by the manufacturer;

(2) All storage and incidental charges paid by the manufacturer, in the case of water shipments, and

(3) All charges for extra charges made by the manufacturer for newsprint other than standard white newsprint in rolls, as customarily wrapped for shipment to customers in Canada and the United States.

Formula for Contributions

Contributions to the fund on account of tonnage in excess of established percentage are determined by a complicated formula. It is set forth in the order as follows:

"Such sum shall be the product of the average price a ton charged by the manufacturer for the newsprint paper invoiced to his own customers in such month multiplied by the number of tons of such excess tonnage, less an amount equal to the difference between such manufacturer's total costs of operation during such month and such manufacturer's total estimated costs of operation at the level of his established percentage including in both instances full allowances for depreciation and fixed charges." The amount to be received from the fund by manufacturers falling below their established percentage is similarly computed.

In determining the amounts to be paid or received, however, the administrator is authorized to consider gains or losses arising from the manufacture on newsprint machines of products other than newsprint paper with respect to the relative profits of such other products compared to newsprint and also any reduction in costs occasioned by operation at a rate below the established percentage.

Capacity a Determinant

It is provided that no manufacturer shall be entitled to receive or participate in any compensation for tonnage in excess of his recognized capacity to produce newsprint, based upon his previous performance as determined by the administrator.

If at any time payments into the fund exceed disbursments by an amount unnecessarily large, the administrator may order payments to the manufacturers on the basis of their established percentages.

If, on the other hand, payments prove insufficient for requirements, the administrator may order payments to the fund by manufacturers on the same basis.

U.S. CRACKS DOWN ON DRAFT LAXITY

Delinquent Registrants Will Be Prosecuted After Feb. 1, Officials Warn.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP) Selective Service headquarters announced today that "vigorous action" against draft delinquents would be started by the Justice department Feb. 1.

The action will be directed against men "believed to be delinquent by reason of failure to keep in touch with their local boards as required." Selective Service estimated their number at "less than three-tenths of one per cent of all registrants."

Must Carry Cards

In connection with the campaign, Selective Service issued these two orders:

Beginning Feb. 1, "all men in the 18 to 45 age groups who for six months or more have been subject to registration" must carry their classification as well as their registration cards or risk penalties as great as five years in prison and $10,000 fine.

Local draft boards will mail notices to delinquent registrants immediately and report to U. S. district attorneys those who do not "comply with their obligations during January." The boards also are to review their records on delinquency and keep them up to date, notifying the prosecutor when each delinquent complies with his obligations.

Indication of Contact

The requirement that the 18-to-45 registrants—who include many men deferred by the recent order lowering the maximum draft age to 37 years—carry classification cards will enable them to "show that they are in communication with their local boards and have been classified as to availability for military service," the announcement said.

Registrants who do not have classification cards or have lost them should communicate with their local boards before Feb. 1 and obtain them "so as to avoid charges of delinquency," it added.

The service said most delinquencies were believed "due to negligency or lack of understanding of Selective Service regulations," and reported that the record of 0.3 per cent delinquency among all registrants compared with a 4.5 per cent delinquency between 1917 and 1918.

Headquarters reminded board members that the Justice department was charged with enforcing the draft act and making any necessary arrests or prosecutions.

Rep. Voorhis Attacks Dies Committee Work

Member Claims Group Neglected Opportunity To Stiffen American Resistance to Propaganda and Build United Democratic Sentiment.

JAN 4 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Rep. Voorhis (D-Calif) protested today that the Dies committee of which he is a member, had neglected an opportunity to stiffen American resistance to Axis propaganda and build "Unified democratic sentiment" as the House group investigating un-American activities issued its annual report.

Prepared Report

Voorhis also declared that the committee should have issued long ago a report he prepared at the request of Chairman Dies (D. Tex.) on "activities favorable to the Axis cause."

The committee report itself said that government agencies charged with internal security had found the committee's 135 cabinets of files "a veritable fountainhead of information" to assist them in their work. It also reviewed its findings as to the employment of alleged Communists in various government agencies and charged Attorney General Biddle and some department heads with failure to act effectively on its recommendations.

Voorhis, presenting a minority report for the first time during his membership, said he agreed fully that Communists should not be employed in the government but questioned the sufficiency of some of the evidence, such as mailing lists, for the findings. He added that the principal question was "whether individuals in question really are 'subversive' on the one hand or whether they simply are people whose views don't agree with the majority on the other hand."

"There is at present all too much tendency in America," he continued, "for so-called 'left-wingers' to shout 'Fascist' at every conservative who holds an important position in the WPB for example, and the 'right-wingers' to shout 'Communist' at Liberals or Progressives who hold positions in some department or agency.

"This sort of thing is doing America no good. In some respects it is positively dangerous. For it associates in the public mind the words 'Fascist' and 'Communist' not with those to whom they can properly and accurately be applied but with persons whose patriotic devotion to America and her basic institutions cannot be questioned."

No Opportunity For Discussion

Voorhis also complained that "there has been no opportunity for discussion or amendment of the report or for committee members to do any work upon it. No meeting has been held for its consideration. The report was presented to members on a 'take it or leave it' basis." In the same connection he declared that much of the material on alleged Communists "deals not with matters upon which there was any committee action whatsoever, but only individual action taken by the chairman."

The majority report reviewed the committee's findings that Communists held important government positions and had fomented strikes in defense industries in 1941.

In regard to "the Axis front movement in the United States," the committee said that government officials had depended heavily upon its investigations in prosecuting various Nazi sympathizers and reported that "for several months the committee has been preparing a comprehensive report on the Axis front movement in this country."

Voorhis commented that this report "has not yet been approved by the committee and there appears to be some doubt even that it will be approved. In any case most of the material upon which it is based has been in the committee's possession for months and such a report should have been issued long ago."

but that trial would not be held until such time as public interest and safety would permit.

Agreeing with Connally's viewpoint, Senator Brewster (R-Me.) said he thought publication of the White Book would be helpful not only in giving the people the facts about the situation but for the ef-

Senators Say White Book Proves Laxity

Members of Congress View Report as Evidence Army and Navy Disregarded Months of Warning.

JAN 4 1943

By Jack Bell

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 — (AP) Members of Congress were inclined today to view the newly issued American White Book as proof that the Army and Navy disregarded months of warnings by State Department officials that the Japanese planned sudden war in the Pacific.

Grew Gave Warning

The book, reviewing 10 years of American diplomacy preceding Pearl Harbor, was issued by the State Department last night. It disclosed that Ambassador Joseph C. Grew had cabled from Tokyo Jan. 27, 1941, that there was danger the Japanese might launch a "surprise mass attack at Pearl Harbor in case of 'trouble' with the United States" and that other urgent warnings had been transmitted to the State Department.

Commenting that Secretary of State Hull must surely have communicated this information to the War and Navy Departments, Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate foreign relations committee told reporters it was unfortunate that the warning was not heeded "by those whose duty it was to stand guard in a distant outpost and to heed important warnings that affected the nation's security."

"If the Army and Navy Departments knew what the State Department says it knew," Connally continued, "their tragic negligence of our security in Hawaii is all the more significant."

Relieved of Commands

Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, and Lieut. Gen. Walter C. Short, commander of the Hawaiian military department, were relieved of their commands shortly after the Pearl Harbor attack. Subsequently, the Navy and War Departments announced that preparations of charges for trial by court-martial had been ordered fect it might have on future cooperation and coordination of activities of various government departments.

"The White Book certainly clarifies the relationship of the State Department to this situation and makes even more serious the responsibility now borne by the War and Navy Departments for the Pearl Harbor disaster," he said.

'State Dept. Clear,' Says Taft

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said the disclosures in the book bore out his previous belief that the State Department was "in the clear," particularly in view of the revelation that Hull had told the British ambassador Nov. 29, 1941, only eight days before the surprise Japanese assault, that "the diplomatic part of our relations with Japan was virtually over and that the matter will now go to the officials of the Army and Navy."

Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) recalled that in February, 1941, he had introduced a resolution asking that the secretary of state be called before the Senate to explain the progress of negotiations with Japan. He said it was barely possible that if Congress had known the seriousness of the situation even at that time, it might have taken some action that would have prevented the surprise attack.

"It was just mental isolation that made the Pearl Harbor attack possible," he declared.

Removal of Tugwell to Be Sought In Bill by Senator Vandenberg

His Governorship Branded a Threat to Puerto Rico's Welfare—Congressional Responsibility on Incumbents to Be Asked

JAN 4 1943

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—Senator Vandenberg of Michigan announced today he would introduce legislation as soon as the new Congress convenes to remove Rexford G. Tugwell as Governor of Puerto Rico.

"Serious doubt" exists whether Tugwell should be left in office, Mr. Vandenberg said, in view of "petitions from numerous native Puerto Rican groups who believe that his swiftly expanding bureaucracy and his superlatively expensive administration, with all its implicit national socialization, is a fateful threat to our island wards."

Mr. Vandenberg's Statement

The text of Mr. Vandenberg's statement follows:

"I shall introduce a bill, as soon as the new Congress meets, to terminate the tenure of Governor Tugwell of Puerto Rico forthwith, and to fix a definite two-year term hereafter for his successors. This is the only sure way that Congress can act conclusively on the Tugwell matter.

"Under existing law the Governor of Puerto Rico serves indefinitely at the pleasure of the President.

"If at any time his removal is deemed advisable by Congress the only available process is impeachment, which is confined to high crimes and misdemeanors of which an otherwise wholly discredited Governor might not be guilty.

"The only other alternative would be a Congressional resolution recommending his dismissal to the President. But when that recourse was invoked in 1924 against certain Cabinet officers President Coolidge promptly rejected the advice as falling outside the constitutional jurisdiction of the Congress. It seems that the answer to this dilemma is for the Governor of Puerto Rico to have a fixed term which forces him to pass periodically in Congressional review.

Puts Onus in Washington

"It cannot be denied that there is serious doubt whether Governor Tugwell should longer be left in control of Puerto Rico's destinies. The House of Representatives feels this fact so keenly that its unanimous agricultural committee recently made a $15,000,000 relief appropriation wholly contingent upon Tugwell's retirement. But that is a poor recourse—namely, to withhold relief from the victims of famine until there is a change in a Governorship over which the [illegible] famine have no control.

sponsibilities for the Governorship is here in Washington and it should be met here in Washington.

"Governor Tugwell's removal has been prayerfully sought by petitions from numerous native Puerto Rican groups who believe that his swiftly expanding bureaucracy and his superlatively expensive administration, with all its implicit national socialization, is a fateful threat to our island wards. His pattern of things, which failed so dismally at home, is being foisted with magnificent abandon upon prostrate Puerto Rico. Among others who have asked for his removal are the Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico to the United States, the Union Republican, Socialist and Unification parties of Puerto Rico, the Chamber of Commerce, the Farmers Association and the Free Federation of Labor of Puerto Rico.

Charges an Act of Reprisal

"But the only 'removal' thus far has been the summary Presidential order 'removing' Attorney General George A. Malcolm, one of the most distinguished career servants in the American foreign service, because he opposed what he officially branded as Tugwell's unconstitutional and illegal acts.

"A special Senate committee is investigating the critical Puerto Rican famine. But it has only limited jurisdiction and limited resources, although its findings are calculated to have an important bearing upon the Tugwell regime. All roads in Puerto Rico finally lead to Forteleza, Governor Tugwell's official palace.

"It is my opinion that the whole Tugwell regime should promptly pass in Congressional review. Congress cannot escape its share of Puerto Rican responsibility. But it cannot implement this responsibility under existing circumstances—except by some such dubious device as the House committee recently invoked. I think we should meet the issue head-on.

"If Governor Tugwell's tenure is terminated by statute, and his successors are put on a fixed tenure, the President can renominate Governor Tugwell if he sees fit. Then the Senate can explore and clarify the whole situation before it reconfirms him. He was confirmed in the first instance by a margin of one vote with only twenty-one out of ninety-six Senators present. The situation calls for this showdown—for the sake of Governor Tugwell, for the sake of Puerto Rico, for the sake of Congressional responsibility, and for the sake of the 'American way of life' which, in my opinion, Governor Tugwell wholly distorts in his public operations."

A DOZEN AMERICAN PARACHUTISTS WERE REPORTED CAPTURED ALONG WITH TWO ALLIED TANKS IN THE GROUND FIGHTING.

THE AIR ACTIVITY WAS DESCRIBED AS "INTENSE." THE COMMUNIQUE SAID THE ALLIED RAIDS ON TUNISIAN CENTERS "CAUSED SOME DAMAGE."

OF THE FIGHTING IN LIBYA, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT BRITISH ARMORED UNITS WERE SHELLED BY AXIS ARTILLERY "IN SIRTICA" (APPARENTLY A GENERAL REFERENCE TO THE GULF OF SIRTE REGION.)

JAN 4 1943

ATTACKS BY FIGHTING FRENCH FORCES IN THE GAZZAN AND FEZZAN REGIONS OF SOUTHERN LIBYA WERE REPORTED FRUSTRATED "THANKS TO THE BRAVE RESISTANCE OF OUR GARRISON, WHICH WAS SUPPORTED BY UNITS OF OUR AVIATION."

BERLIN (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS) JAN. 3-(AP)-A TRANSOCEAN NEWS AGENCY DISPATCH QUOTED AUTHORITATIVE QUARTERS TODAY AS SAYING A GERMAN U-BOAT HAD SUNK AN 8,000-TON UNITED STATES AMMUNITION CARRIER FROM AN ALLIED CONVOY HEADED FOR ORAN, ALGERIA.

(THIS CLAIM WAS WITHOUT CONFIRMATION FROM ALLIED QUARTERS.))

BERLIN--FIRST ADD CONVOY X X X ALLIED QUARTERS.)

THE GERMAN RADIO EARLIER QUOTED ADVICES FROM LA LINEA, SPAIN, AS SAYING THAT A POWERFUL FORMATION OF BRITISH SXXX WARSHIPS HAD MOVED EASTWARD INTO THE MEDITERRANEAN SATURDAY FROM GIBRALTAR.

JAN 4 1943

THE FORMATION WAS REPORTED TO HAVE INCLUDED THE AIRCRAFT CARRIERS FORMIDABLE AND FURIOUS, THE 33,950-TON BATTLESHIPS NELSON AND RODNEY, TWO CRUISERS AND EIGHT DESTROYERS.

THE HIGH COMMAND DECLARED THAT, IN ADDITION TO THE REPORTED DESTRUCTION OF THE AMMUNITION CARRIER, A 10,000-TON FREIGHTER WAS SUNK IN A BOMBING OF BONE, EASTERN ALGERIAN PORT.

"INSTALLATIONS AND AIR BASES IN THE TUNISIAN-ALGERIAN BORDER TERRITORY WERE EFFECTIVELY BOMBED," IT SAID. "THE BRITISH LOST 15 PLANES IN AERIAL COMBATS. NO LOSSES OF OUR OWN OCCURRED."

ARTILLERY FIRE WAS DECLARED TO HAVE REPULSED BRITISH ATTACKS IN LIBYA WHILE IN TUNISIA AXIS THRUSTS "RESULTED IN A FURTHER GAIN OF TERRAIN."

JAN 4 1943

BERLIN (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS) JAN. 3-(AP)-- ADMIRAL JEAN ESTEVA, RESIDENT-GENERAL IN TUNISIA, SENT A NEW YEAR'S MESSAGE TO MARSHAL HENRI PETAIN SAYING THAT DESPITE THE "SERIOUS EVENTS" IN NORTH AFRICA, THE PEOPLE OF TUNISIA REMAIN LOYAL TO THE FRENCH CHIEF OF STATE AND THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT TRANSOCEAN REPORTED TODAY FROM VICHY.

BERLIN (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS), JAN.3-(AP)-THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND SAID TODAY THAT HEAVY DEFENSIVE FIGHTING WAS CONTINUING ON THE MIDDLE DON FRONT IN RUSSIA AND THAT THE RED ARMY HAD BEEN BEATEN BACK ALONG THE WHOLE FRONT.

NEW YORK, JAN. 3-(AP)-- THE BERLIN RADIO TODAY BROADCAST A REPORT BY THE PARIS NEWSPAPER PARIS SOIR THAT PIERRE LAVAL WOULD COME TO PARIS FROM VICHY NEXT WEEK TO REOPEN THE NEGOTIATIONS BEGUN LAST MONTH AT HITLER'S HEADQUARTERS.

JAN 4 1943

THE PAPER SAID IT COULD BE PRESUMED THAT THE NEGOTIATIONS WOULD DEAL WITH ADMINISTRATIVE PROBLEMS, AND

THAT "GREATER FREEDOM OF ACTION AT HOME" FOR LAVAL HAS JAN 4 1943

EXPECTED TO BE ONE OF THE RESULTS.

NEW YORK, JAN. 3-(AP)— THE BISHOP OF WUERTTEMBERG HAS PROTESTED TO PROPAGANDA MINISTER GOEBBELS "ATTACKS ON CHRISTIANITY" ISSUING FROM GERMAN PRINTING PRESSES WHILE "THE CHURCH IS PROHIBITED TO PRINT THE BIBLE," A BRITISH BROADCASTING COMPANY BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSIONSAID TODAY.

THE ENGLISH-LANGUAGE BROADCAST TO EUROPE QUOTED THE BISHOP AS SAYING IN A LETTER THAT "YOU ARE TRYING TO DRIVE THE GERMAN PEOPLE AWAY FROMTHE CHURCH."

THE BISHOP'S LETTER, HE SAID, WAS PRINTED IN A SWEDISH NEWSPAPER DEC. 17, DECLARING: JAN 4 1943

"ATTACKS ON CHRISTIANITY POUR OUTFROM GERMAN PRINTING PRESSES. ANTI-CHRISTIAN BOOKS, PAMPHLETS AND PERIODICALS APPEAR IN HEAPS. MANY, MANY OF THEM ARE SENT STRAIGHT TO OUR SOLDIERS ON THE BATTLEFRONTS.

"BUT THE GERMAN CHURCH IS FORBIDDEN TO PRINT THE BIBLE OR ITS HYMN BOOKS, OR EVEN A SINGLE RELIGIOUS LEAFLET.

"IN YOUR PROPAGANDA TO THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE, YOU SAY, 'ADOLF HITLER AND THE GERMAN ARMY WISH TO RESTORE FREEDOM OF RELIGION TO THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE,' BUT IN GERMANY YOU WORK IN A QUITE OPPOSITE DIRECTION. YOU ARE TRYING TO DRIVE [redacted] PEOPLE AWAY FROM THE CHURCH." JAN 4 1943

CAIRO, JAN.3-(AP)-A COMBINED AMERICAN AND BRITISH RAIDING FORCE, INCLUDING FOUR-MOTORED U.S. BOMBERS, RAINED EXPLOSIVES ON AXIS AIRDROMES ON THE ISLAND OF CRETE IN A DAYLIGHT ATTACK YESTERDAY, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY. JAN 4 1943

HITS WERE OBSERVED ON RUNWAYS AND AMONG DISPERSED AIRCRAFT, WHILE ONE MESSERSCHMITT 109 FIGHTER WHICH ATTACKED A FORMATION OF ALLIED MEDIUM BOMBERS WAS SHOT DOWN AND ANOTHER WAS DAMAGED.

INCLUDED IN THE ATTACKING FORCE WERE BOTH HEAVY AND MEDIUM SHIPS OF THE NINTH U.S. ARMY AIR FORCE AND LIGHT BOMBERS OF THE RAF.

THE DAYLIGHT ASSAULT WAS PRECEDED BY A NIGHT ATTACK IN WHICH A NUMBER OF FIRES WERE STARTED ON NAZI LANDING FIELDS.

THE DAYLIGHT ATTACK WAS PUSHED HOME DESPITE POOR FLYING WEATHER. AMONG THE TARGETS POUNDED WERE THE PORT OF SUDA BAY, TIMBAKI AIR FIELD AND KASTELI.

JAN 4 1943

WITH THE AMERICAN AIR FORCES IN TUNISIA, JAN.2-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE GROUND NEVER LOOKED SO GOOD TO ME IN MY LIFE AS IT DOES RIGHT NOW FOR I HAVE JUST RETURNED FROM THE SECOND BIGGEST BOMBING RAID OF THE WAR ON TUNIS.

THE FLYING FORTRESS I RODE IN HAD HOLES KNOCKED IN IT BY TERRIFIC ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE AND ONE OF OUR GUNNERS WAS WOUNDED.

BESIDES POUNDING DOCKS AND OTHER OBJECTIVES AT TUNIS AND BIZERTE, BIG FORTRESSES KNOCKED DOWN AT LEAST TEN GERMAN PLANES IN ONE OF THE HOTTEST AIR BATTLES OF THE NORTH AFRICAN WAR.

AS WE STEPPED OUT OF THE FORTRESS TWO AMERICAN P-38 FIGHTERS CAME RACING ABOVE THE FIELD AND DIPPED THEIR WINGS IN THE VICTORY ROLL WHICH MEANT THAT EACH HAD ACCOUNTED FOR AN ENEMY CRAFT.

WHEN WE LANDED, WE THOUGHT WE HAD LOST FIVE PLANES FROM OUR FORMATION, BUT A LITTLE LATER THEY TURNED UP ESCORTING A BATTERED PLANE PILOTED BY LIEUT.FRANK EVANS, 23-YEAR-OLD FLIER FROM SAND POINT, IDAHO, WHO BROUGHT THE SHIP IN DESPITE THE FACT IT HAD HAD TWO MOTORS SHOT AWAY, AND TWO OF THE CREW WERE WOUNDED. JAN 4 1943

SERGEANT DOUGLAS J.UPTON, 31, OF GRASS VALLEY, CALIF., OUR REAR GUNNER, TOLD CAPT.GORDON SARRE, THE INTELLIGENCE OFFICER HERE, THAT HE AND THE REAR GUNNER IN THE PLANE FLYING NEXT TO US HAD SHOT DOWN AT LEAST ONE ATTACKING GERMAN PLANE.

I LEARNED THE HARD WAY THAT WHAT THE BOYS CALL "THE DAISY CHAIN" RUN OVER TUNIS AND BIZERTE IS ONE OF THE HOTTEST AIR SPOTS IN THE WORLD TODAY FOR ALLIED BOMBERS.

AS WE FLEW IN OUR FORMATION, TAKING EVASIVE ACTION, THEY TRIED TO BREAK THE DAISY CHAIN FORMATION OUR FIGHTERS FLEW. THE TERRIFIC FIRE POWER WHICH THE RELATIVELY CONCENTRATED AREA OF GUNS AND FIREPOWER HAS ALLOWED THE AXIS AIRMEN TO ASSEMBLE THERE.

I KNEW WHAT THEY MEANT WHEN WE GOT OVER THE TARGET AND I SAW BLACK PUFFS AROUND THE FORTRESSES AT THE RIGHT. THEY THEY WERE AROUND OUR PLANES.

YOU JUST HEAR EXPLOSIONS AND LOOKING AND YOU SEE A BLACK BALL FLY BY. OUR BOMBING RUN WAS ONLY 45 SECONDS BUT I WONDERED IF WE WOULD EVER GET OUT OF THE

NEW GUINEA

BY VERN HAUGLAND

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, JAN.3-(AP)-WITH THE BUNA MISSION AREA CLEARED OF JAPANESE AFTER SANGUINARY FIGHTING YESTERDAY, VICTORIOUS AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN TROOPS WENT GRIMLY ABOUT THE TASK OF EXTERMINATING THE LAST REMAINING POCKET OF ENEMY RESISTANCE WEST OF GIROPA CREEK TODAY.

THE ALLIED SWEEP THROUGH THE BUNA MISSION AREA, ANNOUNCED IN A TRIUMPHANT STATEMENT FROM GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, GAVE THE ALLIES CONTROL OF THE NORTHEAST NEW GUINEA PORT TOWARD WHICH THEY BEGAN FIGHTING THEIR WAY FROM PORT MORESBY LATE IN SEPTEMBER.

ANTICIPATING THE FINAL VICTORY, GEN.MACARTHUR EARLIER ANNOUNCED THAT HIS TROOPS HAD "BROKEN THE BACK OF ENEMY RESISTANCE" AND WERE "DESTROYING HIS SHATTERED FORCES." ALLIED FORCES WERE MOVING FROM TWO SIDES, HIS COMMUNIQUE SAID, TO CRUSH THE JAPANESE WHO [illegible]SISTED SO TENACIOUSLY IN THEIR JUNGLE BUNKERS AND PILLBOXES.

JAN 4 1943

WITH THE FALL OF BUNA MISSION, ONLY A FEW JAPANESE SNIPERS WERE LEFT ON GIROPA POINT, AND GEN.MACARTHUR'S SPOKESMAN SAID THEY WERE BEING "RAPIDLY ELIMINATED." WEST OF GIROPA CREEK, HOWEVER, HE SAID A SMALL GROUP OF THE ENEMY STILL WERE RESISTING DESPERATELY DURING A BATTLE STILL IN PROGRESS.

TANKS, ARTILLERY AND LOW-FLYING, MACHINE-GUNNING FIGHTER PLANES PARTICIPATED IN THE FINAL BLOODY ASSAULT AGAINST THE ENTRENCHED JAPANESE AFTER WEDGES HAD BEEN DRIVEN BETWEEN THE ENEMY FORCES. TANK-LED AUSTRALIAN INFANTRY DROVE IN FROM THE RIGHT TO OVERWHELM THE JAPANESE STRONGPOINT AROUND GIROPA POINT BEFORE THEY AND THEIR AMERICAN ALLIES CRUSHED THE LAST ENEMY RESISTANCE AT BU[illegible]SSION.

GEN.MACARTHUR'S SPOKESMAN GAVE NO DETAILS OF THE NUMBER OF JAPANESE KILLED OR CAPTURED, BUT IN PREVIOUS ALLIED VICTORIES AT GONA AND AT OTHER ENEMY BEACHHEADS IN THE AREA THE JAPANESE FOUGHT UNTIL THEY VIRTUALLY WERE EXTERMINATED. THE SPOKESMAN SAID ONLY THAT "SEVERE CASUALTIES" WERE INFLICTED ON THE JAPANESE.

WITH THE IMMINENT CLEARANCE OF THE ENTIRE BUNA SECTOR BY ALLIED TROOPS, THE ONLY ENEMY FORCE OF ANY CONSEQUENCE SHORT OF SALAMAUA AND LAE, 120 TO 160 MILES FARTHER NORTHWEST IN NEW GUINEA, IS ENTRENCHED IN THE CAPE SANANANDA AREA WEST OF BUNA.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT STRESSED THAT THE ENEMY IN THIS SECTOR WOULD HAVE TO BE ELIMINATED BEFORE THE PAPUAN CAMPAIGN COULD BE CONSIDERED COMPLETED. THIS UNDOUBTEDLY WILL CALL FOR MORE SEVERE FIGHTING, AS THE JAPANESE HAVE CONSTRUCTED DEFENSES IN DEPTH TWO MILES INLAND FROM SANANANDA POINT.

JAN 4 1943

THE JAPANESE DUG IN THERE AND, FACING EITHER EVENTUAL DEATH OR CAPTURE, ARE THE LAST SURVIVORS OF THE BIG ENEMY FORCE WHICH LAST JULY STARTED MOVING ACROSS THE TOWERING OWEN STANLEY MOUNTAINS TOWARD THE VITAL ALLIED BASE AT PORT MORESBY.

AT ONE TIME ADVANCE JAPANESE UNITS REACHED A POINT WITHIN 32 MILES OF PORT MORESBY, BUT THERE THEY ENCOUNTERED RUGGED RESISTANCE AND, FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THE PRESENT WAR, BEGAN A RETREAT.

LATE IN SEPTEMBER THE ALLIES STARTED A COUNTER-MARCH ACROSS THE TORTUOUS MOUNTAIN TRAILS, AND BY OCT.7 THEY HAD REACHED A MOUNTAIN GAP LEADING DOWN TOWARD BUNA. EMPLOYING AERIAL TRANSPORT, GEN. MACARTHUR THEN RUSHED IN FRESH TROOPS TO HELP PIN THE JAPANESE DOWN ON THE NARROW COASTAL STRIP BETWEEN BUNA AND GONA.

THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF ALLIED FORCES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC

TOOK THE FIELD PERSONALLY TO DIRECT THE SERIES OF CLIMACTIC ASSAULTS BY WHICH THE JAPANESE HAVE BEEN DECIMATED.

TOKYO (FROM JAPANESE BROADCASTS), JAN. 3—(AP)—EMPEROR HIROHITO PERSONALLY PARTICIPATED IN THE GENSHI-SAI, AGE-OLD NEW YEARS FESTIVAL OF THE JAPAIESE COURT IN THE IMPERIAL PALACE TODAY.

JAN 4 1943

THE CEREMONY WAS ATTENDED BY ALL THE PRINCES AND PRINCESSES OF THE BLOOD IN TOKYO AND BY HIGH MILITARY AND CIVILIAN OFFICIALS HEADED BY PREMIER GEN. HIDEKI TOJO.

STOCKHOLM, MONDAY, JAN 4-(AP)-THE BERLIN CORRESPONDENT OF THE STOCKHOLM NEWSPAPER DAGENS NYHETER EARLY TODAY QUOTED A GERMAN WAR CORRESPONDENT AS SAYING GERMAN SOLDIERS ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT "HAVE NOTHING TO LAUGH ABOUT" IN FIGHTING RUSSIANS SKILLED IN WINTER WARFARE.

THE GERMAN CORRESPONDENT WAS QUOTED AS SAYING:

"THE GERMAN SOLDIERS HAVE BETTER CLOTHES AND EQUIPMENT THAN LAST WINTER BUT THEY HAVE NO ILLUSIONS.

"THE RUSSIANS KNOW THE TERRAIN AND KNOW THE CHANGING WEATHER.

"THE SOVIET SOLDIERS, MOSTLY NEW TROOPS, ADVANCE BY CLIMBING ON TANKS WHICH IN FRONT ARE STRENGTHENED BY WELDED IRON PLATES. LONG-DISTANCE SKI RUNNERS, WHOSE SPECIALTY IS TO CARRY GRENADE THROWERS, ADVANCE THROUGH EVEN THE DEEPEST SNOW."

THE GERMAN REPORTER PRAISED THE SKILL OF THE RUSSIAN COMMANDERS, SAYING THEY ALWAYS CHANGE THEIR PLANS INSTINCTIVELY TO ACCOMODATE THEMSELVES TO NEW SITUATIONS.

JAN 4 1943

"OUR FRONT SOLDIERS DON'T UNDERESTIMATE THE RUSSIAN METHODS AND NONE OF US IS LAUGHING ABOUT THE ARMOR BELSHEVISM HAS AGAIN FIXED TO ITSELF," HE ADDED.

Reds Battle for Control of Large City, Capture Equipment.

LONDON, Jan. 4. — (AP) The Moscow radio announced in a special communique tonight the capture of the big German air base of Chernishkovskaya and the railway station of Chernishkov, an action which apparently drove closer together the jaws of a second pincers closing about the remnants of 22 trapped German divisions at Stalingrad.

The broadcast was heard by the Soviet monitor.

Halfway to Railroad

Chernishkov, approximately half way between Stalingrad and the Moscow-Rostov railway to the west, is only about 50 miles north of Tsimlyansk on the lower Don where the Germans forced their crossing last summer to drive upon Stalingrad from the southwest.

The southwestern counteroffensive of the Russians already had crossed the Don east of Tsimlyansk and reached positions northeast of the latter place.

The two arms of the pincers, previously reported as about 45 miles apart, now were apparently separated by a gap of only about 30 miles.

This second pincers appeared to be 40 or 50 miles west of the Russian zone which has sealed the Germans in at Stalingrad.

Chernishkovskaya is about 40 miles north of Chernishkov. Chernishkov is about 100 miles west of Stalingrad and is on the Stalingrad-Likhaya railway where it crosses the Tsiml river.

Soviet troops captured much booty, including 17 planes, 2,050,000, shells, 500,000 airplane bombs and stores of civilian and war supplies in the Chernishkovskaya area, the special communique said.

The regular midnight bulletin that followed said of this middle Don drive "our troops continued to tighten a ring around besieged enemy garrisons."

Germans Hurled Back

"The Germans threw strong forces into action in order to help one of their encircled garrisons," it continued. "Enemy infantry and tanks launched repeated counter-attacks. However the [illegible] of our artillery forced them back.

"More than 1,000 dead Germans remained on the field. Twenty-four German tanks were disabled and burned out."

Other Red army units driving ahead southwest and south of Stalingrad "continued their offensives and captured a number of inhabited localities."

JAN 5 1943

One Russian motorized unit was said to have outflanked a strong Nazi force, killing 300 of the enemy and dislodging the Germans from an important position. The retreating Nazis abandoned two tanks, 14 guns, nine trucks and a large amount of arms and ammunition, this communique said.

On the "northern Caucasus" front, presumably the drive in the Nalchik-Mozdok areas, the Russians said their troops killed 300 Germans in a fight for a large inhabited locality, and captured one tank, five trucks and 20 machine-guns. Forty-three trucks, 6,000 shells, 500 mines, three ammunition and supply dumps, and three radio transmitters were reported seized in another area of the same zone.

On the central front where the Russians announced several days ago they had captured Velikie Luki and were driving on toward the Latvian frontier, about 85 miles away, the midnight communique said the Red army was engaged in consolidating its positions.

Street Fighting Rages

One Russian unit, however, was reported to have broken into another inhabited locality and was engaged in street fighting. This may be Novosokolniki, a junction on the Leningrad-Vitebsk railway about 20 miles west of Velikie Luki.

The Russians also said that a guerrilla detachment in the Vitebsk area, 85 miles south of Velikie Luki, had wrecked three enemy troop trains, and had destroyed 92 trucks, 16 fuel dumps and other material.

"Small enemy groups" who counterattacked in the area west of Rzhev, a strongpoint still held by the Germans on this central front, were repulsed, the communique said.

Although the Russians have announced the trapping of huge German forces in the Don-Volga river pockets before Stalingrad, the communique said the Germans still were fighting inside the factory area of Stalingrad.

Russian troops still were destroying Nazi dugouts in a slow war of attrition. They approached some of these yesterday and blew them up with hand grenades and killed 200 Germans, the communique said.

Rail Station Also Taken As Russian Drives Gain

Second Pincers Draw Tight on Trapped Enemy Divisions Before Stalingrad

By Henry C. Cassidy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Jan. 4.—The Russian Caucasus offensive gathered momentum across foothills drenched by torrential rains today as the Red Army pursued the Germans west and northwest of recaptured Mozdok, 60 miles from the oil center of Grozny.

This latest drive was reported retaking territory rivaling in importance that seized in the earlier pushes on the Stalingrad front, in the Velikie Luki area and on the middle Don.

The Caucasus offensive appeared aimed at Prokhladnenski, a rail junction 35 miles west of Mozdok. Its capture would isolate the enemy southeast of Nalchik where the Russians also were on the move. The Moscow radio said German attempts to check the Russian advance below Nalchik were collapsing.

Russian offensives continued at a slower pace on other major sectors, where the Reds are within 70 miles of Latvia and 100 miles of Rostov, gateway to the whole Caucasus and its oil and mineral treasures. Mozdok and Velikie Luki are 1100 miles apart.

The Russians declared German lines were crumbling in the most important sectors, although the enemy was striving desperately to stiffen his stand.

(The Germans reported repeated Soviet attacks in the Don area, at Stalingrad and southeast of Lake Ilmen. They made no further mention of Velikie Luki, but said only that Nazi shock troops carried out several successful actions on the central front.)

The noon communique said Russian troops who captured Mozdok on the Terek River liberated several more villages, inflicting heavy losses. Central front troops were said to have "consolidated newly captured positions," repulsing counterattacks. One guard unit on the middle Don captured three villages, forcing remnants of the German garrison to flee in confusion, the report added.

South and southwest of Stalingrad, the Russians were said to be penetrating German defenses and capturing towns. Twin columns in that sparsely settled region were driving on the important railway junction of Salsk from two directions. One was thrusting down the Stalingrad-North Caucasus Railway 117 miles beyond the Volga city, and the other on the desolate Kalmyck steppes was within 90 miles of Salsk.

The Mozdok sector has been a battlefield since Aug. 26, when the Germans reached that region in an offensive across the Caucasus foothills toward the Caspian Sea. They succeeded in taking Mozdok only two months later on Oct. 25, after a bitter battle, but their drive on to the East was checked.

Stubborn Russian defense deflected the Germans to the south, where they were again halted and thrown back north from Ordzhonikidze, terminus of the Georgian military highway over the towering Caucasus Mountains.

Mozdok fell to the Russians suddenly. There had been no reports of recent battles there until the announcement Sunday night of the reoccupation of the town and railway station, as well as Malgobek, fifteen miles southeast.

The Russian offensive appeared to be aimed at Prokhladnenski, a rail junction thirty-five miles west of Mozdok. Its capture would isolate the enemy southeast of Nalchik, where the Russians also are on the move. The Moscow radio said German attempts to check the Russian advance below Nalchik were collapsing.

'Major Victory' At Mozdok Hailed By Russians

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Jan. 4.—The Red Army of the Caucasus advanced along both banks of the Terek River today, driving the Germans back to the northwest and west from newly recaptured Mozdok and breaking a salient which the Nazi forces had thrust forward more than four months ago toward the Grozny oil fields Russian reports said.

The swift Russian recapture yesterday of Mozdok and Malgobek, 15 miles southeast of Mozdok, was considered a major victory like the victories of Stalingrad and Velikie Luki, where the Red Army continued its offensives.

The German lines appeared to be crumbling in the most important sectors, the Russians said, as the Nazi command stiffened resistance at some points only to be hit at others by the hard-driving Red Army.

JAN 5 1943

More Villages Taken

Several more unspecified villages were reported taken northwest and west of Mozdok since the recapture of the city.

The next major Russian objective appeared to be Prokhladnenski, which is a railroad junction for lines running east and west and south and lies 35 miles west of Mozdok. The reoccupation of Prokhladnenski would cut off the German forces at Nalchik, now under attack from the southeast.

Winter rains have broken the terrain and made the Caucasus campaign slower than the drive across the Don steppes, but the entire German position in the heart of the North Caucasus—already imperiled by the Russian push south from Stalingrad—now appeared in greater danger from frontal assaults.

The Red Army launched its attack on Modzok from a village a short distance to the east, where the Germans' autumn offensive in that direction was checked, dispatches said.

Only 70 Houses Remain.

A Pravda dispatch, describing the fury of the fighting in this region, said that of 1,500 houses originally standing in the village only 70 remained. Of the cattle and poultry in the village, only one chicken and one calf survived.

The Germans still showed no signs of withdrawing from the endangered advanced points, maintaining fierce resistance on all sectors under attack.

South of Stalingrad they concentrated tanks, artillery, cavalry and motorized infantry which had survived the Red Army's successful drives for Elista, the Kalmyck capital, in an effort to check the Red Army's circular sweep westward.

Delayed accounts of the Russian occupation of Elista said it was a victory of men over machines, Red Army infantrymen mastering German tanks in a violent battle.

Pravda said the Red Army attacked the enemy flanks from the southwest and northwest and cut the main road leading southwest to close its ring about the town.

Hundreds of Dead.

Nazi counterattacks and deployment of street fighters alike were fruitless and hundreds of dead, and broken tanks, trucks and guns littered the battlefield when the main German force withdrew, dispatches said.

There were no further specific reports of the progress of the Red Army offensive south of Stalingrad or in the Middle Don region. In the latter sector the Germans were resisting stubbornly along prepared lines of defense, Red Star said.

Pravda said one Middle Don village which the Germans sought to hold at any cost changed hands several times before the Red Army finally held the position and cut the Nazi line of retreat. The newspaper did not identify the village, but said 16 German tanks were wrecked in the fighting.

Prisoners were quoted as saying that the defending division had been recently transferred to the Russian front from France.

Consolidates Positions.

Red Army forces on the central front consolidated newly-won positions. There was local fighting west of Rzhev, German-held city on the Upper Volga 130 miles northwest of Moscow, which was virtually isolated by the Russian capture of Velikie Luki.

(The midday Soviet communique, as heard in London by the Soviet monitor, reported that the Russian troops had liberated several other populated places in the Mozdok region and inflicted heavy losses on the Germans.

(In one sector, the communique said, 700 German officers and men were killed and a quantity of equipment captured.

(Four hundred more Germans were reported killed in the fighting on the central front, where, the communique said, the Red Army advanced, destroying several strong points. New gains also were reported both in the Middle Don area and the region southwest of Stalingrad, but the names of the newly occupied communities were not given.)

The Soviet dispatches from the front told how Russian troops more than 1,000 miles to the northwest of Mozdok continue to push along the Moscow-Riga railway line toward the Latvian border.

The communique was read over the Moscow radio early today and was followed by the playing of the "Internationale"—an unusual gesture. The Germans had been held in the Mozdok area since last August, when they reached the town in a drive down the Rostov-Baku railway.

JAN 5 1943

The regular Soviet communique, as heard by the Soviet monitor in London, told of continuing Russian advances in the Velikie Luki region, on the Middle Don front and south and southwest of Stalingrad.

The communique dealt bitingly with the German claim that the Nazi garrison at Velikie Luki was still holding out, describing it as a "fable."

Commenting on the German claim of Saturday that the garrison was "offering stubborn resistance," it said: "The German garrison of Velikie Luki is offering neither stubborn nor even passive resistance. It is three days since not a single armed German remained in this Soviet town. The German garrison refused to lay down its arms and was completely wiped out."

The communique reported the capture of vast quantities of German equipment in Velikie Luki, said the booty was still being counted and added: "The German command, of all people, knows all this well. The charlatans of Hitler's headquarters deem it necessary, however, to conceal the truth of the fate of the Velikie Luki garrison."

In the Middle Don area the Russian troops were "breaking enemy resistance and annihilating his manpower and war equipment" and had captured a number of populated places, it was reported. Four hundred Germans were reported killed in an engagement on one sector.

Fighting continued within Stalingrad and the Germans were reported dislodged from several buildings and blockhouses. Four hundred Germans were reported killed in one engagement.

The Germans were said to be bringing reinforcements by air to harried forces south and southwest of Stalingrad. The Russians reported the capture of great stores of equipment at two points captured in this drive, including 1,000,000 shells, 20,000,000 rounds of ammunition, 150 trucks and 8,000 head of cattle.

Reds Deny Nazi Version Of Fighting Near Terek

Call Story of Attacks Lies to Conceal True Status of Army

LONDON, Jan. 5 (Tuesday) (AP).—The Soviet Information Bureau last night accused the Germans, for the second successive day, of inventing "Hitlerite lies" to conceal the true status of the Nazi armies, which, it said, are making "a swift backward movement on many fronts" in Russia.

The midnight Soviet communique broadcast by Moscow and heard here by the Soviet monitor said the Germans had announced that their troops "began the new year with large-scale attacks in the Terek area" of the Caucasus, and that "all Bolshevik counter-attacks collapsed against the iron resistance of our troops."

To this the Russians replied officially: "This is a blatant contradiction of the facts. The new year was begun by German troops with a swift backward movement on many fronts, including the Terek sector. . . . The inventions of the Hitlerite high command are as foolish as they are false and only expose the Nazi ringleaders to the derision of the whole world."

Berlin Reports Reds Repulsed

BERLIN (From German broadcasts), Jan. 4 (AP).—Repeated Soviet attacks in the Don area and at Stalingrad on the eastern front yesterday were repulsed with heavy losses, the German high command reported today.

In the central sector German shock troops carried out several successful actions, at one point killing 1,400 enemy troops and destroying sixty-five dumps and numerous dugouts, a communique said. Stubborn fighting was reported southeast of Lake Ilmen in the northwest sector of the long front.

Off the Rybachi Peninsula, in the Arctic, a 5,000-ton enemy merchant ship was reported sunk by German bombers and another ship heavily damaged. A medium-sized cargo ship was reported bombed and damaged in a Black Sea port.

NAVY TRIO TELLS OF BEING TRAPPED BY NAZI TROOPS

Members of U. S. Photographic Unit Surrounded 3 Days at Tebourba.

LONDON, Jan. 4 — (AP) The odyssey of three Navy men who found themselves too far ashore and were trapped for two days by German troops around the city of Tebourba in Tunisia was recounted today by Lieut. John McClain, U.S.N.R., former New York reporter and Hollywood writer.

Lieut. McClain and two former Hollywood cameramen, Lieut. Kenneth Pier and R. R. Rhea, were members of Commander John Ford's photographic unit which was assigned to film the North Africa landing.

Lieut. Pier, who took films of the battle of Midway, was with a group of Commandos who inadvertently landed in the dark on an abutment of the main French port defending Algiers and withdrew to make a landing farther up the coast.

Found French Truck

Mr. Rhea and Lieut. McClain joined him a couple of days later, and they realized "when we heard a couple of generals arguing about who was going to drive a jeep" that the transportation problem was going to be tough. They discovered a brand-new French truck in a garage, however, and loaded it with cameras, tommyguns, and hand grenades and set off for Tunisia.

A few days later, acting upon their understanding that the Allies were in possession of Tebourba, 20 miles from Tunis, the three holed up in an abandoned farm house near the city and prepared to wait for some action to photograph.

Nazi Tanks Lined Up

They were delighted, therefore, when they sighted 20 tanks lined up on the brow of a nearby hill—until a British infantry captain remarked conversationally: "those are German tanks and we are cut off."

With the road out blocked by German tanks and paratroopers, the photo unit moved to a farm a mile below Tebourba on the Medjez-el-Bab road, where the British had set up a pair of 25-pound guns.

Soon 33 German tanks came charging and the British captain ordered: "lower sights to 600 yards and fire."

The two-gun battery knocked out seven tanks, but itself suffered many casualties. Lieut. McClain, assigned to aid the injured, picked up a man, but an officer said: "don't bother about him—he's dead.

Typical 'Mr. Chips'

The British captain was a typical "Mr. Chips," Lieut. McClain said. He went calmly through the whole day covered with blood. Lieut. McClain asked him how he felt and he answered: "not so good. Fell off my motorbike yesterday." And when departing casualties bade him goodbye he said, quietly: "So long. I'll see you under an orange tree in Tunis."

The unit spent a week at the front photographing tank fighting at close range until heavy rains halted the action. Lieut. Pier got a picture of three Germans repairing a de-tracked tank under artillery fire and protected only by a haystack.

He was so absorbed with his camera that he didn't think about shooting the Germans. The films now are in the United States.

Flyers Raid Axis Vehicles Just Arrived

JAN 5 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 4—French forces effectively backed by United States anti-tank gunners and planes hurled back a heavy Axis armored attack yesterday southeast of Pichon and captured both German and Italian prisoners, dispatches from Allied headquarters in North Africa announced today.

Correlated with this action were two raids by American airmen, flying light bombers and fighters, against Axis armored equipment concealed about the port of Sousse, some sixty miles to the east, in which a half dozen tanks were destroyed or burned and many others were damaged.

P-38 Pilot Escapes

Braving bad weather, the flyers struck with bombs, cannon and machine guns. One Lockheed P-38 was lost, but the pilot got down safely.

It was a spectacular follow-up to a great display of growing Allied air power in Tunisia at the week end in which American and British planes shot down twenty-eight enemy aircraft, damaged thirty-four others and battered Axis supply bases.

French Bear Brunt Of Drive

French infantry, motorized cavalry, some artillery and anti-tank units bore the brunt of the German-Italian thrust in the region of Foudouk, southeast of Pinchon. The French commander cited American anti-tank crews and planes for their support.

It was the first reference to American troops in action in that immediate area, although United States forces were known previously to have moved into the southern reaches of the French protectorate.

Reconnaissance Patrol

Elsewhere there were these developments aground:

1. Tank-supported Allied units made reconnaissance patrols both southeast and northeast of Medjez-el-Bab, thirty-five miles southwest of Tunis, and one force penetrated to an area six miles from its base and to the right of the Tebourba road, encountering only light anti-tank fire.

2. Fighting French forces of Brig. Gen. Jacques le Clerc pushed deeper into Tripolitania from the Lake Chad region.

3. Dust storms and rain handicapped both Axis and British armies in Libya.

Tanks Believed Just Unloaded

The Axis tank concentrations battered at Sousse were believed to have been unloaded at the port (presumably from a trans-Mediterranean convoy), a headquarters spokesman said.

There was nothing yet to indicate that Marshal Rommel was moving any great amount of his armored forces from Libya into Tunisia, a dispatch from headquarters said.

Dust storms and rains combined to hamper all operational activities yesterday within Libya. Both Cairo and Axis dispatches told of the adverse weather in that theater and mentioned no significant maneuvers by either side.

Without detail, the Italian high command declared that "in Tunisia Axis troops have consolidated successes of the last few days and occupied some more ground." Its communique, broadcast from Rome, said Axis fighters and ground gunners had shot down ten Allied planes.

Twenty-three of the Axis planes reported destroyed were credited officially to American flyers, who took a leading part in the burst of aerial activity, described in dispatches from North Africa as the most intense of the entire Tunisian campaign.

Assault on Tunis.

The Americans' bag, an Allied headquarters communique said, included 19 brought down when a swarm of German and Italian fighters attempted to repulse a Flying Fortress assault on the Tunis harbor area Saturday.

The bristling guns of the Fortresses accounted for 17 of this toll, while twin-engined P-38 Lightning fighters which escorted the raiders shot down 2, the bulletin said.

Allied losses were put at only seven planes—two of them American. Not a single Fortress was lost, though dispatches from the front indicated that perhaps 32 had taken part in the mass assault on Tunis.

The communique said the Fortresses scored hits on two ships in Tunis harbor, set fire to oil tanks, blasted a powerhouse and did widespread damage to the dock area.

JAN 5 1943

Docks and a military encampment at Sousse and the railway between Sousse and Sfax—previously reported broken in 11 places by Allied air attacks—also were bombed, Allied headquarters said.

Axis bombers struck back by attacking the Algerian port of Bone twice Saturday with strong fighter escorts, the communique declared, but each time they were intercepted by Spitfires which knocked down four bombers and two fighters.

Three other enemy planes were reported shot down during Allied air attacks on enemy forward positions and thansport in the battle area—two by Spitfires and one by P-38s.

A Cairo communique today said Allied planes bombed Tunis and Sousse again Saturday night. The bulletin announced the loss of one plane.

A Reuters correspondent with the British 1st Army in Tunisia reported, meanwhile, that a British tank force had made a 90-minute raid Saturday afternoon on German positions east of Medjez-el-Bab in the first move by armored forces on either side since the recent heavy rains.

Valuable Information Obtained.

The British forces were said to have obtained valuable information on German strength in the vicinity of Medjez-el-Bab.

Land activity on the upper Tunisian front over the week end apparently was confined largely to patrolling, but a communique from French general headquarters in Algiers said French troops operating on the southern flank had captured an important position west of Kairouan.

Kairouan is about 60 miles south of Tunis and about 30 miles west of Sousse.

A Fighting French communique announced that Gen. Leclerc's forces had advanced "several hundred miles" into Southern Libya.

There was little news from the British 8th Army in Libya, a communique from Cairo yesterday being limited to the statement that British troops were in contact with the enemy in the Wadi Bei El Chehir area, some 130 miles airline southeast of Tripoli.

DE GAULLIST PURGE PRESSED IN FRANCE

BERN, Switzerland, Jan. 4—(AP) A purge of de Gaullists and other oppositionist elements throughout France was reported today in a Paris dispatch, and private sources said six new concentration camps already had been opened in the Nazi-held country.

A Paris dispatch to The Geneva Tribune said the campaign was directed against "de Gaullists, Communism, and terrorism." A woman Gestapo unit was reported to be included in a new police force acting against saboteurs.

Subversive activity against the Vichy government and occupation forces has increased since German troops moved into Vichy France, and whereas before the groups lacked coordinated direction there was now a general movement for united "terrorist" activity, the report said.

Large numbers of arrests were reported in Paris, but it was said figures probably would not be announced except as a final grand total. Private sources indicated the wave of arrests might continue for six weeks more.

1,000-LB. U. S. BOMBS HIT AXIS CRETE BASE

JAN 5 1943

Writer on Liberator Says Raid Surprised Defense Gunners

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 4 (AP)—Huge United States Liberator bombers rained 1,000-pound bombs in heavy salvos on the German fighter and bomber base at Kastelli Pediadi southeast of Candia in Crete in their raid on Saturday, it was disclosed today by a Reuter correspondent who made the flight.

The correspondent rode in the twenty-eight-ton Liberator "Tangerine" in the first relay of bombers smashing at the base in the second daylight attack on Crete. The raid was announced by Allied headquarters yesterday.

The correspondent gave this eyewitness account:

"I saw 1,000-pound bombs fall in salvos from the bellies of the huge four-engined aircraft flying in perfect formation over the island.

"Our cargoes had all been released before the ack-ack gunners below, surprised at their midday meal, were able to get the range and open fire.

"More than 150 heavy bombs were dropped on the enemy air base as part of a carefully planned and well executed daylight attack delivered soon after noon."

Nile Army Members, From All 6 Continents, Learn Arab Tongue

JAN 5 1943

Intermingling of Troops Brings Interchange of Expressions, Ideas

By EDWARD KENNEDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

CAIRO, Jan. 4.—The army of the Nile, formed of soldiers drawn from all six continents and every climate, is a great institution for the exchange of ideas and expressions.

The biggest element in this army is the United Kingdom troops, drawn from all parts of England, Scotland and North Ireland. Even these vary greatly in manner and speech.

Then there are Australians, New Zealanders and South Africans and, more recently, Americans. There are a few from places like Rhodesia, Mauritius and the Fiji Islands. All these are English-speaking.

Others are the Fighting French, the Poles, the Greeks, the Yugoslavs, the Indians, some Czechs and a group of Spaniards, as well as the Palestinians, the Arab Legion, the Senussi, the Cypriots, the Sudanese and African labor troops, all in their own formations.

Polynesians Represented.

The French Foreign Legion includes men of many nationalities, including Germans and Russians, while other French units are made up of Polynesians from Tahiti and New Caledonia, who have represented their race for the first time in modern war and have proved good soldiers.

New Zealand troops include Maoris. Serving in British units are some Canadians and Irish from Eire, also a few Norwegians and Belgians. There is also a handful of Latin American volunteers with British units and a move is under way to open a Latin American service club in Cairo.

The army of the Nile is international, interracial and polyglot, but its predominating character is Anglo-Saxon and its common language is English in its many varieties.

For the first time I have heard the second person singular used naturally in English here. Troops from the north of England will employ "thee" and "thou" in talking to each other, but change quickly to "you" if a stranger comes within earshot.

Scots Speak Gaelic.

Some of the Scots speak Gaelic. In addition to every accent among the English-speaking there is broken English and pidgeon English on the part of others. In the Indian Army Hindustani is the medium of exchange between British officers and Indians and among Indians themselves, who speak different Indian languages at home.

Soldiers on leave in Cairo tend to associate mainly with men of their own units, although there is general camaraderie among the Anglo-Saxons, less mixture with others mainly because of language. There are lively exchanges of ideas between British, American, Australian, New Zealand and South African soldiers and many friendships have been formed.

There is practically no social contact with the Indian soldiers. On the other hand, Maoris mix freely with Anglo-Saxons, drinking at the same bars.

Adopt British Slang.

The Americans have brought a new flood of American expressions with them, but have taken on many English and Australian expressions. There has been a general mixture of slang and profanity.

It is not unusual to hear an American call a truck a "lorry" or call gasoline "petrol."

Among common expressions are "out in the blue," meaning "out in the desert"; a "prang," meaning an airplane smashup in landing; a "gong," meaning a medal; "browned off," meaning wearied or disgusted; a "gaggle," meaning the flight of an air formation. This last is an old English word. "A gaggle of geese" used to mean a flock of geese.

Soldiers have also taken over some Arabic words from the Egyptians and the Bedouins. "Shofti!" which means "look!" is not only used colloquially by troops but airmen use the word to mean a reconnaissance flight. Others are "mafeesh," meaning all gone; "malesh," meaning "it doesn't matter"; "mush katiyah," meaning no good, and "bint," meaning girl.

Nazi General Killed, Report

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—The British radio quoted the Swedish newspaper Svenska Dagbladet today as saying Maj. Gen. Heinz von Randow, commander of the Twenty-first German armored division, had been killed in North Africa. The broadcast was recorded by CBS.

Randow was said to have been the fourth to command the division since its arrival in North Africa about two years ago as a unit of the African corps.

"The first was recalled owing to differences with Rommel," the BBC said. "The second, Von Bismarck, was killed in battle. And the third, Von Ravenstein, is now a prisoner in British hands."

French Foiled, Berlin Claims

JAN 5 1943

New York, Jan. 4—The German high command, according to a Berlin broadcast heard by the Associated Press listening post, reported today that French troops attempting to cut German lines of communication in southern Tunisia had been hurled back westward and credited the German air force with heavy destruction of Allied bases and supply columns in that area.

Allied road and rail transports were heavily and effectively raided. Direct hits were scored on an air base and escorting fighters shot down five Allied planes, the communique said.

A German submarine was reported to have sunk a 5,000-ton ship in a heavily escorted Allied convoy off Oran.

Axis "Consolidates" Ground

ROME (From Italian broadcasts), Jan. 4 (AP).—Axis troops were reported by the Italian high command today to have consolidated recently gained ground in Tunisia yesterday while bad weather hampered all operations in the Gulf of Sidra region of Libya.

INJURED NEW YORK MEN REACH LONDON

London, Jan. 4 (A. P.).—A hundred and eighteen wounded American soldiers were returned here today from North Africa for treatment. Of these, twenty-four will be sent on to the United States.

Typical of their comment was the statement of First Lieut. Edgar Malin of Philadelphia: "I want to get back there. We have a job to do and we want to get it over with."

Sergt. Raymond W. du Porte, a Negro, of 143 West 104th street, New York, was wounded at Oran. He was posted aloft aboard ship when a bomb dropped alongside him, and "I woke up a day later in the hospital." Sergt. du Porte, who speaks six languages and was formerly an interpreter for the Department of Justice, is studying for the Officers Candidate School.

Staff Sergt. James J. Monaghan of 660-14 Sixtieth Lane, Ridgewood, Queens, also was wounded at Oran. In a hospital bed beside a British Tommie, shot down in the same action, he assured his friend: "We'll be back at them soon, Pal."

Trawler Sinks Italian Submarine In Thrilling Gun Duel Off Africa

JAN 5 1943

LONDON, Jan. 4.—(AP) The destruction of the 1,260-ton Italian submarine Emo off the North African coast by the little, lightly-gunned British naval trawler Lord Nuffield was announced tonight by the Admiralty.

The trawler was preparing to attack with depth charges, the account of the duel said, when the submarine suddenly broke surface only a few yards away.

The Lord Nuffield opened fire with every gun as the submarine tried to crash dive and scored successive hits on the conning tower as well as knocking out the after deck gun and crew.

The Italian commander himself then rushed to the forward gun to continue the battle, but his fire was ineffective. When the Lord Nuffield closed in for the kill some of the submarine's crew surrendered and others jumped into the sea.

The Emo sank in a few minutes and the victorious trawler picked up all the survivors. The Lord Nuffield's only casualty was one man slightly wounded.

Nazis Drop Native 'Chutists

British in Tunisia Court Martial All Caught Behind Lines

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—The Morocco radio said tonight that the Germans have dropped natives by parachute behind British lines in Tunisia, and that all caught have been court martialed.

A previous Morocco radio report said the Germans had been using parachutists futilely to cripple Allied communications and "now were trying other means." The report said the Germans had achieved no success.

Reuters quoted the radio station as announcing that all the parachutists had been executed.

Fortress-Lightning Team Called Top Weapon

JAN 5 1943

By J. W. Gallagher
[Associated Press Correspondent]

Aboard an Ambulance Plane Over North Africa, En Route to a Base Hospital, Jan. 3 (Delayed)—After watching from a grandstand seat the destruction of nineteen crack German fighters in a violent air battle, it seemed apparent to me that American engineering genius and the raw, pioneer courage of American youth had forged into one of the greatest air weapons of the war the combination of Flying Fortresses and Lightning Fighters.

This may seem to be a queer place to come to such a conclusion, with four young wounded sergeant gunners strapped in the bomb bays a few feet away in this Flying Fortress "ambulance."

Rip Nazi Defenses

But I have just returned from a flight over Tunis in a Flying Fortress where I watched Fortresses and their fighter escorts rip through one of the hottest German air defenses in the world, with every American bomber returning to base.

In the lead bomber in this second largest attack of the war on the Axis-held port, staged yesterday, I watched the Fortresses with their escorting fighters beat off or drive through surging swarms of Focke-Wulf 190s and Messerschmitt 109s.

For me it was an exciting day, expecting at any moment to have a bursting anti-aircraft shell or a flurry of ME-109 cannon fire drill into our ship—but for the young American flyers, who a few months ago worked in their home towns or attended colleges, it was just another day's work.

"Daisy Chain" Run

No air force in the world, even the German air force in its best day, had an air weapon capable of such sustained daylight bombing attacks as that of the Americans in what they call "the Daisy Chain" run over Tunis and Bizerte, where the Germans have concentrated fighters and anti-aircraft defenses of terrific fire power.

Day after day from a "Shangri-La" in North Africa, Flying Fortresses with their twin-tailed escort fighters smash down on the Axis-held ports with such regularity that the pilots joke that they "feel like a driver on a milk run."

After yesterday's violent battle, every Fortress returned to the base although one landed with only two engines. Some carried a cargo of wounded, including mine, in which a waist gunner was hit when anti-aircraft shells burst around us.

Fortresses Losses Low

This Fortress in which I am flying now is carrying the day's casualties to a hospital where there are facilities for proper treatment.

The losses in Fortresses and escort planes shot down have been the lowest of the war for the type of operation, being less than two per cent.

This record has been made against anti-aircrapt barrages said to equal in intensity those thrown up at Brest when two German battleships were sheltered there.

Even with such air weapons as the Americans have, the bombing of Tunis was no picnic jaunt. But the boys lying a few feet away as this Fortress glides over rough mountain ranges have lost nothing of the Spartans in the American pioneers.

Every gunner here lying wounded fought on after being hit—fought on until his ship was in the clear.

When I asked our gunner why he had kept on fighting with a leg wound several inches long, he replied: "Why not?"

Some Are Veterans

Two of the boys had fought before over western Europe. One of the other two fought against the Japanese in Australia and against the Germans and Italians over the Middle East.

The crew of this "ambulance" Fortress has just arrived from training. While its members are itching to get into the fight, they feel a queer sort of pride that they are flying these men to safety.

Sitting in the glass nose of the ship, I pointed to the lines shining on the instrument board showing where the stretchers were slung and remarked to Navigator Louis G. White, 25, of Louisville, Ky.: "That is a strange cargo in the bomb racks."

He replied:

"They are the finest bombs we ever carried."

U. S. Artillery Sharpens Aim

JAN 5 1943

With Allied Forces at the North Tunisian Front, Jan. 1 (Delayed) (AP)—American artillerymen are using the present lull in large-scale fighting to sharpen their aim on enemy targets that come before their sights.

Their aim is becoming increasingly accurate. For example, they noted suspicious movements today near an apparently harmless farmhouse in a village about two miles away. Closer inspection through glasses disclosed that three vehicles were approaching the building, situated near Medjez-el-Bab.

Using still more powerful field glasses, an American artillery officer discovered that one vehicle was pulling a German field piece into position and that the third vehicle was a captured American jeep.

He immediately ordered a light artillery piece up and opened fire. The first shell hit to the right of the farmhouse, the second fell to the rear.

The third struck the target directly and the building erupted into flames, as if stored full of ammunition. One vehicle was seen fleeing from the flaming building. The other two were victims of American artillery skill which had foiled a German plan to use the farmhouse as an attack base.

Africa Tank Raid Is Described

JAN 5 1943

By William B. King

[Associated Press Correspondent]

On the Battle Front in Tunisia, Jan. 2 (Delayed)—Two British tank columns jabbed deep into enemy territory northeast and southeast of Medez-el-Bab on reconnaissance patrols this afternoon.

While artillery shells from both directions whistled overhead, I watched the double-barreled action from a shrub-covered peak in between.

Shoot Up Axis Positions

Crusader and Valentine tanks, accompanied by carrier-borne infantry, made wide circles in the direction of Tunis, thirty-five miles to the northeast, shooting up Axis positions and making vital observations for future operations.

Spitfire fighters and light bombers were over the area throughout the operations, while American and British artillery pounded Nazi targets beyond.

See Almost Every Operation

Almost every move of the southern operation was visible from my observation post atop a hill held by United States troops.

I watched as fourteen tanks clattered down the road and across a field toward the Germans.

As mere specks in the distance, I was able to see them firing as they moved across the mottled green and brown hill country.

Their mission completed, all fourteen tanks veered about and returned to their base, still firing until they were almost back within our line.

Three Tanks Lead Way

Promptly as scheduled, three of the tanks set out down the road at 3 P. M., followed at intervals by the remainder of the column.

A synchronized artillery barrage began and I could see our shells bursting in the wooded area where German batteries and troops were hidden.

Heavy firing to the northwest indicated that the northern column, hidden at first from my view by hills, also had set out.

Artillery—Constant Roar

By 3.25 P. M. the noise of the artillery increased to a constant roll.

Low-flying light bombers streaked for a large building which appeared to be a Nazi headquarters and dropped one bomb directly upon it and others in the area near by. Gray smoke showed that a fire was started.

Circling and weaving, Spitfires maintained an air umbrella throughout with as many as fifteen going over my hill at one time.

German Guns Reply

German artillery replied with a vengeance.

In addition to the cross-fire of shells from guns behind and before me, there was the booming of a United States battery stationed 700 yards in front. Its bursts formed a close screen for the British tanks, falling just beyond the area of their operation.

U. S. Chutists, Month Among Nazis, Escape Tunisia Net in Axis Truck

JAN 5 1943

By The United Press.

WITH AMERICAN PARACHUTE TROOPS in Tunisia, Jan. 2 (Delayed)—Tired and suffering from hive-like bumps on their bodies, six American para-troopers returned today and told how they spent nearly a month sabotaging communications far behind enemy lines and of escaping by boldly driving through a German-held town in an Italian truck.

The men were led by Lieutenant Dan Deleo of Chicago, and included Sergeant John Betters of Aliquippa, Pa.; Privates Roland Rondeau of Woonsocket, R. I., and Frank Romero of Taos, N. M., and two former French soldiers now attached to Colonel Edson D. Raff's parachute forces.

Lieutenant Deleo expressed anxiety over the fate of several comrades from whom they became separated soon after landing in enemy territory, but he said he believed they "will make it." He told the story of the American mission while waiting for his first shave in ninety-six hours.

The paratroopers dropped behind the enemy lines about the middle of December from a few hundred feet, although their planes were shot at just before the jump. After picking up demolition charges and other supplies dropped by the planes and searching in vain for a missing paratrooper, the unit headed for a railway line with the objective of destroying a strategic bridge.

"Apparently we dropped on the wrong location, for we could not find the bridge," Lieutenant Deleo said.

"By then it was daylight, so we hid in an olive grove. Later, we set out again, carrying our demolition equipment in small Arab carts. En route we were spotted by Germans speeding along in a vehicle. They fired on us, but we hid near a mosque."

Lieutenant Deleo learned from Arabs that the Americans' objective was well guarded by enemy troops.

"I knew it was most unlikely that we could demolish the bridge as planned," he said. "We therefore set off demolition charges near telegraph poles and a track, breaking up three lengths of rails and bringing down wires."

Axis patrols by that time were scouring the countryside, and were guarding all roads to trap the paratroopers, Lieutenant Deleo said.

"I knew we were surrounded and that we would never get out together, so I told my men to break into twos and threes and to start out separately."

Lieutenant Deleo's group was near a highway, when a civilian truck approached. The men stood on the road with their rifles on their shoulders until the truck stopped. They frisked the Italian driven, who was not armed.

Lieutenant Deleo sat in the front seat with the driver, with a white scarf wrapped around his head, Arab style. The other paratroopers hid in the back.

"Along the highway we passed German soldiers sitting down by the road, but the sun was low and the windshield dirty, and they paid no attention to us," Lieutenant Deleo said. "We also passed through a little town filled with soldiers."

Eventually the truck mired down on a muddy camel trail. The Americans offered 500 francs to the friendly Italian driver, but he would accept only 300. The men then traveled for days by foot, stopping only occasionally when they were too exhausted to go further.

"Arabs gave us food, but we always had to tell them we were Germans," Lieutenant Deleo said. "Sometimes we had to put our hands on our pistols to get results, but we always got them. From some Arabs we got rides in carts so that some of us could doze."

Finally, the paratroopers found a French farmer who supplied them with food and coffee, and directed them to a French outpost. The Americans reciprocated by giving chocolate and chewing gum to the farmer's children.

"When we reached the French, everything was swell," Lieutenant Deleo said. "They offered us sleeping places, but we wanted to return here as quickly as possible."

Lieutenant Deleo joined the Army in March, 1941, and became a member of Colonel Raff's forces after being commissioned an officer in July last year. His mission behind the enemy lines was his eighth jump. It was the first combat action for all the Americans.

U. S. EQUIPMENT USED TO REPULSE ARMORED FORCES

Enemy Beaten Back After Gaining Initial Successes in Central Tunisia.

PLANES AID ALLIES

Fighters, Light Bombers Roar Into Battle at Fondouk.

JAN 5 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 4—(AP) French forces using some American tank destroying equipment among their weapons smashed back a heavy tank attack by Germans and Italians on French positions at Fondouk, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Axis forces attacked with 30 or 40 German tanks after a heavy bombardment, but were beaten back after gaining some initial successes. Fondouk is about 20 miles west of the railroad-highway junction of Kairouan in central Tunisia.

Allied fighters and light bombers roared overhead making "heavy and effective attacks" on the enemy armored forces, the communique said.

Use American Equipment

The Allied communique said the French ground forces used American tank destroyer equipment which had been turned over to them, although an earlier French communique reported the counter-attack was supported by "American anti-tank units."

When the French commander reported in his communique that American anti-tank units had supported the French, this was interpreted here as meaning that American ground forces were in action for the first time in this sector.

Later the wording of the Allied forces communique indicated the French bulletin had been unintentionally misleading.

Two of the attacking German tanks were smashed, four others burned out and many more damaged, the French reported. An Allied spokesman said the tanks presumably had been unloading at the port of Sousse, east of Kairouan.

Axis Prisoners Seized

The enemy's heavy ground attack in the Foudouk area was thrown in against positions held by French infantry, motorized cavalry, some artillery and some anti-tank units. With the effective support of American anti-tank units and planes, the French commander reported, the Axis was hurled back and both German and Italian prisoners were seized.

Aside from this fighting, it also was disclosed that Allied tanks in considerable numbers had made successful reconnaissance thrusts in force both northeast and southeast of Medjez-el-Bab. One force drove northeastward six miles from Medjez-el-Bab and to the right of the Tebourba road, meeting only light anti-tank fire.

(The day brought no official news from the Libyan end of the North Africa battle line, but there were some indications that a part of Field Marshal Rommel's fleeing army was digging in near Wadi Zem-Zem, about 160 miles short of Tripoli, to attempt a delaying action against the pursuing British Eighth army.

(Signs of increasing American participation in the scattered Tunisian fighting were accompanied by unconfirmed reports from the German propaganda agency DNB that a complete new U. S. armored division had arried in Tunisia.

(The German high command's communique claimed that Axis troops operating in southern Tunisia had driven French forces westward; the Italians asserted that the Axis had "consolidated successes of the last few days and occupied some more ground.")

The American air raid in the neighborhood of Sousse, one of the principal Axis bases along the eastern Tunisian coast, was followed by a second attack on other tanks in the same area. In this action one P-38 was lost, but the pilot was safe.

The fire of bombs, cannon and machine guns was directed at many German tanks, concealed in rows of trees, among the bushes and camouflaged in the Germans Lose 38 Fighters In Attacks on U. S. Bombers

Nazi 'Suicide Tactics' Bring Down Seven Flying Fortresses

JAN 5 1943

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 5—(AP) German fighters used new "virtual suicide" tactics Sunday when U. S. airmen attacking the Nazi U-boat base of St. Nazaire in France lost seven big bombers in the heaviest casualty yet suffered by the Americans in one raid, The Daily Express said today.

The Germans lost 38 fighters in trying out their new technique against the U. S. bombers, which were identified as Flying Fortresses, the newspaper said.

Guns Shoot Down Two

At least two of the U. S. bombers were said to have fallen victim to German anti-aircraft fire, the newspaper said, without elaborating on the effectiveness of the new Nazi fighter maneuver.

U. S. air force headquarters declined to comment on The Express report, which also said that the general commanding the Fortresses flew in a leading bomber that was battered by anti-aircraft shell bursts.

The Daily Express correspondent said 70 expert American pilots and airmen were lost in the raid. This would be on the basis of ten crewmen to each ship.

Nazis Attack in Paris

German fighters, he said, adopted a new maneuver—"virtual suicide attacks,"—in which they flew in pairs and attacked the big heavily-gunned bombers head-on. Often they closed in within 100 yards, the correspondent reported.

The newspaper didn't name the general who supposedly led the attack, but quoted a pilot as saying: "I was flying just behind the general's machine. An anti-aircraft shell burst near it and scattered over the Fortress.

"Two planes in the middle of our formation were hit. One blew up in the air, the other went down in flames. We thought we saw the crew of the burning machine bail out.

"We kept in tight formation and plunged through a curtain of fire right on to the target. The Germans followed us out to sea, but we gave them heavy punishment."

Ruhr Targets Blasted By RAF After U. S. Raid on St. Nazaire

Night Assault Is Made On Reich; 7 Bombers Are Lost in French Attack

JAN 5 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—British bombers attacked targets in the Ruhr last night to top off a day-long Sunday assault on Nazi strongholds which included a smashing raid by United States heavy bombers on the St. Nazaire submarine base.

Three of the RAF craft were reported missing from the night assault. DNB, official German news agency, said a town in the Ruhr suffered damage.

It was understood that only a small force took part in the raid.

It was the first time since New Year eve that the big RAF bombers had struck at Germany. Objectives in Western Germany were attacked that night and mines were laid in enemy waters. The last heavy raid was on December 21 when Munich was attacked by a large force of bombers.

Seven Bombers Lost.

The United States Army Air Force lost seven bombers on the St. Nazaire raid—the greatest loss yet suffered on raids on German-held territory—but the communique announcing the raid reported that bursts were seen on the target and fires were started among the shipbuilding and repair facilities of the huge base.

It was assumed that both Flying Fortresses and Liberators took part in the raid, but official reports did not specify the types used. The communique said a number of enemy planes were destroyed as they attacked the formation in the target area and during a running fight which followed.

Squadrons of Allied fighters escorted the bombers part way to their target and picked them up on their return. The round trip was approximately 1,000 miles and the flyers were favored by good weather.

Other Areas Attacked.

While the American bombers were busy at St. Nazaire, RAF bombers and fighters sped over Northern France, Holland and Belgium in attacks on railways, docks and airfields. The docks at Bruges and an airfield in Holland were attacked while other planes bombed railway targets in Northern France.

German planes struck back at England last night after two daylight raids. Several places in Northeast England were bombed, it was said, but there were no reports of casualties.

The targets of the Germans were not disclosed, but the German radio said the chief objective was the city of Hull.

Bombs Blast Nazi Quarters In Marseille

Several Persons Hit and Germans Impose Curfew

JAN 5 1943

By the Associated Press

London, Jan. 4.—The German high command headquarters and another establishment frequented by Nazi soldiers were bombed last night at Marseille, the Vichy radio said tonight.

Several people were reported hit. The Germans were said to have imposed a curfew at 8 p. m. and trolley service was stopped at 7:15 p. m.

The wife of a German consular employe was said to have been wounded gravely and a French waiter was reported to have died of injuries.

"Following these events, severe measures have been taken," the German-controlled Vichy broadcast said, Nazi troops were reported to have received orders to use their weapons when resistance was offered.

R. A. F. HITS RUHR IN FIRST '43 RAID

Bad Weather Limits Size of Attack, Three Planes Lost.

LONDON, Jan. 4—(AP) The R. A. F. showered its first 1943 bombs on the pock-marked German Ruhr last night despite bad weather which limited the raid to a small number of planes. Three were lost.

The target was not identified, but the German market report broadcast today failed to quote "Gelsenkirchen Bergwerk" (an industrial combine) shares, suggesting that Gelsenkirchen, near Essen, was the target.

Coupled with the big American daylight assault on St. Nazaire and Allied sweeps through northern France and the low countries, the Allied air forces appeared to be laying a pattern for day and night assaults on Axis bastions.

The depleted German air force from northern France stabbed ineffectually at the British coast. A daylight raider dropped bombs without effect on a southeast coastal area. A Dornier was shot down on the northeast shore last night.

The death toll on the Isle of Wight, bombed Sunday, rose to 12.

One German plane was reported shot down over the southeast coast of England tonight. Anti-aircraft guns opened fire earlier when German planes neared the coast and flew toward the Thames estuary at one time.

Nazis Claim 16-Bomber Bag

New York, Jan. 4—The Associated Press listening post recorded a Berlin broadcast which quoted the high command as saying that sixteen four-motored British bombers were shot down during a daylight raid yesterday over the west coast of France without the loss of a German plane.

(United States bombers made the daylight raid yesterday on the St. Nazaire submarine base and the German reference must be to these. Seven failed to return.)

In a succeeding night attack the British were reported to have bombed points in western Germany and to have inflicted civilian casualties. Two of the raiders were said to have been shot down.

"Extensive conflagrations" were said to have been observed after several waves of German bombers assaulted the British port of Hull last night.

Nazi Shifts Laid To Defeats

JAN 5 1943

(By the Associated Press)

London, Jan. 4—Adolf Hitler's drastic shakeup of his diplomatic staffs in Japan, Spain and Sweden over the week end was declared by a Foreign Office commentator here today to have been a repercussion of recent Axis military defeats and the consequent loss of diplomatic prestige.

The Berlin radio announced Saturday that Gen. Eugen Ott, German Ambassador to Tokyo; Eberhard von Stohrer, Ambassador to Madrid, and Prince Viktor zu Wied, Minister to Stockholm, had been recalled and "will be given new posts in the German Foreign Office."

Displeasure Seen

Henrich Georg Stahmer, German Ambassador to Japan's puppet Chinese regime at Nanking, is replacing Ott at Tokyo; Dr. Hans Thomsen, former German Charge d'Affaires at Washington, is taking over the legation at Stockholm, and Hans Adolf von Moltke has been assigned to Madrid.

Diplomatic circles here interpreted Ott's replacement in Tokyo as evidence of Hitler's displeasure with Japan's habit of playing a lone hand in the war without regard to Germany's needs or wishes.

Japan, it was pointed out, neither attempted an invasion of Russian Siberia nor launched a naval movement in the Southwest Pacific to coincide with Marshal Erwin Rommel's summer drive on Egypt. Instead, the Japanese struck in the opposite direction, at Midway, where they took a beating, and at the Aleutians.

Suspicious Of Neutrals

Stohrer's position at Madrid appeared to be solid before the British smashed Rommel's Africa Corps at El Alamein and the Allies invaded North Africa. The two events led directly to the signing of a neutrality block between Spain and Portugal, and Germany always is coldly suspicious of agreements between neutrals. Stohrer apparently was penalized for not having headed off the Iberian pact.

Hitler obviously is displeased with Sweden's rigidly independent neutrality.

U. S. PRIVATE TO HANG

London, Jan. 4 (A. P.).—Private Sammie Mickles, a 23-year-old Negro from Citronelle, Ala., was sentenced by a general court-martial in Glasgow, December 30, to be hanged for the murder of Jan Ciapciak, a Polish seaman, on November 18, United States Army Headquarters here announced today. All such proceedings are subject to review by President Roosevelt.

Testimony was introduced that Mickles and a soldier friend met another soldier accompanying two white girls in Glasgow. Ciapciak and another Polish seaman were said to have come up and talked to one of the girls, finally seizing her arm.

The girl resented Ciapciak's attentions, according to the testimony, and a scuffle ensued. The Polish seaman was said to have struck Mickles with a wood chisel, slightly wounding him.

Mickles and his soldier friend were said to have left the scene, but Mickles was declared to have returned within a short time and to have stabbed Ciapciak fatally with a knife.

Lord Farnham's Son Dies of Wounds

London, Jan. 4 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Col. Somerset A. Maxwell, 37 years old, Conservative Member of the House of Commons, was reported today to have died of wounds in the Middle East. Col. Maxwell, only son of Lord Farnham of County Cavan, Eire, was in an armored division and took part in some of the heaviest fighting in Libya.

BRITISH MINISTER ARRIVES IN AFRICA

Expected to Confer With Giraud in Effort to Reconcile Him With Fighting French

U. S. STATEMENT FORECAST

De Gaulle Receives Bid to Send Envoys to Commissioner— Upsets Feared Here

JAN 5 1943

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Harold Macmillan, newly appointed British Resident Minister in North Africa, has arrived at Allied Headquarters there and is expected to confer at once with General Henri Honoré Giraud, High Commissioner, and other French leaders in an effort to effect a union with the Fighting French, it was reported today.

Mr. Macmillan probably will report fully on the attitude of the North African French toward General Charles de Gaulle, Fighting French leader, and then attempt with Robert Murphy, President Roosevelt's representative in North Africa, to work out a program by which all conflicting policies may be reconciled, it was said.

General de Gaulle himself was said by his intimates to be awaiting a formal invitation to go to North Africa.

General Giraud's spokesmen have asserted that all French elements ought to be united to wage the war on Germany and General de Gaulle has expressed a similar attitude. However, General de Gaulle has declared that collaboration is predicated on the removal of Vichy elements from General Giraud's Imperial Council.

Diplomatic quarters reported today that the United States Government might issue a statement in a few days outlining its position and clarifying its attitude toward the Imperial Council that named General Giraud High Commissioner. While nothing was definitely known here, informants said that they expected that the Washington pronouncement might decline to recognize any provisional government as representing France or voicing the will of the French people. Washington's policy from the beginning has been to conclude agreements of a purely military character with local French authorities.

The British Government's position remained to be clarified. Although Britain made commitments to General de Gaulle long ago, observers doubted whether these went so far as to back him as the head of whatever French regime might be organized.

funds for the construction of the Dmitry Donskoy tank column.

His telegram, as broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor here, said:

"Sincere greetings to you. In prayer I wish you New Year health and success in all your undertakings, for the welfare of our country is entrusted to your care.

"By a special message I advised the clergy and all leaders to contribute to construction of the Dmitry Donskoy tank column. As a beginning, the Patriarchy itself contributes 100,000 rubles."

Hitler Reported Fortifying All Of French Mediterranean Coast

Closed Army Zone Set Up for Defense in Depth, Civilians Face Forcible Ouster; Move Linked to Fuehrer's Talk With Laval and Ciano

By The Associated Press.

JAN 5 1943

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Advices from France to Fighting French headquarters here said today that Fuehrer Adolf Hitler had created a closed military zone three to five miles wide along the entire French Mediterranean coast, from Menton to the Pyrenees. Preparations are being rushed to create fortifications in depth, the advices said. [A similar zone already exists in northern France.]

The step was decided on, it was said, at the conference which Hitler held Dec. 19 with Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, and Pierre Laval, Vichy Chief of Government.

Civilian populations will be forcibly evacuated, the report said, and even in such large cities as Marseille only those engaged in urgent war work will be permitted to remain.

The report coincided with a story published in the newspaper "Paris-Soir" that conferences between Hitler and Laval had been resumed.

'No News Is Good News'

Vichy Radio Silenced by Nazis on Reports of Russian Gains

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—The Vichy radio abruptly left the air at 7:37 tonight while broadcasting news of the Russian war front. After a few minutes silence, the radio returned to the air but then gave only items of provincial French affairs.

Silencing of the Vichy radio often is a sign of Allied air activity over the Continent, but the circumstances this time indicated that the Germans had halted discussion of embarrassing news from Russia.

Youthful Descendant Of Columbus Plans Spanish Navy Career

Christopher, 17, Studies In Madrid for Coming Entrance Examinations

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ, Jr.,
Associated Press Foreign Correspondent

MADRID, Jan. 4.—Admiral Christopher Columbus, who dearly loves the sea, hopes he'll pass his examinations and can enter Spain's naval academy as a cadet this June.

Christopher is 17. He's an admiral by inheritance, for he's head of the house of Colon (Spanish for Columbus) and a descendant of the great admiral. He'll be the first of his line in generations to go to sea as an officer under Spain's flag.

His full name is Cristobal Colon de Carvahal y Maroto, Duque de Veraguax, Duque de la Vega de la Isla de Santo Domingo and Admiral and Adelantado Mayor of the Western Indies, Marquis of Jamaica and a grandee of Spain.

Christopher's great-uncle was shot by the Leftists in the Spanish Civil War and had no children. The title then passed to Christopher's father, nephew of the Christopher Columbus who was the last direct descendant of Columbus. Christopher's father was the son of the Duke's sister. The Spanish government recognized the title.

Mother's Family Famous.

Last year Christopher's father died leaving the youth as the head of the house of Columbus. On his mother's side, too, young Christopher inherits a proud name.

His mother, sister of the Duque de Santo Domingo, is a direct descendant of Fernandez de Cordoba, famed as "El Gran Capitan" of Spanish history, leading soldier of Columbus' day.

It was perhaps from this side of the family that young Christopher got his lively sense of humor, for not among the least famed of El Gran Capitan's exploits was the account he turned in to Fernando El Catolico when that monarch listened to those who said the soldier was pocketing crown money and asked him for accounts.

Rebuked Ruler.

The accounts read:

"Ten thousand ducats for perfumed gloves to spare the troops the stench of the bodies of their enemies.

"One hundred and seventy thousand ducates for taking over and renovating broken-down campaigns with so much pealing of bells for new victories achieved each day.

"One hundred million ducats for my patience upon hearing yesterday that the King asked for accounts from the man who gave him a kingdom. * * *"

Young Christopher is a bright, energetic and husky youth, quick to laugh and quick of decision. He's an enthusiast about ships and the seas first of all. If pressed, he'll admit to enthusiasms for horses and swimming and the Americas.

Lives With Brother.

His room where he lives with his brother in a large Madrid apartment is a mirror to the young duke's character.

It's a good-sized square room with two comfortable and neat bunk-type beds built in the corners of one side. Directly opposite any one who would be living in the duke's bed is a wall on which there are some holes made by B-B shot.

The duke and the reporter looked at the holes, and then at the air gun standing in a rack on the wall. Then they looked at each other and the duke grinned.

"Vamos," said Christopher, "just target practice."

Studies Navigation.

In the middle of the room was a combined table and desk and on it were piled sheaves of paper filled with logarithm notes, complicated navigation problems and pages of history notes.

"I'm working like a dog," said the Duke. "Examinations for the naval academy come in June and I've got to pass them."

The Duke's 16-year-old brother, Juan Manuel, who is studying to be a naval engineer, said with considerable respect:

"They're terrific, those exams. Two thousand take the exams and 50 pass."

"Not 2,000," said the Duke. "Five hundred."

"Well, a lot anyway," said Juan Manuel.

May Visit United States.

His great-great uncle, the Duke of Veragua, went to the United States in 1892 as an honor guest at the Columbian Exposition. Later the same man became Spain's Navy Minister during the Spanish-American War, but even he had never been to sea as a professional sailor.

Young Christopher is anxious to go to the United States, the Antilles, Mexico City, Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires.

"It's not just a dream," he said. After all if you're a naval officer you're bound to sail somewhere. Perhaps after the war * * *"

His mother says the whole family plans to go to Buenos Aires or New York during the first vacation that the Duke gets after his entrance in the naval academy.

Nazi Oil Crisis Seen In Loss At Grozny

JAN 5 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Stockholm, Jan. 4—The failure of the Nazi armies to take the Grozny oil fields, in the Russian Caucasus, after a month-long drive, which culminated yesterday in their loss of the key rail city of Mozdok, has left the Germans with the most serious fuel bottleneck since the start of the war, informed sources said today.

The collapse of the Grozny drive was said to have forced the Nazis into wholesale conversion of farm machinery on the home front to the use of gas generators instead of gasoline.

At one stage in the summer campaign in Russia the Germans were so hard pressed for gasoline that they demanded and siphoned off from Hungarian reserves 500,000 tons of fuel, said the informants.

Report Tanks Stranded

A traveler from Germany said the Russians had been capturing German tanks on the Eastern front because the tanks were stranded for lack of fuel.

The informed sources gave this picture of the situation:

In order for the Germans to conduct the war on the grand scale of previous years, and to keep the home front moving as well, at least 20,000,000 tons of gasoline are required annually.

Half that amount in the past has been supplied by German production of synthetic fuel, plus what could be obtained of the output of satellite Rumania.

For the rest Germany drew on reserves accumulated before the war and depended on windfalls in the form of stocks found in occupied countries. These windfalls now have stopped.

Grozny Called Vital

Gen. Alfred Jodl (recently reported as replaced as Hitler's personal aide) is reported to have said the German army, in order to continue the war on the extensive scale of the past, would have to occupy not only the relatively small Russian oil fields at Maikop, which they now control, but also the Grozny region.

They took Maikop, but the Russian scorched-earth policy was carried out so effectively that, informed sources said, it will still require months to get the field into production. What that scorched-earth policy means, these sources said, was demonstrated in Estonia, the largest producer of oil from shale.

The Germans required a year after ousting the Russians there to return the shale plants to operation. They are now producing about 30,000 tons of oil, perhaps half of peacetime production, mainly for the forces in Finland.

To replace the Maikop refineries the Germans dismantled idle French plants and transported them to Russia.

One of the reasons the Hitler war machine is pressed for oil sources, it was said, is that the Germans apparently lacked the foresight to convert gasoline engines to generate gas at the outset of the war.

Now, in an overnight drive to increase gasoline conservation, a decree has been issued ordering farmers to convert their tractors and other engines to generators burning wood, peat or soft coal.

This was followed by a campaign offering a reduction of twenty per cent. in retail price to all who converted to the gas generators at once.

Allies Move in for Kill At Sanananda After Conquering Buna

Position of Japanese In Narrow Pocket Declared 'Hopeless'

By the Associated Press.

JAN 5 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 4.—Surrounded and facing annihilation, the only Japanese forces remaining on the Papuan Peninsula of New Guinea were confined today in a narrow pocket on Sanananda Point by American and Australian troops who wiped out the last vestiges of enemy resistance around Buna over the week end.

"The enemy's position is now hopeless," declared a communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters, adding that Allied troops already were moving up for the kill.

650 Japanese Slain.

Tersely the bulletin announced that the Allies had "completed the destruction of the enemy's defeated forces" in the Buna area—a statement which a headquarters spokesman amplified by declaring that 650 Japanese had been slain in mopping-up operations following the capture of Buna Mission.

The fall of Buna Mission was disclosed in a special announcement from Allied headquarters yesterday, but a pocket of enemy resistance still remained to be cleaned out west of Giropa Creek before the Allies could turn their attention to Sanananda Point.

Capture of that position will complete the destruction of the Japanese forces which advanced to within 32 miles of Port Moresby in September and will leave the enemy with no bases on the Eastern New Guinea coast south of the Lae-Salamaua area.

While the Allied land forces thus were writing the final chapter of the Papuan campaign, Gen. MacArthur's airmen carried the attack to the enemy on a broad front.

Heavy bombers stabbed again yesterday at the Japanese bases on New Britain, blasting shipping and harbor installations at Rabaul and strafing the Gasmata airfield. Cloud cover prevented observation of the results of the Rabaul attack, but returning airmen said they saw flames rising from a 10,000-ton ship which apparently had received two direct hits.

Other Allied planes bombed the Japanese airdrome at Madang, New Guinea, and the airdrome at Lae, where a medium bomber and two fighters were reported destroyed on the ground.

Nine enemy divebombers attacked the government station at Tufi, Papua, but caused no damage, the communique said.

ALLIED PLANES RAID JAPS' LAE AIRPORT

Four Grounded Aircraft Destroyed—Foe Mopped Up at Buna.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Tuesday, Jan. 5. — (AP) With the Japanese pretty well cleared out of the Buna area of New Guinea, warfare in the southwest Pacific area Monday was confined largely to sporadic air attacks.

Medium bombers (B-26's) dropped 300-pound bombs on Lae airdrome, 160 miles up the coast from Buna, destroyed three grounded enemy planes, and demolished another Jap plane that had been damaged earlier. The area around the airdrome also was strafed by light attack bombers. The combined attacks started a number of fires. A B-24 heavy bomber, on a reconnaissance flight, strafed a freight-laden Japanese supply boat which was entering Finschhafen harbor. Another Allied reconnaissance unit machinegunned an enemy schooner in Jacquinot bay on the southeast coast of New Britain.

Heavy bombers dropped thousand-pound bombs on Gasmata airdrome, New Britain, early Monday, inflicting considerable damage

For the first time in weeks, the Buna area was not mentioned in the daily communique. Mopping up is in progress in that area but so far as actual warfare is concerned, the Buna area is done with.

While the Allies regrouped their troops preparatory to attacking the remaining Japanese on Sanananda point northwest of Buna, medium bombers dropped 300-pound missles from a low altitude upon enemy machinegun nests and started fires in that area. Light attack bombers made a dozen strafing runs along the Sanananda track.

Fifty more Japs were killed in the intermittent fighting in the Buna area. Approximately 700 Japs have been killed and many captured in that sector.

TYPES OF HONORS GIVEN IN AUSTRALIA

Air Medals Awarded for First Time in That Theatre

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, Dec. 26 (Delayed) (AP)—Five types of Army medals were awarded today to eighteen officers and men who distinguished themselves in aerial and ground combat in the Southwest Pacific area.

Among them were the first awards of the Air Medal in this area. These were presented to Lieutenant Hulet C. Hornbeck of Verona, N. J., and Sergeant Wallace E. Smith of Utica, N. Y., "for meritorious achievement while participating in aerial flight."

Jap Destroyers Attacked Off Guadalcanal

JAN 5 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 4—Eight Japanese destroyers were discovered off the northwestern end of Guadalcanal last Saturday, the navy reported today, and were attacked by motor torpedo boats which definitely scored a hit on one vessel and three possible hits on two more.

Communique No. 239:

"South Pacific: (All dates are East Longitude.)

"1. On January 2:

"(a) United States motor torpedo boats attacked eight Japanese destroyers in isolated engagements in the vicinity of the northwestern end of Guadalcanal Island. The attacks resulted in one torpedo hit on one of the destroyers and three possible hits on two others.

"(b) Enemy aircraft bombed our PT boats and inflicted slight damage."

Supply Attempt Seen

This apparently was the latest Japanese attempt to supply their troops on Guadalcanal since they dropped about thirty parachute cargoes on the beach at Tassafaronga December 27.

Whether the torpedo boats succeeded in turning back the Japanese attack was not stated by the navy, but it was noted that only one torpedo hit on one vessel was reported as certain. It would have been possible for the others to continue their high-speed run into the northwestern tip of Guadalcanal, possibly around Lavero Pass or Coughlan Harbor, and get out again without having to undergo further attack.

Dashing Execution

Such a dashing execution of their supply mission would have been possible, particularly if the destroyers came in at night or in bad weather.

It could have been a night action, however, particularly if those destroyers were of the same group discovered earlier Saturday in the vicinity of Shortland Island. The number of those ships was not given. They were bombed by Flying Fortresses, but no hits were observed.

Three hours and a half later, a group of destroyers which may have been the same group turned up in the vicinity of Rendover Island in the New Georgia group, which suggested the possibility they were moving in the direction of Guadalcanal. At that time those destroyers were protected by ten enemy fighters and one dive bomber. They were attacked by American dive bombers and one was left burning while another appeared to be sinking.

Battleship Routed Japanese

JAN 5 1943

Unnamed Vessel Fought Off Plane Attacks and Sank Three Cruisers.

Washington, Jan. 4 (A. P.).—A Navy report on the effectiveness with which one American battleship destroyed Japanese airplanes and men-of-war in two great battles last fall opened a new chapter today in the grim story of naval warfare in the Pacific.

The results of the two engagements were regarded by adherents of the big battlewagons as proof that they could withstand severe attacks by air and deliver telling blows by night despite the handicaps darkness imposes on long-range fighting at sea.

One high officer, who could not be quoted by name, predicted that future engagements in the Pacific would see much greater use of battleships, especially at night when they are relatively free of interference from enemy planes and able to devote themselves entirely to offensive purposes.

The battleship accomplishments on which the Navy reported yesterday were credited to an unidentified vessel under command of Capt. Thomas Leigh Gatch, 51 years old, of Annapolis, Md.

In the air-sea battle of Santa Cruz last October 26, the official account showed, Capt. Gatch's ship shot down thirty-two planes with its anti-aircraft guns, including all twenty of the enemy dive-bombers which made the initial attack on it.

The second battle was the action off Guadalcanal Island on November 14, in which his battleship, in company with others, deliberately entered a Japanese naval trap. It was chiefly the fire power of the battleships—the only other American vessels were destroyers—which sank a Jap battleship or heavy cruiser, three cruisers and one destroyer, and damaged another battleship, a cruiser and a destroyer.

Capt. Gatch's battleship alone accounted for three cruisers, its 16-inch guns sending them to the bottom long before they could get their own guns within range.

The distance of the action was not stated in the Navy's formal report, but it had previously been reported to be more than eight miles.

Three Successive Attacks.

In the October 26 fight Capt. Gatch's battleship, part of an aircraft carrier task force, was attacked by planes.

From 11:12 to 11:20 A. M., the battleship engaged twenty enemy dive-bombers and shot them all down. Half an hour later forty torpedo planes and dive-bombers attacked. Only one torpedo plane got through, the others either being shot down or turning back, and it was shot down after the ship's anti-aircraft fire had spoiled the pilot's aim and averted a torpedo hit.

Fifty-nine minutes after the first attack the third one was made by twenty-four dive-bombers and torpedo planes. The ship suffered one hit, on a turret, and a bomb fragment wounded Capt. Gatch, severing an artery in his neck, knocking him unconscious and tearing the muscles of his shoulder. Three weeks later Capt. Gatch reported again for active duty. His commanding admiral, who was not identified, noted that his left arm was useless but said: "I don't expect you to strangle the Japs."

In the Santa Cruz battle, the Japanese known loss was 100 airplanes. Fifty others probably were downed by American carrier fighter planes and the battleship's anti-aircraft fire. The Jap carrier forces lost heavily in ships to the torpedo and dive bomber planes from the American carriers and the American force lost one aircraft, which has never been identified, and one destroyer, the Porter.

100 More Japs Cut Off From Escape by Sea

JAN 5 1943

By William F. Dorn

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 3 (Delayed).—Allied forces methodically engaged in eliminating the last small pocket of enemy resistance in the Buna area, succeeded today in cutting off an estimated 100 Japanese troops from escape by sea.

This action followed the Allies' earlier investment of the Buna government station and of Giropa Point, major assaults which resulted in the death or capture of at least 800 Japs.

Late yesterday the smaller enemy force was reported holding an area 400 yards wide along the beach west of Giropa Point and extending inland to an unknown depth.

Establish Contact

But during today a part of the American troops who had carved out a corridor to the sea between the Government station and Giropa Point drove southeast along the coast and established contact with the Australians on the point.

Thus the enemy lost its seaward line of retreat and if it seeks to withdraw inland probably will be wiped out piecemeal by the Allies' strongen units. There is a definite likelihood that these enemy troops are short of ammunition and food. Their elimination is regarded as little more than a mopping-up operation.

Prisoners Taken

Enemy casualties included sixty prisoners. Twenty-three of these were soldiers who surrendered near Senimi creek. Another thirty-five were coolie laborers, Koreans among them, presumably brought in to build pillboxes and gun emplacements.

Two were soldiers captured when a party of eight came ashore just east of Gona after a three-mile flight. Four others in this party were killed by Allied patrols, and two escaped.

Reports from the front said members of the labor gangs showed obvious signs of maltreatment by the Japs. They also were undernourished. The laborers are being looked after carefully and not treated as prisoners of war.

JAN 6 1943

Swinging Door Tactics

American capture of the Buna Government station was achieved through a modification of the swinging-door tactics so successful in the Allied operations farther east in the Endaiadere and Old Strip sectors.

Having established a corridor to the coast, troops holding the seaward end of the line pushed swiftly along the beach entirely around Government station point, while forces farther inland cleared out the center portion. Tonight only isolated snipers were still in the area.

It is estimated there are more than 200 Japanese dead in the Government station sector, while in the Giropa Point area Australian infantry supported by American-made General Stuart tanks killed about 450.

Escapers Killed

Of the Japs who sought escape by sea, another sixty were killed trying to come ashore or rest on reefs between the Government station and Sanananda Point.

In the words of the headquarters communique, the Allied forces now are preparing to envelope the last organized remnants of Japan's Papuan army in the swampy Sanananda area. There has been heavy patrol activity and occasional outbursts of artillery fire there for weeks. Yesterday our artillery is believed to have scored a bull's-eye on an enemy supply dump on Sanananda track, for there were fires and explosions.

A high Australian officer described the Buna operations as "a series of brilliant actions," in which the enemy lost an estimated 1,200 in killed alone. It was a progressive series of sieges against defenses in depth.

Heavy bombers stabbed again yesterday at the Japanese bases on New Britain, blasting shipping and harbor installations at Rabaul and strafing the Gasmata airfield. Cloud cover prevented observation of the results of the Rabaul attack, but returning airmen said they saw flames rising from a 10,000-ton ship which apparently had received two direct hits.

Other Allied planes bombed the Japanese airdrome at Madang, New Guinea, and the airdrome at Lae, where a medium bomber and two fighters were reported destroyed on the ground.

Nine enemy dive bombers attacked the Government station at Tufi, Papua, but caused no damage, the communique said.

6 Hours' Blind Flying In Raid On Rabaul

JAN 1943

By William F. Boni

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 4 — The difficulties of long-range bombing in this storm-whipped area were demonstrated thoroughly in the pre-dawn hours yesterday by flyers who again blasted a Japanese ship concentration in the harbor of Rabaul, New Britain.

Capt. Walter F. Chambers, of Birmingham, Ala., and his B-17 crew spent seven and a half hours at the task before they returned to base. Six hours of that time was spent in instrument flying.

Chambers, his navigator, Lieut. Henry V. Myers, of San Antonio, Texas, and Copilot Capt. T. L. Willis, of Dallas, Texas, were forced to spot their targets through clouds which covered four fifths of the area under attack.

Fires Observed

On its first run the Flying Fortress was credited with a near miss of within fifty feet of a good-sized merchant ship. On the second run over the target area the plane dropped thousand-pound bombs near two merchant ships of probably 10,000 tons each. The crew observed smoke and fires in the bombed areas as they headed homeward after completing the second run. One fire was possibly from a shore fuel dump.

"When we were over the harbor," said Chambers, "the Japanese searchlights were ringing it and ack-ack was firing heavily, but we managed to get through without damage."

The first run was carried through even though just as the Fortress reached the point where the bombs were to be released clouds blocked the target from view.

"He Did Okay"

"But Myers let them go, anyway, and I guess he did okay," Chambers said.

"It's almost a day-in-day-out fact that missions to bomb targets as distant as Rabaul mean far more than merely flying than in any other part of the world."

The storm front changes position with the seasons from north to south and back again, but virtually without fail it is to be encountered en route to Rabaul, either shortly after take-off or near the target. To make the job more difficult, the front usually has such vertical depth that it cannot be flown under or over.

JAPS REPORT ATTACK

At New York today the Federal Communications Commission recorded a Tokio broadcast quoting Imperial Headquarters as saying that Japanese naval air units launched severe attacks on an Allied base under construction at Merauke, in southern New Guinea, on Wednesday and Thursday, putting it out of commission.

Merauke is in the Dutch half of the big island. It lies about 250 miles northwest of Cape York, Australia, and an equal distance west of Port Moresby, the main Allied base on the island.

The communique also declared that fifty Allied planes that raided the Rabaul area were repulsed between Thursday and Saturday, and that six out of thirty planes raiding Munda, the new Japanese airfield 200 miles from Guadalcanal, in the Solomons, were shot down on Saturday. Japanese naval units were also said to have destroyed six United States planes in raids on Kiska, in the Aleutians, between Wednesday and Saturday.

Japs Will Push Attack: Berlin

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 4—The Berlin radio quoted a Japanese army spokesman today as declaring that Japan would continue on the attack through 1943 to put herself in position for the conquest of China, India and Australia, Midway and Hawaii and perhaps for landings on the North American continent.

Such a statement of war aims, which the Berlin broadcast attributed in a Tokyo dispatch to Col. Nakao Yahagi, went beyond the most ambitious statements recently of other Japanese spokesmen who, for the most part, have been telling the Japanese people that the war has entered the long, hard, defensive stage.

No broadcast of such a statement by Yahagi was heard from the Tokyo radio, so it could not be told whether the spokesman's words had been recast for the German people to picture their Oriental ally as an offensive asset to the Axis.

Aims Are Listed

The broadcast said the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri-Hochi carried the statement by Yahagi.

He was quoted as listing these aims:

1. First to overthrow the Chungking regime and consolidate Japan's position on the Asiatic continent.

2. To attack India if she continued to be used as a British and American offensive base.

3. To attack Australia and force her to an armistice.

4. To remove the threat to Japan's position in the Pacific arising from bases like Midway and Hawaii.

Landings Hinted

He was quoted as saying that "it would possibly even be necessary to land on the North American Continent since the United States Government seemed to plan on turning Alaska into a base for attack on Japan."

The Berlin account said Yahagi emphasized the importance of Japan's military position in Manchoukuo, across the border from Soviet Siberia, "in view of United States intrigues in the Soviet Union."

Yokohama Silk Market Closes for the Duration

Decision Shows Loss of Export Trade, Mostly to America

By The Associated Press

A Tokio dispatch broadcast yesterday by the Berlin radio said the Yokohama Silk Exchange had "decided to close down for the duration of the war, conforming to a wish expressed by the government."

The decision reflects the vanishing of Japan's export trade in raw silk, some 90 per cent of which went to the United States and which in some years accounted for nearly a third of the empire's total exports. A very large proportion of the American silk industry's supplies of raw silk was purchased on the Yokohama exchange.

The decision to close the silk exchange follows closely on the announcement that the Tokio and Yokohama stock exchanges were being reorganized under government supervision, apparently to prevent panicky fluctuations.

R.A.F. Hits Jap Burma Positions

JAN 5 1943

New Delhi, Jan. 4 (A.)—R. A. F. fighter planes, continuing their daily assaults on Japanese bases in Burma, yesterday raided several enemy-occupied villages in the Rathedaung area, strafed a column of trucks at Meiktila and set fire to buildings and railway cars near Monywa, a British communique announced today. The raids were carried out without the loss of a plane, the announcement said.

The bulletin made no mention of British ground forces which have been reported operating in the Rathedaung area, some 25 miles northwest of Akyab.

Hideout Of India Saboteurs Raided

Bombay, India, Jan. 4 (AP)—Two suspected saboteurs were reported killed and four others arrested today sixty miles from Bombay as police trekked through miles of dense jungle to raid their mountain headquarters.

The police action came after three bomb explosions occurred in Bombay during the week end, killing one person and injuring seven. Bombs, rifles and explosives were seized in the raid.

JAPS PLANNED ON KIDNAPING OF ROOSEVELT

Hull's White Book Reveals Efforts of Konoye to Trap President at Sea.

WARSHIP CONFERENCE URGED

Threats Used on U. S. Prior to Pearl Harbor Attack Failed to Produce Results.

JAN 5 1943

Washington, Jan. 4 (A. P.)—How close Pearl Harbor came to being a much greater national humiliation than it actually was is disclosed in the White Book issued by Secretary of State Hull over the week end to promote a clearer understanding of war problems and issues by Americans.

The final and most dramatic portion of the book reveals that the Japanese not only planned months in advance for a surprise mass attack at Pearl Harbor, but did their diplomatic utmost to maneuver Japanese-American peace discussions in such a way that President Roosevelt would be in the hands of the Japanese Navy when its torpedo planes stabbed at the heart of American seapower in the Pacific.

Ambassador Joseph C. Grew informed the State Department on January 27, 1941, of reports that Japan planned the surprise attack in case of trouble with the United States.

Conference Urged.

Apparently the Japanese Government did not know that the American Ambassador had got wind of its designs, for a few months later it began urging on the State Department a plan to bring President Roosevelt and Premier Prince Konoye together aboard a Japanese warship in the Pacific for a "frank exchange of views."

Japanese Ambassador Kichisabura Nomura broached the subject to Secretary Hull on August 8, when the presence of Japanese troops in French Indo-China was complicating the already strained relations between Japan and the United States.

"The Ambassador then inquired," says the White Book, "whether it might be possible to arrange for a meeting of the responsible heads of the two governments to discuss means of adjusting relations between the two nations."

Secretary Hull's response is not recorded, but a few weeks later the subject was reopened; this time by a message from Prince Konoye himself to President Roosevelt, pointing out that informal Japanese-American conversations were getting nowhere in a situation "which might produce unforeseen contingencies."

Mr. Hull was cool to this suggestion, although the then recent meeting of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill aboard a warship in the Atlantic made the Japanese proposal technically innocent enough. Mr. Hull told Nomura that he thought that an agreement in principle on the main issues should be reached before any meeting of the President and the Premier.

On September 6 Ambassador Grew informed Mr. Hull that Konoye assured him that Japanese Army and Navy leaders were very favorable to the proposed high seas conference; that the Navy would send along a full admiral and the Army its vice chief of staff.

Japanese Persistent.

The White Book does not say whether Mr. Hull suspected treachery, but mentions the fact that the military element responsible for Japanese aggression would be heavily represented at the conference was a factor in this Government's disapproval of the plan.

But the Japanese were persistent.

Despite this increasing Japanese pressure, verging on threats of most unfortunate consequences, Mr. Hull continued to cold-shoulder the proposal.

So the Japanese finally gave up and did the next best thing; they sent their special "peace" emissary, Sabura Kurusu, flying to Washington, where he and Ambassador Nomura waved the olive branch while Japanese planes crept closer to Pearl Harbor.

Becaues of the Japanese failure to cajole or browbeat the United States into going through with the high seas conference plan, however, President Roosevelt was not aboard a Japanese warship when the Japanese Navy struck at Pearl Harbor.

Connally Backs Hull.

Senator Connally, Democrat, of Texas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that Mr. Hull surely must have informed the Army and Navy of Mr. Grew's warning. He added:

"If the Army and Navy departments knew what the State Department says it knew, their tragic negligence of our security in Hawaii is all the more significant."

Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio, said that the document showed that the State Department was in the clear on the matter of responsibility for the disaster.

Senator Brewster, Republican, of Maine, said that the White Book clarified the State Department's connection with the surprise attack and made even more serious the responsibility now borne by the War and Navy departments for the Pearl Harbor disaster.

33 ARE INDICTED IN SEDITION CASE

George E. Deatherage, Pelley Among Those Accused by Grand Jury.

JAN 5 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. (AP) Thirty-three persons, including George E. Deatherage, were indicted today along with The New York Sunday Evening Enquirer for conspiring to impair morale and promote insubordination and mutiny in the armed forces.

Twenty-eight of the defendants had been indicted previously on the same charge, violation of the wartime sedition statute. The new indictment was returned at the request of the Justice department. Besides listing the five additional persons and the Enquirer, a weekly publication, it named a host of additional organizations and cited quotations from their literature.

Charges Conspiracy Since 1933

The new indictment charged a conspiracy beginning in 1933 and continuing to this date, whereas the previously returned bill had covered only the period from June, 1940 to July, 1942.

The five persons named for the first time:

George E. Deatherage, of St. Albans, W. Va., described by the Justice department as a member of the Knights of the White Camelia, which the indictment said was one of 41 organizations formed to further the conspiracy.

Mrs. Lois de LaFayette Washburn, alias "T. N. T.," Chicago and Seattle, Wash.

Frank W. Clark, alias "G. P.," of Tacoma, Wash.

Paquita de Shishmareff, alias Paquita de Shishmarova, alias Mrs. Leslie Fry, of Glendale, Calif., and New York city.

Frank K. Ferenz, Los Angeles, who the Justice department said had been jailed in California for violation of the state anti-subversive act.

30.24 —85

German Named

The grand jury reporting today was a different panel from that which handed down the indictment of the 28 last July 23. It named a German, Ulrich Fleischhauer, of Erfurt, Germany, as a co-conspirator, but not as a defendant.

An exchange of letters between Hans Diebel, of Los Angeles, described as the proprietor of "the Aryan Book Store" and one of the original defendants, and the "World Service" located in Erfurt, was contained in the new indictment. The Justice department said Fleischhauer was publisher of the "World Service."

The New York Enquirer, the department said, was published by William Griffin, one of the original 28 indictees. With the exception of Griffin, all the 28 have been arraigned, but they must be rearraigned on the new bill, the Justice department explained.

This first group of defendants included Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, Chicago, author of "The Red Network"; David J. Baxter, San Bernardino, Calif., Robert E. Edmondson, New York and Santa Barbara; Robert Noble, Los Angeles, sentenced to five years last July 20 on conviction of sedition; William Dudley Pelley, Noblesville, Ind., leader of the Silver Shirts; Eugene N. Sanctuary, New York; Herman M. Schwinn, west coast Bund leader; George Sylvester Viereck, New York, sentenced last March to 2-6 years on conviction of violation of the Foreign Agents Registration act; and Gerald B. Winrod, Wichita, Kas., publisher of "The Defender."

Japan Warned U. S. On Scrap Embargo

(By the Associated Press)

Washington, Jan. 4 — Japan warned the United States fourteen months before Parl Harbor that the imposition of an embargo on iron and steel scrap exports to Japan might be considered an "unfriendly act," and was promptly rebuked by Secretary of State Hull for presuming to question this country's right to impose such an embargo.

This was disclosed in the White Book issued for the week end by the State Department.

"Moral Embargos"

Japan's warning was communicated to Hull by the then Japanese Ambassador Kensuke Horinouchi after "moral embargo" during 1938 and 1939 already had brought about the cessation of airplane and aviation equipment exports to the island empire.

After passage of the export-control act on July 2, 1940, authorizing the President to prohibit or curtail the export of basic war materials, it was announced in September that the export of iron and steel scrap would be prohibited.

It was then that Horinouchi told Hull that this might be considered an "unfriendly act." Hull vigorously rejected the implied warning.

Says the White Book:

"The secretary told the ambassador that it was really 'amazing' for the Japanese government, which had been violating in the most aggrating manner American rights and interest throughout most of China, to question the fullest right of this government to impose such an embargo.

Further Comment

"The secretary reiterated that it was unheard of for a country engaged in aggression and seizure of another country, contrary to all law and treaty provisions, to turn to a third nation and seriously insist that the latter would be guilty of an unfriendly act if it did not cheerfully provide some of the necessary implements of war to aid the aggressor nation in carrying out its policy of invasion.

"Despite the Japanese protest, a total embargo on the export of iron and steel scrap to destinations other than countries of the Western Hemisphere and Great Britain went into effect on October 16, 1940."

Roosevelt Gets Vargas Message

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—A message from President Vargas of Brazil expressing a hope that 1943 would be a year of victory was delivered to President Roosevelt today by the Brazilian Ambassador, Carlos Martins.

The Ambassador said the message was in reply to a New Year's greeting President Roosevelt sent the Brazilian Chief Executive. Vargas, he said, praised highly the civilian and military efforts of the United States.

Reds in Airacobras Fell Nazis 39 to 1 in 30 Days

Soviet Ace Calls U. S. Plane One of Best Fighters

BUFFALO, Jan. 4 (AP).—Russian airmen, flying Bell Airacobras (P-39), shot down thirty-nine German aircraft during a thirty-day period of fighting while losing only one of their planes, Colonel Peter S. Kiseley, fifty-seven-year-old Soviet ace said today.

Colonel Kiselev, holder of the Red Star award, one of Russia's two highest honors, visited the Bell Aircraft Corporation plant to acquaint engineers with mechanical problems caused by intense cold on the eastern front. He was accompanied by Major Andrew Ivanoff, chief of the U. S. S. R., liaison section of the international division of headquarters, service of supply.

The cannon-carrying Airacobras are "certainly giving a good account of themselves," he asserted, and are considered by Soviet pilots to be one of the best fighter planes.

New Heinkel Bomber Seen As Threat to U. S. Shores

Giant Four-Engined Craft Called Formidable by U. S. Authority

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP) American heavy bombers have come through their first year of warfare with flying colors and on all the world battlefronts the self-protecting, long-range warplane is as much in the spotlight as any speedy fighter.

Such sky giants as the Boeing Fortress and the Consolidated Liberator, at first sneered at by the Axis and shot down almost at will because of their early lack of firepower, now bristle with guns and foolhardy is the enemy pilot who tackles one.

Produce Their Own

But their very efficiency has caused the Germans to focus their attention on this murderous and almost invulnerable type of death-dealer, and they've come out with one of their own which Americans might do well to consider.

This is the Heinkel HE. 177, the Luftwaffe's latest four-engined heavy bomber, and, as described by Lester Ott, one of the nation's leading authorities on aircraft identification, it's a formidable ship.

Warns of Danger Here

It is so formidable, Mr. Ott warns in the 1943 edition of his book, "Aircraft Spotter," which will be published Thursday by Harcourt, Brace and Co., that it might yet be seen in action on this side of the Atlantic.

Cautioning residents of the eastern seaboard not to become too complacent about the danger of air raids despite the fact none has been attempted to date, Mr. Ott declares:

"The Heinkel model 177 has as long a range as any airplane now known. With a reduced bomb load it can fly the Atlantic and return to its base, and at exceptionally high speed."

Let's take a look at this cloud-hopper as depicted in Mr. Ott's book, which contains 137 other Axis and United Nations planes' photographs and silhouettes and of which 600,000 copies are in use by the Army and Navy, airline pilots, aircraft warning networks, aircraft identification schools, and civilians.

Four Motors Appear Like Two

In the first place, it is a fine symbol of Nazi deception in that while it appears to have only two radial engines it actually has four, each engine nacelle housing two motors.

The actual horse-power generated by the four engines is not known, but from various sources Mr. Ott has learned that its top speed is 300 M.P.H.

More significant, however, is its flying range, which Mr. Ott puts at 7,500 miles, as against the 3,000-mile range of the Consolidated B-24 and the 3,500-mile range of the Boeing B-17.

Bigger than either the Liberator or Fortress, the Heinkel is 79 1-2 feet long, with a wing-span of 103 feet, 4 inches. Its armament is about the same as the Fortress', including the deadly belly and tail guns.

Throughout his book, Mr. Ott, while terming the newer American heavy bombers "revolutionary" and saying their performance "presages the further development" of this type of plane, asks Americans not to be over-optimistic in evaluating U. S. aircraft pitted against the Axis.

Luftwaffe Most Experienced

"The German Luftwaffe," he writes, "retains one major asset—it is the air force most experienced in all the techniques of modern air warfare, the product of years of concentrated effort, in which ideas originating in Germany and ideas borrowed from other nations have been combined and implemented by intensive training and battle experience.

"Though its planes have been individually outclased in many cases, it remains one of the great air forces of the war. There is no evidence yet that the Luftwaffe is being seriously affected by raw material shortages or that German ingenuity in aircraft design is on the wane."

Turning to Japanese aviation, he says Nippon's early successes resulted from the advantage of strategic position and mastery of amphibian tactics rather than from the inherent quality of Japanese planes.

Japs Use Axis Designs

"However," he adds, "it would be a dangerous mistake to slip again into any complacency about Japan's ingenuity in the air. Japan is known to have a number of unorthodox models in the experimental stage. Furthermore, it is making use of the designs of its Axis partners. The Messerschmitt ME. 109 and ME. 110 and the Junkers JU 87 and JU. 88 are among the German models reported in Japanese service. The Italian Fiat B.R. 20 is also manufactured under license as the Mitsubishi 98 heavy bomber."

The aircraft authority writes off Italy with the statement that, while in the early thirties Italian military aircraft were abreast or even ahead of the rest of the world, Mussolini was too poor to keep up with the intense aeronautical development abroad.

On Russian aviation he remarks:

"Although the Russian air force has proved beyond a doubt that it can trade blows with the Luftwaffe, it seems unlikely that Russia has a sizeable fleet of the long-range bombers that would be needed for decisive results in the Pacific area in the event that United Nations became involved in war with Japan."

Double Praise for British

Praise for Britain is given by Mr. Ott on two scores: first for the surprising qualitative superity of its fighter planes at the start of the war and second for the development of its heavy bombers which, with those of the United States, augur round-the-clock bombing of Germany in the months to come.

Keep your eye on the bombers, hen, for this year looks like a big one for the battleships of the air.

LOSS OF TWO SHIPS REVEALED BY NAVY

Survivor Tells How Another Ship Destroyed U-Boat by Gunfire

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The submarine sinkings of two more medium-sized United Nations merchantmen off South America and in the south Atlantic was announced by the Navy yesterday as a survivor of one of the ships belatedly told of how another vessel he was on turned the tables on an undersea raider.

In an East coast United States port after surviving the September torpedoing and shelling of a British craft, which tried to ram its stalker, Frank R. Davis, a radio operator from Cheltenham, England, described a meeting with another submarine in the middle of the Atlantic "on a bright moonlight night in July, 1941."

Davis related how the submersible, which he believed was Italian, took his ship by surprise and started shelling it. Apparently the submarine had no torpedoes left, Davis said, and "it wasn't long before our gunners were at their stations.

"They fired first at the flash from the submarine's gun," Davis added. "By then we had maneuvered so that the submarine was silhouetted in the moonlight. After our third shot there was a tremendous explosion. We didn't wait around to investigate, but we saw nothing more of the sub."

Davis' last vessel found itself out-maneuvered by the faster U-boat which circled out of the way of the charging ship and let loose a torpedo which exploded in the engine room and killed 10 men. Davis said the submarine surfaced and sank the slowly settling ship with shellfire. The other 73 crewmen were rescued.

The South Atlantic victim was an American cargo carrier which went down off the west coast of Africa with a loss of 18 men of a crew of 66. The 48 survivors sailed for several hours, were saved by a friendly naval vessel, and have been landed at New York.

Ship Turns On Sub, Sinks It

[By the Associated Press]

An East Coast Port, Jan. 4—The belated story—but one too good to keep secret—of a British merchant ship which turned the tables on an attacking submarine was told here by the radio operator, a survivor from another vessel which didn't fare as well.

"It was on a bright moonlight night in July, 1941," related Frank R. Davis, of Cheltenham, England. "We were in the middle of the Atlantic.

Apparently Had No Torpedoes

"Without warning, a submarine started shelling us from astern. He must have been lying on the surface, charging his batteries, and we must have passed quite close to him. Apparently he had no torpedoes left.

"He took us by surprise, of course; but it wasn't long before our gunners were at their stations.

Silhouetted In Moonlight

"They fired first at the flash from the submarine's gun. By then we had maneuvered so that the submarine was silhouetted in the moonlight.

"After our third shot there was a tremendous explosion. We didn't wait around to investigate, but we saw nothing more of the sub."

Davis is certain the submarine was Italian.

Poor Gunnery Is Clue

"His gunner was so poor," he explained. "Then we had diagrams of enemy submarines, and his silhouette was exactly like that of an Italian craft."

The radioman came through this port after surviving the torpedoing of another British ship off the South American coast late in September. The sinking of this latter vessel was announced by the Navy Department today.

BERLIN NEWSPAPERS GENERALLY SAID THE SITUATION IN RUSSIA WAS SERIOUS, BUT ADHERED TO THE OFFICIAL LINE THAT IT WAS NOT CRITICAL.

BERN— FIRST AID DE GAULLISTS X X X WEEKS NOTE.

ONE EXAMPLE CITED AS PROBABLY "TERRORIST" ACTIVITY WAS A FIRE THAT DESTROYED A GARAGE AT AVIGNON ALONG WITH 17 CARS, STORES OF TIRES, TOOLS, AND GASOLINE. AN AVIGNON DISPATCH SAID A SHORT CIRCUIT MIGHT HAVE CAUSED THE BLAZE, BUT DESPITE THE PRESENCE OF A NIGHT WATCHMAN AND JANITOR, AND THE NEARNESS OF A FIRE DEPARTMENT, 4 FIRE FIGHTERS ARRIVED TOO LATE.

THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST ALLEGED SABOTEURS BEGAN ON THE EVE OF NEW GERMAN-FRENCH CONVERSATIONS LOOKING TOWARD REVISED OR "NEW" ARMISTICE LARGELY CONCERNED WITH ADMINISTRATION OF ALL OF FRANCE WITH INCREASED GERMAN DIRECTION.

THE GENERAL SECRETARY OF THE FRENCH FOREIGN OFFICE WAS REPORTED TO HAVE TALKED WITH HITLER OVER THE NEW YEAR PERIOD AND A BASIC AGREEMENT PRESUMABLY HAS BEEN REACHED.

LAVAL IS SEEN SAID TO BE GOING TO PARIS THIS WEEK FOR THE DISCUSSION, BUT THE PRINCIPAL POINTS WILL BE WORKED OUT BY A GERMAN-FRENCH COMMISSION, ACCORDING TO FRENCH QUARTERS. 1943

A UNIFIED REGIME FOR BOTH PARIS AND VICHY FRANCE, WITH THE DEMARCATION LINE TO ABOLISHED POSSIBLY BY JAN. 15; ALSACE LORRAINE TO BE VIRTUALLY INCORPORATED IN GERMANY, AND THE DEPARTMENT NORD AND PAS-DE-CALAIS TO BE UNDER GERMAN MILITARY COMMAND.

BELGIUM WOULD NOTBE AFECTED BY THE NEW AGREEMENT, THESE SOURCES SAID.

JAN 5 1943

POSTAL, TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMMUNICATIONS AND RAILWAYS WOULD BE UNIFIED WITH THE GERMAN OCCUPATION AUTHORITIES EXERCISING CONTROL. THESE OTHER PROVISIONS ALSO ARE EXPECTED:

REGULATIONS IN EFFECT SINCE 1940 IN OCCUPIED FRANCE WOULD BE APPLIED TO ALL OF FRANCE. FRENCH POLICE WOULD CONTINUE TO ENFORCE ORDER BUT GERMAN FIELD POLICE ANDTHE GESTAPO WILL BE ALLOTTED COLLABORATIONIST DUTIES.

THE NEW ARMISTICE ALSO WOULD ACKNOWLEDGE ESTABLISHMENT OF OCCUPATION COMMANDANT CHIEFS IN ALL ZONES AND DEPARTMENTS, THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT WOULD RETURN TO PARIS WHEN THE NEW ARMISTICE IS FORMALLY PUT INTO EFFECT.

TWO POINTS ARE LACKING IN THIS OUTLINE DRAWN UP BY THE FRENCH QUARTERS: THE FRENCH ARMY, AND ITALIAN TERRITORIAL CLAIMS.

FOREIGN OBSERVERS THOUGHT THE ITALIAN CLAIMS MUST AGAIN BE HELD OVER, ALTHOUGH AN INCREASE IN THE NUMBER OF ITALIAN TROOPS OCCUPYING THE SAVOY REGIONS WAS EXPECTED.

JAN 5 1943

NO AGREEMENT WAS REACHED REGARDING THE ARMY BECAUSE PRETORIEN SAID THE GERMANS WERE UNWILLING TO HAVE FRENCH OFFICIALS IN CHARGE, ESPECIALLY IF AN ARMY IS RECONSTITUTED IN FRANCE. IT MIGHT POSSIBLY REMAIN AS A "SYMBOLIC" ARMY OFTWO OR THREE DIVISIONS WITH ADDITIONAL LEGIONARY UNITS TO JOIN THE AXIS IN ACTUAL COMBAT.

AT THE SAME TIME ALLIED UNITS MADE A RECONNAISSANCE IN FORCE WITH A CONSIDERABLE NUMBER OF TANKS NORTHEAST AND SOUTHEAST OF MEDJEZ-EL-BAB, A HEADQUARTERS SPOKESMAN SAID.

A RECONNAISSANCE FORCE PENETRATED NORTHEASTWARD IN ONE AREA TO A POINT ABOUT SIX MILES FROM MEDJEZ-EL-BAB AND TO THE RIGHT OF THE TEBOURBA ROAD AND ENCOUNTERED ONLY LIGHT ANTI-TANK FIRE, THE SPOKESMAN SAID.

U.S. LIGHT DOUGLAS BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS ATTACKED CONCENTRATIONS OF GERMAN TANKS IN THE VICINITY OF THE PORT OF SOUSSE YESTERDAY. THE SPOKESMAN SAID THAT, SO FAR AS WAS KNOWN, THESE TANKS HAD BEEN UNLOADED AT THE PORT AND THERE WAS NOTHING TO INDICATE YET THAT MARSHAL ROMMEL WAS MOVING HIS REMAINING ARMORED FORCES INTO TUNISIA FROM LIBYA IN ANY GREAT FORCE FOR THE SUPPORT OF GEN. WALTER NEHRING.

THE AMERICAN BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS AIMED THEIR BOMBS, CANNON AND MACHINE-GUNS AT MANY TANKS CONCEALED IN ROWS OF TREES, AMONG BUSHES AND CAMOUFLAGED IN FIELDS. AT LEAST TWO TANKS WERE DESTROYED, FOUR OTHERS WERE BURNED AND MANY MORE WERE SHOT UP, BUT THE SPOKESMAN SAID THE FULL DAMAGE INFLICTED WOULD BE DIFFICULT TO ASSESS.

TWIN-BODIED LOCKHEED LIGHTNING P-38'S FOLLOWED UP BY ATTACKING OTHER TANKS IN THE SAME AREA DURING THE AFTERNOON. THREE MESSERSCHMITT 109'S GAVE BATTLE AND ONE P-38 WAS LOST, BUT ITS PILOT ESCAPED SAFELY.

SERGEANTS PRINCE, WATKINS AND WHITEHEAD RECEIVED THE D.F.C.FOR TAKING PART IN MORE THAN 50 OPERATIONAL FLIGHT MISSIONS DURING WHICH ENEMY CONTACT WAS PROBABLE AND EXPECTED, FROM APRIL TO NOVEMBER IN THE NEW GUINEA AREA.

LIEUT.HORNBECK, NAVIGATOR OF THE LEAD PLANE IN A BOMBING MISSION AGAINST AN ENEMY NAVAL TASK FORCE IN THE CORAL SEA MAY 6, LAID OUT A PLAN OF INTERCEPTION ON THE BASIS OF INFORMATION 12 HOURS OLD, SUCCESSFULLY LOCATED SIX JAPANESE WARSHIPS AND LED THE BOMBING RUN OVER THE TARGET. RETURNING FROM THIS MISSION, HE LOCATED EXACTLY THREE PREVIOUSLY UNKNOWN SMALLER SEPARATE ENEMY FORCES OF TRANSPORTS AND COMMUNICATED THE INFORMATION TO THE ALLIED FORCES.

LIEUT.MILLER ALSO WAS NAVIGATOR IN THE LEAD PLANE OF A MISSION, THIS ONE DIRECTED AT A JAPANESE CONVOY ATTEMPTING TO LAND REINFORCEMENTS AT BUNA, NEW GUINEA, NOV.2. WHEN THE ENEMY COULD NOT BE FOUND IN THE AREA FIRST SEARCHED, LIEUT.MILLER, USING KNOWN SPEEDS AND POSITIONS OF THE CONVOY, SUGGESTED ANOTHER PROBABLE POSITION. AS A RESULT THE CONVOY WAS ATTACKED AND FORCED TO ABANDON ITS ATTEMPT TO REINFORCE THE BEACHHEAD.

JAN 5 1943

SGT.KERULIS, ASSISTANT ENGINEER AND GUNNER, AND SGT.SMITH, GUNNER, TOOK PART IN MORE THAN 100 HOURS EACH OF OPERATIONAL FLIGHT MISSIONS. ON ONE OF SMITH'S MISSIONS, A DIRECT HIT WAS SCORED ON A JAPANESE CRUISER.

THE AIRPLANE OF WHICH LIEUT.KERNAN WAS CO-PILOT CRASH-LANDED IN THE SEA SHORTLY AFTER TAKING OFF FROM AN ADVANCED AIRDROME IN AUSTRALIA JULY 14. KERNAN WENT TO THE AID OF AN ENLISTED MAN WHO COULD NOT SWIM. WITH THE HELP OF ANOTHER OFFICER, HE HELD HIM ABOVE WATER UNTIL THEY WERE RESCUED AN HOUR AND A HALF LATER.

SGT.GUNN SAVED THE LIFE OF ONE FLIER AND PREVENTED THREE OTHERS FROM BEING SERIOUSLY BURNED WHEN AN AIRPLANE CRASHED AND BURST INTO FLAME AT AN ADVANCED AIRPORT IN AUSTRALIA MAY 9. GUNN REMOVED ONE MAN FROM THE WRECKED MACHINE. THREE CREW MEMBERS, THROWN CLEAR OF THE WRECKAGE, WERE COVERED WITH GASOLINE WHICH CAUGHT FIRE. GUNN EXTINGUISHED THE FIRES, SUFFERING SEVERE BURNS IN DOING SO.

JAN 5 1943

MAJOR ROUSE LED A FORMATION OF FLYING FORTRESSES OVER JAPANESE-HELD VANAKANAU AIRDROME AT RABAUL, NEW BRITAIN, OCT.5. AFTER BOMBING THE RUNWAY DESPITE HEAVY ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRES, THE PLANES WERE ATTACKED BY 30 JAPANESE ZEROS. IN THE 45-MINUTE BATTLE WHICH FOLLOWED, EIGHT ZEROS WERE SHOT DOWN. MAJOR ROUSE PILOTED HIS DISABLED PLANE BACK TO ITS BASE THROUGH ADVERSE WEATHER WITHOUT THE AID OF HIS NAVIGATOR, WHO WAS WOUNDED. HE LANDED THE MACHINE ON ONLY TWO ENGINES.

MAJOR SHEPPARD, THEN A CAPTAIN, WAS PILOT OF A P-400 FIGHTER IN A FORMATION WHICH RAIDED THE JAPANESE AT BUNA AUG.25, THROUGH HEAVY RAIN. THE UNUSUALLY SUCCESSFUL RAID RESULTED IN THE DESTRUCTION OF EIGHT TO TEN ENEMY PLANES ON THE GROUND, THE FIRING OF A GASOLINE DUMP AND THE SILENCING OF GUN POSITIONS.

LIEUT.HINTON PILOTED A FLYING FORTRESS ON A BOMBING MISSION SEPT.26, OVER MILNE BAY, NEW GUINEA, WHERE AN ENEMY CONVOY ESCORTED BY THREE CRUISERS AND TWO GUNBOATS, WAS HARBORING. DESPITE ENEMY ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE WHICH DESTROYED ONE OF OUR PLANES AND DAMAGED THREE OTHERS, HINTON MADE A BOMBING RUN FROM 2,500 FEET, SCORING HITS AND NEAR MISSES ON A TRANSPORT WHICH WAS LEFT IN A SINKING CONDITION. HE THEN STRAFED THE ENEMY WARSHIPS FROM 2,000 FEET UNTIL ENGINE TROUBLE FORCED HIS WITHDRAWAL.

JAN 5 1943

LIEUT.OSBOURNE TOOK PART IN A BOMBING ATTACK, AS CO-PILOT OF A FLYING FORTRESS, UPON ENEMY SHIPPING AT PALEMBANG, SUMATRA, FEB.16, 1942. THE BOMBING RUN WAS OVER TWO TRANSPORTS, PROTECTED BY SEVERAL CRUISERS, WHICH WERE UNLOADING MEN AND SUPPLIES. BOMBS FROM OSBOURNE'S PLANE DESTROYED ONE BARGE AND RESULTED IN HEAVY DAMAGE AND NUMEROUS CASUALTIES TO THE ENEMY. THE PLANE'S MACHINEGUNS ALSO STRAFED THE TRANSPORT.

AMERICAN CAPTURE OF THE BUNA GOVERNMENT STATION WAS ACHIEVED THROUGH A MODIFICATION OF THE SWINGING DOOR TACTICS SO SUCCESSFUL IN THE ALLIED OPERATIONS FARTHER EAST IN THE CAPE ENDAIADERE AND OLD STRIP SECTORS.

HAVING ESTABLISHED A CORRIDOR TO THE COAST, TROOPS HOLDING THE SEAWARD END OF THE LINE PUSHED SWIFTLY ALONG THE BEACH ENTIRELY AROUND GOVERNMENT STATION POINT, WHILE FORCES FARTHER INLAND CLEARED OUT THE CENTER PORTION. TONIGHT ONLY ISOLATED SNIPERS WERE STILL IN THE AREA.

JAN 5 1943

IT IS ESTIMATED THERE ARE MORE THAN 200 JAPANESE DEAD IN THE GOVERNMENT STATION SECTOR, WHILE IN THE GIROPA POINT AREA AUSTRALIAN INFANTRY SUPPORTED BY AMERICAN-MADE GENERAL STUART TANKS KILLED ABOUT 450.

OF THE JAPS WHO SOUGHT ESCAPE BY SEA, ANOTHER 60 WERE KILLED TRYING TO COME ASHORE OR REST ON REEFS BETWEEN THE GOVERNMENT STATION AND SANANANDA POINT.

JAN 5 1943

IN THE WORDS OF THE HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE, THE ALLIED FORCES NOW ARE PREPARING TO ENVELOPE THE LAST ORGANIZED REMNANTS OF JAPAN'S PAPUAN ARMY IN THE SWAMPY SANANANDA AREA. THERE HAS BEEN HEAVY PATROL ACTIVITY AND OCCASIONAL OUTBURSTS OF ARTILLERY FIRE THERE FOR WEEKS. YESTERDAY OUR ARTILLERY IS BELIEVED TO HAVE SCORED A BULL'S-EYE ON AN ENEMY SUPPLY DUMP ON SANANANDA TRACK, FOR THERE WERE FIRES AND EXPLOSIONS.

A HIGH AUSTRALIAN OFFICER DESCRIBED THE BUNA OPERATIONS AS "A SERIES OF BRILLIANT ACTIONS," IN WHICH THE ENEMY LOST AN ESTIMATED 1,200 IN KILLED ALONE. IT WAS A PROGRESSIVE SERIES OF SIEGES AGAINST DEFENSES IN DEPTH.

MELBOURNE, Australia. (AP) Jan.4 - Collapse of the Japanese position in the Buna area of South Eastern New Guinea, confining Japanese resistance to narrowly held sector at nearby Sanamda point, brought a warning from the Melbourne Herald today that the New Guinea campaign was by no means ended so long as the Japanese were strongly entrenched at Salamaua and Lae, 120 to 160 miles north.

PRESS DISPATCHES TO HALIFAX. THE STORM HAD TIED UP COMMUNICATIONS BETWEEN NEW YORK AND MONTREAL AND THE PRINCIPAL CANADIAN CITIES. NEWS BULLETINS WERE SENT TO BERMUDA BY WIRELESS, CABLED TO HALIFAX, AND SENT FROM THERE TO THE CANADIAN PRESS NETWORK.

JAN 5 1943

DELAYS IN RAILROAD TIME SCHEDULES FORCED MANY SERVICEMEN TO SPEND NEW YEAR'S DAY AT RAILROAD STATIONS.

THE CITY OF BROCKVILLE ON THE ST. LAWRENCE WAS WITHOUT POWER, TELEGRAPH OR TELEPHONE SERVICE FOR THREE DAYS, AND COMMUNICATIONS THERE WERE STILL SHAKY TONIGHT.

BY GLENN BABB

THE TIDE OF RUSSIAN SUCCESS RISES STEADILY. YESTERDAY MOSCOW'S BROADCAST ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE RECAPTURE OF MOZDOK IN THE CAUCASUS WAS FOLLOWED BY THE PLAYING OF THE "INTERNATIONALE" TO MARK THE NEW TRIUMPH AS SOMETHING OUT OF THE ORDINARY EVEN IN THESE DAYS WHEN IMPORTANT CITIES ARE RECOVERED ALMOST EVERY DAY.

MOZDOK REPRESENTED THE DEEPEST PENETRATION OF HITLER'S ARMIES INTO SOVIET TERRITORY; THERE HE WAS ALMOST WITHIN SIGHT OF THE DERRICKS OF THE GROZNY OIL FIELDS; THOSE OF BAKU WERE NOT FAR BEYOND. TO BE THROWN BACK FROM MOZDOK MEANS THE COLLAPSE OF ONE OF THE FUEHRER'S FONDEST HOPES, ONE WHICH HE PROCLAIMEDPUBLICLY IN HIS MUCH-QUOTED SPEECH OF SEPT. 30, TO SEIZE THE OIL RESOURCES OF THE FARTHER CAUCASUS. SUCCESS THERE MIGHT HAVE MEANT THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN VICTORY AND DEFEAT IN HIS RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN.

A LOOK AT THE MAP SUGGESTS THAT THE RETREAT FROM MOZDOK MAY PROVE THE BEGINNING OF A FLIGHT FROM THE ENTIRE CAUCASUS AREA. THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND CAN NOT BE REGARDING THAT LONG, VULNERABLE SALIENT, THRUST 300 MILES SOUTHEAST FROM ROSTOV, WITH ANYTHING BUT DEEP ANXIETY. THE ROSTOV BOTTLENECK DAILY BECOMES NARROWER, AND THE DAY MAY NOT BE FAR OFF WHEN GERMAN LEADERSHIP NO LONGER WILL HAVE A CHOICE BETWEEN A FAIRLY ORDERLY WITHDRAWAL AND A DISASTER LIKE THAT WHICH ALREADY HAS GRIPPED 22 AXIS DIVISIONS ON THE APPROACHES TO STALINGRAD.

THE RELENTLESS ADVANCE OF THE RUSSIAN ARMIES OF THE MIDDLE DON, THOSE SOUTHWEST OF STALINGRAD AND OTHERS IN THE KALMYCK STEPPES STEADILY INCREASES THE DANGER THAT THE FORCES HITLER SENT AFTER THE CAUCASUS OIL WILL HAVE NO AVENUE OF ESCAPE. FROM THE NORTH, EAST AND SOUTHEAST THESE RED ARMY COLUMNS CONVERGE STEADILY ON ROSTOV, THROUGH WHICH THE NAZI FORCES IN THE SOUTHEAST MUST PASS IF THEY ARE TO RETREAT IN GOOD ORDER FROM THE CAUCASUS.

SOMETHING SIMILAR ALSO IS DEVELOPING A THOUSAND MILES NORTHWEST OF MOZDOK WHERE THE RUSSIANS ANNOUNCE THE REDUCTION OF THE BASTION OF VELIKIE LUKI AND CONTINUED PROGRESS TOWARD THE LENINGRAD-VITEBSK RAILWAY, WHICH HELPS SUPPLY THE GERMAN ARMIES WHICH HAVE BEEN HELD AT BAY AROUND LENINGRAD FOR NEARLY A YEAR AND A HALF. THE GERMAN DEPENDENCE ON THIS RAILWAY IS NOT AS COMPLETE AS ON THE LINES THROUGH ROSTOV IN THE SOUTHEAST SINCE THERE IS A MORE WESTERLY RAILWAY THROUGH PSKOV, BUT EVERY MILE OF THE RED ARMY'S WESTWARD PROGRESS FROM VELIKIE LUKI ADDS TO THE MENACE TO THE GERMANS IN THE LENINGRAD SECTOR.

BUT THE PSYCHOLOGICAL EFFECT OF VELIKIE LUKI MAY BE EVEN GREATER THAN ITS TACTICAL MEANING. THE GERMANS HAD MADE THE CITY ONE OF THE MAIN FORTRESSES OF THEIR RUSSIAN FRONT, STRENGTHENED WITH ALL THE RESOURCES OF GERMAN MILITARY ENGINEERING AND DEFENDED, ACCORDING TO THE MOSCOW ACCOUNT, BY A GARRISON THAT ACCEPTED UTTER ANNIHILIATION RATHER THAN SURRENDER. THE RUSSIANS SAY THE NAZIS FOUGHUNMGE LAST

UTTER ANNIHILIATION RATHER THAN SURRENDER. THE RUSSIANS SAY THE NAZIS FOUGHT TO THE LAST MAN BECAUSE THEIR LEADERS OFFERED THEM NO CHOICE, THREATENING IMMEDIATE DEATH FOR ANY MAN THAT FALTERED AND FURTHER REPRISALS ON HIS FAMILY. NOW, SAYS MOSCOW, THE GERMANS DARE NOT ADMIT THAT VELIKIE LUKI HAS BEEN LOST FOR . ? OF ITS EFFECT ON THE MORALE OF MANY ANOTHER GARRISON ON THAT HEART-BREAKING RUSSIAN FRONT.

AT ANY RATE VELIKIE LUKI APPARENTLY IS ANOTHER PROOF OF THE RED ARMY'S NEW -FOUND ABILITY TO DELIVER THE FINISHING BLOWS TO EVEN THE MOST TENACIOUSLY HELD GERMAN STRONG POINTS, AN ABILITY ALREADY DEMONSTRATED IN THE TAKING OF KOTELNIKOVSKI SOUTHWEST OF STALINGRAD AND ONE WHICH WAS LACKING IN THE RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE OF LAST WINTER.

ADOLF HITLER'S HAIR, INCLUDING THE FORELOCK THAT BECAME HIS TRADE MARK IN HAPPIER YEARS, IS TURNING GRAY, STOCKHOLM HEARS. THE NEWS FROM THE EASTERN FRONT IS REASON APLENTY. THE FUEHRER'S BELIEF IN HIS STAR MUST BE GRAVELY SHAKEN ALONG WITH HIS CONFIDENCE IN HIS OWN INSPIRED INTUITION, WITH WHICH HE REPLACED THE PROFESSIONAL TRAINING OF HIS GENERALS A YEAR AGO. THERE MUST BE BLACK NIGHTS WHEN HE NO LONGER CAN AVOID LOOKING ON THE FACE OF THE MENACING FUTURE AND REALIZING IN THAT PERIL HE HAS PLACED HIS PEOPLE.

JAN 5 1943

NEW DELHI, JAN 2-(DELAYED)-HISTORY PROVIDES FEW HUMAN TRAGEDIES SO AWFUL AS THAT OF INDIA'S 60,000,000 UNTOUCHABLES WHO ARE CONDEMNED BY TRADITION TO LIVE AS PARIAHS JUST AS THEIR ANCESTORS HAVE DONE FOR HUNDREDS OF YEARS.

THAT WORD "PARIAH", SAYS A LOT, BY THE WAY. HERE IN THIS ANCIENT LAND IT IS APPLIED BOTH TO THE PERSON WHO IS AN OUTCAST FROM SOCIETY AND TO THE GAUNT WILD DOG WHICH BY DAY SKULKS OUTSIDE THE CITIES AND TOWNS AND BY NIGHT RACES WAILING THROUGH THE STREETS

IN SEARCH OF GARBAGE AND OFFAL WITH WHICH TO FILL HIS HUNGRY BELLY.

THE UNTOUCHABLE WILL TELL YOU THAT THERE ISN'T MUCH TO CHOOSE BETWEEN THE LIFE OF THE MAN AND THAT OF THE BEAST. MANY WOULD FEEL THAT THE ADVANTAGE RESTS WITH THE DOG. AFTER ALL, HE ISN'T CONDEMNED TO SUCH TASKS AS EMPTYING NIGHT VESSELS FOR HIS BETTERS AND HE IS NOT UNLUCKY ENOUGH TO LIVE AS LONG AS THE MAN.

THE STORY OF THESE UNFORTUNATE FOLK IS SO FANTASTIC IN THESE DAYS OF ALLEGED CIVILIZATION THAT I'D LIKE YOU TO GET IT STRAIGHT FROM ONE WHO WAS BORN IN THIS CLASS.

JAN 5 1943

I'VE JUST COME FROM TALKING WITH DR. BHIMRAO RAMJI AMBEDKAR, CHAMPION OF THE UNTOUCHABLES, AND I WANT HIM TO TELL YOU WHAT THIS STIGMA MEANS AND HOW HE IS WORKING TO DRAG HIS PEOPLE UP OUT OF THE SLOUGH OF DESPOND.

YOU DOUBTLESS KNOW DR.AMBEDKAR ALREADY AS A LEADER WHO IS TRYING TO SECURE A PLACE IN THE SUN FOR THE UNTOUCHABLES UNDER THE NEW CONSTITUTION WHICH HAS BEEN PROMISED INDIA. THE DOCTOR HIMSELF HAS ESCAPED FROM THE HORRORS OF HIS CLASS BY A QUEER TWIST OF FATE WHICH I SHALL DESCRIBE LATER.

HE IS A LAWYER BY PROFESSION--A MAN OF WIDE LEARNING WHO HAS BEEN EDUCATED IN COLUMBIA, LONDON AND BOMBAY UNIVERSITIES. NOW HE IS A MEMBER FOR LABOR IN THE VICEROY'S COUNCIL AND FROM THAT POST HE IS FIGHTING THE BATTLE OF THE DEPRESSED CLASSES.

THE DOCTOR WILL TALK TO US IN THE DRAWING ROOM OF HIS FINE RESIDENCE WHICH STANDS IN A SPACIOUS GARDEN ON ONE OF THE QUET STREETS IN NEW DELHI. HE IS A GOOD LOOKING MAN OF PERHAPS 45 WHO THINKS ALONG STRAIGHT LINES AND SPEAKS TO THE POINT.

HE IS A STRIKING EXEMPLIFICATION OF THE TRUTH THAT GOD MADE THE UNTOUCHABLE THE SAME AS THE OTHER NATIVES OF INDIA, BUT THE RELIGIOUS CASTE SYSTEM HAS CHALLENGED THE WORK OF THE ALMIGHTY.

THAT CASTE SYSTEM WITH ITS INNUMERABLE RAMIFICATIONS PERMEATES THE WHOLE STRUCTURE OF SOCIETY. GOVERNMENTS HAVE STRIVEN IN VAIN TO BREAK IT DOWN.

JAN 5 1943

BUT LET DR.AMBEDKAR TAKE UP THE RECITAL:

"IN ORDER THAT YOU MAY UNDERSTAND OUR PROBLEM I MUST START AT THE BEGINNING AND GIVE YOU SOME OF THE FUNDAMENTAL FACTS. ONE OF THESE IS THAT INDIA IS A LAND OF VILLAGES. THERE ARE FEW TOWNS AND CITIES, BUT THERE ARE 700,000 VILLAGES.

"NOW THE VILLAGES CONSIST OF TWO SECTIONS. THERE IS THE VILLAGE PROPER AND APART FROM IT THERE IS THE SETTLEMENT OF THE UNTOUCHABLES. THIS DEPRESSED CLASS REPRESENTS ON AN AVERAGE PERHAPS ONE-TENTH OF THE TOTAL POPULATION OF THE VILLAGE.

"THE UNTOUCHABLES ARE NOT A PART OF THE VILLAGE BUT ARE WHOLLY OUTSIDE ITS LIFE, THOUGH FOR PURPOSES OF TAXATION THEY ARE REGARDED AS IN THE VILLAGE. THESE UNTOUCHABLE SETTLEMENTS HAVE NO ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE.

"THEY HAVE NO LAND. IN SOME PLACES, LIKE THE PUNJAB, THEY ARE FORBIDDEN BY LAW TO OWN LAND. THEIR ANCESTORS NEVER HAD LAND AND SO THERE IS NONE TO INHERIT. THE HINDUS GENERALLY WON'T SELL

LAND TO THE UNTOUCHABLES BECAUSE THE UNTOUCHABLES AREN'T RESPECTABLE MEN.

"THUS THE UNTOUCHABLE IS HELPLESS AND DEPENDENT ON THE VILLAGE FOR HIS LIVELIHOOD. ALL WAYS OF EARNING A LIVING ARE BLOCKED TO HIM EXCEPT FOR THE LOWEST AND MOSE MENIAL TASKS. BECAUSE HE IS UNTOUCHABLE NOBODY, FOR EXAMPLE, SHOULD BUY BUTTER, MILK OR VEGETABLES FROM HIM IF HE HAD ANY TO SELL.

"EVERY VILLAGE HAS ITS SOCIAL CODE. UNDER THIS THE UNTOUCHABLE IS COMPELLED TO WEAR DIRTY CLOTHING. HE HAS NO PLACE TO WASH AND IF HE TRIES TO USE A VILLAGE WELL THE PEOPLE RISE UP AGAINST HIM.

JAN 5 1943

"UNTOUCHABLES MAY NOT WEAR ORNAMENTS. THEY MAY NOT EVEN HAVE METAL UTENSILS, BUT MUST USE CLAY. I'VE KNOWN PLACES WHERE WOMEN HAVE BEEN ASSAULTED FOR CARRYING BRASS POTS TO THE WELL. THE VILLAGERS TOOK OFFENSE.

"THE UNTOUCHABLE MAY NOT HAVE A TILE ROOF. HE MUST USE GRASS. HIS WATER SUPPLY MUST BE SEPARATE. HIS SCHOOL MUST BE SEPARATE. HIS TEMPLE IS SEPARATE. THE WHOLE ADMINISTRATION OF THE COUNTRY--THE WHOLE CIVIL SERVICE, POLICE, JUDICIARY, ETC.--IS MAINLY IN THE HANDS OF HINDUS AND PARTLY IN THE HANDS OF MOSLEMS. UNTOUCHABLES HAVE NO PLACE IN IT.

"IF AN UNTOUCHABLE HAS A QUARREL WITH THE VILLAGE THEN THE POLICE PROSECUTE. THE REGULAR COURTS WON'T DEAL WITH IT, OR IF THEY DO THEY HANDLE IT BADLY AND IN FAVOR OF THE HINDU. THE CASE ALWAYS GOES AGAINST THE UNTOUCHABLE. THERE IS NO POSSIBILITY OF HIS GETTING JUSTICE.

"THE GOVERNMENT DOESN'T INCLUDE THE UNTOUCHABLE IN THE POLICE SERVICE. THE POLICE HAVE TO ARREST PEOPLE AND SEARCH HOUSES. THE UNTOUCHABLE CAN'T DO THAT. THE SAME IS TRUE OF THE OTHER CIVIL SERVICES.

JAN 5 1943

"WE TRIED TO REMEDY THIS SITUATION BY CLAIMING FOR THE DEPRESSED CLASSES SEATS IN THE PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURES. THE UNTOUCHABLES HAVE 151 SEATS OF A TOTAL OF 1,558 AND THESE WERE GIVEN TO US BY WAY OF SAFEGUARD.

"THE PROBLEMS ARE, FIRST, HOW TO PROTECT OURSELVES FROM LOCAL TYRANNY IN THE VILLAGES AND, SECOND, HOW TO GET JUSTICE AT THE HANDS OF THE POLICE AND MAGISTRACY.

"OUR SEATS IN THE LEGISLATURES GIVE US A CHANCE TO PROTEST AGAINST UNJUST LAWS, BUT THIS DOESN'T ENABLE US TO HELP THE UNTOUCHABLES IN THE VILLAGES OR TO GET JUSTICE.

JAN 5 1943

"HERE IS MY SOLUTION:

"ALL THESE SCATTERED SETTLEMENTS OF UNTOUCHABLES SHOULD BE REMOVED AND REGROUPED INTO VILLAGES OF THEIR OWN. THERE IS A LOT OF FREE LAND IN INDIA WHICH CAN BE CULTIVATED. THE GOVERNMENT SHOUL PROVIDE THE MONEY AND IN 20 YEARS THE CHANGE COULD BE MADE.

"WE WANT TO ESCAPE FROM PERPETUAL SLAVERY TO THE HINDUS. WE WANT TO BE FREE PEOPLE IN OUR OWN VILLAGES.

"AS REGARDS THE POLICE AND MAGISTRACY WE SHOULD HAVE A CERTAIN NUMBER OF PLACES RESERVED FOR US IN THOSE SECURITY SERVICES.

"THUS WE SHOULD HAVE REPRESENTATIVES OF OUR OWN IN THESE SERVICES TO SE THAT NO HARM WAS DONE TO US.

"THIS PLAN WOULD ABOLISH UNTOUCHABILITY. A MAN IS AN UNTOUCHABLE BY INHERITANCE. THE WHOLE VILLAGE KNOWS HE IS AN UNTOUCHABLE. HE CAN'T ESCAPE IDENTIFICATION. ALL THE VILLAGERS KNOW ALL THE UNTOUCHABLES. AN UNTOUCHABLE CAN'T HIDE HIS BIRTH. HE IS PERPETUALLY AN UNTOUCHABLE.

JAN 5 1943

"BUT IF WE TRANSFER THE UNTOUCHABLES TO FAR-OFF SETTLEMENTS OF THEIR OWN, THEN THE MEANS OF IDENTIFICATION WILL BE GONE. AN UNTOUCHABLE LOOKS LIKE ANY OTHER INDIAN OF HIS RACE. THIS PROGRAM WOULD ENABLE THE UNTOUCHABLES TO ESCAPE TYRANNY. IT WOULD DO AWAY WITH UNTOUCHABILITY. IT WOULD DESTROY THE INFERIORITY COMPLEX OF THE DEPRESSED CLASSES.

"THE UNTOUCHABLES SUFFER TERRIBLY FROM AN INFERIORITY COMPLEX. THEY CAN'T LIVE RESPECTABLY OR DRESS RESPECTABLY. THEY CAN'T GET EDUCATION OR HOLD OFFICE. THEY HAVE COME TO REGARD THIS AS THEIR DESTINY.

"THE SETTLEMENTS WILL REMOVE ALL THIS. THAT'S WHAT WE WANT IN THE NEW CONSTITUTION.

"WE LOOK TO AMERICA TO COME TO OUR RESCUE IN THE SETTLEMENT OF THE INDIAN QUESTION."

"AND HOW, DR.AMBEDKAR, DID YOU ESCAPE FROM THE FATE OF YOUR PEOPLE?"

"I AM A PRODUCT OF HISTORY," REPLIED THE DOCTOR. "WE MUST GO BACK TO THE NAPOLEONIC WARS. INDIA WAS CONQUERED AT THAT TIME BY THE EAST INDIA COMPANY WITH THE HELP OF INDIAN TROOPS, NOT BRITISH. AND IT WAS THE UNTOUCHABLES WHO FOUGHT FOR THE COMPANY.

"THIS ENLISTMENT OF THE UNTOUCHABLES WAS A GODSEND TO THEM, AS IT OPENED UP A CAREER AND PROVIDED HIGH PLACES IN THE ARMY. MY PEOPLE WERE IN THE ARMY AND MY FATHER GOT AN EDUCATION AND THOUGHT OF GIVING ME AN EDUCATION.

"I HAD TO FIGHT ALL DIFFICULTIES THOUGH. I COULDN'T SIT WITH THE OTHER CHILDREN IN SCHOOL BUT HAD A STOOL IN THE CORN .

"IN 1892 THE GOVERNMENT STOPPED RECRUITING UNTOUCHABLES FOR THE ARMY BECAUSE THE HINDUS WOULDN'T SERVE UNDER OR WITH THEM. THIS REMOVED THE ONLY CAREER OPEN TO AN UNTOUCHABLE."

THE LATE GAEKWAR OF BARODA, WHOM AMERICAN KNEW WELL AS A GREAT HUMANITARIAN AND WORKER FOR THE GOOD OF HIS PEOPLE, TOOK AN INTEREST IN AMBEDKAR AND SENT THE YOUNG MAN TO COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY WHERE HE OBTAINED HIS PH.D.

NAZIS LOSE 6 TOWNS TO RUSSIANS; BELIEVED FLEEING CAUCASUS TRAP

TSIMLYANSK SEIZED

Russian Column Drives Far West of Nazis Encircled at Stalingrad.

11,000 NAZIS SLAIN

Vast Amount of Equipment, Including 150 Tanks, Captured by Reds.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, Jan. 5. — Red army troops have captured five more key cities in the Don river loop and the Caucasus in their massive smash toward Rostov whose seizure would trap the entire German southern army in Russia, another special Soviet communique announced tonight.

The broadcast bulletin recorded here by a Soviet monitor said that Tsimlyansk and Morozovskaya inside the Don bend had fallen to the Russians who already are far west of the remnants of 22 Nazi divisions encircled before Stalingrad.

140 Miles from Rostov

Russian columns that took these two cities, both about 140 miles from Rostov, are obviously trying to link up with other Red army troops pushing southward on Rostov from the Millerovo area. This Russian wing last was reported to be within 100 miles of Rostov, city of the Sea of Azov.

Deep down in the Caucasus other Red army columns seized Nalchik, Prokhladnenski, and Kotlyarevskaya, the communique said. It may be that the Germans in this sector already are beginning a precipitate withdrawal toward Rostov, 310 miles to the northwest, lest they be trapped by the Russians striking toward Rostov.

British military observers believed the Germans were abandoning the central Caucasus after almost attaining the rich Grozny oil fields because of the threat to Rostov. They said the rapid Russian advance in this wintry, hilly region could only have been possible in the absence of organized Nazi resistance.

11,000 Germans Killed

More than 11,000 German troops fell in the northern Caucasus fighting from Dec. 24 to Jan. 4, the special Russian announcement said, and vast quantities of Nazi equipment were seized, including 150 tanks, 109 guns, 268 machineguns, about 5,00 rifles, 59,000 anti-tank and anti-personnel mines, and 253 motor trucks.

In the same period Russian troops destroyed 18 planes, 170 tanks, 222 machineguns and 390 supply trucks, the communique added.

Tsimlyansk is on the north bank of the lower Don river, and Morozovskaya to the north is on the Stalingrad-Likhaya railway. The capture of Morozovskaya represented an 18-mile westward advance since yesterday's announcement of the seizure of Chernishkov.

A New Rail Junction

Morozovskaya is only about 80 miles from Likhaya, junction point on the Moscow-Rostov railway. Russian troops driving southward on Rostov last were reported somewhere between Millerovo and Likhaya, and the latter point is probably the intended goal for a junction of these two columns.

Tsimlyansk on the lower Don is the point which was so fiercely contested last fall when the Russians attempted to keep the Germans from crossing the river to attack Stalingrad from the southwest.

Below Tsimlyansk on the Don striking southwestward along the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway. These troops represent an additional threat to the Germans anchored deep in the Caucasus because they last were reported only 170 miles from Tikhoretsk through which the Nazis must withdraw toward Rostov if they decide to retreat.

Still other Russian troops were fanning out across the Kalmyck steppes west of Elista—the intermediate fighting zone between the lower Don and the Caucasian mountains.

Reds Gain 40 Miles

In this most southern of the sectors, the Russians had advanced approximately 40 miles in their drive to remove the Nazi menace to the Grozny oil fields and the Georgian military highway through the Caucasion mountains.

By seizing Prokhlodnenski, a railway point on the Rostov-Baku line, they had driven 20 miles west of Mozdok; by taking Nalchik and Kotlyarevskaya they had advanced from 37 to 40 miles from Alagir in the Caucasian foothills. Kotlyarevskaya is about 20 miles east of Nalchik and is on the railway spur connecting Prokhladnenski with Ordzhonikidze, the northern end of the Georgian highway.

The regular midnight communique said stubborn fighting preceded the fall of Nalchik and Prokhladnenski. The Germans were said to have girdled Nalchik with powerful fortifications and mine fields, but Russian infantry supported by tanks and artillery stormed the city in a decisive night attack.

"On the approaches to Nalchik and in the streets of the town the enemy left hundreds of killed officers and men."

City Taken by Storm

Morozovskaya, in the Don bend, also was taken by storm, the Russians said, and German prisoners and a large quantity of equipment were taken.

On the big front southwest and south of Stalingrad the Russians said a heavy battle took place for one advantageous position where the Germans "brought into action important forces striving to hold this position at any price."

But the Russians said their gunners cleared the way for Russian infantry, "penetrated the enemy's position and forced them to retreat." Eleven guns, seven mortars, 28 machineguns and an ammunition dump were captured in this action.

In another sector south of Stalingrad the communique said "our detachments pursuing the retreating enemy wiped out a battalion of German infantry."

Inside Stalingrad itself the Germans still were fighting although the Russian offensive now has swept more than 100 miles west of that city. The Russians said Red army snipers and reconnassance units killed more than 100 Germans yesterday in the industrial area of the Volga river city.

Fight at Stalingrad Rages

West of Stalingrad Soviet troops fighting stubbornly to gain two important heights, presumably in the Don-Volga river pocket where 22 Nazi divisions are cut off, occupied 20 enemy blockhouses, captured four guns, 16 machineguns, 134 rifles, and took a number of prisoners.

These troops long have been reported dependent on air-borne supplies. Nine German planes were declared shot down yesterday.

In the middle Don area the Russians said their troops still were seizing additional localities, and among the prisoners seized were a regimental commander of a German air-borne division and some of his men.

On the central front, 1,100 miles north of the Central Caucasus struggle, the communiqué said, Russian troops were fortifying newly won positions in the area of captured Velikiye Luki and had repulsed with heavy losses Nazi counter-attacks southwest of that strong point.

REDS TAKE NALCHIK, KEY CAUCASIAN CITY

Fuehrer Reported Calling for Last-ditch Fight in Caucasus.

NEW TRAP FORMING IN BEND

Second German Force in Grip of Closing Russian Pincer West of Stalingrad.

London, Jan. 5 (A. P.).—The Moscow radio tonight announced the capture of the key Caucasian center of Nalchik, in a broadcast picked up here by the Soviet monitor.

Nalchik was one of the largest cities taken by the Germans in their push into the Caucasus last summer. Its recapture was announced in a special communique, that said: "On January 4 our troops carried out a decisive attack and captured the town and railway station of Nalchik.

"On January 5 our troops captured the town and railway center of Prokhladnaya, the town of Nalskaya and the railway center of Kotlaryevskaya.

"After fierce fighting our troops took the town and railway station of Morozovskaya and the district center of Tsimlyanskaya. Trophies and prisoners were captured."

Report 11,000 Germans Slain.

The announcement added that more than 11,000 Germans were killed in the northern Caucasus during the period from December 24 to January 4.

Earlier today London had received reports that the German armies in the Caucasus have been ordered to hold their positions at all costs—even to a last-ditch stand in the event the Russians cut their corridor of escape through Rostov. This information, so far unconfirmed, said the German plan was to supply the Caucasus army by sea if land communications failed. Already the Germans were said to be assembling a fleet of all available Black Sea ships of 200 tons or more to carry supplies to Novorossisk.

Second Nazi Force in Trap.

Moscow, Jan. 5 (A. P.).—The Russian Army's middle Don pincers was reported closing today on a second large German force west of Stalingrad despite counter-attacks of fresh Nazi forces hurled into the fight in an attempt to save their hard-pressed forward garrisons.

A powerful force of German tanks and infantry attacked yesterday in a grim effort to reach one isolated pocket of their troops in the Don Bend sector, but the thrust was repelled, battlefront dispatches said.

Meanwhile the Russians announced the occupation of Chernishkov, on the rail line to Likhaya, and the German air base at Chernishkovskaya, forty miles farther north, capturing seventeen planes, 2,000,000 shells and a half million airplane bombs.

In this sector the Russians appeared to be within about thirty miles of closing their trap on the second force of Germans some 100 miles west of Stalingrad. The Russians reported holding a corridor twenty-five miles wide at the narrowest place between this force and the remnants of the twenty-two divisions pocketed farther east, between the Don and Volga.

The German counter-attacks were launched with reserves and gained some ground in the initial stages of the fight. The Russians said, however, that their own tanks broke up the thrust and threw the Nazis into retreat.

Battlefront dispatches said German resistance southwest of Velikie Luki was stiffening but that the Red Army kept on the attack.

In the Kalmyck Steppe fighting west and southwest of Elista the Russians were reported pushing ahead under difficult conditions of terrain over an arid, snowless plain whipped by dry, cold winds, and where wells sometimes are forty miles apart. The Russians said their tank forces were bearing the brunt of the campaign in this sector, supported by motorized infantry.

Two Key Points Are Taken, Vast Stores Of Equipment Seized

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Red Army troops threatened to close another giant pincers on encircled Axis garrisons about 100 miles west of Stalingrad today, following the capture of Chernishkov, on the railroad to Likhaya, and the German air base of Chernishkovskaya, 40 miles north of the railroad center, Soviet authorities reported.

The two places were captured yesterday and 17 planes, 2,000,000 shells, a half million airplane bombs and other stores of civilian and war supplies were taken, the Moscow radio announced in broadcasting a special war bulletin recorded here by the Soviet Monitor.

Broadcast regular communiques, recorded by the Soviet Monitor, the latest of which was the Soviet Information Bureau's midday war bulletin, told of fierce fighting southwest of Stalingrad, in the middle Don area, southwest of Velikie Luki and in the Northern Caucasus, where Russian soldiers wielded bayonets and rifle butts to clear a village of the enemy.

German Ranks Broken.

Tank units bore against reinforced German outfits which had succeeded in throwing back the Red Army in one sector of the middle Don battle, the Russians reported, and broke the German ranks, killing several hundred men and disabling 49 Axis tanks.

West of Rzhev, German counter-attacks were reported repulsed and southwest of Velikie Luki a Red Army unit drove the Germans out of a strongly fortified center of resistance after smashing barbed wire defenses and picking a path through mine fields.

"In the Northern Caucasus our troops continued their advance and occupied several populated places," the mid-day communique said. "An especially fierce engagement took place in the area of a large village. The Germans threw considerable numbers of infantry and tanks into the attack.

"Our artillery gunners, followed by infantrymen, opened fire and disabled eight enemy tanks. In hand-to-hand fighting with bayonets and rifle butts, Soviet troops routed the Hitlerites and drove them from the village.

330 Enemy Dead Counted.

"Three hundred and thirty enemy dead were counted on the battlefield.

"According to incomplete data, in the capture of the town of Mozdok one Soviet unit alone routed two German battalions, and captured 15 tanks, 8 guns, 2 large ammunition dumps and many motorcycles."

More towns were taken in the south and southwest of Stalingrad and in the Middle Don, the mid-day war bulletin noted.

It did not identify the towns, but successes in the Middle Don were presumed to be shaping the right wing of the pincers in their region.

Russian columns already have crossed the Don River east of Tsimlyansk to provide the left wing of the pincers, and the gap to Chernishkov appeared to lack only about 30 miles of closing. Union of the two armies would encircle more Axis divisions about 50 miles west of the trap which holds the remnants of the 22 divisions before Salingrad.

The Russians said that in the Middle Don fighting enemy garrisons were encircled and under siege and that in counterattacks attempting to relieve them the Germans lost more than 1,000 dead in yesterday's fighting as well as 24 tanks.

The Middle Don drive was pointed ultimately at Rostov as were the pushes down the railroad past Kotelnikovski and the offensive action developing near Lake Manych, in the Kalmyck region, 90 miles southeast of Salsk, which itself is 100 miles southeast of Rostov.

The regular communique said a motorized unit southwest of Stalingrad dislodged the Germans from an important position southwest of Stalingrad after a flanking attack.

In the Caucasus, fighting was reported in vicinity of two inhabited localities as the drive was pressed forward from newly-captured Mozdok and southeast of Nalchik.

The communique described street fighting in a town on the central front where positions are being consolidated after the capture of Velikie Luki. Counterattacks west of Rzhev were repulsed, the Russians said.

Denounces Nazi Claims.

The Soviet Information Bureau denounced bitterly in a broadcast what it called "Hitlerite lies" about successes claimed by the Germans on the Russian front.

"The new year was begun by German troops with a swift backward movement on many fronts, including the Terek sector," it said, answering the Axis headquarters claim of victory in that area.

The Russians called that victory announcement "a blatant contradiction of facts." To German claims of successes west of Kaluga, the Russians retorted: "This announcement is also a Hitlerite lie. Kaluga has long been in the rear of the Red Army. West of Kaluga, as already announced by the Soviet Information Bureau, there is still a lull. The inventions of the Hitlerite high command are as foolish as they are false and only expose the Nazi ringleaders to the derision of the whole world."

Tribe Wars on Nazis

Moscow, Jan. 5 (AP).—The Ingush tribe of the North Caucasus is reported to have declared a "Gazavatz," meaning Moslem holy war, against the Germans.

The army newspaper Red Star said that the dean of the tribe, a mullah named Gazi, proclaimed the holy war to the Ingush people from a minaret at the village of Bezorkino. He was reported to have received a rush of volunteers.

Church Thanked By Stalin

JAN 6 1943

(By the Associated Press)

Moscow, Jan. 5—The offer of a Russian Orthodox Church subscription to build tanks for the Red army has received the thanks of Premier Joseph Stalin and of the army, and an exchange of messages between Sergei, the acting patriarch, and Stalin was published prominently on the first pages of all Soviet newspapers today.

Sergei is the metropolitan of Moscow. He sent a special message to the Kremlin informing the Soviet Government that he had called on the clergy "and believers to contribute to the fund for the construction of a tank column to be named Dmitri Donskoy, for the prince who defeated the Tartars in the Middle Ages and was made a saint."

His patriarchate opened the subscription with 100,000 rubles. Yelokhovsky Cathedral, in Moscow, donated 300,000 rubles and its prior, Nikola Kilchinsky, gave 100,000 rubles.

In his message Sergei asked that an account be opened in the state bank to handle the fund.

Stalin's reply said: "I hereby transmit to the Russian orthodox clergy and to believers my greetings and thanks of the Red army for their care for the armored tank forces of the Red army." He said an account would be opened.

The action was regarded here as the most striking of a number of examples of wartime cooperation between the church and the state, which separated a quarter of a century ago in the Bolshevik revolution.

RAF Bombers Batter Ruhr Valley Plants For Second Night

Nazis Make 'Suicide' Attacks on U. S. Planes, London Paper Says

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—RAF bombers battered at German industrial targets in the Ruhr Valley for the second night in succession last night, an Air Ministry communique said today. Two British planes were reported lost.

The Berlin radio reported casualties were caused among the civilian populations as well as "damage to buildings in residential quarters." The German radio claimed four of the raiding planes were shot down.

The attack apparently was on a small scale, measured by previous RAF assaults on the busy plants in the Ruhr. The British report of two planes lost indicated a total force of perhaps 40 planes.

Nazi "Suicide" Technique.

The 1943 pounding of targets in Germany and German-occupied territory began Sunday when British bombers and fighters were over the continent most of the day and a force of American heavy bombers smashed at the submarine base at St. Nazaire, France. Seven of the big bombers were lost in the raid.

The Daily Express said today that the Germans inaugurated a new "virtual suicide" technique against the American flyers Sunday and lost 38 fighters. The newspaper identified the American bombers as the St. Nazaire raid as Flying Fortresses and said at least two of them were brought down by anti-aircraft fire.

The Express report said the general commanding the Fortresses flew in a leading bomber. United States Air Force headquarters refused to comment on the newspaper's report which said the German fighters, trying out their new method, flew in pairs and attacked the big bombers headon.

Penetrated Curtain of Fire.

The Express did not name the general reported to have led the raid, but quoted a pilot as saying: "I was flying just behind the general's machine. An anti-aircraft shell burst near it and scattered over the Fortress.

"We kept in tight formation and plunged through a curtain of fire right on to the target. The Germans followed us out to sea, but we gave them heavy punishment.

"Some broke up in the air and others went down in flames."

Biggest R. A. F. Bombers Blast Ruhr in New Raid

German Radio Admits Damage; British Lose Two Planes

JAN 6 1943

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—Royal Air Force bombers, including Britain's biggest, dropped their explosives on targets in Germany's industrial Ruhr valley for the second successive night and started fires which glowed on the horizon long after the raiders had departed early today.

The Air Ministry in announcing the attack, which apparently was on a comparatively small scale, said two of the raiding planes failed to come back. On the usual ratio of losses, this indicated that a force of about forty planes took part.

The Germans, in a radio announcement, said casualties and "damage to buildings in residential quarters" were caused. They said four of the raiders were shot down.

The attack Sunday by American Flying Fortresses on St. Nazaire submarine nests, which initiated the 1943 Allied bombing program, meanwhile was said by "The Daily Express" to have resulted in the shooting down of thirty-eight enemy fighting planes. It said the Germans tried a new technique in their attacks on the Fortresses, diving head on by pairs. Seven of the bombers were lost, the largest number shot down in a Fortress raid, but "The Express" said two of them were the victims of anti-aircraft fire. United States Air Force headquarters refused to comment on the report of the paper, which said the raid was led by a general.

BLOCKADE RUNNER SUNK BY BRITISH

Heavily-Laden German Ship Intercepted in Bay of Biscay.

JAN 6 1943

LONDON, Jan. 5—(AP) The British disclosed today that Germany had lost another blockade-runner to Great Britain's sea and air patrols in the Bay of Biscay.

The German ship—the fourth intercepted in the past five weeks—was sent to the bottom with a full cargo of raw materials which may have been sorely needed gasoline and rubber for the Reich from Japan.

Unable to convoy essential material, the Germans apparently are relying upon fast ships to make passage between Japan and French ports. The number of interceptions during recent weeks indicated here the growing stringency of raw materials in the Reich and the further tightening of the air-sea blockade.

A coastal plane spotted the latest German victim in extremely bad weather and attacked without success. Then a Sunderland flying boat shadowed the vessel despite gale-like winds and a heavy rain. The flying crew guided a British cruiser to the quarry.

"A large German vessel attempting to run the blockade heavily laden with raw materials for Germany has been intercepted by our patrols and sunk," said a joint communique from the Admiralty and Air ministry.

The Admiralty announced last Saturday that a 10,000-ton German blockade runner was scuttled by her crew when overtaken by British patrols. It was considered probable that she also carried a valuable oil and rubber cargo from Japan.

Both sinkings occurred in the Bay of Biscay off the Axis-held west coast of France where the cargo could have been landed in a port such as Bordeaux. It was reported heer that the enemy ships had made the trip around South Africa.

Previously the Admiralty had announced that a German blockade-runner had been sunk early in December in the Indian ocean and a second on Dec. 16 in the Atlantic.

British Wonder if Japan Will Fight to Hold Akyab

Meaning of Ship Movements at Burma Base Uncertain

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—Dispatches from the Burma front today said Japanese tactics in the region near the India border were puzzling, and that it was "still uncertain whether the Japanese commander on the Arakan coast intends to defend Akyab or withdraw without a fight."

Akyab is the Japanese-occupied port on the northeast coast of the Bay of Bengal, British land forces have been fighting in its direction and Allied air forces have pounded it steadily.

The Reuters (British) correspondent at the front reported that ships have been arriving and leaving Akyab during the last few days, "but whether they were bringing up supplies or taking off troops is difficult to establish."

"The problem will be settled shortly when it is expected that British forces may contact the enemy," he said. "As British forces near Akyab, their supply problem becomes increasingly difficult. The Japanese, meantime, are carrying on harrassing tactics by dashing along jungle waterways to make short, sharp attacks."

COMPROMISE SEEN IN EFFORT TO UNITE 2 FRENCH FORCES

DeGaulle May Offer to Postpone Politics, Concentrate on War.

LONDON, Jan. 5 — (AP) In an effort to unite the armed forces of the Fighting French and the Giraud government in North Africa, Gen. Charles de Gaulle may offer to postpone political considerations if he can discuss military problems with Gen. Henri Giraud.

Such a discussion formula was considered likely here tonight since both factions have as their immediate, paramount objective a cooperative effort with the Allies to crush Axis armies.

While General de Gaulle's Christmas day proposal that he and General Giraud meet on French soil aroused keen interest in Algiers, there was no comment or any indication if or when a reply would be forthcoming.

No Comment in London

A Fighting French spokesman here said he was "unable to comment" on a report that Gen. de Gaulle had addressed a new message to General Giraud relative to a meeting.

Political considerations which might prove a stumbling block to such a conference involve formation of a united French regime. De Gaullist adherents have maintained that any unified administration must be divorced from Vichy government connections, however remote.

Before the Allied invasion of North Africa in November, it was ruled by Vichy-controlled administrators. Admiral Darlan swung from the Vichy to the Allied camp after the invasion and upon his death was succeeded at the head of the high commissariat by Gen. Giraud.

JAN 6 1943

In Algiers, de Gaulle followers declared they still looked hopefully to Allied leaders to take the initiative in arranging a meeting between their chief and General Giraud.

Giraud Group Reluctant

The Giraud group has been reluctant, however, even to suggest negotiations with Gen. de Gaulle. Presumably they feared such a move might react unfavorably in some circles which could not be reconciled to accepting Fighting French leadership although those circles are considered pro-Allied.

Typical of the gulf between the French groups are the meetings of de Gaullists in Algiers. They still gather in secret, although as Fighting Frenchmen they work with the Allies alongside of whom Gen. Giraud's armies are fighting.

There was a general belief in Algiers, though, that invitations for de Gaulle to visit Washington were preliminary to negotiations between the Fighting French and Giraud under United Nations sponsorship.

Giraud was visited yesterday by Harold MacMillan, new British resident minister in North Africa. MacMillan previously conferred with Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and is cooperating with Robert Murphy, the United States minister.

LAKE CHAD FORCE HAS YOUNG CHIEF

LEADING INVASION

Mysterious Fighting French Column Reported 600 Miles from Tripoli

JAN 6 1943

LONDON, Jan. 6 — (AP) That mysterious Fighting French column which has been reported advancing from the Lake Chad region of Equatorial Africa northward into Libya is led by a 40-year-old general whose real identity is hidden by the nom de guerre "General Jacques LeClerc," a Fighting French spokesman disclosed today.

Italian war reports have mentioned such a column and recent broadcasts from North Africa said it had reached the Fezzan area of Libya, about 600 miles south of the main Axis base of Tripoli. The size of the force, its exact route and destination have not been disclosed.

General's Name Secret

There is no French general in Africa by the name of "LeClerc" and the Fighting French source here said "very few people know the general's real name." The source gave this account of the mysterious figure:

Three years ago in the battle of France, a young captain escaped wounded from a German military hospital. He hid in a chateau, obtained civilian clothing and borrowed from the invading Germans a bicycle to reach the English channel coast.

Eventually the officer reached London, where he joined General Charles de Gaulle. Gen. de Gaulle sent him to the Cameroons in French Equatorial Africa to organize resistance against the Vichy French government.

A month later the mid-African colony joined the Fighting French forces and the captain was promoted to brigadire general for his services.

An announcement in July, 1940 said that all French forces in that area would be commanded by "General Jacques LeClerc." Since then the mystery man has carried that name.

Short, slight and fair-haired, the general is bronzed deeply and wears a close-trimmed moustache. A graduate of the famed St. Cyr academy, he is noted for his taciturnity.

Most of his service had been with the desert cavalry, one of the most colorful of French Imperial armies.

Nazis' Looting Methods In Netherlands Described

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—The Netherlands government in exile here issued a memorandum today in connection with the Allied declaration on property rights in occupied countries, asserting that Germany "ever since the beginning of the occupation has robbed and plundered" the Netherlands.

"The form applied by the Germans in the Netherlands most openly is that of simply confiscating the property of public bodies, members of the royal family, persons who are considered to promote the Allied cause or are friendly toward it, Jews and many more," said the memorandum, distrubuted by Aneta, Netherlands news agency.

Sometimes, it was stated, the Germans would acquire property they desired by forced sale, as in the case of private art collections or of Jewish business concerns.

"In many cases, however," the memorandum said, "the enemy chooses the form of seemingly legal transactions, such as, for instance, the purchase of bonds on the stock exchange, of paintings at auction and countless other voluntary purchase transactions. The latter methods of acquiring property in point of fact are also robbery. For the enemy forces the occupied country to make the necessary means available to enable him to make these purchases, either by adding to the occupational charges or by credit provided by the so-called purchase of guilders with marks."

The memorandum asserted that the Germans did considerable looting during the last war, but "in this war Germany has been able to get a much bigger haul. * * *"

"We must be reconciled to the fact that Germany's partner, Japan, will apply a similar system of looting to the Netherlands East Indies," the statement said.

HITLER DISASTER IN '43 PREDICTED

London, Jan. 5 (A. P.).—"There is no doubt in my mind that before many weeks Hitler will be faced with the greatest disaster of the war," Ernest Bevin, Labor Minister and member of Britain's war cabinet, said today in a speech at a Government training center.

"Everybody should be resolute and say that 1943 is Britain's big chance—a chance to take the weight off Russia—and I hope it will be a chance to get in the knock-out blow," Mr. Bevin said.

He declared that the German armies in Russia are in jeopardy and that the task is to combine Britain's First Army in Tunisia and her Eighth Army in Libya to oust Adolf Hitler from Africa.

"Every man and woman should have the feeling that now is the time to put in the big punch," he added. "It is the last round and the last mile that counts."

British Decorate American Flier

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Acting Flight Lieutenant Oliver Charles Kallio of Ironwood, Mich., today received the Distinguished Flying Cross. Serving with the Royal Canadian Air Force, he twice led a fighter squadron against German bomber formations in October, forced them to jettison their loads prematurely and destroyed a Junkers 87.

Nazis Seen Abandoning Hold

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—British military observers believed today the Germans were abandoning the central Caucasus after almost attaining the rich Grozny oil fields because of the threat to Rostov. They said the rapid Russian advance in this wintry, hilly region could only have been possible in the absence of organized resistance.

Giraud Sees Macmillan

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—General Giraud received as a visitor yesterday Harold Macmillan, new British Resident Minister in North Africa. Macmillan previously conferred with Lieutenant General Dwight D. Eisenhower and is cooperating with Robert Murphy, the American Minister.

Typical of the gulf between the French groups are the meetings of De Gaullists in Algiers. They still gather in secret, although as Fighting Frenchmen they work with the Allies alongside whom Giraud's armies are fighting.

JAVA LEADER DIES

JAN 6 1943

LONDON, Jan. 5 — (AP) Pangeran Adipati Ario Soejono, minister without portfolio in the Netherlands government and first native of the East Indies to be named a member of the cabinet, died today.

Pangeran Soejono, member of a princely Javanese family, was one of the group of Indies leaders who escaped to Australia from Java last March with Dr. Hubertus J. Van Mook, then lieutenant-governor-general. He had previously been a member of the high council of the Netherlands Indies and had held various other administrative posts.

His appointment to the cabinet on June 9, 942, was widely interpreted as indicating increased participation by Indonesians in the affairs of the Netherlands kingdom.

Eisenhower Reported Meeting Hoare, Gort

London, Jan. 5 (AP).—The Vichy radio broadcast a report from Madrid today that Sir Samuel Hoare, British Ambassador to Madrid, Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, in charge of Allied operations in North Africa, and Lord Gort, Governor-General and Commander in Chief of Malta, had met at Gibraltar.

Quake Is Felt in India

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—A Reuters dispatch from Bombay said a sharp earth shock was felt at Shillong in the Indian Province of Assam at 7:05 a. m. today. No damage was reported. Assam is in Northeast India, adjoining Burma.

Princesses Receive Gift of Maple Sugar

London, Jan. 5 (A. P.).—Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose each have received a typically American gift from an American admirer: Two jars of maple sugar.

The package came from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

DRUG BLAMED IN DEATH OF LADY CASTLEROSSE

Coroner Discusses Case of Former Wife of Earl

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP)—A coroner's verdict saiy today that Viscountess Castlerosse, who died in a hospital Dec. 12, had been killed by a drug that she took. She was the former wife of Valwhite Charles Brourde, Earl of Kenmare.

The coroner said that the circumstances in which she took the drug had not been fully disclosed by the evidence.

Two Physicists Isolate No. 85, Last of Known Primary Elements

BERN, Switzerland, Jan. 5.—(AP) Two physicists at the Radium Institute of Bern — one a Swiss and the other the wife of an English diplomat—have announced the discovery of a method of isolating chemical element 85, the last of the 92 primary components of matter to be identified, and have named the material Anglo-Helvetium in honor of their countries.

The scientists are Dr. Walter Minder, director of the institute, and Dr. Alice Leigh-Smith, a pupil of Madame Marie Curie, who, with her husband Pierre, discovered radium.

Discovered in 1940 JAN 6 1943

Dr. Minder, who announced in 1940 that he had obtained an infinitesimal amount of element 85 from radium, has been called the discoverer of the element, which he then called simply helvetium.

(The existence of "85", however, had been postulated by other scientists, including some in the United States, where the substance had been named alabamine.)

The new element is said still to be available only in very small quantities but Dr. Minder and Mrs. Leigh-Smith said they had isolated enough to photograph and study further.

Dr. Minder first noted "85" three years ago, when he described it as a relative of chlorine, bromine, iodine and fluorine, but it was available only in such tiny amounts in compound with other elements that some scientists were disinclined to accept his work as proof of discovery.

Later Dr. Leigh-Smith, collaborating with him in experiments on cancer, noted in the behavior of a redium compound she was using irregularities which she could account for only on the assumption that a new elment was present.

Photographed Radiations

She succeeded in separating the element and photographing its radiations.

After that, another year and a half was needed to isolate it and establish scientifically its identity.

Anglo-Helvetium not only was the last of the elements to be discovered but it also completed the list of ten radio-active elements. Thus it carried to a conclusion the work begun by the Curies' discovery in 1898.

Dr. Leigh-Smith, the first woman in England to be awarded a doctorate in nuclear physics, also is noted for cancer research. She carried on the investigation of a new treatment under the auspices of the British empire cancer campaign from 1936 until the outbreak of the war. Her work in cancer research has now been resumed at Bern.

Dr. Minder is also well known for cancer study and for a textbook on radio-therapy.

Swiss Scientists Separate Element From Radium

Bern, Switzerland, Jan. 5 (AP).—Helvetium, chemical element No. 85, and the last discovered of the 92 primary substances which make up all matter, has now been separated from its parent substance, radium, in sufficient quantity so that it can be photographed and given further study, two scientists at the radium institute here asserted today.

The collaborators are Dr. Walter Minder, who announced his discovery of helvetium in July, 1940, and Dr. Alice Leigh-Smith, wife of a British diplomat here and a pupil of Mme. Marie Curie, codiscoverer of radium.

When Minder announced his discovery of the elusive No. 85 in 1940, he said he had isolated a tiny speck, one ten-thousandth of a milligram, from a gram of radium.

Helvetium was not only the last of the theoretically conceivable chemical primaries but was also the tenth and final of the radio-active elements whose discovery began with the work of Pierre and Marie Curie.

NAZIS ADMIT RED AIR SUPERIORITY

Berne, Jan. 5 (A. P.).—The Berlin Lokalanzeiger said today that Soviet troops are superior in the air as well as in men and tanks. It was the first time any Berlin statement ever referred to aviation superiority by the enemy.

Bait Held Out to Poles

Bern, Switzerland, Jan. 5 (AP).—In a new effort to obtain the cooperation of Poles, the Germans were reported today to have instituted a system of a German food ration and wage scale for those Poles accepted in a new "organization of active collaborators."

The newspaper said the members had "the opportunity to lead materially advantageous lives if they showed the proper inner attitude to make an outward contribution" to German Europe.

Italy Hits 'White Paper'

Bern, Switzerland, Jan. 5 (AP).—Virginio Gayda, who often speaks the Italian government's mind in the newspaper Il Giornale D'Italia, asserted today that the United States' White Paper was an attempt by President Roosevelt "to free himself of the immense responsibility for the gigantic scope the war has taken."

De Gaullist Purge Reported in France

JAN 6 1943

Bern, Switzerland, Jan. 5 (AP).—A purge of De Gaullists and other oppositionist elements throughout France was reported yesterday in a Paris dispatch, and private sources said six new concentration camps already had been opened in the Nazi-held country.

Subversive activity against the Vichy government and occupation forces has increased since German troops moved into Vichy, France, and whereas before the groups lacked coordinated direction there was now a general movement for united "terrorist" activity, the report said. Large numbers of arrests were reported in Paris.

8 P.M. Curfew Reported Imposed on Marseille

By the Associated Press.

BERN, Switzerland, Jan. 5.—The Vichy radio reported today that the Germans had imposed a curfew on the Mediterranean port of Marseille after a bomb was thrown at a hotel used by the occupation forces and

30.24 — 105

...that German soldiers w... fired to shoot if they encou... resistance in enforcing it.

A Frenchman was killed in the bombing. (The Vichy radio as heard in London said German military headquarters and another establishment frequented by German soldiers in Marseille had been bombed Sunday night.)

Under the curfew regulations streetcar service must halt at 7:15 p.m. and Marseille's residents must be off the streets by 8 p.m.

Rumania Dissolves All Religious Sects

By the Associated Press.

BERN, Switzerland, Jan. 5.—A Budapest dispatch to the Neue Zurcher Zeitung today said the Rumanian government had ordered the dissolution of all religious sects in Rumania with their property reverting to the state.

It said a decree declared the sects were dependent on foreign countries and had doctrines contradicting Rumanian ideology.

Axis Reports 300 Captured

ROME (From Italian broadcasts), Jan. 5 (AP).—An Italian communique said today that Axis forces had captured 300 prisoners, including six officers, in Tunisia Sunday, and were continuing to consolidate recently captured positions.

"In a successful German coup de main two small forts were destroyed and two officers and eighteen British soldiers were captured," it added.

The communique said Allied pressure was growing against Axis outposts in the desert of southern Libya.

The communique reported Axis raids on Algiers and an Allied raid on Lampedusa Island, between Sicily and Tunisia. It listed twelve Allied planes as destroyed.

Berlin Claims Red Base.

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 5 (A. P.).—The German High Command said today that Nazi forces had captured a Russian base in the western Caucasus in a surprise assault but reported the Red Army attacking on all other fronts from the far Arctic north to the Caucasus. The communique did not identify the base declared captured or indicate its importance.

It said the Germans still were engaged in heavy defensive fighting in the Don area and had repelled Russian attacks southeast of Lake Ilmen, in the Volkhov and Leningrad areas and on the Kandalakcha front far in the north.

Yanks Raid Crete

JAN 6 1943

By Edward Kennedy

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Over Crete With the United States Air Force, Jan. 2 (Delayed). We are bombing crete today as part of a great effort to knock that island out as a German air base.

We have a number of points to prove. One is that the Germans were not so smart as they thought they were when they took the island with parachutists so they could use it as an offensive air base against the Middle East.

We are trying to do to Crete the very thing they attempted to do to Malta a few months ago—and failed.

Tear Up Runway First

We took off from a secret assembling point somewhere in the Middle East in a large formation of B-24 Liberators. This raid is highly strategic. We are to go over their main fighter airfield at Kastella Pediate, southeast of Candia, and smash up their runway so no fighters can take off.

Then medium bombers, B-25 Mitchells, are to come in at a much lower altitude and destroy their planes on the field.

The man who planned this raid must have had imagination. He happens to be piloting the plane I am in—Lieut. Col. A. F. Kalberer, of Lafayette, Ind.

Former KLM Chief Pilot

He was an airplane pilot in the United States and then became chief pilot for K. L. M., the Dutch air line. He kept that job after the invasion of Holland as K. L. M. continued to operate—and to be one of the best air lines in the world—despite the collapse of its home country.

He went to America at his own expense to join the United States Air Force and, speaking of coincidences, arrived the day the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. He led the first raid by American planes from the Middle East against the Rumanian oil fields.

He also led the second raid, which was against the Italian fleet and highly successful.

Head Straight For Crete

Col. George F. McGuire, of Coffeyville, Kan., is leading this raid, and Kalberer is in command of the final formation of our planes.

We take off. We get in position and then we strike out over the sea straight for Crete.

We ascend. We are so high now that no creature can live without oxygen at this height. No eagle or any other bird has ever flown so high as we are. We are going to fool them this time by coming in higher than they expect us to.

Runway Easily Spotted

It is hard to see much at this height, but we can see mountains and valleys of Crete and, above all, we can see one thing we want to see, which is that runway, and it stands out like a sore thumb.

We go across it and let the bombs drop. Do we get that runway? We not only get it but we get a fighter plane taking off on it. That plane will never take off on any runway again.

Our own plane, Babe the Big Blue Ox, hangs a little behind. In case there is any part of that runway the others have missed, we are going to get it. We find one gap on a little further they missed. We go for that and smash it up.

Ack-Ack Almost Gets One

We have done our job and all we have to do now is to run home as fast as we can, which is very fast. Some ack-ack bursts, but not very near to our plane. One plane, Poison Ivy, gets a burst under the right wing and the blast lifts its wings almost vertical, but it gets no holes. It straightens out and comes along with us.

Just as we leave we see the medium bombers coming in much below us. That is their affair. We don't know it at the time, but those five Messerschmitts which hovered above us and did not attack us went after the mediums. The mediums had a rough time and shot down one fighter.

On that field were twenty fighters, several bombers and night fighters. Most of them are smashed up now and no fighters can get off that runway to resist other bombings by the RAF, which also took off for Crete today and is over Tunisia too.

Soon we see land again. We are over the Nile delta, looking down at farmers plowing those marvelously fertile fields. It is very green and looks good.

Best Nazi Planes Believed Hurled Into Africa Fight

Air Force Declared, However, Far Below Past Effectiveness

JAN 6 1943

By WES GALLAGHER,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 5.—Adolf Hitler's attempt to keep the Mediterranean blocked to Allied shipping has turned the Tunisian war into a major effort with thousands of German and Italian troops deployed from Bizerte to the Tripolitanian border along with part of the first line strength of the German Air Force.

This purely personal conclusion is based on a 2,100-mile trip to the war front in a jeep, topped with another 700 miles of travel in a Flying Fortress, much of it on a bombing mission over Tunis.

For sheer torture, the jeep trip was by far the worse.

These are the main impressions I got in traveling over the front:

1. Rain and the constant threat of rain make Allied tank warfare impossible in Northern Tunisia until late February. There are only a few main roads leading into Tunis and Bizerte and the ground between them is nothing but muck which would mire the lightest tank.

Nazis Hold Advantage.

2. The Germans, with short lines of communication, a perimeter defense of the two ports, and a great concentration of artillery and aerial protection from Sardinia and Sicily, could halt any infantry assault with murderous losses.

3. In the North ...d warfare has stagnated with ne... side able to take a definite initia...ve.

4. Despite the advantage of established bases in Sicily and Sardinia with easy reach of the front, the German air force is losing its punch in the face of Allied opposition and is only a shadow of the terrible weapon it was in Greece and France.

5. The lack of airfields is handicapping the Allied air effor... but the military punishment being dealt out by Flying Fortresses, Lockheed Lightning (P-38) fighters and RAF attacks is 10 times as effective militarily as the blows of the German air force.

French Fighting Gallantly.

6. French troops, with a total disregard of politics and antiquated equipment, are fighting with great gallantry, particularly at Pont De Fahs and in the south along a winding irregular line through the mountains toward Gafsa.

7. The Germans are making great preparations for the defense of their positions in Tunisia.

One hindrance to the Allied drive is the terrain, which, next to the weather, is the key to the situation. It resembles that of Arizona in appearance, with fewer trees and with great mountains of rock cut by narrow twisting roads.

There are great plateaus in Central Tunisia where the roads run from 50 to 60 miles without turning, often skirting the ruins of old Roman cities. Along these roads war chariots raced hundreds of years ago. Now sleek Lightning fighters whisk down them a few feet above the camels driven by Arabs.

Fewer German Planes.

But where 100 Stukas once appeared, only 15 now appear. Where 40 Axis fighters flew, only 4 now fly. When they are challenged by the RAF and American fighters they quickly disappear. The Germans obviously are husbanding their waning strength.

To the soldier underneath particularly, the dive-bombing is still hell, but it is impossible to keep every enemy plane off every Allied soldier. The Germans, with long-prepared fields in Sardinia and Sicily, hold every advantage, but they have been unable to exploit them to the extent they did in Greece, Crete and Norway.

JAN 6 1943

In dry weather Tunisia's great plateaus provide a hundred flying fields for the asking, but now these fields must be created with thousands of tons of wire netting brought hundreds of miles by trucks. Even with these, I have seen Spitfires land in 6 inches of water which sprayed 2 feet high over the cockpit as the plane came in.

On the other hand, the Allied bomber attack has been one of the most consistent of the war. Able to pick and choose from fields well behind the lines, American bombers smash down on the Germans in Bizerte, Tunis, Sfax, Gabes and Sousse by day while bombers from the Middle East command hit by night.

In the North of Tunisia, the war has gone into wet and miserable trenches along the ridges as in

For every four bombs dropped by the Germans on Bone or behind the Allied lines, however, British and American bombers drop 40. This ratio is increasing and when it can be co-ordinated with a tank attack it can be a deciding factor.

Gen. Walther Nehring, the German commander in Tunisia, recognizes this and he is conserving air strength which has been estimated at about 1,000 planes in Tunisia, Southern Italy, Sardinia, Sicily and Tripoli.

JAN 6 1943

Any doubt that Hitler intends to fight for the bottleneck of the Mediterranean between Tunisia and Sicily has been dispelled by the quality of the prisoners being taken. There are crack German airmen who saw service in Western Europe, Norway and Russia. Some of them wear insignia denoting 110 operational flights.

The first scratch troops are being replaced by veteran German outfits and their numbers are increasing every day.

Africa

World War days. It is here that American troops are facing the veteran German troops and learning through hardship the crafts of war.

In the south, there is no line—just a series of strong points held by the French, British parachutists and scattered American troops.

The Germans use gliders to drop their patrols behind these strong points for guerrilla raids while American and French patrols often penetrate deep into the enemy lines on similar raids.

It is a dangerous and exciting country where one never knows while driving along whether parachutists or glider troops have mined the road or bridge just ahead.

I can still hear the howls of rage from the ground troops. They have been dive-bombed and strafed dozens of times. I have done my share of ditch jumping as Messerschmitts raked the road.

Rule Air for Short Periods.

It is still true that the Germans can raid the Allied lines, making daylight travel on the few roads dangerous, and they even control the air for short periods.

Railroad Yards at Kairouan and Cherichera Are Heavily Bombed

LAND ACTION AT STANDSTILL

Germans Continuing Massing Troops and First Line Planes in Tunisia.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 5 (A. P.).—The United States Army Air Force struck effective blows in support of the French and American ground forces in South Tunisia today, bombing railroad yards at Kairouan and other targets at Cherichera, six miles northeast of Fondouk. Fondouk is southeast of Pichon, which is sixty miles west of the Gulf of Gabes in the sector manned by the French.

The bombers and their escorting fighters shot down four German planes and suffered the loss of one Boston bomber and one fighter, advices to headquarters said.

In the north, bad weather continued meawhile to keep the opposing armies inactive.

French Tell of Exploit.

A French communique announced that the enemy armored forces repulsed on Sunday at Fondouk left in French hands ten heavy tanks "destroyed either by Allied aircraft or by our anti-tank guns." The repulse of the Axis tank attack was announced yesterday, when the French gave much of the credit to American planes and to American-made anti-tank guns newly supplied to the French. Today's communique said that there was nothing new to report from the Pichon sector.

Tonight's Allied communique said that twelve to fifteen enemy tanks were destroyed in the attack on Sunday and that the French also inflicted casualties on the enemy.

Clark Heads U. S. 5th Army In Africa

New Yank Force Activated as Allies Plan Tunisia Drive

By J. Wes Gallagher
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, Jan. 5.—Indicating progress in the organization of the huge Allied force that is being geared for the attack on Tunis and Bizerte, Allied headquarters announced tonight that the United States Fifth Army had been activated and Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark placed in command of the new force.

General Clark is the 46-year-old hero of the secret agent thriller who visited North Africa by submarine three weeks before the Allied landings and held a secret rendezvous with French officers.

His post of deputy commander in chief to Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower now is vacant, the announcement said.

(Presumably the announcement means that a United States Army of several divisions has been organized through its various ranks and is ready to take its place alongside the British First Army of Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson in Tunisia.

Nazi Thrust Repelled

(In military terms an "army" may mean a force of as little as two or three divisions, though it usually is much larger, and may be as large as the British Eighth Army in Libya, which usually is estimated to have 10 or 12 divisions.)

Meanwhile, Allied forces in the Fondouk area, 50 miles southwest of Sousse in central Tunisia, were disclosed in an Allied communique today to have scored a telling defeat on a German tank force which made a surprise thrust in that sector against the supposedly weakly-armed French.

Running unexpectedly into American-made antitank guns in the hands of the French and coming under an effective bombing and strafing attack of the United States Air Force, the Germans lost between 12 and 15 tanks and were forced to retire, the communique said.

JAN 6 1943

10 Nazi Tanks Destroyed

Ten of the tanks were destroyed by the air attack and the rest by the antitank guns.

Reports from the sector said the French were holding a commanding hill south of Fondouk and that the enemy was regrouping about three miles to the east.

Intensifying their activity in that sector yesterday, United States bombers and fighters made several sweeps over the area and struck effective blows at Kairouan where they bombed the railway yards, and at Cherichera, a communique announced.

Four German planes were shot down in the sweeps, while a United States fighter and a Boston bomber were lost in an encounter over Cherichera.

(At the other end of the Allied front in Africa, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Libya Army said there was nothing to report. Middle East air forces were grounded by sandstorms.)

Weather Balks Air Arm

Fondouk, where the French forces beat off the surprise tank thrust Sunday with their American equipment and the aid of American Air Forces, is southeast of French-held Pichon, 53 miles west of Sousse on the Tunisian east coast.

Kairouan, where the air forces attacked yesterday, is 20 miles northeast of the Fondouk, and Cherichera is 6 miles northeast of the battle scene.

The French said today that there was nothing new to report from the ground forces in that sector.

In the north, too, bad weather continued to keep the opposing armies inactive.

Despite the minor success of Allied arms reported from time to time it seems apparent, however, that the Allies are faced with a major effort in the Tunisian theater.

Personal observations made on a 2100-mile tour of the war front lead to the conclusion that Adolf Hitler is determined to keep the Mediterranean blocked to the Allies by hanging on to his Tunisian corner, and has deployed thousands of German and Italian troops from Bizerte to Tripolitania to accomplish his purpose.

GERMANS STOPPED BY U. S. BAYONETS

JAN 6 1943

Americans on Hill Above Medjez-el-Bab Held Fire to Protect Comrades in Vicinity

BROOKLYN BOY GOT TWO

25 of 60 in Attacking Patrol Slain in Hand-to-Hand Combat—Others Surrendered

WITH THE UNITED STATES FORCES in Tunisia, Jan. 2 (Delayed) (AP)—American infantrymen bayoneted twenty-five of sixty attacking Germans during a hill battle near Medjez-el-Bab.

Private Leonard Aaronson of 1938 Seventy-second Street, Brooklyn, who accounted for two of them, explained today that "there was only one thing for us to do and we did it."

His story was one of many, just coming to light, of the epic encounters during the recent fierce see-saw struggle for the heights six miles north of Medjez-el-Bab.

"We had taken the hill the night before and now were on the defensive," Private Aaronson said. "A German patrol set out to see how far it could penetrate our lines. It was dark and there were about sixty of them. They were in our lines before the outpost could give the alarm.

"They opened fire on us, but we were afraid to return it for fear the bullets would kill our own men scattered all about. Instead, we attacked with bayonets.

"It was like a fencing duel. If you could dodge and block fast enough and get your blade in first, you were the victor. I caught the first man with the butt of my rifle and as he went under I gave him the bayonet. He fell over dead."

Private Aaronson said that he moved forward with the other American troops and met a few more Germans, one of whom ran toward him.

Attacked With Rifle Butt

"He was even bigger than the first one and didn't bother to try to stab me," Private Aaronson said. "He swung his rifle butt at me horizontally. The object of this is to disable your opponent and, if you miss the stroke, you are supposed to retain control of the rifle and swing back on guard.

"Unfortunately for him, he lunged with such fury it swung him around and left him wide open for whatever I wanted to give him.

"I didn't have to tell my hands what to do. I followed instinctively the principles the Army drilled into me for years.

"The remaining Germans by then had enough and gave up. Those who knew English dropped their guns and held out crossed hands to surrender. We rounded them up and when our unit was relieved we still held the hill.

"I did not want to bayonet those men. We all wanted them to give up at once. But they chose to fight it out. It was them or us, and there was only one thing for us to do and we did it."

Saved by an Accident

In the same series of battles for the possession of "Long Stop Hill" —named for a British position in cricket—an odd accident saved the life of another infantryman, Corporal Peter di Capua of 216A Prospect Avenue, Brooklyn. He had been temporarily dazed by a ten-foot fall from rock after a mortar shell exploded in front of him and wandered toward the German lines, thinking they were his own. A German soldier rose to hurl a grenade at him, but unexpectedly it burst in his own hand.

"An English soldier who helped me and one of his own injured soldiers to safety told me the explosion blew off an arm of the German and ripped open his side," Corporal di Capua said. "He lay there in the mud and cried in German. They took him away to one of the hospitals and I don't know whether he lived or died. I am only grateful the grenade didn't reach me."

Arthritis Stops Driver Who Survived 3 Tanks

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN TUNISIA, Jan. 3 (Delayed) (AP).—His reputation preceded one American tank driver who has had three tanks shot from under him in flaming ruins and escaped alive.

A sympathetic doctor, wondering where to start sewing first, asked as the driver was admitted to the hospital: "What's wrong, young fellow?"

"Nothing much, doc," answered the tankman. "I just have a touch of arthritis. My major is afraid it will affect my driving and wants you to fix it before I get back in another tank."

man's-land to the edge of German territory. American 105s had just finished shelling a farmhouse in the enemy lines on which vehicles were seen converging and no sign of Nazis now was visible.

During the morning United States soldiers found the bodies of two Germans who apparently were killed in one of the numerous patrol clashes which nightly turns the battlefront into a series of border forays.

The country has little natural cover and resembles the foothills of eastern Colorado.

To storm these bare slopes against a strong and resourceful enemy is an expensive proposition. Nevertheless, one officer said: "Hell, this mud was made for the doughboy. Never mind waiting for the weather to slack up so the rolling stuff can get underway. Give us enough good, old-fashioned infantry and we'll push Heinie right through the mud to Tunis."

The Americans are making highly effective use of camouflage and forward positions are so well disguised one could pass within a few feet without noticing them.

Yanks Eager To Fight Even In Tunisian Mud

JAN 6 1943

By Harold V. Boyle
[Associated Press Correspondent]

With United States Forces in Tunisia, Jan. 3 (Delayed)—Caves have become "home, sweet home" to some of the American soldiers who are holding a line near Medjez-el-Bab like a ribbon of unbending steel.

A fortunate few have been able to find comfortable bivouacs in these abandoned caves, which sometimes run seventy-five feet into Tunisian hillsides. Others are forced to seek other shelter from the rainy, wintry weather, and some slept for weeks with only one blanket to keep them warm.

A tour of the front today with a colonel from Gainesville, Fla., disclosed that the morale of the troops was at its peak despite weather which one soldier said "damn near makes this a navy job."

I stood with the colonel atop an American outpost hill and gazed across three miles of rolling no-

Little movement of heavy equipment by either side was apparent. The slippery slopes offer little traction and even the all-weather jeeps slide around on the roads like water bugs when the going gets sticky.

In one tent, so well hidden that it looked like a section of the hillside, a group of officers discussed patrol plans.

All said they found patrol warfare highly exciting but expressed a preference for larger scale action.

81 OFFICERS GET D. F. C. IN AFRICA

Cairo, Jan. 5 (A. P.).—Eighty-one American flying officers were awarded Distinguished Flying

Crosses by Major-Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the United States air forces in the Middle East, at ceremonies yesterday at an air base.

The citations, read by Brig-Gen. Patrick W. Timberlake, said that the awards were in recognition of outstanding achievement while participating in aerial operations.

Every man decorated had at least 200 hours of operational flight against the enemy in this theater.

JAN 6 1943

Three especially cited were Lieut.-Col. John R. (Killer) Kane of Shreveport, La., who led the American raid on Naples on December 4; Col. George F. McGuire of Coffeyville, Kan., who once kept his formation unbroken through fifty minutes of battle with enemy planes; and Major Chris W. Reuter of Franklin, Tenn., for excellent work in raids on Naples and Tripoli.

Among others decorated was Capt. Harold G. Wells of Cos Cob, Conn.

All Quiet in Libya.

Cairo, Jan. 5 (A. P.).—Severe sandstorms prevented aerial operations over the Libyan battle area where British troops were last reported in contact with the retreating Axis army in the Wadi Bei el Chebir-Buerat el Hsun area, a British communique said today.

Of the ground fight, the communique said "There was nothing to report from our land forces."

CRASH KILLS LADY TEDDER

Wife of Air Vice Marshal Was Resident of Australia

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 5 (AP)—Lady Tedder, the wife of the vice chief of staff of the Royal Air Force, Air Marshal Sir Arthur William Tedder, was killed in an airplane crash here yesterday.

Before her marriage Lady Tedder was Rosalinde Maclardy of Sydney, Australia.

JAPANESE PLANES RAID THREE CHINESE CITIES

Foe's Siangshan Bay Naval Base Reported Completed

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 5 (AP)—Twenty-one Japanese planes unloaded more than 100 bombs on the southwestern fringe of Kweilin, the capital of Kwangsi Province, in a raid yesterday morning, the Central News Agency reported today, but damage was declared negligible.

Shiukwan, the provisional capital of Kwangtung Province, was bombed by six Japanese planes yesterday afternoon. Three other planes machine-gunned Chuhsien, a south Hunan Province town on the Canton-Hankow railway.

Eight other Japanese planes explored over Kwangtung and Hunan Provinces in extensive reconnaissance flights, it was reported.

A Chinese Army spokesman told a press conference today that the Japanese had completed the construction of a naval supply base on Siangshan Bay, 120 miles south of Shanghai in Chekiang Province, and recalled his prediction several weeks ago that such a project would serve as a defense against possible Allied naval attacks.

Installations, too, that Japanese troops that had been driven out of Hupeh Province were now threatening the important highway center of Lihwang in Anwhei Province. Some 35,000 Japanese troops are in the army driving northward along the Yangtse Valley toward the Tapieh Mountains on the Hupeh-Anwhei border, the spokesman said.

Japs Grouping Great Armada In South Seas

Foe May Be Aiming Blow at Guadalcanal Or Sanananda Point

By the Associated Press

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 5.—The larges armada of transports, supply vessels and warships yet sent by Japan into the southwest Pacific is being assembled at various points under cover of adverse weather, a high government official said in a statement widely displayed in the Australian press today.

The official, who would not permit use of his name, said the threatening concentration meant one of three things:

1. The Japanese are about to try again to retake Henderson Airfield on Guadalcanal in the Solomons,

See PACIFIC, Page 2, Column 4.

Japs Grouping Armada in Pacific

now held by United States forces;

2. They are bent upon a determined effort to reinforce their units desperately isolated at Sananda Point in New Guinea where Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Australians and Americans are preparing a final general attack; or

3. The Japanese are making a major effort to strengthen their general defensive position in the southwest Pacific.

Scouting Australian Coast

He said Japanese aircraft apparently operating from submarines had been engaged in extensive reconnaissance of Australia's northeast coast, and he added that at Munda, on the northwest coast of New Georgia Island, 200 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, the enemy was building one of the greatest airfields in the area.

(In Washington, Navy Secretary Frank Knox said at a press conference that he had no information concerning an unusual Japanese naval concentration at Rabaul, New Britain. There always are a number of Japanese ships at that base, 650 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, he said, but activities there are under constant observation.

(A Navy communique, announcing another of the daily attacks on Munda, disclosed also that the installations there consist not of one runway but several.)

(Knox, shedding some light on recent Navy communiques telling of a group of Japanese destroyers which approached Guadalcanal's north coast Saturday, said the warships did not make a landing but attempted to float some supplies ashore.

Attacked by U. S. Units

(Originally numbering 10, the destroyers were under attack by United States Flying Fortresses and dive bombers for 275 miles during their approach and by torpedo boats after their arrival, Knox said, and his statement and Navy communiques indicated that only five may have escaped unscathed.

(The dive-bombers set one of them afire and sank another at Rendova Island, 200 miles from Guadalcanal, while the torpedo boats scored hits on one and three possible hits on two more.

(A communique from General MacArthur's headquarters on Friday also told of a large concentration of Japanese ships at Rabaul and said United States four-motored bombers in a dawn attack hit three ships of 10,000, 8000 and 6000 tons with 1000-pound bombs.)

Possibly indicating that the main Japanese purpose may be defensive, the high official said Japanese land parties also were engaged in feverish construction of new defenses in the Solomons and in Portuguese-Dutch Timor to the northwest of Australia.

Recently the Japanese twice raided Merauk, 450 miles west of Port Moresby in Dutch New Guinea, where the Japanese communique claimed a new Allied base is under construction.

The Melbourne press attached particular importance to the Japanese aerial reconnaissance of the Queensland coast of the Australian northeastern mainland, however, and leaned to the interpretation that the Japanese had large amphibious operations in mind.

War Council Called

Prime Minister John Curtin, after receiving the official's report, conferred with senior members of the Australian naval staff, and called a meeting of the war council for next week.

Observers suggested that the report may have prompted the prime minister's representation "to the proper quarters" last week demanding strengthening of Allied Pacific forces and contending that the policy of regarding Hitler as the No. 1 enemy has been overdone.

If the Japanese intention was to run reinforcements to their beleagured forces at Sanananda in New Guinea the policy evidently was born in desperation.

SIX ZEROS SHOT DOWN

Australia Reports Armada of Japanese Ships Assembled in Islands.

By C. YATES M'DANIEL

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Wednesday, Jan. 6—(AP) General Douglas MacArthur's heavy bombers roared down upon a formidable Japanese naval concentration yesterday at Rabaul, New Britain island, sinking or setting afire at least nine and probably 10 vessels, totalling more than 50,000 tons.

Flying over the hub of the enemy's seapower in the southwest Pacific in good weather at noon, Flying Fortresses and Liberators scored direct hits with 1,000 pound bombs on eight Japanese merchantmen and supply vessels and another 1,000 pounder crashed into a destroyer tender, alongside which a destroyer was tied.

Six Zeros Shot Down

The Liberators downed three of between 12 and 15 Zeros which attempted to intercept and the Fortresses knocked down a similar number of between eight and 10 enemy fighters.

(The news of this big raid coincided with press reports from Melbourne quoting a high government official as warning that the Japs were concentrating one of the largest armadas of transports, supply vessels and warships yet sent into the southwest Pacific under cover of adverse weather).

One Bomber Lost

Only one of the heavy American bombers which participated in this raid on Rabaul within the past 10 days by Gen. MacArthur's airmen failed to weather the medium level attack, made in the face of a heavy anti-aircraft fire screen thrown up by the Japanese ships.

In widespread air activity over the southwest Pacific area, Australian Beaufighters were credited with destroying one enemy fighter and trucks in a strafing attack on the Fuiloro airfield on Portuguese Timor.

In New Guinea, one B-24 bombed the often pounded airfield at Lae while other Allied planes bombed and strafed Salamaua and adjacent villages as well as Madang, recently developed Jap base on the New Guinea coast northwest of Salamaua.

Air Attack Paves Way For Sanananda Drive

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 5 (AP).—An attack to clean the Mikado's men out of Sanananda Point, their last foothold in Southtastern New Guinea, was shaped by Allied forces today.

"We are regrouping our troops preparatory to attack," a communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said.

The headquarters announcement told of far-ranging air activity, with the Japanese airdrome at Lae, in Northeastern New Guinea, suffering the heaviest blows from Allied bombers. Advices from the front also told of an air prelude to the tank and infantry drive massing against the Sanananda salient.

Medium bombers roared in at low altitudes and dropped 300-pounders on Japanese machine-gun nests and light attack bombers swept over the area to strafe enemy positions. Fires were started in the Japanese-held positions.

Front-line dispatches also said there still was intermittent fighting in the Buna sector where 50 more Japs had been killed in mopping-up operations.

Allied attack planes and medium bombers, raiding the Lae airdrome and installations, destroyed three grounded craft and started fires in the hangar and building area, headquarters said.

An enemy supply boat was strafed by an Allied reconnaissance unit in the harbor at Finschhafen, northeast of Lae; an enemy schooner in Jacquinot Bay, on the southeast coast of New Britain, was machine-gunned and 1,000-pound bombs were laid on the Gasmata, New Britain, airdrome yesterday, it was reported.

Marshall Congratulates MacArthur on Buna

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 6 (AP).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur has received from Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, this message of congratulations:

"We are stimulated and encouraged by the news of completing of the enemy's destruction in the Buna sector (of New Guinea). I know the terrific difficulties under which you have operated and the handicaps under which you initiated and staged your campaign. My thanks and congratulations to you and all concerned."

Sees Happier New Year

SOMEWHERE IN SOUTH PACIFIT, Jan. 5 (AP)—Progress of the war effort in the South Pacific "very definitely" is making for a happier New Year prospect this year than last, Major Gen. Millard F. Harmon said today.

General Harmon, commander of Army air and ground forces in the South Pacific, returned to his headquarters recently from an inspection visit to Guadalcanal. Of the lull in the Japanese efforts there he said:

"It certainly is not going to last. They can reasonably be expected to resume bombing operations with planes improved in armor and armament."

General Harmon said that he thought there "could be no question about the United States' present air superiority at Guadalcanal." Army troops in the Solomons, he continued, "are getting along all right" in the jungle warfare. He added:

"They're growing wiser and tougher, learning to flow through the jungle instead of crashing through, and learning not to wear themselves down."

The general added that the amphibious phase of the Guadalcanal fighting, for which Marines were specially trained, was over and that the Army now was carrying on the work with the Marine Corps.

U. S. Submarine Whisks 29 on Isle To Safety as Japanese Lay Trap

JAN 6 1943

By The Associated Press.

WITH SOUTH PACIFIC FLEET, Jan. 5—A daring submarine operation under the cover of darkness has resulted in the rescue of twenty-nine men, women and children from a Japanese-held island in the Solomon group, Admiral William F. Halsey disclosed today.

The commander of the South Pacific force said seventeen of those rescued were white women known to have been in imminent danger of ill treatment and death. Three were children.

The operation involved the detaching of a fleet submarine from the task of sinking Japanese shipping and sending her to shallow waters to effect the evacuation. The daring coup was accomplished under the very noses of the Japanese.

Information was received late in December that a party of missionaries, who had not been evacuated prior to enemy occupation of the Solomons last Spring, was in danger of capture by a raiding force of several hundred Japanese. The missionaries had heard of the presence of white women on the island.

[Apparently the missionaries sent word of their plight to American forces after they had heard that another group of whites, including women and children, had landed on the island from another point in the South Pacific. Subsequently the missionaries apparently made contact with the new group and brought the party together for the rescue attempt.]

The task of rescuing the group became a race against time. Just before New Year's Day information was received that the Japanese planned to send a strong detachment to capture the missionaries after two enemy ensets had sent the whites scurrying into the brush for safety.

Only two methods of effecting the rescue were feasible—by air or submarine. The underwater craft was chosen.

Messages were dispatched to this craft, which was unable to reply, lest she give away her position. Thus progress of the daring plan to evacuate those endangered would not be determined. It is known now, however, that the submarine commander received and carried out the orders.

The submarine reached the rendezvous exactly on schedule. She stood close to shore and took the refugees aboard at night after replying to a predesignated signal. It had been planned to make a second attempt the following night if the initial try was unsuccessful.

As it turned out, that would have been tragic, for the morning after the fleeing party was placed aboard the submarine a large number of Japanese landed.

Forty-eight hours after the submarine slipped away from the scene the commander's first laconic announcement of success was received. A day later the group was transferred to an American patrol vessel in friendly waters and taken to Australia.

The names and addresses of those rescued are not known at this time.

Announcement Of Birth Via Air

With the United States Pacific Fleet, Jan. 4 (AP).—Its a safe bet that Lieut. Louis de Camp, a naval aviator from Hollywood, found out he had a new daughter via the strangest birth announcement ever put out.

It was written on a slate and said: "Mother and baby daughter doing nicely. Congratulations."

The slate was held up, so Lieutenant de Camp could read it, by another pilot in a plane which drew near De Camp's while he was on flight.

Baby de Camp now is 3 months old.

New Role for India's Untouchables Seen

Laborite Who Rose From Forbidden Class Gives His Solution for Caste System

JAN 6 1943

By Dewitt Mackenzie

Associated Press Staff Writer

New Delhi (Delayed).—History provides few human tragedies so awful as that of India's 60 million untouchables who are condemned by tradition to live as pariahs just as their ancestors have done for hundreds of years.

"I've just come from talking with Dr. Bhimrao Ramji Ambedkar, champion of the untouchables. The 45-year-old doctor himself has escaped from the horrors of his class by a queer twist of fate.

He is a lawyer by profession—a man of wide learning who has been educated in Columbia, London and Bombay Universities. Now he is a member for labor in the Viceroy's Council.

Let Dr. Ambedkar tell the story:

"In order that you may understand our problem I must start at the beginning and give you some of the fundamental facts. One of these is that India is a land of villages. There are few towns and cities, but there are 700,000 villages.

In Two Sections

"Now, the villages consist of two sections. There is the village proper and apart from it there is the settlement of the untouchables. This depressed class represents on an average perhaps one-tenth of the total population of the village.

"The untouchables are not a part of the village, but are wholly outside its life, though for purposes of taxation they are regarded as in the village. These untouchable settlements have no economic independence.

"They have no land. In some places, like the Punjab, they are forbidden by law to own land.

"Thus the untouchable is helpless and dependent on the village for his livelihood. All ways of earning a living are blocked to him except for the lowest and most menial tasks. Because he is untouchable nobody, for example, should buy butter, milk or vegetables from him if he had any to sell.

"Every village has its social code. Under this the untouchable is compelled to wear dirty clothing. He has no place to wash and if he tries to use a village well the people rise up against him.

Use Only Clay

"Untouchables may not wear ornaments. They may not even have metal utensils, but must use clay. I've known places where women have been assaulted for carrying brass pots to the well. The villagers took offense.

"The untouchable may not have a tile roof. He must use grass. His water supply must be separate. His school must be separate. His temple is separate. The whole administration of the country—the whole civil service, police, judiciary, etc.—is mainly in the hands of Hindus, and partly in the hands of Moslems. Untouchables have no place in it.

"If an untouchable has a quarrel with the village then the police prosecute. The regular courts won't deal with it, or if they do they handle it badly and in favor of the Hindu.

"The government doesn't include the untouchable in the police service. The police have to arrest people and search houses. The untouchable can't do that. The same is true of the other civil services.

"We tried to remedy this situation by claiming for the depressed classes seats in the provincial legislatures. The untouchables have 151 seats of a total of 1558 and these were given to us by way of safeguard.

"Our seats in the legislatures give us a chance to protest against unjust laws, but this doesn't enable us to help the untouchables in the villages or to get justice.

Here is my solution:

Regrouping Asked

"All these scattered settlements of untouchables should be removed and regrouped into villages of their own. There is a lot of free land in India which can be cultivated. The government should provide the money and in 20 years the change could be made.

"We want to escape from perpetual slavery to the Hindus.

"As regards the police and magistracy we should have a certain number of places reserved for us in those security services.

"Thus we should have representatives of our own in these services to see that no harm was done to us.

"This plan would abolish untouchability. A man is an untouchable by inheritance. An untouchable can't hide his birth. He is perpetually an untouchable.

"But if we transfer the untouchables to far-off settlements of their own, then the means of identification will be gone. An untouchable looks like any other Indian of his race. It would do away with untouchability. It would destroy the inferiority complex of the depressed classes.

Inferiority Complex

"The untouchables suffer terribly from an inferiority complex. They can't live respectably or dress respectably. They can't get education or hold office. They have come to regard this as their destiny.

"The settlements will remove all this. That's what we want in the new constitution.

"We look to America to come to our rescue in the settlement of the Indian question."

"And how, Dr. Ambedkar, did you escape from the fate of your people?" he was asked.

"I am a product of history," replied the doctor. "We must go back to the Napoleonic wars. India was conquered at that time by the East India Company with the help of Indian troops, not British. And it was the untouchables who fought for the company.

"This enlistment of the untouchables was a godsend to them, as it opened up a career and provided high places in the army. My people were in the army and my father got an education and thought of giving me an education.

"I had to fight all difficulties though. I couldn't sit with the other children in school but had a stool in the corner.

"In 1892 the government stopped recruiting untouchables for the army because the Hindus wouldn't serve under or with them. This removed the only career open to an untouchable."

The late Gaekwar of Baroda took an interest in Ambedkar and sent the young man to Columbia University, where he obtained his Ph.D.

Nimitz Awards Silver Star To His Son, Officer on Sub

Commander of Salt Lake City Gets Navy Cross for Attack on Japs.

JAN 6 1943

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 5—(AP) Admiral Chester W. Nimitz awarded the Silver Star today to his 27-year-old son, Lieut. Chester W. Nimitz, Jr., officer on a submarine operating in enemy-controlled waters, and the Navy Cross to Capt. Ernest G. Small, commanding officer of the valiant cruiser Salt Lake City.

It was the first time the commander in chief of the Pacific fleet had seen his son in three and a half years.

The admiral "looks better than when I last saw him," the lieutenant commented.

Saved Cruiser Boise

The Salt Lake City figured heavily in the night battle off Savo island Oct. 11 and 12. The ship was credited with probably saving the cruiser Boise from destruction and with participanting in the sinking of one enemy heavy cruiser, one transport, and four destroyers. Another Japanese cruiser was badly damaged and other ships probably sunk.

The citation for Captain Small, whose family lives in New Haven, Conn., read:

"For extraordinary heroism and distinguished service in line of his profession as commanding officer of the Salt Lake City in night action off Savo island, British Solomon islands, on the night of October 11-12.

"Due to his aggressiveness and determined action, and through his skill and devotion to duty, a superior Japanese force heading for Guadalcanal was destroyed or turned back. In one phase of the engagement, his excellent seamanship was the deciding factor in protecting the heavily-hit Boise from further damage.

"The success of this action prevented a planned Japanese attack on our positions on Guadalcanal and prevented the enemy from landing reinforcements on that island.

"His conduct throughout was in the highest traditions of the naval service."

Served Aboard Submarine

Lieutenant Nimitz' citation set forth that he performed duties aboard a submarine, in enemy-controlled waters from the outbreak of war, in an outstanding manner.

"Your efforts contributed greatly to the success of many actions of your submarine in sinking or greatly damaged much enemy shipping," it read.

The lieutenant, a graduate of the naval academy in 1936, couldn't say much about operations between the time he was in Manila, when war started, and his arrival here, but when asked what he thought of the enemy, he commented:

"The only enemy we encountered proved to be a heads-up outfit."

The admiral, in presenting the awards, indicated that Capt. Small and Lieut. Nimitz were examples of those who had properly interpreted his orders to the fleet to come to grips with the enemy — "We cannot defeat the enemy by propaganda or shadow boxing; we must get them under our guns."

CABINET OF CHILE TO HEAR MORALES

Santiago Will Break Relations With Axis Friday, Argentine Source Declares

30.24 — 109

MINISTER SEES PRESIDENT

Confers With Rios on Return From Washington, Rio and Buenos Aires

JAN 6 1943

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 5 (AP)—The Chilean Cabinet was summoned by President Juan Antonio Rios tonight to hear Interior Minister Raul Morales Beltrami's report on the attitudes of the warring governments of the United States and Brazil and neutral Argentina toward Chile's apparently imminent diplomatic break with the Axis.

Dr. Morales went into conference with President Rios soon after he had stepped out of a plane from Buenos Aires at the end of almost month-long travels to Washington, Rio de Janeiro and Argentina.

United States Ambassador Claude G. Bowers immediately offered his congratulations, but did not say for what.

Dr. Morales was greeted warmly by the Brazilian and Argentine Ambassadors.

Dr. Morales departed last Dec. 12 with Congressional permission to take a leave of absence to repair his health and since then has conferred with President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Under-Secretary of State Sumner Welles in the United States; President Getulio Vargas and Foreign Ministere Oswaldo Aranha in Brazil, and President Ramon S. Castillo and Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu in Argentina.

The Foreign Minister of Chile, Joaquin Fernandez y Fernandez, was unable to go to the airport because of continued illness.

President Rios last week stayed a Senate vote on a resolution for breaking relations with the Axis until Dr. Morales' return and because of Foreign Minister Fernandez's illness.

Chile Reported Severing Axis Ties on Friday

Argentine Official Says Rios Will Bid Congress Act; Cabinet Hears Morales

BUENOS AIRES, Jan 5 (AP).—A high Foreign Office source said tonight that the Argentine government has been informed that Chile will break relations with the Axis on Friday.

President Juan Antonio Rios of Chile, this source said, will send a message to Congress at that time asking an immediate rupture of diplomatic and commercial relations with Germany, Italy and Japan, after a final secret session of the Chilean Senate on Thursday.

This informant gave his information only a few hours after Raul Morales, Chilean minister of the interior, had arrived at Santiago, the Chilean capital, from a tour in which he visited the United States, Brazil and Argentina and interviewed high officials, including the presidents of the three countries.

His last stop was in Buenos Aires where he had opportunity to impart full information on the situation.

Soon after his arrival in Santiago, Morales was closeted with President Rios, who called a cabinet meeting immediately.

A break of relations with the Axis by Chile would leave Argentina as the lone western hemisphere country maintaining normal diplomatic connections with the Axis.

11 Die in Bus Fire

Jojutla, Mexico, Jan. 5 (AP).—Eleven persons were burned to death and 25 others were seriously injured last night when a match ignited the gasoline tank of a bus in which a crowd of merrymakers was en ruote to a dance.

Worst Storm in 50 Years Hits Ontario-Quebec Area

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Jan. 5.—Censorship was lifted today to disclose that Eastern Ontario and Western Quebec suffered their worst winter storm in 50 years over the New Year holiday.

The city of Brockville, on the St. Lawrence River, was without power, telegraph or telephone service for three days and communications have not been fully restored.

Late last night Cornwall, a city of 14,000, still had no communication lines open.

One person was killed and nearly 100 others hurt on Toronto's icy streets. Railroad schedules were impaired, with many servicemen forced to spend New Year Day in railroad stations.

Communications between New York and Montreal and the principal Canadian cities were disrupted. The Canadian Press set up an emergency news distribution center in Bermuda which relayed press dispatches to Halifax, whence they were sent on the Canadian Press network.

Bullet Container Made Of Paper

JAN 6 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Ottawa, Jan. 5—New designs in ammunition containers and the substitution of less critical materials have accounted for an annual saving of some $4,500,000 and valuable man-hours, and diverted tin, rubber and steel directly to war use, the Canadian Munitions Department said today.

Scrap newspapers, impregnated with asphalt, are being used in one instance as cartridge containers, supplanting metal.

Used Several Times

One type of ammunition locker, requiring ten board feet of lumber and half a pound of steel nails, formerly was used only once. Now each box is used several times with an estimated annual saving of 2,000,000 boxes and 1,000,000 pounds of nails.

Webbing replaced rope or rubber grips; fiber and enameled black iron supplanted soldered tinplate, and redesigning of a cylinder for large anti-aircraft shells is saving $1,250,000 and 2,750,000 man-hours a year, the department said.

Canada's War Powers Upheld

OTTAWA, Jan. 5 (AP).—The Canadian Supreme Court upheld government war-time economic powers in two test cases today when it ruled valid controls over chemicals. The government had submitted the questions to establish the legality of orders-in-council appointing war-time economic controllers and of the powers vested in such controllers.

Flier, Dropped In Snowdrift, Tells About It

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Quebec, Jan. 5.—(AP) Harry Hanford Griffiths, 20-year-old Royal Air Force ferry command navigator, perched on a stool in a military hospital here today and told how he said "goodbye" to life when he fell through the emergency hatch of a Boston bomber low over nearby frozen Lake St. Louis on Dec. 21.

"I screamed like hell," he recounted, adjusting his 130 pounds and five feet, three inches comfortably and turning cool blue eyes on a row of newspapermen. The story had to be pried from him.

Except for some chapped knuckles, the result of frost bite, he bore no marks of his ordeal.

"I was making adjustments to the wind drift instruments in my compartment," he said. "I was on my hands and knees and thinking of Christmas leave with my family in Toronto.

"Suddenly I plunged through the emergency hatch. I don't know what caused it to open. I might have tripped its lock with my foot. I made a wild grab and managed to catch hold of a slat which crosses my instrument.

"I held on for dear life, half in and half out of the plane. I screamed like hell over the roar of the motors to draw the attention of the pilot and tried hard to pull myself back into the plane. I saw the plane dropping and figured the pilot realized what had happened.

"I looked down and saw the snowy ice surfaces coming toward me. My hands and arms were numb with cold and I knew I was losing hold. So I let go and shot out of the hatch.

"I remember seeing the bomber shooting away from me, and I remember thinking I was about to die. I said to myself 'goodbye.' I don't remember anything else until the next afternoon when my brother talked to me in the hospital here."

Griffiths had no recollection of picking himself up out of a snowdrift and of walking across the ice, nor of meeting the farmer who warmed him and drove him to the hospital.

Sitting nearby and listening to Griffith's recital was Capt. Sid Gerow of Wayzata, Minn., who, when he saw his navigator's plight, had brought the fast plane down so dangerously close to the ground that his propeller cascaded snow.

"I let her drop as close to the snow-covered ice as I could," he said, "and stayed there until I had barely enough room to clear the trees on the shoreline, and then zoomed up."

Gerow estimated he zoomed down from 14,000 feet to only a few feet from the ground in five minutes after he heard Griffiths' scream. He said the plane was probably going 120 to 140 miles an hour when Griffiths dropped off.

The knees of Griffiths' heavy flying suit were torn, indicating he landed on his knees, skidding along the ice and plowing through the snow.

"Give up flying on account of that mishap? I should say not," Griffiths declared. "I want to get back there as soon as possible. I don't scare easily."

And he wants Gerow as his teammate in future flying, for "he sure saved my life." When he gets out of the hospital his first act will be to take Gerow to the nearest tavern "for a long beer to drink to his health and mine."

Japs Thrown Back In Guadalcanal Battle

Enemy Loses Part of Heights Flanking Rim of Henderson Airfield

JAN 6 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—(AP) American troops have wrested from the Japanese important heights flanking the southwestern rim of the U. S. position on Guadalcanal island, the Navy announced today.

The advance may have signalized the beginning of a campaign to drive the enemy beyond artillery range of the Solomons island airfield.

150 Japs Killed

The Japanese counter-attacked the newly-won American positions six times, a communique said, but were repulsed with a total loss of 150 dead. While this fighting was in progress, our patrols in other sectors of the island battleground killed 20 Japs and captured howitzer mortars and light machine guns.

The advance was accomplished Monday (Guadalcanal time) in the vicinity of Mount Austen, a 1,514-foot peak rising out of the jungle-covered ridges four miles southwest of the airfield. This is the section in which the Japs long ago set up artillery to harass the field and American defense positions with occasional bombardments which U. S. forces were hard put to answer because the wild countryside offered excellent coverage for the enemy guns.

A general campaign to deprive the Japs of these positions has been expected, as artillery shelling is about the only means of attack the enemy has had available since mid-November, when his supplies were virtualy cut off by destruction of much of his naval forces in the Solomons.

Fail to Get Supplies In

The latest Jap attempt to move in supplies, on a squadron of 10 destroyers, was described by Secretary Knox today as having failed in the main. Some metal drums filled with supplies were thrown overboard near the Japanese-held northwestern coast of the island, Secretary Knox told a press conference, but probably only a few of those reached the enemy land forces.

The 10 Japanese destroyers set out for Guadalcanal last Saturday. Early Saturday afternoon they were discovered and attacked by Army Flying Fortresses. Late that day they were blasted by Navy-Marine corps dive bombers, and two were badly damaged.

The other eight, then about 200 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, continued their voyage. As they approached the island about midnight, they were attacked by American torpedo boats which certainly torpedoed one and possibly hit two others.

Allies Promise To Restore Loot To Nazi Victims

17 Governments Plan Step When Axis Is Ejected

By the Associated Press.

Seventeen Allied governments and the French National Committee (Fighting French) served notice on the Axis and its beneficiaries today that property rights in countries now occupied by them will be restored to their rightful owners when the Axis is ejected.

In a declaration made public by the State Department, the signatories emphasized they had reference to all property rights or interests which have changed hands through enemy action "whether such transfers or dealings have taken the form of open looting or plunder of transactions apparently legal in form." The declaration applies even to such transfers of property which "purport to be voluntarily effected," such as the disposal of homes, businesses or securities whose owners were terrorized into signing them away.

The declaration does not specifically mention properties previously owned by Jews in Germany or other countries and now held by non-Jews who took them over at panic prices when Jews were forced out of business or expelled. Officials emphasized, however, that it applies to "property, rights and interests of any description whatsoever" lost by individuals, corporations or governments through enemy action or manipulation.

New Owners Warned.

In effect, it warns all persons in Axis-occupied countries that any property rights they may acquire under the protection of Axis occupation authorities or puppet governments will not be recognized when the Axis is expelled. The text of the declaration follows:

"The Union of South Africa, the United States of America, Australia, Belgium, Canada, China, the Czechoslovak Republic, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Greece, India, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Yugoslavia, and the French National Committee:

"Hereby issue a formal warning to

Restoration of Loot To Victims of Axis Promised by Allies

17 Governments Serve Notice of Action When Nazis Are Ejected

all concerned, and in particular to persons in neutral countries, that they intend to do their utmost to defeat the methods of dispossession practiced by the governments with which they are at war against the countries and peoples who have been so wantonly assaulted and despoiled.

"Accordingly, the governments making this declaration and the French National Committee reserve all their rights to declare invalid any transfers of, or dealings with, property, rights and interests of any description whatsoever which are, or have been, situated in the territories which have come under the occupation or control, direct or indirect, of the governments with which they are at war or which belong, or have belonged, to persons, including juridical persons, resident in such territories. This warning applies whether such transfers or dealings have taken the form of open looting or plunder, or of transactions apparently legal in form, even when they purport to be voluntarily effected.

"The governments making this declaration and the French National Committee solemnly record their solidarity in this matter."

The phrase "and in particular to persons in neutral countries" has the effect of warning persons in such countries against the purchase of securities and other wealth which may have been seized in an occupied country and transported to a neutral country for sale.

Flyer Urges More Air Aid

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP).—Major David L. Hill, of Hunt, Tex., a squadron leader of the China air task force—the old "Flying Tigers"—said today that with new equipment in larger quantities the Japanese air force could be destroyed from bases in China.

"If we get enough stuff in there we can take them," he said at a press conference. "I don't think we can do it anywhere else in the world. Nobody else knows their tactics as General Chennault. He's a genius—a man who never lost a battle, and I'll put my money on a man like that any day."

Hill said the Japanese are using two new and improved fighters: The 97-2, a single-engine fighter with a considerable edge in speed over the Zero, and the 1-45, a twin-engine, high-altitude plane. The latter, he said, has been in use for a long time as a reconnaissance plane, but last summer began appearing in a fighter version.

Hill, who said he would like to get some new equipment and get back to China, has sixteen confirmed victories over Japanese planes and twenty probables.

He praised the skill and fighting qualities of Chinese pilots, with whom he said he had passed considerable time in northern China. "They have got some mighty fine boys, and they are well trained," he said. "When they get their equipment they are going to show up well. They want to fight."

ARMY ORGANIZING FREE BATTALIONS

Austrian Unit Is Controlled by War Dept., Roosevelt Declares

JAN 6 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5. — (AP) President Roosevelt told reporters today the Army was organizing a number of what he termed free battalions, among them an Austrian battalion, but he said reports that Archduke Otto of Hapsburg was controlling the organization of the Austrian unit might as well be exploded now.

It is wholly a War department matter, Mr. Roosevelt said at his press conference.

He said he understood several committee of Austrians were trying to tell all their countrymen in this country about it so it would be well known, and he believed that Otto was a member of one committee. He said the archduke, who is a pretender to the Austrian throne, had two brothers who had gone into the battalion as privates.

The purpose of the committee, Mr. Roosevelt explained, is to let Austrians loyal to the United States know how and where they can apply to the War department.

His discussion of the subject arose after he was told reports were current that Otto was heading a committee controlling an Austrian unit in the Army.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had read them, that they were completely vicious and untrue, but that they had been copied by quite a number of papers. He had before him as he talked over the matter a memorandum from which he drew some of his information.

Congressional Medal Goes To San Francisco Hero

Schonland Commanded Cruiser in Savo Island Battle

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP).—Commander Herbert E. Schonland of New London, Conn., who was "too damned busy" fighting fire and water to take command of the badly damaged cruiser San Francisco when all his superiors, including Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan, were killed or wounded, received the Congressional Medal of Honor today from President Roosevelt.

Commander Schonland was damage control officer of the cruiser in her action against numerically superior Japanese forces in the battle off Savo Island the night of Nov. 12-13. He sent word to Lieutenant Commander Bruce McCandless on the bridge to take charge of the ship. From the interior of the vessel, he informed the bridge: "I'm too damned busy down here fighting fire and water."

The San Francisco, although heavily hit, survived a major battle and ultimately reached port.

WAR CASUALTIES TOTAL 61,126 MEN

8,531 Killed, 7,389 Wounded, 42,740 Are Missing.

JAN 6 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—(AP) Announced war casualties of the American armed forces to date total 61,126, the Office of War Information reported today.

The toll had increased 2,819 over the losses announced on the anniversary of Pearl Harbor last month. The new total includes 8,531 killed, 7,389 wounded, 42,740 missing, 2,466 taken prisoner or interned in neutral countries.

All the armed services and the Philippine scouts, as well as the merchant marine, are included.

The Army's casualties total 36,528 as of Dec. 20, OWI said, and the Navy has reported 23,254. The Navy's total does not include prisoners of war, because these are reported by the provost marshal's office.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—General Wladislaw Sikorski saw President Roosevelt today for the last time before returning to the seat of his Government in Exile in England and said afterward that he was "sure we will be fully victorious."

HALIFAX SAYS AXIS MIGHT TRY A PEACE

United Nations Will Fight Until Enemy's Defeat Is Assured, He Tells Allied Group

FOR WORLD ORGANIZATION

JAN 6 1943

British Envoy Looks Ahead to Need for Unity in Victory, Greater Than in War.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Viscount Halifax, the British Ambassador, predicted today an Axis effort to propose peace in order to avoid defeat, but, as for the United Nations, he said, "We shall make no peace until the forces of the Axis, East and West, North and South, have suffered final, unmistakable and irrevocable defeat."

Lord Halifax spoke at a meeting at the Office of War Information of the United Nations Information Board, an agency to which eighteen of the Allies sent representatives.

"I am convinced that, as the dream of Axis victory fades into the grim prospect of defeat," Lord Halifax said, "we shall receive from some quarter, in some shape, proposals for peace. But we have no intention of allowing Germany the opportunity once again to bring disaster upon the world, and so to any such proposals we can forecast our answer now."

The British envoy spoke primarily about the post-war world, emphasizing the necessity of some sort of a world organization to maintain peace and justice, plans for punishing Axis criminals responsible for atrocities, and the promotion of economic rehabilitation.

"The need of unified direction of war is obvious," he said. "The same unity so essential to victory will be just as necessary when the fighting stops, but, as we know from the unhappy experience of 1918, this may be more difficult to insure.

"There are many matters with which we are all familiar and on which we must needs cooperate after victory. Apart from such immediate measures as relief, retribution and the disarmament of the enemy, there is the whole range of problems involved in the international structure of the future and the permanent economic rehabilitation of a world bled white by war."

GIRAUD AT DAKAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—(AP) Gen. Henri Giraud, high commissioner in French North and West Africa, arrived at Dakar today with an escort of 25 planes, the Dakar radio reported in a broadcast recorded here by the Federal Communications commission.

Crowds lined the road from the airport and cried "Long Live Giraud" and "Long Live France," the report added. General Giraud was greeted by Gov.-Gen. Pierre Boisson of French West Africa and will review garrison troops tomorrow, the broadcast said.

Japan Planning to Move Textile Plants to China

Shift of Many Factories Will Utilize Raw Materials, Labor

A Tokio dispatch broadcast yesterday by the Berlin radio and recorded by The Associated Press said plans are being made to move a large part of the Japanese textile industry to China, to utilize more effectively the vast resources of raw material and labor there. The Tokyo newspaper "Asahi" said it also would relieve present transportation difficulties.

There have been several reports recently of the movement of Japanese plants to Manchukuo (Manchuria) and other Japanese-held parts of China. One reason was said to be to remove them from zones likely to be bombed when the Japanese homeland comes under attack.

Removal of the textile plants, however, would be part of a longer-range plan to fit China's cotton-growing areas and her abundance of cheap labor into the Japanese Empire's economy.

Swedish Relief Ship, Eros, Foundered in Gale

New York, Jan. 5 (AP). —The 3151-ton Swedish motorship Eros, relief ship, carrying grain from Canada to Greece, foundered in a gale while en route from Piraeus to Salonika and the ship and its cargo may be a total loss, the American Swedish News Exchange announced today. The date of the foundering was not given.

One of the eight vessels chartered by the Swedsih Red Cross and granted safe-conduct rights by the belligerents, the Eros was wrecked close to shore and the crew was saved, the agency said.

Victims of Nazi Sub Torpedoeing Land in Boston

JAN 6 1943

Boston, Jan. 5 (AP)—Striking without warning in the inky dark of a starless night, a German submarine torpedoed a medium-sized freighter of Panamanian registry in the Indian Ocean early last November, it was revealed today by survivors who arrived at Boston shortly after being landed at another North Atlantic port.

An engineer, a member of the gun crew and the chief cook were reported to have lost their lives. The torpedo, entering the portside engine room, failed to sink the vessel and the submarine came to the surface and shelled the stricken ship.

Innocent victims of war, 500 live monkeys which were part of the vessel's cargo, perished in the sinking. Members of the crew abandoned ship in lifeboats and later were spotted by airplanes which sent rescue vessels to their assistance.

Russians in Airacobras Score 39-to-1 Victory

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Russians flying Bell Airacobras (P-39) shot down 39 German aircraft during a 30-day period while losing only one of their planes, Col. Peter S. Kiselev, 37-year-old Soviet ace, said yesterday.

Col. Kiselev, holder of the Red Star award, one of Russia's two highest honors, visited the Bell Aircraft Corp. plant to acquaint engineers with mechanical problems caused by intense cold on the Eastern front.

The cannon-carrying Airacobras are "certainly giving a good account of themselves," he said, and are considered by Soviet pilots to be one of the best fighter planes.

30.24 —— 111

LONDON, JAN. 5 — (AP) — THE ANNOUNCEMENT IN CAIRO LAST THURSDAY THAT WILLARD WHITNEY STRAIGHT, AMERICAN-BORN SOCIALITE FIGHTER PILOT IN THE RAF, HAD RECEIVED NORWAY'S WAR CROSS SOMEWHERE IN THE MIDDLE EAST WAS THE FIRST CONFIRMATION OF REPORTS THAT HIS FRIENDS KNEW THAT HE HAD ESCAPED FROM NAZI CAPTIVITY.

JAN 6 1943

FRIENDS IN LONDON SOCIETY AND SPORTS CIRCLES HAD HEARD RUMORS FOR SEVERAL MONTHS THAT HE HAD FLED A GERMAN PRISON CAMP AFTER HE WAS REPORTED WOUNDED AND CAPTURED AUG. 1, 1941, BUT OFFICIAL QUARTERS HAD BEEN SILENT. IN PEACE, STRAIGHT WAS A WELL KNOWN AUTOMOBILE RACING DRIVER.

STRAIGHT WAS REPORTED TO HAVE SAVED MANY PLANES FROM A NORWEGIAN FIELD WHEN THE GERMANS WERE ATTACKING IT DURING THE INVASION OF NORWAY.

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, JAN. 6-(AP)-THE GERMANS IN TUNIS WERE REPORTED TODAY WORKING FEVERISHLY TO CONVERT THAT CITY INTO ANOTHER FORTRESS LIKE STALINGRAD, EVACUATING CIVILIANS EXCEPT FOR THE CAPITAL'S JEWS WHO, IT WAS SAID, ARE BEING FORCED TO HELP.

JAN 6 1943

THE DAILY MAIL'S AFRICAN CORRESPONDENT SAID THIS WAS THE STORY OF ARABS WHO CROSSED THE NO-MAN'S-LAND BETWEEN GERMAN AND ALLIED FORCES WEST OF THE TUNISIAN CAPITAL.

THESE ARABS, THE NEWSPAPER SAID, GIVE "A PICTURE OF A DEAD CITY, SHUTTERED AND STILL EXCEPT FOR THE GERMAN GARRISON, WITH SHOPS CLOSED AND SHUTTERS UP ON MOST DWELLINGS NOT BEING USED BY AXIS TROOPS."

"THE CIVILIAN POPULATION HAS BEEN MOVED OUT, AND THE JEWS OF THE CITY HAVE BEEN FORCED TO HELP IN DEFENSE WORKS."

JAN 6 1943

THE NARROW TWISTING STREETS IN THE OLDER QUARTER FACING INLAND WERE SAID TO BE WELL-SUITED TO NAZI DEFENSE PLANS.

LONDON, JAN. 5--(AP)--A FOREIGN OFFICE SPOKESMAN SAID TODAY THAT THE FORMAL ANTI-SPOILS WARNING BY THE ALLIED NATIONS WAS ESPECIALLY NECESSARY NOW THAT THE AXIS WAS MEETING MILITARY REVERSES.

JAN 6 1943

"IT HAS ALWAYS BEEN FORSEEN," HE SAID, "THAT WHEN THE TIDE OF BATTLE BEGAN TO TURN AGAINST THE AXIS, THE CAMPAIGN OF PLUNDER WOULD BE EVEN FURTHER EXTENDED AND ACCELERATED AND EVERY EFFORT WOULD BE MADE TO STOW AWAY STOLEN PROPERTY IN NEUTRAL COUNTRIES AND TO PERSUADE NEUTRAL CITIZENS TO ACT AS FENCES OR CLOAKS ON BEHALF OF THE THIEVES."

"THERE IS EVIDENCE THAT THIS IS NOW HAPPENING UNDER PRESSURE OF EVENTS IN RUSSIA AND NORTH AFRICA."

JAN 6 1943

HE SAID THAT A SPECIFIC PURPOSE OF THE DECLARATION WAS TO ~~EXX~~ PUT NEUTRAL COUNTRIES ON GUARD AGAINST THE PRACTICES.

LONDON, JAN. 5-(AP)-WITH THE BRITISH ADVANCE INTO BURMA, THE AIR MINISTRY SAID IN A REPORT TODAY, THE ALLIED FORCES EVERYWHERE HAD PASSED DURING DECEMBER FROM THE DEFENSIVE TO THE OFFENSIVE, SCORING SEVERAL UNPRECEDENTED AIR SUCCESSES IN THE PROCESS.

WHILE ALLIED BOMBERS POUNDED AXIS TARGETS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, FROM TRIPOLI TO NAPLES, NEARLY EVERY NIGHT, THE REVIEW SAID, "TORPEDO AIRCRAFT HAD GREATER SUCCESSES THAN EVER BEFORE IN THEIR ATTACKS ON ENEMY SHIPPING" IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

JAN 6 1943

FIGHTER-BOMBERS, THE REPORT SAID, "OPERATED ON AN UNPRECEDENTED SCALE" WHEN THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY TURNED FIELD MARSHAL ERWIN ROMMEL'S FORCES OUT OF MERSA BREGA ON DEC. 14, AND "AXIS AIR FORCES PROVED THEIR TOTAL INEFFECTIVENESS."

DESPITE BAD WEATHER IN THE MIDDLE OF THE MONTH, ROYAL AIR FORCE AND U.S.BOMBERS OPERATED WIDELY OVER GERMAN-HELD EUROPE, MAKING EIGHT NIGHT ATTACKS ON GERMANY AND THREE ON ITALY AS WELL AS THREE DAYLIGHT RAIDS BY HEAVY BOMBERS ON FRANCE. THIS WAS DONE DURING A PERIOD WHEN THE GALES OVER BRITAIN SOMETIME REACHED 100 MILES AN HOUR.

THE REPORT CREDITED THE RAF WITH THE DESTRUCTION OF 40 ENEMY AIRCRAFT OVER GREAT BRITAIN AND THE CONTINENT DURING THE MONTH, BUT ALSO ADMITTED THE LOSS OF 120 PLANES.

THE POSITION WAS REVERSED IN THE MIDDLE EAST WHERE THE RAF LOST 44 PLANES TO 100 ENEMY CRAFT SHOT DOWN.

IN SUSTAINED ACTIVITY BY ALL BRANCHES OF THE AIR SERVICE OVER THE TUNISIAN FRONT, RAF NIGHT FIGHTERS "INFLICTED A HIGH RATIO OF LOSSES" ON AXIS RAIDERS, THE REPORT SAID.

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, JAN.6-(AP)-THE GERMAN RADIO SAID TODAY THAT "THE NEXT STATEMENT ON THE SHACKLING OF PRISONERS MUST COME FROM BRITAIN," AND THAT THE BRITISH REPLY TO THE LATEST GERMAN NOTE "STILL IS OUTSTANDING."

THE BRITISH AND CANADIANS UNSHACKLED THEIR GERMAN PRISONERS WEEKS AGO, BUT THUS FAR THE NAZIS APPARENTLY HAVE NOT DONE THE SAME WITH BRITISH PRISONERS. INSTEAD THEY HAVE SENT ANOTHER NOTE TO BRITAIN THROUGH THE SWISS GOVERNMENT, PROLONGING DISCUSSIONS ON THE ISSUE.

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL IS EXPECTED TO DISCUSS THE SUBJECT BEFORE PARLIAMENT SHORTLY.

JAN 6 1943

LONDON, JAN.5-(AP)-THE MORAL REARMAMENT MOVEMENT, SOME OF WHOSE MEMBERS IN THE UNITED STATES HAVE ASKED FOR DRAFT DEFERMENT, HAS BEEN DORMANT IN THIS COUNTRY SINCE OCT.1941, WHEN MINISTER OF LABOR ERNEST BEVIN REFUSED TO CONSIDER THEM A RELIGIOUS GROUP AND ORDERED 11 OF THEIR NUMBER TO REGISTER FOR SERVICE.

THEIR SUPPORTERS APPEALED BEVIN'S DECISION AND RECEIVED BACKING FROM MORE THAN 170 MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT, BUT IT WAS OF NO AVAIL, AND SINCE THAT TIME THE GROUP HAS BEEN HEARD OF ONLY IN DISPATCHES FROM THE UNITED STATES.

JAN 6 1943

PRIOR TO BEVIN'S RULING, SOME 250 MEMBERS OF THE GROUP, KNOWN THEN AS THE OXFORD MOVEMENT, ALREADY HAD JOINED BRITAIN'S FIGHTING SERVICES. NOW ONLY ABOUT A SCORE REMAIN TO LOOK AFTER THE INTERESTS OF DR.BUCHMAN, LEADER OF THE MOVEMENT, AND THEY ALL ARE INELIGIBLE FOR MILITARY SERVICE EITHER THROUGH AGE OR ILL HEALTH. NONE OF THEM IS LISTED AS A CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR.

THE OXFORD MOVEMENT AS FAR BACK AS MARCH, 1939, WHEN HE INTRODUCED IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS A MOTION DECLARING IT TO BE "HARMFUL TO THE BRITISH CAUSE IN MANY COUNTRIES." ON ANOTHER OCCASION IN COMMONS HE CHARGED DR.BUCHMAN WITH FASCIST TENDENCIES.

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, JAN.6-(AP)-THE FUNERAL OF MAJOR LEMUEL EDWARD DAY OF CHICAGO, THE "MOST BELOVED SURGEON OF AMERICAN FORCES BATTLING IN THE MUD OF NEW GUINEA," WAS DESCRIBED TODAY BY THE DAILY TELEGRAPH IN A DISPATCH FROM ITS CORRESPONDENT WITH AMERICAN TROOPS THERE.

DAY DIED OF HEART FAILURE, THE DISPATCH SAID, AFTER WEEKS OF INCESSANT WORK IN WHICH HE LOST 34 POUNDS AND HIS HAIR TURNED GREY.

"IN THE SPOTTED LIGHT AND SHADE OF THE CREEPER-HUNG PAPUAN JUNGLE, THE GRAMOPHONE SOUNDED THIN AND UNREAL," THE TELEGRAPH CORRESPONDENT CABLED. "IT WAS HOT, STICKY AND OPPRESSIVE.

"THE GRAMOPHONE WAS PLAYING 'BEAUTIFUL ISLE.' NOT A LEAF STIRRED. AT LAST THE RECORD CAME TO A CLOSE. THEN THE BODY OF MAJOR DAY WAS LOWERED WITH ALL CARE INTO THE GRAVE.

"THERE WAS NO FLAG TO COVER HIM; NOT EVEN A BUGLER TO SOUND LAST POST. BUT THE STAFF OF HIS SMALL, MUCH-BOMBED FIELD HOSPITAL FELT THEY HAD TO DO SOMETHING FOR 'POP' SO THEY WOUND UP 'POP'S' OLD GRAMOPHONE WHICH HE HAD SO OFTEN PLAYED TO CHEER THEM UP IN THE GRASS-ROOFED HOSPITAL, AND PUT ON HIS FAVORITE RECORD FOR THE LAST TIME."

LONDON, JAN. 5-(AP)-THE ANNOUNCEMENT IN CAIRO LAST THURSDAY THAT WILLARD WHITNEY STRAIGHT, AMERICAN-BORN SOCIALITE FIGHTER PILOT IN THE RAF, HAD RECEIVED NORWAY'S WAR CROSS SOMEWHERE IN THE MIDDLE EAST WAS THE FIRST CONFIRMATION OF REPORTS THAT HE HAD ESCAPED FROM NAZI CAPTIVITY.

FRIENDS IN LONDON SOCIETY AND SPORTS CIRCLES HAD HEARD RUMORS FOR SEVERAL MONTHS THAT HE HAD FLED A GERMAN PRISON CAMP AFTER HE WAS REPORTED BOUNED OVER FRANCE AND CAPTURED AUG. 1, 1941, BUT OFFICIAL QUARTERS HAD BEEN SILENT. IN PEACE, STRAIGHT WAS A WELL-KNOWN AUTOMOBILE RACING DRIVER.

STRAIGHT WAS SAID TO HAVE SAVED MANY PLANES FROM A NORWEGIAN FIELD WHEN THE GERMANS WERE ATTACKING IT DURING THE INVASION OF NORWAY.

LONDON, JAN 5-(AP)-CAROLE LANDIS, BLONDE FILM STAR FROM THE UNITED STATES, AND CAPT. THOMAS C. WALLACE OF PASADENA, CALIF., A U.S. ARMY AIRFORCE PILOT, WERE MARRIED TODAY.

MISS LANDIS CAME TO BRITAIN TO ENTERTAIN TROOPS. CAPTAIN WALLACE HAS BEEN HERE TWO AND A HALF YEARS AND WAS ONE OF THE ORIGINAL MEMBERS OF THE ROYAL AIR FORCE'S AMERICAN EAGLE SQUADRON.

THE WEDDING CEREMONY WAS PERFORMED IN THE CHURCH OF THE ASSUMPTION. THE COUPLE HAD PLANNED TO BE MARRIED NEW YEAR'S DAY, BUT MISS LANDIS HAD NOT RECOVERED FULLY FROM AN APPENDICITIS OPERATION.

MADRID, JAN.5-(AP)-MAJ.-GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON,JR., CHIEF OF AMERICAN FORCES IN FRENCH MOROCCO, TODAY PAID A COURTESY CALL ON GENERAL LUIS ORGAZ, HIGH COMMISSIONER OF THE SPANISH ZONE IN MOROCCO, A SPANISH NEWS AGENCY DISPATCH FROM TANGIER REPORTED.

THE OFFICIAL AGENCY SAID THE AMERICAN GENERAL "REITERATED THE GUARANTEES RECENTLY OFFERED TO SPAIN BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE NORTH AMERICAN NATION," AND THAT GREAT CORDIALITY MARKED THE VISIT.

MADRID, JAN. 5-(AP)-- SOUTHWESTERN EUROPE TONIGHT PREPARED FOR THE VISIT OF THE THREE KINGS OF THE ORIENT, WHILE IN SOUTHEASTERN EUROPE ORTHODOX CATHOLICS PLANNED THE BEST CHRISTMAS CELEBRATIONS THEY COULD MANAGE.

JAN 6 1943

FOR CHILDREN THIS EVE IN PORTUGAL, SPAIN, FRANCE, BELGIUM, SWITZERLAND AND ITALY CORRESPONDS TO CHRISTMAS EVE IN NORTHERN EUROPE AND THE AMERICAS, AND THE THREE KINGS TAKE THE PLACE OF THE BEARDED SAINT, Nick

IN OLD SERBIA AND THROUGHOUT THE ORTHODOX CATHOLIC BALKANS TOMORROW IS THE DAY BEFORE CHRISTMAS, WHICH IN PEACETIME RIVALLED CHRISTMAS ITSELF AS A DAY OF CEREMONY.

IN SERBIA HOUSEWIVES CLEANED THEIR HOMES FROM TOP TO BOTTOM IN PREPARATION FOR THE CEREMONY OF CAKE, WHEN THE HEAD OF THE HOUSE AND ALL HIS SONS BRING PIECES OF STRAW IN THE HOME, AND THE HEAD OF THE HOUSE PLACES HIS BIT OF STRAW PLATE IN THE MIDDLE OF THE ROOM WHICH WILL HOLD THE CHRISTMAS CAKE.

JAN 6 1943

THIS YEAR ONLY CHILDREN AND SMALL BOYS REMAIN AT HOME TO ACT AS HEAD OF THE HOUSE, BUT IN THE MOUNTAINS MANY SERB SOLDIERS WILL CARRY OUT ANOTHER PART OF CHRISTMAS EVE CEREMONIES TOMORROW.

IN FRANCE THE DAY OF THE KINGS CEREMONIES ARE LIMITED BY RESTRICTIONS WHICH MADE IT ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO GET FLOUR TO BAKE CAKES FOR TOMORROW'S BANQUET.

NEVERTHELESS MANY HOMES WILL HAVE CAKE OR BISCUIT OF SOME KIND IN WHICH THEY HIDE A BEAN. THE ONE WHO FINDS THE BEAN

BECOMES KING OR QUEEN AND SELECTS A QUEEN OR KING TO "RULE" WITH HIM AT THE BANQUET.

ITALY'S DAY OF KINGS--"LA BEZZANA"-- IS CELEBRATED AS IN SPAIN AND ITALIAN SHOPS ARE FLOODED WITH GERMAN TOYS FOR THE OCCASION.

JAN 6 1943

IN SEVILLA AND IN MALAGA THE THREE KINGS OF THE ORIENT PARADED "IN PERSON" ESCORTED BY MILITARY BANDS AND CAVALRY THROUGH THE STREETS OF THE TWO CITIES ON THE WAY TO ORPHANAGES WHERE THEIR "SERVANTS" DISTRIBUTED THOUSANDS OF TOYS.

SIDEWALKS ALONG THE LINE OF MARCH WERE LINED WITH CHILDREN WHO WERE FREQUENTLY REWARDED WITH SMILES FROM THE AFTERNOON'S MONARCHS AND GIVEN PIECES OF CANDY.

THE THREE EASTERN KINGS ARRIVED AT BARCELONA AT 4 P.M. TODAY. THE CITY GOVERNMENT RECEIVED THEM AFOOT WITH A MILITARY ESCORT ALONG A TWO [illegible] KILOMETER ROUTE TO BARCELONASS RAMBLAS.

IN EL FERROL, ALMERIA, CIUDADREAL, CADIZ, AND MANY PROVINCIAL CAPITALS THE KINGS FIRST APPEAR IN POOR QUARTERS, ANNOUNCED BY [illegible] WITH TRUMPETS, AND GUARDED BY POLICE WHO DID THEIR BEST TO KEEP CHILDREN IN LINE FOR TOYS.

BAD CHILDREN WERE SCHEDULED TO RECEIVED ONLY A FEW LUMPS OF COAL, BUT FEW FAMILIES FAILED TO SOFTEN THE BLOW WITH SOME TOYS BROUGHT LATER FROM HIDING.

JAN 6 1943

MANY JOKES WERE MADE ABOUT SPANISH FATHERS BEING UNABLE TO AFFORD TO REMEMBER THE [illegible] CHILD WHO HAD BEEN BAD DURING THE YEAR DUE TO THE HIGH PRICE OF COAL NOW.

MOSCOW, JAN 5-(AP)-THE RUSSIANS SMASHED ON DOWN THE MIDDLE DON TODAY OVER POWERFUL GERMAN RESISTANCE THAT IN ONE SECTOR MOMENTARILY THREW BACK THE SOVIET FORCES, AND CONTINUED ADVANCES IN THE CAUCASUS AND WEST OF MOSCOW, THE RED ARMY COMMAND ANNOUNCED.

THE THRUST DOWN THE MIDDLE DON OVERRAN SEVERAL ADDITIONAL TOWNS AND VILLAGES, THE SOVIET MID-DAY COMMUNIQUE DECLARED, BUT AT THE COST OF SOME OF THE HEAVIEST FIGHTING OF THE CURRENT CAMPAIGN.

IN ONE AREA, SAID THIS COMMUNIQUE, FRESH GERMAN TROOPS HURRIED INTO A SAVAGE COUNTER-ATTACK AND PRESSED THE RUSSIAN TROOPS BACK, BUT RUSSIAN TANK CHARGES SUBSEQUENTLY BROKE THE NAZI LINE, KILLED HUNDREDS AND DISABLED 49 ENEMY TANKS. THE SOVIET ADVANCE THEN RESUMED.

JAN 6 1943

THIS CONTINUED MARCH JOWN THE MIDDLE DON, OFFICIALLY DESCRIBED AS IN SOME SECTORS A PURSUIT OF "THE RETREATING ENEMY," WAS IMMINENTLY THREATENING TO CLOSE A SECOND ARC OF ENVELOPMENT UPON LARGE GERMAN FORCES STANDING WEST OF STALINGRAD AND BEYOND THE SURVIVORS OF 22 AXIS DIVISIONS LONG SINCE CUT OFF BETWEEN THE DON AND VOLGA RIVERS. THE CLOSING OF A GAP OF ONLY ABOUT 30 MILES WAS NECESSARY TO DRAW SHUT THE TRAP.

JAN 6 1943

AT THE FAR SOUTHERN END OF THE FRONT, IN THE CAUCASUS, RUSSIAN ADVANCES BEYOND RECAPTURED MOZDOK, TOWARD THE RAILWAY JUNCTION OF PROKHLADNENSKI, AND IN THE AREA SOUTHEAST OF NALCHIK WERE REPORTED.

IN THE MOZDOK SECTOR IT WAS REPORTED UNOFFICIALLY THAT THE GERMAN INE WAS BROKEN BY RUSSIAN CHARGES THAT RECAPTURED THREE VILLAGES ON WHICH THE NAZI DEFENSES HAD BEEN BASED.

GERMAN INFANTRY, SUPPORTED BY 40 TANKS, COUNTER-ATTACKED AND THRUST BACK INTO ONE SETTLEMENT ONLY TO BE DRIVEN OUT AGAIN.

ABOUT NALCHIK HASTY GERMAN EFFORTS TO THROW UP NEW FORTIFICATIONS WERE SAID TO HAVE FAILED. THE INVADER'S LOSS OF A SERIES OF POSITIONS WAS REPORTED.

THE MID-DAY COMMUNIQUE, RELATING "AN ESPECIALLY FIERCE ENGAGEMENT" SOMEWHERE IN THE NORTHERN CAUCASUS, DECLARED THAT THE GERMANS WERE ROUTED IN RAW FIGHTING WITH THE BAYONET AND RIFLE BUTT.

JAN 6 1943

(LONDON REPORTED THE RECEIPT OF UNCONFIRMED REPORTS THAT THE NAZIS IN THE CAUCASUS HAD BEEN ORDERED TO HOLD ON AT ANY COST DESPITE GROWING DANGER OF THEIR BEING CUT OFF.

THESE REPORTS WERE TO THE EFFECT THAT IF THE GERMAN CAUCASIAN ARMIES' LAND COMMUNICATIONS WERE CUT AN EFFORT WOULD BE MADE TO SUPPLY THEM BY SEA--THIS IN THE FACE OF THE FACT THAT THE RUSSIAN BLACK SEA FLEET WOULD BE A GREAT FACTOR WITH WHICH TO CONTEND.

(IT WAS SAID THAT THE GERMANS WERE ASSEMBLING A SUPPLY FLEET OF ALL AVAILABLE BLACK SEA SHIPS OF 200 TONS AND MORE.)

ON THE CENTRAL (MOSCOW) FRONT, A RUSSIAN BREAK-THROUGH INTO A STRONGLY FORTIFIED ENEMY CENTER SOUTHWEST OF THE RECENTLY RECAPTURED CITY OF VELIKIE LUKI WAS ANNOUNCED. THIS THRUST WAS OVER MINE FIELDS AND BARBED WIRE MAZES.

JAN 6 1943

WEST OF RZHEV--WHICH HAD FORMED WITH VELIKIE LUKI AND VYAZMA A STRONG GERMAN DEFENSIVE TRIANGLE BETWEEN MOSCOW AND THE OLD LATVIAN FRONTIERS--THE GERMANS WERE COUNTER-ATTACKING.

MOSCOW, JAN 5-(AP)-A TASS DISPATCH FROM LAUSANNE, SWITZERLAND, BROADCAST BY THE MOSCOW RADIO, SAID TODAY THAT ITALY HAD RENEWED PRESSURE ON GERMANY TO SATISFY ITALIAN TERRITORIAL CLAIMS AGAINST FRANCE.

TASS SAID THAT DINO ALFIERI, ITALIAN AMBASSADOR TO BERLIN, HAD INFORMED NAZI FOREIGN MINISTER JOACHIM VON RIBBENTROP PARTICULARLY THAT THE POPULATION OF NICE WAS CONCERNED BECAUSE THAT FRENCH RIVIERA REGION HAD NOT YET BEEN INCORPORATED INTO ITALY.

THE SOVIET AGENCY SAID THAT BOTH RIBBENTROP AND HANS GEORG VIKTOR VON MACKENSDN, GERMAN AMBASSADOR IN ROME, SUPPORT THE ITALIANS BECAUSE ITALY'S LOSS OF PRESTIGE AS A RESULT OF HER UNFULFILLED AMBITIONS MIGHT AFFECT THE AXIS ALLIANCE. HOWEVER, TASS SAID, OTHER NAZI LEADERS ARE STRONGLY OPPOSED.

ANKARA, TURKEY, JAN.5-(AP)-A WELL-AUTHENTICATED REPORT FROM GREECE TODAY SAID THE GERMANS HAD THREATENED TO INTERVENE THERE UNLESS ITALIAN OCCUPYING TROOPS CRUSH GREEK GUERRILLAS WHO ARE MENACING AXIS COMMUNICATIONS IN GREECE.

THE GERMAN THREAT ALLEGEDLY WAS MADE AT AN ATHENS CONFERENCE BETWEEN GERMANS AND ITALIANS.

IN A BITTER EXCHANGE OF WORDS, THE ITALIANS WERE SAID TO HAVE REMINDED THE GERMANS THEY HAD FAILED TO SUPPRESS THE CHETNIKS IN YUGOSLAVIA, AND THE GERMANS ACCUSED THE ITALIANS OF LAXITY IN GREECE.

DAKAR, JAN.5-(AP)-GEN.PIERRE BOISSON, THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF FRENCH WEST AFRICA WHO REPELLED THE FIGHTING FRENCH-BRITISH ATTACK ON THIS PORT IN SEPTEMBER, 1940, SAID TODAY AN UNDERSTANDING WITH THE FOLLOWERS OF GEN.CHARLES DE GAULLE IS "MOST DESIRABLE."

IN THE FIRST INTERVIEW GRANTED AN AMERICAN NEWSPAPERMAN, GENERAL BOISSON WAS ASKED HIS POSITION REGARDING THE FIGHTING FRENCH.

"IN THE HIGHEST INTERESTS OF FRANCE I CONSIDER A RAPPROACHEMENT TO BE MOST DESIRABLE," HE SAID. "HOWEVER THE PROBLEM IS NOT LIMITED ONLY TO WEST AFRICA. IT RESTS UPON GENERAL GIRAUD (HIGH COMMISSIONER OF FRENCH AFRICA) TO TREAT IT IN ITS ENTIRETY."

DAKAR, FRENCH WEST AFRICA, JAN. 4 (DELAYED)-(AP)-

JAN 6 1943

SEVEN BRITISH NAVAL AND AIR OFFICERS ATTACHED TO A SPECIAL AMERICAN ARMY AND NAVY MISSION HAVE ARRIVED IN DAKAR.

THEY WERE PRECEDED BY [redacted], LONDON REPRESENTATIVE OF THE JOINT ALLIED SHIPPING BOARD FOR NORTH AFRICA, WHO WAS THE FIRST BRITON TO ENTER THE CITY SINCE THE SUMMER OF 1940.

JAN 6 1943

THE BRITISH WILL WORK WITH THE AMERICAN GROUP TO DETERMINE HOW THE PORT AND AIRFIELD FACILITIES CAN BEST BE USED TO EXPEDITE THE FLOW OF PLANES TO NORTH AFRICA, TO IMPROVE THE GENERAL SITUATION AND TO COMBAT U-BOATS.

DAKAR (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)- A FRENCH MILITARY TRIBUNAL HERE HAS ORDERED THE EXECUTION OF TWO FRENCH CITIZENS FOR "COLLUSION WITH THE INFORMATION SERVICES OF GERMANY."

NO DATE FOR THE EXECUTION WAS SET.

ONE OF THE MEN WAS CONVICTED OF TREASON, THE OTHER OF COMPLICITY OF TREASON. THE GOVERNMENT DECLINED TO DISCLOSE DETAILS OF THE CASE, BUT IT WAS REPORTED IN RELIABLE QUARTERS THAT THE MEN

WERE FOUND IN POSSESSION OF A RADIO TRANSMITTER ON THE WATERFRONT.

DAKAR POLICE, MEANWHILE, HAVE BEGUN A ROUNDUP OF ITALIAN MEN, PRESUMABLY FOR INTERNMENT. JAN 6 1943

DAKAR, JAN. 2X (DELAYED)--(AP)-- A SMALL GROUP OF NATIONALS OF THE UNITED NATIONS-- LIVING IN DAKAR THE LAST TWELVE [redacted] ARE CONVINCED NOT A SINGLE GERMAN SUBMARINE OBTAINED FUEL SUPPLIES AT THIS PORT OR VICINITY.

THEY ARE EQUALLY EMPHATIC IN DENYING REPORTS RECURRENT SINCE 1940 THAT THE GERMAN ARMISTICE COMMISSION VISITED HERE.

THEY ARE WILLING TO GIVE FULL SUPPORT TO GOVERNOR-GENERAL PIERRE BOISSON'S FLAT DECLARATION THAT THE STORIES OF DAKAR BEING USED AS A BASE FOR AXIS SUBMARINES OPERATING IN THE SOUTH ATLANTIC ARE UTTERLY WITHOUT FOUNDATION. JAN 6 1943

THE UNITED NATIONS GROUP, WHICH INCLUDES SEVERAL AMERICANS, SAYS THESE RUMORS ARE JUST AS SHADOWY AS THE GERMAN SUBMARINES. WHEN THEY ARE INVESTIGATED, THE SOURCES OF THE RUMORS VANISH, AND THEY SIMPLY CANNOT BE VERIFIED.

ONE OF THE BEST INFORMED MEMBERS OF THE GROUP CALLS THE U-BOAT A REPORTS AN "ETERNAL RUMOR."

THIS MAN, WHOSE ALLIED AFFILIATIONS PREVENT DISCLOSING HIS NAME, ASSERTS THAT NONE OF THE THOUSANDS OF BITTER NAZI-HATERS AT DAKAR HAS YET PRODUCED ACCEPTABLE PROOF THAT EITHER GERMAN OFFICIALS OR SUBMARINES VISITED HERE. HE CITES ALSO THE FAILURE OF FRENCH SAILORS OF STRONGLY ANTI-NAZI VIEWS TO OFFER ANY POSITIVE INFORMATION.

JAN 6 1943

"HOW COULD A SUB TENDER GO OUT AND HANDLE A REFUELING JOB WITHOUT SOME SEVERAL HUNDRED OF THE CREW TALKING?" HE ASKS. "NEARLY ALL FRENCH SEAMEN HAVE BEEN PRO-AMERICAN FROM THE START. THEY WOULD GO OUT OF THEIR WAY TO BRING IT TO OUR ATTENTION."

ALGIERS, JAN. 2-[redacted] (DELAYED)--(AP)--GEN. CHARLES DE GAULLE'S PROPOSAL FOR A MEETING ON FRENCH SOIL WITH GEN. HENRI GIRAUD AROUSED KEEN INTEREST [redacted] IN FRENCH AND ALLIED MILITARY CIRCLES, BUT THERE WAS NO IMMEDIATE COMMENT.

GENERAL DE GAULLE DISCLOSED IN LONDON THAT HE SUB-

CESTED CHRISTMAS DAY TO GENERAL GIRAUD THAT THEY COMMIT SIX METHODS TO UNITE THE FIGHTING FRENCH AND GIRAUD GOVERNMENT FORCES OF FRENCH NORTH AFRICA.

JAN 6 1943

THERE WERE SOME INDICATIONS HERE THAT A STATEMENT MIGHT BE ISSUED LATER, BUT NO DEFINITE ANNOUNCEMENT.

HERETOFORE THE GIRAUD GROUP HAS BEEN [illegible] RELUCTANT TO EVEN SUGGEST NEGOTIATIONS WITH DE GAULLE, PRESUMABLY BECAUSE THEY FEARED SUCH A MOVE MIGHT REACT UNFAVORABLY IN SOME CIRCLES WHICH COULD NOT BE RECONCILED TO ACCEPTING FIGHTING FRENCH LEADERSHIP ALTHOUGH THEMSELVES THOSE CIRCLES ARE CONSIDERED PRO-ALLIED

THERE WAS GENERAL BELIEF HERE THAT INVITATIONS FOR DE GAULLE AND FIGHTING FRENCH LEADERS TO VISIT WASHINGTON WERE PRELIMINARY TO NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN THE FIGHTING FRENCH AND GIRAUD GOVERNMENTS UNDER UNITED NATIONS SPONSORSHIP.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, JANUARY 5-(AP)-GENERAL DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR TODAY AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS AND THE OAKLEAF CLUSTER IN LIEU OF A SECOND D.S.C. TO LIEUTENANT HERBERT PEABODY, OF POULTNEY, VT., FOR EXTRAORDINARY HEROISM IN ACTION ON TWO SEPARATE OCCASIONS IN NEW GUINEA.

THE D.S.C. ALSO WAS AWARDED TO PVTS.DONALD PRICE, OF ELKHORN, WIS., MARO JOHNSON OF (1544 EAST 61ST) CHICAGO, HOMER MCALLISTER OF (624 CHIPLEY AVE) GREENWOOD, S.C., CLOYD (CORRECT) MYERS OF (102 EAST TENTH) MCCOOK, NEB., WHO JOINED LIEUTENANT PEABODY IN RESCUING ALLIED SOLDIERS FROM A SMALL BOAT WHICH WAS UNDER ATTACK BY THE JAPANESE OFF CAPE SUDEST, NEW GUINEA, LAST NOVEMBER 16.

WHEN ENEMY AIRPLANES ATTACKED AND SET FIRE TO SEVERAL SMALL SHIPS CARRYING ARMY PERSONNEL, PEABODY CALLED FOR VOLUNTEERS AND WITH FOUR ENLISTED MEN BOARDED A SMALL COASTAL VESSEL AND ORDERED IT TO PROCEED TO THE BURNING SHIPS. DESPITE BOMBING AND STRAFING THEY CONTINUED TO SEARCH FOR SURVIVORS UNTIL LONG AFTER DARK.

PEABODY WON THE OAK LEAF CLUSTER FOR HEROISM NEAR BUNA DEC. 19. A RIFLE COMPANY PATROL BROKE THROUGH ENEMY LINES AND ESTABLISHED ITSELF ON THE BEACH NEAR BUNA STATION THE ONLY SUPPLY ROUTE LAY THROUGH AN ENEMY POSITION. PEABODY LED A CARRYING UNIT FORWARD TO REPLENISH THE PATROL'S AMMUNITION, CRAWLING THROUGH ENEMY MORTAR FIRE AND SNIPER ACTIVITY TO MAKE THE DELIVERY.

JAN 6 1943

PEABODY AND MYERS ARE INFANTRYMEN. THE OTHERS ARE OF THE QUARTERMASTER CORPS.

THE DECORATIONS WERE THE FIRST OF THIS TYPE BESTOWED IN THE BUNA FIGHTING.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, JAN.6-(AP)-TAKING COMMANDOF HIS COMPANY WHEN ALL THE COMMISSIONED OFFICERS WERE KILLED OR WOUNDED, FIRST SERGT.REUBEN STEGER OF MARSHFIELD, WIS., PERFORMED SO VALIANTLY BEFORE HE WAS KILLED IN THE DRIVE ON BUNA, NEW GUINEA, THAT HE WAS AWARDED POSTHUMOUSLY TODAY A DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS BY GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR.

JAN 6 1943

SERGEANT STEGER WAS ONE OF THREE INFANTRYMEN KILLED IN ACTION NEAR BUNA TO BE HONORED BY POSTHUMOUS DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS AWARDS.

THE OTHER TWO WERE SERGT.BOYD LINCOLN HERSEY, MICH., AND PVT. HAROLD GARBER, A MACHINE GUNNER FROM LA FOLLETTE, TENN.

THE CITATION SAID STEGER LAST NOV. 21 LEAD AN ATTACK ON STRONG

ENEMY POSITIONS, SEVERAL TIMES ADVANCED INTO FIRE-SWEPT ZONES TO BRING WOUNDED MEN TO SAFETY, AND INSPIRED HIS MEN TO PRESS THE ATTACK IN WHICH HE WAS KILLED. THE MEDAL WILL BE PRESENTED TO HIS MOTHER, MRS.J.M.STEGER (913 NORTH AVENUE) MARSHFIELD, WIS.

PRIVATE GARBER LAST DEC. 5 CONTINUED TO FIRE HIS MACHINE GUN, ALTHOUGH RECEIVING CONCENTRATED ENEMY FIRE, UNTIL THE PLATOON HE WAS SUPPORTING CAPTURED A HOSTILE POSITION. IN ANOTHER PHASE OF THE ATTACK, HE OPERATED THE GUN UNTIL HE WAS KILLED. THE AWARD WILL GO TO HIS FATHER, FRED GARBER, ROUTE 2, LA FOLLETTE, TENN.

SERGEANT LINCOLN LED AN ATTACK ON A STRONGLY FORTIFIED POSITION LAST NOV. 30. HIS ACTION MADE POSSIBLE THE CAPTURE OF THE POSITION BY HIS PLATOON. FRANK DYKOA, HERSEY, MICH., LINCOLN'S NEXT OF KIN, WILL BE RECIPIENT OF THE MEDAL.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JAN.4--(DELAYED)--(AP)--RED HAIRED, RED BEARDED CAPT.RICHARD ROBINSON DROPPED DOWN THROUGH A TRAPDOOR FROM THE COCKPIT OF HIS BATTLEWORN B-26 AND DECLARED:

"IF WHAT THEY SAID WAS THERE, WE HIT IT."

THAT WAS SOMETHING APPROACHING A KEYNOTE SPEECH FOR THE VETERAN BOMBING SQUADRON WHICH TODAY BEGAN AN INTENSIVE AERIAL POUNDING OF THE JAP SALIENT ON SAMANANDA POINT---LAST IMPORTANT ENEMY HOLDING ON THE BUNA-GONA FRONT.

GUIDED BY CAREFULLY MARKED AERCAL PHOTOMAPS, THESE PILOTS, NAVIGATORS AND BOMBARDIERS, MOST OF WHOM HAVE BEEN IN NEW GUINEA FOR MONTHS, "REALLY POURED IT ON THE JAPS," LETTING LOOSE 11,000 POUNDS OF BOMBS, ROBINSON SAID.

IT WAS OBVIOUS THE MISSION HAD BEEN SUCCESSFUL FROM THE MOMENT THE RETURNING MEDIUM BOMBERS REACHED THE END OF THEIRLANDING STRIP AND STARTED TAXIING TO DISPERSAL BAYS. AS THEY CAME TRUNDLING UP THE RUNWAY, ALL CREW MEMBERS EXCEPT THE PILOTS, AND CO-PILOTS WERE PERCHED TOPSIDE OF THE CIGAR-SHAPED FUSELAGES, WAVING AND SHOUTING TO THE GROUND CREWS.

FOR THIS ASSIGNMENT THE SQUADRON USED THE BEST MEN AVAILABLE. THREE CAPTAINS, FOR INSTANCE, FLEW IN THE PLANE WHICH ROBINSON PILOTED AS FLIGHT LEADER, HIS CO-PILOT WAS CAPT.ALBERT FLETCHER OF SCARSDALE,N.Y., WHO USUALLY FLIES THAT PARTICULAR PLANE--NAMED THE "FLYING PARSON"--WENT ALONG AS PHOTOGRAPHER. LIEUT.LYLE THOMPSON, FERGUS FALLS,MINN., WAS BOMBARDIER.

THE SQUADRON COMMANDER, MAJOR, MAJOR HUGH HANSON OF ORLANDO,FLA., DID NOT TAKE PART IN THE FLIGHT BUT A FORMER COMMANDING OFFICER, MAJOR HERBERT HENDRICKS OF KANSAS CITY,MO., FLEW AS CO-PILOT FOR LIEUT.CARL G.KING, LAGRANGE,GA.

JAN 4 1943

OTHER PILOTS WERE CAPT.HOYT "NAP" JOLLY OF AUBURN,ALA., WHO LED THE FIRST FLIGHT; CAPT.LOUIS FORD, LOS ANGELES; LIEUT. LEONARD T.NICHOLSON, PRESCOTT,ARIZ., AND LIEUT.JOHN H. [illegible], DAYTON,OHIO.

HITTING THE TARGET AREA, WHICH WAS BOUNDED BY AN ARC EXTENDING A THOUSAND YARDS INLAND FROM THE TIP OF SAMANANDA POINT, FROM DIFFERENT ANGLES, THE BOMB SPRAYED THE SECTOR WITH 300--POUND FRAGMENTATION BOMBS. EVEN KING WAS SATISFIED WITH THE RESULTS, ALTHOUGH HE HAD TO MAKE THREE RUNS BEFORE HIS BOMBS DROPPED.

"I FLEW IN THE FIRST FLIGHT," HE REPORTED. "MY BOMBS DIDN'T

GO. I JUST HAD TIME TO JOIN THE OTHERS IN THEIR FIRST RUN. AGAIN THE BOMBS DIDN'T GO.

"I WAS AFRAID THE BOYS WOULD GO HOME THEN AND LEAVE ME WITH THE JOB UNDONE, BUT ON ORIGINAL FLIGHT MADE ANOTHER RUN. I JOINED THEM AND GOT THE BOMBS AWAY AT LAST. I SAW ONE SCORE A DIRECT HIT ON THREE JAPS."

JAN 4 1943

THE OTHERS LAUGHED AND KIDDED KING FOR THINKING HE COULD SEE THREE JAPS FROM SEVERAL HUNDRED FEET IN THE AIR. BUT ALL AGREED THAT WITH THE EXCEPTION OF TWO OR POSSIBLY THREE BOMBS WHICH FELL IN THE SEA JUST OFF THE POINT, ALL HIT THE PRESCRIBED AREA. THERE WAS NO ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE TO BOTHER THEM, SO THE PLANES STAYED OVER THE TARGET ABOUT HALF AN HOUR.

OTTAWA, JAN 5-(AP)-RCAF HEADQUARTERS TONIGHT ANNOUNCED THE AWARD OF DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSSES TO TWO AMERICANS SERVING OVERSEAS WITH THE RCAF. THEY ARE PILOT OFFICER E.B.COZENS, HAVERFORD, PA.; AND FLIGHT LT. OLIVER CHARLES KALLIO, IRONWOOD, MICH.

COZENS' CITATION SAID:

"PO COZENS HAS PARTICIPATED IN A LARGE NUMBER OF OPERATIONAL

SORTIES. ONE NIGHT IN DECEMBER, 1942, HE WAS CAPTAIN OF AN AIRCRAFT DETAILED TO ATTACK A TARGET IN NORTHWEST GERMANY. WHEN APPROACHING THE OBJECTIVE HIS AIRCRAFT WAS HELD IN A CONE OF SEARCHLIGHTS AND BADLY DAMAGED BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE.

JAN 6 1943

"DESPITE THIS, PO. COZENS, DISPLAYING GREAT DETERMINATION, FLEW ON AND BOMBED THE TARGET FROM A VERY LOW LEVEL. ON THE RETURN JOURNEY THE BOMBER WAS AGAIN HIT BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE AND THE STARBOARD INNER ENGINE CAUGHT ALIGHT. DESCENDING TO 100 FEET, A FUEL TANK WAS JETTISONED AND THE FIRE EXTINGUISHED. PO. COZENS THEN FLEW HIS AIRCRAFT SAFELY BACK TO BASE.

"HE IS AN OUTSTANDING OFFICER WHOSE ONLY DESIRE IS TO GET AT GRIPS WITH THE ENEMY. HIS QUIET DETERMINATION AND COURAGE HAVE BEEN A FINE EXAMPLE TO OTHER MEMBERS OF HIS CREW."

JOHN BABB

THE BUNA CAMPAIGN IS NEARLY OVER, BUT EVEN WHEN GENERAL MACARTHUR IS ABLE TO ANNOUNCE THE END OF JAPANESE RESISTANCE THERE THE FIGHT TO RECOVER NEW GUINEA WILL ONLY HAVE BEEN WELL STARTED.

SATISFACTION OVER THE DRAMATIC IMPROVEMENT OF ALLIED FORTUNES IN THAT THEATER SINCE SEPTEMBER, WHEN THE JAPANESE WERE THREATENING PORT MORESBY, HAS TENDED TO OBSCURE THE SIZE OF THE JOB IN HAND.

NEW GUINEA IS THE WORLD'S SECOND LARGEST ISLAND, WITH AN AREA ROUGHLY EQUAL TO THAT OF TEXAS AND OKLAHOMA COMBINED. IT IS DIVIDED INTO THREE PARTS, PAPUA IN THE SOUTHEAST, A TERRITORY OF THE AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH; NORTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA, FORMERLY GERMAN BUT NOW AN AUSTRALIAN MANDATE, AND DUTCH NEW GUINEA, THE WESTERN HALF.

JAN 6 1943

WHEN THAT LAST JAPANESE CENTER OF RESISTANCE ON SANANADA POINT, AROUND WHICH THE AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICANS ARE REGROUPING FOR THE ATTACK, IS GONE THE UNITED NATIONS WILL HAVE RECOVERED PAPUA, WHICH ACCOUNTS FOR ABOUT TWO-FIFTHS THE TOTAL AREA.

THE JAPANSE REMAIN IN ALMOST COMPLETE CONTROL OF NORTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA, WHERE THEY HAVE BEEN ESTABLISHED NEARLY A YEAR AND HAVE BUILT FORMIDABLE BASES AT SALAMAUA AND LAE, SOME 150 MILES UP THE COAST FROM THE BUNA-GONA BATTLEFIELDS. THE ENEMY IN RECENT MONTHS ALSO HAS OCCUPIED ALL THE IMPORTANT TOWNS IN THE NORTHERN COASTAL FRINGE OF THE DUTCH TERRITORY. THE SOUTHERN HALF OF THE DUTCH SECTION REMAINS IN ALLIED HANDS. THE TWO PARTS ARE DIVIDED BY THE HIGHEST RANGE ON THE ISLAND, INCLUDING MOUNT CARSTENS, 16,404 FEET.

THE JAPANESE RECENTLY HAVE BEEN SHOWING INTEREST IN THIS SOUTHERN

HALF AND LAST WEEK BOMBED MERAUKE, ON THE SOUTH COAST 250 MILES WEST OF PORT MORESBY. TOKYO ASSERTED THAT THE ALLIES WERE BUILDING AN AIR BASE THERE AND THAT THE AIR ATTACKS PUT IT OUT OF COMMISSION. ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NONCOMMITTAL AS TO MERAUKE'S IMPORTANCE, REPORTED A RAID THERE LAST WEEK, BUT SAID LITTLE DAMAGE WAS DONE.

JAN 6 1943

LAE AND SALAMAUA ARE LIKELY TO BE MACARTHUR'S NEXT OBJECTIVES AND THEIR REDUCTION PROMISES TO BE A STILL TOUGHER JOB THAN THAT ALREADY DONE IN THE BUNA-GONA REGION. LAE WAS GIVEN A THOROUGH GOING OVER BY ALLIED ATTACK PLANES AND MEDIUM BOMBERS ONLY YESTERDAY, PART OF A PROG WHICH IS SUBJECTING THE TWO NEW GUINEA PORTS AND RABAUL ON THE NEARBY ISLAND OF NEW BRITAIN TO ALMOST DAILY DRUBBINGS. RABAUL, WHICH THE JAPANESE HAVE CONVERTED INTO THEIR MAIN AIR AND SEA BASE FOR THE WHOLE NEW GUINEA-SOLOMONS ISLANDS AREA, LOGICALLY WOULD COME AFTER LAE AND SALAMAUA, THE BIG PRIZE OF THE WHOLE FARFLUNG AMPHIBIOUS CAMPAIGN IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

THE PRESS IN AUSTRALIA, WHERE THERE IS RENEWED INSISTENCE THAT UNITED NATIONS LEADERSHIP HAS OVERDONE THE BEAT HITLER FIRST POLICY, IS CALLING FOR AN IMMEDIATE AND VIGOROUS FOLLOW UP TO THE PROSPECTIVE RECOVERY OF PAPUA. "THE ALLIED FRONT IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC IS NOT YET SECURE AND CAN NOT BE SECURE UNTIL RABAUL IS BACK IN ALLIED HANDS," SAYS THE MELBOURNE HERALD. "BUT THE CAMPAIGNS IN NEW GUINEA AND THE SOLOMONS HAVE AT LEAST BEATEN BACK THE JAPANESE THREAT AND FRUSTRATED THEIR ATTEMPT TO SECURE THE CONTINENT OF ASIA BY ISOLATING AUSTRALIA AS A GREAT ALLIED BASE AND BY DISRUPTING AUSTRALIA AMERICAN COMMUNICATIONS IN THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC."

JAN 6 1943

IN RELATION TO THE OBJECTIVES BEYOND THE BUNA OPERATION IS A SMALL ONE. ITS MOST IMPORTANT GAINS HAVE BEEN MEASURED IN HUNDREDS OF YARDS AND ITS BLOODIEST BATTLES FOUGHT BY COMPANIES OR PLATOONS. BUT ITS PLACE IN THE HISTORY OF THIS WAR IS LIKELY TO RESEMBLE THAT OF BELLEAU WOOD IN THE LAST ONE. ON THE BUNA-GONA SECTOR AND ON GUADAL-CANAL THE AMERICANS AND AUSTRALIANS BEGAN THE RECOVERY OF VITAL TERRITORY AND THEY ARE PROVING THEIR ABILITY TO ROOT OUT A FANATICAL ENEMY FROM HIS MOST DIFFICULT FOOTHOLDS.

THE PROCESS MAY HAVE TO BE REPEATED SCORES OF TIMES UP THROUGH THE ARCHIPELAGOES IN WHICH ALLIED UNREADINESS ENABLED THE JAPANESE TO ESTABLISH THEMSELVES IN ONLY A FEW WEEKS. THE JAPANESE GAME IS TO MAKE EACH BEACHHEAD A BUNA, EXACTING THE MAXIMUM POSSIBLE PRICE IN TIME AND LIVES FOR EACH ONE YIELDED. IT REMAINS TO BE SEEN HOW OFTEN EVEN THE FATALISTIC, FANATICAL JAPANESE CAN REPEAT THE EXPERIENCE OF THAT LIMITED BUT TERRIBLE NEW GUINEA BATTLEFIELD.

UNDATED MERAUKE

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JAN 6 1943

ANOTHER FAR OFF AND OBSCURE SETTLEMENT HAS COME INTO THE WAR NEWS WITH BOTH ALLIED AND JAPANESE COMMUNIQUES REPORTING ATTACKS LAST WEEK BY JAPANESE BOMBERS ON MERAUKE, IN SOUTH NEW GUINEA. THE JAPANESE SAID THE ALLIES WERE ESTABLISHING AN AIR BASE THERE.

WHAT PURPOSE THE ALLIES WOULD HAVE IN DEVELOPING THIS LONELY OUTPOST OR TO WHAT DEGREE THEY HAVE MADE IT A BASE IS NOT CLEAR. OUTSIDE THE IMMEDIATE ZONE OF OPERATIONS LITTLE HAS BEEN MADE KNOWN BEYOND THE COMMUNIQUE REFERENCES TO IT.

IT IS THE ONLY SETTLEMENT IN THE WHOLE AREA AND BEFORE THE WAR DUTCH VESSELS WOULD PUSH A FEW MILES UP THE MERAUKE RIVER TO DOCK THERE AND PICK UP COPRA AND OTHER CARGO. VIRTUALLY ITS ONLY INHABITANTS WERE A DUTCH RESIDENT OFFICIAL, THE MEN OF A SMALL GARRISON, THE STAFFS

OF A HOSPITAL AND A CATHOLIC MISSION CHURCH, THE OPERATORS OF A WIRELESS STATION AND A FEW CHINESE STOREKEEPERS.

MERAUKE MIGHT BE VALUABLE AS A BASE GUARDING THE NORTHERN SHORES OF THE ARAFURA SEA, THE WESTERN APPROACH TO THE TORRES STRAIT AND CAPE YORK. IT MIGHT ALSO BE USED TO OPPOSE ANY JAPANESE ATTEMPT TO EXTEND THEIR HOLDINGS IN DUTCH NEW GUINEA, NOW CONFINED TO THE NORTHERN COAST SUCH AN ATTEMPT PROBABLY WOULD BE MADE BY SEA SINCE THE ISLAND'S HIGHEST MOUNTAINS DIVIDE THE NORTHERN AND SOUTHERN SECTIONS.

RUSSIANS MOVE ON ROSTOV, RECAPTURE 21 MORE TOWNS; BRITISH WIN TUNISIAN HEIGHT

FIVE-DAY LOSSES OF NAZIS REPORTED AT 26,500 TROOPS

Town of Marinsk, 92 Miles from Rostov, Falls to Reds.

ENEMY IN FULL FLIGHT

Soviet Forces Capture Great Stores of Equipment as Germans Retreat.

LONDON, Thursday, Jan. 7 — (AP) — Russia announced the capture of 21 towns and two more railway stations yesterday in the middle Don and Caucasus offensives and said that these drives have cost the Nazis more than 330,-150 dead and captured since Nov. 19.

Two communiques as broadcast by Moscow and heard by the Soviet monitor here listed one town as Marinsk, which may be a town of that name of the lower Don about 25 miles west of Tsimlyansk, which the Russians said fell to their armies on Tuesday.

92 Miles From Rostov

Marinsk is about 92 miles from Rostov, Caucasian gateway whose fall would trap hundreds of thousands of German troops in the Caucasus.

Another town was listed as Krem-Konstantinovskaya, which the Soviet monitor here did not locate. The monitor first announced it uncorrectly as Konstantinovsk. There is a city of that name 60 miles beyond Tsimlyansk and only about 65 miles short of Rostov — the key Nazi communication point whose seizure would trap huge German forces in the Caucasus.

Many of the newly-won points were in the Nalchik-Prokhladnenski sector deep in the Caucasus where the Germans were reported retreating hastily northwestward toward Rostov lest they be trapped by the Russian columns striking westward from Stalingrad and southward along the Moscow-Rostov railway in the Middle Don area.

26,500 Nazis Slain

The capture of these cities was reported in the regular midnight communique. Before it was issued a special communique said that 26,-500 German had been killed or captured from Jan. 1 to Jan. 5 on the Stalingrad front, and the regular bulletin added approximately 1,050 more Nazi casualties during yesterday's operations to that figure.

The Russians admitted the Germans were counter - attacking heavily in the middle Don and southwest of Stalingrad, but did not acknowledge any sustained resistance in the Caucasus battle zone some 360 miles southeast of Rostov. This bolstered the belief of British military quarters that the Germans were withdrawing in that area without putting up any organized fight there.

The tremendous quantities of captured equipment listed by the Russians in the action southwest of Stalingrad was seen as further evidence of a Nazi withdrawal so precipitate that huge dumps of valuable stores fell intact into Russian hands.

Red army troops were "conducting engagements for the annihilation of an encircled enemy garrison" on the middle Don front, the midnight communique said.

This phrase has been used for several days by the Russians to describe action apparently along the Moscow-Rostov railway in the Millerovo area. The Russian columns pushing southward there have met heavy resistance from fresh German reserves thrown into the struggle.

One Russian tank unit was said to have driven the Germans from an unidentified town, killing 300 Nazis and capturing much equipment.

Enemy Trenches Overrun

West of Stalingrad, presumably in the Don-Volga river pocket where the Russians are trying to annihilate the remnains of 22 Nazi divisions which they say they have encircled there, the communique acknowledged "stubborn resistance" but said Soviet troops had advanced to overrun a series of enemy trenches. Approximately 400 Germans were killed in this battle, the communique said, and Red airmen destroyed three grounded Nazi transport planes and shot down nine other aircraft in combat.

Heavy losses were reported inflicted on enemy troops south and southwest of Stalingrad where the Russians also said their advance was continuing and had overrun several populated places.

Inside Stalingrad itself Russian shock troops were reported to have stormed and destroyed 23 more enemy dugouts along with their garrisons.

On the central front Russian troops were still consolidating newly-won positions, and beating off counterattacks southwest of captured Velikie Luki, Moscow said. The Nazis were said to have lost three tanks and 150 men in one unsuccessful two-hour assault on Russian lines.

In the Caucasus the Russians told of the continued occupation of populated points, and the seizure of a quantity of equipment, but mentioned only one specific engagement in which 200 Germans were killed.

Nazis in Full Flight

Moscow's army newspaper Red Star said the Germans were in full flight in the central Caucasus because heavy blows southwest of Stalingrad and in the middle Don area were threatening their rear communication pivot and base at Rostov.

In a special bulletin Jan. 1 the Russians announced the Red army had killed 175,000 Nazis and captured 137,650 since Nov. 19 on the Stalingrad front which includes part of the Don river bend.

Tonight's communique spoke of fresh casualties inflicted south and southwest of Stalingrad — 20,000 Germans killed and 6,500 captured from Jan. 1 to Jan. 5.

Since Nov. 19 the Russians said they had destroyed in this area 85 planes, 118 tanks, 122 guns, 787 machineguns, 570 trucks carrying troops and equipment, 432 railway wagons and other material.

Middle Don Thrusts Threaten Hitlerites

By Henry C. Cassidy

Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Jan. 6.—The Germans in the central Caucasus, reported in full retreat under powerful Soviet pressure, were increasingly menaced at their rear tonight by Russian offensives smashing down toward Rostov from the area of the middle Don.

These great looping thrusts, the Soviet command announced in its midday communique, had overrun several more towns and villages, beating down Nazi counterattacks beyond the strong recaptured German position of Tsimlyansk, itself about 125 miles short of Rostov.

In the central Caucasus, the German army that had spent so much in blood and machines in groping vainly last autumn for the lower Caucasian oil, was now abandoning in days what it took months to win, blowing up the bridges and and mining the roads in the effort to hold back the pursuing Russians.

The retreat had begun from the eastern end of the Caucasus, where the invader's lines had been broken by Russian reoccupation of Mozdok, then Nalchik and Prokhladnenski. Where and when it would end, where the Germans would be able to make a new stand, was not yet clear; but already they had left the gateways leading to the oil fields of Grozny and across the mountains to the oil port of Baku.

From the western Caucasus, the day brought no word of activity. There the Germans long had been locked in about Tuapse and Novorossisk along the Black Sea. Apparently they were trying to hold that line in accordance with their usual tactics of clinging to advanced positions to the last possible moment, despite the risk of encirclement.

The whole of the Caucasian province of North Osetia, lying between Ordzhonikidze and Nalchik, was said by the military press to have been regained.

REDS GAIN IN DON SECTOR

Soviet Forces Sweep Onward in Swift Pursuit of Foe—Advance Above Rostov.

Moscow, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—The German Army was reported in full retreat in the Caucasus today, blowing up bridges and mining roads in a desperate effort to check the surging advance of Russian forces driving hard at its heels.

Red Star, organ of the Soviet Army, said Russian forces, which already had stormed and won the important towns of Mozdok, Nalchik, Prokhladnenski, Kotlyarevskaya and Maiskoye, continued their sweeping advance along a wide front, winning back a large number of additional towns.

[A British broadcast, recorded in New York by CBS quoted the Finnish radio as saying: "It is admitted in Berlin that the Russians are all the time attacking and that they have had outstanding successes during the last few days."]

The entire province of North Osetia, lying between Ordzhonikidze and Nalchik, had been won back under the Red banner by Soviet forces operating along the west bank of the Terek River, while other Russian troops rolled the Germans back to the north, Red Star asserted.

JAN 7 1943

Reds Gain on Lower Don.

To the north, along the lower Don, the Russians were reported fighting forward after overrunning the important Nazi bridgehead town of Tsimlyansk and thus driving a second spearhead within 125 miles of Rostov, whose fall might doom the entire German force in the Caucasus.

The first spearhead was thrust earlier southwest of Kamensk to a point about 100 miles northwest of Rostov.

[Reuters, British news agency, estimated in London that more than a half-million of Adolf Hitler's finest troops were in full retreat in the Caucasus and the middle Don.]

Red Star said the main line of German fortifications at the eastern end of the Caucasus front was shattered Monday when the Russians stormed the approaches to Nalchik and occupied the city after a terrific street battle.

Soviet troops were said to have pursued the Germans northward from this sector across a western branch of the Terek River. In a twelve-mile final thrust yesterday, Red Star said, the Russians drove into and captured the town of Prokhladnenski, thirty miles northeast of Nalchik.

Don Cossacks Charge Nazis.

Prokhladnenski is the juncture where the trunk line Caucasus railroad from Rostov to the Baku oil fields meets a branch line running south to Ordzhonikidze.

Still other forces rolled the Germans back to the west at an accelerated rate, with tanks and infantry overwhelming enemy centers of resistance, the Army newspaper reported.

Don Cossack guardists, swinging their sabers in mounted action and then dismounting for action with modern automatic weapons, were reported playing an epic part in the Caucasus campaign. Izvestia, the Government newspaper, said the cavalry raided German flanks, slashed through to the rear and stormed enemy defenses in attacks leading to the recapture of Mozdok on Monday. Izvestia said the Germans hurled tanks against the horsemen, but the Cossacks withstood the counter-attacks, outmaneuvered the heavy machine guns and charged on over the Nazi positions.

11,000 Nazis Slain in Caucasus.

The fall of Tsimlyansk was announced in a trimphant special Russian communique which declared that five other important towns on the lower Don and the Caucasus fronts had been won back under the Red banner. The Germans were said to have lost more than 11,000 men in the Caucasus between December 24 and January 4.

Reported recaptured, along with strategically important Tsimlyansk, were the nearby rail juncture of Morozovskaya, great Russian champagne producing center, and the Caucasus towns of Nalchik, Prokhladnenski, Kotlyarevskaya and Maiskoye, where the Germans were rolled steadily back from their deepest gains toward the Grozny oilfields and the mountain passes to Ordzhonikidze and the south.

Nalchik was the last major objective taken by the Germans in their 1942 drive for Caucasian oil. They approached the city October 28 and occupied it November 2. From there they attempted a push southeast toward Ordzhonikidze, starting point of the military highway to Tiflis, but were halted in the foothills.

Fall of Tsimlyansk Depicted.

It took their offensive two months to move from Prokhladnenski to Nalchik—the distance covered by the Red Army counter-offensive Monday and Tuesday.

Tsimlyansk, stronghold on the lower Don, was taken yesterday after a fierce two-day battle, Izvestia reported. It said the German garrison which was surrounded and crushed represented a large, wellequipped force. First, the Government newspaper reported, the German defenses were battered by artillery fire, then tanks and infantry charged in from all sides. Izvestia said the Germans tried to flee as their last defenses then crumbled before the onslaught, but many were captured.

More Towns Fall; Russians Press On Along Wide Front

Half Million Germans Reported in Full Retreat

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Surging Red Armies in the Caucasus and in the Middle Don have driven their spearheads farther on the roads to Rostov today with the capture of Nalchik in the Caucasus, Tsimlyansk in the Middle Don, and four other cities vital to the strategy of the Soviet campaign, the Russians announced.

Reuters, British news agency, estimated that more than a half million of Hitler's finest troops are in full retreat before the Soviet armies' drives in the Middle Don and the Caucasus.

In the Nalchik area, the Russians stormed into the railway junction of Prokhladnenski and also captured the railway center of Kotlyarevskaya and the town of Maiskoye, the Moscow radio said.

Near Tsimlyansk, on the north bank of the Lower Don River loop, the railway junction of Morozovskaya was reported captured.

A special war bulletin and the regular midnight communique, both broadcast from Moscow, told of the seizure of the six towns. Both war reports were recorded by the Soviet Monitor here.

More Towns Captured.

The Soviet midday communique, similarly broadcast and recorded by the Soviet Monitor, reported more towns captured during the night in the Caucasus and the Middle Don fighting, but did not identify them.

"Our troops continued their successful offensive and captured several populated places," it said of the Caucasus battle, listing more than 300 Germans captured along with 26 tanks, a four-engined plane and other war materiel in two days of the drive.

"In the area of the Middle Don our troops occupied several populated places. One formation in engagements with the enemy wiped out about one battalion of enemy infantry and destroyed three tanks. • • • More than 100 prisoners were taken.

"In another sector, an enemy tank and infantry attack which was endeavoring to reach a German garrison encircled by Soviet troops was beaten off. One hundred and eighty Hitlerites killed and six tanks destroyed."

South and southwest of Stalingrad the Germans were said to be sending fresh reinforcements against the Russians in counterattacks which the Russians wryly said "inevitably fail."

400 Hitlerites Wiped Out.

One unit wielded anti-tank rifles against a sortie of 14 enemy tanks, set fire to five and forced the others to flee, the war bulletin reported.

"Men of X unit, in fighting for a populated place, wiped out more than 400 Hitlerites," the Soviet reports said.

The midday communique omitted any mention of the central front west of Moscow—the Rzhev-Veliki Luki-Vyazma triangle—but, in telling of fighting that continues in and about Stalingrad, it defined one sector as "west of Stalingrad," a designation new to the Russian communiques.

There, it said, "in fighting for a height, our troops occupied several dozen more enemy trenches. The enemy left more than 200 dead on the battlefield and prisoners and war material were captured."

Stubborn Fighting.

Nalchik was taken in a night attack after stubborn fighting at its approaches, the Russians reported.

"The Germans had girdled the town with powerful fortification works and mined all the approaches," one war bulletin said. "Our troops, supported by artillery and tanks, overcame all obstacles. In the night they penetrated into the town and in a decisive attack captured it. At the approaches to Nalchik and in the streets of the town the enemy left hundreds of killed officers and men."

Prokhladnenski was taken by storm apparently in a push from Mozdok, previously captured. The thrusts at once cleared out the most pronounced menaces to the Grozny oil fields, and perhaps started the Germans on a withdrawal toward Rostov, 310 miles to the northwest.

British military observers offered the opinion that the absence of organized German resistance chiefly accounted for the rapid Russian advance through the hills. Previously some British had said they foresaw an Axis retreat of as much as 200 miles to draw up defenses for Rostov along the Kuban River, in an attempt to avert the entrapment of the entire Axis army east of Rostov.

Position Penetrated.

Little was said in the Russian night communique of the drives toward Salsk, about 100 miles southeast of Rostov, but the war bulletin reported that in the area southwest of Stalingrad the Soviet troops, after fierce fighting, penetraed an advantageous position which they said the Germans had attempted to hold at any cost.

The armies of the Middle Don might effect a junction at the railway center of Likhaya, about 75 miles north of Rostov, it was believed here.

One army is moving down from the north, where it has by-passed Millerovo, but little specific mention has been made of its advances in recent communiques.

Another army is the one which now holds Tsimlyansk and Morozovskaya.

Tsimlyansk was the point where the Germans established the bridgehead last summer through which they poured troops into Kotelnikovski and toward Stalingrad.

Threaten Pincers Action.

Spurs of the armies north and east of Likhaya also threaten a pincers action which would close another trap on Axis troops east of the area.

The North Caucasus fighting has taken a toll of more than 11,000 German troops from December 24 to January 4, the Russians announced, and has yielded a vast store of tanks, planes, trucks and guns captured or destroyed.

The capture of units of a German airborne division, including a regiment commander, in the Middle Don area was announced by the Russians.

Berlin Reports Lines Holding

BERLIN (From German broadcasts), Jan. 6 (AP).—The German high command asserted today that yesterday "heavy defensive fighting continued with unabated fury in the Don area."

It said the Russian attacks were repulsed and the Red Army suffered heavy losses, including fifty-six tanks. Some of these, it said, were knocked out when German forces counter-attacked.

"Enemy attacks against Velikie Luki and southeast of Lake Ilmen were repulsed," the communique added.

[The Russians announced the capture of Velikie Luki, important base and communications hub on the front west of Moscow, last Friday. The German high command has not admitted the loss of the city.]

4 Nazi Fighters and Dive Bomber Shot Down—Fortresses Blast Sfax at Sfax.

JAN 7 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—Allied forces have captured Djebel Azzag and other points in the vicinity as part of attacks in which British troops have driven the enemy from strategic hills fifteen miles west of Mateur, Allied headquarters announced today.

The newly won positions were not named immediately and the communique did not describe them.

"Our forces are mopping up isolated machine-gun posts and have repulsed a counter-attack against one of our newly-won positions," the communique added.

Mateur is twenty miles southwest of the Tunisian naval base of Bizerte.

The attack was supported by R. A. F. Hurricane bombers and fighters, and an R. A. F. spokesman announced that during yesterday four Nazi Focke-Wulf 190 fighters and one JU-87 dive-bomber were shot down for the loss of one British plane.

Flying Fortresses—U. S. four-motored B-17 bombers—raiding the enemy port of Sfax, were said to have scored hits on or near a cruiser leaving the harbor and to have left the power station in flames. American medium B-26 Marauder bombers also attacked a Nazi airdrome at Kairouan, about thirty-six miles southwest of the east coast port of Sousse.

[United States and British communiques in Cairo disclosed that Sousse itself also was hit. An American communique said that United States heavy bombers made the raid and unloaded all their bombs "within the target." The British, apparently referring to the same attacks, said that hits were scored on docks and buildings. There was nothing to report from the pursuit of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in Libya and the communique said that there were no important air operations yesterday on the Libyan front.]

JAN 8 1943

New U. S. Army Activated.

Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark, the tall, 46-year-old American officer who made a daring landing on the hostile shore of North Africa from a submarine for a secret meeting with French officers before the Allied occupation, has been placed in command of the newly activated United States Fifth Army, now preparing with its British and French Allies to drive Axis forces from Tunisia.

The announcement that Gen. Clark, formerly deputy commander in chief to Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in North Africa, had assumed his command came as most of the long Tunisian front lay quiet in the mud and winter rains.

[A Reuters dispatch from the Tunisian front said that crack troops of the British First Army, including Commandos and parachutists, had driven the Germans from a strong position in the hills a few miles west of Mateur, about twenty miles southwest of Bizerte.

[The British troops fought three hours on the bare, rain-drenched mountainside against some of the best German troops who had been consolidating their positions for weeks, the dispatch said. Strong air and artillery support aided the British in the difficult action, which apparently took place Monday or yesterday, it was reported.]

Canadians in North Africa.

As the United States Fifth Army came into being under Gen. Clark, it was learned that a detachment of Canadian officers and non-commissioned officers had arrived in North Africa to gain battle experience with the British First Army under Lieut.-Gen. K. A. N. Anderson.

The Canadians, representing almost all Army branches, will go into the battle line as regular reinforcements to British regiments and later will return to England to pass on their experience of battle conditions to their own units.

An Allied communique reported that a German tank force which attacked French positions in the Fondouk area, fifty miles southwest of Sousse in central Tunisia, Sunday, was roughly treated both by the French, using American anti-tank guns, and the United States Air Force. The Germans were forced to retire after losing between twelve and fifteen tanks, the communique said. The French were reported holding a commanding hill south of Fondouk, while the Axis forces regrouped three miles to the east.

[The announcement of the activation of the United States Fifth Army indicates that a force of at least two or three divisions has been organized and made ready to take its place besides the British First Army and the French forces fighting in Tunisia as an independent entity. American troops have of course been engaged in the fight since the beginning of the occupation.]

Capture Jebel Azzag in Attack on Enemy-Held Hills.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 6 — (AP) Veteran British First army troops captured Jebel Azzag and nearby points in an attack launched yesterday to drive the Axis enemy from high ground dominating Allied positions along a road about 15 miles west of Mateur, the Allied command announced tonight.

It was the first real fighting in two weeks in north Tunisia.

"Successful attacks were made on hills north of the road and we captured Jebel Azzag and other points in the vicinity," the Allied command communique announced.

"Our forces are mopping up isolated machine-gun posts and have repulsed a counter-attack against one of our newly-won positions."

Axis Cruiser Bombed

In the air, a headquarters spokesman said, Fortress bombers scored hits or near misses on a cruiser leaving the Tunisian harbor of Sfax and left the Sfax power station in flames.

(The British and Americans were pounding the Axis with relentless energy from both ends of the Mediterranean, reports showed.

(The Admiralty announced in London that British submarines had destroyed a large enemy troop transport and supply ship; hit and probably sunk two other vessels in the Mediterranean and bombarded the Italian and Axis-occupied Greek coasts.

(The British and Americans announced in Cairo that their bombers blasted the Tunisian port of Sousse yesterday. The Americans said their heavy bombers put all their explosives within the target in a daylight raid and bursts were observed on the commercial phosphate and southern quays. The British merely announced that hits were scored on quays and buildings.)

Mateur is 25 miles southwest of the naval base of Bizerete.

(Reuters, British news agency, said that a British force of Commandos and parachutists won the battle over some of the best German troops in a three-hour fight.)

R.A.F. Hurricane bombers and fighters supported the British on the ground. An R.A.F. spokesman said that in battles yesterday four German Focke-Wulf 190 fighters and one Junkers 87 dive bomber were downed at the cost of one plane.

In addition to the Fortress attack on Sfax, American Marauder bombers struck at a Nazi airdrome at Kairouan, about 36 miles southwest of Sousse.

JAN 7 1943

No News From Libya.

Although the Cairo communiques of the R.A.F. and the American headquarters told of air action in support of the Allies in Tunisia, there was nothing to report from the land forces pursuing Nazi Marshal Rommel in Libya.

The Germans merely announced fighting on a minor scale in North Africa with air engagements in which three enemy planes were shot down while the Italians declared fighter bombers had "effectively bombed" the harbors and warehouses of Algiers, Bougie and Philippeville.

The British Admiralty's communique announcing its new submarine successes said the big troops transport was encountered off Sicily while bound toward Africa. Despite a heavy escort, she was said to have been hit by three torpedoes and sunk.

The communique also said a submarine scored a "large number of hits" in a bombardment of a brick railroad viaduct near Palinuro, Italy, 80 miles southeast of Naples, and had inflicted considerable damage.

Another British submarine was said to have shelled harbor installations in the Greek port of Kyme, on the Aegean sea, on the east coast of Greece.

Rome's Report on Africa.

Rome (From Italian Broadcasts) Jan. 6 (A. P.).—Intense reconnaissance activity on the Tunisian front was reported today by the Italian High Command. It said that on the Libyan front "there is nothing new to report."

The communique listed nine guns, several machine guns and some infantry weapons among the booty captured in Tunisia and said that thirty Allied vehicles were destroyed on that front.

Allied bombers attacked Kairouan, about thirty-six miles southwest of Sousse, and Axis planes bombed the Allied ports of Algiers, Bougie and Philippeville, Algeria, it was said.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 6—British troops have driven the enemy from strategic hills fifteen miles west of Mateur and now are mopping up in the first activity on the northern Tunisian front in some time, an official spokesman announced today.

Commando Tactics Used By U. S. Patrols in Africa

Men Reconnoiter by Night, Hide From Foe During Day

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN TUNISIA, Jan. 5 (delayed) (AP)—American Scouts led by a former Missouri Valley tennis champion are playing an important role in keeping Allied eyes—and pressure—on the Axis forces.

"It certainly is great training for a leg man," said twenty-six-year-old Lieutenant Mark T. Martin jr., a former St. Louis reporter and assistant telegraph editor of "The Des Moines Register-Tribune," who comes from Hoe Hill, Elkhorn, Neb.

The patrols include thirty men who reconnoiter by night and dig in by day to escape observation. "We are lucky if we get two hours sleep out of twenty-four," Martin said.

Although casualties have been comparatively heavy, as expected in these dangerous, commando-type operations, the spirit of the men is high and they are anxious to take on more risky assignments, Martin said.

Among the commando-type Americans who distinguished themselves in the campaign are Sergeant Marvin Anderson, of Minneapolis, the first American soldier to enter Algiers, and Swiss-born Corporal Frank Sargent, twenty-five years old, of 42-02 Layton Street, Elmhurst, L. I.

Sargent acts as interpreter for the unit, for he speaks English, German, French and Spanish. "I also know a little Czech and enough Arabic to get the hill Arabs to sell us eggs occasionally," he said.

U. S. Sergeant of Sioux Descent Notches Garand Rifle 10 Times

Kenneth Scissons of South Dakota Stalks Nazis in Tunisia as Well as His Indian Grandfather Tracked Palefaces.

By Harold V. Boyle

[Associated Press Correspondent]

With United States Forces in Tunisia, Jan. 6—The leading scorer in the race by Commando-trained American soldiers to see who can kill the most Germans is a young South Dakota lumber-mill worker of Sioux Indian descent, who has ten notches on his Garand rifle and whose big worry is that he may be bitten by an African centipede.

Sergt. Kenneth Scissons, of Rapid City, S. D., now is engaged in patrol work in what he calls the "Sissy Size" Tunisian hills, and he's doing as good a job as could his trail-wise Indian granddaddy.

Score Made In Four Minutes

His record string was chalked up in less than four minutes last month during a sortie by British-trained units near Bizerte.

This daring engagement behind enemy lines was one of the bloodiest in which American troops, trained in the hit-and-run tactics of the British Commandos, have yet participated.

JAN 7 1943

Scissons is quarter Indian, quarter English and half Norwegian.

Before dawn, he and others of his unit were on the coast so close to Bizerte they could make out the airport. The object was chiefly to harass the enemy behind his own lines and in this the men certainly succeeded.

After reaching their objective following an all-night fifteen-mile march, Scissons and some others were ambushed by the Germans in a hilly area.

"They pinned us down with Tommygun fire from a ridge," the sergeant said. "I told our leader our only chance would be for some of us to go around the hill and clean them out. I volunteered to take my subsection.

"The only way to get up was to follow the creek bed for 150 yards, but we had to run through open country to reach it. I didn't stop to look behind but when we reached the creek bed only five of our original twelve were left.

Decide To Withdraw

"We got halfway up when we ran into more tommygun fire and lost another man. As we were then too few to hope to take the ridge, we decided to withdraw. We thought the best plan was for two of us to make a break for safety while the others protected with covering fire as well as possible.

"Guy Wright, of Henryetta, Okla., and I stayed behind when our other two fellows started back down the hill, hitting the ground about every ten feet like jackrabbits. Some Arabs, or Germans dressed like Arabs, shouted and began popping. Hidden German soldiers then raised up to fire.

JAN 7 1943

"That was the first good glimpse of them we got and we really went to town on them. Wright, whose buddy had been killed only a few minutes before, threw a hand grenade at the nearest German. It landed right at his feet and he went in a dozen different directions at once.

"I had begun to clear off our section of the ridge. It was like popping off squirrels, only I was never able to get anywhere near that many squirrels in anything like that time. You can't fool ten squirrels in four minutes.

Foe Just Too Stubborn

"That M-1 (the Garand) is one grand rifle. Boy, it's perfect. Every time I pulled the trigger, over went a German. We were behind a knoll. They couldn't see us and they were just too damn stubborn to quit trying to get our boys.

"The Germans were about 150 yards away, except for the one that Wright picked off with his grenade. The whole thing was over in less than four minutes and you know they never even scratched our decoys.

Hid Under Rock Shelf

"We met the other two fellows at the bottom of the hill and decided to beat it back to headquarters. The whole country was swarming with groups of Germans. Only a short distance away we ran into more fire and escaped by crawling under a rock shelf, where we laid for seven and a half hours until darkness, when we got out and managed to join up with a British Commando unit.

"We patroled with it for four more days and eventually returned to our lines after five days in enemy territory.

Lost Photos Of Wife, Child

"I had lost everything but the shirt on my back, but I missed most the pictures of my wife and 3-year-old daughter Ruth."

Scissions, who is tall and dark-skinned, with black hair and a black mustache, said "I have fished and hunted all my life in the Black Hills and I feel I owe my life to the knowledge of woodcraft I learned there as a boy.

He was educated in Indian schools in Rapid City, and in Denoa, Neb., and in the high school at Rapid City.

He Likes Patrol Work

Despite the hardships and freezing cold, which was unalleviated by even a single blanket because of the need to travel light, Scissons said he enjoyed patrol work in the hills which are much less rugged than his native Black Hills.

He added: "I feel much safer on patrol than in a billet in town. You're not a bomb target. The only thing I don't like about it is these centipedes. I have seen more centipedes than Germans."

Dakar Aid Repledged

Boisson For Union

By the Associated Press

London, Jan. 6.—The Governor General of French West Africa, Pierre Boisson of once-suspect Dakar, has given assurance that there would be no recession of his support to the Allies and that he favors alliance of the Giraud forces with the Fighting French, who attacked his capital with British support in 1940.

Boisson's new pledge of support to the United Nations, including the use of his fleet, air and sea ports and his superb Senegalese soldiers, as fast as they can be armed, coincided with the arrival in Dakar of Gen. Henri Honore Giraud on an inspection tour of several days.

In Favor of Rapprochement

As to the question of union with the Fighting French of Gen. Charles De Gaulle, who were beaten off in their 1940 attack on Dakar, Boisson said:

"In the highest interests of France, I consider a rapprochement to be most desirable. However, the problem is not limited only to West Africa. It rests upon General Giraud to treat it in its entirety."

The statement was given in an interview at Dakar to the Associated Press correspondent, Joseph Morton, who was assured by Boisson that French West Africa never had served the Axis, as long had been rumored.

"There never has been a single Axis submarine to enter the port or refuel off Dakar," Boisson said. "There never has been a German or Italian commission here."

Fleet at Allies' Disposal

At the Algerian headquarters of General Giraud's high commission, an authoritative source said—apparently on Boisson's assurances to Giraud—that the French fleet at Dakar would continue at the disposal of the Allies and manned by French sailors despite the assassination of Admiral Jean Darlan.

General Giraud arrived at Dakar by plane with his staff to confer with Boisson and the United States mission of Vice Admiral William A. Glassford, jr., to inspect military and naval works. They paid the usual tribute to the Senegalese who died in the last war.

Giraud still has not offered to take up De Gaulle's invitation for a meeting on French African soil, but one source who should know said the union was distinctly possible.

"It is a question of method rather than of principle," he said.

Boisson Regards Agreement With De Gaulle Up to Giraud

By JOSEPH MORTON.
Associated Press War Correspondent.

DAKAR, Jan. 5 (Delayed).—Gov. Gen. Pierre Boisson of French West Africa said today he considered an agreement with the Fighting French of Gen. Charles de Gaulle "most desirable," but that the problem should be handled "in its entirety" by Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, high commissioner of French North and West Africa.

M. Boisson, who ordered resistance to the attack on Dakar by the British and the Fighting French in September, 1940, and remained an unyielding adversary of the De Gaullists until the Allied occupation of North Africa, stated his position in the first interview he has granted an American newspaperman.

"In the highest interests of France I consider a rapprochement to be most desirable," he said. "However, the problem is not limited only to West Africa. It rests upon Gen. Giraud to treat it in its entirety."

Congenial, Pleasant Man.

The Governor General wiped away with his first hearty chuckle a mental picture based on published stories of a grim-visaged despot who governed French West Africa with an iron hand.

I found instead a congenial man, slightly nervous, but pleasant in every respect. He made an effort to hide his amusement on being confronted with the three questions about Dakar raised over and over again in the last two years.

The first question concerned the story that if the attack on Dakar in 1940 had lasted another hour the city would have been forced to surrender.

"I don't believe so," M. Boisson said. "It is true that we were rather low on ammunition when the attack ceased, but nevertheless we could have held out for some time."

Asked if any Axis submarines ever had entered the port of Dakar or received fuel and supplies off Dakar, he said: "There never has been a single Axis submarine enter the port or refuel off Dakar."

No Axis Commission Sent.

To the third question as to whether the Germans or Italians had ever sent an armistice commission to Dakar, Boisson replied: "There never has been a German or Italian commission here."

The governor-general volunteered the information that "superbly trained" West African troops already are being sent to North Africa and that the number sent into combat depended entirely on the arrival of materiel for them.

The man who resisted the Fighting French and the British spoke solemnly and with evident sincerity as he told of the desirability of uniting with them.

"We have made the decision," he said. "From the moment we decided to go into the war with the Allies we have had no ulterior motives. Once we put the signature on paper our decision was cut and dried."

Nazi General's Ouster In Tunisia Is Reported

LONDON, Thursday, Jan. 7.—(AP) A roundabout report reached London early today stating that the German army commander in Tunisia, Gen. Walther Nehring, has been replaced.

A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm quoted the Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Svenska Dagbladet as saying that General von Arnim had been appointed German commander-in-chief in Tunisia in place of Gen. Nehring.

The report was without immediate confirmation elsewhere.

Gen. von Arnim is relatviely little known outside Germany, although he has figured from time to time in German reports of the African campaign.

Gen. von arnim was described in the Reuters dispatch as a tank commander and "one of Hitler's favorites" who was promoted to the rank of colonel general recently.

Darlan Assassination Declared Not to Affect Pledge to Use Fleet

Authoritative Source Says Pro-Allied Military Effort Is Maintained

JAN 7 1943

By Lewis Gaulla Gibson,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

ALGIERS, Algeria, Jan. 6.—An authoritative source said today that the political complications following the death of Admiral Jean Darlan had made no change in the admiral's pledge to use the French fleet at Dakar with the United States and British Navies and had caused no slackening of pro-Allied French military effort.

"French sailors have been saddened by the admiral's death, but there has been no slackening of their morale and they are ready to take their ships to sea against the Axis when they are ordered, which will be as soon as possible," said the informant, whose identity may not be divulged.

Satisfied With De Gaulle Suggestion.

Persons in the confidence of Gen. Henri Giraud, high commissioner for French North and West Africa, expressed satisfaction with the suggestion of Gen. Charles de Gaulle for a meeting to unite pro-Allied Frenchmen under one banner and pointed out tht there were no differences between the two men, both of whom are fiercely anti-Nazi.

"It is a question of method rather than of principles," one source said.

Officially, the Giraud government has been silent on any plans for negotiations with the Fighting French. (Gen. De Gaulle sent his offer to meet Gen. Giraud on French soil on Christmas Day.)

(Gen. Giraud arrived in Dakar yesterday with an escort of 25 planes, the Dakar radio reported in a broadcast recorded in New York by the Federal Communications Commission.

(Crowds lined the road and cried "long live Giraud" and "long live France," the report added.)

French Left to Own Settlement.

French sources said the shadow of Marshal Petain lies heavily on the people of North Africa, who also have been subjected to two years of Nazi propaganda, and any premature move to open negotiations might increase public tension.

The United States and Britain seemed to have adopted a policy of leaving the French to settle their own political problems despite the arrival of Harold MacMillan as British Resident Minister for Allied headquarters, who has called on Gen. Giraud, and the presence of Robert Murphy, the United States Minister.

Observers regarded it as unlikely that either the Americans or the British would act as direct intermediary in any negotiations. Gen. Giraud, who dislikes political matters, is known to prefer to devote his time to forming a big French army to help drive the Germans from France and leave political problems to some one else.

TWO AXIS SHIPS SUNK BY BRITISH

JAN 7 1943

London, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—The Admiralty announced tonight that a large enemy troop transport and a supply ship had been destroyed and that two other ships had been hit and probably sunk by British submarines in the Mediterranean.

The big troop transport was encountered off Sicily while bound southward—toward Africa—with a heavy escort but she was hit by three torpedoes and sunk, the communique said. The communique said that a submarine also had scored "a large number of hits" in a bombardment of a brick railroad viaduct near Palinuro, Italy, eighty miles southeast of Naples, and had inflicted considerable damage.

Another, it said, shelled harbor installations in the enemy-occupied Greek port of Kyme. Kyme is in the Ægean Sea, on the eastern coast of Greece.

LEBRUN IN AFRICA?

London, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—Albert Lebrun, President of the French Republic until its fall, was reported by a Brazzaville broadcast to have arrived in North Africa, but unofficial though completely reliable quarters in London said today it was known definitely that this was not true.

The report of the Brazzaville radio, controlled by the Fighting French, was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission in the United States last night.

DUTCH HUMOR PLAGUES NAZIS

Germans Are Butts of Many Jests in Holland.

London, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—From beneath the iron heel of the Nazis, planted hard on little Holland, raucous gusts of irrepressible Dutch laughter and raillery are coming, according to Hollanders who recently have filtered through the German nets to England. Kidding the conqueror is the only real joy left in life for the Dutch, they said. The jokes are grim, but lusty.

On street cars, for example, the conductor collects fares after the passengers have come aboard. Then he surveys the whole car and, pointing at each passenger, he says, "I've got you—got you—got you," &c., in a regular rhythm.

If there is a German soldier aboard, the routine varies slightly. In the midst of all the "got yous," he comes to the German, points at him and murmurs aloud, "Some dark night I'm going to get you." The Germans never understand why the Dutch break into laughter and applause.

Joke on Dutch Nazis.

Dutch Nazis are the particular target of a Macabre joke. The wife of a Dutch Nazi—Smith, for example—receives a telephone call. The brief conversation runs:

"Hello, is this the Widow Smith?" The woman rightly answers, "No, this is Mrs. Smith."

"Oh!" comes the answer, "then I'll call back in about a week when you are the Widow Smith."

Just Propaganda.

Dutchmen howled with laughter over a story making the rounds when the Germans first came into Holland. At that time, the Nazis presumably were all ready to invade England.

A group of German soldiers stood on the low, sandy coast, peering across the Channel, unable to see land on the other side. Apparently, they had been told that the British coast was only a few thousand yards across the water.

They called a Dutch fisherman and asked him why England was invisible from there. He told them that the Channel was a hundred miles wide at that point.

They looked at him, with benevolent indulgence: "That's nothing but Jewish propaganda," they replied.

Gen. Giraud Given Hero's Welcome

By Joseph Morton

Dakar, Jan. 6 (AP).—This French West African capital, which once repulsed a fighting French-British attempt to seize it but now is on the Allied side, extended a noisy hero's welcome today to Gen. Henri Giraud, high commissioner for North and West Africa who once more is putting French armies in the field against the Axis.

"Long live Giraud" and "Long live America" were shouted as thousands of persons lined the streets to see General Giraud review the Dakar garrison, and, with Vice Admiral William A. Glassford, jr., head of the United States mission here, place wreaths on the monument to Senegalese troops who died in the First World War.

General Giraud arrived yesterday in a fighter-escorted bomber and was met at the airport by Vice Admiral Glassford and Gen. Pierre Boisson, governor general of French West Africa.

Air Marshal Killed

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Jan. 6—Air Vice-Marshal Wilfred McClaughry, commanding the Royal Air Force in Egypt, was among eleven persons killed Monday in an airplane crash, it was disclosed today.

Lady Tedder, wife of Air Marshal Sir Arthur Willian. Tedder, vice chief of staff of the RAF, was killed in the same crash. Her death was disclosed yesterday.

Chinese Kill 500, But Are Driven From Lihuang

JAN 1 1943

Chungking, Jan. 6 (AP).—Chinese forces have killed 500 Japanese soldiers in street fighting at Lihuang, western Anhwei Province, and have beaten back the enemy in other scattered action in the last four days, tonight's Chinese communique reported.

Japanese rushed reinforcements into Lihuang and the Chinese withdrew from the city, but continued to fight from the suburbs.

In another skirmish, a Japanese force was driven back after attacking Kingkou in the Canton area, the communique added. The enemy also was reported thrown back at Yuho in the southern Honan Province by a counterattacking Chinese force that at first had met stiff resistance.

Indian Newspapers Strike

100 Dailies and Weeklies Suspend for Day in Censorship Protest

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 6 (AP).—Nearly a hundred Indian daily and weekly newspapers went on a one-day strike today in protest against censorship of incidents growing out of disturbances last August, the all-India newspaper editors' conference said. There was an outbreak of violence at Chimar, in the central provinces, last August, and the protest is aimed at censorship of activities of the authorities in quelling it.

Newspapers in India Strike Over Censorship

New Delhi, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—Nearly 100 Indian daily and weekly newspapers went on a one-day strike in protest against censorship of incidents growing out of disturbances last August, the All-India Newspaper Editors Conference said.

There was an outbreak of violence in Chimar, in the central provinces, last August and the current protest is aimed at censorship of activities of the authorities in quelling it.

JAP RAIL LINES IN BURMA BOMBED

New Delhi, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—United States and Royal Air Force flying crews are crippling some river and rail transport facilities used to transport Japanese troops and supplies in Burma, communiques reported today.

While United States bombers raided railroad yards in Mandalay Monday, starting fires that could be seen for seventy miles, other crews attacked a 15,000-ton vessel moving up the Irrawaddi River toward Rangoon. Thick smake billowed from the ship after two direct bomb hits and near near misses.

Heavy bombers from the Tenth Air Force made the attacks on the ship and a concentration of freight cars and other railroad equipment in the Mandalay railroad yards, communiques said.

The same day railroad installations at Naba Junction, also in Burma, were attacked by medium bombers. On January 2, medium United States bombers scored seven direct hits on runways of the Japanese air base at Monywa, fifty miles west of Mandalay, and many others in the airfields dispersal area.

The attack by bombers of the Tenth United States Army Air Force on railroad communications coincided with R. A. F. assaults on river and coastal shipping in Burma, ranging from the North Arakan Coast down to Pagoda Point at the southern tip of Burma, a British communique said.

More than sixty small vessels of various types were bombed or machine-gunned, usually from a low level, a communique said.

British bombers attacked Jap positions west of Rathedaung Monday and the same night other formations attacked the freight yards at Mandalay. Mandalay was again blasted yesterday. No British planes were lost in these operations.

Giraud In Dakar To Meet U. S. Mission

JAN 1 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Dakar, Jan 5 (Delayed)—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, high commissioner for French North and West Africa, arrived here by plane today with several members of his staff to confer with the United States mission headed by Vice-Admiral William A. Glassford, Jr., and with Pierre Boisson, governor general of French West Africa.

Giraud also will inspect French West African troops and military and naval installations.

Decorates Monument

Giraud drove directly from the airfield to the center of the city, where he and Glassford placed wreaths at the foot of a monument to the Senegalese killed in the first World War.

Dakar was gayly decorated with flags, bunting and stands built for a formal review of the troops tomorrow.

There was no announcement of how long Giraud would stay or what his schedule was, but he was expected to be here for several days at least.

MALTA TAKES TOLL OF AXIS AIRCRAFT

JAN 1 1943

955 Planes Destroyed in Year, R.A.F. Accounts for Most.

LONDON, Jan. 6 — (AP) Malta, the British Mediterranean stronghold which has suffered more bombing raids than any other one spot during this war, destroyed 955 enemy aircraft during 1942, the Middle East news service of the R.A.F. said today.

Of these, 773 were shot down by R.A.F. fighters with loss of 195 British craft. The pilots of 89 of these were saved, however. Anti-craft fire accounted for 182 of the enemy craft.

On the offensive against enemy supply ships in the Mediterranean, R.A.F. planes based on Malta attacked 46 convoys, six single vessels, and five forces of naval vessels.

The score was 46 ships either sunk, severely damaged or left in flames, and about 40 other ships damaged to a less degree.

Naval aircraft based at Malta hit 37 ships with bombs or torpedoes, including four cruisers and two destroyers.

In its attempts to knock out the island, the enemy last year dropped 12,000 tons of bombs on it.

Striking back with its limited resources, planes from Malta have dropped 1,500 tons of bombs on the enemy in North Africa and Sicily.

Rumanian Plot Reported, With 4,000 Arrested

JAN 7 1943

London Hears 80 Have Been Executed in Iron Guard Move Against Antonescu

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP).—The British news agency Reuters said today that reports to Switzerland from Budapest said Rumanian police had arrested more than 4,000 persons and executed eighty after uncovering an Iron Guard (Fascist party) plot against Marshal Ion Antonescu, Rumanian Chief of State.

It said the report was published by the "Basler Nachrichten" and came from that newspaper's Budapest correspondent. The arrests, it said, were made in Bucharest, Ploesti, Giurgiu and elsewhere throughout Rumania. Government officials were said to have been involved.

The dispatch said Axis troops were guarding Bucharest streets, manning machine guns at key points.

Horia Sima, fugitive Iron Guard leader and former Cabinet member who fled to Germany when a similar plot failed two years ago, was said to have been taken into custody by Axis authorities. The newspaper said he left Germany last week, was arrested in Italian territory and was returned to Germany.

Britain Will Reply Soon To Stalling on Unshackling

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—Britain's reply to Germany's stalling on the question of unshackling British and Canadian prisoners in Germany is expected to come when Parliament reassembles, probably from Prime Minister Churchill, it was reported today.

Although the German prisoners who had been chained in Britain and Canada in retaliation for the chaining of British prisoners were released from their fetters December 12, Germany apparently has not reciprocated and appears to be prolonging discussion of the question deliberately.

The German radio said yesterday that Britain's reply to the latest German note on the question "still is outstanding."

The Foreign Office remained silent on this assertion. When the German prisoners were unshackled, Britain made no mention of what would be done if the Germans refused to follow suit.

London Eyes Congress

Daily Mail: "Roosevelt's Foes Today Start Congress Battle To Cut Down His Power."

Daily Express: "The Next Sixty Days — Don't Lose Faith In America."

Daily Telegraph: "This U. S. Congress Will Strive To Influence Policy-Bias Which Will Challenge Not The War Effort But 'New Deal' Planning."

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Bills and checks passing through the British Bankers' Clearing House in 1942 were at a new record high of approximately $196,627,280,000, more than 8 per cent above the previous record established in 1929, according to an annual statement released today.

Budapest Reports Plot on Antonescu

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—Reuters said today that reports had reached Switzerland from Budapest that Rumanian police had arrested more than 4,000 persons and already had executed 80 after uncovering an Iron Guard plot against Marshal Ion Antonescu, Rumanian Chief of State.

It said the report was published by the Basler Nachrichten and came from that newspaper's Budapest correspondent.

Government officials were said to have been involved in the plot.

The dispatch said Axis troops were guarding Bucharest streets, manning machine guns at key points.

10,000 PRISONERS INTERNED IN JAPAN

Red Cross Delegates Report Conditions 'Comparatively Satisfactory' in Camps.

LONDON, Jan. 6—(AP) A British War office statement said tonight that 10,000 prisoners of war—half of them Americans—are interned in Japan.

It said a Red Cross representative in Tokyo had visited three prison camps and reported conditions "comparatively satisfactory" although some prisoners were suffering from tropical diseases.

The prisoners, the statement continued, have been forced to adapt themselves to the Japanese diet, consisting largely of rice, although there are some bread, fish and vegetables. It said the prisoners get very little meat.

"Medical treatment is handicapped by a lack of medicaments which appears to be general throughout the Far East," it said.

"Considerable quantities of medicaments were, however, sent to the Far East by Allied Red Cross societies on the last diplomatic exchange and some of these supplies have been distributed."

The report said Japan's prisoners work an eight-hour day in docks and factories. It added that about 1,500 Americans were interned in a camp at Woosung, near Shanghai.

R.A.F. HAS NEW BOMB, WHICH FALLS SLOWLY

LONDON, Jan. 6 — (AP) The censors permitted the first mention today of the R.A.F.'s use of a new 2,000-pound "slow-bomb" in several recent raids on Germany.

With a secret braking device, it falls at reduced speed and in impact spreads destruction rather than dissipating most of its power downward.

The drag is in the form of a cap at one end. The R.A.F. said the new bomb could not be described accurately as a parachute type because it does not float.

The upward and outward effects of the explosion on impact are described as terrific.

Gen. Patton Visits Head Of Spanish Morocco

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Jan. 6 — Maj. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., chief of American forces in French Morocco, yesterday paid a courtesy call on Gen. Luis Orgaz, high commissioner of the Spanish Morocco, in Morocco, a Spanish News Agency dispatch from Tangier reported.

The official account said the American general "reiterated the guarantees recently offered to Spain by the President of the North American Nation" and that great cordiality marked the visit.

QUISLING PREPARES FOR SPEEDY ACTION TO MEET ATTACK

JAN 7 1943

Prepares List of Norwegians to Be Arrested, Held as Hostages.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 6 — (AP) The Swedish press reported tonight that Vidkun Quisling has made up a list of representative Norwegians, including churchmen, to be arrested and held as hostages the moment an invasion of German-held Norway occurs.

The press also reported that Quisling by that method hopes to stay the people from joining the fighting.

Quisling apparently is feeling so insecure, the press added, that he has expropriated four estates neighboring his castle Gimle outside Oslo in order to isolate the property and shelter it with a heavy force of guards.

JAN 7 1943

Purge Expected

A purge of "unreliable" Quisling agents is expected by Norwegian quarters as the Germans continue to speed up anti-invasion measures in Norway.

The latest indication of fears of Quislings within the Nasjonal Samling, the Quisling party in Norway, was said by the Norwegians to have come in a confidential letter from a top Norwegian Nazi official in Oslo to communal chairmen requesting at the insistence of the Ministry of Interior that they survey their official employes as soon as possible and determine who ought to be dismissed.

The letter was said to have asked names with full details and recommendations for replacements.

Reports continue to flow from Norway telling of intensive defensive preparation by the Germans in the last two months along the west coast.

Dugouts, trenches, and machine-gun posts built earlier in parks, streets and corners, now are being replaced by stronger and more permanent fortifications.

Concrete tank barriers are being built to block streets leading from harbors or likely landing places. Buildings are being converted to strongholds.

Crossroads Barricaded

Inland strategic crossroads and other lines of communications are being fortified.

Railway workers have been threatened with death, it was reported, if they reveal military transport movements or movements of trains carrying prominent Germans.

The newspaper Aftonbladet said that a plan had been prepared for conscription of the male population of Norway for labor service in event of an invasion in order to prevent the men from aiding the Allies.

Outcroppings of dissatisfaction and distrust within Quisling's Nasjonal Samling party, especially among the strong-armed Hirdmen, who are the Norwegian elite troops, were said to be complicating the situation.

Quisling's position was described as difficult because the party, with only an estimated 30,000 members, has so few capable and reliable men to draw on. The Hirdmen have been estimated to number between 5,000 and 6,000.

Invaded Party Headquarters

Recent reports, now confirmed by reliable Norwegian quarters, said that a group of Hirdmen invaded the Norwegian headquarters and knocked down a Quisling adjutant and party minister Furlesang as a protest against "free masons and renegades" taking over big party jobs.

Hirdmen who went to the eastern front to fight the Russians, estimated originally at 1,000 but now reduced through casualties and illness to 450, were said to be complaining in letters home of hardships they endure at the front while others at home are waxing fat.

Disaffections and desertions by the Hirdmen across the Norwegian border were said to be occurring periodically recently because of disagreement over Quisling's anti-Jewish measures and deportations.

Others were said to be endeavoring to reestablish themselves in the eyes of Norewian patriots by deliberately getting themselves into trouble with the Germans and being jailed.

Russian Prisoners In Finland Aided

Geneva, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—The International Committee of the Red Cross announced today the arrival in Helsinki, Finland, of quantities of foodstuffs and vitamins as gifts from the American and Canadian Red Cross units to Russian war prisoners. The shipment consisted of 3,749 eleven-pound packes of food and 499,000 vitamin units. Last August, 5,000 food packages were delivered to Helsinki.

ITALIAN REPATRIATES REACH HOME SAFELY

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts) Jan. 6.—(AP) The Italian liners Vulcania and Saturnia, carrying Italian civilians being repatriated from East Africa, have arrived at an Italian port, the Stefani news agency announced today.

(The repatriation of thousands of Italian noncombatants caught in Ethiopia, Somaliland and Eritrea when the British wrested those East African areas from Mussolini's forces, has been carried out by special British-Italian arrangement. It has been in progress for more than a year. The Italian liners made the long voyage around Africa and into the Mediterranean under the British navy's safe conduct).

Italians Call Libya Quiet

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts) Jan. 6 (AP).—Reconnaissance activity on the Tunisian front was reported today by the Italian high command. It said that on the Libyan front "there is nothing new to report." Axis planes bombed the Allied ports of Algiers, Bougie and Philippeville in Algeria, it said.

ITALIAN KING GOES ON TOUR OF SICILY

JAN 7 1943

The Rome radio disclosed today that King Victor Emmanuel III has completed a tour of Sicily, where he experienced an air raid alarm at Palermo. The broadcast said that his reception proved that Italians were unshaken by British and American aerial bombardment.

The King, long shoved into the background by Premier Mussolini, apparently made the trip as part of a planned effort in which he is being paraded before the populace of Italy's most heavily bombed districts. Previously he had visited raided Naples and Genoa.

The broadcast account of the latest tour by the generally esteemed, but politically impotent, monarch quoted the diplomatic editor of the official Stefani news agency as saying:

"There was a superb episode at Palermo, in which the King continued with perfect tranquillity his review (presumably of troops) in spite of an air-raid alarm and the great crowd gathered around the sovereign instead of hunting dugouts, as though they wanted to protect him against the enemy attack. This is the best proof that the Anglo-American bombardmdents are far from having shaken the iron morale of the Italian people."

YUGOSLAVIA THREATENS REPRISAL AGAINST NAZIS

CAIRO, Jan. 6—(AP) Reuters correspondent George Crawley reported today that Gen. Draja Mihailovic had issued a statement from his secret patriot headquarters threatening to "use the same measures against German soldiers and civilians in Yugoslavia if the Germans continue their atrocities in Serbia."

Crawley said the Yugoslav patriot commander declared that "fearing a general uprising in Yugoslavia in the event of an Italian debacle, Germany has recently sent another three divisions into our region, bringing the total to nine German divisions.'

"The Italians," the generals' statement added, "have 18 divisions stationed in Yugoslavia, the Bulgarians seven and the Hungarians six.

"Even so the Axis does not feel secure in our country. Two divisions were recruited among members of the German minority, while the Croat Ustachi (Iron Guardist troops of the Axis-supported Croat government) are being used against the Yugoslav army under my command."

Telling Blow Dealt Lashio By U. S. Bomber Squadron

JAN 7 1943

Jap Airbase Severely Pounded in First Night Raid; No Planes Lost.

By J. REILLY O'SULLIVAN

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN CHINA, Dec. 22.—(Delayed)—(AP) American bombers have struck a telling one-two punch at Lashio, the Japanese-held eastern Burma city where the railroad from Rangoon joins the Burma road.

The blows fell so fast that we still were flying home this moonlit Tuesday night when the plane's radio picked up an American news broadcast of the first raid Sunday.

This was the first night raid ordered by Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commander of the United States Air Task Force in China, since the bombardment of Hongkong last Oct. 25.

Warehouses Laid Waste

The Japanese apparently had no warning until they heard the bombers only about 15 miles—a few moments flying time—away from the targets, and their warehouses and air base installations soon were sparkling in the darkness with fire and explosion.

Strings of incendiaries started fires across the big warehouse concentration in the center of the town, from which the enemy sends supplies up the Burma road to his China front, and tons of fragmentation bombs blasted the barracks housing troops on one of Japan's largest Burma air bases.

All Bombers Returned

An anti-aircraft barrage sprang up suddenly northeast of Lashio, but no night fighters took off and all our bombers returned safely.

Lieut. Col. William Basye of Independence, Mo., commanded the mission which took off shortly after dinner when a brilliant, round moon poked up over the mountain peaks. He was accompanied by Lieut. Col. Clinton Vincent of Natchez, Miss., chief of operations of the China Air Task Force, himself a fighter and bomber pilot, who summed it up as a "damned good show... the bombs hit right in the target areas."

I rode on Basye's left wing with Capt. Elmer Tarbox of Lubbock, Tex., in a bomber appropriately named, "Jap Nitemare."

It was my second flight to Lashio. I went also in the Sunday daylight raid.

Close Formation

We held a close formation over some of the most rugged country in the world. The Salween river was a silver ribbon in the deep, dark gorges below.

About 20 miles off we picked up the lights of Lashio, only partly blacked out, but the city was in utter darkness before we reached the targets.

Seated in the bomber's nose behind the bombardier, First Lieutenant Charles Dearth of Sydney, O., I was watching intently for the release of Basye's bombs on the barracks when red streams of tracers snaked upward over on the right. The Japanese ground fire was aimed at the flight led by Capt. Everett Holstrom of Tacoma, Wash., which had turned off and dived low over the city.

JAN 7 1943

Intense Light Flood Up

The Holstrom flight, however, whipped through the barrage at terrific speed, with bullets almost clipping its wings, and two strings of the most intense white light quickly showed on the ground where thermite fire bombs had started fires among the warehouses.

Basye, after reaching the airdrome, swung wide and came back on a run for the nearby barracks. As his bombs let go, it was the signal for "bombs away" for the planes on his wings.

Dearth flipped his release switches and strings of "frags" whistled down into a cluster of buildings. These fragmentation bombs are not as spectacular as incendiaries when they burst, but there can be small doubt of the death and destruction they spread.

Still without opposition, we flew directly over the airport, wheeled again, and went in lower to rake the barracks.

Tracers Pierced Target

Gunner Sergeants Pat Boudreaux of Port Arthur, Tex., and Douglas Erickson in "Jap Nitemare" joined the gunners of the other bombers in sending streams of bullets into the building from our steeply banked planes. Colored tracers showed clearly that their fire was thudding into the targets.

Three blossoms of fire were observed in the city as we sped away. The fire bombs had not had time to take full effect when Lashio was lost in the distance, First Lieutenant George Stout, of Emporia, Kan., the leading bombardier, explained.

It was on the way back, while First Lieutenant Joseph Dockweiler of Syracuse, N. Y., was taking celestial observations, that I heard the news broadcast of the Sunday radio on Lashio.

We were back on the home base before midnight.

Canadian Officers in Africa

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 6 (AP).—It was learned today that a detachment of Canadian officers and noncommissioned officers has arrived in North Africa to gain battle experience with the British 1st Army. The Canadians, representing almost all army branches, will go into the battle line as regular reinforcements to British regiments, and later will return to England to pass on their experience of battle conditions to their own units, it was said.

Nazi Threat to Intervene In Greece Reported

By the Associated Press.

ANKARA, Turkey, Jan 6.—A well-authenticated report from Greece today said the Germans had threatened to intervene there unless Italian occupying troops crush Greek guerrillas who are menacing Axis communications in Greece.

The German threat allegedly was made at an Athens conference between Germans and Italians.

In a bitter exchange of words, the Italians were said to have reminded the Germans they had failed to suppress the Chetniks in Yugoslavia, and the Germans accused the Italians of laxity in Greece.

Marine Corps Band At Pearl Harbor Is Trained Battle Unit

Two Musicians Won Citations for Bravery During Jap Attack

(The following dispatch was written by Second Lt. Earl J. Wilson, a Marine Corps public relations officer, whose home is at 2816 Connecticut avenue N.W.)

JAN 7 1943

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Jan. 6.—When the first Jap planes struck this island base December 7, 1941, it was a signal for the Pearl Harbor Marine Band to start swinging—but not with music.

Band members, doubling in bullets as well as ballads, manned machine guns. Two of the musicians won citations.

The 30-piece marine band, upholding the Leatherneck tradition of "every man a fighting man," stands ready today to form several machine-gun crews in event of hostile attack.

Drill Twice Weekly.

Schooling and drills in small arms and machine guns comprise a twice-a-week routine for this crack aggregation.

The band is under the direction of Master Technical Sergt. Frederick A. Lock of San Diego, Calif., who also leads the marine 12-piece dance orchestra, augmented to 17 at times. It also has performed as a five-man "jam" band when the occasion demanded.

The musicians have acquired an enviable reputation among servicemen and residents through appearances at social and civic affairs, athletic contests, radio broadcasts and military functions.

30.24 —— 131

JAN 7 1943

Broadcasts Frequently.

During a month, the dance orchestra may be called upon to play at 20 social events such as officers' and enlisted men's dances or USO-sponsored parties. A notable recent appearance was with the "Blackout Revue" at the Community Theater in Honolulu.

The orchestra has given frequent radio broadcasts, both locally and to the mainland, over Honolulu radio stations KGU and KGMB, including appearances on the "Swing-ing in Hawaii" program, beamed to the mainland.

The musicians have gained recognition on islands in the Hawaiian group through trips to Maui, Hawaii and Molokai.

The trips were discontinued for the most part after the outbreak of hostilities, but a notable recent trip was the airplane journey to another island where the dance orchestra furnished music for a marine detachment.

Assists Symphony.

Marine Corps aviation was credited with an assist on that occasion by providing a transport plane for the two-day visit, during which the Pearl Harbor orchestra played for an officers' dance and an enlisted men's dance.

The orchestra invariably has been represented at the Honolulu Symphony Orchestra concerts. During the last concert season it provided the symphony orchestra with three musicians.

For a decade prior to the war, the Marine Band made an annual appearance at the Shriners' Hospital Benefit football game, which brought together a local team and one from the mainland.

The band made its last such appearance at the University of Hawaii-San Jose contest December 6, 1941, the day before the Japanese attack. In recognition of the services at these charity contests, the band was presented with the Shriners' "Certificate of Award for Merit."

Greeted Transports.

Prior to the war the Pearl Harbor Marine Band greeted transports on their arrival and briefly, during 1936, "pinch hit" for the famed Royal Hawaiian Band in greeting luxury passenger steamships at the docks of Honolulu.

On the post at the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard, the Marine Band plays "colors" every morning, offers a 45-minute concert twice a week and marches in all post parades. It also provides music for athletic contests at the post.

The first Marine Corps band in Hawaii was organized in 1905 as a volunteer group at Camp Very, now Fort Armstrong, in Honolulu. When the marines moved to the Pearl Harbor base in 1914, the band was authorized as a regular unit of the command and has functioned as such since that time.

Nimitz Decorates His Son At First Meeting in 3½ Years

JAN 7 1943

By the Associated Press.

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 6.—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz awarded the Silver Star yesterday to his 27-year-old son, Lt. Chester W. Nimitz, jr., officer on a submarine operating in enemy-controlled waters, and the Navy Cross to Capt. Ernest G. Small, commanding officer of the valiant cruiser Salt Lake City.

It was the first time the commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet had seen his son in three and a half years.

The admiral "looks better than when I last saw him," the lieutenant commented.

The Salt Lake City figured heavily in the night battle off Savo Island, October 11 and 12. The ship was credited with probably saving the cruiser Boise from destruction and with participating in the sinking of one enemy heavy cruiser, one transport, and four destroyers. Another Japanese cruiser was badly damaged and other ships probably sunk.

Helped Protect Boise.

The citation for Capt. Small, whose family lives in New Haven, Conn., read:

"For extraordinary heroism and distinguished service in line of his profession as commanding officer of the Salt Lake City in night action off Savo Island, British Solomon Islands, on the night of October 11-12.

"Due to his aggressiveness and determined action, and through his skill and devotion to duty, a superior Japanese force heading for Guadalcanal was destroyed or turned back. In one phase of the engagement, his excellent seamanship was the deciding factor in protecting the heavily-hit Boise from further damage.

"The success of this action prevented a planned Japanese attack on our positions on Guadalcanal and prevented the enemy from landing reinforcements on that island.

"His conduct throughout was in the highest traditions of the naval service."

Silent About Operations.

Lt. Nimitz's citation set forth that he performed duties aboard a submarine, in enemy-controlled waters from the outbreak of war, in an outstanding manner.

"Your efforts contributed greatly to the success of many actions of your submarine in sinking or greatly damaging much enemy shipping," it read.

The lieutenant, a graduate of the Naval Academy in 1936, couldn't say much about operations between the time he was in Manila, when war started, and his arrival here, but when asked what he thought of the enemy he commented:

"The only enemy we encountered proved to be a heads-up outfit."

The admiral, in presenting the awards, indicated Capt. Small and Lt. Nimitz were examples of those who had properly interpreted his orders to the fleet to come to grips with the enemy—"we can't defeat the enemy by propaganda or shadow boxing; we must get them under our guns."

Two sisters of Lt. Nimitz, Catherine and Nancy Nimitz, live at 2222 S street N.W.

U. S. DESTROYER TACKLES 4 JAPS, SURVIVES BATTLE

'Aaron Ward' Sailed Into Enemy Fleet, Damaged Battleship.

By CHARLES McHARTRY

WITH THE U. S. FLEET IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC — (Correspondence of the Associated Press) — Destroyers look insignificant alongside a battleship but the U. S. destroyer Aaron Ward damaged four enemy vessels, including a battleship, in that historic Nov. 13 naval engagement off Savo island.

Commander Orville F. Gregor, of La Jolla, Calif., and formerly of St. Louis, Mo., took the Aaron Ward between two lines of Japanese warships in that engagement, fought as close as 2,000 yards in 2 a. m. darkness.

Hit by Big Shells.

The Aaron Ward was hit by three 14-inch shells, by 8-inchers and by 5-inchers. Three torpedoes passed under her bow. "I saw their wakes," said Commander Gregor, her captain.

But the little warship made the Japanese pay heavily for that damage and made port herself, to fight again.

"We possibly sank one light cruiser and damaged three other ships — a battleship and two destroyers," Commander Gregor said. "We saw fires and explosions on the light cruiser. Then she blew up. We put 40 or 50 shells into the other three ships."

Commander Gregor was awarded a Navy Cross for his part in the battle.)

"Our first target was a battleship. After we fired our first salvo it was so bright we could see her plainly. (Star shells and searchlights illuminated the sea.)

Drove Through Jap Force

"We fired at that battleship until one of our cruisers got into our line of fire. Then we proceeded through the entire Jananese force, firing at targets on both sides of us.

"We took nine direct hits. Our mast was knocked off. One shell burst downward and killed two men in our director room. We had seven hits in the vicinity of the bridge.

"The Japs finally were firing at their own ships. It was so dark we couldn't always tell where our own ships were.

"Then the Japs illuminated us very bright with star shells.

"Five starshells burst right over us. It was so bright you could read a newspaper," Commander Gregor related.

"Then we saw shells coming. Each one looked like a big white light at a distance. We couldn't see them close but heard six to ten whistle overhead.

"Then there was one that we didn't hear. That's the one that hit a gunmount. Fire broke out and ammunition was going off all around us."

Ship's Galley Hit

One shell struck the ship's galley, wounding more men.

"I heard those crippled boys praying aloud," he resumed. "I never heard anything like that and never hope to again. It was pitiful. They didn't yell or cry, just prayed."

One man was mortally wounded as shrapnel tore off his telephone headset. "But he was so true to his job that he kept sending range messages until he died," Commander Gregor said.

"We had been firing almost point blank at 2,000 yards.

"The battle lasted about 25 minutes. We lost our electricity the last one-third of that time. Finally we went dead in the water as the battle ended.

"Ships were burning all around us. A Jap destroyer blew up 1,000 yards away. A heavy cruiser keeled over nearby, apparently hit by a torpedo.

"We got under way again under our own power but couldn't make much speed. We broke down again just before daylight.

Attacked by Battleship

"There was a crippled Jap battleship, just four or five miles away, at dawn. The Jap fired four salvos at us. One salvo straddled us with 14-inch shells. He was getting our range. We probably would have been sunk but as he fired his fourth salvo United States bombers roared over. He limped away trying to escape. (The Navy reported the bombers finished that battleship, one of the Kongo class.)

"Then a tug came out and towed us into port."

Commander Gregor described the battle as "hell on wheels."

How Yanks Wiped Out Japs As They Fled Into Sea Off Buna

JAN 7 - 1943

By Murlin Spencer
United Press Staff Writer

With American Troops in New Guinea, Jan. 2 (Delayed).—Clean-up units of an American ground force drove through the last enemy defenses today and captured the bomb-shattered Buna Government Station after many Japanese had fled into the sea in a mad effort to escape.

It was mainly through sheer weight of numbers—for there are no tanks in this area—that the Americans, their jungle green uniforms mud-splattered and their bodies worn by six weeks of battle against the Japs as well as the jungle, broke down the enemy's bunker defenses.

Rather than fight to the last as they said they would, the Japs sought to flee by raft, small boats and even by swimming. On their refusal to come ashore and surrender, many were shot by machine-gunners and riflemen while others were strafed by planes.

I watched the Americans open their campaign in the Buna area on November 19 with an attack in the jungles south of Cape Endaidere. I watched it end with our troops systematically mopping up the coconut-palm bunkers with rifles and grenades. The campaign ended on the same savage note on which it began—no quarter asked and none given.

The once scenic Buna Government Station, with its palm grove overlooking the ocean between Buna Village and Cape Endaidere looked as though a cyclone had hit it.

JAN 7 1943

Buildings Shattered

Its half dozen buildings, some of corrugated iron (most pretentious in Papua), were shattered, twisted and pocked by shrapnel. Others were burned to the ground and still smoldering when I crossed a shaky bridge and walked to the station.

Cleanup patrols were still firing. The ground, churned by bombs and shells, helped to explain the hunted look of the Jap prisoners. Mostly coolies who had been forced to labor, they gulped down the food given them.

The day's battle started and ended spectacularly.

In the early morning a score of Japs tried to break through the force commanded by Capt. Jefferson Cronk of Menomonie, Wis. But a grenade-throwing young private who pitched like Lefty Grove in his heyday—Lindsey Wagner of Woodward, Okla.—and others stopped them. They had waited a long time to get the Japs in the open, and made the most of it.

Jap Attack Smashed

Earlier, a three-man Jap patrol had come down the coast toward the American-held finger of land but our fire killed two. About 8 o'clock in the morning a 20-man patrol moved down the beach, stealthily lugging one heavy and two light machineguns.

Captain Cronk waited until the big gun was set up, then cut loose with machineguns and rifles.

Wagner, a slightly-built youth, stood up straight tossing grenades, some of which scored direct hits. He kept yelling, "hand me the grenades, boys!"

A dozen dead Japs were counted on the beach as the result of that skirmish.

JAN 7 1943

Other bodies were found in the water, and the Americans captured the machine guns. That gave us round one.

About 6:20 a. m., Private Raymond K[illegible]ll of Petoskey, Mich., standing watch west of the Government station, saw a small group of Japs walking around on the station's beach. Then a small boat towing a raft put out from shore heading seaward presumably in hopes of reaching Jap positions in the direction of Sanananda.

Krussell warned Sergt. Lavern Shultz of Oshkosh, Wis., a machine-gunner; Sergt. John K. King, Los Altos, Calif.; Sergt. Raymond F. Dashmann, San Francisco, and Pvt. Robert McAlear of San Jose, Calif. Other riflemen in beach trenches awaited the signal.

When the boat and raft were directly offshore, they fired and sank the boat. There were heads bobbing in the surf as our troops waved a white flag and motioned the Japs to come ashore. The enemy made no effort to start for shore, refusing to surrender just as they did two days before the battle started.

So the boys resumed firing and were still at it when I arrived in Buna village. Machinegun and rifle bullets sent up little spouts of water around the Japs. From that distance, there was no way of knowing how many were killed.

By 3:30 in the afternoon the command post west of the station reported it saw our men advancing through the palms. At 4:27 p. m. it announced we had taken the station.

New London Officer A Leader

In between, the Americans passed over the partly destroyed bridge over Entrance creek. Lieut. Sol Bernstein of New London, Conn., led a group of engineers who repaired it, and troops swarmed over.

Corp. Herbert Diebolt of Owosso, Mich., told how he found three Japs hiding in a hut. He tossed in a grenade and killed them all.

Natives on South Pacific Island Dazed by Energy of U.S. Troops

By NORMAN BELL

UNITED NATIONS BASE, South Pacific—(Correspondence of the Associated Press) Looking down on this South Sea island base from a Navy scouting plane there is plenty evidence of war but none at all of the Japs, who certainly included the area not so long ago in their dream of conquest.

The wing of the plane tilts sharply as the pilot banks to follow the curve of the coastline, where mangrove bushes grow right down into the ocean—like willows on a lake shore.

Big Navy observation and transport planes ride at anchorage, on one side of the bay.

The white and brown residents seem half dazed by the tide of men and energy engulfing their once sleepy community.

Among the hills beyond are Army and marine corps ground encampments and airfields.

Hospitals, with trim Army and Navy nurses in attendance, are treating the wounded and sick from the sea, land and air fighting.

Highways and roads are alive with American trucks and jeeps.

More detailed evidence of war is concealed by camouflage, presumably from the eyes of Jap observers or bombers.

But the pilot of the Navy scout frankly didn't expect to sight any enemy in the air and there was no sign of submarines lurking anywhere in the white flecked sea, spotted with coral reefs and islands.

Nor were any of Admiral Yamamoto's surface ships expected in these parts, since none had appeared to challenge recent thrusts of Navy task forces into waters where battles had previously been fought.

The stubborn little men from Nippon have vanished from the air, sea and land hereabouts and the trend for them throughout the south Pacific seems to be backward.

That trend would bear out the optimistic New Year's predictions of the United States Navy and Army south Pacific commanders: Admiral William J. Halsey, who expects complete victory in 1943, and Major General Millard F. Harmon, who thinks the prospects are greatly improved over last year.

M'ARTHUR'S PLANES POUND FOE AT LAE

Four Anti-Aircraft Posts and a Grounded Bomber Wrecked in New Guinea

GASMATA ALSO A TARGET

A Fortress Pays Another Visit to Enemy's Airdrome on New Britain Island

AT UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Thursday, Jan. 7 (AP)—Medium bombers and attack planes of the Southwest Pacific Command yesterday swept over the Japanese airdrome at Lae in New Guinea, destroying four anti-aircraft gun positions and a grounded bomber.

Allied ground forces meanwhile pushed preparations for the final assault on the remaining Japanese foothold in Northeastern New Guinea, in the Sanananda area.

Except for an attack on the Gasmata airdrome on New Britain island by a Flying Fortress, General Douglas MacArthur's heavy bombers were out of the operational picture yesterday, while B-25's and fighters carried on the job of softening enemy positions along the Sanananda trail with bombing and strafing attacks.

The communiqué reported concerning the raid on Lae, a point often bombed because of its proximity to the Papua battlefield, that medium bombers and attack planes bombed and strafed the airdrome and supply installations. A twin-engined bomber caught on the ground was reported set afire and four anti-aircraft positions were destroyed by direct hits.

U.S. TASK FORCE SHELLS JAP BASE

Munda Airfield Blasted by Surface Ships, Cruiser, Transport Bombed

JAN 7 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 — (AP) — In a daring foray into the Japanese-dominated middle Solomons, an American force of surface warships has shelled and battered the enemy air base and installations at Munda, New Georgia island.

The operation, which was carried out during the early morning darkness yesterday, was reported in a Navy communique today which told also of an air attack, with uncertain results, on a heavy Japanese cruiser, and the bombing of an enemy transport some 300 miles north of Guadalcanal island.

84 Japs Slain

In addition, the communique related that 84 Japanese were killed in mopping up operations in the Mount Austen sector of Guadalcanal. Mount Austen, a 1,514 - foot peak southwest of the American-held airfield, was wrested from the Japanese January 4.

In all the operations, seven Japanese planes definitely were shot down and four others were probably destroyed. Two United States planes were lost.

In Aleutian waters, meanwhile, Mitchell medium bombers (North American B-25s) sank an enemy cargo ship 110 miles northeast of Kiska. This action took place yesterday, the Navy announced. Today a Liberator bomber (Consolidated B-24) scored one direct and two near-hits on an enemy ship 185 miles southwest of Kiska.

The size of the surface task force which bombarded the Munda airfield was not indicated. Ordinarily, however, such a Navy designation for a surface force means it includes at least one cruiser and several destroyers.

As the force was withdrawing, it was attacked by enemy dive-bombers. Four American Wildcats—fighter planes of the type used by the Navy and Marine corps—engaged the Japanese planes, shot down four certainly and possibly two others. The remaining Jap planes turned tail and fled. It was not clear whether the American fighters were land-based, were catapulted from cruisers, or were carrier-borne. They could have operated from the Guadalcanal airfield, which is 180 miles from Munda.

Flying Fortresses attacked the Japanese cruiser at Buin, Bougainville island. They were accompanied by Lockheed Lightning fighters which got into a battle with 25 Japanese planes, both Zeros and Float-type biplanes. Three of the enemy were shot down and two others probably downed. The two American planes were lost in this action.

The Japanese transport hit by bombs was attacked by Flying Fortresses in the Shortland Island area.

Jap Move Anticipated

All these attacks, together with an air raid on Raboul, in which General Douglas MacArthur reported that nine ships were hit, fell into a general pattern of operations designed to upset an apparently impending Japanese move in the southwest Pacific.

For some weeks, the Japanese have been reported assembling surface ships at various points in the area. If they have in mind a renewed large scale attempt to recapture Guadalcanal, they would ccunt on air support from the Munda base which they have been developing for weeks despite frequent American attack. The raid by surface ship thus was designed to damage the base so heavily that it would be of limited use in any such Japanese effort.

In addition to the attack by surface ships, the airfield was bombed yesterday by medium bombers. The Navy said the results could not be observed.

U. S. Ships Shell Jap Airport At Munda

JAN 7 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 6—The navy reported today that a United States task force of surface units had "successfully bombarded" the Japanese airfield at Munda, New Georgia Island in the Solomons.

Munda is 180 miles northwest of Guadalcanal. The Japanese have been attempting for weeks to establish a strong air base there, presumably for operations against American troops on Guadalcanal.

A communique said the task force was attacked by Japanese bombers but these were driven off by four "Wildcats" (Grumman planes) which shot down four of the enemy and probably destroyed two others.

Navy's Statement

The text of the communique, number 241, follows:

"South Pacific (all dates east longitude):

"1. On January 5:

"(a) During the darkness of the early morning a United States task force of surface units successfully bombarded the Japanese airfield at Munda on New Georgia Island.

"(b) As the task force retired it was attacked by Japanese dive bombers. Four 'Wildcats' (Grumman F4F) intercepted and shot down four of the enemy dive bombers and probably destroyed two more. All 'Wildcats' returned safely after the remaining planes had withdrawn.

"(c) 'Marauder' medium bombers (Martin B-26) later attacked enemy installations at Munda. Results could not be observed.

Cruiser Attacked

"(d) During the afternoon 'Flying Fortresses' (Boeing B-17) escorted by 'Lightning' fighters (Lockheed P-38) attacked an enemy cruiser at Buin on the island of Bougainville. Results were not observed. Our fighters were attacked by twenty-five 'Zeros' and float-type biplanes. Three enemy planes were shot down and two others were probably destroyed. Two United States fighters were lost.

"(e) 'Flying Fortresses' attacked and scored a bomb hit on a Japanese transport in the Shortland Island area.

"(f) During the day eighty-four Japanese were killed in mopping-up operations in the Mount Austen sector on Guadalcanal Island."

Allied Bombers Blast 10 Jap Ships at Rabaul

Attack Follows Reported Massing Of Enemy Armada

(Map on Page A-10.)

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 6.—Heavy bombers of the Allied air forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command have smashed again at massed enemy shipping in Rabaul Harbor, leaving eight vessels afire or sinking and destroying a ninth with a direct hit by a half-ton bomb, it was officially announced today.

Probably a tenth vessel was destroyed, an Allied headquarters communique reported on the heels of warnings that the Japanese were gathering a new war fleet in the Southwest Pacific.

In all 50,000 tons of shipping suffered under the newest blows of the bombers which have been making Rabaul, capital of New Britain Island, the objective of concentrated attacks ever since the Solomon Islands campaign opened. The direct hit was on a destroyer tender. Alongside her was a destroyer, which might have been damaged.

The eight other ships were merchant vessels.

One Bomber Is Lost.

One bomber was reported lost on the flight, but six Japanese planes were downed among a flight of about two dozen which tried to intercept the attack.

The communique also noted new bombings of Lae, Salamaua and Madang, in Northeastern New Guinea; Gasmata Airdrome, in Southern New Britain, and on Timor Island, northwest of Australia. Airdromes at Lae, Madang and on Timor were the targets.

One air force unit also pounded the Japanese ground forces holding the spit of beach at Sanananda Point, north of Buna, as Allied tank, artillery and infantry closed in, the headquarters report said.

The air forces began intensive bombardment of the Japanese beach position two days ago, dropping 11,000 pounds of the missiles on the Japs in their first sortie, William F. Boni, Associated Press correspondent in New Guinea, reported.

The raid on Rabaul was the sixth in 10 days on that base more than 600 miles northwest of Guadalcanal Island, and about 800 miles northeast of Cape York Peninsula, northeast tip of Australia.

Rabaul Handy to Truk.

With its deep harbor, Rabaul also lies handy to Truk, a first-rank Japanese naval base in the mandated islands to the north. The Japanese occupied Rabaul January 24, 1942, and they have been under steady aerial attack ever since.

A high Australian government official yesterday voiced the warning that the Japanese were assembling transports and supply ships at various points in the Southwest Pacific, aided by bad weather, with a view to regaining the footholds they have lost in the Solomons and in Southeastern New Guinea, and to bolster their line facing Australia from Timor eastward.

The Australian press displayed prominently the opinion of government leaders and others insisting that more equipment should go to this theater of war in the belief that a minimum of offensive now would gain maximum results, against a reverse situation if the offensive were attempted later.

Jap Fighter Not a Superman, Just a Monkey, Halsey Declares

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Jan. 6—(AP) Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., United Nations commander-in-chief in the south Pacific who recently predicted the complete defeat of the Axis in 1943, has a low estimate of the Japanese service man.

In an interview in New Zealand, the United States admiral stood confidently on his prediction of Allied victory this year and added:

"When we first started out, I held one of our men equal to three Japanese. I now increase this to 20.

"They are not supermen although they try to make us believe they are. They are just low monkeys. I say monkeys because I can say what I would like to call ..."

reported atrocities by the se in combat in the Solomons, Admiral Halsey said they occur usually when Americans are trying to aid Japanese who are either wounded or seem wounded.

"The way the Japanese meets this kindness is with a hand grenade," he said. "That is quite in line with their apish or bestial instincts—use which word you like."

In reply to a question as to whether there was basis for the one-time popular belief that Japanese battleships were top-heavy, the admiral said:

"We sank two battleships, one by direct gunfire at night and the other by a combination of gunfire, bombing and torpedo action. It took a long time to sink that fellow. No, I will not say he was top-heavy."

plane pilots who fly their lumbering, lightly armed Catalina flying boats into almost certain death—suicide missions epitomized by one pilot who radioed his carrier:

"Am shadowing (following Japanese warships.) Notify our next-to-kin."

Ten minutes later that pilot was dead

Use PBY's For Combat

The Catalinas (PBY's) can fly tremendous distances on patrol, but these pilots are using the slow planes as dive bombers, fighters and torpedo planes in missions deep in enemy territory.

To give you an idea of their exploits, there is Lieut. Com. Clay—C. Marcy, 36, o. Lander, Wyo., who flew his patrol plane from the Philippi es to Bornec and Java one jump ahead of the Japanese, ferrying twenty-one refugees at a time.

Attacks Jap Carrier

Lieut. Charles (Whisky) Fountain Willis, of 5502 Bosworth avenue, Baltimore, Md., who gets his name because he doesn't drink, who volunteered to rescue an army bomber crew deep in Japanese territory.

Lieut. (j. g.) Donald L. Jackson, who singly made a night torpedo attack on an enemy carrier—and hit it.

Lieut. Williard (Bill) King, Lexington, Va., who was forced down in thirty-foot waves, but battled successfully for four days to save his plane.

Lieut. Melvin K. Atwell, who bombed an enemy cruiser at night at such a low altitude that his plane planes.

Lieut. Com. James O. Cobb, who helped turn back a Japanese landing attack on Guadalcanal by bombing enemy ships at night.

Lieut. George E. Poulos, 25, of Manteca, Cal., who "shadowed" a Japanese carrier task force three hours despite fierce opposition.

Willis Rescuer Colonel

Lieutenant Willis has raided Japanese bases in his PBY, made contact reports with Japanese forces, bombed submarines and averaged 134 hours in the air monthly since the war started.

And he rescued Col. L. G. Saunders, whose army bomber scored direct hits on enemy ships at Buin Harbor, and Bougainville Island before he was attacked by a large number of Zeros.

Saunder's pilot was killed, the copilot mortally wounded and his bombardier injured. Saunders lifted the dead pilot from the seat and took over the controls, but his engines stopped and a fire broke out in his right wing.

Crash Landing On Reef

He made a crash landing on a reef off an island between Bougainville and New Georgia and Willis volunteered to go to the rescue.

"We found Colonel Saunders on the first pass over the reef after skimming less than a hundred yards over a Japanese army camp," Willis said. He landed and natives hurried Saunders and his crew to the Catalina.

Go On Torpedo Raid

"It sure is good to see a navy flying boat out here," Saunders said in greeting.

In another exploit, Willis, Lieut. V. J. Coley and Lieutenant Poulos submitted plans to their commanding officer to torpedo Japanese warships at night in Tonolei harbor at Buin Island. The "Cats" were stripped of all confidential gear and dead ahead was an enemy 'can' (destroyer). We raised over that. Then there sat a big fat cruiser. Willis took his port and Lewung around and put a fish into his starboard. Our crews saw geysers as our fish socked into the cruiser's belly. When it blew up it was a fine sight. Coley, meanwhile, circled over a carrier, but by now the entire harbor was blazing so he dropped his torpedo in the midst of the warships and scrammed."

Forced Down At Sea

Lieutenant King was forced down with his crew after bombing the Japanese base at Tulagi, starting fires in oil and gas supplies visible one hundred miles away. Another PBY sighted them the day after the landing on the heaving seas and guarded the plane from enemy subs. Two days later a destroyer came, but it was twelve hours before it could get a line to the plane crew.

The destroyer captain wanted to shell King's "Cat," but King asked him to wait because "every plane counted." Next day King and three of his crew of ten went back and got the Catalina up.

Scores Torpedo Hit

Cobb led a long harassing raid on the Japanese at Munda Point in New Georgia and another time, in a night torpedo attack on an enemy carrier force off Guadalcanal, he made four approaches before releasing his torpedo. It made a direct hit admiships on an unidentified vessel and the Japanese force turned back.

Marcy kept his fleet of big Catalinas from being caught on the ground when the Japanese attacked the Philippines and brought out his plane. But only two out of thirty-six "cats" got to Australia.

As the Japanese nose tightened on the Philippines, patrol plane after patrol plane, poorly equipped for combat, fell to the enemy because these men dared to attack battleships and cruisers and fought it out with the swift enemy Zeros.

Known ... Qualities.

"Then there's Gordon [Lieut. (J. G.) Gordon B. Snyder of Riverside, Cal.]. I told him to stay low, but he didn't want to miss them and climbed to 6,000 feet. He was shot down in flames but his message kept coming in until his plane hit the ocean. Of his crew only one man, Aviation Pilot Vernon Pugh of Pensacola, Fla., was rescued by Lieut. Richard J. Teich, flying in an adjoining sector.

"The third was Lieut. (J. G.) Dighton L. Polan of New York city. In his contact report he said that his controls were shot away but he maintained contact until the sea claimed him.

"Our work isn't heroic. We simply find the enemy, track him and get his course and speed so that he can be destroyed. After the battle we pick up survivors. We brought back three or four from Midway."

Lieut. Clark tackled three two-engined Japanese torpedo bombers in air combat and some Zeros swooped in on him. Their shots wrecked his left elevator and rudder, but Clark got away into the clouds. He had six cannon shell holes in his hull, and more in the wings and starboard engine, with innumerable machine-gun bullet holes. But one Zero dropped out of the fight smoking, and another spun into the sea.

As the Japanese noose tightened on the Philippines, patrol plane after patrol plane, poorly equipped for combat, fell to the enemy because these men dared to attack battleships and cruisers and fought it out with the Zeros.

Their successes were due to only one thing, the determination of the Navy pilots.

American Troops on Alert In Vital Panama Canal Zone

All Service Units Practice Combat Work, Men Eager for Action.

JAN 7 1943

By CHANDLER DIEHL

U. S. ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Panama Canal Zone, Jan. 6.—(AP) "A direct hit—target smashed to hell!"

That's the rule rather than the exception along the secret coast gun positions where the mighty rifles that defend the Panama Canal thunder in firing practice.

And right in the heart of the Canal oZne, there is combat training; the blue sky is flecked with many sudden puffs of smoke bracketing a "sleeve target" towed by a high-flying plane as anti-aircraft gunners get on the beam and perfect their aim for a rousing "welcome" to be extended to any Axis visitors.

It's easy to see that the thousands of fighting men in Panama are spoiling for a fight.

Troops On Alert

For weeks on end soldiers, sailors and marines have been on the alert—ready always for defense of the canal, and for weeks on end they've been in tough combat training—ready anytime to move on as combat troops to one of the world's many tropic-climbed battlefronts.

The men crave action.

Combat training in Panama today is of the most advanced sort. The word from Lieut. Gen. George H. Brett, Caribbean area commander, is to go "all out." So there is rough-house, Commando-toughening work. And there is frequent maneuvering under curtains of "live" ammunition.

In the field this past week—covering combat maneuvers over Panama's gullied badlands, firing problems from Panama's dense jungleland, and invasion rushes across Panama's sandy beaches—I've seen troops that are ready for action—here or elsewhere.

Practice Beach Landing

One day, with Capt. N. G. Payne of Roanoke, Va., and his marine detachment, I eased down the coastline in a tank-landing barge. A rendezvous with barges of bluejackets was made in a small bay, then all struck for shore. The heavy gates of the barges clanked down on the sand, and the heavily-armed "devildogs" and "gobs" poured out to "establish a beach-head."

They looked fit for action—combat action.

Another day, deep in Panama's interior, I was at an advanced maneuvers command post with Lieut. Robert H. Williams of Gettysburg, Pa., an infantry instructor, while potent artillery shells whizzed overhead and churned up a wooded clearing 600 yards ahead of our "point."

As suddenly as it began, the fire ceased and infantrymen charged out of their foxholes firing their rifles and machineguns—live ammunition—getting the feel of battle-smoke and battle-noise.

And ahead, when the men reached the woods, there was mute evidence of the heavy hand of the artillery. Trees were stripped of branches and foliage. Splinters, shell fragmentation and craters made a hellish scene. Smoke from the scorched and burning brushland billowed up and hid much of the horizon.

The following day, with Col. John U. Ayotte of Boston there was a visit to Panama's "badlands" to

Willis In South Pacific Since Summer Of 1941

Lieut. (j. g.) Charles Fountain Willis, Jr., was born in Beaumont, Texas, but has been a resident of Baltimore since the age of 11 months. Now 24 years old, he attended Polytechnic Institute here and was graduated from the University of Florida in 1940.

He was a member of the first class to enter the Jacksonville (Fla.) Naval Air Station in October, 1940, and received his commission in July, 1941. The following month he was ordered to the Pacific area, and he has been there since except for one trip to this country with his squadron to pick up new planes for delivery.

Tree-skimming pursuit planes roared over the advance units and ripped the gullied area immediately ahead with a deadly hail of cannon-fire and machinegun-bursts. Earth and brush splattered up with the kick of the shells. Ground forces pushed right ahead into the softened area.

Artillery Team Performs

And there was Lieut. H. K. Clark of Rushville, Ind., and his crack artillery team—which rushed to the frontlines time and again throughout the day to pour a withering barrage of point-blank fire into an objective only a few hundred yards ahead.

Another day Maj. C. E. Glassen of Bayside, New York, conducted a tour of secret positions where the coast guns are blasting targets with real accuracy.

Even the Navy is in training on land-fighting maneuvers in Panama. There was a morning spent with Lieut. (j. g.) R. F. Miller of Los Angeles, Calif., and Ensign G. W. Gulick of Newark, Ohio, while their contingent of bluejackets from the inshore patrol practiced beach landings in full battle array, followed by machete-swinging surges into jungle-covered hills that break upward from the shore.

Schools for Officers

Officers are in training at special field and demonstration schools. Engineers are engaged in construction and demolition maneuvers. The medical corps tests its methods under the rough field conditions afforded by Panama's rugged and varied terrain.

Airmen are in constant training—on daily patrols, at special schools. There are advanced schools for gunnery, and an advanced school for navigation—important were so much flying is over water.

And, in the waters off the canal entrance, speedy PT-boats—the mighty mites of the Navy—whiz by and around in defense and offense formations, coordinating their maneuvers with other naval forces, air forces, or both.

On land, at sea and in the air the fighting men in Panama are in combat training today—and every day. The one thing wanted now—is a fight!

3 Navy Airmen Killed In Crash at Puerto Rico

Catholic, Protestant and Jew Buried Side by Side

SAN JUAN, P. R., Jan. 6 (AP).—Three Navy airmen were killed Dec. 31 when their plane crashed in the harbor here during a take-off, the 10th Naval District headquarters announced tonight.

Those killed were Lieutenant (j. g.) Edward Mallory Vogel, twenty-seven years old, of Erwin, Tenn.; Issie Goldberg, twenty-three, aviation ordnance man, of 485 East 173d Street, New York City, and Edwin J. Sipowsky, twenty, aviation machinist mate, Waukegan, Ill.

The Navy's announcement said the three men, a Protestant, a Jew and a Catholic, were buried side by side with naval honors in the service cemetery with clergymen of the three sects jointly officiating.

All three had arrived here only the day before they were killed, and Vogel had been married during the Christmas holidays in Norfolk, Va.

Chile Silent on Reports Break With Axis Is Near

By the Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 6.—The Chilean cabinet met with President Juan Antonio Rios last night to discuss the report of Interior Minister Raul Morales on his visit to Washington, Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires, but official sources refused comment on reports that Chile would break relations with the Axis Friday.

(A high Foreign Office source in Buenos Aires said the Argentine government had been informed that President Rios would ask the Chilean Congress Friday for an immediate rupture of diplomatic and commercial relations with Germany, Italy and Japan.)

Morales, who returned here yesterday after a month-long trip during which he conferred with President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Hull and Presidents and Foreign Ministers of both Argentina and Brazil, announced that a statement would be made today.

CHILE OFFICIAL HOME

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 6.—(AP) The Ministry of Foreign Relations announced tonight that Interior Minister Raul Morales had returned from visits to the United States, Brazil and Argentina with "decisive" information, but it failed to disclose how that affects Chile's relations with the Axis.

The Foreign office in its statement said that President Rios had asked Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez to report "at his convenience" to the Senate the details of Morales' conversations abroad. The question of whether Chile is to break diplomatic relations with the Axis is the leading issue of the day.

'Must Disarm Axis,' Says Rayburn

JAN 7 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 6—Speaker Rayburn told a cheering House today that when victory at war is won "this time there must be no stopping until the vandalism and paganism of Berlin, Rome and Tokyo are wiped from the face of the world."

"We must disarm these vandals and keep them disarmed," Rayburn said. He had shortly before been reelected House Speaker as the Seventy-eighth Congress convened.

Post-War Problems Seen

He told the House that this nation would be confronted with "world-shaking" problems at the war's end and that the problems of "trade and commerce, peace and civilization, must be looked to."

Simultaneously he pledged that it would be his "unswerving determination" as Speaker "to protect, to defend the rights, the prerogatives and the powers of the House."

Roosevelt Report Tomorrow

Both the Senate and House quickly disposed of preliminaries so that President Roosevelt may report tomorrow on a year at war and his program to achieve victory.

Rayburn called for "teamwork" between the legislative and administrative branches of Government, and asserted: "The cooperation must be mutual and understood by all of us."

He said that he had "no complaint" about the cooperation tendered Congress in the past by the President, of whom he said, "I do not believe that a greater war leader than our present Commander in Chief could be found."

Serves Notice On Bureaus

But he served notice, as he did at a Democratic caucus yesterday, that department and bureau heads, seeking passage of legislation, must see to it that "those in position of responsibility up on the hill" are first consulted.

Representative Joseph Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, the Republican minority leader, escorted Rayburn into the chamber.

Martin was loudly applauded when he said the election was an exemple of "the American way of Government functioning at its very best" and "we are all a united people." He promised that there would be no division of membership on matters dealing with the war, though there might be differences on other matters.

"Victory Congress"

The Seventy-seventh Congress, he said, was kown as "the War Congress" and the present Congress would go down in history as "the Victory Congress."

Referring to Rayburn as "a great speaker" and "a great American," Martin suddenly broke into song, singing "Happy Birthday to You," and informed the House that it was fitting that Rayburn should have been elected on his sixty-first birthday.

Martin's defeat in the speakership race automatically made him Republican leader of the House. The Democrats renamed another Bay St[illegible]ueo Ol[illegible]maker, Representative McCor[illegible]k, as Democratic floor leader yesterday.

Rayburn Wins, 217 To 206

The vote for Speaker was: Rayburn, 217; Martin, 206; on strict party lines.

Martin had been nominated by Representative Woodruff, of Michigan, and Rayburn by Representative Sheppard, of California.

U. S. CASUALTIES ARE NOW 61,126

Figures Include Killed, Wounded and Missing.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Announced casualties of the United States armed forces from the outbreak of war to today, total 61,126, the Office of War Information reported today.

JAN 7 1943

This total includes killed, wounded, missing, interned in neutral countries and prisoners who are members of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Merchant Marine and the Philippine Scouts.

The War Department reported that as of December 20 the Army's casualties totaled 36,528. Of this number, 2,193, including 469 Philippine Scouts, were killed; 3,948, including 747 Philippine Scouts, were wounded; 1,016 are prisoners of war, and 106 are interned in neutral countries. Of the 3,948 wounded, 699 have returned to duty.

The Navy Department has reported or is in the process of reporting 23,254 casualties to next of kin from December 7, 1941, to today. This total includes:

Navy—Dead 4,657, wounded 1,769, missing 8,970.

Marine Corps—Dead 1,201, wounded 1,653, missing 1,943.

Coast Guard—Dead 51, wounded 19, missing 134.

Merchant Marine—Dead 429, wounded 9, missing 2,428.

The figures on merchant marine losses represent the latest total published as dead or missing according to Merchant Marine officials.

According to the Provost Marshal's office, 575 of the Navy and 769 marines are prisoners of war.

The total number of United States civilians interned, according to Japanese, German and Italian figures to date is 4,226. Of this number, 2,648 are held by the Japanese, 1,557 are held in Germany and twenty-one are held by the Italians.

Elmer Davis Won't Back Halsey Victory Prediction

Says He Can't Substantiate View War Will End in '43

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Elmer Davis, whose job is to keep the nation informed on the war, took exception today to a high-ranking naval officer's flat prediction of victory this year.

Asked for comment on the optimistic view recently expressed by Admiral William F. Halsey, the South Pacific commander, Mr Davis responded: "I have no information to support such a prediction, although I have been trying to get some."

On the contrary, the Director of War Information asserted, the Germans, to the best of his knowledge, still are building more submarines than the United Nations are sinking and the toll the U-boats are taking of Allied shipping is creating "heavy losses in ships and in the cargoes that go with them, and sometimes trained men on them."

Although he spoke pessimistically of the "continuing serious submarine menace," Mr. Davis said the United Nations, particularly the United States, for "some months" have been building ships faster than the Axis submarines were sinking them.

Of the State Department's recently issued white book detailing the efforts of the United States and other United Nations to prevent war in the decade before Pearl Harbor, Mr. Davis reported that Axis propagandists apparently were finding the publication hard to answer.

Davis Cautions U. S. On War

JAN 7 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 6—Elmer Davis, director of war information, spoke out today against overoptimism about an early end to the war and stressed particularly the "continuing serious submarine menace."

Davis, who in his New Year's message to the people advised them to expect casualties and losses, took specific exception to a prediction of Admiral William F. Halsey, South Pacific commander, that the war will end this year.

Still Building U-Boats

"I have no information to support such a prediction, although I have been trying to get some," Davis told a press conference.

Davis said that, to the best of his knowledge, the Germans were still building more submarines than the United Nations were sinking, while the toll that the German subs were taking of Allied shipping was creating "heavy losses in ships and in the cargoes that go with them, and sometimes trained men on them."

Axis "Indignant"

However, Davis said that the United Nations, particularly the United States, are now building ships faster than Axis submarines are sinking them.

Davis also reported that the German, Italian and Japanese radios "are still showing a great deal of indignation about our "white book"—the State Department's recent publication of official documents showing how the United States and the other United Nations tried in the decade before Pearl Harbor to prevent the war.

Direct News From Algiers

Army Wireless Channel to U. S. Expected to Spread Africa Tidings

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Elmer Davis, director of War Information, announced today the opening of a direct news transmission channel from Algiers to Washington by Army wireless, which he said would speed and greatly increase the flow of news from the North African front.

The first transmission this morning brought in 3,000 words of dispatches from American newspaper and press association correspondents and is expected hereafter to average about 10,00 words a day.

Davis Starts Book Drive With Tolstoy Epic on War

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—Tolstoy's "War and Peace," contributed by Elmer Davis, Director of War Information, was the first book collected in a new 1943 campaign to obtain millions of volumes for the armed forces.

The OWI, in announcing Mr. Davis's contribution, called on Americans to give "good" books.

"Members of the armed forces need books about the ideas for which they are fighting," the OWI said. "They need books to help a fellow get ahead in the Army or Navy or Marines or Merchant Marine. Most of all, they need books they will enjoy reading—good fiction, good mystery stories, good biographies."

The American Library Association, the American Red Cross and the United Service Organizations, in cooperation with the Office of Civilian Defense, are sponsoring the 1943 victory book campaign.

SECRET NAVY GUN DEATH TO PLANES

JAN 7 1943

Washington, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—The Navy's announcement Sunday that an unidentified American battleship had destroyed twenty Japanese dive bombers and twelve other Jap aircraft, the members of the battleship school of thought girded for another round. It seems to have made battleships terrors to warplanes.

This announcement told how the American battleship, part of an aircraft carrier task force which was attacked by planes of three Japanese carriers in the Battle of Santa Cruz Island October 28, shot down an initial assault flight of twenty dive bombers and bagged twelve more torpedo planes and dive bombers which attempted two more assaults.

The ship, the announcement said, suffered only one bomb hit, on a turret, and the damage was repaired so rapidly that she was able to participate in the Battle of Guadalcanal on November 14.

That anti-aircraft guns on our ships have been improved and now are able to throw up murderous curtains of fire is evident from this latest battleship-plane bout, and Navy Secretary Knox reports "the development of anti-aircraft defenses seems to have reached a very satisfactory point on our battleships—and in fact on all our ships."

The secret of this improvement seems to be a five-inch dual purpose gun, which Capt. Leland P. Lovette, Navy public relations chief, says is the main reliance of Navy anti-aircraft ordnance and which Secretary Knox calls a perfectly splendid weapon capable of firing against aerial or surface targets.

PACIFIC WAR BODY HEARS OF AIR LINES

Washington, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—The Pacific War Council, meeting with President Roosevelt at the White House, discussed today the possibility of strengthening supply lines by opening up new air routes across the Pacific. The British Ambassador to the United States, Lord Halifax, disclosed that the matter had been discussed, but no hint where any additional routes might be located.

Richard G. Casey, British Minister of State in Cairo, attended the meeting and reviewed operations in the Libyan campaign and the difficulties encountered there. Lord Halifax said that Mr. Casey was in this country primarily on problems of supply, and that the principal problem of the British Eighth Army was one of obtaining adequate amounts of such essentials as gas, food and ammunition.

Lord Halifax said he never made prophecies, but that he was quite confident that the Nazi forces would be cleared out of Tripoli.

Walter Nash, New Zealand's Minister to this country, said that the efforts in Mediterranean sector were a great help in the Pacific theater of operations. He added that the help would come to a large degree through release of shipping to carry supplies to Burma, India, China and elsewhere.

ROOSEVELT HONORS MEXICAN GENERAL

Washington, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—Award of the Legion of Merit to Gen. Cristobal Guzman Cardenas of the Mexican Army by President Roosevelt was announced today at the White House. The citation said:

"For extraordinary fidelity and exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service while in a position of high responsibility as military attache in Washington and delegate to the Inter-American Defense Board. His services contributed greatly to the present close cooperation between Mexico and the United States and his untiring efforts assisted in the cause of the democracies and the defense of the American republics."

Gen. Cardenas was the third foreigner and first Mexican to receive the award, which President Roosevelt authorized in an executive order on October 29, last, for members of the armed forces of the United States or of friendly foreign nations.

Admiral Hewitt Awarded DSM

(By the Associated Press)

Washington, Jan. 6—Vice-Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, commander of the American naval forces which covered Allied troop landings in French Morocco, received the Distinguished Service Medal today.

Secretary of Navy Knox presented the decoration on behalf of President Roosevelt.

JAN 7 1943

The Citation

The accompanying citation said:

"For exceptionally meritorious service in a duty of grave responsibility as commander of the United States naval forces in successful landing and occupation of certain objectives in French Morocco from November 7 to November 15, 1942. By his careful and exhaustive planning and his able and efficient combat of escort and coverage of United States Army landing forces, Rear Admiral Hewitt contributed greatly to the successful accomplishment of one of three major objectives in the occupation of North Africa."

British Envoy to Russia Arrives on Visit to U. S.

Kerr in New York, Will Go to Washington for Short Stay

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Sir Archibald John Kerr Clark Kerr, British Ambassador to Russia, has arrived in the United States for an unofficial visit, the British information service said tonight.

The Ambassador was believed to be in New York and was expected to come to Washington unofficially for a short stay. The information service said it was not known when he would reach the capital or how long he would remain here.

Pan-American Parley Canceled

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—The governing board of the Pan American Union, acting on the recommendation of the government of Colombia, today approved postponement indefinitely of the ninth international conference of American States scheduled to open in Bogota in December. Buzz Wagner Found Dead In Florida

By the Associated Press

JAN 7 1943

Johnstown, Pa., Jan. 6.—Lieut Col. Boyd D. (Buzz) Wagner whose name ranks alongside that of Colin Kelly and other air heroes of the pathetic Philippines campaign of World War II, lost his life when his single-engined plane crashed during a routine flight in Florida, it was disclosed tonight with discovery of the body.

The 26-year-old flyer had been missing since he left Eglin Field, Fla., on November 29, on a routine flight to Maxwell Field, Ala.

The War Department notified Wgner's grief stricken parents, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd M. Wagner, that the body had been found in the wreckage of a plane about 25 miles from Eglin Field.

Officers at the field declined to comment on the crash. The Pensacola, Fla., Journal stated, however, that the badly wrecked pursuit plane, its engine buried six feet in the earth, had been found 11 miles from De Funiak Springs. The body was mangled, it stated.

When the war broke out, Wagner was a first lieutenant stationed near Manila. There are many stories about his feats which led to his becoming the youngest lieutenant-colonel in the Army after he had been transferred to Australia.

Wagner was credited with downing three planes during one of the biggest aerial dogfights of the early New Guinea campaign.

GABLE GETS WINGS

Tyndall Field, Fla., Jan. 6 (A. P.).—Lieut. Clark Gable, former motion picture leading man, was graduated today from the Army's Air Force gunnery school at Tyndall Field.

Lieut. Gable, who came here last fall after receiving his commission in the Miami Beach Officer-candidate school, received his silver wings, emblematic of an Army aerial gunner, from Col. W. A. Maxwell. He said he was happy to have won them in a class which he described as a fine group of chaps, adding:

"They have blood in their eyes. They want to see action, and of course I would like to see action, too."

Lieut. Gable does not know his future orders. He enlisted as a private last summer, advancing to the rank of corporal when he entered Officer-Candidate School. He became a second lieutenant at Miami Beach and was promoted to first lieutenant during his training at Tyndall Field.

Japs Lack Only One Objective, Writer Asserts

JAN 7 1943

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Jan. 6.—The Japanese admitted during the first years of their war in China that they planned to fight the United States, and they have accomplished all but one thing they said they were going to accomplish in the Pacific, Clark Lee, Associated Press correspondent who served on Bataan and the Solomons, said during a visit here last night.

"I think they thought they would take New Caledonia before we began to fight back," Lee said.

Japanese army officials told Lee when he was following their army's conquests in China that when they had taken over just about what they have now their position would be impregnable, the correspondent said.

"They were very frank in admitting they expected to have a complete line of bases that would force us to take back what we had lost inch by inch—and that's exactly what we're doing," Lee said.

During his assignment in China, Lee became convinced that the Pacific war, when it came, would be a long one. He now believes the breakup of Japan's position in the Pacific is far off, and thinks she will concentrate next on China, with Russia as perhaps a still later goal. "But," he added, "I should imagine they'll be rather doubtful about that."

The correspondent after nearly four months back in the States feels the American people do not need much pushing to back up the fighting men with whom he worked on Corregidor and Guadalcanal. "From what I've seen here," Lee said, "I believe everyone is doing what he can with the best possible spirit."

The 35-year-old New Jerseyite disclaimed credit for initiating any revolutionary methods of war reporting, though he has been credited with being the first war correspondent to personalize his accounts of fighting men.

SOME SECTIONS OF THE DRAPERY AND ALLIED TRADES REPORTED CRITICISM OF RESTRICTIONS AND URGED THAT THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD DIG ALL UNNECESSARY EMPLOYES OUT OF CIVIL SERVICE BEFORE SHOPS WERE TRIMMED OUT OF EXISTENCE.

MANCHESTER REPORTED VERY SLACK MARKETS WITH CONSIDERABLE BUSINESS SIDE-TRACKED BY THE HOLIDAYS. MOST OF THE BUYING WAS OF CLOTH AND YARN FOR GOVERNMENT REQUIREMENTS.

DEMAND FOR YARN WAS MAINLY FOR COARSE COUNTS OF ORDINARY WEAVING QUALITIES ALTHOUGH THERE WERE A FEW CALLS FOR SPECIALTIES.

RAYON CIRCLES SAID YARN SUPPLIES WERE TIGHT BUT THAT LOOMS COULD BE KEPT RUNNING FOR SOME TIME WITHOUT RECEIVING NEW ORDERS. RAYON YARNS ARE BEING USED EXTENSIVELY FOR TIRES AND EXPERTS SAID

APPEARED THE PRACTICE WAS HERE TO STAY. LININGS AND INSULATING MATERIALS WERE CALLED FOR IN SUBSTANTIAL QUANTITIES.

FURTHER RESTRICTIONS ON CIVILIAN NON-ESSENTIALS EXPECTED

BY EDWARD ROBINSON

LONDON, JAN. 2-(AP)-MORE BRITONS EXPECT TO GET THEIR MARCHING ORDERS SOON.

NOT ALL WILL MARCH TO THE FRONT, OR THE SECOND FRONT, BUT THERE WILL BE MORE OF THEM AT WAR WORK ON THE HOME FRONT.

FORECASTERS PREDICTED THE NEW YEAR WOULD BE FULL OF SHOCKS FOR THE WHOLE NATION FROM 'TEEN-AGERS TO PENSIONERS.

THE AIM IS TO THROW THE WAR EFFORT INTO EVEN HIGHER GEAR AND BRING IN ENOUGH NEW WORKERS TO RELEASE ENOUGH FIGHTING-AGE MEN TO REPLACE EXPECTED CASUALTIES.

THE GOVERNMENT WAS REPORTED CONSIDERING REGISTRATION OF MEN UP TO 55 AND WOMEN UP TO 50 FOR INDUSTRIAL WORK.

THE CONSCRIPTION AGE FOR GIRLS MAY BE LOWERED TO INCLUDE 19-YEAR-OLDS OR EVEN THOSE A YEAR YOUNGER.

but never the less

Sima fled to Germany when a similar plot failed two years ago. The correspondent said that Sima left Germany late last week, was arrested in Italian territory and returned to Germany.

Other reports from Bucharest, the correspondent said, told of a wide scale year-end roundup of former members of the Iron Guard in Rumania when information seeped through to police that reorganization attempts had been begun.

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JAN 6-(AP)-JULIU MANIU, PEASANT LEADER WHO LED AGITATION IN RUMANIA 10 MONTHS AGO FOR WITHDRAWAL OF THAT COUNTRY FROM THE AXIS, WAS AMONG 4,000 PERSONS ARRESTED IN A NEW PURGE OF THE OLD IRON GUARD AFTER AN ATTEMPTED CHRISTMAS EVE PUTSCH, IT WAS REPORTED TODAY FROM BUDAPEST. JAN 7 1943

EIGHTY PERSONS HAVE BEEN EXECUTED ALREADY, IT WAS SAID.

THE WIFE OF HORIA SIMA, HIMSELF CAUGHT IN ITALY WHILE ATTEMPTING TO RETURN TO RUMANIA FROM GERMANY TO LEAD THE REVOLT, ALSO WAS TAKEN INTO CUSTODY. SIMA IS THE RUMANIAN IRON GUARD LEADER AND FORMER CABINET MEMBER.

PLANS FOR THE PUTSCH WERE SAID TO HAVE BEEN LAID ON A WIDE BASE AND CALLED FOR THE OUSTER OF MARSHAL ION ANTONESCU, HEAD OF THE GOVERNMENT.

THE IRON GUARD PARTICIPANTS HAD PLANNED, PRIVATE FOREIGN ADVICES SAID, TO CAPITALIZE ON THE GENERAL SENTIMENTS AGAINST THE WAR ON RUSSIA TO GAIN SUPPORT FOR THE GOVERNMENT THEY HOPED TO FORM.

THE POLICE DISCOVERED THE PLOT AND ACTED QUICKLY. THE RUMANIAN AND GERMAN MILITARY, CIVILIAN AND GESTAPO POLICE RESTORED THE RIGID CONTROLS WHICH HAD BEEN RELAXED IN RECENT MONTHS. RAILWAYS, HIGHWAYS AND FRONTIERS WERE CLOSELY GUARDED.

AUTOMOBILES WERE STOPPED AND THE OCCUPANTS WERE REQUIRED TO PRODUCE IDENTIFICATION PAPERS. EVEN PEDESTRIANS ON BUCHAREST STREETS WERE HALTED. CAFES AND AMUSEMENT PLACES WERE PUT UNDER AN 11 O'CLOCK CURFEW. AFTER WHICH ALL PERSONS WERE FORBIDDEN TO BE ON THE ARRESTS WERE CARRIED OUT IN BUCHAREST, PLOESTI AND OTHER TOWNS.

A NUMBER OF ENGINEERS OF THE MALAXA INDUSTRIAL WORKS WERE AMONG THOSE SEIZED. THE FACTORY FORMERLY WAS WELL KNOWN AS IRON GUARD HEADQUARTERS.

MANIU SENT A LETTER LAST MARCH TO MARSHAL ANTONESCU DEMANDING THAT THE GOVERNMENT DENOUNCE THE TRIPOWER PACT. HE ADVOCATED AVOIDIN FURTHER CONFLICT IN THE EAST AND CONCENTRATING ON REGAINING ALL TRANSYLVANIA.

AFTER HORIA SIMA'S FLIGHT AFTER AN UNSUCCESSFUL REVOLT IN JANUARY, 941, WHEN MACHINE GUN BATTLES IN THE STREETS OF BUCHAREST BROKE OUT AND TANKS WERE USED TO RESTORE ORDER, MANIU HAS BEEN THE ONLY IMPORTANT OPPORTUNIST REMAINING OPENLY ACTIVE IN RUMANIA.

BUCHAREST ITSELF MADE NO OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS OF THE PUTSCH ARRESTS. THE ONLY DISPATCH FROM THERE TODAY DEALT WITH THE ANNUAL RELIGIOUS CEREMONY OF THE BAPTISM OF THE CROSS, AN ORTHODOX RITUAL. KING MIHAI ATTENDED. JAN 7 1943

HELSINKI, FINLAND, JAN. 6-(AP)-THE HELSINKI NEWSPAPER UUSI SUOMI TODAY CHARGED THAT POWERFUL HOSTILE INTERESTS WHO VIEW WITH DISFAVOR CONTINUANCE OF FINNISH-AMERICAN RELATIONS WERE SYSTEMATICALLY SABOTAGING FINNISH SYMPATHIES IN THE UNITED STATES.

THIS NATIONAL COALITION PARTY NEWSPAPER CITED WHAT IT CALLED "EXAGGERATED AND UNTRUE" STORIES ABOUT FINLAND APPEARING IN THE AMERICAN PRESS.

IT ACCUSED THE HOSTILE INTERESTS WITH TRYING TO PORTRAY MEMBERS

OF THE FINNISH GOVERNMENT AS PERSONALLY ILL-DISPOSED TOWARD AMERICA, AS IN THE JAPANESE FILM INCIDENT.

(THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION ON DEC. 17 BROADCAST TO FINLAND A REPORT THAT FINNISH CABINET MEMBERS HAD ATTENDED A JAPANESE LEGATION PARTY IN HELSINKI ON THE ANNIVERSARY OF PEARL HARBOR AND HAD CONGRATULATED THE JAPANESE.

THE FINNS OFFICIALLY ACKNOWLEDGED THAT MOVIES HAD BEEN SHOWN DURING THE TEA PARTY BUT ASSERTED THE GUESTS HAD NOT KNOWN WHAT THE PROGRAM WOULD BE AND THAT THE FINNISH GOVERNMENT HAS "NO KNOWLEDGE OF ALLEGED CONGRATULATIONS ADDRESSED BY ANY OF ITS MEMBER TO THE JAPANESE MINISTER.")

THE NEWSPAPER EXPRESSED REGRET AT THE WASHINGTON ACTION IN SUSPENDING THE FINNISH INFORMATION SERVICE IN THE UNITED STATES BECAUSE IT PREVENTS GIVING THE AMERICAN PUBLIC THE TRUE PICTURE OF CONDITIONS HERE.

IN THE RECENT CONDUCT OF FINNISH AFFAIRS "THERE OUGHT TO BE NOTHING OUT OF HARMONY WITH OUR OFTEN EXPRESSED DESIRE TO KEEP ON THE BEST POSSIBLE TERMS WITH AMERICA," THE PAPER SAID.

HE SERVED WITH K.P.M. FOR 33 YEARS, 25 OF WHICH WERE SPENT ON THE SINGAPORE-NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES-AUSTRALIA RUN. HE WAS LIVING IN RETIREMENT IN SYDNEY WHEN THE EUROPEAN WAR BROKE OUT, AND RE-ENTERED MARITIME LIFE WHEN HOLLAND WAS INADED IN 1940. HIS SON, JAN, IS SERVING WITH THE NETHERLANDS NAVY.

SOMEWHERE IN [illegible], NOV. 25-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THIS AMERICAN FIELD HOSPITAL RECENTLY UNDERWENT AN AIR RAID WITHOUT A SCRATCH, AND THE CALMEST PATIENT WAS PVT.WILLIAM HUGHES OF CHARLOTTE, N.C., WHO SAID HE WAS HAPPY TO HAVE SUCH DRY SLEEPING QUARTERS AND GOOD MEDICAL ATTENTION FOR A SUPERFICIAL BAYONET WOUND.

HUGHES WAS WITH A GROUP OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS WHO WERE SITTING DOWN IN A SMALL CLEARING TO HAVE A BIT OF BULLY BEEF WHEN THREE JAPANESE BUMPED INTO THEM.

"THE JAPS LOOKED AS SURPRISED AS WE WERE. ONE OF THEM YELLED AND THREW HIS RIFLE LIKE A SPEAR, HITTING ME IN THE ARM.

"I GRABBED A TOMMYGUN AND GOT ONE AS THEY WERE SCRAMBLING FOR COVER, AND ONE OF MY BUDDIES GOT THE OTHER TWO."

JAN 7 1943

THE BUDDY WAS PARIS WILLIAMS OF OJAI, CALIF.

HUGHES SAID HE WAS EAGER TO GO BACK AND JOIN HIS MATES. ONE OF HIS PALS, HE SAID, IS ORVILLE SUTTON OF CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WHO PICKED OFF A JAPANESE TRYING TO CUT COMMUNICATION LINES.

OTHER CASUALTIES HERE INCLUDED CAPT.LLOYD FYMBO, OF SERGEANT BLUFF, IA., WHO BROKE HIS ARM FALLING INTO A SLIT TRENCH, AND PVT. GORDON OMHOLT, OF SHIOCTON, WISC., A HOSPITAL ORDERLY WHO WAS SKINNED UP DOING THE SAME.

AMONG THE NURSES HERE ARE BETTY HALL, LOS ANGELES, MARY KING, STAMPS, ARK., JANE GODWIN, ONTARIO, CANADA, [redacted] AND EDITH WHITTAKER OF PAWTUCKET, [redacted] R.I.

JAN 7 1943

MISS GODWIN AND MISS WHITTAKER WERE ON NIGHT DUTY WHEN THEY [redacted] HEARD A PLANE RECENTLY AND THOUGHT [redacted] IT WAS AN ALLIED [redacted] CRAFT UNTIL THE HEARD THE SHOUT [redacted] "RAID!" THEY STRETCHED OUT ON THE GROUND AND HEARD THE BOMBS STRIKE [redacted] HARMLESSLY IN THE MOUNTAINS.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, [redacted] 24-(DELAYED)-(AP)-UNDER NEW GUINEA'S BROILING HOT SUN I WATCHED AMERICAN TROOPS PILE A PORTABLE HOSPITAL UNIT INTO SEVERAL TRANSPORT PLANES HEADED FOR A SPOT WITHIN HEARING RANGE OF GUNFIRE IN THE BUNA AREA.

AMBULANCES AND TRUCKS LOADED HIGH WITH EQUIPMENT BACKED FLUSH WITH THE PLANE DOOR, THROUGH WHICH SWEATING ENLISTED MEN PUSHED CRATE AFTER CRATE.

JAN 7 1943

THE UNIT'S COMMANDING OFFICER IS MAJOR LEMUEL DAY, OF CHICAGO. (A LATER DISPATCH TO THE LONDON DAILY TELEGRAPH SAID MAJOR DAY HAD DIED AFTER WEEKS OF EXHAUSTING WORK AND HAD BEEN BURIED IN NEW GUINEA.)

OFFICERS SERVING UNDER MAJOR DAY INCLUDE LIEUT.LLOYD TAYLOR, OF (631 O'DONNEL) SAN FRANCISCO, MAJ.VICTOR STACEY, NEW ORLEANS, CAPT. WILLIAM EDWARDS, NEW ALBANY, IND., LIEUT.NATHAN BROOKS, DETROIT, AND LIEUT.JULIAN GUTOW, FLINT, MICH.

LIEUTENANT TAYLOR, AN OKLAHOMA UNIVERSITY GRADUATE, SAID THE UNIT WAS ORGANIZED ON A BOAT BOUND FOR AUSTRALIA LESS THAN SEVEN MONTHS AGO. HE EXPLAINED THE HOSPITAL WOULD BE ABLE TO HANDLE ANY CASE FROM A SCRATCH TO A MAJOR OPERATION RIGHT ON THE SPOT.

PVT.VENZEL THOMPSON OF DETROIT WAS SPORTING A SHINER WHICH HIS COMRADES JOKED ABOUT. THOMPSON'S OUTFIT WAS CHARGING A JAPANESE MACHINEGUN POSITION WHEN A BIT OF SHRAPNEL CUT HIS FOREHEAD SLIGHTLY, AND THE BLACK EYE WAS THE MAIN RESULT.

PVT.EARL WATERS, BREWTON, ALA., CLAIMED AT LEAST THREE JAPANESE WITH A DUCK-SHOOTING TECHNIQUE. HE AND HIS MATES, STRETCHED IN THE NEW GUINEA MUD, WAITED FOR THE JAPANESE TO CROSS A LOG OVER A LITTLE

30.24 — 147

CREEK CARRYING AMMUNITION AND SUPPLIES, THEN PICKED THEM OFF WITH AUTOMATIC RIFLES.

PVT.HERMAN WILBERT, A GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., MORTAR GUNNER WHO WAS INJURED WHEN A JAPANESE SHELL LANDED NEARBY, HOPES TO GET PATCHED UP IN TIME, HE SAID, FOR "THE KILL AT BUNA," WHICH HE BELIEVES IS COMING SOON.

JAN 7 1943

HUBERT MENNEGA, A BYRON CENTER, MICH., PRIVATE, WAS ON PATROL WHEN A SNIPER CAUGHT HIM WITH A SMALL-CALIBER BULLET. MENNEGA CONTINUED SOME DISTANCE BEFORE HE REALIZED HE WAS WOUNDED. HIS MAIN GRIEVANCE WAS THAT HOSPITALIZATION COST HIM A FLOWING BEARD WHICH HE HAD WANTED TO SAVE UNTIL IT COULD BE PHOTOGRAPHED.

EQUIPMENT TAKEN TO THE BATTLE AREA INCLUDED OXYGEN TANKS, A PORTABLE X-RAY, A COLLAPSIBLE OPERATING TABLE, STERILIZERS, TWO KEROSENE REFRIGERATORS FOR SERUMS AND TENTAGE FOR NINE WARDS. THE ENTIRE DISPLACEMENT WAS LESS THAN 50,000 POUNDS.

JAN 7 1943

THE SHIPMENT INCLUDED SEVERAL LARGE CASES OF MATTRESSES AND CLEAN SHEETS, THE FIRST MANY SOLDIERS WILL HAVE SEEN FOR MANY MONTHS.

THE ENLISTED MEN, ALL DRAFTEES, PAUSED LONG ENOUGH IN THEIR WORK TO TELL ME THEY WERE PLEASED TO GET A CHANCE TO GIVE FRONT LINE AID.

CORP.FRANK GORENSTEIN, OF PHILADELPHIA, THE GROUP'S LABORATORY TECHNICIAN, WAS A REGISTERED PHARMACIST IN CIVILIAN LIFE.

FRANK GLAB, OF CHICAGO, THE DRIVER, SAID HE WOULD CARRY PATIENTS AS WELL AS DRIVE THEM. "WE WON'T HAVE A VEHICLE WHERE WE'RE GOING."

PVT.JULIAN SCOPINO OF ST.LOUIS WAS IN CHARGE OF THE SUPPLY ROOM.

OTHERS IN THE UNIT INCLUDED: PRIVATES FRANK SORRELLS, INDIANAPOLIS; GERALD SULLIVAN, ST.LOUIS; RALPH HENSLEY AND JULIAN RUBIN, NEW YORK CITY.

BY DEAN SCHEDLER

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, DEC. 3-(DELAYED)-(AP)-"I WOULD A THOUSAND TIMES RATHER GO BACK UP THERE THAN GO THROUGH THIS," SAID CORP.BOYD LIGHTFOOT, OF SAULT SAINTE MARIE, MICH., AS HE RESTED TODAY IN AN AMERICAN FIELD HOSPITAL.

LIGHTFOOT HAD BEEN THROUGH FOUR DIFFERENT ATTACKS ON JAPANESE POSITIONS WHEN HE WAS STRICKEN YESTERDAY NEAR BUNA WITH WHAT HE THOUGHT WAS AN OLD-FASHIONED STOMACH ACHE, BUT WHICH THE DOCTORS TABBED APPENDICITIS.

HIS CHIEF DISAPPOINTMENT IS THAT THE TIME NEEDED FOR THE OPERATION WILL COST HIM A CHANCE FOR MORE GOOD SHOOTING. HE'S ALREADY WEARING ONE SET OF JAPANESE "DOGTAGS" AROUND HIS NECK, TAKEN FROM A SNIPER HE NAILED.

JAN 7 1943

THE HOSPITAL'S ONLY COMPLAINT CAME FROM LIEUT.ROSCOE DOUGLAS WHOSE WIFE LIVES IN ALEXANDRIA, LA. HE COMPLAINED OF THE HEAT INSTEAD OF BULLET WOUNDS HE RECEIVED IN THE LEGS WHILE ON A PATROL TRYING TOU OUTFLANK A MACHINEGUN NEST THAT WAS DELAYING AN ADVANCE.

DOUGLAS PRAISED THE FIRST AID MEN WHO DRESSED HIS WOUNDS AND CONTINUED THROUGH MACHINEGUN FIRE TO TREAT ANOTHER MAN AHEAD.

PVT.WORTH IGOU, OF SOUTH GATE, CALIF., SITTING ON THE EDGE OF A COT WAITING A CHANGE OF DRESSING ON A SHRAPNEL WOUND, SAID HE FELT PRETTY GOOD BUT STILL NEEDED TO CATCH UP ON SLEEP HE MISSED DURING SEVERAL NIGHTS OF FIGHTING.

NURSES WHO ARE MAKING NEWLY-ARRIVED CASUALTIES COMFORTABLE SAID A COKD DRINK OF WATER WAS THE MOST POPULAR ITEM. THEY REPORTED ALL THE PATIENTS WERE IN EXCELLENT CONDITION CONSIDERING THEY HAD ONLY BEEN TREATED AT FIELD DRESSING STATIONS. EVEN MEN WITH FRACTURES

WASHINGTON,JAN 6-(AP)-SOME YEARS AGO, WHEN MANY RUSSIAN CHURCHES WERE BEING DEMOLISHED TO MAKE ROOM FOR OTHER STRUCTURES, A POPULAR NEWS REEL SHOWN IN SOVIET PICTURE THEATRES PORTRAYED THE DYNAMITING OF A SACRED EDIFICE, WITH ITS BULBOUS TOWERS COLLAPSING AND ITS BELLS CRASHING DOWN UPON THE COBBLESTONED SQUARE.

THEN, BY THE TRICK OF REVERSING THE FILM, THE CHURCH FOR A MOMENT MAGICALLY RETURNED TO ITS FORMER STATE, WITH THE BELLS FLYING BACK INTO THE BELFRIES AND THE TOPPLED CROSSES WHIZZING BACK INTO PLACE.

JAN 7 1943

WAS THIS FILM PROPHETIC?

A FANCIFUL THOUGHT, PERHAPS, BUT ONE THAT OCCURRED TO A WASHINGTONIAN FORMERLY STATIONED IN THE SOVIET UNION, WHEN HE READ A DISPATCH FROM MOSCOW ANNOUNCING THAT PREMIER JOSEPH STALIN HAD SENT "GREETINGS AND THANKS" TO THE ACTING PATRIARCH OF THE RUSSIAN ORTHODOX CHURCH IN ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF A CHURCH SUBSCRIPTION TO BUY TANKS FOR THE RED ARMY.

DIPLOMATS WHO HAVE SPENT MANY YEARS IN THE U.S.S.R., DURING VARIOUS PERIODS OF THE POST-1917 ERA, CAUTIONED AGAINST DRAWING HASTY CONCLUSIONS. SOME POINTED OUT THAT THE NEW ECONOMIC POLICY-NEP-WHICH GRANTED A REPRIEVE TO PRIVATE ENTERPRISE IN 1922 WAS INTERPRETED BY SOME AT THAT TIME--MUCH TOO OPTIMISTICALLY--AS THE BEGINNING OF CAPITALISM'S COMEBACK IN RUSSIA.

HOWEVER, THE NEW ECONOMIC POLICY WAS LAUNCHED AT A RELATIVELY QUIET MOMENT IN HISTORY. STALIN'S UNPRECEDENTED MESSAGE TO THE ACTING PATRIARCH COMES IN THE MIDST OF A TERRIBLE WAR, AND AT A TIME WHEN THE WAR SEEMS TO BE CHANGING THE ATTITUDE OF MANY PEOPLE TOWARD RELIGION.

NO ONE YET HAS COME FORWARD WITH A PREDICTION THAT STALIN, WHO ATTENDED A THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY IN HIS YOUTH, IS ABOUT TO RETURN TO THE BOSOM OF THE CHURCH. BUT IT IS INEVITABLE THAT HIS MESSAGE TO THE ACTING PATRIARCH WILL EXCITE COMMENT THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

IT IS THE FIRST TIME SINCE STALIN CAME TO POWER THAT A FRIENDLY MESSAGE FROM HIM TO AN ECCLIESIASTIC HAS BEEN PUBLISHED BY THE SOVIET PRESS. IN PAST YEARS, CLERGYMEN FREQUENTLY HAVE BEEN MENTIONED IN THE SOVIET NEWSPAPERS, BUT USUALLY AS DEFENDANTS IN TREASON TRIALS.

JAN 7 1943

SUCH TRIALS AND THE ACTIVITIES OF THE MILITANT GODLESS LEAGUE WERE SO NUMEROUS THAT MANY PEOPLE OUTSIDE RUSSIA CAME TO BELIEVE THAT THE CHURCH HAD BEEN ALTOGETHER EXTERMINATED THERE.

IN 1941, HOWEVER, PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT CALLED ATTENTION TO THE FACT THAT ARTICLE 124 OF THE SOVIET CONSTITUTION RECOGNIZES FREEDOM OF WORSHIP.

AS THE OFFICIAL ENGLISH TRANSLATION OF THE HISTORY OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY ISSUED IN MOSCOW IN 1939 PUTS IT, "FREEDOM OF CONSCIENCE AND FREEDOM OF ANTI-RELIGIOUS PROPAGANDA IS RECOGNIZED FOR ALL CITIZENS" IN THE SOVIET CONSTITUTION.

WHAT DISTINGUISHES THE STATUS OF RELIGION IN RUSSIA FROM ITS

STATUS IN THE UNITED STATES IS THE FACT THAT THE SOVIET CONSTITUTION DOES NOT RECOGNIZE FREEDOM OF PRO-RELIGIOUS PROPAGANDA. IT IS ILLEGAL, FOR INSTANCE, TO TEACH RELIGION TO MINORS.

BEFORE THE REVOLUTION THERE WERE MORE THAN 300 CHURCHES IN MOSCOW. BY 1939 ABOUT TWENTY STILL WERE FUNCTIONING AS CHURCHES; THE OTHERS HAD DISAPPEARED, OR HAD BEEN CONVERTED TO GARAGES, MOTION PICTURE THEATRES, WORKERS' CLUBS, ANTI-RELIGIOUS MUSEUMS, AND SO FORTH.

JAN 7 - 1943

BUT SOME CHURCHES STILL WERE OPEN THEN, THOUGH ATTENDED ALMOST EXCLUSIVELY BY ELDERLY PEOPLE; AND SOME ARE OPEN NOW.

AS FOR STALIN'S MESSAGE TO THE PATRIARCH, THE MERE FACT THAT THE PREMIER RECOGNIZED THE CHURCHMAN'S EXISTENCE WAS UNPRECEDENTED NEWS, COMING OUT OF MOSCOW, AND FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS DOUBTLESS WILL BE AWAITED BY THOSE KEENLY INTERESTED IN THE TREND OF THOUGHT IN THAT COUNTRY.

THERE WILL HAVE TO BE MANY FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS, HOWEVER, BEFORE RELIGIOUS FREEDOM IN RUSSIA RESEMBLES TO ANY APPRECIABLE DEGREE WHAT AMERICANS ARE ACCUSTOMED TO REGARD AS RELIGIOUS FREEDOM.

JAN 7 1943

FOR INSTANCE, NEITHER THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT'S PRINTING PRESSES NOR THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE HERE DO ANY PRINTING AND DISTRIBUTING OF BIBLES.

BUT IN RUSSIA THERE ARE NO PRIVATE PUBLISHERS OF BOOKS. IN THE UNITED STATES THERE ARE.

THAT, PERHAPS, IS THE BASIC DISTINCTION OF FREEDOM IN THE UNITED STATES--ANY KIND OF FREEDOM. IT IS FREEDOM PLUS PRIVATE ENTERPRISE.

BY GLENN BABB.

THE NEWS FROM NORTH AFRICA IS LIKELY TO MAKE DEMANDS ON THE AMERICAN READER'S PATIENCE DURING THE NEXT FEW WEEKS OR EVEN MONTHS. THE HOPES FOR A SPEEDY EXPULSION OF THE AXIS FROM AFRICA, KINDLED IN MANY BREASTS BY THE BRILLIANT EARLY SUCCESS OF THE AMERICAN-BRITISH LANDINGS IN MOROCCO AND ALGERIA AND THE SIMULTANEOUS TRIUMPH OF THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY OVER ROMMEL, NOW ARE SHOWN CLEARLY TO HAVE OUTRUN THE MILITARY POSSIBILITIES. OBVIOUSLY WE ARE JUST ENTERING A PERIOD OF PREPARATION WHICH REQUIRES GIGANTIC EXERTIONS ON BOTH ARMS OF THE UNITED NATIONS' GREAT AFRICAN PINCERS BEFORE DECISIVE BLOWS CAN BE STRUCK AGAIN.

EVEN WERE THE ALLIES READY FOR DELIVERY OF WHAT THEY HOPE---WITH MUCH JUSTIFICATION--WILL BE THE COUP DE GRACE TO THE ENEMY IN AFRICA, THE WEATHER PRESENTS OBSTACLES THAT MAY PERSIST UNTIL THE WINTER IS NEARLY SPENT. WES GALLAGHER'S ABLE AND ILLUMINATING DISPATCH OF YESTERDAY, SUMMARIZING HIS CONCLUSIONS AFTER A 2,100-MILE TOUR OF THE FRONT, DISCLOSES THAT RAIN AND MUD PROBABLY WILL IMMOBILIZE THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH TANKS FORCES IN TUNISIA UNTIL LATE FEBRUARY. UNTIL THEN THE PROSPECTIVE BATTLEFIELDS WILL BE COVERED WITH MUCK THAT WILL MAKE EVEN THE LIGHTEST TANKS HELPLESS.

JAN 7 1943

FOR PERHAPS TWO MORE MONTHS, THEN, THE BATTLE OF REINFORCEMENT AND SUPPLY MUST CONTINUE TO OCCUPY FIRST PLACE IN THE AFRICAN CAMPAIGNS. TIME WILL NOT NECESSARILY BE ON THE SIDE OF THE ALLIES, FOR THE GERMANS AND ITALIANS HAVE THE ADVANTAGE OF MUCH SHORTER COMMUNICATIONS LINES AND THERE IS EVIDENCE THAT THEY ARE MAKING GOOD USE OF THIS ASSET, DESPITE THE HEAVY TOLL TAKEN BY THE BRITISH NAVY AND THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH AIR FORCES OFF THE COASTS OF ITALY, TUNISIA AND LIBYA. GALLAGHER REPORTS THAT HITLER IS SENDING SOME OF HIS BEST FLIERS AND GROUND

30.24 —— 153

ASSURANCE THAT AMERICAN PREPARATIONS ARE PROCEEDING STEADILY IS CONTAINED IN THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE UNITED STATES FIFTH ARMY HAS BEEN ACTIVATED, WITH LIEUT.GEN.MARK W.CLARK, HERO OF THE PRE-INVASION PHASE OF THE AFRICAN ADVENTURE, IN COMMAND. THE IMMEDIATE CHANGE IS LARGELY ONE OF ADMINISTRATIVE FORM, FOR CLARK, AS DEPUTY TO THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF, LIEUT.GEN.DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER, ALREADY EXERCISED MOST OF THE FUNCTIONS OF AN ARMY COMMANDER. BUT THERE IS INSPIRATION IN THE NEWS THAT A UNITED STATES ARMY ONCE MORE HAS TAKEN FORM ON FOREIGN BATTLEFIELDS. AN ARMY NORMALLY CAN NOT BE SMALLER THAN TWO CORPS OF TWO DIVISIONS EACH, AND THE FORMATION OF CLARK'S COMMAND WOULD INDICATE THAT A FORMIDABLE AMERICAN FORCE, PREPARED FOR VIGOROUS OFFENSIVE ACTION, IS READY TO TAKE ITS PLACE IN THE AFRICAN FIGHTING ALONGSIDE THE BRITISH FIRST AND EIGHTH ARMIES.

A86

JAN 7 1943

THE FIFTH ARMY IS THE FIRST AMERICAN ARMY TO OPERATE ABROAD SINCE THE THIRD ARMY, OR ARMY OF OCCUPATION, WAS WITHDRAWN FROM GERMANY AFTER THE LAST WAR. ITS INCEPTION RECALLS PERSHING'S FORMATION OF THE FIRST AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE SHORTLY BEFORE HE LAUNCHED THE ST. MIHIEL OFFENSIVE. PERSHING RETAINED COMMAND OF THE FIRST ARMY UNTIL THE ARGONNE DRIVE WAS WELL UNDER WAY, WHEN HE FORMED THE SECOND ARMY UNDER GENERAL BULLARD AND TURNED THE FIRST OVER TO GENERAL LIGGETT.

THE LULL IN TUNISIA IS MATCHED IN LIBYA, WHERE DAY AFTER DAY THERE IS "NOTHING TO REPORT" FROM GENERAL MONTGOMERY'S EIGHTH ARMY, WHOSE VANGUARDS STILL ARE NEARLY 200 MILES FROM TRIPOLI IN THE DIFFICULT DESERT COUNTRY JUST EAST OF THE WADI ZEM-ZEM.

MONTGOMERY'S SUPPLY PROBLEM IS A TREMENDOUS ONE, FOR HIS ADVANCE INTO TRIPOLITANIA HAS GONE SOME 500 MILES, AS THE DESERT TRACKS RUN, BEYOND BENGASI, THE NEAREST SUITABLE PORT. AS HIS LINES LENGTHEN THOSE OF ROMMEL BECOME SHORTER AND EASIER. IN TRIPOLITANIA AS IN TUNISIA IT WILL TAKE TIME TO GATHER THE POWER FOR THE NEXT ALLIED BLOWS.

FIGHTERS INTO TUNISIA AND GIVING EVERY SIGN THAT HE MEANS TO FIGHT WITH ALL THE RESOURCES HE CAN SPARE FROM HIS COMMITMENTS ELSEWHERE, PARTICULARLY IN RUSSIA, TO RETAIN A FOOTHOLD IN AFRICA. AS LONG AS HE DOES THAT THE DREADED ALLIED INVASION OF EUROPE FROM THE SOUTH PROBABLY CAN BE POSTPONED.

Roosevelt Says Victory May Come by End of 1944, Pledges Permanent Disarmament of Axis Nations; Russians Surging Ahead, 75 Miles From Rostov

'Very Substantial Advance' on All Fronts in 1943 Is Foreseen

EARLY TRIUMPH HINTED

78th Congress May Have Privilege of Making Peace, Says Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP) To the stormy applause of the 78th Congress, President Roosevelt predicted today that 1943 would see a "very substantial advance along the roads that lead to Berlin, Rome and Tokyo," and demanded the permanent disarmament of the Axis nations after the war is won.

The United Nations "can and must remain united" to enforce that disarmament, he said and to help achieve a degree of world economic stability that will make freedom from want a fact. In this effort the United States must participate fully, he implied, for "we cannot make an America an island in either a military or economic sense."

Domestic Reforms Urged

With vigor, he "dissented" from the view that war time is no time for a discussion of domestic reforms. In very general terms he called for an expansion of the social security system and for planning that will give our fighting men permanent employment, when the armed forces of this nation are demobilized.

Mr. Roosevelt was delivering his annual message on the "State of the Union," speaking it in person before a joint session of the House and Senate, before a glittering assemblage of big names, cabinet members, and the diplomats of the Allied nations.

Report on World

It developed, however, into a report on the state of the world; on the status of the Allied cause, which he found encouraging; and on American war production, which he found excellent—"the arsenal of democracy is making good," he said. To all this he added a guarded prediction that this Congress may have "the historic privilege" of making the peace.

It was a conciliatory message, one that stressed the victory objectives and accomplishments, upon which all are united, and avoided specific recommendations for domestic legislation which would stir up factional disputes.

Ultimate Objective

His reference to the always controversial subject of social security was couched in the general terms of desirable ultimate objectives, with no insistence upon immediate action. The issue of taxes he ignored altogether. That subject is to be discussed in his budget message on Monday.

The result of all this was that Republicans and Democrats alike praised the message, almost unstintedly. The Republican leader in the Senate, Senator McNary of Oregon, for instance, found it "an excellent review of current conditions affecting our war and productive effort." Even such a steadfast foe of Mr. Roosevelt's policy as Rep. Fish (R-NY) thought it a "very fine speech." And, of course, the Democratic membership was profuse in its praise.

Partisan Rowing Avoided

If the objective of the address was to promote unity and avoid bitter partisan rowing, it obviously accomplished its purpose. But just as obviously the rowing will come later—when specific legislative proposals are presented.

The House membership assembled noisily in the House chamber a half hour before the President's arrival. There was much back-slapping and effusive exchanging of greetings. Meanwhile, page boys, closely supervised by Chairman Bloom of the Foreign Affairs committee, arranged chairs around the rostrum for the distinguished guests.

Soon the Senate entered, and paraded in double file down the center aisle, led by Senator McNary and Senator Barkley (D-Ky) in formal morning attire. Then, in single file, the diplomatic corps entered, to the applause of the Congressmen. Prominent among them was Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador; and Ambassador Litvinoff of Russia.

Ovation for Hull

Next came the cabinet and there was an ovation for Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State. Finally, the doorkeeper of the House, Joseph Sinnott, announced:

"The President of the United States."

Everyone arose. Cheers and the "rebel yells" of Southern members mingled with a tumult of hand-clapping. Meanwhile, the President was making his way to the rostrum, on the arm of his military aide, Major General Edwin M. Watson. He smiled a greeting to Vice President Wallace and Speaker Rayburn and prepared to speak. His naval aide, Captain John L. McCrea, placed his manuscript—typewritten and bound in a black loose-leaf notebook—before him. Mr. Roosevelt removed his pince-nez glasses and placed them on the desk before him, under the semi-circle of eight microphones. He waited for the din to subside and then began.

Spoke Quietly, Swiftly

He spoke quietly throughout, quietly and swiftly. Only occasionally did he raise his voice to emphasize his points. Characteristically, his head bobbed up and down with the rythm of his words.

He began with a review of 1942.

"The Axis powers knew that they must win the war in 1942—or eventually lose everything," he said. "I do not need to tell you that our enemies did not win the war in 1942."

He praised the Russians for their defense of Stalingrad and their present offensives. In the Pacific the battle of Midway was the most important victory, he said, for it secured to the United Nations communication lines stretching far "in every direction."

Japs Will Be Smoked Out

"The period of our defensive attrition in the Pacific is passing," he said. "Now our aim is to force the Japanese to fight. Last year we stopped them. This year we advance and fight."

The ultimate outcome, he said, is a mathematical certainty — "that will become evident to the Japanese people themselves when we strike at their home islands, and bomb them constantly from the air." In these attacks, he asserted, we shall be "closely joined with the heroic people of China." Even today, he added to the amazement of many, more material is being delivered in China by airplane than ever was carried over the famous Burma road.

In the European theater, the effort is to lessen the pressure on Russia, he said, through the successful invasion of North Africa.

This, he added, has opened what Winston Churchill called "the under-belly of the Axis" to attack, and removed any danger of an Axis invasion of South America. He said "great rains and appalling mud" have delayed the "final battles for Tunisia and the Axis is reinforcing its positions there. But he expressed confidence that "though the fighting will be tough x x x the last vestige of Axis power will be driven from the south shores of the Mediterranean."

Churchill, Stalin, Chiang Cheered

A reference to Winston Churchill drew a loud cheer, the name of Joseph Stalin evoked an even mightier one, and the loudest of all came with the mention of the name of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of China.

"I cannot prophesy," the President said. "I cannot tell you when or where the United Nations are going to strike next in Europe. But we are going to strike—and strike hard.

"I cannot tell you whether we are going to hit them in Norway, or through the Low countries, on in France, or through Sardinia or Sicily, or through the Balkans, or through Poland—or at several points simultaneously. But I can tell you that no matter where and when we strike by land, we and the British and the Russians will hit them from the air heavily and relentlessly. Day in and day out we shall heap tons upon tons of explosives on their war factories and utilities and seaports.

Allies Hold Air Superiority

"Hitler and Mussolini will understand the enormity of their miscalculations—that the Axis would always have the advantage of superior air-power as they did when they bombed Warsaw, Rotterdam London and Coventry. That superiority has gone—forever.

"Yes—the Nazis and the Fascists have asked for it—and they are going to get it."

He went on to talk of production.

Numerically, he said, tank and plane production fell short of the 1942 goals, and yet 48,000 military planes were turned out, more than the aircraft production of all the Axis countries together.

Plane Output Rapidly Rising

In December, he added, plane production was at a rate of 5,500 monthly and "rapidly rising." Moreover, he pointed out, as time goes on the "averages of our types weigh more take more man-hours to make, and have more striking power. Tank schedules were revised as the result of battle experiences and a portion of the tank-production capacity diverted to making "new, deadly field weapons, especially self propelled artillery."

He gave these 1942 production figures:

Combat vehicles—56,000.

Machine guns—670,000.

Anti-tank guns—21,000.

Small arms ammunition—10,250,000,000 rounds.

Artillery ammunition—181,000,000 rounds.

"These facts and figures," he added grimly, "will give no aid and comport to the enemy."

Criticism An Impetus

There had been criticism of the production effort, he said—some of it "based on guesswork and even on malicious falsification of fact"—but on the whole the criticism had "spurred us on" and "reflected a normal American impatience to get on with the job."

Inconveniences and disturbances and "even hardships" were a necessary part of the war effort, he said, and he predicted that 1943 would "not be an easy year for us on the home front." The American people, he added, will "feel in many ways in our daily lives the sharp pinch of war."

Mistakes Acknowledged

He acknowledged that mistakes had been made on the home front. There had been "too many complicated questionnaires," he said, agreeing with a group of Senators which had been conducting an investigation of this aspect of war-time regulation.

But, he added, the solution of war-time problems requires the assembling of much information and the questionaires have "represented an honest, sincere attempt" to obtain it.

He went on to discuss post war plans, saying that first of all:

"We of the United Nations want a decent peace and a durable peace. x x x It would be sacrilegious if this nation and the world did not attain some real lasting good out of all these efforts and sufferings and bloodshed and death.

Employment Security

30.24 —155

"The men in our armed forces want a lasting peace and, equally, they want permanent employment for themselves, their families and their neighbors when they are mustered out at the end of the war."

They will, he added, have a right to expect such employment. Then followed his reference to social security:

"When you talk with our young men and women, you will find that with the opportunity for employment they want assurance against the evils of all major economic hazards—assurance that will extend from the cradle to the grave. This great government can and must provide this assurance.

"I have been told that this is no time to speak of a better America after the war. I am told it is a grave error on my part.

"I dissent.

"If the security of the individual citizen, or the family, should become a subject of national debate, the country knows where I stand.

Issue May Loom Large

"I say this now to this Seventy-Eighth Congress, because it is wholly possible that freedom from want—the right of employment and the right of assurance against life's hazards—will loom very large as a task of America during the coming two years.

"I trust it will not be regarded as an issue—but rather as a task for all of us to study sympathetically, to work out with a constant regard for the attainment of the objective, with fairness to all and with injustice to none."

But economic security, freedom from want and fear, cannot be attained unless there is assurance of lasting peace, he argued.

Complete Disarmament

"It is clear to us," he said, "that if Germany and Italy and Japan—or any one of them—remain armed at the end of this war, or are permitted to rearm, they will again, and inevitably, embark upon an ambitious career of world conquest. They must be disarmed and kept disarmed, and they must abandon the philosophy, and the teaching of that philosophy, which has brought so much suffering to the world.x x x x

"Today the United Nations are the mightiest military coalition in history. They represent an overwhelming majority of the population of the world. Bound together in solemn agreement that they themselves will not commit acts of aggression or conquest against any of their neighbors, the United Nations can and must remain united for the maintenance of peace by preventing any attempt to rearm in Germany, in Japan, in Italy, or in any other nation which seeks to violate the Tenth Commandment—'Thou shalt not covet'.

Demand Success

"There are cynics and skeptics who say it cannot be done. The American people and all the freedom-loving peoples of this earth are now demanding that it must be done. And the will of these people shall prevail."

In closing he spoke assuringly of the future and with certainty of advances to be made in the present year.

"Therefore I say," he said, "that us—all of us—have confidence. Let us redouble our efforts.

"A tremendous, costly, long-enduring task in peace as well as in war is still ahead of us.

"But, as we face that continuing task, we may know that the state of this nation is good—the heart of this nation is sound—the spirit of this nation is strong—the faith of this nation is eternal."

JAN 8 - 1943

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's annual message to Congress follows:

Mr. Vice-President, Mr. Speaker, members of the Senate and of the House of Representatives:

The Seventy-eighth Congress assembles in one of the great moments in the history of this nation. The past year was perhaps the most crucial for modern civilization; the coming year will be filled with violent conflict—yet with high promise of better things.

We must appraise the events of 1942 according to their relative importance; we must exercise a sense of proportion.

First in importance in the American scene has been the inspiring proof of the great qualities of our fighting men. They have demonstrated these qualities in adversity as well as in victory.

Spirit Will Live Forever

As long as our flag flies over this Capitol, Americans will honor the soldiers, sailors and marines who fought our first battles of this war against overwhelming odds—the heroes, living and dead, of Wake and Bataan and Guadalcanal, of the Java Sea and Midway and the North Atlantic convoys. Their unconquerable spirit will live forever.

By far the largest and most important developments in the whole strategic picture of 1942 were the events on the long fronts in Russio: first, the implacable defense of Stalingrad, and, second, the offensives by the Russian armies at various points which started in the latter part of November and which still roll on with great force and effectiveness.

The other major events of the year were: The series of Japanese advances in the Philippines, the East Indies, Malaya and Burma; the stopping of the Japanese in the mid-Pacific, the South Pacific and the Indian oceans; the successful defense of the Near East by the British counter-attack through Egypt and Libya; the American-British occupation of North Africa.

Battle Of Convoy Routes

Of continuing importance in the year 1942 were the unending, bitterly contested battles of the convoy routes, and the gradual passing of air superiority from the Axis to the United Nations.

The Axis powers knew that they must win the war in 1942—or eventually lose everything. I do not need to tell you that our enemies did not win this war in 1942.

In the Pacific area, our most important victory in 1942 was the air and naval battle off Midway Island. That action is historically important because it secured for our use communication lines stretching thousands of miles in every direction. In placing this emphasis on the battle of Midway, I am not unmindful of other successful actions in the Pacific, in the air and on land and afloat—especially those on the Coral Sea and New Guinea and in the Solomon Islands.

Essentially Defensive

But these actions were essentially defensive. They were part of the delaying strategy that characterized this phase of the war.

During this period we inflicted steady losses upon the enemy—great losses of Japanese planes, naval vessels, transports and cargo ships. As early as one year ago, we set as a primary task in the war of the Pacific day-by-day and week-by-week destruction of more Japanese war material than Japanese industry could replace.

Most certainly, that task has been and is being performed by our fighting ships and planes. A large part of this task has been accomplished by the gallant crews of our American submarines who strike on the other side of the Pacific at Japanese ships—right at the very mouth of the harbor of Yokohama.

Mathematical Basis

We know that as each day goes by, Japanese strength in ships and planes is going down and down, and American strength in ships and planes is going up and up. The eventual outcome can be put on a mathematical basis. That will become evident to the Japanese people themselves when we strike at their own home islands, and bomb them constantly from the air.

In the attacks against Japan, we shall be joined with the heroic people of China, whose ideals of peace are so closely akin to our own.

Even today we are flying as much lend-lease material into China as ever traversed the Burma road, flying it over mountains 17,000 feet high, flying blind through sleet and snow.

Shall Overcome Obstacles

We shall overcome all the formidable obstacles and get the battle equipment into China to shatter the power of our common enemy. From this war China will realize the security, the prosperity and the dignity which Japan has sought so ruthlessly to destroy.

The period of our defensive attrition in the Pacific is passing. Now our aim is to force the Japanese to fight. Last year we stopped them. This year we intend to advance.

In the European theater of war during this past year it was clear that our first task was to lessen the concentrated pressure on the Russian front by compelling Germany to divert part of her manpower and equipment to another theater of war.

Reached Objectives

After months of secret planning and preparation in the utmost detail, an enormous amphibious expedition was embarked for French North Africa from the United States and the United Kingdom in hundreds of ships. It reached its objectives with very small losses, and has already produced an important effect upon the whole situation of the war.

It has opened to attack what Mr. Churchill well described as "the under-belly of the Axis," and it has removed the always dangerous threat of an Axis attack through West Africa against the South Atlantic Ocean and the continent of South America itself.

The well-timed and splendidly executed offensive from Egypt by the British Eighth Army was a part of the same major strategy of the United Nations.

Final Battles Delayed

Great rains and appalling mud and very limited communications have delayed the final battle of Tunisia. The Axis is reinforcing its strong positions. But I am confident that though the fighting will be tough, when the final Allied assault is made, the last vestige of Axis power will be driven from the south shores of the Mediterranean.

Any review of the year 1942 must emphasize the magnitude and diversity of the military activities in which this nation has become engaged. As I speak to you approximately 1,500,000 of our soldiers, sailors, marines and flyers are in service outside our continental limits, all through the world.

Our merchant seamen are carrying supplies to them and to our Allies over every sea lane.

Outshooting The Enemy

Few Americans realize the amazing growth of our air strength, though I am sure our enemy does. Day in and day out our forces are bombing the enemy and meeting him in combat on many different fronts over the world.

And for those who question the quality of our aircraft and ability of our flyers, I point to the fact that in Africa we are shooting down two enemy planes to every one we lose, and in the Pacific and in the Southwest Pacific we are shooting them down four to one.

We pay the tribute of the United States of America to the fighting men of Russia and China and Britain and the various members of the British commonwealth—the millions of men who through the years of this war have fought our common enemies, and have denied to them the world conquest which they sought.

Welcomes French

We pay tribute to the soldiers and flyers and seamen of others of the United Nations whose countries have been overrun by Axis hordes.

As a result of the Allied occupation of North Africa, powerful units of the French army and navy are going into action with the United Nations' forces. We welcome them as allies and as friends. They join with those Frenchmen who, since the dark days of June, 1940, have been fighting valiantly for the liberation of their stricken country.

We pay tribute to the fighting leaders of our Allies, to Winston Churchill, to Joseph Stalin and to the Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. There is a very real unanimity between the leaders of the United Nations. This unity is effective in planning and carrying out the major strategy of this war and in building up and maintaining the lines of supply.

JAN 8 - 1943

Going To Strike Here!

I cannot prophesy. I cannot tell you when or where the United Nations are going to strike next in Europe. But we are going to strike—and strike hard. I cannot tell you whether we are going to hit them in Norway, or through the Low Countries, or in France, or through Sardinia or Sicily, or through the Balkans, or through Poland—or at several points simultaneously.

But I can tell you that no matter where and when we strike by land, we and the British and the Russians will hit them from the air heavily and relentlessly.

Day in and day out we shall heap tons upon tons of explosives on their war factories and utilities and seaports.

Superiority Gone Forever

Hitler and Mussolini will understand the enormity of their miscalculations—that the Nazis would always have the advantage of superior air power as they did when they bombed Warsaw, Rotterdam, London and Coventry. That superiority has gone—forever.

Yes—the Nazis and the Fascists have asked for it—and they are going to get it.

Our forward progress in this war has depended upon our progress on the production front.

There has been criticism of the management and conduct of our war production. Much of this self-criticism has had a healthy effect. It has spurred us on. It has reflected a normal American impatience to get on with the job. We are the kind of people who are never quite satisfied with anything short of miracles.

Confidence Justified

But there has been some criticism based on guesswork and even on malicious falsification of fact. Such criticism creates fears, and weakens our total effort.

I do not wish to suggest that we should be completely satisfied with our production progress—today or next month or ever. But I can report to you with genuine pride on what has been accomplished during 1942.

A year ago we set certain production goals for 1942 and 1943. Some people, including some experts, thought that we had pulled some big figures out of a hat just to frighten the Axis. But we had confidence in the ability of our people to establish new records. That confidence has been justified.

48,000 Military Planes

Of course, we realized that some production objectives would have to be changed—some adjusted upward, and others downward; some items would be taken out of the program completely and others added. This was inevitable as we gained battle experience, and as technological improvements were made.

Our 1942 airplane production and tank production fell short, numerically, of the goals set a year ago. Nevertheless, we have plenty of reason to be proud of our record for 1942. We produced about 48,000 military planes—more than the airplane production of Germany, Italy and Japan together.

JAN 8 - 1943

Last month, December, we produced 5,500 military planes and the rate is rapidly rising. Furthermore, as each month passes by, the averages of our types weigh more, take more man-hours to make, and have more striking power.

Tank Schedule Revised

In tank production, we revised our schedule—and for good and sufficient reasons. As a result of hard experience in battle, we have diverted a portion of our tank producing capacity to a stepped-up production of new, deadly field weapons, especially self-propelled artillery.

Here are some other production figures:

In 1942 we produced 56,000 combat vehicles, such as tanks and self-propelled artillery.

In 1942 we produced 670,000 machine guns, six times greater than our production in 1941 and three times greater than our total production during the year and a half of our participation in the first World War.

JAN 8 - 1943

21,000 Anti-Tank Guns

We produced 21,000 anti-tank guns, six times greater than our 1941 production.

We produced ten and a quarter billion rounds of small arms ammunition, five times greater than our 1941 production and three times greater than our total production in the First World War.

We produced 181,000,000 rounds of artillery ammunition, twelve times greater than our 1941 production and ten times greater than our total production in the First World War.

The arsenal of democracy is making good.

No Comfort To Enemy

These facts and figures will give no aid and comfort to the enemy. On the contrary, I can imagine they will give him considerable discomfort. I suspect Hitler and Tojo will find it difficult to explain to the German and Japanese people just why it is that "decadent, inefficient democracy" can produce such phenomenal quantities of weapons and munitions—and fighting men.

We have given the lie to certain misconceptions—especially the one which holds that the various blocs or groups within a free country cannot forego their political and economic differences in time of crisis and work together toward a common goal.

While we have been achieving this miracle of production during the past year our armed forces have grown from a little over 2,000,000 to 7,000,000. In other words, we have withdrawn from the labor force and the farms some 5,000,000 of our younger workers and in spite of this our farmers have contributed their share to the common effort by producing the greatest quantity of food ever made available during a single year in all our history.

Burdensome Regulations

Is there any person among us so simple as to believe that all this could have been done without creating some dislocations in our normal life, some inconveniences and even some hardships?

Who could have hoped to have done this without burdensome Government regulations which are a nuisance to everyone, including those who have the thankless task of administering them?

We all know that there have been mistakes—mistakes due to the inevitable process of trial and error inherent in doing big things for the first time. We all know that there have been too many complicated forms and questionnaires. I know about that. I have had to fill some of them out myself.

JAN 8 - 1943

Fair Distribution

But we are determined to see to it that our supplies of food and other essential civilian goods are distributed on a fair and just basis—to rich and poor, management and labor, farmer and city dweller alike. And we are determined to keep the cost of living at a stable level. All this has required much information. The forms and questionnaires represent an honest and sincere attempt by honest and sincere officials to obtain this information.

We have learned by the mistakes that have been made.

Our experience will enable us during the coming year to improve the necessary mechanisms of wartime economic controls, and to simplify administrative procedures. But we do not intend to leave things so lax that loopholes will be left for cheaters, for chiselers, or for the manipulators of the black market.

Even Some Hardships

Of course, there have been inconveniences and disturbances—and even hardships. And there will be many, many more before we finally win. Yes, 1943 will not be an easy year for us on the home front. We shall feel in many ways in our daily lives the sharp pinch of total war.

Fortunately, there are only a few Americans who place appetite above patriotism. The overwhelming majority realize that the food we send abroad is for military purposes, for our own and Allied fighting forces and for necessary help in areas that we occupy.

We Americans intend to do this great job together. In our common labors we must build and fortify the very foundation of national unity—confidence in one another.

One Pertinent Fact

It is often amusing, and it is sometimes politically profitable, to picture the city of Washington as a madhouse, with the Congress and the Administration disrupted with confusion and indecision and general incompetence.

However—what matters most in war is results. And the one pertinent fact is that after only a few years of preparation and only one year of warfare, we are able to engage, spiritually as well as physically, in the total waging of total war.

Washington may be a madhouse—but only in the sense that it is the capital city of a nation which is fighting mad. And I think that Berlin and Rome and Tokyo, which had such contempt for the obsolete methods of democracy, would now gladly use all they could get of that same brand of madness.

Allies Have Never Quit

We must not forget that our achievements in production have been relatively no greater than those of the Russians and British and Chinese, who have developed their war industries under the incredible difficulties of battle conditions. They have had to continue work through bombings and blackouts. They have never quit.

We Americans are in good, brave company in this war and we are playing our own honorable part in the vast common effort.

As spokesmen for the United States Government you and I take off our hats to those responsible for our American production—to the owners, managers and supervisors, to the draftsmen and engineers, to the workers—men and women—in factories and arsenals and shipyards, and mines, and mills, and forests, and railroads and highways.

Praises Other Groups

We take off our hats to the farmers who have faced an unprecedented task of feeding not only a great nation but a great part of the world.

We take off our hats to all the loyal, anonymous, untiring men and women who have worked in private employment and in Government and who have endured rationing and other stringencies with good humor and good-will.

We take off our hats to all Americans who have contributed magnificently to our common cause.

I have sought to emphasize a sense of proportion in this review of the events of the war and the needs of the war.

We should never forget the things we are fighting for. But, at this critical period of war, we should confine ourselves to the larger objectives and not get bogged down in argument over methods and details.

Want A Decent Peace

We, and all the United Nations want a decent peace and a durable peace. In the years between the end of the first World War and the beginning of the second World War we were not living under a decent or durable peace.

JAN 8 - 1943

I have reason to know that our boys at the front are concerned with two broad aims beyond the winning of the war; and their thinking and their opinion coincide with what most Americans here back home are mulling over. They know, and we know, that it would be inconceivable—it would, indeed, be sacrilegious—if this nation and the world did not attain some real, lasting good out of all these efforts and sufferings and bloodshed and death.

The men in our armed forces want a lasting peace, and, equally, permanent peace, based on a magnificent idealism. We failed. But by our failure, we have learned that we cannot maintain peace at this stage of human development by good intentions alone.

Today the United Nations are the mightiest military coalition in history. They represent an overwhelming majority of the population of the world. Bound together in solemn agreement that they themselves will not commit acts of aggression or conquest against any of their neighbors, the United Nations can and must remain united for the maintenance of peace by preventing any attempt to rearm in Germany, in Japan, in Italy, or in any other nation which seeks to violate the Tenth Commandment—"Thou shalt not covet."

People Shall Prevail

There are cynics and skeptics who say it cannot be done. The American people and all the freedom-loving peoples of this earth are now demanding that it must be done. And the will of these people shall prevail.

The philosophy of the Axis powers is based on profound contempt for the human race. If, in the formation of our future policy, we were guided by the same cynical contempt, then we should be surrendering to the philosophy of our enemies and our victory would turn to defeat.

The issue of this war is the basic issue between those who believe in mankind and those who do not—the ancient issue between those who put their faith in the people and those who put their faith in dictators and tyrants. There have always been those who did not believe in the people, who attempted to block their forward movement across history, to force them back to servility and suffering and silence.

Strength Gathered

The people have now gathered their strength. They are moving forward in their might and power—and no force, no combination of forces, no trickery, deceit or violence, can stop them now. They see before them the hope of the world—a decent, secure, peaceful life for all men everywhere.

I do not prophesy when this war will end.

But I do believe that this year of 1943 will give to the United Nations a very substantial advance along the roads that lead to Berlin and Rome and Tokyo.

I tell you it is within the realm of possibility that this seventy-eighth Congress may have the historic privilege of helping greatly to save the world from future fear.

Pleads For Confidence

Therefore, let us—all of us—have confidence, let us redouble our efforts.

A tremendous, costly, long-enduring task in peace as well as in war is still ahead of us.

But as we face that continuing task we may know that the state of this nation is good, the heart of this nation is sound, the spirit of this nation is strong, the faith of this nation is eternal.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

Highlights Of Message

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP) — Highlights of President Roosevelt's personally delivered "state of the union" message to Congress:

"The past year was, perhaps, the most crucial for modern civilization. The coming year will be filled with violent conflict, yet with high promise of better things."

"By far the largest and most important developments in the whole strategic picture of 1942 were the events on the long fronts in Russia."

"The Axis powers knew that they must win the war in 1942—or eventually lose everything. I do not need to tell you that our enemies did not win this war in 1942."

"For those who question the quality of our aircraft and ability of our flyers, I point to the fact that, in Africa, we are shooting down two enemy planes to every one we lose, and in the Pacific we are shooting them down four to one."

"I cannot prophesy. I cannot tell you when or where the United Nations are going to strike next in Europe. But we are going to strike—and strike hard."

they want permanent employment for themselves, their families and their neighbors when they are mustered out at the end of the war.

Four Freedoms

Two years ago I spoke in my annual message of four freedoms. The blessings of two of them—freedom of speech and freedom of religion—are an essential part of the very life of this nation, and we hope that these blessings will be granted to all men everywhere.

The people at home and the people at the front — men and women—are wondering about the third freedom — freedom from want. To them it means that when they are mustered out, when war production is converted to the economy of peace, they will have the right to expect full employment—for themselves and for all able-bodied men and women in America who want to work.

"Eager To Face Risks"

They expect the opportunity to work, to run their farms, their stores, to earn decent wages. They are eager to face the risks inherent in our system of free enterprise.

They do not want a post-war America which suffers from undernourishment or slums—or the dole. They want no get-rich-quick era of bogus "prosperity" which will end for them in selling apples on a street corner, as happened after the bursting of the boom in 1929.

When you talk with our young men and women, you will find they want to work for themselves and their families; they consider they have the right to work; and they know that after the last war their fathers did not gain that right.

"Must Give Assurance"

When you talk with our young men and women, you will find that with the opportunity for employment they want assurance against the evils of all major economic hazards—assurance that will extend from the cradle to the grave. This great Government can and must provide this assurance.

I have been told that this is no time to speak of a better America after the war. I am told it is a grave error on my part.

I dissent.

If the security of the individual citizen, or the family, should become a subject of national debate, the country knows where I stand.

I say this now to this Seventy-eighth Congress, because it is wholly possible that freedom from want—the right of employment and the right of assurance against life's hazards—will loom very large as a task of America during the coming two years.

Task Not An Issue

I trust it will not be regarded as an issue—but rather as a task for all of us to study sympathetically, to work out with a constant regard for the attainment of the objective, with fairness to all and with injustice to none.

In this war of survival we must keep before our minds not only the evil things we fight against but the good things we are fighting for. We fight to retain a great past—and we fight to gain a greater future.

Let us remember that economic

3024 — 157

safety for the America of the future is threatened unless a greater economic stability comes to the rest of the world. We cannot make America an island in either a military or an economic sense. Hitlerism, like any other form of crime or disease, can grow from the evil seeds of economic as well as military feudalism.

Victory Greatest Goal

Victory in this war is the first and greatest goal before us. Victory in the peace is the next. That means striving toward the enlargement of the security of man here and throughout the world—and, finally, striving for the fourth freedom—freedom from fear.

JAN 8 - 1943

It is of little account for any of us to talk of essential human needs, of attaining security, if we run the risk of another World War in ten or twenty or fifty years. That is just plain common sense. Wars grow in size, in death and destruction, and in the inevitability of engulfing all nations, in inverse ratio to the shrinking size of the world as a result of the conquest of the air. I shudder to think of what will happen to humanity, including ourselves, if this war ends in an inconclusive peace, and another war breaks out when the babies of today have grown to fighting age.

Every normal American prays that neither he nor his sons nor his grandsons will be compelled to go through this horror again.

Undoubtedly a few Americans, even now, think that this nation can end this war comfortably and then climb back into an American hole and pull the hole in after them.

Complete Peace Sought

But we have learned that we can never dig a hole so deep that it would be safe against predatory animals. We have also learned that if we do not pull the fangs of the predatory animals of this world, they will multiply and grow in strength—and they will be at our throats once more in a short generation.

Most Americans realize more clearly than ever before that modern war equipment in the hands of aggressor nations can bring danger overnight to our own national existence or to that of any other nation—or island—or continent.

It is clear to us that if Germany and Italy and Japan—or any one of them—remain armed at the end of this war, or are permitted to rearm, they will again, and inevitably, embark upon an ambitious career of world conquest. They must be disarmed and kept disarmed, and they must abandon the philosophy, and the teaching of that philosophy, which has brought so much suffering to the world.

Britons Cheer Roosevelt's Invasion Vow

By the Associated Press

London, Jan. 7.—Britons cheered tonight President Roosevelt's assertion to Congress that "we are going to strike and strike hard in Europe" and government circles unofficially called the speech one of the President's best.

Those circles expressed amazement at the United States' arms production figures and said they were delighted also by the President confident predictions of victory.

Conditions for B. B. C.'s radio relay of the speech were excellent and it was heard clearly throughout Britain.

Relayed to Conquered Peoples

Even while he was speaking, B. B. C. had begun to tell the conquered peoples of Europe what he was saying. The Germans were informed that the Allies would carry the war to the continent during this year. In the next 24 hours, the B. B. C. will broadcast the speech in 26 languages and in 135 news bulletins.

Those English who heard the address as it came in over the Fleet Street pub radios cheered Mr. Roosevelt's promise of relentless air attacks against the Axis countries.

Chinese Are Delighted

Sources close to the Chinese Embassy said they were delighted at the President's statement that no obstacle would be allowed to prevent battle equipment from getting to China and his promise of bombing the Japanese home islands.

The Soviet Embassy declined immediate comment, but other Russian sources expressed gratification at the tribute to Soviet valor in 1942.

People Cheered by Broadcast

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 7—British Government circles declared unofficially tonight that President Roosevelt's speech to Congress today was one of his best and the British generally cheered the address, which was heard clearly throughout Britain on the radio relay of the British Broadcasting Corporation.

In one of the first editorials commenting on the address, The Daily Express said that "as we read his account of the American war equipment we were cheered and made confident."

"But there was one solemn reflection," The Express added. "This year many branches of American and British war industry will reach their production peaks. No longer can we look to the future for bigger output on present plans. Our preparations have come to the final proof. We do not fear the ordeal."

The Daily Mail said:

"A man of action and a man of vision speak in the noble words of President Roosevelt's address to Congress. The President will fight the Axis to the last minute with the last gun. And when the war is over he will do his utmost to see that his country fights against want and fear, both as a nation and as a member of the international order.

"This is the meaning of his speech. Mr. Roosevelt has given us one of the most encouraging, stimulating and statesmanlike addresses of recent years."

Assurance Against "Nagging"

The London Daily Telegraph said:

"Roosevelt spoke to the Congress in the spirit of the offensive which inspires his country and the Allies. Such a message should give a good start to Congress, which may well prove to be historic. It will certainly give the finest encouragement to those who now are allies of the United States and who hope to be long their associates.

"It would be a tragedy if the constructive criticism (in Congress) sags into nagging. That can hardly happen after the President has sounded so clear and confident a note. It is an augury of better things not only on the battlefronts but also on all home fronts."

The Manchester Guardian commented:

"In the closing passages of his speech Roosevelt developed the further application of the four freedoms which he first outlined in a message two years ago.

"Two years ago he stated these as ideals. Now he stated them as positive practical objects to which the American people must address themselves."

The London News Chronicle said:

"The President's confidence in the triumph of the United Nations contrasts sharply with the despondent tone of Hitler's recent speeches. His emphasis upon the necessity of planning now for the four freedoms will give great satisfaction not only in America but throughout the democratic world."

Sources close to the Chinese Embassy said they were delighted at the President's statement that no obstacle would be allowed to prevent battle equipment from getting to China and his promise of bombing of the Japanese home islands.

The Soviet Embassy declined immediate comment, but other Russian sources expressed gratification at the tribute to Soviet valor in 1942.

NAZIS RETAKE STRATEGIC HILL BELOW BIZERTE

Recapture Heights West of Mateur Won Recently by British Troops.

U. S. RANGERS JOIN IN BATTLE

Twenty American Parachutists Reported Killed—Hitler Said to Have Fired Nehring.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—The Germans have recaptured Jebel Azzag and all the ground previously taken by the British in the hills fifteen miles west of Mateur, Allied Headquarters announced today.

"We have withdrawn to our former positions," the communique said. "Our fighters maintained patrols in this area during the day and fighter-bombers attacked enemy guns which were shelling our troops. Spitfires shot down three enemy aircraft during these operations."

Thus, within two days the vital positions on the front before Bizerte have changed hands twice. The British captured them in a dawn attack on Tuesday and, the spokesman said, were dislodged when the Nazis counter-attacked yesterday.

U. S. Bombers Attack

United States bombers yesterday made three raids on Kairouan, about seventy-five miles south of Tunis, the spokesman also said, noting that it was the fourth successive day they have struck at that enemy-held center.

The French army in Algeria disclosed, meanwhile, that Nazi parachute troopers had been dropped along with a native guide in the Saint Arnano region of Algeria. This is deep behind the Allied lines between Constantine—inland from Philippeville and about 100 miles west of the Tunisian border—and Setif, sixty miles further west. The announcement said the guide was tried by court martial and shot.

Algiers had three air alarms last night. Ground batteries went into action on the first, but there was no report that bombs had been dropped. Meanwhile, the Royal Air Force shot down three German planes over the Tunisian battle area.

The French High Command in southern Tunisia cited two American fighter pilots—both of whom fly Warhawks—for shooting down two JU-88s which were attacking French positions. They were Capt. Levi R. Chase, 26 yeasr old, of Cortland, N. Y., and Lieut. Thomas A. Thomas Jr., 22, of Ada, Okla.

An American Spitfire squadron was credited with having downed 11 1/3 planes. Fractions result from aerial teamwork where several planes share the credit for downing one of the enemy.

Nazis Retake Hill Position

German parachutists and a native guide were dropped far behind the Allied line in Algeria in the Saint Arnando region, 100 to 160 miles west of the Tunisian frontier. A spokesman said the guide was captured and shot. The paratroops were said to have been captured with the aid of Algerian natives.

Kairouan Raided

U. S. bombers raided Kairouan, 75 miles south of Tunis and 30 miles west of Sousse, three times yesterday in support of Gen. Henri Giraud's French forces operating in that region. The French apparently are attempting to reach the east coast of Tunisia to sever Axis communications with Tripoli in Libya.

A spokesman of the U. S. Twelfth Air Force said Boston bombers attacked German troop concentrations twice near Kairouan yesterday and that B-25 Billy Mitchells bombed railway yards. Lightnings and Warhawks escorted each mission and no American plane was lost.

An American Spitfire squadron with the R. A. F. on a forward fighter field—operating as a part of the twelfth air force—was said to have had a "red-letter day recently when they destroyed four of seven German aircraft during a heavy attack on the forward field.

JAN 8 - 1943

"A Grand Job"

An R. A. F. spokesman said the squadron under the command of Maj. James Coward of Natchitoches, La., one of the first American fliers to be promoted in the field during the campaign, deserved high praise.

"Those American pilots have done a grand job," said the R. A. F. spokesman, a famous fighter pilot himself.

Air alarms wailed three times last night in Algiers and antiaircraft batteries were in action. There were no reports of bombs dropped. The R. A. F. was reported to have downed three German planes over the battle area.

The German communique said Bone, the small Algerian supply port, was bombed day and night, and that the Allies have lost six planes.

Enemy Counterblow Drives British Back; De Gaullists Seize South Libya Outpost

By Wes Gallagher

Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 7.—British First Army veterans have been driven from the dominating Jebel Azzag heights commanding a road to Mateur, 15 miles to the east, after capturing and holding the position for a day, a communique from Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said today.

JAN 8 - 1943

A lull in recent heavy rains allowed the British to attack Tuesday. The Germans counterattacked successfully yesterday, regaining all the ground they had lost. Mateur is 20 miles southeast of Bizerte, the naval base which is a prime goal of the British, American and French allies.

(The British Eighth Army in Lbya remained virtually motionless before the fortified German position in the Wadi Zem-Zem, about 180 airline miles east of Tripoli. Air activity increased slightly and patrols were active. Eighth Army bombers started railway and water-front fires at Sousse on the Tunisian east coast, a Cairo communique said.

Counterattacks Hurl Allies Back After All-Day Battle

JAN 8 - 1943

By the Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Reuters reported from Allied headquarters in North Africa today that the Germans had recaptured positions on both sides of an important crossroads west of Mateur.

The heights 15 miles west of Mateur, which itself is 20 miles southwest of Bizerte, had been captured the day before yesterday by a British infantry brigade and Commando troops in a dawn assault.

Reuters said the Germans regained the tactically important hill positions in a daylight counterattack yesterday.

(CBS Correspondent Charles

Collingwood identified the lost positions as including the key heights of Jebel Azzag, which a headquarters communique yesterday announced had been taken by the Allies. He said United States Rangers also had participated in the attack.

("German counter-attacks yesterday morning took the topmost heights away from the Allied defenders," Mr. Collingwood reported. "Fighting went on all day, but by last night the position was decided to be untenable and the Commandos and Rangers went back to the positions from which they had started.")

Reuters said the Nazi counter-attack was launched after the British had held the heights only about 24 hours.

Despite the support of the RAF which, it said, knocked out some enemy batteries and shot down three planes, the British forces were dislodged and withdrew to their original positions of Tuesday.

The British agency also quoted the German radio as reporting that 30 United States parachutists were dropped behind the German's North African lines last Sunday night with orders to blow up a large bridge. The broadcast, Reuters said, declared that 20 of the parachutists were killed, the rest were captured and "a great quantity" of explosives seized.

Chief Ground Action.

The battle for the hills in Tunisia, in which the Nazi high command declared that the attacking Allied forces "were thrown back in a counterattack beyond their former positions," was the chief ground action in North Africa.

The Cairo communique again said there was nothing to report from the pursuit of Marshal Erwin Rommel westward across Libya except patrol activity and a slight increase in air operations after a virtual halt in aviation over the battle area because of bad weather.

It said Allied planes again had hit Sousse, enemy-held port in Eastern Tunisia, and had made raids on the Italian islands of Sicily and Lampedusa.

Allies Shell Tunisia Peak

ON THE TUNISIAN BATTLE-FRONT AT THE APPROACHES TO MATEUR, Jan. 6 (delayed) (AP).—American heavy guns in cooperation with British artillery shelled the peak of Sidi Daoud, a mountain height commanding the western road to Mateur, while crack British infantry battled with the Nazis for possession of vital high ground today. (Axis forces recovered after initial losses in this combat and recaptured their position, as later dispatches disclosed.)

Sidi Daoud, rechristened "Green Hill" by the Allies, is opposite the outside of a crescent formed by three heights which were captured previously after sharp infantry fighting over rough, shrub-covered hills and deep valleys.

A British brigadier commanding the operation praised the American shooting as "simply wonderful." He said batteries, dragged into position through mud which made tank operations in this area impossible, placed shell after shell directly on the target.

The American guns, which already had seen action, were moved up on the night of Jan. 2-3, fired throughout Jan. 4 and 5, and took an important part in a barrage laid down on the German positions today.

Individual American soldiers are fighting with a commando unit which battled its way against heavy odds to the top of Jebel Azzag, only to be pushed back later by a massed infantry attack.

A commanding officer said the Germans made an effort to get the hill yesterday, but were stopped by a barrage from what was probably the heaviest concentration of artillery yet used in the Tunisian campaign.

French Capture Oasis.

London, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—The Fighting French announced here tonight that Gen. Le Clerc's forces in southernmost Libya have stormed and captured Umm-el-Araueb, main Axis outpost in the Fezzan area.

They said that the French forces advanced northward more than 1,000 miles from their bases near Lake Chad and took Umm-el-Araueb after three days of fierce fighting. They also captured several hundred prisoners, including some officers, and guns, machine guns and other booty, the communique said, adding that the attack was commanded by Col. Ingold, the leader of one of Gen. Le Clerc's columns. Fighting French spokesmen added that Col. Ingold's son was recently killed on active service in the Fighting French Air Force.

Umm-el-Araueb is about sixty-five miles east of Murzuch, in an area roughly 600 miles south of Tripoli.

Von Arnim, Panzer Expert, Reported New Nazi Chief in Tunisia

Hitler Favorite Replacing Nehring, Berlin Dispatches To Sweden Declare

By EDWIN SHANKE,
Associated Press Foreign Correspondent

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 7.—Another change in German military leadership was reported today by dispatches from Berlin which said Gen. Walther Nehring had been superseded by Col. Gen. Von Arnim as commander in chief of the Axis forces in Tunisia.

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 7—The Dakar radio said today that Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, High Commissioner for French North and West Africa, declaring the defeat of Germany to be beyond doubt, had urged all Frenchmen to unite to "Liberate our fatherland and avenge the infamous treatment inflicted by the Germans on the French people."

He spoke at Dakar, where he arrived January 5 to confer with Vice Admiral William A. Glassford, Jr., head of a United States mission there, and with Pierre Boisson, Governor-General of French West Africa.

CBS recorded the broadcast.

Nazi Defeat "Certain"

"I am certain of this, Germany is to be defeated," Giraud was quoted.

"I have a very good and simple reason for being so sure of it. I was a prisoner in Germany, a prisoner visited by high officers. . . . Through these contacts I could observe the decline of German might . . . which, in 1942, already showed clear signs of exhaustion."

Giraud declared that 2,500,000 German men have been killed, but that the German army still "is very strong, and Germany's internal structure is undoubtedly much stronger than in 1918." Therefore, he said, "I will not lull you into blind optimism. I am sure of victory, but I am also sure that the fight will be hard, very hard."

The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet, who reported the change, described Von Arnim as "one of Hitler's favorite panzer commanders."

Another Swedish newspaper, the Dagens Nyheter, said the weekly German newsreel had shown the Bey of Tunis receiving Von Arnim and indicated he was now in command.

(British military sources identified the general as Juergen von Arnim, 52-year-old Silesian, but said there was no confirmation that he had succeeded Nehring. Nehring is regarded as still in high favor with Hitler and depended upon, with Marshal Erwin Rommel, to conduct the North African campaign. Von Arnim was reported severely wounded while commanding an armored division during the invasion of Russia. London sources said he was not considered a Nazi party man.)

Comparatively Little Known.

Von Arnim, recently raised to the rank of colonel general, is comparatively little known outside Germany, although he has figured from time to time in German news of the African campaign.

Winter War Exercises

Theer had been no intimation from Germany that Nehring had fallen into disfavor with Hitler.

The extent to which German reserves of manpower are being strained was indicated, meanwhile, by a Dagens Nyheter dispatch from Berlin saying that all available members of Hitler's Brown-Shirted Nazis party followers were being called up for two months of winter war exercises, beginning in February.

Elite Guard officers fresh from the Russian front will give instruction in marching, shooting and hand-grenade throwing, it was said.

Germans Prodded

All those physically capable of standing training are expected to take part.

Coincidentally the Elite Guard organ, Schwarze Korps, told the German people that 1943 would demand "still higher contributions from the soldiers as well as the home front."

The weekly publication declared that "belief in a fast, cheap victory was given up in 1942," and said the nation should "realize the danger threatening.

"Wartime demands now will force us to desist still more from peacetime practices so that we can carry on total war," the article added.

GIRAUD AGREES TO CONFERENCE

But Asks Delay in Meeting Gen. de Gaulle.

London, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—Gen. Giraud, the French commissioner in North Africa, has agreed in principle to meet Gen. Charles de Gaulle on French soil, but proposed for various reasons that the conference be delayed until the end of January, it was announced authoritatively today.

Fighting French spokesmen said that Gen. De Gaulle had repeated in reply to Gen. Giraud's letter—the second which the Fighting French leader has received from the High Commissioner—that the situation within France admits of no delay.

Some London observers expressed the belief that, despite Gen. Giraud's request for a delay, the two leaders are nearer an understanding than they had been.

Germans Report Victory.

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 7 (A. P.).—Counter-attacking Axis forces in Tunisia were declared by the German High Command today to have thrown back Allied troops beyond their former positions.

The German communique today also said "the airdrome of Bone in Algeria was bombed by day and by night. The enemy lost six planes, the Germans claimed.

Cairo Lists Air Attacks

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 7 (AP)—The lull in the pursuit of General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis forces across Libya is persisting, today's communique of British headquarters here said, with nothing except patrol activity to report from the ground forces and only a slight increase in air activity over the battle area.

"The enemy attempted one or two fighter-bomber attacks, causing but little damage," the war bulletin said. "Three ME-109s were shot down by our ground fire."

Another Allied air attack Tuesday night on the enemy-held Tunisian port of Sousse, it said, started fires in railway sidings and at the waterfront.

The communiqué said that Allied planes carried out offensive operations yesterday over Sicily and Lampedusa Island, stepping-stones in the enemy's air-transport route from Europe to North Africa. It said that two Allied planes were missing from all operations.

Flying Crosses Awarded To 81

Cairo, Jan. 7 (AP)—Air officers and non-commissioned officers from all sections of the United States are among eighty-one newly entitled to wear the Distinguished Flying Cross for outstanding aerial achievements.

Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the United States Air Forces in the Middle East, awarded the crosses in ceremonies at an air base Monday.

Every recipient had had at least 200 hours of operational flights against the Axis in this theater. The citations were read by Brig. Gen. Patrick W. Timberlake.

GERMANS ADMIT WITHDRAWAL IN CAUCASUS SECTOR

Massed Power of Soviet Tanks Hurls Foe Back.

RECAPTURE 13 VILLAGES

Red Army Converging on Rostov Now Within 75 Miles of City.

ENEMY LOSSES HIGH

Two Battalions Wiped Out Near Millerovo, Many Tanks Destroyed.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 8.—BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Russia announced that the Red army converging on Rostov to trap the Nazis in the Caucasus was less than 75 miles from that bottleneck point today after capturing more than a dozen villages yesterday, and for the first time the Germans acknowledged formally that their southern forces were withdrawing before the massed might of Soviet tanks.

At least five Red army columns were sweeping directly or indirectly toward Rostov, at the mouth of the Don river, while 300 miles below that Caucasian "hinge" the Germans were falling back northward in an apparent effort to escape encirclement.

13 Points Taken

The regular midnight Soviet communique, as heard by the Soviet monitor here in a Moscow broadcast, declared 13 populated points and a railway station had fallen to the advancing Russians yesterday on both sides of the lower Don river. The Reuters monitor hearing the same communique listed 17 points, with different spellings in some cases. Although confusion thus existed over details, a study of Russian maps gave this picture:

One Red army column pushing west along the Stalingrad-Likhaya railway inside the Don bend had taken Valkovo, a rail station 110 miles northwest of Rostov, and only 60 miles form Likhaya, junction point on the Rostov-Moscow railway. Likhaya is only about 60 miles north of Rostov.

Second Drive on Likhaya

Likhaya also is the goal of another Russian column driving south from the Millerovo area. The column's exact location is not known except that it last was reported within 40 miles of Likhaya after by-passing Millerovo.

1943

A third Red army column is pushing along the Don river's north bank toward Rostov, and yesterday this army took Nikolayev, representing a 10-mile advance in one day. Nikolayev itself is about 37 miles from Rostov. An intermediate point, Zazersky, about 20 miles south of Valkovo on the railway inside the Don bend, also was occupied.

JAN 8 - 1943

Approach Open Country

A fourth Russian column is the one thus far ahead in the Soviet dash toward Rostov. It took Bolshaya Orlovka, on the Sal river about 75 miles due east of Rostov, and pushed on down the valley toward that river's confluence with the Don. This column also was getting into more or less open country where the terrain is not so adaptable to defense. After the Sal there is only one main river to be crossed, the Manych, before the Russians can strike at the railway network leading into Rostov.

Behind this column in the Sal valley the towns of Martynovka and Romanovskaya were listed by Reuters as having fallen. The Russians thus appeared to be cleaning out Nazi strongpoints, and annihilating pocketed enemy forces—a Red army version of the mobile tactics used so successfully by the Nazis when their strenght was at its peak.

The fifth Red army unit menacing the approaches to Rostov was striking directly down the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway and was believed to be nearing Zimovniki.

Germans in Trouble

The Germans obviously were in trouble in the Caucasus for the Berlin radio "flashed" an announcement that its troops were withdrawing "according to schedule", and had completed a shortening" of their lines.

This usually is the prelude to a German High command announcement along the same lines. No course was given by the Berlin radio announcer. He said merely that this development "became known in Berlin Thursday night."

If the Germans cannot hold the Russian columns bearing down on Rostov all their Caucasian armies will be cut off from retreat except by ship across the Black sea. And the Russian naval forces in that sea are still intact so far as is known.

Three hundred miles below Rostov in the Caucasus the Russians were pushing northward along the Baku-Rostov railway, and were 25 miles or more beyond the railroad junction of Prokhladnenski.

Large Places Taken

The communique as heard by the Soviet monitor listed the large populated places of Kolomenskaya, Svetaya-Padina, and Severnyi as falling to the Russians in this area. Some of these points were taken in hand-to-hand fighting, and in two engagements the Germans were said to have lost 600 men. Altogether 40 inhabited localities, large and small, were said to have been occupied.

JAN 8 - 1943

For the first time Berlin announced a Nazi withdrawal in the Caucasus. A German radio broadcast said:

"German troops in the eastern Caucasus completed, according to schedule the shortening of their front line by withdrawing from advanced strongholds, it became known in Berlin Thursday night.

"Soviet attacks on German rearguard were frustrated despite the Soviets' massed employment of tanks."

For several days British observers have expressed belief the Nazis were withdrawing northward toward Rostov because of the threatening Russian push along the lower Don.

Heavy Nazi Losses

More than 340,000 Germans have been killed or captured since Nov. 19 when the Russians began their counter-offensive in southern Russia, on the basis of Soviet announcements.

The Red army column that pushed southwest of Stalingrad to the Bolshaya Orlovka area near the confluence of the Sal and Don rivers is now 180 miles from the Volga river city that Hitler pledged his people he would take.

Other Russian troops pressing down on Rostov from the north in the Millerovo area apparently are meeting stiffer resistance for the regular midnight communique again spoke of heavy enemy counter-attacks. The Russians were said to have repulsed these to continue their advance, but no specific gains were annonuced.

Two Battalions Wiped Out

Two Nazi battalions were reported wiped out in a two-day fight in this sector, presumably on the railway between Millerovo and Rostov, and seven tanks, two armored cars, and 25 trucks with war materials were destroyed.

In another zone of the same area Russian troops were said to have repelled attempts by an encircled German garrison to break out, and a Nazi infantry colonel was captured.

To the rear of these advance Russian legions other Red army units were attacking enemy troops northwest of Stalingrad, apparently in the Don-Volga river pocket where the remnants of 22 Nazi divisions are reported trapped. Russian troops overran additional enemy trenches yesterday, and killed 150 Nazis, the communique said.

An enemy infantry battalion was reported routed and seven tanks destroyed in a continuing Red army advance south and southwest of Stalingrad. This action apparently referred to fighting along the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway below the lower Don.

Strong Counter-Attacks

On the central front northwest of Moscow the Germans still were said to be counter-attacking violently southwest of Velikie, Luki. The Soviets announced the capture of this town a week ago, but the Germans still say it is in their hands.

More than 400 Germans were said to have been killed yesterday in unsuccessful counter-attacks against the Russians who are consolidating newly-won positions on that frozen front. Sixteen Nazi tanks also were destroyed, the communique said.

Of the multiple fronts on which the Russians are fighting they appeared to be meeting less resistance deep in the Caucasus. The communique said of this area where Berlin admits a withdrawal:

"German troops are retreating under the blow of Soviet forces, setting fire to villages, blowing up bridges, and mining roads, dugouts and earthworks. In the course of three days one unit removed or put out of action over 2,000 mines."

Moscow, Jan. 7.—The Russians thundered swiftly down the Don to within 75 miles of Rostov today, menacing the retreating Germans in the Caucasus with the same fate that befell the 22 divisions trapped tightly before Stalingrad.

The Red army was reported cutting a 20-mile-wide path on both sides of the lower Don on its westward course to the mouth at Rostov on the Sea of Azov. The Russians already were 50 miles beyond Tsimlyansk, near the juncture of the Don and Sal, with the capture of such villages of Kamishevskaya, Yasirev, Kholdny and Kargalskobellansky. The foremost column was at Bolshaya Orlovka on the Sal.

The Soviet juggernaut was crushing all before it at the rate of 25 miles a day.

In the offensive of seven weeks, the Russians had liquidated a large part of German gains purchased at a heavy price in blood and steel during the summer and early autumn months.

Germans Still Fighting

Despite the risk of isolation, the Germans fought stubbornly in the western Caucasus and offered resistance on their eastern flank, apparently refusing to engage in a race for R[illegible]

JAN 8

(The Germans said they repulsed all Soviet attacks in the Don and Kalmyck districts and near Stalingrad. They admitted Russian traffic was moving again to beleaguered Leningrad over an ice road across Lake Ladoga, which the Nazis said they bombed and shelled.)

Cossacks spearheaded the drive in the central Caucasus where the Russians were 25 miles northwest of Prokhladnenski and halfway to Mineralnye Vody, a center of several converging railways. The Russians thus had advanced 55 miles through the foothills and ravines of the Caucasus range since recapturing Nalchik Monday. And in this area they were about 300 miles southeast of Rostov.

Nazis Partially Outflanked

The Russians already had outflanked to some extent the Germans south of Stalingrad with their drive along the Don. On the Salsk and Kalmyck steppes the enemy held a broad expanse which was exposed frontally to the Russians who captured Elista and would be opened to attack from the rear should Rostov fall.

The noon communique reported continued advances in the northern Caucasus in which 800 Germans were killed or captured. A number of villages were reported captured in the middle Don sector where 400 other troops were killed.

Reds Break Through Enemy Lines Along 20-Mile Front

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Jan. 7.—The Red Army of the lower Don has broken through German lines on a 20-mile front on both sides of the river and has driven to within 75 miles of Rostov, key to the whole Nazi salient into the Caucasus, the Russians announced today.

Dispatches from the front said the Russian forces, commanded by Lt. Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky, veteran of last winter's battle of Moscow, had pushed forward 50 miles since capturing the Don River bridgehead of Tsimlyansk two days ago.

The advanced point which the Russian thrust was said to have reached yesterday was Bolshaya Orlovka on the Sal River just southeast of its confluence with the Don midway between Tsimlyansk and Rostov.

Recaptured in the sweep down the Don were the towns of Marinsk, on the Don 25 miles downstream from Tsimlyansk; and the villages of Kargalsko-Bellansky, Kamishevskaya, Yasirev and Kholodny, scattered along both banks of the river.

Rolls Into Flat Region.

There the Russian offensive was rolling into the flat, low-lying region which stretches past Rostov to the Don mouth on the Sea of Azov—a sector which previously proved to be one of the most difficult of the entire front to defend.

Rostov, whose fall would cut off the whole German Army in the Caucasus, already has changed hands three times. It was taken by the Germans late in 1941, won back quickly by the Russians and then captured again by the Germans last summer.

Deep in the Caucasus the Germans still were in retreat from the Mozdok - Nalchik - Prokhladnenski triangle, but battlefront dispaches said there was no indication that they were attempting a general withdrawal to escape being cut off.

Russian forces were said to be meeting resistance after a swift sweep 25 miles northwest of Prokhladnenski to the railway station of Apolonskaya, almost half way to Mineralnye Vody.

(The Russians reported the capture of Prokhladnenski, 30 miles northeast of Nalchik, on Tuesday.)

More Settlements Taken.

The Russian advance in this sector, however, was reported continuing, and the midday communique issued by the Soviet Information Bureau said two more settlements were recaptured southwest of Stalingrad, and several others retaken in the middle Don sector.

This communique followed earlier war bulletins bringing the total of Axis dead and captured since the start of the Russian winter offensive to 339,150 up to January 5.

These communiques had reported 13 more towns and two railroad stations in the Caucasus recaptured, along with eight more towns in the middle Don.

The Russian drive down the Lower Don wedged in between German defenses in the Middle Don sector and those in the northern part of the Kalmyk steppe, had increased the menace to the Nazis in both.

Increasing Pressure.

Meanwhile, the Russians reported that more than 150 miles back to the northeast from the new Don front line, the remnants of 22 German divisions trapped at Stalingrad were fighting desperately under increasing pressure.

This force was said to be maintaining a trong defense behind its fortifications, but the Russians said that trench-by-trench the Germans were being squeezed back in a tightening trap.

Mineralyne Vody, toward which the Russians were driving in the Caucasus, is the center of a spur line branching from the main Rostov-Baku trunk railway.

The hard-driving Russians also raced northwest from Nalchik in a line parallel to the advance through Prokhladnenski, advancing 15 miles to a cluster of towns including Baksan, Staraya, Krepost and Kizburn and fanning out to the west.

The capture of more than a dozen Caucasus towns yesterday, as listed in the communique, was said here to indicate that the German front in the Caucasus was collapsing more quickly than in any previous battles.

Middle Don Drive Gains.

The advance from Prokhladnenski Tuesday went along the main railway through Soldatskaya, fourteen miles west of the former town, to Apolonskaya. Mineralnye Vody lies thirty-five miles northwest of Apolonskaya.

The Red Army offensive continued in the middle Don area, where the early day communique said eight more populated points were captured.

Red Attacks Fail: Berlin

New York, Jan. 7—Berlin broadcasts heard by the Associated Press, quoted the high command as saying today that "German infantry and tank divisions, in cooperation with strong Luftwaffe formations and Rumanian bombers, repulsed all Soviet attacks in continued fighting in the Don and Kalmyck sectors.

"Continuous enemy attacks against Velikie Luki and southeast of Lake Ilmen were repulsed," the communique from Adolf Hitler's headquarters said.

Nazis Admit Only Attack

(The Russians announced the recapture of Velikie Luki, northwest of Moscow, at the end of last week. The Germans have acknowledged only that their garrison there is under attack from all sides.)

The Germans said that at one place in the Velikie Luki-Lake Ilmen area a Russian force had been encircled, and that its destruction was imminent.

In another part of the Central front shock troops were said to have destroyed "numerous enemy strongholds."

Tricked Nazi Units Clash

London, Jan. 7 (AP)—Russian guerrillas, credited with numerous feats that harass and punish Axis invaders, were praised today by Soviet authorities for decoying one German detachment into a battle with another, in the region before Leningrad.

JAN 8 - 1943

The Soviet information bureau here reported that the Moscow broadcast of the early daily communique said that the guerrillas attacked the German garrison in a town and killed thirty-five.

The Germans sent out a punitive expedition, the Russians reported, and the guerrillas led them to a neighboring town where other German troops were quartered.

"The Germans in this place mistook their own expedition for the guerrillas and opened fire on them," the communique said. "A battle ensued between the Hitlerites as a result of which sixty men were killed."

Russian Church Backs Army

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Jan. 6 (Delayed)—The Russian Orthodox Church combined an old-style celebration of Christmas Eve today with a demonstration of patriotic support for the Soviet state at war with Germany.

During solemn masses in Moscow churches collections for the Red army were taken up and priests urged worshipers to aid the drive to oust the invaders by giving within their means.

Record Attendance

Collection plates were piled with ruble notes and kopek pieces.

"God is with us! God is with us!" was the worshipers' chant.

Regular churchgoers said attendance was the greatest they could recall since the revolution.

Sergei, metropolitan of Moscow, acting patriarch of the Russian Orthodox Church, will celebrate the main Christmas mass tomorrow in Sokolniki Church. The metropolitan personally contributed 100,000 rubles to the army fund.

Several country churches were reopened for Christmas Eve services.

Standley Returning To Post

Moscow, Jan. 7 (AP)—Admiral William H. Standley, American Ambassador to the Soviet Union, returning from a visit to the United States, arrived at Kuibyshev by plane today. He is expected to come to Moscow shortly.

New York, Jan. 7 (AP).—The Berlin radio "flashed" the announcement tonight that German troops in the eastern Caucasus had withdrawn their advanced strongholds and that the Russians made massed tank attacks on German rear guards.

"German troops in the eastern Caucasus completed, according to schedule, the shortening of front lines by withdrawing advanced strongholds, it became known in Berlin Thursday night.

"Soviet attacks on German rear guards were frustrated despite the Soviets' massed employment of tanks."

In carrying the "flash" preamble, the Germans used the customary news agency device to call immediate attention to news of transcendant importance.

BRITISH SUBMARINE ENDS RECORD TWO-YEAR SAGA

LONDON, Jan. 7--(AP) The British Thrasher was back in England today for the first time since 1941 with a record of 16 enemy ships sunk on 13 patrols covering 40,000 miles—and a picture of Hitler taken from one of her sinking victims.

The Thrasher's skipper, Lieut. H. S. Mackenzie, related the submarine's adventures but pleaded, "please don't make too much glamor about it all."

Her most dangerous moment occurred just after two transports were attacked unsuccessfully in the Mediterranean. An enemy destroyer located the Thrasher and passed over her six times in ninety minutes, dropping an accurate pattern of depth charges each time.

Jewels Left Queen Elizabeth

London, Jan. 7 (AP)—The late Dame Margaret Greville, a close friend of the royal family, left her famous jewel collection to Queen Elizabeth, publication of her will disclosed today.

She also bequeathed $80,000 to Princess Margaret Rose, the younger of the Queen's daughters, and $50,000 to former Queen Victoria Eugenie of Spain.

Dame Margaret, the widow of Ronald Greville and a noted prewar hostess, died last September 15. Her father, a Scottish brewer, had left her a $4,000,000 fortune when he died in 1913 and some of her renowned gems were reputed once to have belonged to Empress Josephine.

Whereabouts of British Envoy to Russia Cleared Up

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP). — Sir Archibald John Kerr Clark Kerr, British Ambassador to Russia, is in London, and has not gone to the United States, an official announcement declared today, contrary to a statement issued by the British Information Service in Washington yesterday that he was believed to be in New York.

Catroux on Visit to London

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP) — General Georges Catroux, Fighting French delegate general and commander in chief in Syria and Lebanon, arrived here today to confer with General de Gaulle and other Fighting French leaders. It was the second time in two months that he had come to London from the Middle East.

CAPTIVES IN BRITAIN

London, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—An authoritative British spokesman said today that certain members of the German Armistice Commission, captured in French North Africa by forces under American command, had been brought to Britain.

They are being held in custody in Britain, he added, pending clarification of the general position in regard to them.

Ohioan Wins D. S. O.

London, Jan. 7 (AP).—Maj. William Thornton Watson of Columbiana, Ohio, an American serving with the Australian Army, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Order for "epic bravery" in the Southwest Pacific, dispatches from Australia said today.

Yo Ho Ho And—Milk

London, Jan. 7 (AP)—The modern Royal Navy is turning more and more from rum to milk.

The navy reported today that only forty per cent. of its sailors now take their rum ration, compared with sixty-five per cent. in 1924, eighty-eight per cent. in 1913 and ninety-one per cent. in 1850.

It said 24,000,000 cans of condensed milk were supplied to the fleet in recent months.

SHIPBUILDING GOAL IS MET IN BRITAIN

London, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—Construction of merchant shipping in Britain during 1942 reached a previously set goal representing a figure not exceeded in many years, authoritative spokesmen said today.

For security reasons, the total was not revealed.

Troops Cheer Starg

London, Jan. 7 (AP).—An editorial in this week's English edition of Yank, the Army newspaper, praised the work of American movie and stage star units entertaining at Army camps in Britain.

It reported Kay Francis, Carole Landis, Martha Raye and Mitzie Mayfair had been working "harder than they ever worked at home," and had almost brought down the mess halls where they entertained with the cheers of the troops.

Iran Prince Dies in London

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP).—Prince Mohammed Hassan, brother of the late Shah Ahmed, Sultan of Iran who abdicated in 1922, fell dead tonight on a sidewalk in Maidenhead. He had been in ill health for months. The prince unsuccessfully claimed the throne of his brother when the latter died in 1930. He was forty-three years old.

Nazis Claim U-Boat Sailed Up Mississippi

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The German radio, in a broadcast beamed to the United States but heard here, reported today that a German submarine had traveled 90 miles up the Mississippi River "to within a few miles of New Orleans" in the hope of destroying a bridge.

The raider was detected, however, and forced to return to the Gulf of Mexico, the broadcast declared.

The date of the alleged exploit was not given.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 7 (AP).—The Navy said here today it had "no comment" on the German broadcast that a Nazi submarine had traveled up the Mississippi River.

Comdr. James G. Stahlman, public relations officer of the 8th Naval District, said he "knew nothing about it."

Germans Deny Looting Of Conquered Areas

By the Associated Press.

LISBON, Jan. 7.—An official denial was issued by the German Legation here today in reply to the statement by the United Nations charging the Germans with systematic looting and disregard of property rights in conquered countries.

The statement, announced in Washington, was published by the Portuguese press early this week.

"See the shop windows in Paris, Brussels, Copenhagen and Amsterdam," the German denial said. "They are full of all utility things that the population needs. . . .

"In Russia, in Norway, in Greece, or in the desert of Egypt, what could we find that could be of any interest to our soldiers? In fact, the populations of those countries were too poor to possess anything that might be of interest to foreigners.

"German respects the property of the vanquished."

Norse Go To Finland

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 7 (AP)—Norwegians said today that 545 Norwegian Labor Service youths were head for north Finland via Sweden this week reportedly to cut timber in the neighborhood of Lake Enare for Norway, which needs it badly.

Their departure was scheduled for last Monday, it was stated, but was reported delayed because the men protested when they learned the Finnish camp at Enare would be under German command, causing them to doubt assurances they were to do civil work only.

Nazi-Vichy Report on Assassin

A German broadcast that was recorded by The Associated Press quoted advices from Vichy as saying yesterday that the assassin of Admiral Jean François Darlan was Bornier de la Chapelle, a student and the son of a journalist.

Neutral Switzerland Still Comparative Paradise

[Switzerland has stoutly defended her neutral status for over three years, but not without feeling the impact of the war on her ways of life. Thomas F. Hawkins, Associated Press correspondent at Bern, describes the effects of the global war on the tiny democracy.]

By Thomas F. Hawkins

Bern, Jan. 7 (AP)—Switzerland, paradise of holiday-goers from all of the world in peacetime, still is "just short" of paradise in comparison to the rest of blood-drenched Europe.

"Just short" because there is no guarantee that the bigger nations will permit the Swiss to continue on their peaceful way and that vital transport routes for importing food and raw materials will remain open. There can be no certain guarantee until the rest of the world is again peaceful.

More Alert Than Ever

Nevertheless, Switzerland enters 1943 more alert than ever to guard her independence and with the hope that the year is the homestretch that will bring the end of the war and the start back to normalcy.

For three years the Swiss, now entirely surrounded by Axis troops, have successfully adhered to their policy of neutrality. They have managed to feed themselves well, with something left over for the unfortunates of other countries, largely through the Red Cross.

Keeps Army At Frontiers

They have planned and worked to keep their industry alive despite a difficult, limited export. They have maintained a well-trained and determined army at the frontiers.

Switzerland today is a nation where the poor are about as well off as they were before the war; where the average man is struggling against a fifty-nine per cent. rise in living costs with a generally unchanged salary; where the banker and the industralist still are making profits.

If the war ends in 1943 or shortly thereafter, this beauty spot of the Alps has every chance to emerge into a new and prosperous life. If the war drags on, the hardships and sacrifices will increase in proportion to the diminishing transport routes and sources of supply.

The key reasons for Swiss neutrality are traditional—the doctrine of wanting no territorial gains, of building a wealthy, workable democracy with what they have, of asking only the right to pursue world trade as an independent, and of leaving to others the fighting of battles for new orders.

Interested In War Outcome

This doesn't mean that the Swiss are not interested in which side wins the war. They know that the victor will have much to say about how they carry on their traditions. Deeply concerned with world welfare, they look to post-war problems with the view of a leading political economist who said:

"Any ordering of Europe by force, no matter from which side it came, would arouse our serious mistrust. European economy has its good points, but world economy is the trade frame within which Europe was developed and has flourished ever since other colonies and continents were discovered.

Think In World Terms

"We Swiss have always thought in world terms. Our Geneva experience was not lost, and we represent more than ever the viewpoint that the League of Nations must be universal in order to guarantee international order."

The Swiss thus have their own views about a post-war world. They often point to the ability of their own German, Italian and French-speaking peoples to get along as a unified nation as an example to those nations always quarreling. They feel that their neutrality now is a contribution to the welfare of the world. Militarily they are not a factor, except in self-defense, but they can serve to ease the bitterness on all sides, as, for example, their recent negotiation with the Germans and the British for the release of chained prisoners.

Reason For Neutrality

Beyond traditional policy, the immediate factor working in behalf of Swiss neutrality is its guardianship of the interests of the belligerent nations. Both sides want the industrial products produced here. Switzerland is the guardian of the Gotthard and Simplon tunnels, vital lines in the pathways across Europe.

Germany has complained because Allied planes flew across Switzerland on bombing raids against the Axis. The Allies, on the other hand, have complained at the Swiss blackout and at some of her industrial dealings with Axis countries. Both sides, though, have recognized the unique position of the Swiss, and in each case the difficulties have been adjusted.

JAN 8- 1943

Most Trade Is With Axis

The bulk of Swiss trade now is with the Axis countries, due to the fact that the Axis controls the routes of export. However, in return for the use of rails route between Germany and Italy, for which Switzerland is paid, the Axis regularly grants navicerts for the export of watches and other non-military products to the Allied nations.

The Swiss are rigidly on guard against any subversive or fifth column activity. Three persons recently were executed as spies and three others are awaiting execution. The Saint Gallen, or "national opposition" party, was dissolved last week for working both against Swiss neutrality and independence. The determination with which the Government acts against fifth column activity has kept traitorous agitation to a minimum.

The Swiss press exercises considerable freedom, despite a censorship whose basic requirement is that of fact, although in some cases dangerous facts may not be published. The best evidence of the general objectivity of the press is that both the British and the Germans recently complained strongly about the "partiality" of one leading newspaper.

GREEK GENERALS REPORTED CHAINED

Cairo, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—Greek officials announced today that 300 Greeks, including generals, other officers and civilians, had been transported from Greece to Italy in chains.

Information received from Greece, these official added, show that guerrilla activities have brought a fresh wave of terrorism from the Italians. Greeks were said to have been flogged, their homes burned and their property confiscated in efforts to force them to reveal particulars of patriotic organizations offering opposition.

In a broadcast picked up at New York today by CBS, the British radio said that Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch addressed from his mountain headquarters a warning to the German military commander in Serbia, Gen. Bader, that "if the Germans continue to take brutal reprisals, the Yugoslav troops of Gen. Mikhailovitch will be forced to take similar steps against German soldiers and members of the German minority in Yugoslavia."

JAPS MASSING MORE SHIPPING IN RABAUL ZONE

Force Reported Bigger Than That Which First Struck at Solomons.

HAS GROWN SINCE TUESDAY

Air Raids Made on Foe's Bases on Bougainville and at Munda by U. S. Flyers.

JAN 8- 1943

Melbourne, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—Air reconnaissance over Japan's big base at Rabaul, New Britain Island, has revealed that the concentration of Japanese shipping there has been augmented since Tuesday, when it was first disclosed by an Australian Government spokesman, it was asserted in Government circles today.

Pilots returning from missions over Rabaul were said to have reported that the amount of warship-protected shipping now gathered at Rabaul exceeds even the forces gathered by the Japanese for their first counter-attack on the eastern Solomons, held by United States forces.

The amount of enemy shipping reported in the Rabaul area previously had prompted the spokesman Tuesday to assert that the Japanese were massing the largest armada they had yet sent into the southwest Pacific. The official, whose identity was not disclosed, said adverse weather had helped to screen the ships from air attack.

Australia Is Uneasy.

Melbourne newspapers suggested that the Japanese might be preparing for a large scale operation either against the Allied-recaptured Papuan Penninsula of New Guinea or the Americans on Guadalcanal.

A meeting of the Australian Advisory War Council has been called for next Tuesday, and there were reports that it would urge Prime Minister John Curtin to visit Washington and London. Mr. Curtin recently appealed to the Allies for increased aid.

A communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced yesterday that Allied bombers had left eight ships afire or sinking, and a ninth destroyed in an attack on the massed ships.

Jap Armada At Rabaul Is Growing

JAN 8- 1943

By the Associated Press

Melbourne, Jan. 7.—Government sources asserted today that air reconnaissance had disclosed a concentration of Japanese shipping at Rabaul, New Britain, even greater than that marshaled by the enemy for his first counterattack against the American forces holding the eastern Solomon Islands.

This concentration, these quarters added, thus was shown to have been augmented since last Tuesday, when its presence was first reported by an Australian government spokesman.

Largest Ever Seen

At that time, the spokesman anonymously issued a widely published statement that the Japanese were gathering the largest sea force ever seen in the Southwest Pacific.

(In connection with such reports Secretary of the Navy Knox said on Tuesday in Washington that while there was always enemy shipping at Rabaul, one of the principal Japanese bases in the Australian theater, he had no knowledge of any extraordinary concentration there.)

Yesterday, General MacArthur's headquarters announced that Allied bombers assaulting Rabaul Harbor had damaged or destroyed 50,000 tons of enemy shipping—eight ships set ablaze and left sinking and a ninth destroyed.

Various Explanations

Published suggestions have been variously that the enemy perhaps was planning operations against the Papuan peninsula of New Guinea, where General MacArthur's forces are in the final phase of destroying the Japanese forces; that he was plotting another go at Guadalcanal in the Solomons; that he was attempting to strengthen his position defensively.

The Australian Advisory War Council has been called to meet Tuesday and there were reports that the members would urge Prime Minister Curtin to go to Washington and London.

The Prime Minister has been appealing to the Allies for more aid in this theater.

TWO JAP VESSELS, ONE TROOP-LADEN, SUNK NEAR LAE

18 Zeros Shot Down in First Day of Effort to Reinforce Papua.

NON-STOP AIR ASSAULT

Allied Planes Maintain Continued Blasting of 10-Ship Convoy.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Friday, Jan. 8—(AP) Two large transports, one heavily loaded with troops, sunk and 18 Zeros shot down was the heavy price paid by the Japanese in the first 24 hours of their seventh major attempt to land reinforcements in northeastern New Guinea.

While planes of the Southwest Pacific command of General Douglas MacArthur kept up a virtual non-stop blasting of the 10-ship convoy off Lae, American and Australian ground forces completed envelopment of the Japanese at Sanananda.

Destruction Held Certain

Remnants of Lieut. Gen. Timitar Horii's 15,000 strong Papuan army still holding out are faced with annihilation and the destruction of that army "can now be regarded as accomplished," the communique said.

Reports from New Guinea said a reconnoitering Liberator first sighted the Japanese convoy 30 miles off Gasmata, New Britain, the morning of Jan. 6. The Liberator fought off eight covering Zeros, probably shooting down one, then levelled off for a bombing run.

Lightnings Enter Battle

A strong flight of Lockheed Lightnings, led by Maj. George Prentice, then took up the assault, paced by a Flying Fortress flown by Capt. Charles H. Giddings, of Munday, Tex.

The Lightning pilots believed they knocked down six Zeros while the bomber was working on surface craft in the face of an intense anti-aircraft barrage thrown up by the escorting warships.

After the bomb bays were emptied, the Fortress joined in an aerial melee, shooting down two and possibly three Zeros before leaving the battle scene.

Other Allied Planes Assist

Details of the subsequent attacks on the Jap convoy as it approached the New Guinea coast are lacking but an Allied spokesman said before the warships and remaining transports last were attacked near Lae Consolidated Catalinas and Liberators, North American Mitchells, and Martin Marauders had joined in the relentless pounding.

The spokesman said that regrouping of Allied land forces for the final cleanup assault at Sanananda was nearly completed with wharf patrol activity heralding the smashing of the enemy's last foothold on Papua.

Enemy Losses Listed

Emphasizing confidence in an early windup of the Papua campaign, General MacArthur detailed the units which had comprised the Jap's army and gave these losses for the enemy in that battle area, including Rabaul, New Britain, since the Japs landed at Buna last July: 333 Jap aircraft destroyed, 81 probably destroyed and 117 damaged; six cruisers, 13 destroyers, a destroyer tender, two seaplane tenders, two gunboats, 44 large to medium merchant ships, 39 small to medium merchant ships and between 150 and 200 landing barges sunk, destroyed or seriously damaged.

Allies Keep Up Pounding Of Japs in New Guinea

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 7 (AP).—Allied airmen continued to pound enemy positions in New Guinea yesterday while ground forces grouped for the destruction of the Japanese at Sanananda Point held their lines with little change, a headquarters announcement said today.

Lae, about 160 miles up the Eastern New Guinea coast from Buna, was the principal target for Allied medium bombers and attack planes which fired a grounded two-engined bomber at the airdrome and destroyed four anti-aircraft gun positions, a communique said.

Medium bombers and fighter planes also went out on strafing tours to soften the Japanese in their trenches and dugouts at Sanananda Point for the land attack that is to come.

Meanwhile, Allied heavy bombers struck again at the airdrome at Gasmata, New Britain, headquarters said, but no further mention was made of the Rabaul area, where numerous attacks have been made recently on concentrations of Japanese shipping.

2 Jap Airfields Are Bombed

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 7—The navy reported today that two new raids had been carried out on Japanese airfields in the Solomons area and that a "possible hit" had been scored on a Japanese transport.

The text of the communique No. 243, follows:

"South Pacific (all dates east longitude):

"1. On January 6:

"(a) Flying Fortresses (Boeing B-17) with Lightning (Lockheed P-38) and Warhawk (Curtiss P-40) escort, attacked a Japanese transport in the Shortland Island area. A possible hit on the stern of the ship was reported.

"(c) At noon United States aircraft bombed the airfield at Munda on New Georgia Island. Results were not reported."

FLIERS DESCRIBE BIG RAID

Tell of Rabaul Bombing in Which They Hit Nine Ships

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 5 (Delayed) (AP)—Veteran Flying Fortress crews teamed up with a less experienced Liberator squadron today for a smashing low-level, daylight bombing attack on Japanese shipping at the vital Rabaul harbor. They damaged more than 50,000 tons of shipping and shot down nine Zeros.

The 50,000 tons of shipping represented nine vessels either fired or sunk by tons of bombs. [This successful attack was recorded in the Allied headquarters communiqué of Wednesday.]

Pilots, bombardiers and gunners returned from the mission acting like a bunch of kids returning from a picnic. There was backslapping and a gleeful comparing of notes as they chortled, "Boy, we sure surprised those so-and-sos!"

Brig. Gen. Ennis G. Whitehead, commander of the United States Air Forces in this theater, looked happy as the four-engined giants checked in. But when the last had landed, he drove away quietly, for in the words of the official communiqué, "One of our bombers is missing," and that is always hard to take.

Perhaps the prize for the day should go to Lieutenant Fred F. Wesche of Roselle, N. J., and his bombardier, Master Sgt. Pete Vasilie of St. Paul, Minn. From their Fortress Vasilie directed two bombs that may have accounted for a destroyer tender of perhaps 18,000 tons, as well as a destroyer, which was moored alongside.

"I got one direct hit on the tender's stern," said Vasille. "Then I placed another thousand-pounder right between the bows of the two ships. I wouldn't be surprised if the hit stove in the sides of both ships."

Among other pilots whose planes got direct hits with 500 or 1,000-pound bombs in this first daylight assault on Rabaul in two months were Captain William Thorington of Montgomery, Ala., and Captain Stanley Salisbury of Batavia, N. Y., Flying Fortresses, and Second Lieutenant Hank Chovanec of Fayetteville, Texas, and Lieutenant Charles Weber Jr. of Kansas City, Mo., Liberator pilots.

Pilot Salisbury's bombardier, Second Lieutenant Ted Burda of Dickinson, N. D., claimed a direct hit with a 500-pound bomb on a transport of about 7,500 tons. Second Lieutenant John M. Dawson of Miami, Captain Thorington's bombardier, said he hit an 8,000-ton transport and saw the Japanese vessel blow high into the air.

The bombardment and strafing of the Sanananda Point area from the air, however, continued for its third successive day, while the enemy base at Lae, farther up the New Guinea coast, again was hit by United States A-20 Havoc attack bombers and by Billy Mitchell B-25 medium bombers. The Havocs attacked from less than 100 feet and poured in thousands of rounds of machine gun fire, knocking out at least four enemy anti-aircraft batteries and destroying some bombers on the ground.

some 240 miles northwest of Guadalcanal. The destroyers threw up a heavy curtain of anti-aircraft fire, spread and twisted, so that our Fortresses were unable to bomb them successfully.

(At this time, presumably, the air escort from Munda had not yet joined the enemy surface units.

Dauglas Dauntless dive bombers then attacked at 6 P. M., scoring hits on two destroyers and a near miss on another. The remaining

Munda Used By Japs As Escort Plane Base

By William Hipple JAN 8- 1943

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Guadalcanal, Jan. 3 (Delayed)—The Japs made the first effective use yesterday of their new Munda airfield on New Georgia Island, sending a fleet of Zeros from there to escort ten destroyers, which tried with little success to reinforce and supply the enemy's troops on Guadalcanal.

The Zeros, outnumbering the Grumman Wildcat fighter planes, which were sent out with dive bombers from the Americans' Henderson Field on Guadalcanal to intercept the destroyers, shot down two Grummans and wounded the pilot of another. One Zero was lost.

(Munda, in the central Solomons, has been raided repeatedly since scouts discovered some time ago that an airfield was being built there, and on January 5, after Hipple's dispatch was written and perhaps as a result of the facts it relates, the field was bombarded heavily by a force of naval surface vessels.)

Two Destroyers Damaged

Two of the ten destroyers were damaged seriously. The approaching enemy units first were sighted by Flying Fortresses yesterday afternoon while they were still ships continued toward Guadalcanal under cover of darkness, coming in close to Cape Esperance.

Food Supplies Dumped

It is believed the Japs unloaded some troop reinforcements, but most of the food supplies were dumped overside in the hope they would drift into shore.

Motor torpedo (PT) boats attacked and harassed the enemy ships, but results were not observed. The Japs were aided additionally by ten flying boats which formed a protective patrol.

(Navy Department communiques released January 3 and 4 also told of the dive bombers' success against two of the destroyers and credited PT boats with one torpedo hit on one and three possible hits on two others of the eight remaining ships. Secretary Knox said January 5 that torpedo boats also riddled and sank many of the drums of supplies put out by the destroyers to float ashore.)

Henderson Field Bombed

The Jap flying boats also dropped several bombs in the vicinity of Henderson Field before last midnight, but no damage was reported.

As we huddled in dank, mud-filled dugouts, we heard the bombs explode. We also heard naval gunfire—undoubtedly the enemy destroyers firing upon the PT boats. The destroyers eventually retired under cover of darkness.

Early this morning United States fighter planes strafed and set fire with incendiaries to a large amount of the Jap supplies which had washed ashore at the northwest tip of Guadalcanal.

Allies Shell Enemy Force At Sanananda

By William F. Boni JAN 8- 19

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 7—Allied and Japanese patrols were probing in swamp mud today for weak spots in the opposite lines as the Allies regrouped their land forces for an attack on the enemy stronghold at Sanananda.

Target Shelled

American troops pushed back one Japanese patrol in the vicinity of Tarakena, a village midway between the recently-won Buna station and Sanananda Point. They killed one Japanese and wounded another.

The same area was the target for a sustained artillery barrage with an Australian pilot spotting the objectives for the gunners.

Along the Soputa-Sanananda track itself—which actually is an automobile road—both sides were dug in and making stabs to test the other's defenses. In one hit-and-run raid east of the track, an Allied patrol killed five Japanese.

All patrols reported the swamps extremely deep and heavy, making the approaches to almost all enemy entrenchments most difficult. Most of the track for the final mile to Sanananda Point also was flooded by heavy rains.

Dutch Ship Official Freed Recently by Japs, Dies

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 7.—Capt. A. C. Kroef, former commodore of K. P. M., Royal Netherlands Steam Packet Co.—Far Eastern shipping lines—who returned to Melbourne recently after his release from a Japanese internment camp, died of a heart attack today, the Netherlands Indies News Agency reported.

Capt. Kroef first knew that a state of war existed between Japan and the Netherlands when his ship was seized and he and his fellow officers were jailed in Yokohama. After 21 days of living under "filthy conditions" there, he was transferred to an internment camp, where conditions were "somewhat better."

He served with K. P. M. for 33 years, 25 of which were spent on the Singapore-Netherlands Indies-Australia run. He was living in retirement in Sydney when the European war broke out, and re-entered maritime life when Holland was invaded in 1940. His son Jan is serving with the Netherlands Navy.

Aussies Tighten Draft

Melbourne, Jan. 7 (AP)—William C. Wurth, Director-General of Manpower, announced today that Australian industries would be combed for men to swell the ranks of the commonwealth's armed forces.

Wurth said that single men of 18 to 45 and married men from 18 to 35 would be replaced where possible by women.

Restrictions in civilian life will be intensified, Prime Minister John Curtin declared after a meeting of the War Commitments Committee, which reviewed the manpower situation.

He said there were less than 200,000 workers engaged in producing civilian goods, compared with 500,000 before the war.

Factory workers now total 700,000, he said, and 500,000 of them are engaged in making war supplies.

RAF Keeps Up Raids On Burma

[By the Associated Press]

New Delhi, Jan. 7—RAF bombers made new attacks yesterday on Japanese positions in the Rathidaung area of Burma, north of Akyab, on the Arakan coast, inflicting casualties and doing damage to enemy-occupied buildings, a British communique reported today.

A Japanese gun post near Akyab was destroyed and several small craft were damaged along the Bay of Bengal shore in other forays, chiefly by fighters, it said.

Jap General Killed

Chungking, Jan. 7 (AP).—A Chinese army spokesman said today that Lieut. Gen. Osamu Tsukada, commander of the Japanese Eleventh Army Corps and former vice chief of staff at Tokyo, had been killed in the crash of a Japanese plane in Anhwei Province.

The plane was flying low, and was shot down last December 18 by rifle fire, the spokesman said.

The spokesman announced that a Japanese force attacking from the south had captured Lihwang, provisional capital of Anhwei Province.

Indo-China Claim By Japs

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 7—A Tokyo dispatch broadcast today by the Berlin radio indicated that Japanese efforts to detach French Indo-China still further from Vichy's control are making progress.

It quoted the Saigon correspondent of the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri-Hochi as writing that "the French authorities in Indo-China, in view of the practical impossibility of receiving in time instructions from home, have resolved to decide political and military questions on the spot without awaiting news from home."

There is reason to believe that the Vichy Government has approved of this, the correspondent said. He added that Indo-China's "cooperation with Japan is becoming constantly closer, especially since the British-American invasion of North Africa."

U. S. Envoy Reaches India

Karachi, India, Jan. 7 (AP).—William Phillipps, President Roosevelt's personal envoy to India, arrived here today.

Chile Believed Near Break

JAN 8- 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 7—Interior Minister Raul Morales has returned from visits to the United States, Brazil and Argentina with "decisive" information "to direct the foreign policy of Chile on the road which her own interests and solidarity with the rest of the American republics dictate," the Foreign Relations Ministry said last night.

There was no direct reference to the issue of this nation's relations with the Axis, but the formal statement added that "we feel closely bound to the destinies" of the American nations "in these moments decisive for the life of the continent and the cause of democracy."

Chile and Argentina are the only republics in the Americas still maintaining diplomatic relations with the Axis nations.

ARGENTINA CURBS NAZI NEWSPAPER

Buenos Aires, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—The Ministry of the Interior today suspended the Nazi daily, El Pampero, for five days, effective at once, for having published on Tuesday an article that ridiculed potential candidates in Argentina's presidential elections next November. The ban was issued under an existing state of siege which empowers the Federal Government to prevent expressions of opinions deemed by the authorities to be injurious to the regime.

Peru Joins Allied Stand On Property Rights

By the Associated Press.

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 7.—Peru today announced its adherence to the declaration two days ago by 17 Allied belligerent governments and the French National Committee on property rights in Axis-occupied countries.

In the declaration, announced in Washington, the countries said they would refuse to recognize any transferrence to Axis interests of properties forcibly acquired by the occupying nations and would restore property rights to their rightful owners when the Axis is ejected.

Mexico Sugar Source Is Barred to Texans

By the Associated Press.

JAN 8- 1943

EL PASO, Jan. 7.—El Pasoans may no longer fill their sugar bowls with unrationed importations from Juarez, Mexico, just across the Rio Grande.

An order by the United States customs collector today prohibited sugar importations by individuals and established rules for across-the-border dealings by commercial users, dozens of whom have been getting Mexican sugar to supplement their rations.

Heretofore El Paso residents have been free to bring across the border up to 2 kilograms (about 4.4 pounds) without duty and unlimited amounts upon which the impost was paid.

TWO U. S. AIRMEN ARE KILLED IN CANADA

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 7—(AP) Two of three airmen killed yesterday when their plane crashed near here were from the United States. They were Leading Aircraftman Richard Burton Steelman, 27, of Hammond, Ind., and Leading Aircraftman Lester Charles Jones, 21, of Alliance, Neb.

The third flier was Pilot Officer John Caskie, 23, of Hamilton, Ont. Their plane crashed into a snow-covered hill.

NEAR-FAMINE FACES CANADA ISLANDERS

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 7—(AP) Hormisdas Langlais, member of the legislative assembly for the Magdalen islands, said here today that—following a number of storms and wartime conditions that affect maritime shipping—the population of those islands in the St. Lawrence Gulf face a near-famine, particularly shortage of butter, sugar, and flour.

The company that serves the islands from Pictou, N. S. was making one trip weekly instead of the usual four because of the weather conditions and naval needs, Mr. Langlais said.

He added there were some provisions on the wharves of Souris, P. E. I., and Pictou, but that they could not be shipped to the islands because the boat which serves the island is unable to make its regular trips.

Mr. Langlais reported he had asked the federal government to send an icebreaker to the region to assure shipment of stock now in hand.

19th Bombardment Group Cited Fourth Time For Valorous Deeds in Pacific Battles

JAN 8 - 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Nineteenth Bombardment Group, Army Air Corps, has received its fourth citation as a unit, the War Department disclosed today in announcing the award of individual decorations to 20 officers and 28 enlisted men.

Just what new exploits brought the citation to this most-decorated outfit of the war were not made known. The War Department simply said it was for "actions, details of which have not yet been announced."

The individual decorations were for the aerial bombing raids of last August 7, 9 and 12 on the Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain.

The Nineteenth previously had received its third citation as a unit for the raids which were in the nature of a covering operation for the marine landings in Guadalcanal. In fact, the raids may have been the key to the success of the American landings in the Solomons, destroying Japanese shipping, facilities and planes which otherwise might have been used in attacking American transports unloading men and supplies at Guadalcanal.

The Nineteenth has accumulated an almost fabulous record. The group was in the Philippines when the Japanese attacked. It fought there as long as it could, receiving two citations as a unit. What planes were left then moved to Java, but some 200 men were left behind to fight as foot soldiers on Bataan and in Corregidor.

After Java fell, the Nineteenth went to Australia and has fought there since. Normally, it consists of about forty planes and 380 men. It suffered terrific losses in personnel in the Philippines, and as now constituted represents a consolidation of the old Nineteenth and the old Seventh Bombardment groups.

It lost many of its records in the Philippines and others in Java, but War Department officials estimate it has destroyed 350 Japanese planes in the air and an equal number on the ground, and has sunk 200 surface ships.

U. S. And Great Britain Sign Marine Pact

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 7—A marine agreement designed to eliminate loss of precious time and tonnage through damage claims and litigation has been signed by the United States and Great Britain, the State Department announced today.

In general, the agreement does away with claims by either Government against the other arising out of ship collisions, damage to cargo or salvage services.

Red Tape Erased

In future, if a collision occurs between a Government-owned American ship and a Government-owned British ship—whether warship or merchantman—no legal proceedings will be taken to determine the degree of blame and no claims for damages will be made by either side.

Repairs will be undertaken at once "without thought of anything but getting the damaged ship back into service in the war effort at the earliest possible moment."

Salvage services performed by either Government to the ships or cargo, owned or insured by the other, henceforth will be on lend-lease terms, each Government paying its own nationals.

Salvage Objectives

"The sole object of salvage services," says a commentary accompanying the text of the agreement issued here, "will be to bring the ship or cargo salvaged back into service as rapidly as possible without regard to any financial considerations."

It is pointed out that the provisions of the agreement regarding waiver of claims apply only to claims of one Government against the other, not to claims between either Government and private interests.

U. S. BOMBER SINKS JAP SHIP OFF KISKA

Washington, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—American bombers, at work to make the Japanese occupation of Kiska as expensive as possible, bombed two Japanese vessels in Aleutian waters on Tuesday and Wednesday, sinking one and scoring a direct hit on the other.

The Navy's 242d communique of the war today said that Mitchell medium bombers attacked an enemy cargo ship 110 miles northeast of Kiska on Tuesday, and that the ship was later seen to sink. Yesterday, the same communique related, a Liberator heavy bomber scored a direct hit and two near-hits "on an enemy ship 185 miles southwest of Kiska."

The presence of a Japanese ship 110 miles northeast of Kiska, far off the normal route between Japan and the outpost, was not explained. This fact suggested that the Japanese may be attempting to establish a new base in that area, that bad weather or a desire to attempt to escape detection had led to the ship to make a wide circle from the normal route or that she was a submarine supply ship.

STIMSON SAYS U. S. PLANES OUTDO FOE'S

Washington, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—Secretary Stimson said today that the air battles over North Africa have demonstrated the definite superiority of American aircraft over Axis planes. At a press conference he declared that the battle losses of the German and Italian air forces in North Africa had been about double those of the Allies and that the damage inflicted on enemy shipping and military installations was much greater than that suffered by the Allies.

Of the war generally, Mr. Stimson said: "Our attention continues to be focused on the striking successes of the Red Army, and in the Caucasus a major German withdrawal appears to have begun." In the North Pacific, the Japanese appear to have taken advantage of the weather, which hampered American operations, to bring in some additional planes to Kiska, but the Americans retain a definite superiority in the Aleutians and are continuing their attacks.

The success of Gen. MacArthur's campaign on the Papuan Peninsula of New Guinea is almost complete, he declared, and reserve supplies of food, motor fuel and ammunition have arrived in Guadalcanal, further strengthening the American forces in the Solomon Islands.

SURVIVORS TELL OF TORPEDOING

Medium Sized U. S. Cargo Was Sunk in November.

JAN 8 - 1943

Boston, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Two torpedoes discharged from an unseen enemy submarine crashed into the engine room of the starboard side and sent a medium sized United States merchantman to the bottom of the South Atlantic early in November, survivors reported today on their arrival at Boston, after having been previously landed at another North Atlantic port.

Fourteen survivors who reached Boston on their way to another port said that they believed that twenty-four of their shipmates had lost their lives in the sinking, and added that they did not know the fate of thirty-four other members of a ship's company of seventy-four. Although the ship went down within two minutes, they said that abandonment was carried out in orderly fashion and that it was possible that others had been picked up.

Surfacing after the sinking, the attacking submarine came alongside a lifeboat in charge of Third Mate Patrick F. Keenon of Huntington, W. Va., and members of the enemy crew questioned the survivors.

Ask About Captain.

"They asked for the captain and the first mate, but I told them they went down with the ship," Keenon said, explaining that he thought the submarine crew intended to make those officers prisoners. First Officer Clayton S. Hammond of Mathews, Va., actually was among those who survived, but the fate of Capt. O. L. St. Marie was not known.

Then, after questioning Keenon regarding his ship's cargo, its destination, tonnage and other details, the enemy submarine commander asked: "What is America doing, helping the black Russians?"

First Officer Hammond quoted the U-boat commander as saying he would have torpedoed the American merchantman hours earlier if she had not been zigzagging. Thus, the enemy commander commented, the survivors might have been spared many miles of rowing.

Fourteen at Sea 13 Days.

The fourteen men were at sea thirteen days after the torpedoing, before they were picked up by a rescue ship which found a majority suffering severely from the experience.

Among those brought to Boston were Hermon Michaelson, oiler, North Bergen, N. J.; Walter Fraser, oiler, Salem, Mass.; Thomas Miranda, Brooklyn; Marion R. Capers, boatswain, Port Orange, Fla.; Charles Brovish, Philadelphia; Nils Peterson, carpenter, Yonkers, N. Y.; Raymond C. Edwards, Woods Crossroads, Gloucester, Va.; Andrew S. Hancock, Cleveland, Ohio; Basil Florentine, Brooklyn and Murdock S. MacLean, chief steward, St. Petersburg, Fla.

FIVE ARE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Army Bomber Falls After Take-off in Florida.

Greenville, S. C., Jan. 7 (A. P.).—The Greenville Army air base announced today that one of its medium bombers crashed at Tallahassee, Fla., early yesterday morning, killing five members of the crew, seriously injuring another, and leaving one member missing.

Second Lieut. William M. Putman of Houston, Tex., the pilot, was listed as missing. He was believed to have wandered away from the scene of the wreck in a dazed condition.

The dead were identified as:

NORED, FLIGHT OFFICER RALPH E., 22, Poteau, Okla., the co-pilot.
BROWN, SECOND LIEUT. EARL H., 26, Mount Morris, Mich., bombardier.
BROWN, STAFF SERGT. OLIVER L., 23, Atlanta, Ga., engineer-gunner.
THOMPSON, SERGT. MARVIN T., 31, Bedford, Pa., radio operator-gunner.
MARINARI, PRIVATE FIRST-CLASS G. F., 25, Providence, R. I., bombardier-gunner.

The navigator, Second Lieut. Ivor P. Evans, of Aliquippa, Pa., suffered severe cuts and abrasions but his condition was not regarded as critical.

The announcement said the plane crashed at 12:06 A. M., just after taking off from Dale Mabry Field to return to its home base here from a training flight.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 7 (A. P.).—Eleven men were killed in the crash of a Topeka air base four-motored bomber three miles west of White City late yesterday.

Base officials said today that one man, Second Lieut. Frank Maleckas of Custer, Mich., parachuted to safety before the plane fell into a cornfield and burned twenty minutes after leaving the home field on a routine training flight.

Lieut. L. E. Larson, public relations officer announced the dead:

MASTERS, FLIGHT OFFICER JAMES G., Wisemantown, Ky.
SEDOR, SECOND LIEUT. JOHN, Hammond, Ind.
KENDALL, SECOND LIEUT. NORMAN A., Ruston, La.
SMALLWOOD, SECOND LIEUT. CLIFFORD A., Toledo, Ohio.
ALLEMAN, SECOND LIEUT. ARDON A., Santa Ana, Cal.
HULDER, SECOND LIEUT. JOSEPH P. JR., Armandale, N. J.
CLYNE, FIRST LIEUT. ROBERT, Tuscon, Ariz.
McNABB, PRIVATE LEONARD, Republic, Mo.
DZINGOSKI, PRIVATE GUSTAVE, Camden, N. J.
LARSON, STAFF SEGT. VERNON O., Rochelle, Ill.
MERLINO, STAFF SEGT. THOMAS P., Los Angeles.

A board began investigating the accident.

JAN 8 - 1943

Madill, Okla., Jan. 7 (A. P.).—A four-motored Army bomber crashed and burned last night two miles southwest of Lebanon, a village near the Red River, a civilian ambulance driver dispatched to the scene reported today.

The ambulance driver, Walter Blakemore, said that when he arrived the plane still was burning fiercely, making it impossible to attempt a rescue, and that eight or nine men were trapped.

A crew from nearby Perrin Field, Tex., took charge today. But officials said the plane was not from their field. At Oklahoma City, Will Rogers base officials said all their ships were accounted for.

Aid For Hero's Widow?

[By the Associated Press]

Detroit, Jan. 7—Uncle Sam is being asked to reconsider the income tax as currently expected from Mrs. Carl Siglin, widow of "the bravest man in the United States Army."

Friends have written to Washington in her behalf, it became known today, and United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, has put the matter up to tax experts.

When Major Carl Siglin was killed in Africa, soldiers under his command called him "the bravest man in the United States Army." He sacrificed his life to bring in a wounded man under heavy fire.

Has Two Small Children

The widow, left with two children, Carl, Jr., 22 months, and David, 7 months, now has an income-tax bill of an estimated $80 to $100.

Tax officials here pointed out that the law holds a soldier's widow technically liable to the tax on his income at the instant of his death. He is not required to pay while he is in service. Major Siglin's base pay was $3,000 a year.

Senator Vandenberg said he had put the problem up to staff experts of the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue. He said they would determine whether "any latitudes are possible under the existing statutes."

"Undeniable Challenge"

The Senator termed the pleas of Mrs. Siglin's friends "an undeniable challenge."

Mrs. Siglin, who lives with her children at her parents' home, said she would do her best to pay the tax. She made no complaint, although admitting worry over whether the Government would give her an extension of time.

"I suppose the Government needs every penny these days," she said.

She said she had put "every extra cent" into war bonds and had not saved expressly for the income tax.

Blakeley Back At Sea Fitted With New Bow

Part of Sister Ship Grafted to Destroyer, Torpedoed in Caribbean Last May

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7 (AP).—The old 1,090-ton four-stacker destroyer Blakeley, which limped 2,000 miles home after her bow was blasted off by an enemy torpedo last May, is at sea again—with greater firepower and cruising range than ever, the Navy disclosed today.

JAN 8 1943

The Philadelphia Navy Yard put the ship back in action by welding on the bow of a sister ship, the Taylor, decommissioned in 1938.

The Navy told this story of the Blakeley's adventures:

She was in the Caribbean Sea when an enemy torpedo ripped away more than sixty of her 314 feet, killing ten of the crew and injuring six.

A hastily slammed bulkhead door holding back the sea, she limped into a near-by port where a wooden bulkhead was erected across the gap, then pointed her blunt bow toward the nearest United States repair station in the West Indies. There a steel false bow was built and an anchor improvised from a truck axle and differential housing, welded at right angles to a length of railroad track.

The Blakeley's captain, Lieutenant Mitchell D. Matthews, thirty-nine years old, of Maysville, Ky., one of the five aboard who received the Legion of Merit decoration last month, said he navigated her back along the Atlantic coast "with an old compass and a crystal ball."

At the navy yard, under the supervision of Lieutenant J. M. Ballinger, workmen cut the forward edge of the Blakeley and the bow of the Taylor to fit "like a jigsaw puzzle" and welded them into one ship.

The operation differed from the repair of the destroyer Shaw after Pearl Harbor, the Navy said, in that the Shaw was supplied with a new bow.

The navy yard is keeping the Taylor in case another ship needs a similar "grafting" operation.

Giraud Enemy No. One Of Nazis, General Reveals

Germans Face Certain Defeat, Says Leader, Urging French Unity.

JAN 8 1943

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (U.P.)—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud disclosed today that the Germans — from whom he escaped — regarded him as "enemy number one" and had shot one of his young relatives in France because a German noncommissioned officer had been attacked in a theater, the Dakar radio declared in a broadcast heard by C.B.S.

The broadcast also reported that the French High commissioner had said he was certain that "Germany is defeated" but that the fight "will be hard, very hard."

Gen. Giraud was quoted as saying he had good reason for being so sure of a German defeat.

"I was a prisoner in Germany," he said, "a prisoner visited by high officers and Army generals because I had the honor of being considered by them enemy number one."

Observed Decline

"Through these contacts I could observe closely the decline of German might, a formidable might at the time it defeated us, but which, in 1942, already showed clear signs of exhaustion. I had until then believed in a German victory and now I am sure of the contrary.

"Germany today has had two million and a half of her men killed. .... However, I will not lull you into blissful optimism. I am sure of victory but I am also sure that the fight will be hard, very hard. The German army today is very strong and Germany's internal structure is undoubtedly much stronger than in 1918. Let us not fancy that we will march into Paris tomorrow."

Knows Fate of Hostages

The general was also quoted as saying that he knew the fate of prisoners and of hostages.

"One of my young relatives was arrested one day for not having painted his bicycle lamp blue. A few days later he was shot as a Communist because a German noncom had been attacked in a theater. I could cite many such examples. It is in order to put an end to all of this that we are fighting.

"I am not a political man. I know only that I want one thing, one thing alone. Chase the Germans out of France and restore France to herself. For this, I want the union of all Frenchmen. We have one program alone ahead of us. Liberate our fatherland, avenge the infamous treatment inflicted by the Germans on the French people."

Nazi Planes Use Rockets, Report

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 7—A British aircraft authority said today that rockets were used at the take-off of the German Junkers 88 medium bombers to give quick acceleration.

Writing in the annual review issue of Iron Age, steel-trade journal, C. G. Grey, well known in the British aviation field, said such rocket propelled starts had been used for two years.

Terrifying Sight Described

Grey quoted an escaped Dutch flyer as saying that "few things are more terrifying than to see a heavily loaded bomber full of bombs and gasoline taking off at night with a huge rocket blazing under each wing and knowing that if one engine cuts the whole thing will turn over and go up in one burst of flame."

The author also reported that rockets were being used in another way by the Russians. He said that two or three rocket bombs for ground attack were carried under each wing of the new Stormovik bomber-fighter. The bombs are carried on rails instead of normal bomb racks. They are fired electrically and are given their direction by sliding along the rails. This, he added, with their rocket propulsion, carries them more nearly in a straight line with the course of the plane than if they were ordinary bombs.

Fly From France To Norway

Grey asserted that the big four-engine Focke-Wulf Kurriers, which have been harrying Atlantic convoys, start their trips from a big airdrome near Bordeaux, in the south of France. They fly out around Ireland, up to Iceland and thence to Norway, where they have a runway something over two miles long, from which they take off and fly on the reverse course.

To combat the Kurriers, Grey said, the British have been catapulting Hurricanes from the decks of big merchant ships. If a Hurricane alighted on the water, however, it invariably turned over on its nose and killed or drowned the pilot, so the pilots took to bailing out with their parachutes after shooting down or chasing off the enemy.

In spite of the fact that each such engagement meant the loss of a Hurricane, the method has stopped Kurrier depredations, Grey said.

Gold Urged For Allies

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 7—W. L. Hemingway, president of the American Bankers Association and President of the Mercanti-Commercial Bank and Trust Company, St. Louis, proposed today in a program of post-war reconstruction that the United States make available to the rest of the world a part of its reserves of gold and silver.

"If it is proper, and I think it is," said Hemingway in an address prepared for delivery before the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, "to send butter and guns to our Allies for their sustenance and their defense, why will it not be good business, after the dictators have been put to sleep, to also send gold and silver to enable our Allies and our former enemies too to establish a sound banking and currency system?"

Spirit Of Thrift

Rejecting the idea that the countries of Europe and the Orient will at the end of the war be so bankrupt as to leave no basis for credit, Hemingway said:

"Even though these countries will have suffered fearful losses their people still will retain their industry, there spirit of thrift and their special abilities to make things that we in this country want and need, things that with all our vaunted technical progress we have not been able to make as well as they have. In short they will possess the character and capacity and we will provide them with the capital to help both them and ourselves."

Mrs. Hopkins and Beaverbrook Deny $500,000 Gift of Jewels

By the Associated Press

Published reports that Republican Congressmen planned to investigate a reputed gift of $500,000 worth of emerald jewelry to Mrs. Harry Hopkins from Lord Beaverbrook, British lend-lease official, drew a denial from Mrs. Hopkins yesterday that she had received such a gift.

"I don't even own one emerald," the bride of President Roosevelt's close adviser told an interviewer at a hospital where she does volunteer work. "It's a lie. I never owned an emerald and don't own one now."

(In London, Lord Beaverbrook said, "It is all nonsense."

("The story," Beaverbrook added, "is all fabrication from first to last, but the Germans will like it.")

Meanwhile Stephen Early, the President's secretary, commented.

"If the Republican Party, through its representatives in Congress, wants to bring about an investigation of the personal and private affairs of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hopkins, I have no doubt but what Mr. Hopkins or Mrs. Hopkins, or both of them will be glad to appear before any committee appointed by the Congress for the purpose of making such an investigation.

"Meanwhile, I think those who propose such an investigation should, as a matter of simple justice, make sure that the gossip they are spreading is based on something more substantial than the malicious rumors and statements now being published by certain newspapers hostile to the Government and to certain officials of the Government."

Representative Martin of Massachusetts, House Republican leader, said yesterday that he expected a move to be made soon to investigate Hopkins' public and private activities but that he was not at liberty to disclose the nature of the activities to be questioned or the identity of those who would seek the investigation.

Lend Lease Probe Asked

Senator Butler (Republican), Nebraska, meanwhile introduced a resolution in his branch of Congress to investigate the administration of the Lend-Lease Act.

He had said previously in a statement that "Congress voted the President billions of dollars to operate the Lend-Lease program. It did not know at the time that Harry Hopkins, with his background of 'spend and spend, tax and tax, elect and elect,' was to be the behind-the-scenes administrator of this fund."

(Critics attributed to Hopkins some years ago a statement that "we will spend and spend, tax and tax, elect and elect" but Hopkins denied that he ever said it.)

NIGHT LEAD FRENCH

BY ERNEST G.AGNEW JAN 8- 1943

LONDON, JAN. 7-(AP)-GEN.HENRI HONORE GIRAUD HAS AGREED "IN PRINCIPLE" TO MEET GEN.CHARLES DE GAULLE ON FRENCH SOIL, IT WAS REPORTED AUTHORITATIVELY TODAY, WHILE A UNION OF THE RESPECTIVE ARMED FORCES DREW NEARER REALIZATION WITH THE STEADY ADVANCE OF A FIGHTING FRENCH COLUMN THROUGH SOUTHERN LIBYA.

THERE WAS STILL DISAGREEMENT ON A TIME FOR THE MEETING BUT SOME LONDON CIRCLES EXPRESSED BELIEF THAT THE FRENCH HIGH COMMISSIONER IN AFRICA AND THE FIGHTING FRENCH LEADER HERE WERE NEARER COMING TO TERMS THAN EVER BEFORE.

GIRAUD WAS REPORTED TO HAVE ASKED THAT THE PROPOSED CONFERENCE BE DELAYED UNTIL THE END OF JANUARY FOR "VARIOUS REASONS" BUT THAT DE GAULLE IN REPLY HAD REPEATED THAT THE SITUATION WITHIN FRANCE "ADMITTED OF NO DELAY."

IT WAS BELIEVED IN SOME QUARTERS HERE THAT GIRAUD HAD REQUESTED DELAY ONLY BECAUSE OF THE CONFUSED MILITARY AND POLITICAL SITUATION IN NORTH AFRICA AND THAT HE MIGHT THINK SOME CLARIFICATION WOULD EXIST IN THE LATTER PART OF THE MONTH. JAN 8- 1943

MEANWHILE, AS THE TWO LEADERS DISCUSSED THEIR MEETING BY CORRESPONDENCE, THE FIGHTING FRENCH ANNOUNCED THAT THE TROOPS UNDER GEN.JACQUES LECLERC, NOM DE GUERRE OF A FRENCHMAN WHOSE FAMILY STILL LIVES IN FRANCE, HAD STORMED AND CAPTURED UMM-EL-ARAUEB, MAIN AXIS OUTPOST IN THE FEZZAN AREA OF SOUTHERNMOST LIBYA.

THE FIGHTING FRENCH SAID THE OUTPOST 600 MILES SOUTH OF TRIPOLI WAS CAPTURED AFTER A THREE-DAY BATTLE. TROOPS DIRECTLY COMMANDED BY A COL.INGOLD, LEADER OF ONE OF LE CLERC'S COLUMNS, SEIZED SEVERAL HUNDRED PRISONERS, GUNS, MACHINE-GUNS AND OTHER BOOTY.

THE FIGHTING FRENCH OF GEN.LE CLERC THUS HAVE MOVED UP MORE THAN 1,000 MILES FROM THEIR BASES NEAR LAKE CHAD IN THEIR ADVANCE TO JOIN THE ALLIES IN NORTH AFRICA.

GIRAUD HIMSELF WAS IN DAKAR, FRENCH WEST AFRICA, FOR VITAL CONFERENCES. IT WAS REPORTED THAT ONE OF THE MAIN TOPICS WOULD BE USE OF THE FRENCH WARSHIPS AT DAKAR BY THE ALLIED NAVIES AGAINST THE AXIS. JAN 8- 1943

AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT FROM ALGIERS SAID THAT GIRAUD HAD GONE TO DAKAR TO "STUDY CIVILIAN AND MILITARY PROBLEMS" AND TO CONFER WITH GOVERNOR-GENERAL PIERRE BOISSON, OF FRENCH WEST AFRICA.

GENERAL GEORGES CATROUX, FIGHTING FRENCH HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR SYRIA AND LEBANON, ARRIVED HERE TODAY TO CONFER WITH GENERAL CHARLES DE GAULLE AND OTHER FIGHTING FRENCH LEADERS. IT WAS THE SECOND TIME IN TWO MONTHS HE HAS COME TO LONDON FROM THE MIDDLE EAST.

LONDON (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--(AP)-THEY ARE SELDOM IN THE HEADLINES, BUT THE SURE-HANDED MEN WHO HAVE A WAY WITH "HANGAR QUEENS" AND ARE SKILLED AT "CANNIBALIZING" PLAY AN INDISPENSIBLE ROLE IN BUILDING AMERICAN AIR MIGHT IN THIS THEATER OF THE WAR.

WITHOUT THE MECHANICS OF THE GROUND CREWS THERE COULD BE NO CONTINUED, HEAVY AERIAL BLOWS AGAINST THE AXIS--AND NO ONE IS QUICKER TO POINT THIS OUT THAN THE PILOTS AND FLYING CREWS WHO WIN THE MEDALS.

JAN 8- 1943

CAPTAIN HARRY W.SICHARD, OF BALTIMORE, MD., HAS BEEN WITH THE MECHANICAL END OF THE AIR FORCE FOR 20 YEARS, STARTING OUT AS A PRIVATE, AND HE CAN TELL MANY STORIES OF THE AMAZING JOBS THESE MECHANICS HAVE DONE IN SENDING WARPLANES OUT TO FIGHT AGAIN AFTER THEY'VE BEEN CRIPPLED BY THE ENEMY.

TYPICAL OF SUCH FEATS WAS THE JOB ON A BOEING FORTRESS WHICH LIEUT. JOE HAAS OF SAN JOSE, CALIF., FLEW BACK TO HIS BRITISH BASE AFTER A RAID OVER GERMAN-HELD EUROPE.

THE LEADING EDGE OF ONE OF THE WINGS WAS SEVERELY TORN. THE TAIL ASSEMBLY WAS BATTERED ALMOST BEYOND USE, WITH THE ELEVATOR STABILIZER SMASHED. THERE WAS A HOLE IN ONE OF THE PROPELLER BLADES. THE OXYGEN LINES WERE PUNCTURED. THE RADIO HATCH WAS TORN AWAY. THE ANTI-ICE TANK WAS DESTROYED AND THE FUSELAGE AND WINGS WERE PERFORATED WITH BULLET AND CANNON HOLES.

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF SGT. JOHN B.WHITE OF ST.MARY'S WEST, VA., THE COMPACT GROUND CREW WENT TO WORK ON A HALF DOZEN JOBS AT ONCE AND IN SURPRISINGLY FEW DAYS THE FORTRESS WAS FLYING AGAINST THE ENEMY ONCE MORE.

LONDON, JAN. 7--(AP)--THE USE BY THE ALLIES OF FRENCH WARSHIPS AT DAKAR WAS REPORTED TODAY TO BE ONE OF THE TOPICS ON WHICH FRENCH COMMISSIONER GENERAL HENRI HONORE GIRAUD WILL CONFER WITH NAVAL CHIEFTAINS DURING HIS STAY IN THE FRENCH WEST AFRICA NAVAL BASE.

GIRAUD WAS GREETED WITH SHOUTS OF WELCOME FROM THOUSANDS OF PERSONS ON HIS ARRIVAL TUESDAY AT DAKAR, WHICH [redacted] TURNED BACK A FIGHTING FRENCH-BRITISH ATTEMPT TO SEIZE IT BUT WHICH IS NOW ON THE ALLIED SIDE.

AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT [redacted] FROM ALGIERS SAID THAT GIRAUD WAS IN DAKAR TO "STUDY CIVILIAN AND MILITARY PROBLEMS AND TO CONFER WITH GOVERNOR-GENERAL PIERRE BOISSON, OF FRENCH WEST AFRICA.

[redacted] OF THE REMAINDER OF THE FRENCH FLEET IS AT DAKAR AND ADMIRAL JEAN DARLAN DECLARED BEFORE HIS ASSASSINATION THAT HE [redacted] FRENCH WARSHIPS IN DAKAR, ALEXANDRIA, EGYPT, AND NORTH AFRICAN PORTS DEFINITELY WOULD BE USED WITH THEALLIED FLEET AGAINST THE AXIS.

JAN 8- 1943

[redacted] IT HAS BEEN REPORTED THAT THE 35,000-TON BATTLESHIP RICHELIEU, DAMAGED IN THE 1940 FIGHT FOR THE CITY, [redacted] CRUISERS, [redacted] DESTROYERS, EIGHT TO 12 SUBMARINES AND A SUBMARINE TENDER ARE AT DAKAR.

THE [redacted] DAKAR RADIO TODAY REPORTED GENERAL GIRAUD AS DECLARING THAT THE DEFEAT OF GERMANY WAS BEYOND DOUBT, BUT THAT THE "FIGHT WILL BE HARD, VERY HARD."

GIRAUD ALSO WAS QUOTED AS [redacted] URGING ALL FRENCHMEN

TO UNITE TO "LIBERATE OUR FATHERLAND AND AVENGE THE [illegible]

TREATMENT INFLICTED BY THE GERMANS ON THE FRENCH PEOPLE."

LONDON, JAN 7-(AP)-THE ALGIERS RADIO REPORTED TODAY THE EXECUTION OF A TUNISIAN NATIVE FOR AIDING GERMAN PARACHUTE TROOPS DROPPED AT ST.ARNAUD, MIDWAY BETWEEN ALGIERS AND THE TUNISIAN BORDER, FOR SABOTAGE WORK.

JAN 8- 1943

IT SAID THE TUNISIAN WAS EXECUTED YESTERDAY AFTER TRIAL BY COURT MARTIAL.

THE GERMAN PARACHUTE TROOPS WERE SAID TO HAVE BEEN CAPTURED THROUGH THE EFFORTS OF ALGERIAN NATIVES.

ST.ARNAUD, MORE THAN 150 MILES EAST OF ALGIERS, IS SITUATED ON A RAILWAY LINE.

BY HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, FRIDAY, JAN.8-(AP)-THE RED ARMY PUSHING NORTHWARD FROM THE CAUCASIAN MOUNTAIN FOOTHILLS HAS WRESTED 40 MORE INHABITED POINTS FROM GERMAN TROOPS WHO ARE RETREATING IN APPARENT FEAR OF ENTRAPMENT BY OTHER SOVIET COLUMNS NOW STRIKING TO WITHIN 75 MILES OF ROSTOV ALONG THE LOWER DON RIVER.

JAN 8- 1943

THE MIDNIGHT SOVIET COMMUNIQUE SAID THE RUSSIAN CAUCASIAN ARMIES FANNING OUT ON BOTH SIDES OF THE BAKU-ROSTOV RAILWAY HAD CAPTURED THE REGIONAL CENTER OF STEPNOYE, 30 MILES NORTH OF MOZDOK, AND HAD ALSO TAKEN SOVETSKAYA, WHICH IS DUE NORTH OF PROKHLADNENSKI, OR ABOUT 30 MILES SHORT OF GEORGIEVSK.

THREE LARGE TOWNS, SOLOMENSKOYE, SUKHAYA-PALINA AND SEVERNY, ALSO WERE LISTED AS CAPTURED IN THE CONTINUING RUSSIAN ADVANCE. THESE TOWNS ARE BETWEEN STEPNOYE AND SOVETSKAYA.

ON THE LOWER DON FAR TO THE NORTH RUSSIAN TROOPS WERE DRIVING WESTWARD ON BOTH SIDES OF THE DON TOWARD ROSTOV, BUT THE NEAREST SOVIET PENETRATION TO THAT CITY WAS THAT ANNOUNCED IN YESTERDAY'S COMMUNIQUE, THE CAPTURE OF BOLSHAYA ORLOVKA, ABOUT 75 MILES DUE EAST OF ROSTOV ON THE SAL RIVER.

THE RUSSIANS BROADENED THEIR FRONT IN THIS AREA BY OCCUPYING MARTINOVKA, ON THE SAL RIVER 20 MILES SOUTH OF THE DON. THIS POINT, HOWEVER, IS 18 MILES AT THE REAR OF THE SOVIET TROOPS AT BOLSHAYA ORLOVKA.

JAN 8- 1943

THE COMMUNIQUE SAID THE RED ARMY ALSO TOOK NIKOLAEVSKAYA, 12 MILES WEST OF MARINSKAYA ON THE NORTH BANK OF THE DON, AND ROMANOVSKAYA, 18 MILES EAST OF MARINSKAYA.

PUSHING SIMULTANEOUSLY ALONG THE RAILROAD WEST FROM STALINGRAD TOWARD LIKHAYA THE RUSSIANS SAID THEY TOOK VALKOVO, 14 MILES WEST OF MOROZOVSKY AND ABOUT 110 MILES NORTHEAST OF ROSTOV. SEIZURE OF THIS POINT FILLED IN THE GAP BETWEEN CAPTURED MOROZOVSKY AND TATSINKAYA.

A NUMBER OF VILLAGES IN THE REGION BETWEEN THE STALINGRAD-LIKHAYA RAILROAD AND THE LOWER DON ALSO WERE REPORTED OCCUPIED. THEY INCLUDED NIKOLAEV AND DEMKOV, ROUGHLY MIDWAY BETWEEN MOROZOVSKY AND TSIMLYANSK.

FAR TO THE EAST OF THESE ADVANCING RUSSIANS THE REMNANTS OF 22 NAZI DIVISIONS ENCIRCLED BEFORE STALINGRAD STILL WERE THE SUBJECT OF FRANTIC GERMAN RELIEF EFFORTS, FRONT DISPATCHES SAID. BIG NAZI TRANSPORT PLANES DAILY FLY IN SUPPLIES TO THESE MEN, AND ALMOST DAILY MANY OF THEM ARE SHOT DOWN BY SOVIET AIRMEN.

THE RUSSIAN THREAT TO ROSTOV WAS INCREASING, AND THE GERMANS APPEARED TO BE PUTTING UP MORE OF A FIGHT IN THE LOWER DON, ALTHOUGH THE SOVIETS SAID THEY WERE SMASHING THESE NAZI COUNTERBLOWS AND CONTINUING TO GAIN GROUND.

DEEP DOWN IN THE CAUCASUS IT WAS ANOTHER STORY. THERE THE GERMANS WERE FALLING BACK FAST, DISPATCHES SAID, AND THE COMMUNIQUE SAID MORE THAN 2,000 LAND MINES SPRINKLED BY THE WITHDRAWING GERMANS HAD BEEN REMOVED BY SOVIET SAPPERS.

TUSSIAN TANKS LED THE CAUCASUS ADVANCE WHILE AUTOMATIC GUNNERS KEPT CUTTING THROUGH TO THE GERMAN REAR, HARASSING THE NAZI LINE OF RETREAT ALONG WHICH THE ENEMY WAS BURNING AND BLASTING ROADS AND BRIDGES.

JAN 8- 1943

(THE GERMANS ADMITTED LAST NIGHT FOR THE FIRST TIME THAT THEIR TROOPS WERE WITHDRAWING IN THE CAUCASUS UNDER THE HEAVY BLOWS OF MASSED RED ARMY TANKS, AND HAD COMPLETED A "SHORTENING OF LINES" OPERATION).

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES ON GUADALCANAL, DEC. 24-(DELAYED) -(AP)-MAJ. DONALD YOST, [illegible] A 31-YEAR-OLD NEWCOMER FROM PRINCETON, N.J., WAS THE OUSTANDING FIGURE IN THE COLLECTION OF 29 JAPANESE ZERO PLANES DURING THE LAST TWO DAYS' RAIDS ON THE ENEMY'S SOLOMON ISLAND BASE OF MUNDA, NEW GEORGIA.

MAJOR YOST, A PRINCETON UNIVERSITY GRADUATE, ONLY ARRIVED A WEEK AGO AND DIDN'T SEE THE ENEMY UNTIL HE MET SIX ZEROS NEAR MUNDA YESTERDAY. IN A FEW MINUTES HE HAD SHOT DOWN TWO OF THEM, AND CHASED THREE OTHERS OFF THE DIVE-BOMBER TAILS OF HIS MATES.

THEN THIS MORNING AT 7:30 A.M. [illegible] HE SHOT DOWN FOUR MORE IN TEN MINUTES, MAKING A TWO-DAY BAG OF SIX.

JAN 8 - 1943

"I JUST [illegible] TANGLED AROUND WITH THEM AWHILE," SAID YOST, USING HIS HANDS AND ARMS TO EXPLAIN COMBAT MOVEMENTS.

(A WASHINGTON NAVAL ANNOUNCEMENT CHRISTMAS DAY SAID U.S. AIRMEN HAD DESTROYED A TOTAL OF 24 PLANES DURING THE CHRISTMAS EVE ATTACKS ON MUNDA).

THE JAPANESE ARE TRYING TO BUILD A NEW AIRFIELD AND BASE AT MUNDA, BUT OUR [illegible] DIVE-BOMBERS, FIGHTERS AND FLYING FORTRESSES HAVE BEEN HAMMERING THEM DAILY, SOMETIMES TWO OR THREE TIMES A DAY.

THIS MORNING MARINE AND ARMY PILOTS FLYING DOUGLAS

DIVE-BOMBERS, GRUMMANS, [illegible] AND BELL AIRACOBRAS DEALT THE HEAVIEST BLOW IN TWO WEEKS AGAINST MUNDA WHEN THEY SURPRISED AND DESTROYED 22 [illegible] ZEROS. THE DIVEBOMBERS GOT APPROXIMATELY 16 [illegible] EITHER ON THE GROUND OR JUST TAKING OFF, AND OUR FIGHTERS KNOCKED OUT SIX IN THE AIR. JAN 8- 1943

THE JAPANESE FIRST WERE SEEN TRYING LARGE-SCALE AIR OPERATIONS OVER MUNDA YESTERDAY, AND THE AMERICANS PROMPTLY WENT UP AND SHOT DOWN SEVEN ZEROS AND HACKED CHUNKS OUT OF THE ENEMY FIELD. WE LOST THREE FIGHTERS YESTERDAY. (NO AMERICAN PLANES WERE LOST IN THE BIG CHRISTMAS EVE AT[illegible] ATTACK THE FOLLOWING DAY, THE NAVY ANNOUNCED). JAN 8- 1943

PILOTS RETURNING FROM [illegible] THIS MORNING'S RAID SAID TERRIFIC EXPLOSIONS, FIRES AND SMOKE OCCURRED WHEN THEY DROPPED THEIR BOMBS IN THE MIDST OF THE MILLING JAPANESE PLANES ON THE GROUND. SOME ENEMY PLANES WERE ONLY A FEW FEET IN THE AIR WHEN THEY [illegible] WERE BLASTED AND CRASHED.

THE U.S. AIRMEN BELIEVED THEY HAD SIGHTED A NEW TYPE OF ZERO PLANE--A LARGE ONE WITH SQUARE [illegible] WINGTIPS, THEY SAID.

MAJOR YOST HAD ONE CLOSE CALL [illegible] IN TODAY'S [illegible] SCRAP WHEN HE AND AN ENEMY PILOT HEADED STRAIGHT TOWARD EACH OTHER SPURTING BULLETS. [illegible] HE SAID THEY MISSED EACH OTHER BY A FEW FEET, AND [illegible] "THE JAP LEFT BULLETS IN MY ENGINE AND WING." JAN 8- 1943

ANOTHER NEWCOMER, LIEUT. KENNETH KIRK, JR., [illegible] OF BARRE, [illegible] OF VT., SHOT DOWN TWO ZEROS THIS MORNING. KIRK HAS BEEN FLYING ALL TYPES OF AIRCRAFT INCLUDING SEAPLANES FOR SIX MONTHS IN THIS [illegible] AREA, BUT IT WAS THE FIRST TIME HE WAS UP AGAINST A ZERO.

LOW-FLYING AMERICAN [illegible] PILOTS HAVE DISCOVERED ANOTHER JAPANESE TRICK WHICH IS TO POUR OIL IN SMALL DEPRESSIONS ON THEIR RUNWAY SO THAT [illegible] FROM THE AIR [illegible] AND IN PHOTOGRAPHS THE FIELD APPEARS TO BE FULL OF CRATERS.

THE JAPANESE PLAN [illegible] AT MUNDA APPARENTLY IS TO ESTABLISH FIGHTERS THERE SO THAT ENEMY BOMBERS FLYING DOWN FROM RABAUL, NEW BRITAIN, CAN PICK UP A FIGHTER ESCORT AT THAT POINT

30.24 —175

TO STRIKE AT GUADALCANAL.

BUT OUR DEVASTATING ATTACKS ON MUNDA IS MAKING THIS IMPOSSIBLE SO FAR.

JAN 8- 1943

OUR PLANES ALSO ARE STILL RAIDING BUKA AND BUIN FARTHER UP IN THE SOLOMONS, GOING OVER ABOUT MIDNIGHT, AND STICKING AROUND FROM TWO TO FOUR HOURS AND DROPPING BOMBS AND FALRES TO KEEP THE JAPANESE AWAKE. #

CHUNGKING (ADD) XX PROVINCE.

THE JAPANESE WERE REPORTED REINFORCING A FORCE WHICH THE SPOKESMAN SAID ALREADY NUMBERED 35,000 MEN IN A CONTINUING ATTACK IN THE MOUNTAINS OF HUPEH AND ANHWEI PROVINCES IN AN ATTEMPT TO ELIMINATE A POTENTIAL BASE FOR A CHINESE COUNTEROFFENSIVE.

NATION'S WAR EFFORT AND BY VARIOUS INDUSTRIAL AND OTHER LEADERS UNITED IN TELLING WHAT IS BEING DONE IN THE DOMINION TO HELP CARRY THE FIGHT AGAINST THE AXIS TO A SUCCESSFUL CONCLUSION.

AT THE SAME TIME AN ARTICLE BY R.P.JELLETT OF MONTREAL, PRESIDENT OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF CANADA, INJECTED A POST-WAR NOTE BY STATING THAT THE CHAMBER, RECOGNIZING THAT THE "GLEAM OF ULTIMATE VICTORY" IS GROWING BRIGHTER, HAS EMPHASIZED THE NEED OF POSTWAR DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS NOW.

HIS STATEMENT WAS ECHOED IN AN ARTICLE BY WALLACE R.CAMPBELL OF WINDSOR, ONT., PRESIDENT OF THE FORD MOTOR COMPANY OF CANADA, WHO WROTE THAT CANADA'S WAR EFFORT IN 1942 REACHED "UNBELIEVABLE" HEIGHTS AND IN MANY PHASES SET THE PACE AMONG THE UNITED NATIONS OF THE WORLD.

WHILE ALL THE CONTRIBUTORS EMPHASIZED THE GROWTH OF CANADA'S WAR EFFORT THEY ALSO ASSERTED THERE COULD BE NO SLACKENING UNTIL FINAL VICTORY.

TRADE MINISTER MACKINNON WROTE THAT CANADA'S EFFORT UP TO THE PRESENT WAS MAINLY CONCERNED WITH PUTTING THE MUNITIONS OF WAR, INCLUDING FOODSTUFFS, INTO THE HANDS OF THOSE FIGHTING OUR BATTLES ON THE WORLD'S FIGHTING FRONTS. HEAVY FLOODS OF ARMS AND MUNITIONS HAD BEEN SENT OVERSEAS WHILE CANADIAN FOODSTUFFS PLAYED A BIG PART IN SUSTAINING BRITISH MORALE.

IN REGARD TO AGRICULTURE, HON.J.G.GARDINER, FEDERAL MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE, WROTE THAT SINCE THE WAR BEGAN "FARMERS OF CANADA HAVE CERTAINLY DONE THEIR PART IN WHAT IS TERMED THE WAR EFFORT." THEY WERE STILL DOING IT AND WOULD CONTINUE TO DO SO UNTIL "THE DAY OF

DESPITE AN "ACUTE" SHORTAGE OF HELP AND OTHER OBSTACLES CANADIAN FARMERS HAD INCREASED AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTION TO THE HIGHEST POINT ON RECORD.

MR.COLEMAN COMMENTED IT HAS BEEN PROVEN RAILWAYS IN TIMES OF NATIONAL DANGER ARE A MAINSTAY OF FRONT LINE DEFENSE.

RALPH P.BELL, DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF THE FEDERAL AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION BRANCH, TOLD HOW CANADA IS MAKING NINE TYPES OF AIRCRAFT, "EACH RECOGNIZED AS THE BEST OF ITS CLASS IN THE WORLD."

FINANCE MINISTER ILSLEY WROTE THAT WHILE WAR FINANCES PILED UP BURDENS FOR THE AVERAGE CITIZEN, INDIVIDUAL INTERESTS MUST BE SUBMERGED TO A GREATER EXTENT IN THE WAR CAUSE. HE STATED, HOWEVER, THAT THE FOURTH WARTIME CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR IN CANADA FOUND THE NATION FACING THE FUTURE WITH MORE HOPE AND CONFIDENCE THAN AT ANY OF ITS PREDECESSORS.

THE CANADIAN STANDARD OF LIVING HAD REMAINED "REMARKABLY HIGH" UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES BUT IT "MUST BE RECOGNIZED THAT AN EVER-INCREASING SHORTAGE OF LABOR AND A PROGRESSIVE CURTAILMENT OF NON-ESSENTIAL ACTIVITIES ARE THE BEST EVIDENCE OF THE COMPLETENESS OF THE NATION'S MOBILIZATION FOR WAR."

FROM CHARLES ST.PIERRE, PRESIDENT OF THE CANADIAN BANKERS' ASSOCIATION, CAME AN ARTICLE STATING THAT CANADIAN BANKS "TAKE SECOND PLACE TO NONE IN THE COUNTRY'S WAR EFFORT." THE BANKING SYSTEM HAD BEEN ABLE TO PROVIDE EXTENSIVELY FROM ITS FINANCIAL RESOURCES, ITS OPERATING FACILITIES AND PERSONNEL, AND THE EXPERIENCED COUNSEL OF BANK OFFICERS, TO SUPPORT AND EXTEND THE VARIOUS PHASES OF CANADA'S WAR PROGRAM.

NEW YORK, JAN.7-(AP)-THE GERMANS' FIRST COMMENT TONIGHT ON PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S ADDRESS TO CONGRESS TOOK THE CUSTOMARY LINE OF ATTACKING THE PRESIDENT, AND THEY SINGLED OUT HIS FIGURES ON U.S. WAR PRODUCTION FOR PARTICULAR COMMENT, DESCRIBING THEM AS "FANTASTIC."

THE BERLIN RADIO BROADCAST A COMMENT BY THE DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT OF THE GERMAN TRANSOCEAN NEWS AGENCY DECLARING THAT THE WAR SITUATION "CANNOT BE CHANGED...BY ANNOUNCEMENT OF PLANS AND HOPES FOR THE FUTURE."

JAN 8- 1943

"ROOSEVELT'S THREATS ABOUT ATTACKS ON EUROPE PLANNED FOR THIS YEAR, PARTICULARLY FROM THE AIR, WERE REGISTERED WITHOUT ALARM IN BERLIN," THE COMMENTARY SAID. "THE GERMAN PEOPLE KNOW THAT ROOSEVELT'S SOLDIERS AND BOMBERS WILL GET THE SURPRISE OF THEIR LIVES IF THEY ATTEMPT TO CARRY OUT ROOSEVELT'S THREATS.

"IT IS RECALLED THAT THE FUEHRER RECENTLY STRESSED THAT GERMANY LIKEWISE POSSESSES NEW ARMS AND THAT ANGLO-AMERICAN AIR ATTACKS LAUNCHED FROM THE BRITISH ISLES WILL BE ANSWERED BY FAR MORE POWERFUL GERMAN AIR ATTACKS ON ENGLAND.

"THE FACT WAS REGARDED AS RATHER SIGNIFICANT THAT ROOSEVELT

30.24 —— 177

INTENDS TO CONCENTRATE MOSTLY ON AIR ATTACKS. THIS INDICATED THAT THE AMERICANS HAVE REALIZED--AFTER THEIR SETBACKS IN NORTH AFRICA AND THE PACIFIC--THAT AMERICAN NAVAL OR LAND ACTIONS HAVE NOT THE SLIGHTEST CHANCE OF SUCCESS."

"THE FANTASTIC FIGURES GIVEN BY ROOSEVELT ABOUT THE UNITED STATES WAR MATERIAL PRODUCTION LIKEWISE ARE PRESUMABLY INTENDED TO SHOW THE AMERICAN PEOPLE THAT EVERYTHING IS WELL. THE ACTUAL WAR SITUATION CANNOT BE CHANGED, HOWEVER, BY AN ANNOUNCEMENT OF PLANS AND HOPES FOR THE FUTURE."

THEY WERE LIKENED TO "SWIMMING HOTELS" THAT COULD SERVICE FIGHTING SUBMARINES WHEREVER THEY OPERATED, SUBMERGING ALONG WITH THE CRAFT THEY WERE RE-TOOLING IF HOSTILE FORCES APPROACHED.

THIS INTERESTING REPORT WAS "FLASHED" BY THE BERLIN RADIO.

A FEW HOURS BEFORE THE SAME STATION HAD "FLASHED" ANOTHER ANNOUNCEMENT--THAT THE NAZI ARMIES WERE WITHDRAWING IN THE CAUCASUS UNDER THE WEIGHT OF MASSED SOVIET TANK ASSAULTS.

THE "FLASH" TECHNIQUE HAS BEEN USED BY THE GERMANS IN THE PAST TO OFFSET BAD NEWS, AND [redacted] THE DEVICE MAY HAVE BEEN EMPLOYED TONIGHT TO COUNTERACT WORD OF THE GERMAN RETREAT ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT AND BROADCASTS OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S [redacted] ADDRESS TO CONGRESS.

HERE IS THE [redacted] TEXT OF THE BERLIN ANNOUNCEMENT:

"THE GERMAN NAVAL HIGH COMMAND ANNOUNCES FOR THE FIRST TIME THE EXISTENCE OF [redacted] GERMAN 'TANKER SUBMARINES.' THESE SWIMMING SUBMARINE BASES WHICH ARE ABLE TO OPERATE UNDER WATER AS WELL AS ABOVE ARE SUPPLYING GERMAN SUBMARINES WITH FUEL EVERYWHERE

IN THE OPERATIONS AREA. REPAIRS TO SUBMARINES ALSO CAN BE MADE BY CREWS ABOARD THE TANKER SUBMARINES ON THE HIGH SEAS IF NECESSARY.

"THE GERMAN TANKER SUBMARINES HAVE BEEN BUILT IN GERMAN SHIPYARDS IN EVER INCREASING NUMBER DURING 1942, AND THEY WERE EMPLOYED IN VARIOUS OPERATIONS AREAS IN THE MEANTIME.

"BERLIN EMPHASIZED THAT THE SWIMMING SUBMARINE BASES HAVE BEEN CREATED IN SUCH NUMBERS THAT NO NAVAL FORCE CAN EVER BUILD AS MANY LAND SUBMARINE BASES. THE TANKER SUBMARINES THUS ARE FULLY MEETING ANY REQUIREMENTS OF [redacted] A LAND SUBMARINE BASE, NAMELY

ONCE MORE THE REPORTS OF SAGGING MORALE, WAW WEARINESS AND GROWING UNREST IN THE SATELLITE MEMBERS OF HITLER'S EUROPE ARE MULTIPLYING. FROM SWITZERLAND AND SWEDEN, THOSE WINDOWS THROUGH WHICH THE OUTSIDE WORLD CAN PEER DIMLY AT DEVELOPMENTS WITHIN THE NEW DARK CONTINENT, COME STORIES OF INCIPIENT REVOLT IN RUMANIA AND OF HUNGARY'S ANXIETIES OVER THE FUTURE OF THE WAR. THE ROME RADIO DESCRIBES UNUSUAL MEASURES TO BOLSTER THE SPIRIT OF THE PEOPLE. FINLND IS GIVING FRESH EVIDENCE OF HER UNWILLINGNESS TO BE CONSIDERED IN THE

30.24 —— 179

CATEGORY OF GERMANY'S MINIONS.

JAN 8- 1943

WE WOULD BE WISE TO SCAN THESE REPORTS WARILY. ANYTHING THAT CONTRIBUTES TO COMPLACENCY AND OVERCONFIDENCE OR TENDS TO DULL THE KEEN EDGE OF OUR RESOLVE MAY COME STRAIGHT FROM DOCTOR GOEBBELS' PRESCRIPTION BOOK. THE ALLIED WORLD SWALLOWED A LOT OF THAT MEDICINE LAST WINTER AND IF IT DID NO GREAT HARM IT WAS NO CONTRIBUTION TO ALLIED VICTORY EITHER.

HOWEVER, EVEN IF WE TAKE THE NEWS FROM INSIDE EUROPE WITH ALL DUE SKEPTICISM, THERE CAN BE LITTLE DOUBT THAT THE PLIGHT OF THOSE STATES, INCLUDING ITALY, WHICH MORE OR LESS VOLUNTARILY HITCHED THEIR VEHICLES TO THE HITLER STAR IS ONE OF THE UNHAPPIEST IN THIS TRAGIC WORLD. NOT THAT IT NEED EXCITE PITY. FOR MOST OF THEM THERE WAS ANOTHER CHOICE, THE ONE TAKEN BY YUGOSLAVIA AND GREECE. TRAGIC AS WAS THE FATE OF THOSE TWO SMALL KINGDOMS THERE REMAINS TO THEM AT LEAST HOPE OF A VICTORY THAT WILL RESTORE THEIR FREEDOM. SUCH HOPE IS DYING IN COUNTRIES LIKE RUMANIA AND HUNGARY, IF WE CAN BELIEVE ONLY A FRACTION OF THE NEWS FROM THOSE LANDS.

TAKE THE CASE OF RUMANIA. PROBABLY THE FEAR OF GERMANY'S APPARENTLY ALL-CONQUERING MIGHT WAS AS IMPORTANT AS GREED AMONG THE MOTIVES THAT PROMPTED THE RUMANIA TO JOIN THE AXIS. TAKE AWAY THAT CONFIDENCE IN HITLER'S INVINCIBILITY AND LITTLE REMAINS, NEITHER BESSARABIA NOR BUCOVINA NOR ANY OTHER OF THE SPOILS THE NAZI FUEHRER PROMISED.

NONE OF HITLER'S ALLIES HAS BETTER REASON NOW TO QUESTION THE PROMISE OF AN AXIS TRIUMPH. NOT EVEN THE ITALIANS IN AFRICA HAVE PAID THE TERRIBLE PRICE FOR THEIR GERMAN ALLIANCE THAT HAS BEEN EXACTED FROM THE RUMANIANS IN RUSSIA. RUMANIA'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE "CRUSADE AGAINST BOLSHEVISM" HAS BEEN LARGER THAN THAT OF ANY OF THE OTHER SATELLITES. IT IS ESTIMATED THAT SHE SENT AT LEAST 30 DIVISIONS, THE FLOWER AND THE GREATER PART OF HER ARMY, INTO THE DRIVE ACROSS THE UKRAINE TO THE VOLGA. NOW IT APPEARS THAT AT LEAST HALF OF THESE HAVE BEEN ROUTED OR TRAPPED AND THE OTHERS SAVAGELY PUNISHED. MOSCOW'S TRIUMPHANT RECAPITULATION LAST WEEK OF THE STALINGRAD CAMPAIGNS LISTED THESE RUMANIAN LOSSES: EIGHT DIVISIONS ROUTED IN THE FIGHTING NORTHWEST AND SOUTHWEST OF STALINGRAD; TWO MORE CAUGHT WITH 20 GERMAN DIVISIONS IN THE GREAT TRAP WEST OF STALINGRAD; TWO ROUTED IN THE DON REGION AND FOUR MORE SOUTH OF STALINGRAD, A TOTAL OF 16 DIVISIONS.

MOREOVER RUMANIA STILL FEARS THAT HUNGARY, EMBOLDENED BY THE MELTING AWAY OF THE RUMANIAN ARMY IN RUSSIA, WILL RESUME HER EFFORTS TO RECOVER ALL TRANSYLVANIA.

THIS IS THE BACKGROUND AGAINST WHICH WE READ SWISS REPORTS OF A NEW IRON GUARD PLOT TO OVERTHROW MARSHAL ANTONESCU'S NAZI REGIME, OF THOUSANDS OF ARRESTS AND SCORES OF EXECUTIONS, OF WIDESPREAD SUFFERING, DEFEATISM AND DEMANDS FOR PEACE. SOME OF THE DETAILS MAY BE DISTORTED BUT THE GENERAL PICTURE OF A MOST UNHAPPY, HOPELESS PEOPLE CAN NOT BE FAR WRONG.

WHEN THE GERMAN POWER BEGAN TO BREAK UP IN 1918 IT WAS THE SATELLITE STATES THAT WENT FIRST, TURKEY, BULGARIA AND FINALLY AUSTRIA. THIS WAR, OF COURSE, DOES NOT ALWAYS FOLLOW THE PATTERN OF THE LAST AND IT IS DANGEROUS TO BASE PREDICTIONS ON 1918. MORE-

OVER, NEITHER RUMANIA NOR ANY OF THE OTHERS HAS DROPPED OUT YET, MUCH AS THEY MIGHT LIKE TO, AND IT IS CERTAIN THAT HITLER, WHO KNOWS HIS 1918 HISTORY AS WELL AS ANY MAN, HAS TAKEN MEASURES TO PREVENT DEFECTIONS OR TO MINIMIZE THEIR EFFECTS IF THEY MUST COME. BUT HE CAN NOT BE HAPPY OVER THE STATE OF MORALE IN ITALY, RUMANIA AND THE REST.

HITLER REPORTED LOSING
AIR CONTROL EVERYWHERE

LUFTWAFFE SAID TO NUMBER
ONLY 5,000 PLANES WHILE
ALLIED OUTPUT SOARS (1,000)

JAN 8- 1943

BY JAMES MARLOW AND GEORGE ZIELKE

(ADVANCE)..NEW YORK, JAN. 7--WHERE IS THE GERMAN AIRFORCE OR WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO IT?

EVENTS AND REPORTS WITHIN THE PAST FEW MONTHS BUT PARTICULARLY WITHIN THE LAST WEEK INDICATE THE LUFTWAFFE IS DEFINITELY DWINDLING UNLESS--

UNLESS HITLER IS SAVING IT FOR SOME DESPERATE OFFENSIVE OR DEFENSIVE MEASURE OR COOKING UP A SURPRISE. THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN FULL OF SURPRISES IN THIS WAR.

THE REPORTS: THE LUFTWAFFE HAS BEEN REDUCED TO 5,000 FIRST LINE COMBAT PLANES--LESS THAN HALF ITS STRENGTH AT THE WAR'S START IN 1939--AND HAS LOST AIR SUPERIORITY ON ALL THREE FRONTS, RUSSIA, NORTH AFRICA AND WESTERN EUROPE.

THE EVENTS: THE LUFTWAFFE'S RAIDS ON BRITAIN HAVE BEEN REDUCED TO TOKEN BOMBINGS IN SPITE OF BLINDING ALLIED RAIDS ON GERMANY; IT FAILED TO CRUSH STALINGRAD; IT WAS SMASHED IN NORTH AFRICA PRELIMINARY TO THE DEFEAT OF ROMMEL BY THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY.

QUESTIONS: IF HITLER HAD THE AIR STRENGTH TO USE WOULD HE HAVE TOLD THE NAZI PARTY IN MUNICH TWO MONTHS AGO THAT HIS HEART WAS BLEEDING OVER ALLIED ATTACKS ON GERMANY AND STILL NOT STRIKE BACK AT BRITAIN? WOULD HE HAVE FAILED TO USE IT AT STALINGRAD WHICH HE TOLD THE GERMAN PEOPLE WAS IN THE BAG? WOULD HE HAVE PERMITTED ROMMEL, SO CLOSE TO THE SUEZ CANAL AND THE MIDDLE EAST, TO BE ROUTED BY ALLIED AIR POWER?

ONLY THREE YEARS AGO FIELD MARSHAL HERMANN GOERING AT THE WAR'S START CALLED THE LUFTWAFFE THE "TERROR OF ITS ENEMIES."

IT WAS INDEED A TERROR IN 1939 WHEN ALLIED AIR STRENGTH WAS PITIFULLY WEAK BUT THIS YEAR, ON THE BASIS OF AVAILABLE FIGURES, THE GERMAN AIR FORCE SHOULD SEEM LIKE A QUIET DREAM COMPARED WITH THE AERIAL NIGHTMARE COMING OUT OF AMERICAN AND BRITISH PLANE PLANTS.

A FEW FACTORS WILL PREVENT THE ALLIES FROM TURNING THE FULL TIDE OF THEIR AIRPOWER AGAINST HITLER: SOME PLANES MUST BE DIVERTED TO THE PACIFIC WAR AND THERE ARE PROBLEMS OF TRANSPORTING AMERICAN PLANES TO THE EUROPEAN THEATER AND MAINTAINING THEM THERE WITH FUEL, MEN AND REPAIRS.

BUT STILL THE ALLIED AIRPOWER AGAINST HITLER SHOULD BE TREMENDOUS:

AMERICAN PRODUCTION (49,000) AND ESTIMATED BRITISH PRODUCTION (25,000) IN 1942 TOTALED 74,000 PLANES. IN 1943 BRITISH PRODUCTION, BELIEVED TO HAVE REACHED ITS PEAK, SHOULD REMAIN AT 25,000 WHILE THE AMERICAN GOAL IS 100,000 PLANES.

TOTAL ALLIED PRODUCTION FOR THE TWO YEARS, EXCLUSIVE OF RUSSIAN OUTPUT, THEREFORE WOULD BE: 199,000 PLANES.

TOTAL GERMAN PRODUCTION, GRANTED THAT ALLIED BOMBINGS WON'T INTERFERE WITH IT AND EXCLUSIVE OF THE RELATIVELY SMALL ITALIAN OUTPUT, SHOULD BE FOR THAT SAME TWO-YEAR PERIOD: 48,000 PLANES.

(ESTIMATES OF GERMAN PRODUCTION NOW VARIES BETWEEN 1,400 MONTHLY AND SOMEWHAT ABOVE 2,000 MONTHLY. GIVING THE GERMANS CREDIT FOR 2,000 PLANES MONTHLY, BRINGS THE TWO-YEAR TOTAL TO 48,000).

AND THIS WEEK THE BRITISH AIR MINISTRY SAID ITS PLANES HAD SHOT DOWN 10,373 GERMAN PLANES IN THREE YEARS OF WAR IN EUROPE AND THE MIDDLE EAST.

THAT TOTAL OF NAZI PLANES DESTROYED SINCE 1939 IS NEAR THE MAXIMUM ESTIMATED STRENGTH--12,500 PLANES--OF GERMANY AND ITALY COMBINED AT THE WAR'S START WHEN BRITAIN AND FRANCE WERE CREDITED WITH A MAXIMUM OF 7,700 PLANES.

WAS GERMANY'S AIR STRENGTH EVER AS HUGE AS NAZI PROPAGANDA MADE IT APPEAR? IT DIDN'T HAVE TO BE, AND FOR TWO REASONS:

1. AT THE WAR'S START THE AXIS HAD MORE COMPLETED PLANES AND PRODUCTION FACILITIES THAN THE ALLIES.

2. THE NAZIS OPERATED WITH THE BENEFIT OF SURPRISE ATTACK AND FROM WITHIN A CIRCLE--MILITARY MEN CALL IT INTERIOR LINES OF COMMUNICATIONS--AND BY PICKING ONE FRONT AT A TIME WERE ABLE TO:

CONCENTRATE IN TURN ON POLAND, NORWAY, THE LOW COUNTRIES AND FRANCE, ENGLAND IN THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN, YUGOSLAVIA AND GREECE.

THE FIRST SPLIT IN THE NAZIS' ABILITY TO CONCENTRATE ITS AIR FURY CAME IN THE SPRING OF 1941 WHEN, ATTACKING RUSSIA, THEY HAD TO FIGHT ON THAT 1,800-MILE FRONT AND AT THE SAME TIME PROTECT THEIR WESTERN FLANK AGAINST BRITISH ATTACKS AND DIVERT PLANES TO THE AFRICAN CAMPAIGN.

THIS WEEK THE BERLIN LOKALANZEIGER SAID RUSSIA HAD GAINED AIR SUPERIORITY ON THE EASTERN FRONT, THE FIRST TIME ANY BERLIN STATEMENT EVER REFERRED TO AVIATION SUPERIORITY BY THE ENEMY.

AND THIS WEEK, TOO, FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WES GALLAGHER REPORTED AS HIS PERSONAL CONCLUSION AFTER A 3,100-MILE TRIP THROUGH THE TUNISIAN WAR FRONT:

"DESPITE THE ADVANTAGE OF ESTABLISHED BASES IN SICILY AND SARDINIA

30.24-181

WITHIN EASY REACH OF THE FRONT, THE GERMAN AIRFORCE IS LOSING ITS PUNCH IN THE FACE OF ALLIED OPPOSITION AND IS ONLY A SHADOW OF THE TERRIBLE WEAPON IT WAS IN GREECE AND FRANCE. WHERE 100 STUKAS ONCE APPEARED IN CENTRAL TUNISIA, ONLY 15 NOW APPEAR, WHERE 40 AXIS FIGHTERS FLEW, ONLY FOUR FLY NOW."

GALLAGHER ESTIMATED GERMAN AIR STRENGTH IN TUNISIA, SOUTHERN ITALY, SARDINIA, SICILY AND TRIPOLI WAS 1,000 PLANES.

IN LONDON THE NEW YORK TIMES' RAYMOND DANIELL, ASSERTIN 5£-5 9£5 ?3'5 -;-8)-?)3 -75£94856 '-8$ £85)34 ,92 £-' -1975 5,000 FIRST LINE COMBAT PLANES, ADDED:

"OF THESE, SOME 2,000 HAVE BEEN LOCKED IN COMBAT ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT WITH THE RED AIR FORCE WHICH HAS EXACTED SUCH A HEAVY TOLL THAT IT TAKES THE BEST PART OF GERMANY'S

JAN 8- 1943

IN LONDON THE NEW YORK TIMES' RAYMOND DANIELL, ASSERTING THAT THE BEST AVAILABLE AUTHORITY SAID HITLER NOW HAS ABOUT 5,000 FIRST LINE COMBAT PLANES, ADDED:

"OF THESE, SOME 2,000 HAVE BEEN LOCKED IN COMBAT ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT WITH THE RED AIR FORCE WHICH HAS EXACTED SUCH A HEAVY TOLL THAT IT TAKES THE BEST PART OF GERMANY'S PRODUCTION OF 1,400 COMBAT PLANES TO MAINTAIN RESERVES."

IF GERMANY'S TOTAL AIR STRENGTH IS ONLY 5,000 PLANES, THEN THOSE 2,000 IN RUSSIA AND 1,000 ON THE AFRICAN FRONT MEAN THE NAZIS HAVE APPROXIMATELY 2,000 PLANES SPREAD ACROSS EUROPE FROM NORWAY TO SPAIN AND ACROSS TO GREECE.

THE BRITISH AIR MINISTRY DEC. 31 CLAIMED ALLIED AIR SUPREMACY ON ALL FRONTS AND AN RAF COMMENTATOR SAID THE LUFTWAFFE WAS DETERIORATING SO MUCH THAT GERMANY HAS BEEN "RAIDING" ONE DEPARTMENT OF HER AIR FORCE TO AID OTHERS, SUCH AS CONVERTING BOMBERS INTO NIGHT FIGHTERS, TRANSPORTS, AND SHIPPING ESCORTS BESIDES "COMBING OUT" THE LUFTWAFFE'S REAR ECHELONS, RESERVE POOLS AND TRAINING SCHOOLS TO SUPPLY THE FRONT LINES.

BUT IS ALL THIS CONCLUSIVE EVIDENCE THE GERMAN AIRFORCE HAS BEGUN TO FALL APART TO BE CRUSHED UTTERLY UNDER THE DELUGE OF ALLIED AIRPOWER?

SOME OBSERVERS HAVE SUGGESTED THAT MAYBE HITLER IS PLAYING FOXY AND SAVING HIS AIRFORCE FOR ONE OF THESE REASONS:

TO CONSERVE IT; TO SAVE IT FOR AN ATTEMPTED ALL-OUT KNOCKOUT INVASION ATTEMPT ON BRITAIN; TO HAVE A RESERVE AGAINST THE EVENTUAL ALLIED INVASION OF EUROPE.

BUT--MEANWHILE THE ACCUMULATED REPORTS RIGHT NOW SEEM TO INDICATE HE HAS LOST CONTROL OF THE AIR AND HAS BEGUN TO DO THE CATCHING INSTEAD OF THE PITCHING.

HERE IS A SOBERING THOUGHT, HOWEVER: THE GERMANS HAVE MADE LITTLE USE OF THEIR HEAVIEST BOMBERS THE PAST TWO YEARS. PRESUMABLY THEY ARE SAVING THEM, AND MAKING MORE. A SURPRISE USE OF THESE WEAPONS MAY BE IN STORE.

(ADVANCE FOR USE AT 12 NOON, EWT, THURSDAY, JAN. 7)

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK, JAN. 7-(AP)-A BRITISH AIRCRAFT AUTHORITY SAID TODAY THAT ROCKETS WERE USED AT THE TAKE-OFF OF THE GERMAN JUNKERS 88 MEDIUM BOMBERS TO GIVE QUICK ACCELERATION.

WRITING IN THE ANNUAL REVIEW ISSUE OF "IRON AGE," STEEL TRADE JOURNAL, C.G.GREY, WELL KNOWN IN THE BRITISH AVIATION FIELD, SAID SUCH ROCKET PROPELLED STARTS HAD BEEN USED FOR TWO YEARS.

GREY QUOTED AN ESCAPED DUTCH FLIER AS SAYING THAT "FEW THINGS ARE MORE TERRIFYING THAN TO SEE A HEAVILY LOADED BOMBER FULL OF BOMBS AND GASOLINE TAKING OFF AT NIGHT WITH A HUGE ROCKET BLAZING UNDER EACH WING AND KNOWING THAT IF ONE ENGINE CUTS THE WHOLE THING WILL TURN OVER AND GO UP IN ONE BURST OF FLAME."

THE AUTHOR ALSO REPORTED THAT ROCKETS WERE BEING USED IN ANOTHER WAY BY THE RUSSIANS. HE SAID THAT TWO OR THREE ROCKET BOMBS FOR GROUND ATTACK WERE CARRIED UNDER EACH WING OF THE NEW STORMOVIK BOMBER-FIGHTER. THE BOMBS ARE CARRIED ON RAILS INSTEAD OF NORMAL BOMB RACKS. THEY ARE FIRED ELECTRICALLY AND ARE GIVEN THEIR DIRECTION BY SLIDING ALONG THE RAILS. THIS, HE ADDED, WITH THEIR ROCKET PROPULSION, CARRIES THEM MORE NEARLY IN A STRAIGHT LINE WITH THE COURSE OF THE PLANE THAN IF THEY WERE ORDINARY BOMBS.

GREY ASSERTED THAT THE BIG, 4-ENGINE FOCKE-WULF KURRIERS, WHICH HAVE BEEN HARRYING ATLANTIC CONVOYS, START THEIR TRIPS FROM A BIG AIRDROME NEAR BORDEAUX IN THE SOUTH OF FRANCE. THEY FLY OUT AROUND IRELAND, UP TO ICELAND AND THENCE TO NORWAY WHERE THEY HAVE A RUNWAY SOMETHING OVER TWO MILES LONG, FROM WHICH THEY TAKE OFF AND FLY ON THE REVERSE COURSE.

TO COMBAT THE KURRIERS, GREY SAID, THE BRITISH HAVE BEEN CATAPULTING HURRICANES FROM THE DECKS OF BIG MERCHANT SHIPS. IF A HURRICANE ALIGHTED ON THE WATER, HOWEVER, IT INVARIABLY TURNED OVER ON ITS NOSE AND KILLED OR DROWNED THE PILOT, SO THE PILOTS TOOK TO BAILING OUT WITH THEIR PARACHUTES AFTER SHOOTING DOWN OR CHASING OFF THE ENEMY.

JAN 8- 1943

IN SPITE OF THE FACT THAT EACH SUCH ENGAGEMENT MEANT THE LOSS OF A HURRICANE, THE METHOD HAS STOPPED KURRIER DEPREDATIONS, GREY SAID.

GENERAL MAC ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, THURSDAY, JAN.7-(AP)-GENERAL DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR TODAY GAVE HERO AWARDS TO FOUR MEN WHO DISTINGUISHED THEMSELVES IN THE NEW GUINEA CAMPAIGN--TWO WHO RISKED THEIR LIVES TO SAVE THE PERSONNEL OFF A FLAMING SHIP, A COLONEL WHO LED AN ATTACK ON THE JAPS AND A FLIER WHO FLEW DANGEROUSLY TO LOCATE ENEMY GUNS.

THE FIRST THREE WERE AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS.

COL.JOHN CAREW OF THE ENGINEERS, (24 ORANGE STREET) MEDFORD, MASS., AND FIRST LIEUT.JOHN HARBERT OF ORDNANCE, (13 UNION COURT) PONTIAC, MICH., WERE CREDITED WITH WHOLESALE RESCUES FROM A SMALL SHIP SET AFIRE BY ENEMY PLANES NEAR CAPE SUDEET LAST NOV.16 JAN 8 - 1943 COLONEL CAREW ORGANIZED A LIFEBOAT WHICH SAVED A NUMBERS OF LIVES.

LIEUTENANT HARBERT GOT TOGETHER A PARTY TO PULL ASHORE A BARGE LOADED WITH MEN AND AMMUNITION. HE THREW BLAZING FRAGMENTS OVER-BOARD WHEN THE BARGE WAS SHOWERED WITH FLAMING DEBRIS FROM SHIP EXPLOSIONS. BADLY NEEDED AMMUNITION WAS UNLOADED SUCCESSFULLY.

LIEUT.COL.MERLE HOWE, GENERAL STAFF CORPS, (621 FLEMING STREET) SOUTHEAST GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., STEPPED INTO A BREACH WHEN A RIFLE COMPANY LACKING A NUMBER OF ITS OFFICERS WAS CHECKED BY HEAVY SMALL ARMS AND MORTAR FIRE IN ATTACKING A BUNA VILLAGE DEC.5. COLONEL HOWE EXPOSED HIMSELF TO FIRE BY MOVING AMONG ADVANCE GROUPS AND ENCOURAGING HE MEN TO RESUME THE ATTACK. THEN HE PUT HIMSELF AT THEIR HEAD AND LED A FORWARD DRIVE, GAINING GROUND WHICH GREATLY ASSISTED THE NEXT DAY'S ADVANCE.

THE SILVER STAR WAS PRESENTED TO AUSTRALIAN FLYING OFFICER ELTON MURRAY INFOULD OF SYDNEY FOR GALLANTRY IN ACTION NEAR BUNA DECEMBER 14 TO 18. REPEATEDLY HE FLEW AT LOW ALTITUDE TO DRAW THE FIRE OF JAP ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS AND DISCLOSE THEIR POSITIONS.

Russians Take 20 Towns On Don-Caucasus Fronts And Push Nearer Rostov

Reds Capture Zimovniki and Strakhov; Advance, 60 Miles From Rostov

Whittle Nazis Down In Stalingrad Trap

Heavy Germans Fleeing Caucasus, Circle Flanks and Attack From Rear

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 9 (Saturday).—Russian troops smashing along the lower Don River and rolling up the vulnerable Nazi salient deep in the Caucasus captured more than a score of villages and railway points yesterday, including Zimovniki, 125 miles southwest of Stalingrad, two Soviet communiques announced early today.

JAN 9 1943

A special bulletin broadcast by Moscow and heard by the Soviet monitor at London said Zimovniki, thirty miles southwest of Kotelnikovski, on the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway, which the Russians took Dec. 30, fell after a stubborn fight. Zimovniki is at the Sal River crossing of the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway south of the Don and is 140 miles east of Rostov. The Russians probably forced a crossing of the Sal River, as Zimovniki is on the west side.

Reds Sixty Miles From Rostov

The regular midnight communique that followed said twenty settlements and railway stations had fallen to other Russian troops pushing westward in the Don River Valley and northward from the Caucasus Mountain foothills.

The Russians were believed to be now less than sixty miles from Rostov, at the mouth of the Don, after taking Strakhov and pushing directly west toward Rostov, a communications hub whose capture would cut off huge Nazi forces retreating in the Caucasus 300 miles south of there.

[The Germans said Friday that they had repulsed the Russians in "heavy but successful defensive fighting" in the central Caucasus, the Don area and northwest of Stalingrad. The British radio said the Germans had removed civilians from Rzhev, a German defense point in Russia, 130 miles northwest of Moscow. Rzhev is virtually surrounded by Russian forces.]

Occupy Twenty More Villages

Ten more populated places fell to the advancing Russians in the lower Don Valley yesterday, the Russian midnight communique said, and an equal number of points were taken in the Caucasus.

Among the latter points was the railway station of Zolsky, only ten miles from Georgievsk, a large town on the Baku-Rostov line. Nikolskoye, forty-five miles northeast of Georgievsk, also was taken, representing an eighteen-mile advance in that sector since Thursday, when a Red Army column occupied Stepnoye.

Russian troops in the Caucasus were harrying the retreating Germans relentlessly, sending tanks and mobile infantry around flanks to attack from the rear. In one such attack four hundred Germans were killed yesterday and fifty mortars and a number of trucks were seized, the communique said.

Nazi Version Scorned

The communique said it was "common knowledge" that in a few days in that sector the Red Army "advanced between 68 and 88 miles," capturing large quantities of equipment and many prisoners.

The "Hitlerite Organ Grinders" used the same belated "shortening of line" announcement a year ago during the first Russian Winter offensive, the communique said, and now are doing it again in an effort to conceal from the German people the true status of their armies in Russia.

JAN 9 1943

German troops along the lower Don valley were admitted by the Russians to be putting up a much more determined resistance in an effort to keep the Red Army from Rostov. But despite frequent counter-attacks the communique said the Red Army still was gaining ground.

Every time a formidable Nazi "hedgehog" position was encountered the Russians said their troops hauled up artillery to pound it to pieces, then sent their infantry swarming into the Nazi lines. In one such engagement yesterday the communique said the Red Army killed 600 Nazis, knocked out nine tanks, routed the enemy garrison, and captured seven artillery pieces, 16 trucks and other equipment.

Sal River Crossed

The Red Army column that took Zimovniki apparently had crossed the Sal River in its steady drive toward Salsk, a junction point about 85 miles farther on where a spur connects with Rostov. Zimovniki itself is about 140 miles east of Rostov.

On the central front northwest of Moscow the communique said the Russians still were using part of their effectives to consolidate positions in the captured Velikie Luki area, while others were beating off strong enemy counterattacks.

One Soviet unit killed 200 Germans and captured three self-propelling guns yesterday in one sector. In another zone German motorized infantry succeeded in driving a wedge into Russian positions, the communique said, but the Russians later threw back the enemy "and pursuing him captured several fortified positions." One enemy infantry company was wiped out, two tanks destroyed, and prisoners were reported taken in this latter struggle.

Despite the great areas overrun by Russian troops west and southwest of Stalingrad, the Germans who are reported firmly trapped inside the city and to the west still were fighting a slow war of attrition.

Russian assault groups were said to have wrested a number of additional Nazi blockhouses in the factory area of Stalingrad yesterday, and Red artillery smashed a German battalion headquarters.

Northwest of the city, in the Don-Volga river pocket, the Germans lost 300 men, two tanks, 13 machineguns and other equipment, the communique said.

BULLETIN

London, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—A special Russian communique broadcast from Moscow tonight and picked up here by the Soviet monitor said: "On January 8, after stubborn fighting, our troops captured the town and railway station of Zimovniki."

Moscow, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Smashing through the wall of German resistance across the lower Don with tank attacks and planes, the Russians reported today that their forces had driven further to within sixty-five miles of Rostov, whose fall would trap the Nazis in the Caucasus. That represented a gain of ten miles since the Red Army vanguard reached Bolshaya Orlovka, on the Sal River, Wednesday.

German [illegible] in men and material continu[illegible] to mount. A captured Nazi [illegible]mental commander was quo[illegible] by Red Star as saying his u[illegible] had lost 600 of its original 80[illegible]men and all of its artillery a[illegible]rs in recent encounters.

Battle front dispatches declared that the Germans were fighting desperately in an effort to keep open a corridor into the Caucasus, but that the Red Army was battering its way steadily through hastily massed tanks and forces of motorized infantry.

The leading edge of the Russian offensive down the Don passed Strakhov, west of Bolshaya Orlovka and sixty-five miles east of Rostov, dispatches said. Two villages on the northern bank of the Sal River between Bolshaya Orlovka and Strakhov also were reported taken. They are Shaginka and Tapilin.

JAN 9 1943

Col.-Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's forces farther north supported the Don offensive by covering Lieut.-Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky's right flank occupying numerous towns between the Don and the railroad running west from Stalingrad.

Forty more inhabited points in the Caucasus were said to have fallen before tank-led Russian infantrymen. The Germans were reported to be offering "stubborn resistance" in one sector but to [illegible]nable to check the Russians' [illegible]ady advance.

[The British radio, in a broadcast recorded in New York by CBS, said the Germans had announced the evacuation of the civilian population of Rzhev, a stronghold on the upper Volga 130 miles northwest of Moscow, as a "precautionary measure."]

The Soviet early communique reported that the Germans retreating swiftly in the north Caucasus had yielded Stepnoye, thirty-eight miles north of Mozdok, and Sovietskaya, which is only thirty miles east of Georgievsk and fifty miles east of Pyatigorsk.

The retreating Axis troops burned and blasted villages in their wake and left land mines in the roads. The Russians estimated that more than 2,000 mines had been dug up by their sappers in the last three days.

Between Stepnoye and Sovietskaya, which is due north of recaptured Prokhladnenski, the Russians also said they occupied the town of Solomenskoye, Sukhaya-Palina and Severny.

Nazis Admit Retreat.

[The German radio, after almost a week of Russian successes which opened with the capture of Mozdok and Nalchik, admitted German reverses in the Caucasus last night for the first time. In the style usually reserved for news of great importance, it said in a broadcast heard in New York: "German troops in the Eastern Caucasus completed, according to schedule, the shortening of front lines by withdrawing advanced strongholds, it became known in Berlin Thursday night. Soviet attacks on rear guards were frustrated despite the massed employment of tanks."]

Reds Widen Don Offensive.

The base of lower Don wedge was widened by the capture of Valkovo and Zazerskov, deep in the Don Bend; Nikolaevskaya, on the north bank of the Don twelve miles west of Marinsk, which was previously reported recaptured; and Martinovka, about eighteen miles southeast of Bolshaya Orlovka, on the Sal River. Valkovo is twenty miles east of Tatsinskaya, also previously reported recaptured, and Zazerskov is twenty miles south of the latter city, which is a railway station on the Stalingrad-Likhaya line.

The newest gains indicated clearly that surrounded German garrisons were being mopped up back of the Russian forward positions in this centered wedge aimed at Rostov, while the flanking attempts south of Millerovo and southwest of Kotelnikovski were being pushed.

The advance to Nikolayevskaya put another column of the wedge eighty-seven miles from Rostov.

Soviet Gains in Steppes.

The Russians also said that their troops driving south of Stalingrad into the Kalmyck steppe had pushed past Elista and that less than 140 miles of the flat desert-like country now separates them from the Russian advance guard in the north Caucasus.

[Reuters, British news agency reported from Moscow that the distance between the armies in the Kalmyck and in the north Caucasus had been reduced to forty miles.]

The Germans were said to be still attempting to fly supplies in to their forces trapped before Stalingrad and transport planes were being downed daily, the Russians said.

Southwest of Velikie Luki, a violent enemy attack was repulsed with the slaughter of more than 400 Germans and elsewhere on the central front German counter-attacks were repulsed, Soviet authorities announced.

JAN 9 1943

Nazis Say Reds Are Repelled.

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 8 (A. P.).—German troops engaged in "heavy but successful defensive fighting" against the Russians yesterday in the Caucasus, on the Don and northwest of Stalingrad, the High Command reported today. Strong Soviet infantry and tank forces were declared to have been repulsed, while German counter-attacks were said to have inflicted heavy losses.

Supported by numerous tanks, the Russians again attacked southeast of Lake Ilmen on the northwest front, the communique said, but were thrown back with the destruction of fifteen tanks. In all, the Russians were said to have lost forty-seven tanks in the day's operations.

In "fierce" aerial engagements over the central and northern fronts, thirty-two Soviet planes were shot down without the loss of a single German craft, the report said.

German bombers were said to have made a night raid on the city and harbor district of Murmansk.

Russians Sweep Forward and Outflank Georgievsk Rail Center.

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Saturday, Jan. 9— (AP) Russian troops, rolling the Germany army back toward Rostov captured more than 20 settlements yesterday on three fronts, among them Zimovniki, 125 miles southeast of Stalingrad on the railway leading to Salsk and Tikhoretsk, the Soviets announced early today.

The Red army was less than 65 miles east of Rostov in the Lower Don and Sal river valleys, and deep in the Caucasus where the Nazis were retreating the Russians were only ten miles from Georgievsk, railway junction on the Baku-Rostov line.

JAN 9 1943

Impressive Gains

Impressive gains also were scored northeast of Georgievsk to outflank that town, the communique said.

This was the situation as given in two communiques:

Col.-Gen. Yeremenko's troops, pushing down the railway toward Salsk, were guarding the left flank of Lieut.-Gen. Rokossovsky's units striking westward in the Don valley toward Rostov whose capture would snare huge Nazi forces now withdrawing in the central Caucasus.

General Nikolai Vatutin's Middle Don forces also were striking westward toward Likhaya, above Rostov, along the railway inside the Don river bend. They were mopping up the region between the railroad and the north bank of the Don. During yesterday's operations General Vatutin's men occupied Medvezhka, Nizhni-Vyazovy, and Verkhne-Vyazovy—all points not far south of Valkovo, rail junction 60 miles east of Likhaya.

65 Miles from Rostov

The Red army troops of Lieut.-Gen. Rokossovsky were nearest Rostov, according to Russian reports, after capturing Strakhov Thursday and pushing on. This point is about 65 miles from the key communications pivot for Nazi forces in Southern Russia.

In the Central Caucasus north of the mountain range the Russians were making their swiftest strides on the heels of Germans who were dynamiting and applying the torch in their withdrawal.

One Russian column, pushing northwestward on both sides of the railway, overran Staro-Marinsky, Matigorinsky, Novo-Sredny, and Novo-Pavlovskaya to reach and capture Zolsky, only 10 miles from Georgievsk.

Many Towns Taken

A second force, pushing almost due north from captured Stepnoye in the area above the railway, had reached Orlovsky and Pravokumsky, the latter approximately 70 miles northeast of Georgevsk. Many settlements were seized in this advance which parallels a spur railroad jutting northward from Georgievsk.

Meanwhile, the Russians in their communique poked fun at the "Hitlerite organ grinders" for finally admitting in a Berlin radio broadcast that the Germans were "shortening" their lines in the Caucasus.

That was the same "shortening" announced to the German people last winter when the Red army rolled back the Nazis from Moscow, the Russians pointed out.

Nazi Attacks Smashed

In the Lower Don valley the Russians acknowledged heavy Nazi counter-attacks, but said these were being smashed and the Red army was continuing its four offensives, the first of which began Nov. 19 on both sides of Stalingrad in the prodigious effort to reach Rostov.

The Red army had emerged onto the flat, low-lying plains leading to the gateway city of the Caucasus—a fertile country difficult for any army to defend.

Create More Pockets

The Red army was reported stretching out in several directions, aiming to create more pockets in which the Germans might be sealed for destruction.

One report said the Russians in the desolate Kalmyck steppes and those in the Nalchik-Mozdok area of the North Caucasus had made a combined advance of 40 miles, reaching points only 40 miles apart and gravely imperiling the Germans retreating from the Grozny oil region.

By reaching Rostov, the Russians would cut off the enemy in the Caucasus.

Rzhev Virtually Surrounded

(The Germans said they had repulsed the Russians in "heavy but successful defensive fighting" in the Central Caucasus, the areas of the Don and northwest of Stalingrad. The British radio said the Germans had evacuated civilians from Rzhev, defense point 130 miles northwest of Moscow; Rzhev is virtually surrounded and is occupied by Russian civilians.)

Numerous villages fell in the North Caucasus. On the Central front, the Russians said, they fortified recently captured positions and repulsed counter-attacks southwest of Velikie Luki, where the Red army was either in or near White Russia and advancing on Vitebsk.

Nazi Defense Broken

The Germans tried with massed artillery, tank charges, and attacks by mechanized infantry to stem the Russian momentum on the Lower Don, but dispatches said the Russians broke the enemy defense. This stand probably was on the banks of the Sal, a tributary of the Lower Don which offered the best natural defense positions between the Russians and Rostov. Red planes and tanks were used in profusion to slice through the Nazi lines.

Dispatches said the Germans had been in headlong flight from the North Caucasus but recently had developed stronger opposition. The Army newspaper Red Starr said the enemy attempted to stand at Stepnoye but was attacked so abruptly that a new retreat resulted. The Russians were declared to be pressing their offensive in all sectors of the Caucasus, with tanks pursuing the enemy closely and smashing any attempts he made to stand.

Russian reports said the roads of retreat were littered with abandoned German tanks, trucks, and guns. Trains loaded with ammunition were found at several railway stations, Red Star said. The region was so devastated by the Germans who applied the torch, Pravda said, that at one collective farm only seven of the 200 houses remained intact.

Reds Gain in Stalingrad

The German force surrounded between the Volga and Don was reported being ejected from positions inside Stalingrad, where 18 more blockhouses and dugouts were reduced. Red Star said small groups of Soviet troops were penetrating junctions of the German fortifications, blasting the enemy out with hand grenades. Shock troops were said to have captured a hill in the Stalingrad area, killing 150.

British Fleet Pounced on Nazis, Routed Ships Raiding Convoy

Battle Off Tip of Norway Dec. 31 Described; Foe's Destroyer Sunk, Big Cruiser Damaged; British Lost Destroyer, All Freighters Got Through

By Clinton B. Conger

American Naval Correspondent With the British Home Fleet

Distributed by The Associated Press

A NORTHERN BRITISH NAVAL BASE, Jan. 7 (Delayed).—A British naval force which streaked out of the Arctic darkness on Dec. 31 to aid a Russia-bound convoy under attack from German warships caught one Nazi ship squarely with its first salvo and stampeded the remainder, it was revealed today. When the battle was over a German destroyer had been sunk and a cruiser had been crippled.

The British force has returned to harbor intact, and the admiral in command, along with the commanding officer of the formation's flagship, told the story of the sharp engagement.

(Although the battle force which went to the rescue suffered no losses in the fight, the Admiralty in London announced that the British destroyer flotilla leader Achates, 1,350 tons, was lost and the new destroyer Onslow was damaged. They were part of the convoy's escort. The entire convoy reached Russia without loss.)

The German ships, lured out of their Norwegian hide-outs by the convoy, launched their attack east of Bear Island, off the northern tip of Norway.

Gallant British destroyers of the close escort were holding off the attackers when the main British naval force streaked out of the darkness, catching one enemy vessel with the first salvo.

Splendid marksmanship was the miracle of the ensuing engagement, which was fought during the twilight midday period which, with twenty-one hours of darkness, makes up the day in those latitudes.

Throughout the engagement the German ships were visible only as silhouettes in the gloom. The fall of shot was almost impossible to judge except when hits were scored, but the admiral summed up the shooting with: "German marksmanship was very good—ours was better!"

The same conditions made positive identification of the German units engaged impossible, but British officers feel almost certain, judging from the silhouettes, that one ship was the 10,000-ton heavy cruiser Admiral Hipper and the other probably the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Luetzow, or possibly the cruiser Nuernberg. The enemy force also included destroyers of the Narvik or Maas type.

The story of the battle, or that part of it which can now be told, begins with the sighting of gun flashes in the northern gloom at 9:40 a. m. on Dec. 31.

The report that the convoy was being attacked by surface ships spread rapidly, and the faces of sailors lighted up. They still consider an action against airplanes and submarines unnatural. In a battle between surface units they are in their element.

Let the captain of the flagship tell the story of what followed:

"We had all the advantages of dawn light to the south silhouetting the Germans. Finally we made out on each bow two ships which were larger than destroyers. We knew they couldn't be ours.

"At 11:28 a. m., at about 11,000 yards, we opened fire on a very large ship. We hit it with the first salvo, and could see flashes amidships. We were closing fast, and in a matter of minutes the range was down to 8,000 yards. Already we had scored hits with up to five salvos.

"We could see that he was turning to the east, so we also turned, because we didn't want him to get back to the convoy. But as we turned, we saw an enemy destroyer 6,000 yards ahead, so we steered straight for him.

"We let fly with the forward main armament, and again we hit with the first salvo. I asked permission to ram, which the admiral gave me, but we had hit him so badly—it was a pitiful sight—that we slipped around his stern instead, pumping four-inch and pom-pom shells from secondary armament into him as we passed. The rest of the formation confirmed that we left him in a sinking condition with his bow in the air."

The admiral and the captain both expressed regret that the destroyer had come between the British flagship and the larger German ship. They said it was too much like shooting a sitting target to give them any pleasure in sinking it, and that it even made the task easier by turning broadside just before the British opened fire, apparently mistaking the warship for a German one.

"If the destroyer hadn't been in the way, I would have sunk the cruiser or he would have sunk me," the admiral said.

By now the German heavy ships had opened to 14,000 yards and turned westward for home. The possibility of a torpedo attack by two German destroyers on the port beam forced the British formation to zig-zag, losing ground.

"We opened fire on the large ship again," the captain said, "and ourselves came under very severe fire and had some very narrow escapes. However, we were not hit, except by splinters.

"One shell from the unengaged Germans fell about forty yards behind us just after we had made a turn. Splinters put a couple of holes in the admiral's cabin aft.

"By now it was thirteen hours (1 p. m.) and getting dark again. They finally got out of sight in the darkness. We followed them for a while, and then returned to the convoy."

Before the action, the captain said, there hadn't been a star in sight for forty-eight hours, but in the middle of the battle the navigator came to the bridge and, between the firing of guns, took sights on five stars.

British Sank Nazi Destroyer In Murmansk Convoy Battle

Damaged Cruiser—Drove Off Battleship—Lost One Warship, but Supplies Reached Russians Safely.

JAN 9 1943

London, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—British destroyers beat off four assaults by a superior German naval force and enabled Allied cargo ships with important war supplies for Russia to escape without loss or damage in the snowy darkness on the North Cape route on December 31, the Admiralty announced today.

The Germans were said to have risked one of their prized pocket battleships—either the Admiral Scheer or Luetzow—in the futile effort to damage the convoy. The enemy force also was reported to have consisted of a cruiser and a number of destroyers.

When stronger British naval forces came to the aid of the convoy's destroyers, the undamaged German units, including the pocket battleship, fled to the safety of Norwegian bases, the Admiralty said.

The convoy was attacked at the extreme north of Norway in an exclusively naval battle. Strong German air forces posted in Norway were unable to participate because of bad weather.

The first announcement of the contact on December 31 said an enemy cruiser was damaged and forced to withdraw, and an enemy destroyer was severely hit and was last seen in a sinking condition.

The Admiralty said a small force of escorting destroyers drove off the enemy's strong forces in a two-hour fight. Then, it said, more powerful British forces reached the scene and engaged the enemy until his ships escaped in low visibility, fleeing at high speed to the shelter of Norwegian bases.

It listed the loss of the British destroyer Achates, 1,350-ton sunk, flotilla leader, and damage to H. M. S. Onslow, a new destroyer. It said there were some casualties.

[A German communique last Saturday declared that German U-boats and surface ships sank a destroyer, damaged several cruisers and torpedoed four merchantmen in an attack upon an Allied convoy December 31 near Bear Island, about midway between Spitzbergen and the northern tip of Norway. The Germans admitted the loss of a destroyer.]

Supplies Still Get to Reds.

"In spite of almost continual darkness, extreme cold and navigational hazards due to ice and low visibility and interference from the enemy, supplies continue to reach Russia by the northern route," the communique said.

"In a communique published December 31, 1942, the Admiralty announced that his Majesty's ships had made contact with enemy surface ships in northern waters. It was then stated that operations were continuing.

Escorting Convoy

"At this time our naval forces were engaged in escorting a convoy loaded with important military supplies for our Russian ally.

"On the morning of December 31 British destroyers, commanded by Capt. R. St. V. Sherbrooke, D. S. O., R. N., in H. M. S. Onslow, which were escorting the convoy, made contact with a greatly superior enemy force thought to consist of one pocket battleship, one cruiser and a number of destroyers off the North Cape at the extreme north of Norway.

"Captain Sherbrooke immediately led his destroyers into the attack and closed on the enemy with great gallantry. In the semi-darkness, and with visibility further reduced by frequent snowstorms, the contact was fleeting and intermittent. The fighting continued for about two hours.

Four Attempts Beaten Off

"By resolute and skillful handling of this small force of destroyers, he (the captain) succeeded in driving off four attempts by strong enemy forces to destroy the convoy.

"More powerful forces then arrived in support and engaged the enemy, who escaped in low visibility and returned in high speed to the safety of their bases on the Norwegian coast.

"The enemy has admitted that a destroyer, reported to be of the Mass class, which our forces last sighted in sinking condition, was, in fact, sunk, and damage is claimed to one of the larger ships.

Achates Lost

"The board of the Admiralty regrets to announce that H. M. S destroyer Achates, Lieut. Com A. H. Tyndall Johns, R. N., was damaged in defense of the convoy and subsequently sank.

"H. M. S. Onslow suffered some damage and casualties. The next of kin of casualties of both these ships have been informed.

"The convoy, which suffered no loss or damage as a result of the enemy's efforts, has arrived in North Russian ports."

British Convoy Fights Off 4 Nazi Attacks

Important Military Supplies Reach Russia Without Loss—Nazi Destroyer Is Sunk During Battle.

By E. C. Daniel

JAN 9 1943

LONDON, Jan. 8—(AP)—Doughty British destroyers four times fought off a superior German force, including a pocket battleship, in the Arctic dark north of Norway and then shepherded their convoy safely and intact to north Russia after a stronger squadron joined the defense and routed the Nazi men-o'-war, the Admiralty announced today.

Flotilla Leader Lost

The 1,350-ton destroyer flotilla leader Achates was lost and the new destroyer Onslow was damaged, but the merchant ships loaded with "important military supplies for our Russian Allies" reached their destination without loss or damage, the communique said.

A German destroyer of the Maas class was sunk, and one of the larger ships was damaged, it said. These losses were announced Dec. 31 when the battle was still raging. The Admiralty said then that a heavy German cruiser had been damaged so badly it retired. The fact that the announcement today said "one of the larger ships" was damaged suggested that it might have been the 10,000-ton pocket battleship.

However, British officers who took part in the fight said on their return to a northern British naval base that they felt certain that one ship was the 10,000-ton heavy cruiser Admiral Hipper and the other probably the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Lutzow or possibly the 6,000-ton cruiser Nurnberg. The enemy also was said to have had destroyers of the Narvik or Mass type in the action.

Nazis Admit Loss

The Germans acknowledged the loss of a destroyer on Jan. 2 and said an Allied destroyer was sunk, several cruisers and destroyers were damaged by gunfire and that torpedo hits were scored on four merchant ships. They placed the action off Bear Island, about midway between Spitzbergen and Norway.

The Admiralty said the successful convoy passage was made "in spite of almost continual darkness, extreme cold and navigational hazards, due to ice and low visibility and interference from the enemy."

It was the first time since August that the Germans had risked their limited surface ships to attack the "timetable" flow of supplies to the Russians.

The Admiralty said original contact was made on the morning of Dec. 31 off the North Cape at the extreme tip of Norway. Beside the pocket battleship—probably either the Luetzow of Admiral Scheer—the German force included a cruiser and "a number of destroyers."

Capt. R. St. V. Sherbrooke in the Onslow audaciously led the destroyers into the attack "and closed on the enemy with great gallantry," the Admiralty said.

Two-Hour Fight

"In the semi-darkness and with visibility further reduced by frequent snowstorms, the contact was fleeting and intermittent. The fighting continued for about two hours.

"By resolute and skillful handling of this small force of destroyers, he succeeded in driving off four attempts by strong enemy forces to destroy this convoy.

"More powerful forces then arrived in support and engaged the enemy, who escaped in low visibility and returned in high speed to the safety of their bases on the Norwegian coast."

U-Boat Menace Stressed

LONDON, Jan. 8 (AP), A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, told a meeting of the Little Ship Club tonight that "we are in the difficult, serious stage of war at sea" and said the U-boat menace must be beaten before victory is assured.

He read the communique announcing the successful British destroyer defense of the recent convoy to north Russia and commented that there were few cases in British naval history when destroyers were better led or did finer work.

Sub-Chaser Sunk, Nazis Claim

BERLIN

New York, Jan. 8.—The German high command, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, today reported that a single German submarine sank an Allied subchaser and torpedoed a large-sized freighter in the Mediterranean near Algiers yesterday.

During the night German fighter-bombers were said to have sunk two merchant vessels totaling 16,000 tons from an Allied convoy off Bougie.

NAZIS BUILDING INLAND DEFENSE

London, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—The Belgian News Agency here reported today that the Germans were establishing an inland defense line along the Meuse River in case of an Allied attack through northern France and Belgium. It also said that the Germans were requisitioning labor in Belgium to build new fortifications in the province of Namur.

RAILWAY TO FINLAND

London, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Authoritative spokesmen reported today that the Germans were constructing a railway line from North Norway to Finland.

Prisoners of war were reported being used on the road, the first to link the two countries. The line's start was described as being at Nord-Reiss, about fifty miles northeast of Tromsoe. The Finnish terminus was not disclosed.

POLES ASK REPRISALS

London, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Immediate reprisals against the German civilian population in the form of intensified aerial bombing was demanded today by the Polish National Council in retaliation for mass cruelties perpetrated against the peoples under German occupation.

A formal resolution to the Allied governments said: "Only by exceptional methods will the governments be able to restrain the planned annihilation in occupied countries."

they now control only a comparatively narrow strip along the coast from Tripoli south, then leading northwest toward Tunis and Bizerte.

(British headquarters in Cairo announced during the day that Allied planes attacking Field Marshal Rommel's Libyan army in its retreat to the west had machine-gunned his transport along a stretch of coastal road only 40 miles short of Tripoli.

(This indicated to some British observers that Rommel was preparing to abandon his previous line und Buerat el Hsun, well to the st of Tripoli, and was on the arch to the west again.

Bad Weather Continues to Hamper Activity In Northern Tunisia—Palermo in Sicily Bombed.

By Wes Gallagher

JAN 9 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 8—(AP)—The capture by a French and American camel corps of Tanout Maller, a settlement 14 miles from Tiaret in the southern Tunisian desert near the Libyan frontier about 200 miles southwest of Tripoli, was announced today by a French military spokesman as bad weather again limited Allied ground operations in the northern Tunisian sector.

Overcome Odds

The desert corps, thrusting to the south of the main enemy line through northeastern Tunisia, attacked against heavy odds, the spokesman said, but put Tanout Maller's 400 Italian defenders to flight, killing about 250 of them.

South of the Fondouk-El Aouareb area, about 30 miles southwest of Sousse, Axis forces made an attack with tank support, Gen. Henri Giraud's French headquarters reported, but was repulsed.

"The attack was a complete failure. The enemy suffered heavy losses," said the announcement.

Increased patrol activity also was reported south of Pont-du-Fahs, 30 miles south of Tunis, the French said.

Axis Being Squeezed

It now is apparent that the Germans and Italians are being squeezed from all sides — by the British Eighth Army in Libya, by the French in the South, and by the Allied forces in Tunisia — and

(The British in Cairo also announced that Tunis and Sousse, on the Tunisian coast, had again been heavily bombed. A railway station at Tunis was hit; big fires were set off at Sousse, where an enemy ship was reported to have been hit.

Raid Italian Harbor

(The most significant Allied air action reported, however, was an assault by American heavy bombers on the Italian harbor at Palermo, Sicily, in which a great yellow explosion was observed in the target area.

(The Italian High Command admitted the force of the attack by reporting that the city's dead were 46 and the wounded 272. It was implied that these figures might later be raised).

American planes attacked Kalrouan, the inland Tunisian traffic junction through which the Nazis have been trying to supply their forward troops, and the Axis-held port of Gabes.

The RAF reported that its forward anti-aircraft guns shot down four German planes raiding Allied airdromes yesterday, and that another German plane was destroyed last night.

The British lost two planes and the Americans one in escorting the bombers that attacked Gabes.

An air force spokesman announced that reconnaissance had established that the Axis power station at Sfax had been destroyed in an attack of Jan. 5.

Allied fighters continued offensive sweeps, a communique said.

A new British bomber, the twin-engine Bixley, was mentioned for the first time on the front. The Bixleys bombed the docks at Tunis Wednesday night.

(The Bixley is an improved type of the Bristol Blenheim bomber which it resembles. It is powered by mercury air-cooled radial engines. Other specifications are miltary secrets.)

Allies Sweep Around Axis Africa Line

By J. W. Gallagher

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 8 — Attacking against heavy odds, a French and American camel corps has captured Tanout Maller, fourteen miles from Tiaret, in the southern Tunisian desert near the Tripolitanian border, only 200 miles southwest of Tripoli, a French military spokesman declared today.

This was the closest Allied penetration so far reported to Tripoli in a sweep to the south of the main Axis defense line through northeastern Tunisia.

Partially Motorized

Two hundred and fifty Italians were reported killed in the attack.

(London sources said the Camel Corps which took Tanout Maller was a partially motorized force of savage, swift-moving fighters who operated almost exclusively by night and sought concealment by day.

(French officers and men were reported to have resisted adoption of trucks and armored cars on the ground that they are too easily spotted in the daytime, but now use them to complement their animals.)

Limited Air Activity

This action was the only reported land operation on the front as bad weather closed in again on the northern sector.

There was limited air activity. United States air forces attacked the Germans at Kairouan, thirty-five miles southwest of Sousse, and at the port of Gabes.

The RAF's Bixleys started two large fires in a new attack on the Tunis docks.

The RAF reported that its forward field anti-aircraft defenses shot down four German planes attacking airdromes yesterday, and another was said to have been destroyed last night. A recount of reports since Wednesday showed that a sixth plane also had been shot down in the forward area.

German barracks were the targets of the raid by B-26 Martin Marauders and P-38 Lightnings on Gabes, and direct hits were reported.

Rommel Move Indicated

London, (June 8 (A. P.)—Advices from Cairo telling of Allied air attacks on westbound Axis motor columns only forty miles from Tripoli was interpreted by British military sources today as indicating that Field Marshal Rommel was preparing for a withdrawal from his line at Buerat El Hsun.

Observers expressed the belief the British Eighth Army soon would be on the move again, pointing out that the Germans apparently are employing the same tactics which they used earlier on their long retreat from El Alamein.

Major Action Reported.

London, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio today quoted a German military spokesman as saying that a major action had developed in northern Tunisia and that Axis troops had thrown an attacking British force back far beyond its initial position. The British suffered heavy losses, the spokesman was quoted as saying.

[There was no confirmation of this report from Allied sources, and it was not immediately clear whether the German spokesman referred to a new battle or to the engagement announced yesterday by the Nazis and Allies alike, as the result of which British troops withdrew from the position they had captured on January 5 at Jebel Azzag. Jebel Azzag is fifteen miles west of Mateur, which is some thirty-five miles southwest of Bizerte.]

PALERMO POUNDED BY U.S. BOMBERS

Heavy, Destructive Daylight Raid Staged by Four-Motored Planes.

CAIRO, Jan. 8 — (AP) — Palermo, the big Axis air base in Sicily and the mainspring of the German and Italian air effort in Tunisia, was subjected to a heavy and destructive bombing by American four-motored planes by daylight yesterday.

A great yellow explosion mushroomed up from the harbor installations, an American communique said, but otherwise the results could not be observed because of clouds low over the area.

All Planes Safe

All the raiding force returned safely to Middle Eastern bases.

(Indicating considerable damage at this base on the northwest coast of Sicily, the Italian High command said high explosive and incendiary bombs fell in the central part of the town and caused a large number of casualties, including at least 46 killed and 272 wounded.)

R.A.F. planes also attacked sulphur factories at Licata on the southern coast of Sicily, causing violent explosions, bombed Tunis and Sousse by night when hits were scored on a ship and a railway depot and large fires lighted, and raided an airfield on the tiny island of Lampedusa, midway between Malta and Tunisia.

Allied air forces were being moved up to new advanced air bases in Tripolitania at a rapid rate. R.A.F. ground crews, engineers, and infantry were not even bothering to clear away the debris of wrecked Italian and German planes as they took over these fields.

[illegible]onkmen Repel 15 Nazi Raids

By Harold V. Boyle

[Associated Press Correspondent]

With United States Forces in Tunisia, Jan. 6 (Delayed)—Three times a day for five straight days they came—German bombers intent on wiping out an American tank and tank-maintenance unit stationed in this area of the Tunisian front, now known as Stuka valley.

In one formation there were nineteen bombers. Another time there were nine. On each trip over they unloaded bomb cargoes and strafed the tank crews.

Foxhole Worn Smooth

"It got so that the troops were spending most of the day in foxholes," said Warrant Officer William C. Kelly, whose wife manages the post exchange at Fort McClellan, Ala.

Among those who didn't take the bombing lying down was Master Sergeant Jake Cline, of Louisville, Ky., who helped man a twin battery of 50-caliber machine-guns mounted on a half-track.

"They don't like those 50-caliber bullets," said Cline. "We got so that we were using up a case of ammunition each day."

British Tommies Gain Data On Enemy in Mateur Skirmish

By WILLIAM B. KING

WITH ALLIED FORCES IN TUNISIA, Jan. 7.—(Delayed)—(AP) British infantry today fell back to the positions they held a week ago following a three-day battle for high ground dominating the highway approaching Mateur and Bizerte from the West.

The British Tommies, backed by British and American artillery, inflicted severe loses on the Germans and gained valuable information about enemy troops and gun positions, although they were unable to hold the ground against repeated attacks by superior numbers.

Readjustment of the line was ordered after a second strong enemy counterattack forced the outnumbered Commandos to retire from Jebel Azzag yesterday at midday.

JAN 9 1943

(An Allied headquarters communique yesterday announced the withdrawal from Jebel Azzag, 15 miles west of Mateur.)

Nazis Drive Wedge

The retreat permitted the Germans to push a wedge between a hill called Jebel ouled El Ma, held by Allied infantry, and Sidi Daoud (Green Hill).

The British had attacked and gained the top of Green Hill Jan. 5, out while they were attempting to mop up a strongly defended and concealed machinegun nest a reinforced German charge pushed them back to a secondary height on the elephant-shaped mountain.

What was probably the strongest concentration of medium and heavy artillery yet used in this theater pounded the Germans on the hill but did not neutralize the enemy's preponderance of infantry strength.

Reversal of Usual Tactics

"It was almost like an artillery engagement supported by infantry instead of the other way round," one officer said.

Although the whole operation was scarcely more than a patrol skirmish and has no vital bearing on the campaign it was a repetition of a mistake that was made in the original dash for Tunis and Bizerte — the use of too few infantrymen for the job.

Thick growing shrubbery in these rugged mountains gives excellent cover for machinegun nests.

Even after a position is stormed it is almost impossible to wipe the nests out one by one.

Officer Drives Bulldozer To End Fire at Airport

By The Associated Press.

AN ADVANCED UNITED STATES AIR BASE in North Africa, Jan. 6 (Delayed)—Seasoned American fighter pilots who usually use every opportunity to disparage ground troops dropped their guards the other day and conceded that First Lieutenant Robert Parker of the Engineers had "everything it takes."

The gasoline and ammunition dump on this makeshift fighter airdrome among hills not far from the Tunisian battlefield was blazing fiercely after a German raid. Shells were just beginning to explode. Ground batteries were preparing to blast at the fire in an effort to cause an explosion to extinguish the flames.

Lieutenant Parker calmly started a big bulldozer used for leveling runways, lowered the blade into the dirt and charged straight at the blazing dump. The fire was smothered as earth was pushed ahead and the bulldozer rolled over the dump. Lieutenant Parker escaped injury.

BRITISH PLANES ROAR TO ATTACK IN FRANCE

Fighters Follow Up Night Raid on Germany's Ruhr

LONDON, Jan. 8 (AP)—Large formations of high-flying fighter planes streaked across the English Channel in almost continual shuttle attacks on France today in what apparently was a large-scale daylight follow-up to another night bombing of Germany's Ruhr.

Most of the daylight assaults appeared to be directed at the Calais area and beyond, with the first good weather in four days facilitating the operations.

The Air Ministry, announcing the night assault on the Ruhr without detail, said that all the attacking force had returned safely. The specific targets of the raid were not announced.

This was the third Royal Air Force attack on the Ruhr this year, others having been made last Sunday and Monday nights.

Seven German planes, believed to have been Focke-Wulf 190's, dropped light bombs on a southwestern coastal town today, hitting a hotel and causing considerable damage and some casualties. Four spitfires broke up the attack.

DE GAULLE SENDS GIRAUD THIRD NOTE

London, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, the Fighting French leader, was today reliably reported to have sent a third message to Gen. Henri Giraud, the High Commissioner for French North Africa, emphasizing the importance of an early meeting.

In reply to Gen. de Gaulle's first two communications, Gen. Giraud was said to have agreed to a meeting, but to have specified no date.

Gen. Giraud left Dakar today for the French Sudan, accompanied by Gov. Pierre Boisson, the Dakar radio declared in a broadcast recorded here by CBS.

"On his return to Dakar from St. Louis," the Dakar radio said, "Gen. Giraud was received on board the Richelieu and thus visited the most beautiful ship of the French fleet. At 17:30 (5:30 P. M.), in the Chamber of Commerce, he spoke to reserve officers and declared that one had to be patient; the fight would be hard, there would be work for everybody and he was certain of victory.

"This morning, in company of Gov.-Gen. Boisson, and of Gen. (Jean) Barreau, the High Commissioner of the African bloc left by plane for the Sudan."

PRETENDER SAID TO BE IN ALGIERS

London, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—The 35-year-old Count of Paris, pretender to the throne of France, has arrived in Algiers to further complicate the French political situation in Africa, the London Daily Express said today.

"Certain Leftists here," said the newspaper's correspondent in Africa, "argue that he returned to Algiers for a proposed coup d'etat which involved Admiral Darlan's assassination."

The Count, Henri, son of the Duke of Guise, became chief of the House of France upon the death of his father in 1940. Be-

HITLER HAS TALK WITH BULGARIAN

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler conferred at his headquarters today with the Bulgarian Minister of War, Lieut.-Gen. Nikola Michov, authorities announced.

One object of such a conference might be an effort on Hitler's part to obtain greater war aid from Bulgaria, which has played a comparatively passive role in the Axis up to this point.

RUSSO-JAP FISH PACT

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 8 (A. P.).—A Tokio dispatch reported that Tomokazu Hori, Japanese Government spokesman, said today that discussions were under way with the Soviet Government for a new Russian-Japanese fisheries agreement. The old pact, extended through last year, expired last month.

Last year the two governments negotiated for three months before reaching an agreement for the 1942 extension of the agreement, which permits Japanese to fish in some waters off the Siberian coast.

49 FLYERS DECORATED

Cairo, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—On wind-swept desert air fields strewn with the wreckage of Axis planes forty-nine additional American Air Force members received the Distinguished Flying Cross today from Major-Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, Commander of United States Air Forces, Middle East.

Lieut. Frederic E. Whitker of Bowling Green, Ohio, received a special citation for bringing home a badly damaged medium bomber from a raid in October after he had been wounded in the leg. Enemy anti-aircraft fire hit him and killed his bombardier, and his plane burst into flames as he made a forced landing, but he helped extinguish the blaze. Lieut. Whitker also received the Purple Heart for his wound.

Others decorated included First Lieut. William S. Barnes of Glen Spey, N. Y.

Allied Flyers Hammering Jap Convoy Off New Guinea

Two Ships Are Sunk in Running Sea Battle —Many Enemy Troops Drowned and 18 Zero Fighters Are Shot Down

JAN 9 1943

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Allied planes battered furiously at the remnants of a convoy Japanese convoy off the New Guinea coast today in the violent climax to a twenty-four-hour running battle in which they were reported officially to have sunk two big transports, one heavily loaded with troops, damaged a third and shot down eighteen fighters.

The attacks on the convoy, apparently engaged in an attempt to land reinforcements in northeastern New Guinea, were disclosed in an Allied communique which also announced virtual completion of the Papuan campaign and the annihilation of a Japanese army that once totaled approximately 15,000 men.

Many Troops Lost in Sinking.

To these successes the bulletin added the announcement that 107 enemy warships and merchant vessels were destroyed or severely damaged by Gen. MacArthur's airmen since July 23—two days after the Japanese first landed at Buna.

One of the two enemy transports just reported sunk went down with her entire load of troops. The second transport, the communique declared, was disabled by a direct hit, set afire and later sunk. The third vessel, reported damaged, was heavily hit by a 500-pound bomb.

Japs Fire Broadsides at Planes.

When a squadron of Billy Mitchells attacked the convoy it was met by terrific anti-aircraft fire. Not only anti-aircraft fire came from a cruiser and destroyer, but at one spot the warships fired full broadsides at the attacking planes.

Battle Is Still On.

The final chapter of the battle still was being written today in the Huon Gulf off Lae, the Japanese base on the New Guinea coast, which presumably was the goal of the convoy.

Some 160 miles to the south, meanwhile, Allied troops were reported to have completed their envelopment of the remnants of the enemy's Papuan Army on Sananda Point. The Allied communique said that the intrenched enemy force was facing certain destruction and that with its elimination the Papuan Peninsula would be completely cleared of Japanese troops.

The Jap Army, the communique added, originally was approximately 15,000 strong and represented parts of at least four divisions, which included infantry, engineers, anti-aircraft batteries, mountain artillery, cavalry, construction battalions, crack landing units and medical and service detachments. In addition to the enemy forces annihilated in the land fighting, several thousand of unidentified units were drowned or destroyed while attempting to land, the bulletin said.

JAN 9 1943

Gen. Hata himself was reported slain on December 21.

Jap Losses Listed.

Enemy aircraft definitely known to have been destroyed since the beginning of the Papuan campaign were listed by Allied headquarters as 333. Eighty-one were reported probably destroyed and 117 damaged—a total of 531.

Naval losses inflicted on the Japanese by Allied airmen during the same period, including attacks on the New Britain area, were listed as follows:

Sunk or seriously damaged—Six cruisers, thirteen destroyers, one destroyer tender, two seaplane tenders, two gunboats, forty-four large to medium merchant ships, thirty-nine small to medium merchant ships and between 150 and 200 landing barges.

Munda and Kiska Hit Again.

Washington Jan. 8 (A. P.).—The Navy reported today that Army Air Forces had again bombed Japanese bases at Kiska, in the Aleutian Islands, and Munda in the Solomons, but that no results were reported.

A force of Liberator heavy bombers dropped bombs on shore installations at Kiska on Wednesday, the communique said.

A force of Marlin Marauders, medium bombers, attacked the airfield and installations on Munda in New Georgia Islands yesterday. Naval spokesmen proferred to have no information about these operations other than that given in the communique.

HUGE ENEMY AIRFORCE

102 Japanese Planes Are Engaged by U. S., Australian Fliers.

TWO LEADERS HONORED

MacArthur, Back in Australia, Cites Commanders in Papua.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Saturday, Jan. 9. — (AP) A third Japanese transport out of a total of four in a New Guinea-bound convoy was sent to the bottom and 20 Jap Zero planes were shot down in an Allied Aerial blitz in which virtually every type of plane was brought into play by the Southwest Pacific Command Airforce.

While this air triumph was scored, General Douglas MacArthur returned from the Papuan peninsula of New Guinea, praising American and Australian officers and forces and himself receiving congratulations for a victorious campaign which destroyed a Jap army once estimated to have totaled 15,000.

Jap Aerial Umbrella

Battling an aggregate of 102 Japanese fighter planes attempting to screen the landing effort of the 10-ship convoy, Allied fighter bombers knocked down 20 Zeroes for certain, probably destroyed seven, and damaged 15 others in a concentrated 24-hour blitz ending yesterday afternoon which sent another Japanese transport to the bottom and scored direct hits on a fourth.

Only one of four transports first attacked off Gasmata, New Britain, remained afloat yesterday afternoon. Today's noon communique indicated the convoy may have landed some Jap troops but that those who might have reached shore were subjected to the full fury of an Allied air blasting.

Sustained Assault

Practically the only front line Allied planes which did not participate in the virtual nonstop pounding of the convoy off Lae were Australian Wirraways. Throughout the afternoon and night of Jan. 7 and the morning of Jan. 8, Flying Fortresses, Liberators, Mitchells, Marauders, Bostons, Beaufort Bombers, Beaufighters, Hudsons, Lightnings, and Kittyhawks joined in the fray.

Seven Lightnings downed four Jap planes for certain, three probably and damaged five of 20 Zeroes which hovered over the convoy. The box score on another flight of 15 Lightnings in a battle with the same number of Zeroes was four shot down, one probably, and one possibly destroyed.

Japs Pursued to Lae

"Our air force of all categories continued its ceaseless attacks both by day and night on the enemy convoy during the 7th and 8th, pursuing it into the harbor of Lae," said the noon communique.

"In addition to yesterday's transport losses, our heavy bombers scored two direct hits on the stern of a transport and our medium bombers sank a transport.

"In the meantime our fighters and attack types strafed the landing area, barges, and beachhead, causing numerous fires, explosions and heavy personnel losses. Two medium bombers and two fighters were destroyed on the (Lae) airdrome. Throughout the operations, our fighters incessantly engaged the enemy's air forces.

Allied Losses Light

"In addition to his losses of yesterday, 20 enemy fighters were shot down ,seven probably destroyed, and 15 damaged in air combat with our bombers and fighters. Our losses were not heavy. Such (Jap) troop elements as were landed by the enemy are believed to have been fragmentary."

The destroyed transport raised to three and the downed Zeros to 38 the price paid by the Japs for the reinforcement effort.

General MacArthur, highly praised the work of the American 32nd and 41st divisions and the Fifth American Airforce.

Sighted Off New Britain

The Jap convoy first was sighted by an Allied plane Jan. 6 when about 30 miles off New Britain, in whose harbor of Rabaul the Japs have been known to be concentrating considerable shipping.

Gen. MacArthur's noon communique of Jan. 8 announced that a 14,000-ton transport, heavily loaded with troops, had been sunk along with another transport and that a third had been damaged by deadly-accurate Allied bombers.

Before the aerial attack was 24 hours old, the Lae-bound convoy was a target of Liberators, Consolidated Catalinas, Flying Fortresses, North American Billy Mitchells, Martin Marauders and Lockheed Lightning.s

The Jan. 8 communique also listed 18 Jap Zeros definitely shot down and five others probably destroyed as the enemy made a big attempt to smash the Allied aerial cover.

Awards for Leaders

For the brilliant Papua campaign all over except for the annihilation of Jap remnants enveloped at Cape Sanananda, General MacArthur awarded the distinguished service cross to the Allied land commander, General Sir Thomas Blamey and to Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the American troops in Papua. Numerous officers were cited.

Patrol activities were reported for the Sanananda campaign during which 32 Japs were slain.

Elsewhere in the air, Allied planes bombed and started fires on the Jap airdrome at Gasmata, New Britain.

Allies List 3,840 Japs Killed In Papuan Battle

JAN 9 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Jan. 8—The Japanese method of fighting to the end from treetops, dugouts and foxholes in swamp and jungle slows Allied tabulations of their casualties.

Americans and Australians have officially counted 3,840 dead Japanese in their sweep across the Papuan peninsula which now has survivors of a 15,000-man expedition penned up on Sanananda Point and, according to an Allied communique, facing "certain destruction."

Other Dead Reported

Many hundreds of other enemy dead have been reported from time to time by field commanders, but these were not included in the formal tabulations.

Several times Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters has announced the taking of prisoners, but one of the largest numbers noted in a single engagement was twenty-three.

U. S. Toll Undisclosed

No casualty figures have been released for the American units in the bitter battle for the Buna beach head, but some indication of the fury of the close-in jungle fighting may be gained from an earlier revelation that three American brigadier generals had been wounded in action there.

The Australians, who halted the Japanese drive on Port Moresby and bore the brunt of the task of pushing the enemy back across the Owen Stanley mountains, had lost 640 killed and 1,550 wounded up to December 1, when the last official figures were announced.

240 Planes Destroyed

Atotal of 240 Japanese planes have been rpeorted shot down in the New Guinea fighting and 50 more destroyed on the ground, against an Allied loss of only 16 planes.

Two enemy cruisers were reported sunk in sea fighting directly related to the fighting in Papua, as well as six Jap destroyers, ten transports and supply vessels, a gunboat and numbers of launches and other small craft. In addition, an enemy cruiser, six destroyers a submarine and eight transport ships were heavily damaged and some of them probably sunk.

In one t[w]enty-four-hour period Dec. 14-15, Allied planes made 13[6] separate sorties, firing 150,00[0] rounds from their cannon and machine-guns and dropping fifty four tons of bombs on one Japanese convoy off the Papuan coast.

On the Allies' side, the victorious New Guinea campaign has been marked by the transportation of medium artillery and thousands of troops to the battle area from distant bases, and the first use in this area, at least, of parachute fragmentation bombs developed by the United States Air Corps.

The only Japanese innovation of the campaign was an unsuccessful attempt by enemy fliers to drop bombs on heavy American bombers while they were in flight.

Estimates of the strength of the Japanese remnant in the Sanananda corridor were not revealed.

appreciate the tremendous job the Allied troops have done.

"This is warfare in which you can't find the other fellow's front or your own either. That is why this is a characteristically infantry go.

Strong Emplacements Described By Blamey

JAN 9 1943

By William F. Boni

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 7 (Delayed)—The importance which the Japanese attached to their beachheads on the Papuan peninsula was emphasized tonight by General Sir Thomas A. Blamey, commander of Allied ground forces on New Guinea, on his return from an inspection of the Sanananda fronts.

(An Allied communique said that the last of the Japanese forces there faced "certain destruction," completely enveloped at Sanananda Point.)

Views Emplacements

Blamey, who was under Japanese machine-gun fire at one point during his tour, said it was obvious from the depth, careful construction and admirable location of Japanese emplacements that they were not defenses built in two or three weeks.

"It is easy to see that the Japs were planning to make this area a permanent installation for defense of their New Guinea holdings," said Blamey. "You have to be there to

Tanks Replace Artillery

"In our case, transport and terrain made it impossible to bring up the amount of artillery we would have on the ordinary land front. Thus we had to substitute tanks for artillery."

The tanks were 13-ton General Stuarts—American made, with Australian crews and commanders. They saw their first action at Cape Endaiadare and rolled west from there to Giropa Point.

Some other portions of the Buna sector, the Government station, were taken by American infantry without tanks.

Blamey hopes—but did not predict—that Sanananda will be taken with lighter Allied casualties than were suffered in the Buna fighting where, he said, "we had considerable losses, but inflicted considerably more."

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 7 (Delayed)—With a shuttle-service attack, Allied aircraft ranging from P-40's to Catalina flying boats have made more than fifty sorties in less than twenty-four hours against a Japanese convoy in the Solomons sea area, sinking two large transports and hitting a third.

Reports here indicated today that hits on transports caused the drowning of at least 1,000 troops headed for Lae.

Jap Planes Downed

The crew of a B-24 bomber, piloted by Second Lieutenant John [illegible] Arant, of Winnemucca, Nev., first sighted the convoy Wednesday morning. When a squadron of Zeros attacked the Liberator, a large formation of Lockheed Lightning fighters was sent to its aid.

The Lightnings, with a Flying Fortress crew as a navigating guide, routed the enemy fighters. Nine Zeros were shot down and three others may have been destroyed. All the Lightning pilots, led personally by their commander, Major George Prentice, of San Antonio, Texas, returned safely.

Fortress Bags Two

Men who shot down Zeros included: Lieuts. Stanley O. Andrews, St. Petersburg, Fla., Richard Suehr, Pittsburgh; Charles Sullivant, Eureka, Ill; John M. Manner, Portland, Ore.; Harvey Clymer, Phoenixville, Pa., and Harris Denton, Quitman, Texas.

The radiator stabilizer of Denton's plane was hit, but he brought the ship home safely on one engine.

The crew of the Fortress, piloted by Capt. Charles H. Giddings, of Munday, Texas, also bagged two Zeros. Giddings said he didn't know what he accomplished in a bombing way as the engine was shot out, fire broke out in the tail and two of my crew members, including the copilot, were wounded so we didn't have much time for looking around."

Bombardier Forgetful

Master Sergeant Pete Vasalie, of St. Paul, Minn., the bombardier, also was apologetic, saying he felt no bombs fell closer than seventy-five feet to their target. He shared one Zero fighter with Staff Sergeant Virgil Devoss, of Danville, Ill., ball-turret gunner. Another was credited to Staff Sergeant Everett Perkins, of Akron, Ohio, who looked like an air-going pirate with a red bandana around his forehead.

Perkins got one out of five Zeros which peeled off above the Fortress and dived as close as fifty yards before slipping away.

Timed Perfectly

"They just seemed to hang up there until they saw your guns silent," Perkins said. "Then they picked that moment to dive. And boy, I'm telling you there's nothing like looking through gunsights and seeing planes, bullets and the plane itself coming right at you."

Staff Sergeant Harold Leamaster, whose parents live at Buhl, Idaho, gave himself a probable for hitting a Zero in the tail.

AKYAB IN BURMA RAIDED BY R. A. F.

New Delhi, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—R. A. F. bombers raided the Japanese-occupied port of Akyab in western Burma again last night after a series of daylight forays in which four enemy supply sampans were sunk off the coast farther south, a British communique announced today.

Several fires were started in the night raid on Akyab and objectives in the immediate vicinity of the port were attacked with good results, the communique said.

The daylight sweeps also included attacks on oil installations near Chauk and on enemy positions near Rathedaung, twenty-five miles northwest of Akyab. All the operations were carried out without the loss of a single aircraft, the bulletin said.

There was no mention of activity by British land forces which previously had been reported operating in the vicinity of Rathedaung after pushing down the coast from the Indian frontier.

Rangoon radio said today that eight Burmese and two Indians have been sentenced to death for killing Japanese soldiers, and for upsetting telegraph and railway communications, a British broadcast, recorded in New York by CBS reported today.

"Many other people have been thrown into jail for long terms for anti-Japanese acts," the broadcast added.

Eichelberger Receives the D. S. C. As U. S. Commander in Buna Drive

Former West Point Head and Blamey Cited With Staffs by MacArthur — 33d and 41st Divisions Are Honored

AT UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Saturday, Jan. 9 (AP)—General Douglas MacArthur, on returning to his general headquarters from the campaign in the Papua Peninsula, where a Japanese Army of about 15,000 now has been virtually destroyed, highly praised the work of the American Thirty-third and Forty-first Divisions and the Fifth American Air Force.

For the brilliant campaign, all over except for the annihilation of Japanese remnants enveloped at Cape Sanananda, General MacArthur awarded the Distinguished Service Cross to the Allied land commander, General Sir Thomas Blamey, commander of the Allied land forces in New Guinea, and to Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, who was revealed as the commander of the American troops in Papua.

In an order of the day, General MacArthur cited "for extraordinary courage, marked efficiency and precise execution of operation during the Papuan campaign" the following officers:

General Blamey, Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of the Allied air forces; Lieut. Gen. Edmund Francis Herring, Australian field commander; General Eichelberger; Major Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, Chief of Staff, general headquarters of the Southwest Pacific area; Major Gen. George Allen Vasey, Australian field commander; Brig. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, U. S. A. Chief of Intelligence; Brig. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead and Brig. Gen. Kenneth Walker, American air force commanders; Australian Brigadiers F. G. Wooten and Kenneth Eather and Australian Group Captain William Garing.

"Victory which has been achieved would have been impossible of accomplishment without the invincible leadership which they have provided," General MacArthur's order of the day stated.

"I have directed that each be awarded the Distinguished Service Cross of the United States Army, the highest decoration at my disposal, with appropriate individual citation.

Gallantry Is Extolled

"This award will serve for all time and for all eyes as the outward symbol of devotion and gallantry with which they have performed their dangerous and difficult duty.

"The magnificent conduct of the troops and elements of this command, operating under difficulties rarely if ever surpassed in a campaign, has earned my highest praise and commendation. In spite of inadequate means in many categories, their resourcefulness and their adaptability have produced a self-reliance that has overcome all handicaps and deficiencies.

"Through the skill and courage and indomitable will for victory they have defeated a bold and aggressive enemy, possessing a marked superiority of resources and potentialities in areas of campaign and combat. While all ground troops have performed admirably, elements of the Sixth and Seventh Australian divisions, of the Thirty-second and Forty-first United States divisions, the Sixth Independent Commando unit, mountain artillery batteries of the First Australian Corps, squadrons of the armored division (Australian) and native Papuan carriers have been especially prominent.

To the American Fifth Air Force and the Royal Australian Air Force no commendation could be too great. Their outstanding efforts in combat, in supply and in transportation over both land and sea constituted the keystone upon which the whole arch of the campaign was erected. They have set new horizons for the air conduct of the war.

"To Almighty God I give thanks for that guidance which has brought us to this success in our great crusade. His is the honor, the power and the glory, forever. Amen.

"DOUGLAS MacARTHUR,
"General, U. S. Army,
"Commander in Chief."

A spokesman for General MacArthur said today that the General, when informed of the Allied success in the Buna-Gona area of New Guinea, commented: "The dead of Bataan should rest a little easier tonight."

General MacArthur had charge of the defense of the Philippines before he was appointed to his present command.

JAN 9 1943

Eichelberger a Specialist.

General Eichelberger, one of the Army's specialists on the Far East, was Superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point just a year ago when the War Department assigned him to command a combat division.

A 56-year-old veteran with previous service in the Philippines, China and Siberia, he received three decorations from Japan at the close of the first World War when he was assistant chief of staff and Chief Intelligence Officer of the American Expeditionary Force in Siberia.

The United States awarded to him the Distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Service Medal for extraordinary heroism in action, and Japan, then an ally of the United States with a force in Eastern Siberia, bestowed upon him the Imperial Order of Meiji, the Order of the Sacred Treasure and the Order of the Rising Sun.

At West Point, where he was in charge for fourteen months, General Eichelberger streamlined the courses to meet the needs of modern warfare and also introduced an air training course in which plans were made to give cadets sufficient training to qualify for commissions in the Army Air Corps immediately upon graduation.

Upon leaving West Point he aided in the reorganization of the "square" formations of National Guard divisions into new "triangular" divisions, and was placed in command of the Seventy-seventh Division of New York, the "Metropolitan Division" which won fame in the last war through the feat of the 'Lost Battalion." The division went into training under General Eichelberger at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Last October General Eichelberger, then a major general, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant general, indicating that he was being placed in charge of an important command, but his assignment was not disclosed. He was born in Urbana, Ohio, and was graduated from the Military Academy in 1909.

Bags Six Zeros in His Debut

Major Yost From Princeton Gets Off to Fast Start in Raids on Munda.

JAN 9 1943

With the American Forces on Guadalcanal, Dec. 24 (Delayed) (A. P.)—Major Donald Yost, a 31-year-old newcomer from Princeton, N. J., was the outstanding figure in the collection of twenty-nine Japanese Zero planes during the last two days' raids on the enemy's Solomon Island base of Munda, New Georgia.

Major Yost, a Princeton University graduate, only arrived a week ago and didn't see the enemy until he met six Zeros near Munda yesterday. In a few minutes he had shot down two of them and chased three others off the dive-bomber tails of his mates.

Then this morning at 7:30 A. M. he shot down four more in ten minutes, making a two-day bag of six.

"I just tangled around with them awhile," said Major Yost, using his hands and arms to explain combat movements.

The Japanese are trying to build a new airfield and base at Munda, but American dive-bombers, fighters and Flying Fortresses have been hammering them daily, sometimes two or three times a day.

Pilots returning from this morning's raid said terrific explosions, fires and smoke resulted when they dropped their bombs in the midst of the milling Japanese planes on the ground. Some enemy planes were only a few feet in the air when they were blasted and crashed.

Believe New Type Sighted.

The United States airmen believed they had sighted a new type of Zero plane—a large one with square wingtips, they said.

Major Yost had one close call in today's scrap when he and an enemy pilot headed straight toward each other spurting bullets. He said they missed each other by a few feet, and "the Jap left bullets in my engine and wing."

Lieut. Kenneth Kirk Jr. of Barre, Vt., shot down two Zeros this morning. Kirk has been flying all types of aircraft including seaplanes for six months in this area, but it was the first time he was up against a Zero.

Low-flying American pilots have discovered another Japanese trick which is to pour oil in small depressions on their runway so that from the air and in photographs the field appears to be full of craters.

The Japanese plan at Munda apparently is to establish fighters there so that their bombers flying down from Rabaul, New Britain, can pick up a fighter escort at that point to strike at Guadalcanal, but devastating attacks on Munda by the United States forces are making this impossible so far.

Pals Killed in Wake Island.

When young Major Donald Yost was knocking Jap Zeros out at Christmas time, something more than the normal American fighting-man's spirit undoubtedly had a part in the daring with which he attacked, and the accuracy with which he aimed his guns. That something was revenge. For the Japs, in their sneak attack on Wake Island in December, 1941, got the members of the Major's squadron, who were stationed there—killed them in the epic siege, or took them prisoner. Major Yost himself just missed being with them.

He had been ordered back from Wake to the marine base at Quantico on a special mission and he arrived in Washington on December 5, 1941. On that day, he telephoned his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Yost of Princeton, N. J., telling them he was coming home for a visit as soon as he'd cleaned up his business in the capital. He had a bit of leave before he was required to report at Quantico.

Didn't Reach Home.

"But we didn't get to see him," his mother said today. "After the attack on Pearl Harbor, you know, the radio broadcast a call for all officers on leave to report back to duty at once.

"We had a letter from him dated December 16 of this year, which was his thirty-first birthday. It said he was going up to the front, but of course he didn't tell us where.

"But he did say, 'I'm taking along twenty-nine fellows—the very cream of American manhood. I want to bring them all back.' He's a Squadron Leader, you know. This is the first word we've had of him since. I don't need to tell you how proud I am of what he's done—but I knew he would make good."

Donald Yost has an older brother, John E. Yost, who is an engineer at the Eastern Aircraft plant in Trenton, N. J.

Brother Making Planes.

"I like to tell everybody that John's making the planes and Don's flying them," said Mrs. Yost.

The father of the two young men also is doing his part in the war effort. A construction company official, he got himself a job in the plant of the Mack Manufacturing Company plant at New Brunswick, N. J., a year ago. The Mack company, of course, is making war materials.

Donald is a graduate of Princeton High School, and of Princeton University, class of 1934. He was a member of Cloister Inn at the University. He entered the Naval Reserve immediately after his graduation, and was sent to Pensacola, Fla., for training. There, in 1936, he won a competitive examination for a commission in the Marine Corps.

In July, 1938, he was married to Miss Virginia O'Mara, daughter of Capt. J. S. O'Mara, U. S. N. They have a 21-months-old daughter. Young Mrs. Yost and the baby are living with her parents in Charleston, S. C., while the Major is on active duty.

CURTIN TRIP UNLIKELY

Melbourne, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Although in some Australian quarters there is a desire to have Prime Minister John Curtin visit Washington to ask President Roosevelt for more war aid, he is unlikely to travel overseas until there is a decisive change in the European situation, the political correspondent of the Melbourne Herald said today.

The writer, declared Mr. Curtin, believed that a visit to the United States might create the impression he was attempting to put pressure on the President at a time when the utmost co-operation of Allied leaders is essential.

The fact that this is an election year in Australia also inclines Mr. Curtin to the view that he should remain at home for the present, the correspondent added.

Reports previously had been current that the Australian Advisory War Council would recommend when it meets next Tuesday that Mr. Curtin visit Washington in an effort to impress upon American leaders the need for additional aid in this war theater.

Curtin, "The Herald" writer added, seems more concerned with the danger of permitting Japan to strengthen her hold on the islands north of Australia, thus prolonging the Pacific war years after Germany is defeated, than with any immediate threat to this country.

ROOSEVELT ENVOY IN NEW DELHI POST

Phillips Says He Hopes to See Political Leaders in an Extensive Tour of India

JAN 9 1943

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 8 (AP)—William Phillips, former United States Ambassador to Rome, arrived here today by air from Karachi as President Roosevelt's personal envoy to India. He said he hoped to see representatives of all India's political parties in an extensive tour of the country.

He did not answer a newspaper man's question: "How do you intend to see those who are detained in jail?" Neither did he reply to a question of whether he came here in an attempt to find a formula to end the deadlock on the Indian problem.

Mr. Phillips was driven to the home of the Viceroy, where he will be a guest.

30.24—191

30.24—191

He said that, besides studying India, he had the job of coordinating various American civil activities in the country.

The text of a statement Mr. Phillips read at the press conference said:

JAN 9 1943

"I have come to India as personal representative of the President of the United States and it is a high honor and privilege to represent our great President here in this capacity.

"Never before have I visited this vast country, but my association of almost forty years with the Department of State has given me an intense interest in India and her people.

"I have come to study and learn as much as I can of India today and the India of the future which has such an important role to play in world affairs. I shall report my findings to Washington.

"We Americans, together with the people of the United Nations, are determined to carry on the war to final victory. That victory is now assured. Our troops are proud to be associated with the magnificent soldiers of India, some of whom I had the privilege of visiting in a desert camp in Egypt.

"We have much to learn from one another, Americans from Indians and Indians from Americans, and I am confident that I shall find here the friendly guidance so necessary to help me understand, cooperate, and thus fulfill my mission for the President."

Colonel Heads U.S. Troops In Ireland

London, Jan. 8 (AP)—Col. Irwin S. Dierking, of Jeffersonville, Ind., who for the last five months has been serving as chief quartermaster of the Northern Ireland base section, has been appointed commanding officer of United States troops in North Ireland.

He succeeds Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, who is temporary leader of United States Army forces in the European theater in the absence of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in Africa.

GEN. ADLER RETURNING

Cairo, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Brig. Gen. Elmer E. Adler, United States air service commander in the Middle East, has just returned from an unannounced mission to Russia and will leave shortly for a new assignment in Washington, it was disclosed today. Col. Robert Kauch of Philadelphia was appointed to succeed Gen. Adler here.

Gen. Adler came to Cairo originally as a lease-lend co-ordinator. As air service commander his main job was to get planes into this area and to other war action centers. He also organized a technical school for explaining American aircraft to the British.

Gen. Adler formerly lived in Buffalo, N. Y., and San Antonio, Tex.

Chinese Retake Lihuang, Anhwei Province Capital

JAN 9 1943

Japanese Lose 1,000 Men in Failure to Hold City

CHUNKING, Jan. 8 (AP).—The Chinese command announced tonight the recapture of Lihuang, provisional capital of Anhwei Province, and said 1,000 Japanese were killed or wounded in the fighting and others were cut off northwest of the city.

The Japanese occupied Lihuang earlier this week in a drive which carried through the town and on to the north. There, in the vicinity of Yehchiachi, the enemy column was stopped by Chinese defense forces, a communique said. Meanwhile, it added, other Chinese troops closed in behind the column, cutting off the Japanese road of retreat and winning back Lihuang yesterday noon in fierce fighting.

The communique said the isolated Japanese column was trying to fight its way out to the northwest.

The Chinese announced that the Japanese had occupied Shancheng, in southeastern Honan, Tuesday night, but fighting continued in the suburbs.

U-Boat Tankers Supply Oil to Nazi Submarines

Towing Underwater Depots, They Also Bring Food

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 8 (AP).—Dispatches from Berlin reported today that the Germans are using new-type supply ships for submarines—tanker U-boats averaging 3,500 to 4,000 tons.

The submarine-like tankers can tow two or three underwater depots to designated spots in the ocean to supply submarines warring against Allied shipping, the accounts said. The tankers, manned by crews of ten or twelve, haul oil, medicines, provisions and repair parts, the Berlin correspondent of "Svenska Dagbladet" reported.

Depots which are towed by the tankers carry no crewmen. They apparently are surfaced through radio action, the report added.

A German spokesman was quoted in the dispatches as saying the new supply tankers enable Nazi submarines to stay at sea for months instead of ten weeks.

(The Berlin radio said in a broadcast recorded in New York that both the submarine and the U-boat tanker could submerge if the enemy discovered the supply rendezvous. Disclosure of the new development also showed, the broadcast added, that German submarine warfare could be carried on in the west Atlantic without secret bases on the South American coast or in the Azores.)

HUNGARY SEEKS TO PULL TROOPS OUT OF RUSSIA

JAN 9

Winter Quarters Inside Own Borders Are Desire of Nation's Leaders.

By EDWIN SHANKE

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 8 — (AP) Worried by developments on the eastern front and also about the temper of the people at home, Hungary is reported in political quarters here to be anxious to withdraw its troops from Russia into winter quarters in Hungary itself. This move they hope would spare them hardships and the dangers of being crushed by a smashing Russian offensive.

It is estimated that 100,000 Hungarian soldiers are stationed in the Voronezh sector and in the sectors towards the rear where occupation troops are stationed

More Troops Refused

The same informed sources here said that the Germans recently had asked for more Hungarian troops, but were turned down. Instead, the Hungarians said, they have hopes of pulling out those that are already in the field. If they do withdraw them this winter, some political observers here predicted, the Hungarian troops probably will not enter the fight again.

The Hungarian government's developing stiff attitude towards the Nazis and the reluctance to make further commitments or to take further risks is traced to a growing war weariness and a declining morale at home. The question being asked everywhere, the Hungary diplomatic headquarters said, is "what are we fighting for?" and the government has been unable to provide a satisfactory answer.

Public Complaining

The Hungarian people are complaining especialy about conducting a war against powers which have not attacked Hungary. They are complaining also about Hungarian soldiers suffering and dying 1,200 miles from their native border.

The daily newspapers in Hungary are constantly campaigning against defeatism and war weariness, but without result, the informants said. The Hungarians have sensed that even the government is pursuing a more careful policy than at the outbreak of the war because confidence in Germany's power has been strongly shaken.

Premier Nicholas Kallay of Hungary has not been so [illegible] towards England and the United States in recent speeches, although there has been no change against Russia, the informed sources said.

Peasants, who form an overwhelming proportion of the Hungarian population, have been showing a dissatisfaction with the regime and with war conditions by withholding deliveries of grain and other foodstuffs in spite of severe penalties when detected. The government has, therefore, been forced to conduct a drive against them and the Hungarian newspapers are filled with stories of prosecutions for refusal to deliver grain and for black marketing.

ITALY BARS FILM OF POPE'S LIFE

Berne, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—A Rome dispatch to the Basler Nachrichten said today that Fascist authorities had withdrawn the film "Pastor Angelicus," showing the life of Pope Pius XII before his coronation as well as his average working day during the war, apparently because it was considered too pacifistic.

The film had its premier on December 18. It was planned to exhibit it for several months in theaters throughout Italy and later in Catholic countries throughout the world.

The film did not live up to expectations, the newspaper's correspondent said. He quoted Fascist circles as declaring that the film had a pacifistic tendency and therefore was regarded as not timely.

Fresh Eggs Again Appear On London's Ration List

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 8—Fresh eggs, as rare as thick sirloin steaks, return to ordinary consumers this month on at least a token basis. It was announced officially today.

Ordinary consumers will get one fresh egg a month. Priority classes, including nursing mothers, invalids and infants, will get a dozen a month. Powdered egg rations remain a dozen a person each month.

The cheese allotment was cut from eight to six ounces a week.

Yankee Dollars Start Boom In French Morocco Area

JAN 9 1943

Despite Prosperity, There's a Need of Cotton Goods, and Medicines.

By RICE YAHNER

MARRAKECH, French Morocco, Dec. 30—(Delayed)—(AP) The people of French Morocco already are benefitting from American products although the country was occupied less than two months ago.

But they still need "machinery, cotton goods, and medicines—most of all medicine," said the strongest pasha of the land.

At tea in the splendor of his palace in this old story-book city which the one-time fierce fighting men of the Atlas mountains and the fertile plains and desert still consider the capital, Haj Thami Glaoui If Mezouari sincerely but quietly spoke the words at about the same time the Axis radio was broadcasting that he was leading his strong tribes against the Americans.

Second to Sultan

In power when the French took over about 30 years ago, he is second to the Sultan in Morocco, holding the allegiance of even those chieftains who do not recognize Sultan Side Mohammed.

During a four-day tour from Rabat, the Europeanized capital of French Morocco, to the tribal headquarters in the foothills of the snow-capped Atlas mountains — once the strongholds of Riffs and Berbers—an American press party conducted by French civil and military officials was shown the system of rationing, the scant supplies of cotton cloth, sugar, candles, and soap.

Sumptuous Feasts

I was the only news service reporter in the party, which was received, entertained, and feted most hospitably. The tribal chieftains apparently sought to outdo each other, the biggest feast ending with a virtual spray of perfume while censers filled the air with an aroma of burning sandalwood.

In the main room of the Pasha's palace, which is richly furnished with silver, divans, pillows, oriental rugs and Moorish tile, the pasha sipped hot mint tea and refreshing milk of almonds with his guests and expressed his deepest pleasure that now Morocco and France were fighting together with the United Nations against the common enemy.

Government Revitalized

Already the nation's virtually stalled administrative machinery has been revitalized, with officials able to get around on American gasoline and the fishing fleets are at sea once more, thanks to the oil supplied by the United States Army.

More fuel is needed as soon as possible, the pasha said, to operate the farming and mining machinery already in the country as the agricultural and mineral industries need to be developed. Morocco's minerals include iron ore, graphite, phosphate, manganese, and copper. Citrus fruits, olives, grains, nuts, and sheep are the principal agricultural products.

Land of Plenty

In regard to food, Morocco is a land of plenty. By all previous standards the natives apparently have more money than ever before, but they can't buy such simple needs as sugar and clothes—which virtually are nothing but cotton cloth—and candles.

Despite her crude agricultural methods—camels still draw wooden plows in most places—Morocco supplies enough grain for her own needs.

Although Morocco is a vast, sparsely-settled land not unlike New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, or Colorado, every tribe knows every other, for before the French came they were usually fighting each other and burning their desert houses of bamboo and palm fronds.

Four Systems

Although there are four different systems of administration, the French civil and military authorities seem to have firm control. First there is law within tribes as interpreted by elders. Then tribal law is administered by caids and pashas. Next, there is religious law through the sultan, and finally military and civil regulations enforced by the French whether the tribes are loyal to the sultan or not.

3 Brothers Die In Sea Battle

[By the Associated Press]

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 8—President Roosevelt extended the sympathy of the nation for the loss in battle of their three sons to Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rogers, of Birmingham.

The President's letter followed by a month a letter from the commanding officer of the three men, all first-class seamen in the navy, which informed the parents that they had been killed in a naval engagement in the Pacific.

"President's Letter

The letter from President Roosevelt:

JAN 9 1943

"My Dear Mr. and Mrs. Rogers:

"I have just been advised of your loss of three sons who gave their lives in the performance of their duty in action against the enemy.

"There is little that I can say to lessen the burden of your grief. However, I want you to know that your great sorrow is shared not only by myself, but by the entire naval service. Your sons, Jack Ellis, Jr., Edward Keith and Charles Ethbert, gave their lives in the service of our country which owes to you and them a debt of undying gratitude. As Commander in Chief, I express to you a nation's sympathy. I pray that God will comfort you and give you strength to bear this great sorrow.

"Very sincerely yours,

"Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Fourth Son To Enlist

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers have a fourth son, Hugh, who is 17. Still in high school, he plans to enlist in the navy as soon as he gains parental.

The letter from the commanding officer of the ship on which the three men were killed said "they died at their battle stations, and their efforts, combined with those of their shipmates, resulted in loss and disadvantage to the enemy. They could not have given their lives more nobly, and in their unselfish patriotism they stand for all that is finest and best in our American manhood."

McLean Commended for Rescue

SAN JUAN, P. R., Jan. 8 (AP)—Captain Andrew J. McLean of Yonkers, N. Y., has received a letter from Brig. Gen. Edwin J. House commending him "unusual bravery, meritorious conduct and exceptional ability" in leading a rescue party to search for survivors from a plane which crashed and burned in the jungles of Trinidad last November. Captain McLean, a veteran of the last war, led the rescue party through swamps to locate the aviators.

Heads U. S. Newfoundland Unit

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Jan. 8 (AP).—Brigadier General John B. Brooks has arrived in Newfoundland to take over command of United States forces, succeeding Major General G. C. Grant, officer commanding the American troops here since last Oct. 19. A specialist in the air branch of the Army, the fifty-one-year-old General Brooks has seen service in the Philippines, where ten years ago he was in command of Nichols Field. Later he was assigned to the flying school at Randolph Field, Tex., and prior to his appointment here commanded the 2d Bomber Command at Fort George Wright in Washington.

Existence Of 'Tanker Subs', To Refuel U-Boats, Claimed By Nazis

JAN 9 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 8—The Berlin radio quoted the German naval high command last night as announcing for the first time the existence of Nazi "tanker submarines" which it said were able to refuel and repair its U-boat fleet "everywhere in the operations area."

The announcement said that so many of these tanker submarines with their "ingeniously thought-out technical appliances" had been built by Germany that "no naval force can ever build as many land submarine bases."

Report Is "Flashed"

This interesting report was "flashed" by the Berlin radio. A few hours before the same station had "flashed" another announcement—that the Nazi armies were withdrawing in the Caucasus under the weight of massed Soviet tank assaults.

The "flash" technique has been used by the Germans in the past to offset bad news, and the device may have been employed tonight to counteract word of the German retreat on the Russian front and broadcasts of President Roosevelt's address to Congress.

Text Of Announcement

Here is the text of the Berlin announcement:

"The German naval high command announced for the first time the existence of German 'tanker submarines.' These swimming submarine bases which are able to operate under water as well as above are supplying German submarines with fuel everywhere in the operations area. Repairs to submarines also can be made by crews aboard the tanker submarines on the high seas if necessary.

"The German tanker submarines have been built in German shipyards in ever increasing number during 1942, and they were employed in various operations areas in the meantime.

"Berlin emphasized that the swimming submarine bases have been created in such numbers that no naval force can ever build as many land submarine bases. The tanker submarines thus are fully meeting any requirements of a land submarine base, namely to be the supply base for submarines to the fullest extent.

Swimming 'otel

"These tanker submarines are sailing from one fighting submarine to another, from one square on the map to the other, and they are visiting their customers as a 'swimming hotel.'

"A quick connection between the tanker submarine and the fighting submarine can be established even when the sea is rough by means of ingeniously thought-out technical appliances. If an opponent approches both submarines will quickly dive and thus disappear from the surface.

"Each tanker submarine possesses also a tool shop of considerable size with respective machinery for repairs of fighting front boats. There is also a physician aboard who inspects the health of all members of the crews on the submarines visited. The tanker submarine also will bring and take mail for the crew members."

Pacific Victory Road Is Clear: Greenslade

JAN 9 1943

San Francisco, Jan. 8 (AP)—The United States has "weathered the most critical year in all our history," Vice Admiral John W. Greenslade, commander of the western sea frontier, said today.

"Another year will bring us victoriously to the beginning of the end."

In a talk prepared for the Commonwealth Club, the Admiral termed the attack on Pearl Harbor a disaster but a blessing in disguise because it spurred an effort toward total war before irretrievable damage was done, and said that Japan's failure to follow-through with a more deadly wound was a golden opportunity forever gone.

Losses Restored

He said Pearl Harbor losses have been restored to service or replaced. The way to victory in the Pacific lies clearly ahead.

The principles of a unified command, the admiral said, are developing constructively.

He suggested, without recommendation, that "perhaps it will be found wise for this nation to take further steps and even eventually to coordinate the armed services within one department."

Army Tanks Broken Into On Siding in California

Police Seek Snoopers, Army Officers Investigate

JAN 9 1943

OAKLAND, Calif., Jan. 8 (AP).—At least thirty-five large Army tanks in a big shipment on a railroad siding in metropolitan Oakland were tampered with, Army intelligence officers were informed today.

The seals on the conning towers of the hatches had been broken. There was evidence that all of those on which the seals were broken had been entered..

Army officers immediately removed these tanks from the shipment and began testing them to determine the nature of the tampering.

Other tanks in the shipment were also examined to determine whether they had been tampered with. Seals on the others apparently were unbroken.

Residents in the vicinity told police a group of men had been acting suspiciously in the vicinity of the siding. The men disappeared before police cars arrived. State highway patrolmen joined in the search for the gang, but found no trace.

Army guards promptly were stationed around the entire shipment. A separate investigation was launched into the reason why no guards had been stationed on the tanks previously.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents joined Army intelligence officers and state and local police in the investigation.

The tanks had arrived only a relatively short time before the suspicious group of men was noted.

Intelligence officers withheld further details concerning the point of origin of the tanks, their destination and the number in the shipment.

Flynn Resigns As Democratic National Head

Committee Chairman Will Become Minister Plenipotentiary to Australia.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Edward J. Flynn today announced his resignation as chairman of the National Democratic Committee to become ambassador and personal representative of President Roosevelt as minister plenipotentiary to Australia.

The announcement was made at a press conference, at which Flynn also said he had called a meeting of the National Committee for Jan. 18. At that time he said he would formally announce his retirement.

Text of Statement

His statement today follows:

"The President has, today, appointed me his ambassador and personal representative, and will send to the Senate on Monday my nomination as minister plenipotentiary to Australia.

"I have called a meeting of the Democratic National Committee for Monday, Jan. 18, 1943, at 10:30 a. m. at the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C.

"At that meeting I will resign as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

"I have also called a meeting of the executive committee of the Democratic County Committee of Bronx County for tomorrow, Saturday, at 11 a. m., at which time I will resign as chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic County Committee of Bronx County."

Flynn said he understood President Roosevelt would give out the text of the letter in Washington today, in which he said it would be explained that "I have more or less a roving commission in the south Pacific as the President's personal representative and ambassador."

Flynn said he expected to leave for Australia the first week in February.

"I am very happy," he declared. "I think it is a splendid opportunity to do a great deal of work connected with the war."

Asked if his new work meant that he would quit politics, Flynn said: "I am still remaining as a member of the national committee for the state of New York."

Succeeded Farley

Flynn is 51 years old. He succeeded former Postmaster General James A. Farley as national Democratic chairman in August, 1940.

He said he knew nothing as to who his successor would be but declared emphatically:

"I'm saying that the committee will decide that—remember, as Charlie Murphy used to say, 'the convention will decide.'"

There was some chance, Flynn also added, that the committee meeting might be switched to Chicago from Washington Jan. 18 because of the railroad transportation situation, and hotel facilities in the national capital.

UNIFORM FOOD MARGINS SET

OPA Simplifies Markups on Nine Products.

Washington, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—New and uniform retail and wholesale margins on nine food commodities were established today by the OPA in line with its policy of simplifying and standardizing retail food prices. The OPA said that prices of some of the commodities would increase slightly but that others would drop, making little if any difference in the cost of living.

Products covered are coffee, all canned fish, cooking and salad oils, hydrogenated and other shortenings, cornmeal, canned citrus fruits and juices, evaporated and condensed milk, pure maple sirup and pure corn sirup and flour and flour mixes.

The order becomes effective on January 14 except on evaporated and condensed milk, on which the order goes into effect today. The OPA said that the regulation would be followed by broader action on a wide range of products, including meats and staple groceries.

Varying percentages were allowed in the margins for super markets, smaller chain stores and small independents. Each store keeper is to apply the uniform mark-up to his net cost to obtain the dollars and cents retail price.

For example, in fixing the price of coffee, chain stores or independents with an annual volume of $250,000 or more will be allowed 11 per cent above net cost; chain stores with annual volume under $250,000 will be permitted 12 per cent; and independents with less than $250,000 will be allowed 17 per cent.

For the same commodity, Class 1 retail-owned co-operatives will be allowed 5.5 per cent; Class 2, cash and carry, 6.5 per cent; and Class 3, service and delivery, 9 per cent.

Maximum prices will be established on the basis of net cost of the most recent purchase, with the period allowed for recalculation from January 14 to February 10.

FDR Hints Move On Black Markets

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today that there is, of course, a threat of black markets in the United States, adding that we haven't many now and that a reference to them in his message to Congress yesterday was intended to forestall them.

He was asked at a press conference about a lack of applause when he told the legislators that "we do not intend to leave things so lax that loopholes will be left for cheaters, for chiselers, or for the manipulators of the black market."

JAN 9 1943

That provided an opportunity for the President to give a little lesson in construction of speeches. Sometimes several ideas are incorporated in a sentence, and sometimes the sentence ends with a strong note and sometimes with a weak note, he said. In the one in question, he said that the reference to the black market was the weakest note and that the phrases were not written for applause.

Nazi Reply To Roosevelt

JAN 9 1943

New York, Jan. 8 (AP)—Transocean Radio dispatches purporting to give Berlin reaction to President Roosevelt's message to Congress hammered away at four propaganda points today.

Transmissions recorded by the Federal Communications Commission presented these as follows:

"1. That the Roosevelt message was designed to offset 'doubts' of Americans who want to know why the President 'has driven' the United States into the war.

"2. That the production figures cited by the President are 'fantastic.'

"3. That the United States is beset with 'corruption.'

"4. That Anglo-American air attacks on Germany will be answered by 'far more powerful German air attacks on England.'"

This theme apparently was for Allied consumption only.

United States Government monitoring stations reported that the German radio had made no mention of the President's message in its broadcasts to the German people up to 9 A. M. today.

EL MUNDO SAID THAT HIS WORDS CONTAINED A VITAL MESSAGE NOT ONLY FOR "THE COUNTRIES WHO ARE FIGHTING AT THE SIDE OF THE UNITED STATES

30.24-195

IN THIS WAR OF LIBERATION BUT ALSO FOR THE PEOPLES WHO REMAIN OUTSIDE THE CONFLICT." JAN 9 1943

"NEVER BEFORE HAS MR.ROOSEVELT BEEN ABLE TO OFFER US A VISION MORE OPTIMISTIC, MORE BRIGHT OR MORE COMFORTING FOR ALL" THAN IN HIS PICTURE OF THE POST-WAR WORLD, THE NEWSPAPER SAID.

LA PRENSA SAID THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH WAS "A CLEAR OPTIMISTIC AND VALIANT EXPOSITION XXX HEARD AND READ WITH REAL EMOTION IN ALL THE CIVILIZED REGIONS OF THE EARTH."

LA NACION'S WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT DECLARED THAT MR.ROOSEVELT'S ADMONITION CONCERNING CONGRESSIONAL COOPERATION IN THE CONDUCT OF THE WAR AND THE PEACE "INDICATED A BELIEF THAT THE WAR WILL BE WON INSIDE THE TWO-YEAR LIFE OF THE PRESENT CONGRESS OR AT LEAST THAT IT WILL FALL TO THIS CONGRESS TO DRAFT THE BASIS OF FUTURE PEACE."

ROOSEVELT REACTION JAN 9 1943

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JAN 8-(AP)-THE GERMAN AND ITALIAN REACTION TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH TO CONGRESS ADHERED TODAY TO THE OFFICIALLY DESIGNATED LINE--THAT OF UNIVERSAL REFERENCE TO CLAIMS OF CONTINUED SUCCESSFUL SUBMARINE WAR AGAINST THE ALLIED NATIONS--BUT ITALIAN NEWSPAPERS WENT A STEP FURTHER TO EXPRESS CONCERN FOR PUNISHMENTS THAT AN AXIS DEFEAT COULD BRING.

BERN-1ST ADD ROOSEVELT REACTION XXX DEFEAT COULD BRING.

IL MESSAGERO, OF ROME, ASSERTED THAT AN ALLIED VICTORY WOULD RESULT IN THE "ETERNAL SLAVERY" OF ITALY, GERMANY AND JAPAN AND THEIR COMPLETE DISARMAMENT.

IL GIORNALE D'ITALIA, ALSO OF ROME, NOTED ONLY THAT THE WAR STILL WOULD BE "LONG, COMPLICATED AND HARD."

30.24-195

THE COMMENTS OF THE WILHELMSTRASSE AND THE AXIS PRESS WERE NOTABLE IN THEIR LACK OF EXPRESSIONS OF AXIS CONFIDENCE.

ALL FOLLOWED THE SAME KEY OF CRITICISM OF EXPLANATION: JAN 9 1943

THAT MR.ROOSEVELT SPOKE OF THE RUSSIAN WINTER SUCCESSES AND "FORGOT TO MENTION THE GERMAN SUCCESSES DURING THE SUMMER OFFENSIVE;"

THAT HE "AVOIDED GOING INTO THE U-BOAT SITUATION;"

THAT A "LACK OF SHIPPING SPACE WILL INFLUENCE ALLIED PLANS IN THE FUTURE" AND A SIMULTANEOUS ATTACK ON SEVERAL POINTS IN EUROPE IS "IMPOSSIBLE DUE TO THE STRONGLY BUILT GERMAN POSITIONS FROM THE NORTH CAPE TO THE PYRENEES, THE FRENCH MEDITERRANEAN COAST, AND THE OCCUPATION OF THE BALKAN AREA BY AXIS FORCES."

NIGHT LEAD COMMENT

NEW YORK JAN 8-(AP)-AXIS RADIOS HAMMERED LONG AND HARD TODAY AT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S ADDRESS TO CONGRESS BUT FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION MONITORS SAID THE ENEMY COMMENTATORS CAREFULLY REFRAINED FROM GIVING HOME AUDIENCES THE SPECIFIC WAR PRODUCTION FIGURES CITED BY THE PRESIDENT.

FURTHER, THE FCC REPORTED, THE HOME FOLKS OF AXIS LANDS FAILED TO HEAR A SINGLE DIRECT QUOTATION OF ANY OF THE MAIN POINTS OF THE SPEECH

TOKYO TOOK UP THE AXIS CUDGELS SOMEWHAT BELATEDLY, BUT LEFT LITTLE UNDONE TO ATTACK THE SPEECH.

TOKYO BROADCAST TO THE JAPANESE EMPIRE ABOUT MR.ROOSEVELT'S "ENORMOUS FIGURES" AND THEN DECLARED THAT "THERE IS NOTHING THTAT CAN BE RELIED UPON IN THE FIGURES ANNOUNCED BY THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT."

TOKYO WENT ON TO SAY THAT THE PRESIDENT'S "BOASTING" MESSAGE CAN BE REGARDED AS "WISHFUL THINKING" ON BEHALF OF "DEFEATED AMERICA" AND THAT "HAUGHTINESS AND THREATS" COULD BE FOUND IN THE SPEECH.

THEN IN AN ENGLISH LANGUAGE BROADCAST BEAMED DIRECTLY TO THE UNITED STATES, THE TOKYO ANNOUNCER SAID THAT THE PRESIDENT HAD "FAILED TO GIVE COMPLETE FACTS AND FIGURES" BUT HAD PRESENTED "A PICTURE WITH SHEER OPTIMISM."

JAN 9. 1943

FOR THE NAZI HOME FRONT, THE OFFICIAL GERMAN NEWS AGENCY DNB DISTRIBUTED A REPORT OF A PRESS CONFERENCE HELD IN BERLIN BY DR.PAUL SCHMIDT, FOREIGN OFFICE SPOKESMAN, WHO, DNB SAID, MADE A "STRIKING REFUTATION" OF MR.ROOSEVELT'S "LABORIOUS STATEMENT BRIMFUL OF BLUFFING FIGURES, DELIBERATE MISTAKES, LIES, AND EXAGGERATION."

THE ROMETRADIO ECHOED THE GERMAN REACTION ON THE SPEECH AND IN AN ENGLISH-LANGUAGE BROADCAST TO NORTH AMERICA CALLED IT "NOTHING MORE THAN RHETORIC."

LONDON, JAN 8-(AP)-THE TRIBUNE, MOST LEFTWING OF BRITAIN'S CRITICAL WEEKLIES AND ONE WHICH HAS MOST VIGOROUSLY ESPOUSED SOVIET RUSSIA, ANALYZED IN ITS CURRENT ISSUE TODAY THE RUSSIAN CLAIMS OF MATERIEL CAPTURED IN THE PAST SIX WEEKS AND CONCLUDED THAT "THE RUSSIAN FIGURES MUST BE TAKEN AS AN IMPRESSIONIST RATHER THAN AS THE REALIST FORM OF CONVEYING INFORMATION."

THE TRIBUNE SAID THE RUSSIANS CLAIMED TO HAVE CAPTURED A TOTAL OF 5,800 GERMAN GUNS AND 3,200 TANKS IN THE STALINGRAD, MIDDLE DON AND KOTELNIKOVSKI COUNTEROFFENSIVES AND SAID, "THESE FIGURES ARE EXTRAORDINARILY HIGH BY ANY COMPARISON."

THE PAPER POINTED OUT THAT AT DUNKERQUE THE BRITISH LOST ONLY ABOUT 1,000 GUNS AND IN THE MOSCOW COUNTEROFFENSIVE LAST YEAR THE RUSSIANS CLAIMED THE CAPTURE OR DESTRUCTION OF ONLY 2,700 TANKS AND 4,800 GUNS IN FIVE WEEKS.

"ON THE BASIS OF RUSSIAN FIGURES THE GERMANS HAD, WITH SIX ROUTED PANZER DIVISIONS, AT LEAST 4,000 TANKS," THE PAPER SAID, REFERRING TO THE MOSCOW COUNTEROFFENSIVE.

LONDON, JAN 8-(AP)-REUTERS REPORTED THE LISBON RADIO SAID TONIGHT THAT A STATE OF SIEGE HAD BEEN PROCLAIMED IN BUCHAREST, RUMANIA, FOLLOWING AN UNSUCCESSFUL IRON GUARD PLOT AGAINST THE ANTONESCU GOVERNMENT.

THE WAR TODAY

JAN 9 1943

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

CHUNGKING, JAN.8--WHEN YOU HAVE CLIMBED FROM INDIA INTO CHUNGKING OVER THE ADVENTUROUS AERIAL ROUTE WHICH IS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE JAPANESE-CONTROLLED BURMA ROAD, THEN, AND THEN ONLY, CAN YOU REALIZE HOW TENUOUS IS THE LIFELINE BETWEEN CHINA AND THE OUTSIDEE WORLD.

IT RUNS AS THIN AND DELICATE AS A SPIDER'S THREAD AMONG AND OVER THE GREAT, JAGGED MOUNTAIN PEAKS OF THIS REGION. FOGS ENVELOP IT, ICE CLINGS TO IT AND FIERCE MONSOON WINDS TEAR AT IT UNTIL THE WONDER OF IT IS THAT IT DOESN'T SNAP. AND OFTEN THE MIKADO'S MEN LURK AMONG THE CLOUDS HOPING THEY MAY CATCH SOME WAYFARER UNAWARES.

30.24— 197

LAST WEEK I REPORTED FROM INDIA SOMETHING OF THE GREAT WORK OUR AMERICAN FLIERS ARE DOING IN MAINTAINING THIS LINK BETWEEN CHINA AND HER ALLIES. IT NOT ONLY IS GREAT WORK BUT IT ALSO IS VITAL TO THE CAUSE OF THE UNITED NATIONS. SHOULD THE SPIDER'S WEB BE SEVERED IT WOULD BE A STAGGERING BLOW TO OUR GALLANT ALLIES.

CERTAINLY WE CAN SAY THAT IF THIS ARTERY WERE CUT, CHINA NOT ONLY WOULD SUFFER TERRIBLE MATERIAL LOSSES, BUT IT WOULD BE A CHALLENGE TO PUBLIC MORALE.

DO NOT FORGET THAT CHINA IS ALL BUT ISOLATED AND THIS LIFELINE IS THE TOUCH OF A FRIENDLY HAND IN THE DARK.

JAN 9 1943

MAINTENANCE OF THIS STRATEGIC LINK IS AN ALL-AMERICAN JOB.

YANKEE FIGHTERS PROTECT THE ROUTE FROM PROWLING JAPANESE. YANKEE BOMBERS CONSTANTLY RAID ENEMY AIRFIELDS TO FORCE THE INVADERS FARTHER BACK INTO BURMA, AWAY FROM THE LIFELINE. YANKEE TRANSPORT PLANES REGULARLY WING THEIR WAY INTO CHINA WITH THOSE ESSENTIALS WHICH PROVIDE THE FLINT TO SET OFF THE POWDER.

IT TAKES A STOUT HEART AND A SKILLED HAND TO NEGOTIATE THAT SKYLINE. A GOOD DEAL OF IT RUNS ACROSS SOLID MOUNTAIN RANGES WHERE A FORCED LANDING WOULD MEAN ANYTHING YOU CAN THINK OF THAT'S NASTY.

MUCH OF THE TIME, ESPECIALLY AT THIS SEASON, BILLOWING OCEANS OF SOLID WHITE CLOUDS COVER THE MOUNTAINS WITH AN OCCASIONAL VILLAINOUS PEAK OF ROCK JUTTING UP THROUGH.

THE PILOT MUST CLIMB INTO THE THIN AIR ABOVE THE CLOUDS OR FLY BLIND. AND FLYING BLIND WITH MOUNTAINS OF ROCK ALL AROUND YOU ISN'T PLEASANT.

FINALLY THERE COMES "THE HUMP," OR HIGHEST PART OF THE RANGE, AND OVER THIS PLANES MUST BE LIFTED AT A HEIGHT OF MAYBE 18,000 FEET.

I HAVE BEEN IN SOME ODD PLACES IN VARIOUS PARTS OF THE WORLD, BUT GOING OVER THAT HUMP WITHOUT OXYGEN WAS SOMETHING NEW.

AS YOUR BREATH GETS THIN AND SHORT YOU WONDER WHETHER YOU REALLY HAVE LED THE SORT OF LIFE YOU SHOULD-- IF YOU SEE WHAT I MEAN.

NOT ALL THE EFFORT COMES IN FLYING, THOUGH. THE WARPLANES AND TRANSPORTS MUST BE MAINTAINED AND YOU FIND STILL MORE OF UNCLE SAM'S BOYS SCATTERED ALONG THE ROUTE TO KEEP THE PLANES IN THE AIR. THIS JOB OF MAINTENANCE, OF COURSE, PLAYS A BIG PART IN HOLDING THE ROUTE OPEN.

JAN 9 1943

I ENCOUNTERED ONE GROUP OF ABOUT A DOZEN OF THESE MECHANICS AT A LONELY AIRFIELD AMONG THE MOUNTAINS. WHEN THEY FOUND THAT I WAS AN AMERICAN THEY CROWDED ABOUT ME AS THOUGH I WERE A LONG LOST BROTHER. THEY WERE SO PLEASED AT SEEING SOMEBODY FROM THE STATES THAT THEY WERE LIKE A BUNCH OF KIDS. THEY SHOWED ME PICTURES OF FOLKDS BACK HOME AND BOASTED OF LETTERS LESS THAN A MONTH OLD-- AND BELIEVE ME, A FAST DELIVERY IS SOMETHING FOR THE BOYS IN THIS LONELY PART OF THE BIG WORLD.

SO AMERICAN SKILL AND NERVE KEEP THE LIFELINE OPEN AND THUS PERFORM AN ESSENTIAL OPERATION FOR THE ALLIED CAUSE.

THERE IS JUST ONE FLY IN THE OINTMENT AND THIS IS THAT THE VALUE OF THE SERVICE COULD BE MULTIPLIED IF A FEW MORE TRANSPORT PLANES WERE AVAILABLE.

JAN 9 1943

ONE HUNDRED MORE TRANSPORTS, AS I UNDERSTAND IT, WOULD MAKE A MIGHTY DIFFERENCE TO CHINA'S SUPPLY PROBLEM.

YOU WOULD UNDERSTAND THAT IF YOU COULD BE HERE AND SEE HOW FAR

THESE BRAVE PEOPLE ARE MAKING THEIR SUPPLIES GO. AND, MIND YOU, IT IS ESSENTIALS AND NOT LUXURIES WHICH COME OVER THAT SKYLINE.

HOW MANY ITEMS COULD YOU PACK INTO A SINGLE TRANSPORT PLANE, DO YOU THINK? NOT MANY, AND NOT A HUGE AMOUNT ON 100 TRANSPORTS, AND YET THE VITAL WAR OPERATIONS OF ONE OF THE BIG FOUR OF THE ALLIED NATIONS DEPEND ON MEAGER SUPPLIES WHICH ARE COMING BY AIR.

TO ANYONE ON THE GROUND IT IS OBVIOUS THAT PROVISION OF THESE 100 TRANSPORT PLANES WOULD BE A GRAND INVESTMENT.

JAN 9 1943

THE SUBJECT IS ONE WHICH IS SO IMPORTANT THAT I SHALL RETURN TO IN A SUBSEQUENT DISPATCH.

NOW THE AMBASSADOR REPRESENTED PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IN JAPAN FROM THE BEGINNING OF HIS ADMINISTRATION DOWN TO PEARL HARBOR AND HIS VIEWS ARE NO SECRET TO EITHER THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE OR THE ALLIED HIGH COMMAND. IT CAN SAFELY BE ASSUMED THAT IN THE HIGHEST ALLIED COUNCILS THE LESSON HE POINTS IS FULLY REALIZED AND THE RISKS IN CONCENTRATING FIRST ON HITLER HAVE BEEN WEIGHED AGAINST THE DANGER OF A DISPERSAL OF FORCES AND ADJUDGED WORTH TAKING.

JAN 9 1943

CHINA'S TRAVAIL, THEREFORE, MAY HAVE TO RUN INTO ITS SEVENTH YEAR OR EVEN LONGER BEFORE A MAJOR CONCENTRATION OF UNITED NATIONS POWER CAN BE BROUGHT TO BEAR DIRECTLY AGAINST THE FORCES ATTEMPTING HER DESTRUCTION. BUT SHE HAS THE SOLEMN PLEDGE OF THE PRESIDENT THAT IT WILL COME. "FROM THIS WAR," HE SAID, "CHINA WILL REALIZE THE SECURITY, THE PROSPERITY AND DIGNITY WHICH JAPAN HAS SOUGHT SO RUTHLESSLY TO DESTROY."

LONDON, SATURDAY, JAN. 9-(AP)-MAJOR WILHELM BACH, THE SENIOR GERMAN OFFICER CAPTURED AT HALFAYA PASS ON THE EGYPT-LIBYA BORDER DURING THE BRITISH OFFENSIVE A YEAR AGO, DIED LAST NOV. 22 "AS A PRISONER OF WAR IN BRITISH HANDS," THE GERMAN RADIO SAID TODAY IN A BROADCAST HEARD BY REUTERS.

MAJOR BACH WAS AMONG 5,500 AXIS TROOPS CAPTURED AT HALFAYA PASS, AND WAS IDENTIFIED AT THE TIME AS A FORMER PASTOR FRIEND OF THE REV.MARTIN NEIMOELLER, NOW IN A GERMAN CONCENTRATION CAMP.

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JAN 8-(AP)-THE GERMAN-CONTROLLED BELGIAN PRESS IS URGING A PURGE "WITHOUT PITY" AGAINST A PERSISTENT ORGANIZED CAMPAIGN OF SABOTAGE AND ATTACKS ON NAZI TROOPS.

THE REXIST JOURNAL PAYS REEL IN AN ISSUE RECEIVED HERE SAID THE PERSISTENCE OF MURDEROUS ATTACKS AGAINST GERMAN SOLDIERS AND BELGIANS WHO COLLABORATE WITH THEM LED ONE TO BELIEVE IN THE "EXISTENCE OF CENTRAL DIRECTION RECEIVING ORDERS AND ASSISTANCE FROM ABROAD."

THE PAPER SAID THE ATTACKS WERE GROUPED IN SERIES, FIRST AGAINST "PIONEERS" OF THE NEW ORDER, SECOND, AGAINST BURGOMASTERS AND PUBLIC OFFICIALS, THIRD, AGAINST MILITARY AND AUXILIARY SERVICES, FOURTH, AGAINST OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS OF THE GERMAN ARMY.

THE JOURNAL DE CHARLEROI SAID "EACH ATTACK AGAINST THE ARMY WILL WITHOUT DOUBT BRING A REACTION SEVERAL TIMES MORE SEVERE."

NEW YORK JAN 8-(AP)-AFTER BEARING UP UNDER A LONG, GRIM RETREAT, THE COMMUNIQUE WRITERS IN MOSCOW CANNOT RESIST HAVING A LITTLE FUN NOW THAT ADOLF HITLER'S FORMERLY INVINCIBLE ARMY IS ON THE RUN AT CRITICAL POINTS ON THE LONG RUSSIAN FRONT.

TONIGHT FOR THE THIRD TIME IN A WEEK THEY DEVOTED A LONG, SATIRICAL SECTION OF AN OTHERWISE REGULAR COMMUNIQUE TO RIBBING THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND AND ITS "ORGAN GRINDERS" IN BERLIN.

THE TENOR OF THE COMMENT WAS THAT THE "ORGAN GRINDERS" ARE PLAYING THE SAME OLD TUNE AS LAST WINTER WHEN THEY TALKED ABOUT STRAIGHTENING THEIR LINE BEFORE MOSCOW. SAID TONIGHT'S SOVIET COMMUNIQUE, AS HEARD FROM THE MOSCOW

JAN 9 1943

RADIO BY THE SOVIET MONITOR IN LONDON AND RELAYED TO NEW YORK:

"THE BERLIN RADIO ON JAN.8 ASTOUNDED GERMAN LISTENERS WITH A NEWS ANNOUNCEMENT: 'IN THE EVENING OF JAN.7 IT BECAME KNOWN IN BERLIN THAT GERMAN TROOPS IN THE EAST CAUCASUS ARE CARRYING OUT A SHORTENING OF THE FRONT LINE ACCORDING TO PLAN BY MEANS OF WITHDRAWING FROM ADVANCED POINTS.'"

DECLARING IT WAS "COMMON KNOWLEDGE" THAT IN THE LAST FEW DAYS RUSSIAN TROOPS HAD ADVANCED BETWEEN 68 AND 88 MILES IN THAT AREA, THE RUSSIANS COMMENTED, "THIS IS AN OLD REFRAIN TO A NEW TUNE."

"EVERYONE REMEMBERS LAST WINTER WHEN THE RED ARMY, HAVING REPULSED THE GERMAN ATTACK AGAINST MOSCOW WENT OVER TO THE OFFENSIVE AND DROVE THE GERMAN TROOPS BACK AND IN SOME PLACES ADVANCED OVER 250 MILES. THEN IT WAS THAT THE HITLERITES FIRST SPOKE OF 'STRAIGHTENING THE FRONT LINE.'"

JAN 9 1943

IT MUST BE, SAID THE COMMUNIQUE, THAT THE GERMANS "REALLY AND TRULY ARE FINDING THEMSELVES IN A TIGHT CORNER."

GUADALCANAL DIARY
BY JOHN COLEMAN

JAN 9 1943

NEW YORK--AP--BATTLE-WORN GUADALCANAL, A SPECK OF AN ISLAND ON MOST MAPS, PROVIDES A DAILY DIARY OF HOW DECISIVE AIRPOWER CAN BE IN TODAY'S GLOBAL WAR.

PLANES--TORPEDO PLANES, DIVE-BOMBING PLANES, TRIM FIGHTING SHIPS AND GIANT FLYING FORTRESSES--MADE POSSIBLE THE SURPRISE CAPTURE OF GUADALCANAL AUG.7. SINCE THEN THEIR PILOTS HAVE BEEN GETTING PERHAPS THE MOST RIGOROUS WORKOUT OF ANY AIRFORCE GROUP IN ATTACKING, REPULSING AND SCOUTING THE ENEMY JAPANESE.

DEATH RIDES EVERY WING OVER THE TINY ISLAND, ONLY ABOUT A 100 MILES LONG AND 30 MILES WIDE BUT HUGE IN SIGNIFICANCE FOR THE PROTECTION OF UNITED NATIONS LIFELINES FROM CANADA AND UNITED STATES TO AUSTRALIA IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC. FOR JAPAN IT WAS EQUALLY STRATEGIC. IT WOULD HAVE GIVEN HER AN AERIAL OUTPOST FROM WHICH HEW BOMBERS COULD HAVE RENDERED CRIPPLING BLOWS AGAINST ALLIED SUPPLY SHIPS.

UNITED STATES FORCES MOVED INTO GUADALCANAL AUG.7 SEIZING A JUST COMPLETED AIRPORT WHICH MARINE FORCES NAMED HENDERSON FIELD. HENDERSON FIELD HAS BEEN ALTERNATELY THE SPEARHEAD AND TARGET OF GUADALCANAL WARFARE. THE SPRINGBOARD TO GLORY FOR SCORES OF PILOTS--THE STEPPING OFF PLACE FOR OTHERS.

IN THE WORDS OF VICE-ADMIRAL WILLIAM F.HALSEY, JR. THE WAR IN THE PACIFIC CAN BE WON ONLY IF UNITED STATES ARMED FORCES: "KILL JAPS. KILL JAPS. KILL JAPS. SINK SHIP. SINK SHIPS. AND SINK MORE SHIPS!"

THAT'S WHAT MARINE, ARMY AND NAVY FLIERS WHO OPERATE FROM GUADALCANAL ARE DOING.

AN HISTORIC DIARY OF THEIR STRUGGLES IS GLEANED FROM THESE

1943

30.24-201

30.24—201

EXCERPTS FROM 8 OFFCIAL NAVY DEPARTMENT COMMUNIQUES:

AUG.7--OUR SURPRISE INVASION WAS MADE POSSIBLE BY CARRIER-BASED AIRCRAFT WHICHDIVE-BOMBED SHORE INSTALLATIONS AND DESTROYED 18 ENEMY SEAPLANES BEFORE THEYCOULD GET INTO ACTION.

AUG.8--FORTY OR MORE ENEMY TORPEDO PLANES ATTACKED OUR SHIPS IN THE HARBOR. OUR FIGHTER PLANES AGAIN DROVE THEM OFF AND DURING THE FIRST TWO DAYS WE DESTR YED 47 JAPANESE PLANES.

AUG.23--OUR FIGHTERS INTERCEPTED A STRONG ATTACK AND SHOT DOWN 21 OF THE ENEMY . WE LOST THREE PLANES.

AUG.25--OUR FIGHTER AIRCRAFT AGAIN SCORED AN OUTSTANDING SUCCESS. SIXTEEN ENEMY TWO-MOTORED BOMBERS ESCORTED BY 12 ZERO FIGHTERS CAME OVER. OUR FIGHTERS MET THIS FORCE IN THRILLING DOGFIGHTS,SHOOTING DOWN SEVEN JAP BOMBERS AND FIVE ZEROS. WE LOST ONE FIGHTER.

(THE JAPANESE FOUGHT DESPERATELY. THEIR AIR ATTACK WAS PART OF A COORDINATED AIR*SEA ACTION TO DRIVE THE UNITED STATES FORCES FROM ITS TOE*HOLD ON THE MOUNTAINOUS,JUNGLE-RIDDEN ISLAND WHICH FORMS PART OF THE SOLOMONS GROUP IN THE PACIFIC.)

AUG.27--AIRCRAFT PATROLS SIGHTED A JAPANESE DESTROYER GROUP BRINGING SUPPLIES TOISOLATED ENEMY PATROLS HIDING IN THE JUNDLE VILLAGES. DOUGLAS DIVE BOMBERS SANK ONE DESTOYER; PERHAPS A SECOND.

SEPT.#3 --ENEMY TROOPS TRIED LAND REINFORCEMENTS 65 MILES NORTH WEST OF HENDERSON FIELD. GRUMMAN FIGHTERS AND DOUGLAS DAUNTLESS DIVE BOMBERS STRAFED LANDING PARTY BARGES,CAUSING HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE.

SEPT.5--AIR PATROL SIGHTED ANOTHER LANDING PARTY ON THE WESTERN TIP OF GUADALCANAL. CURTIS ARMY PURSUIT SHIPS SANK THREE LANDING BOATS,D MAGED OTHERS AND KILLED ENEMY TROOPS IN BOATS. TWENTY SIX JAP BOMBERS ACCOMPANIED BY 20 ZEROS INFLICTED MINOR DAMAGE ON OUR GUADALCANAL POSITIONS. OUR FIGHTERS SHOT DWN TWO BOMBERS AND ONE FIGHTER. A NAVY PATROL PLANE SHOT DOWN A LARGE-FOUR-ENGINED JAP FLYING BOAT.

SEPT.13--

JAN 9 1943

SEPT 13--FIFTY-SIX BOMBERS IN TWO FLIGHTS ESCORTED BY ZERO G FIGHTERS ATTACKED HENDERSON FIELD. NAVY AND MARINE CORPS GRUMMAN FIGHTER PILOT SHOT DOWN FOUR BOMBERS AND FOUR ZEROS.

(THROUGH MOST OF SEPTEMBER,UNITED STATES FLYERS ROAMED OVER THE SOLOMONS GROUP TRYING TO SMASH JAPANESE ATTEMPTS TO ESTABLISH NEW INSTALLATIONS. ENEMY WARSHIPS AND SUPPLY VESSELS WERE POUNDED HARD BY TORPEDO PLANES AND DIVE BOMBERS.)

SEPT--28--AGAIN 25 ENEMY BOMBERSAND 18 ZEROS CAME OVER HENDERSON FIELD. OUR FIGHTERS INTERCEPTED AND SHOT DOWN 23 BOMBERS AND ONE ZERO.

(ZEROS CAME OVER FIRST AND TRIED TOENGAGE UNITED STATES FIGHERS, BUT THE AMN PILOTS FLEW ABOVE THE ZERSO WHEN POSSIBLE AND POUNCED ON THE BOMBERS AS THEY FLEW IN.)

OCT 13--TWICE HENDERSON FIELD WASBOMBED. THREE ENEMY PLANES SHOT DOWN AND ONE U.S FIGHTER LOST. ENEMY BOMBERS FAILED TO DMAGE SHIPS BRINGING REINFORCEMENTS TO U.S.MARINES.

OCT 13--TWO MORE HARD ATTACKS MADE ON HENDERSON FIELD. OUR FIGHTERS IN THEIR FIRST MISS FAILED TO INTERCEPT THE FIRST GROUP OF BOMBERS. WHEN THE SECOND GROUP CAME OVER WE KNOCKED DOWN NINE OF 15 BOMBERS AND GOT FOUR ZEROS. WE LOST ONE FIGHTER.

(THE INTENSIVE JAPANESE FORAY AGAINST HENDERSON FIELD WAS DESIGNED TO CRIPPLE THE UNITED STATES' STRONG AERIAL ARM AND KEEP IT FROM INTERFERRING WITHANOTHER ENEMY ATTEMPT TO RECAPTURE GUADALCANAL. THE JAPANESE FAILED.)

OCT 17--IN ANEARLY MORNING RAID,14 ENEMY BOMBERS ESCORTED BY 8 ZEROS WINGED OVER HENDERSON. OUR FIGHTERS AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERIES DESTROYED ALL THE BOMBERS AND TWO FIGHTERS. IN THE AFTERNOON CAME 15 MORE BOMBERS. WE GOT ONE AND LOST ONE PLANE.

OCT 19--AGAIN THE ENEMY CONTINUED TO TRY TO SUPPORT A LANDING WITH ATTACKS ON OUR AIRDROME. ZEROS AND GRUMMAN WILDCATS BATTLED. TWO ZEROS WERE SHOT DOWN AND WE LOST ONE WILDCAT. DOUGLAS DIVE BOMBERS DAMAGED A DESTROYER AND AN ESORT SEAPLANE. NAVAL AIRCRAFT TONIGHT GOT AT LEAST ONE HIT ON A CRUSIER.

OCT 25--THIS WAS THE GREATEST DAY OF ACTIONSINCE THE INVASION AUG 7. WHILE THE JAPANESE TRIED TO COME IN FROM THE SEA,THEIR TROOPS,WHICH HAD HIDDEN IN THE JUNGLES,ATTACKED FROM THE LAND SIDE. DOUGLAS DIVE BOMBERS ATTACKED ENEMY CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS NORTH OF FLORIDA ISLAND. ONE CRUISER DAMAGED. SIXTEEN ENEMY DIVE BOMBERS THEN ATTACKED HENDERSON FIELD. FIVE WERE SHOT DOWN. NINE MORE ATTACKED IN THE AFTERNOON CAUSING SOME DAMAGE. OUR DIVE BOMBERS AGAIN STRUCK AT THE FORCE OF CRUISER S AND AND DESTROYERS. ONE CRUISER REPORTED HIT. FLYING FORTRESSES SMASHED THE SAME FORCE TEN MINUTES LATER AND GOT TWO HITS. ENEMY FIGHTERS WERE ACTIVE OVER OUR POSITIONS ALL DAY AND 17 WERE SHOT DOWN.

IN ALL,WE CAUSED CONSIDERABLE JAPANESE WARSHIP DAMAGE,SHOT DOWN 100 ENEMY PLANES AND POSSIBLE 50 MORE.

(THAT TERRIFIC AERIAL FIGHT OVERSHADOWED EVERTHING ELSE FOR DAYS BUT UNITED STATES BOMBERS CONTINUED TO BLAST ENEMY POSITIONS IN NEARBY ISLANDS AND STRAFE THE LAND FORCES STILL ACTIVE IN THEHOT JUNGLE SECTIONS.)

NOV 11--THERE WAS NO ARMISTICE DAY IN THIS WAR SECTOR. FIFTY-[redacted] TWO ENEMY PLANES CAME OVER IN TWO GROUPS. WE SHOT DOWN 17 AND DAMAGED FIVE,LOSING SEVEN OFOUR OWN FIGHTERS.

NOV 12--IT WAS ALMOST A PERFECT SCORE TODAY. THIRTY ONE ENEMY BOMBERS AND ZEROS CAME OVER. THEY WERE INTERCEPTED BY 28 GRUMMAN WILDCATS WHOSE PILOTS SHOT DOWN 21. OUT ANTI AIRCRAFT FIRE GOT NINE OTHER JAPANESE PLANES. ONLY ONE ESAPED.

THAT APPARENTLY TOOK ALL THE HEART OUT OF THE JAPANESE AIR COMMAND. IT WAS THE LAST LARGE-SCALE RAID ON HENDERSON FIELD FOR THE REST OF THE YEAR. U.S MARINE,ARMY AND NAVY PLANES REIGNING SUPREME OVER THE GUADAL-

CSNAL

JAN 9 1943

CANAL AREA, CONTINUED TO STRAFE ENEMY TROOPS AND BOMB INSTALLATIONS AT SURROUNDING POINTS.

THE JAPANESE,APPARENTLY GIVING UP TRYING TO RETAKE HENDERSON FIELD,STARTED TO BUILD AN NEW AIRDROME AT MUNDA ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND. IT BECAME AN IMPORTANT TARGET OF U.S BOMBERS.

THROUGHOUT THE DAYS OF TERRIFIC AIR BATTLES OVER HENDERSON FILD NERVY AMERICAN PILOTS STAGED A THRILLING SHOW OF AEROBATICS

OUTMANEUVERING THE JAPANESE.

AND WHAT KIND OF FELLOWS ARE THESE MEN WHO RISKED THEIR LIVES TO GUARD THIS VITAL SPEARHEAD OF THE FIRST AMERICAN OFFENSIVE IN THE PACIFIC? LET ADMIRAL HALSEY DESCRIBE THEM:

"THEY'RE THE MOST SUPERB GANG OF MEN I EVER DREAMED OF. I KNEW THEYWERE GOOD,BUT THEY WERE DAMNED GOOD IT SURPRISED EVEN ME. OF THE ARMY,NAVY AND MARINE CORPS FLYERS HERE ON GUADALCANAL THE ONLY COMPARISON IS IN THE NERVE OF THE INDIVIDUAL."

ADMIRAL HALSEY MADE THE ASSERTION ON A VISIT TO HENDERSON FIELD NOV 9.

HEROES WERE ADIME A DOZEN,BUT THE ACE OF EARLY GUADALCANAL FIGHTING WAS CAPT.JOSEHH FOSS,22, OF SIOUX FALLS,S.D.WHO BAGGED 23 ENEMY PLANES IN SIX WEEKS.

AND THE FORCES OF GUADALCANAL FIGHT ON.

BRIG.GEN.ALBERT WALTON KENNER,OF WASHN.DC. AN ARMY SURGEON, IS COOL_HEADED,NERVY AND QUICK_THINKING. HE JOINED SOME OTHER OFFCRS IN A WILD BOAR HUNT IN THE ATLAS MTS,ARRANGED BY FRENCH AND NATIVE OFFCLS, AND KNOCKED OVER THREE BOARS WITH HIS RATION OF SIX SHOTGUN SHELLS.

HE DID IT BY WAITING UNTIL THE BEASTS WERE ONLY A FEW YARDS AWAY BEFORE HE FIRED. THE LAST BOAR,A150-POUNDER,WAS ONLY FIVE XXX YARDS AWAY. THE BOAR WENT DOWN,STRUGGLED TO ITS FEET AND CONTINUED THE CHARGE. THE GENERAL'S GUN WAS EMPTY;THERE WAS NO TIME TO REACH FOR HIS PISTOL. AS AGILELY AS TARZAN THE GENERAL LEAPED FOR AN OVERHANGING BOUGH. THE BOAR DASHED FEROCIOUSLY UNDER HIM,STAGGERED ON FOR 40 YDS AND FELL OVER DAD.

IT'S ALWAYS A SOLEMN OCCASION WHEN A PILOT MAKES HIS FIRST NIGHT TAKEOFF AT THE CONTROLS OF A TYPE OF BOMBER NEW TO HIM. THUS,CAPT.JOHN T.PASSAGE,24,(515 CHURCH STREET) CHARLOTTE,N.C. A VETERAN FLIER,HAD PLENTY ON HIS MIND WHEN HE ARRVD AT AN AFRICAN PORT TO FLY A CRAFT COMPARATIVELY STRANGE TO HIM.

TO MAKE MATTERS MORE WORRISOME HE LEARNED THAT HIS PASSENGERS WOULD INCLUDE TWO MAJOR GENERALS,A BRIGADIER GENERAL AND SEVERAL COLONELS.

"I WAS WORRIED FOR A MINUTE," HE TOLD ME. "BUT THEN I THOUGHT TAT THEIR NECKS DIDN'T MEAN ANY MORE TO THEM THAN MINE DID TO ME. WE GOT UP OK."

THE ALI BABA HOTEL WAS THE STRANGEST IN ALL AFRICA,AND ITS FOUR PROPRIETORS WERE THE FRIENDS OF ALL WAYFARING MEN.

THEY WERE QUARTERED AT AN AIR TRANSPORT COMMAND STATION AT THE MOST DESOLATE AIRPORT IN THIS DARK CONTINENT. THEIR BILLET ORIGINALLY WAS A BARE AND FRIGID AND ALTOGETHER WRETCHED SCHACK. A MORASS OF MUD SEPARATED IT FROM THE RUNWAY WHERE THE AMN PLANES TOOK OFF.

WHEN IT RAINED, THE MUD IN FRONT OF THE ALI BABA HOTEL BECAME A BOTTOMLESS GRAY SLIMY PIT KNOWN AS LAKE PLACID. IN THE MEMORY OF THE AFRICAN CAMPAIGN NO MAN HAD KNOWN THAT LAKE TO DRY UP. ITS MUD BECAME FAMOUS. PERSONS A THOUSAND MILES AWAY WOULD LOOK AT A PERFECT STRANGER AND SAY: "I SEE YOU'VE BEEN THROUGH BLANK AIRPORT."

THE CHIEF OWNER OF THE ALI BABA WAS MAJOR ED COATES,A VETERAN COMMERCIAL AIRLINES PILOT AND AIR TRANSPORT COMMAND OFFICER FROM MT. LAKE,FORT WORTH,TEX. HIS ACCOMPLICES WERE LT. BILL SMITH,OF SANDS POINT,L.I.;XX.LIEUT.HENRY L.BROWN,OF EL PASO,TEXAS AND SGT.MILTON R. ROSENBERG,OF (86 FIRST STREET) ALBANY,N.Y.

TOGETHER THEY HAD BUILT A STOVE FR M A DISCARDED OIL TANK, BROUGHT HALFWAY ACROSS AFRICA. THEY BEGGED AND BULLIED UNTIL THEY GOT BLANKETS FOR THE BACK ROOM. THEY MADE IT A CHEERY PLACE WHICH CORPORALS AND COLONELS,TRANSPORT PILOTS AND CIVILIANS FOUND TO BEA FRIENDLY OASIS.

THE HOTEL REMAINS,BUT THE MEN WHO MADE IT ARE SCATTERED.....

IT WAS HER FIST DAY AT SEA. SHE WAS A WAAC AND HER DRAWL WAS AS SOFT AS BUTTER UNDER HER NATIVE MISSISSIPPI SUN. SHE SAW THE BRITISH NAVAL OFFICER STANDING ALONE ON THE BRIDGE....SHE SHOUGHT SHE OUGHT TO BE FRIENDLY XXXX BECAUSE THY WERE ALLIES. BESIDES HE WAS VERY HANDSOME. SHE SPOKE TO HIM AND HE SAID "UMMM." SHE THOUGHT HIM QUITE FRIENDLY A AND CHATTERED FOR HALF AN HOUR WHILE HE SAID "UMMM" AND AGAIN "UMMN."

SHE THOUGHT THEN SHE COULD BE A BIT MORE CHUMMY.

"YOU KNOW," SHE SAID, "BEFORE I SAILED SOME OFMY FRIENDS SAID I WOULD BE DISAPPOINTED IN ENGLAND BECAUSE YOU ALL AND WE SPEAK A DIFFERENT LANGUAGE. MY,DON'T YOU THINK THEY WERE SILLY?"

THE BRITISH OFFICER TURNED FR M HIS STUDY OF THE HORIZON AND LOOKD AT HER.

JAN 9 1943

"WHAT WAS IT YOU ASKED?" HE SAID. "YOU KNOW I'M FRIGHTFULLY SORRY BUT I HAVEN'T UNDERSTOOD A SINGLE WORD OF WHAT YOU'VE BEEN SAYING."

SECOND LIEUT.IVOR P.EVANS, 19, OF ALIQUIPPA, PA., HAD A BROKEN FINGER AND SOME BRUISES AS HIS ONLY INJURIES WHEN THE BOMBER, FROM THE GREENVILLE, S.C., BASE, PLUNGED INTO A CYPRESS SWAMP NEAR HERE TUESDAY NIGHT.

"I DON'T KNOW WHAT HAPPENED," HE SAID FROM HIS BED IN DALE MABRY FIELD HOSPITAL.

"THE PLANE CRASHED INTO THE TREES, THE LIGHTS WENT OUT, AND I CAME OUT THROUGH A DOOR. WE WERE ADJUSTING PARACHUTE STRAPS WHEN IT HIT.

"IT WAS DARK OUT THERE, AND THE WATER WAS WAIST-DEEP. I DIDN'T KNOW IF IT WAS DEEPER SOMEWHERE ELSE. I CALLED FOR THE OTHER FELLOWS, BUT I COULDN'T SEE ANY OF THEM. JAN 9 1943

"I GOT TO A WHEEL. IT WAS SORT OF WARM FOR A WHILE, BUT THEN IT GOT COLD. I TOOK OFF ONE JACKET AND PUT IT ON THE WHEEL SO I COULD SIT ON THE JACKET. I JUST WAITED THEN. I WANTED SOME WARM BLANKETS AND COFFEE--AND DAYLIGHT--MORE THAN ANYTHING ELSE.

"I'M LUCKY, I GUESS. YES, I WANT TO GO BACK TO FLYING."

IT WAS AT 12:06 A.M. WHEN THE PLANE, JUST GETTING OFF CRASHED ABOUT TWO MILES FROM DALE MABRY FIELD, APPARENTLY KILLING ALL ABOARD EXCEPT EVANS. FIVE BODIES HAVE BEEN RECOVERED FROM THE SWAMP, AND THE PILOT, SECOND LIEUT.WILLIAM M.PUTMAN, 22, OF HOUSTON, TEX., IS MISSING.

EVANS WAS IN THE TAIL SECTION OF THE BIG PLANE WHEN IT CRASHED.

WHEN DAYLIGHT CAME, EVANS GOT OUT OF THE SWAMP AND WALKED THROUGH WOODS TO THE NEARBY ARMY BASE.

"SOME MEN WERE WORKING AT THE EDGE OF THE FIELD, AND ONE OF THEM BROUGHT ME IN," HE SAID.

FIVE BODIES RECOVERED WEDNESDAY WERE IDENTIFIED AS:

NEW YORK, JAN. 8-(AP)-AMERICAN SUBMARINES ARE TAKING HEAVY TOLL OF ENEMY SHIPPING IN THE WAR, THE NAVY ANNOUNCED TODAY, BUT THE TOTAL OF SHIPS DESTROYED IS UNDOUBTEDLY MUCH LARGER THAN HAS BEEN REVEALED.

THE PUBLICLY ANNOUNCED FIGURES WERE GIVEN AS 150 JAPANESE SHIPS LISTED BY THE NAVY AS HIT, WITH 70 PER CENT SUNK AND THE BALANCE SUNK OR DAMAGED.

JAN 9 1943

AGAINST THAT RECORD, ONLY FIVE U.S SUBMARINES HAVE BEEN REPORTED LOST, THE NAVY SAID. THE SEA LION WAS DESTROYED AT CAVITE NAVY YARD IN THE PHILIPPINES, THE OLD S-26 LOST IN A COLLISION OFF PANAMA, AND THE SHARK, PERCH AND GRUNION WERE LISTED AS "OVERDUE AND PRESUMABLY LOST."

THE NAVY QUOTED A BARE DEPARTMENT COMMUNIQUE: "UNITED STATES SUBMARINES HAVE REPORTED THE FOLLOWING RESULTS OF OPERATIONS AGAINST THE ENEMY IN FAR EASTERN WATERS--A DESTROYER SUNK"

THEN THIS STORY OF THE OPERATION WAS TOLD:

"ON THE BRIDGE OF A UNITED STATES SUBMARINE A FEW WEEKS BEFORE THIS COMMUNIQUE CAME FROM THE NAVY DEPARTMENT'S PRESS SECTION, THE OFFICER OF THE DECK CHATTED WITH ONE OF HIS LOOKOUTS.

"KELLY, WHAT DO YOU MAKE OF IT," HE ASKED.

"LOOKS LIKE THE TOPWORKS OF A DESTROYER, SIR."

"I CAN'T SEE IT, BUT I'LL TAKE YOUR WORD FOR IT. HOW YOU CAN SEE A 'CAN' TONIGHT IS BEYOND ME."

"KELLY'S LAST NAME WAS ANASTASIA. HIS OTHER NICKNAME WAS "CAT'S EYES." THOUGH HIS VISION IN THE DAYTIME WAS SOMEWHAT ON THE MYOPIC SIDE, AT NIGHT THIS LITTLE LOOKOUT WAS WITHOUT AN EQUAL.

THE ZIGZAGGING JAP DESTROYER HEADED ON IN THE DIRECTION OF THE PATROLLING U.S. SUBMARINE, WHICH DIVED AND WATCHED THE ENEMY VESSEL.

"LOOKS LIKE A SETUP," SAID THE SKIPPER. "SHE'LL NEVER KNOW WHAT HIT HER."

JAN 9 1943

THE CAPTAIN JOCKEYED THE CRAFT INTO POSITION. "FIRE ONE," HE SAID. AN ALMOST IMPERCEPTIBLE JAR GENTLY ROCKED THE SUBMARINE AS THE OILY TORPEDO SHOT FROM THE TUBE.

A170 (NYC OUT)

"SET 'EM UP IN THE OTHER ALLEY," DIRECTED THE CAPTAIN. ANOTHER "TIN FISH" WAS READY.

"FIRE TWO." A PAIR OF TREMENDOUS EXPLOSIONS LIFTED THE JAP WARSHIP, RIPPED HER HULL AND SENT HER DOWN IN THE MOONLIGHT. THE CAPTAIN WAS RIGHT. THE JAP HAD NEVER KNOWN WHAT HIT HER.

ABOARD THE SUBMARINE--LIEUT.COM.THEODORE C.AYLWARD, U.S.N., COMMANDING--THERE WAS JUBILATION, BACK SLAPPING, HOOTING, YELLING AND CHEERING. THIS SINKING, IT WAS LEARNED LATER, MEANT A NAVY CROSS FOR THE SKIPPER, A SOFT-SPOKEN, BROWN-HAIRED, LANKY KENTUCKIAN FROM

30.24-205

FT.THOMAS. IT ALSO MEANT PROMOTIONS FOR FOUR OF THE CREW AND A LINE IN THE DEPARTMENT'S COMMUNIQUE.

JAN 9 1943 EJ1257PEW

A182 (NYC OUT)

NEW YORK--FIRST ADD SUBMARINES X X X DEPARTMENT'S COMMUNIQUE.

THE NAVY ALSO TOLD THE FOLLOWING STORY OF ANOTHER SUBMARINE, CAPTAINED BY LIEUT.COMM.WILLIAM H.BROCKMAN AND ASSIGNED TO PATROL A MID-PACIFIC AREA:

IN A WEEK OF MONOTONOUS PATROLLING THE CREW BECAME DISGUSTED OVER THE LACK OF ACTION. ON JUNE 4, THE SUBMARINE DIVED A LITTLE AFTER 4 A.M. LATER, CAPTAIN BROCKMAN INTERCEPTED A MESSAGE SAYING THAT MANY JAP PLANES WERE HEADED TOWARD THE SPOT WHERE HE WAS.

AT ABOUT 8 A.M. THE SUBMARINE SAW MASTS ON THE HORIZON. IN A FEW MINUTES FOUR SHIPS WERE VISIBLE--A JAP BATTLESHIP AND THREE CRUISERS. BUT JAP PLANES ALSO HAD SIGHTED THE SUBMARINE AND WERE SPRAYING LEAD AT ITS PERISCOPE.

JAN 9 1943

THE SUBMARINE KEPT BORING IN. THE BATTLESHIP WAS A SCENE OF FRANTIC ACTIVITY. THE BATTLEWAGON OPENED UP WITH ITS WHOLE BROAD-SIDE BATTERY, SEEKING TO BLAST THE SUBMARINE OUT OF THE SEA.

BUT AS A TORPEDO SPED TOWARD THE HUGE SHIP, THE JAP TURNED STERNMOST TO THE SUBMARINE AND FLED AT FULL SPEED. THE BATTLEWAGON HAD ESCAPED, BUT THE FORMATION WAS BROKEN UP AND THE SUBMARINE WAS SAFE AND READY FOR MORE AS THE BATTLE OF MIDWAY BEGAN.

CAPTAIN BROCKMAN THEN SIGHTED A LARGE JAP VESSEL, APPARENTLY DAMAGED BY OTHER UNITED STATES FORCES. LARGE CLOUDS OF SMOKE WERE ARISING FROM HER, BUT THE FIRE SEEMED UNDER CONTROL AND

30.24-205

JAP CRUISERS WERE ARRANGING A TOW.

"WE DECIDED TO COMPLETE THE DESTRUCTION OF THE VESSEL," CAPTAIN BROCKMAN SAID.

THE SUBMARINE FIRED THREE TORPEDOES AT THE VESSEL AND ALL STRUCK THE TARGET. FLAMES LICKED THE SHIP FROM BOW TO AMIDSHIPS. JAPS WERE GOING OVER THE SIDE AND THE SHIP WAS BEING ABANDONED.

LATER, TERRIFIC BLASTS ROCKED THE SUBMARINE, AND THE CREW SURMISED THAT DESTRUCTION OF THE JAPANESE VESSEL HAD BEEN COMPLETE.

AIRCRAFT TAILORING

(ADVANCE FOR AMS OF SATURDAY,JAN. 9)

JAN 9 1943

(ADVANCE)--WASHINGTON,JAN 8-(AP)-AIRCRAFT "TAILORING SHOPS" ARE READYING AMERICA'S COMBAT PLANES FOR ACTION ON FAR-FLUNG BATTLEFRONTS WITHOUT SLOWING DOWN MASS-PRODUCTION ASSEMBLY LINES.

VKNOWN OFFICIALLY AS "MODIFICATION CENTERS," AND UNTIL RECENTLY A CLOSELY GUARDED MILITARY SECRET, THEY ARE LOCATED ON DIRECT ROUTES BETWEEN AIRCRAFT FACTORIES AND BATTLEFRONT DESTINATIONS. THEY ADD OR SUBTRACT PARTS, OR OTHERWISE CHANGE PLANES TO PREPARE THEM FOR DUTY IN ANY THEATRE FROM THE ARCTIC TO THE DESERT. FOR EXAMPLE, RANGE CAN BE INCREASED, OR BOMB LOADS BUILT UP.

TELLING TODAY OF THE WORK OF THESE CENTERS, THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION SAID THEY WERE OPERATED BY AIRLINES AND AIRCRAFT FACTORIES UNDER SUPERVISION OF THE ARMY AIR FORCES MATERIEL COMMAND, OR DIRECTLY BY THE AIR FORCES AT AIR DEPOTS.

A SPOKESMAN FOR THE AIR FORCES EXPLAINED THEM THIS WAY:

"SUPPOSE YOU MAKE KITCHEN STOVES. YOUR FACTORY IS TOOLED UP FOR ONE MODEL ON A MASS PRODUCTION BASIS AND YOU ARE TURNING OUT A THOUSAND OF THEM. THEN YOUR SALESMEN TELL YOU THAT WE'VE GOT TO ADD ANOTHER GADGET OR YOUR COMPETITORS ARE GOING TO PUT YOU OUT OF BUSINESS. WHICH IS EASIER--RETOOLING YOUR PLANT OR ADDING ANOTHER LITTLE SHOP WHERE THE GADGET CAN BE INSTALLED ON THE MASS-PRODUCTION STOVES BEFORE THEY MEET THE COMPETITION?"

JAN 9 1943

AN EXAMPLE OF THE WORK DONE: A B-26 MEDIUM BOMBER (MARTIN MARAUDER) REFITTED AS A TORPEDO PLANE.

THE CENTERS SERVICE BOTH ARMY AND NAVY PLANES. THE PLANES USED BY BRIG. GEN. "JIMMY" DOOLITTLE IN THE RAID ON TOKYO LAST APRIL WERE EQUIPPED FOR THEIR MISSION AT THE CENTERS. SO WERE THE AMERICAN BOMBERS WHICH RAIDED THE RUMANIAN OIL FIELDS LAST SPRING. MODIFIED FIGHTERS AND BOMBERS BLASTED THE JAPANESE AT MIDWAY.

A209WX

THE BRITISH USED MODIFICATION CENTERS BEFORE THIS COUNTRY DID. IN THE EARLY PART OF THE WAR, SOME AMERICAN-MADE PLANES WERE MODIFIED BEFORE THE RAF USED THEM IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER. OUTMODED AMERICAN PURSUIT PLANES, WHEN ADAPTED FOR DESERT WARFARE, PROVED HIGHLY EFFECTIVE AS STRAFING AND LIGHT BOMBING PLANES.

THE "TAILORING SHOPS" GAVE JAPANESE FLIERS ONE OF THEIR GREATEST SURPRISES. EARLY FLYING FORTRESSES LACKED A TAIL GUN, AND THE JAPS SOON TOOK FULL ADVANTAGE OF IT. A TAIL GUN WAS HURRIEDLY INSTALLED, AND NEARLY 100 ZEROS WERE BROUGHT DOWN BEFORE THEIR PILOTS LEARNED THAT THE BLIND SPOT WAS NO LONGER BLIND.

A NEW $12,000,000 MODIFICATION CENTER IS NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION "SOMEWHERE IN ALABAMA," AN INDICATION OF THE AIR FORCES' CONFIDENCE IN THE SYSTEM.

WITHIN THIS CITY BEHIND POCKMARKED AND BOMB SCARRED BATTLEMENTS AND BEHIND THE 200-FOOT CLIFFS THAT LINE THE GRAND HARBOR, THE CAPITAL IS A PILE OF RUINS.

PEOPLE LIVE IN ANY PORTION OF A BUILDING THAT IS LEFT STANDING. FINDING A PANE OF GLASS WOULD BE AS DIFFICULT AS FINDING A NEEDLE IN A HAYSTACK.

NO BUILDING ON THE ISLAND HAS BEEN SPARED EITHER A DIRECT HIT OR A NEAR MISS WHICH CAUSED DAMAGE. THUS IT SEEMED STRANGE TO HEAR SWING MUSIC COMING FROM WHAT APPEARED TO BE A PILE OF RUBBLE AND THE SCRAMBLED LIMESTONE BLOCKS OF WHICH ALL MALTESE BUILDINGS ARE MADE. I FOUND A TEA DANCE WAS IN PROGRESS.

THE MALTESE GIRLS AND OTHERS OF GREEK, ENGLISH AND ITALIAN ORIGIN WERE DANCING MAINLY WITH SERVICE MEN. THE GIRLS WERE COMPARATIVELY WELL DRESSED AND HAD A FINE APPEARANCE DESPITE THE LACK OF STOCKINGS AND COSMETICS WHICH ARE VIRTUALLY UNOBTAINABLE. THESE DANCES ARE COMPARATIVELY RECENT INNOVATIONS AND NOW EVEN SOME EARLY EVENING AFFAIRS ARE BEING HELD DESPITE THE AWESOME BLACKOUT. THERE IS NOTHING TO EAT OR DRINK, HOWEVER, UNLESS BROUGHT BY THE GUESTS. JAN 9 1943

CONTEMPLATING ONE OF THESE DANCES AND EXPRESSING WONDER, I HAD IT ALL EXPLAINED TO ME BY A LITTLE OLD LADY WHO APPARENTLY WAS OF BRITISH ORIGIN. SHE WAS SHABBY AND VIRTUALLY SHOELESS BUT, THERE WAS A SMILE ON HER WRINKLED LIPS. SPITFIRE PLANES WERE ROARING OVERHEAD IN THIS AREA NEAR THE HARBOR.

"THEM'S WHAT DID IT," SHE INFORMED ME WITHOUT SOLICITATION. "THEM'S WHAT SCARED THE JERRYS AND ITIES AWAY. WE AIN'T HAD A RAID TO AMOUNT TO ANYTHING FORNTWO MONTHS, BUT THERE'S PLENTY OF PEOPLE LIVING IN THEM CAVES. THEIR HOUSES WERE BLOWED UP, YOU KNOW." JAN 9 1943

THEN, POINTING AT THE HARBOR WHERE MERCHANTMEN--ALL OF THEM WITH WHITE CAPPED AMERICAN NAVAL RUNNER CREWS--AND WARSHIPS LAY AT ANCHOR, SHE ADDED, "AND THEM'S GOING TO KEEP US GOING, TOO. SICILY IS ONLY 60 MILES AWAY AND THEY KNOCKED US SMARTLY WHEN WE WERE HELPLESS, BUT, NOT ANYMORE. MAYBE THEY'LL TRY AGAIN, BUT THEY'LL GET WHAT'S COMING TO THEM."

APS8

JUST THEN AN AIR RAID SIREN SOUNDED. NOTICING MY INCLINATION TO SEEK SHELTER, A MALTESE AIRMAN SAID CALMLY, "DON'T WORRY ABOUT THAT, SIR. IT'S ONLY THE MORNING RECONNAISANCE PLANE. WE DON'T PAY ANY ATTENTION TO IT. HE COMES OVER FOR A LOOK AND, BELIEVE ME, HE MUST FEEL SICK AT WHAT HE SEES THESE DAYS."

A WORKER THEN EXPLAINED--AND I LATER SAW--THE GREAT UNDERGROUND AIRCRAFT SYSTEM OF MALTA. FAR BENEATH THE ROCKY SURFACE IN BOMB PROOF CAVES, THE AIRCRAFT PLOTTERS--MANY OF THEM FORMER SHOW GIRLS WHO REFUSED TO LEAVE THE ISLAND WHEN THEIR THEATERS AND CABARETS CLOSED---PLOT THE MOVEMENTS OF AIRCRAFT AND CAN TELL TO AN INCH

Reds Gain on Don Front, Sweep Aside 100 Tanks; Americans Blast Bizerte

SOVIET ADVANCE ADDS TO PERIL OF NAZI-HELD CENTER

Drive from North Nears Junction of Don, Donets Rivers.

ENEMY ATTACK HALTED

Smash with 100 Tanks, Large Infantry Force Brushed Aside by Reds.

MANY TOWNS FREED

Russian Forces Sweep Around Georgievsk in North Caucasus.

MOSCOW, Sunday, Jan. 10. —(AP) A Red army column driving west on a wide front between Stalingrad's western railroad and the lower Don early today was reported within 15 miles of the lower Donets river, creating a new threat of outflanking Rostov from the north.

The midnight communique of the Soviet Information bureau announced the capture of Bogoyavlenskaya, eight miles northwest of Nikolaevskaya and 19 miles west of Marinsk, with Soviet troops approaching the lower Donets just north of its junction with Don.

Open to Direct Attack

A crossing of the Donets at that point would expose Rostov, supply bastion for hundreds of thousands of German troops in the Caucasus, to a direct attack down the west bank of the Don. It would put the Red army little more than 50 miles from Rostov.

The hardest fighting was going on in the lower Don region, where the Germans hung on tenaciously and counter-attacked on one sector with more than 100 tanks and a large force of infantry.

The communique announced that these were beaten and forced to retreat anew, with the loss of many tanks and men, while the Russians took two more points.

The offensive against Rostov and the arterial route of supply for hundreds of thousands of German troops appeared to be progressing steadily. There were no spectacular dashes at the present stage but instead a methodical occupation of territory and a relentless grinding down of German manpower and materiel.

Occupy Series of Towns

Along a line north of Bogoyav-

30.24-209

lenskaya to Tatsinskaya, the Russians have occupied a series of towns. Among them were Saveliev, Dermilev, Novo-Rossoshansky, which is just south of Russian-held Tatsinskaya, and Kriukovsky which is 15 miles north of Bogoyavlenskaya and the westernmost point on the line.

Mopping up behind the front line, the Russians said that the Red army had taken Kovilkin on the railroad west from Stalingrad and about midway between Valkovo and Tatsinskaya. Kovilkin was about the last important station left to the Germans in this sector.

On the other main railway southwest from Stalingrad six settlements were reported taken in the Zimovniki region.

This southern wing of a drive along an 80-mile front on Rostov already has reached to within about 65 miles of that objective.

In the Caucasus, too, the Russians broadened their front along the Rostov-Baku railway.

Georgievsk Outflanked

The north Caucasus city of Georgievsk was outflanked by a rapid advance of the Red army to the north.

The Russians said they captured Soldetsko-Aleksandrovskoe, 15 miles northwest of Georgievsk, and Yetoka, three miles southeast of Georgievsk. These towns are on two railroads forming a junction at Georgievsk and then running west to Mineralyne Vody.

Koltnonovskaya, eleven miles northeast of Georgievsk, also fell before the Red army offensive.

The nearby Caucasian city of Pyatigorsk also was menaced by the Red army capture of Zalskoe, 13 miles southeast of Pyatigorsk.

In all, the Russians announced that 22 more towns and villages have been reclaimed in the latest fighting.

The rush of the Red army astride the Don swept aside more than 100 tanks which the Germans threw into a desperate counterattack, the communique said.

Enemy Tank Force Smashed

In a violent engagement, the large enemy tank force and its support-treat and abandon dozens of cripptreat an dabandon dozens of crippled tanks, a large number of killed and wounded, the announcement added.

The Russians then went on to capture two of the villages listed in the communique.

Northwest of Stalingrad, heavy fighting was still going on despite the disadvantageous position of the remnants of the 22 German divisions reported encircled in the Stalingrad area.

The Russians said a large group of the enemy supported by tanks mounted an attack but were repulsed. When the Russians pursued them they captured 51 trenches, killed 280 officers and men and disabled three of the tanks.

On the central front the Germans also counter-attacked both to the southwest and to the northwest of Velikie Luki, 80 miles east of the Latvian border, the communique said. All the German assaults were reported turned back, however, at a cost of more than 200 dead and two burned out tanks.

32 Nazi Tanks Captured

The fighting in the Caucasus was described as especially violent about one populated place where 32 German tanks were captured, along with many dumps of material.

Hundreds of the enemy were killed, the commuique said, and 160 trucks and over 10 motorcycles destroyed.

Flanking forces of Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin and Col.-Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko moved forward along railways west and southwest of Stalingrad, mopping up the intervening region between Valkovo and Zimovniki in support of Col. Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky's troops in the lower Don valley.

Prepare For Fresh Assault

The advance guard beyond Strakhov, 65 miles east of Rostov, appeared to be marking time in the Sal river valley while positions behind were consolidated for a fresh assault.

The Soviet advance in the north Caucasus was reported proceeding rapidly despite rains, poor roads and a profusion of German mines strewn to slow the drive.

The Caucasus provinces of North Osetia and Kabardino-Balkaria between Ordzhonikidze and Piatigorsk were declared liberated and the battle was reported approaching the Stavropol district to the north.

Germans Press Battle

An important battle appears to be developing on the central front beyond Moscow where the Germans were trying to crack Russian defenses southwest of Velikie Luki and retake that strong hedgehog position 90 miles short of the Latvian border. Red Star said the Germans had concentrated a strong force of aviation, tanks and infantry on one central front sector, launching an attack which was hurled back by Russian reinforcements.

Deepen Caucasus Wedge, Threaten to Flank Nazi Defenses at Georgievsk

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The Red Army swept aside more than 100 tanks which the Germans threw into a counter-attack along the lower Don River and advanced on a broad front there and in the Caucasus, capturing twenty-two towns and villages, the Russians reported tonight in a communique which was broadcast from Moscow and recorded in London by the Soviet monitor.

JAN 10 1943

Bringing up their flank on the northern side to keep pace with the southern flank which had marched to within sixty-five miles of Rostov, the jugular vein of German armies in the Caucasus and the Don Valley, the Russians reported the capture of Boboyavlenskaya, eighty miles from Rostov.

At the same time, the Russian forces in the Caucasus deepened their bite into German-held territory, pushing the Germans out of five towns and villages and capturing Soldatsk-Alexandrovskaya, forty miles north and west of Georgievsk, a junction point on the Rostov-Baku railway. This thrust threatened to flank German defenses at Georgievsk. Soldatsk-Alexandrovskaya is about twenty miles north of the trunk railway.

Four Red Armies Plunge Ahead In Caucasus

Draw Nearer Rostov In Giant Movement To Envelop Nazis

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Jan. 9.—Despite cold rains and light, melting snow that converted roads into bogs and turned the Caucasus campaign temporarily into an "engineers' offensive," four Russian Armies plunged steadily ahead today in their giant enveloping movement against the Germans in the whole lower area of the eastern front.

Red Army technicians followed the retreating enemy closely and removed thousands of land mines. Thirty-four thousand mines were estimated to have been neutralized in a single sector in the past two weeks.

Fog reduced visibility in some sectors to 100 yards, the army newspaper Red Star reported. Nevertheless, the Russians were reported advancing rapidly toward the north and west in the Caucasus. Red Star said that the provinces of North Osetia and Kabardino-Balkaria already had been liberated with the battle approaching the Stavropol district.

JAN 10 1943

Battle Hand-to-Hand.

The Germans were described as "fighting like beasts in a cage" as the Russians proceeded methodically to clean out the northern factory district in Stalingrad. The Nazis refused to yield any point without a struggle, Red Star said, and the Russians took house after house in hand-to-hand combat.

Red Army artillery silenced enemy guns while Soviet shock troops surrounded and stormed individual German fortifications.

The drive toward Rostov was reported farthest advanced where the troops of Lt. Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky pushed through Strakhov, about 65 miles east of the Don River port.

South of his pathway west, the legions of Col. Gen. Yeremenko had taken Zimovniki, 125 miles southwest of Stalingrad on the railway that leads down from that city through recaptured Kotelnikovski toward Salsk and Tikhoretsk.

North of the Rokossovsky column was that of Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin, which was mopping up German garrisons in the region between the Stalingrad-Likhaya railroad and the north bank of the Don.

Germans Counterattack.

Red Star said that several days of battle preceded the capture of Zimovniki.

The Germans had fortified the town and the railroad station strongly in an effort to check the Russian drive down the railroad, the army journal reported, and as the the Soviet troops were about to enter the besieged center the Germans launched a counterattack at its gates with infantry and tanks.

The Red Army repulsed the assaults, outflanked the German positions and drove out the enemy troops in vicious street fighting, the dispatches said.

German elite troops attempted to hold out in one quarter of the city, laying down a heavy barrage with artillery and mortars but their position was flanked and they were finally driven out by attacks from several directions, Red Star said.

Column Near Millerovo.

The early Soviet communique today said that Vatutin's men had captured Medveshka, Lower Vyazovy and Upper Vyazovy in yesterday's operations. These were points south of recaptured Valkovo, the rail junction 60 miles east of Likhaya, which lies about 70 miles north of Rostov.

Likhaya is also the objective of the column that long since has pushed down from the north around Millerovo but whose position has not been defined in the last several days.

(The noon war bulletin, broadcast from Moscow and recorded in London by the Soviet monitor, told of a battle that lasted for hours before the Russians moved into two more populated places in the Lower Don Valley, after killing 400 Germans and capturing equipment.

(In the Caucasus, the Russians said, their foe continued to retreat and to suffer heavy losses of men and materiel.

(Elsewhere on the sprawling Russian front the Russians said they continued their offensive, fighting a violent action in a sector northwest of Stalingrad, where they stormed into 40 enemy trenches and held them against Germany infantry and tank assaults which saw the enemy lose 500 men and five of their force of 20 tanks.

(Artillery brought down five German planes in a battle southwest of Veliki Luki and two German fighters at the approaches to Leningrad, the midday communique said.)

20 More Towns Taken.

A special communique announced the capture of Zimovniki and the regular communique added that 20 more towns had been taken in battles on the Don fronts and in the Caucasus. On all fronts resistance continued bitter and in the Don Valley counter attacks were frequent, the Russian war bulletin said.

In the Caucasus Soviet troops were reported to have reached Zolsky, only 10 miles from the Georgievsk rail center, after storming northwestward through towns on both sides of the Baku-Rostov railway.

Another Caucasian force, the Russian leaders said, pushing north from captured Stepnoye, had reached Orlovsky and Pravokumsky, the latter about 70 miles northeast of Georgievsk.

Woman Flyer 'Dies At Post'

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Jan. 9—Marina Roskova, hero of the Soviet Union and famous in Russia as a woman long-distance flyer and military pilot, has "died at her post," it was announced today.

The Council of People's Commissars, the Central Committee of the Communist party, said she died while on duty with the Red air force. Her body was brought to Moscow for burial.

(The broadcast of the announcement was heard in London by the Associated Press.)

She was awarded the title, Hero of the Soviet Union, for a non-stop flight of 4,031 miles with two other Russian women flyers in 1938. The trio flew from Moscow to a point near Komsomolsk, adjacent to the Siberia-Manchoukuo border, where a forced landing was made in a swamp.

Miss Roskova also was active in organizing women's flying activities.

Nazis Claim Defensive Successes.

Berlin, (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 9 (A. P.).—German troops were declared by the High Command today to have repulsed bitter attacks by Soviet forces between the Caucasus and the Don, near Stalingrad and "in the Don district" and inflicted extremely heavy losses in counter-attacks.

"An encircled enemy group was wiped out," the communique said. "Eighteen tanks were destroyed."

Velikie Luki, which the Russians claimed last week, was declared to be still "stubbornly defended against fierce enemy attacks."

ALLIED BOMBERS HIT BIZERTE BASE

Tripoli, Tunisia Supply Routes, Axis-Held Harbors Blasted.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 9—(AP) Three waves of Flying Fortresses have subjected the Tunisian naval base of Bizerte to one of the fiercest bombings of the war, while other Allied planes attacked Tripoli, supply routes to the south and Tunis and Sfax, it was announced today.

These far-flung air blows yesterday which cost the Allies six planes and the Germans nine, were announced soon after Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower appointed Maj. Gen. Carl Spaatz commander of all American and RAF air operations in this theater. Five of the Allied planes were P-38 Lightnings destroyed over Bizerte.

Five twin-engine U. S. Lightnings were lost over Bizerte and the bombers shot down seven German planes in the major air blow announced soon after Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had appointed Maj.-Gen. Carl Spaatz commander of all American and R.A.F. planes in this theater. Three other German planes were destroyed elsewhere.

JAN 10 1943

French Capture Two Towns

French troops moving up on the Sahara front captured Tamout Mullet and Tachiumet, inside Libya across the border from Algeria, the French high command announced. The announcement followed an early report that a French camel corps had raided Tachiumet and taken some prisoners.

In the central sector of Tunisia itself, the French reported they smashed back another German attack northeast of Pichon "and dispersed small enemy positions." The Germans lost three out of four tanks engaged in this assault yesterday, the French added.

"Fairly lively" air activity was reported west of Kairouan and in the Pont-du-Fahs area, but on the mud-bogged northern battlefront of Tunisia there was only patrol activity.

British Attack Near

(A Berlin broadcast meanwhile indicated that the British Eighth army of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery might be about ready to attack the Axis east of Tripoli in Libya.

(A Berlin commentator said reconnaissance had disclosed that the main British forces "are taking up positions for attack on the southern flank of the Axis panzer army."

("The heaviest fighting therefore is to be expected in this sector," he said. Claiming that 150 British vehicles were blown up by air attack, he said "between 8,000 and 9,000 vehicles of all kinds concentrated to a great depth in front of the southern sector of the Axis positions provided excellent targets for Axis bombers."

(A fighting French column moving north across the Sahara into Libya from Lake Chad captured El Gatrun, Axis outpost southeast of Murzuch, 500 miles south of Tripoli, taking much booty and 177 captives were taken, Brig. Gen. Jacques LeClerc said in a communique. Enemy hangars and workshop at Sebha were razed also.

The Allied air forces hammered at Bizerte for almost an entire day, despite heavy fighter opposition and a curtain of anti-aircraft fire. They did most of their bombing through holes in the clouds. A spokesman for the 12th U. S. air force summed up the action thus:

Airdromes Blasted

"In the first raid, Flying Fortresses were attacking the airdromes where they scored hits. The docks and shipping also were attacked.

"The next raid was at Ferryville nearby and hits were observed on oil tanks and docks.

"The third time, the Fortresses attacked the Bizerte naval base."

The escorting Lightnings drove through a wall of flak to attack and strafe ground targets thousands of feet below the higher Flying Fortresses.

Mitchell, Marauder and Boston bombers with Warhawk fighter escorts roamed up and down the eastern coast of Tunisia, attacking targets wherever they could be found.

Two bridges at Grava and a railroad junction 35 miles southeast of Sfax were reported destroyed.

At Kalae Kebura, five miles west of Sousse, other railway targets were hit. The Kairouan airdrome was raided and four fires were set.

Bostons, escorted by Warhawks, blasted concentrations of tanks near Gabes. In this action, the Warhawks had their first large encounter with the German Focke-Wulfe-190's, shooting down two and damaging others without loss to themselves.

Big Battle Looms

The widespread actions were part of the Allied plan to thoroughly disrupt Axis communications and ravage their supply ports, softening the enemy for the impending offensive that is expected next month after the rains ease up.

Gen. Spaatz, who has been commander of U. S. air forces in the European theater of operations, will be in command of Major Gen. James H. Doolittle's 12th U. S. air force as well as the R.A.F. in Tunisia. He joined Gen. Eisenhower on Dec. 5 at a time when the enemy had air superiority. Since then, the Allied forces have been built and developed swiftly and have gained at least a measure of sky control, vital for land operations.

Headquarters announced that in the two months ending Jan. 8, the Allies have destroyed 344 enemy planes and lost 147. American losses were 76 and their score of the enemy was 140.

The end of the rainy season is certain to bring a terrific air struggle over Tunisia as Allies try to free North Africa but also to break the German hold on the Mediterranean bottleneck, observers here believed.

The Allied objective in that battle will be to smash the German air force in Sicily and Sardinia.

FRENCH IN DESERT REPORT AXIS ROUT

LeClerc Force From Lake Chad Takes Two Outposts On Trail To Tripoli

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 9—A Fighting French communique today announced that "the defeat of the enemy in the Fezzan is becoming a rout" and said Brig. Gen. Jacques LeClerc's flying columns advancing through the plateaus of Southern Libya from the Lake Chad area of equatorial Africa had seized the important caravan crossing of Brach, but 350 miles southeast of Tripoli.

The capture of this desert outpost was recorded after a native camel corps detachment was said to have stormed El Gatrun, southeast of Murzuch, and captured 177 Italians and war booty.

Apparently Bypass Murzuch

Some of the flying columns apparently had raced on for 180 miles, bypassing Murzuch and other garrisons and outposts, but the communique said several of these were encircled and on the verge of falling.

One of the outposts bypassed, apparently was the important caravan crossing and fort of Sebha. A communique dated yesterday said this outpost was bombed and hangars and workshops razed.

At Brach the Fighting French were deep in the Gebel es Soda, or Black Mountains, and within 280 miles of a junction with the British Eighth army at Wadi Zem-Zem on the Mediterranean coast. Brach is on the direct caravan trail to Tripoli.

Spaatz Made Head Of All Air Units On African Front

JAN 10 1943

By [illegible] GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 9.—The United States Air Force has struck one of the heaviest blows of the war at Bizerte, a vital Axis supply port, with big four-motored Flying Fortresses bombing it on three separate raids, it was announced today.

The attack coincided with the news from Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in North Africa, that United States Maj. Gen. Carl Spaatz has been made commander of a new Allied air force on that front.

Gen. Spaatz will supervise not only the 12th United States Air Force under Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle but also the RAF under Air Vice Marshal Sir William L. Welsh and such French units as may serve with the Allies.

Five U. S. Fighters Lost.

Five American planes were lost, all P-38 twin-engined lightning fighters, in the raids on Bizerte.

The Fortress raids were said to have formed one of the most concentrated attacks of the campaign on a single target, carrying out their bombings despite ground fire and fighter opposition.

The bombers shot down four planes over Bizerte, which is rated among airmen as one of the hottest anti-aircraft areas in the world.

Enemy docks in Tripoli also were attacked.

Operating along the enemy supply line leading south from Kairouan toward Gabes, American medium bombers—B-25 Billy Mitchells and B-26 Marauders—left the trail in havoc in widespread raids on tank concentrations, railroads and airfields.

French Raid Enemy Post

There were no reports of land action on the northern Tunisian front except patrol activity.

Deep in the desert, however, a French camel corps raided Tachiumet and captured some prisoners, a French spokesman said. Tachiumet is near the Algerian-Tripolitanian frontier one hundred miles northwest of Sedeles, a Libyan caravan center itself, 550 miles due south of Gabes.

Bombers Roam Coast

Light Allied bombers with fighter escort roamed up and down the eastern coast of Tunisia, attacking all types of enemy targets. Fierce fires were reported started in a bombardment of the Axis-held airdrome at Kairouan.

Formations of tanks were attacked at Gabes. In this action the assault forces had their first large encounter of the day with the Luftwaffe, shooting down two F-W 190's without loss.

While bad weather hampered the RAF, which reported destroying one German plane and losing one of its own, the Twelfth Air Force was credited with downing seven enemy planes in widespread activity.

An air force spokesman announced that Fortress Gunner Sergeant Herman Haag, of Latrobe, Pa., was credited with the destruction of one enemy plane over Bizerte and three Fortress gunners shared in the destruction of a Focke-Wulf 190. The three were Sergts. F. A. Trice, of Casa, Ark.; Melvin Bahnmiller, of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Daniel Gable, of Platteville, Wis.

New Lafayette Escadrille Gets 13 American Planes

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 9 (Delayed).—In a colorful ceremony attended by high American and French airmen, the French Lafayette Escadrille was activated today by presentation of 13 American fighter planes to the squadron which will fight with the RAF and the United States 12th Air Force on the Tunisian front.

Col. Harold B. Willis, who flew with the original Escadrille during the World War, presented an American flag to the squadron which is carrying on the name and tradition of the famous American air unit.

In the ceremony at a nearby flying field were Maj. Gen. Carl Spaatz, newly appointed chief of Allied air forces in North Africa, Gen. Jean Marie Bergeret, assistant French high commissioner, Lt. Gen. Jean Mendigal, chief of French air forces in Africa, and Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle, commander of the 12th Air Force.

Shot Down 344 Axis Planes.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 3 (Delayed) (A. P.).—American and British fighter pilots and ground defenses shot down 344 enemy planes on the Tunisian front from November 8 to January 3 against a loss of 147, an [illegible] spokesman announced today.

JAN 10 1943

Of the total number of enemy planes destroyed, the spokesman said, 150 were shot down by the R. A. F. and 140 by American airmen. Twenty more were reported destroyed on the ground by fire and thirty-four at night by means not disclosed.

R. A. F. losses were put at seventy-one aircraft and American losses at seventy-six.

A Twelfth Air Force spokesman meanwhile disclosed that Lieut. W. J. Sloan of Richmond, Va., had destroyed an ME-109 fighter while escorting Allied bombers on a raid over Gabes yesterday.

Air Activity Increases Over Libyan Front

CAIRO, Jan. 9 (AP).—RAF planes attacked transport vehicles of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's withdrawing army on the coastal road leading to Tripoli between Homs and Ziliten yesterday and aerial activity increased generally over the Libyan battle area, a communique said today.

Ziliten is about 90 miles east of Tripoli and Homs is approximately 25 miles west of Ziliten.

Three Axis planes were shot down in air battles over Libya and another was destroyed by anti-aircraft fire, the British communique said.

Tunis Raided in Daylight.

There was no report on the ground forces, the communique added.

With Axis forces in the immediate neighborhood of Tripoli, heavy RAF bombers made a daylight raid on the Axis stronghold in Tunis yesterday after an attack the night before near Tunis and Sfax, down the coast toward the border of Tripolitania.

"Good results" were obtained on the night raid, it was said, but there was no report on the daylight attack.

A Messerschmitt which attempted to intercept the British raiders on the daylight attack was shot down, but all the British aircraft returned, the communique said.

French Repulse Axis Tanks.

Other RAF planes shot down an enemy plane over Comiso, Sicily, Thursday night, it was reported.

On the Tunisian front, where the ground fighting has been bogged down in sticky mud for weeks, a French communique last night said French forces had repulsed an Axis tank thrust south of the Fondouk-el Aouareb area, some 50 miles southwest of Sousse, inflicting "heavy losses" on the enemy.

Increased patrol activity was reported in the Pont-du-Fahs region, 30 miles south of Tunis.

Planes Called 'Separate Arm'

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Jan. 9—Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur William Tedder, who has been named vice-chief of staff of the RAF, told correspondents today that the war would end sooner than it otherwise would because Britons and Americans had come to realize that air power is not an adjunct to land or sea power but a separate arm of war.

"The air represents a separate dimension linked to the sea as the sea is linked to the land and as the land is linked to the sea," Sir Arthur said in his farewell to correspondents in the Middle East.

"We, and now the Americans, have come to understand that, but the Huns and Japs have not, and the war will end sooner because of it."

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—A Berlin broadcast today indicated that the British Eighth Army of General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery might be about ready to attack the Axis east of Tripoli in Libya. A Berlin commentator said reconnaissance had disclosed that the main British forces "are taking up positions for attack on the southern flank of the Axis panzer army."

Rome Claims 21 Allied Planes

New York, Jan. 9—A Rome broadcast, heard today by the Associated Press listening post, reported the Italian command as saying that patrol clashes in Libya and Tunisia had resulted favorably for the Axis and claimed twenty-one Allied planes shot down on the North African front.

It said Allied planes had raided Axis territory and reported the loss of an Italian submarine.

(The German high command said that "in the entire African combat zone there was only slight fighting activity yesterday." Its broadcast communique said short-range Axis formations had "destroyed numerous British tanks and motor vehicles" in Libya.)

77 JAP FIGHTERS DOWNED BY ALLIES IN CONVOY BATTLE

Three Transports Sunk, Three Others Blasted Near New Guinea.

JAN 10 1943

SOME TROOPS LANDED

Vessels with Escorting Warships Reported Leaving Island.

C.T. MORNING L

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Sunday, Jan. 10—(AP) A mighty victory of the air—at least 77 Jap planes shot down, with the figure for probables and grounded planes soaring the total to around 100—was scored in a three-day, around-the-clock attack on a New Guinea-bound Jap convoy which suffered three transports sunk and at least three others badly smashed.

Amounting to an understatement, General Douglas MacArthur's noon communique, in telling of the aerial and convoy destruction, stated today that "the enemy's air losses over the last three days in this area may be regarded as serious."

10 Ships in Convoy

Thirty-eight Jap planes were shot down for certain in the first two days as Allied planes, consisting of Flying Fortresses, Liberators and all other categories, swarmed over the 10-ship convoy and kept bombing it until remnants of the troops it conveyed reached Lae on the north New Guinea coast—only to undergo more strafing and bombing after they landed.

The communique for Saturday also listed seven Jap fighters as probably shot down, 15 damaged and two bombers and two fighters destroyed on the airdrome. Today's (Sunday's) communique, in addition to reporting 39 more Jap planes as certainly shot down, list 17 probables, along with the destruction of four fighters on the Lae airdrome, the damaging of a medium bomber and six fighters.

30.24 – 211

30.24 – 211

This easily is one of the costliest single enterprises from an aerial standpoint undertaken by the Japs in the southwest Pacific.

Maintaining virtually a non-stop assault for the third successive day American and Australian airmen drove home 16 separate attacks which left one Jap transport burning and another heavily damaged by direct hits fore, aft and amidships.

Battered Convoy Departs

The battered convoy, which lost three transports sunk in the first two days of the Allied attacks, was joined Jan. 8 and 9 by two more transports. Remnants of the convoy, including six escorting warships, last were seen steaming northwest from Lae after landing what the Allied spokesman described as "mere fragmentary" reinforcements at Lae.

Communiques of the past three days specifically have mentioned six transports in the convoy of which three officially were reported sunk. Headquarters asserted that the Allied bombers scored damaging hits on four transports. Inasmuch as the Allied airmen have attacked almost continuously day and night, it is possible that individual Japanese vessels have been hit and damaged more than once.

Planes Destroyed on Field

Adding to an impressive total of enemy planes shot down in air melees yesterday, Allied bombers destroyed four fighters and damaged a bomber and six Zeros on the Lae airfield.

"The convoy which attempted to reinforce the enemy garrison at Lae was joined by two additional merchant vessels," the communique said.

"Our air force of all categories continuously attacked throughout the day and night. One transport received six direct hits and was left burning. Another transport was hit fore and aft and amidships. A beached merchant vessel was set afire. The remnants of the convoy withdrew during the night after unloading."

Allied fliers, who previously had shot down 38 Jap planes attempting to cover the convoy, doubled that total by downing at least 39 more and perhaps 17 others.

"In incessant air battles," the communique said, "our planes shot down 39 enemy fighters for certain and 17 probables, in addition to those previously reported.

"We attacked the airdrome in a supreme maneuver and destroyed four fighters on the ground and damaged a medium bomber and six fighters. Enemy barges, supply dumps and activities on the beach were bombed and strafed, causing large explosions and fires visible for 50 miles.

"The enemy's air losses over the last three days in this area may be regarded as serious."

Had Reinforced the Enemy at Lae—Ships Withdraw After Landing Cargo

JAN 10 1943

By The Associated Press.

AT UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Sunday Jan. 10—The desperate Japanese, who lost three out of four transports with which they tried to reinforce their Lae garrison in New Guinea, sent in two more transports, and both were bombed and set afire by Allied planes of all categories, raiding around the clock, General Douglas MacArthur reported today.

In addition, a merchant vessel (perhaps the damaged transport which managed to get some troops ashore) was bombed while beached.

The Japanese convoy, which has been under continuous attack for more than two days and nights, withdrew under cover of darkness "after unloading," the noon communiqué said.

"The convoy which attempted to reinforce the enemy garrison at Lae was joined by two additional merchant vessels," the communiqué said.

"Our air force of all categories continuously attacked throughout the day and night. One transport received six direct hits and was left burning. Another transport was hit fore and aft and amidships. A beached merchant vessel was set afire. The remnants of the convoy withdrew during the night after unloading."

Airdrome Is Attacked

Allied fliers, who previously had shot down thirty-eight Japanese planes, attempting to cover the convoy, doubled that total by downing at least thirty-nine more and perhaps seventeen others.

"In incessant air battles," the communiqué said, "our planes shot down 39 enemy fighters for certain and 17 probables, in addition to those previously reported.

"We attacked the airdrome in a surprise manoeuvre and destroyed four fighters on the ground and damaged a medium bomber and six fighters. Enemy barges, supply dumps and activities on the beach were bombed and strafed, causing large explosions and fires visible for 50 miles.

"The enemy's air losses over the last three days in this area may be regarded as serious."

Third Transport Sunk; Few Troops Landed by Convoy

JAN 10 1943

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 9.—A badly battered Japanese convoy—three of its transports at the bottom of the Pacific and a fourth damaged—was pursued into the harbor of Lae, New Guinea, and there, along with the landing area and other enemy beach installations, was given a merciless pounding yesterday by almost every type of plane at the call of the Southwest Pacific Air Force command, an Allied communique reported today.

The Japanese, trying to reinforce their remaining New Guinea strongholds by shipping troops from New Britain to Lae, succeeded at best in landing only "fragmentary" troop elements, the communique indicated.

In addition to the three transports reported definitely lost since the convoy was sighted and attacked January 6, 20 more Japanese escort planes were reported destroyed, bringing to 38 the enemy aircraft shot down in the action.

While the aerial hammering at Lae continued and American and Australian troops closed in on the only remaining pocket of Japanese resistance in the Buna region at Sanananda, Gen. Douglas MacArthur returned to Australia from the New Guinea battle front with high praise for the Australian and American forces under his command.

Twelve Officers Decorated.

He awarded Distinguished Service Crosses to 12 American and Australian officers "for extraordinary courage, marked efficiency and precise execution of operation during the Papuan campaign," and said in an order of the day that the "victory which has been achieved would have been impossible of accomplishment without the invincible leadership which they have provided."

Gen. MacArthur also gave high praise to "the magnificent conduct of the troops and elements of this command, operating under difficulties rarely if ever surpassed in a campaign. * * *"

"Through the skill and courage and indomitable will for victory they have defeated a bold and aggressive enemy, possessing a marked superiority of resources and potentialities in areas of the campaign and combat," the order of the day said. American and Australian airmen, it added, "have set new horizons for the air conduct of the war."

The Japanese convoy so severely mauled by Allied airmen was protected in its landing effort by 102 Japanese fighter planes. In addition to the 38 enemy planes shot down, 7 others were reported probably destroyed and 15 damaged in today's communique. Allied losses were "not heavy," the communique said.

Gasmata Airdrome Raided.

Seven American Lockheed Lightning fighters were credited with shooting down four Japanese planes for certain, probably destroying three others and damaging 5 out of the 20 Zeros which they attacked. Another flight of 15 Lightnings, opposed by 20 Zeros, also shot down four, it was reported.

The convoy was first sighted off New Britain Wednesday. Yesterday's communique said a 14,000-ton transport "heavily loaded" with troops and another transport had been sunk. A third was damaged. Today's communique said heavy bombers had scored two direct hits on the stern of one transport and medium bombers sank another. It was possible that one of the transports mentioned today was the damaged ship of yesterday's communique.

An Allied medium bomber unit raided the airdrome at Gasmata, New Britain, during the night and started fires, the communique reported.

The officers cited by Gen. MacArthur were:

Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of the Allied air forces; Lt. Gen. Edmund Francis Herring, Australian field commander; Lt. Gen. Robert Eichelberger, Maj. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, chief of staff, general headquarters of the Southwest Pacific area; Maj. Gen. George Allen Vasey, Australian field commander; Brig. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, U. S. A. chief of intelligence; Brig. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead and Brig. Gen. Kenneth Walker, American air force commanders; Australian Brigadiers F. G. Wooten and Kenneth Eather and Australian Group Capt. William Garing.

MacArthur Felicitated By Marshall and Wavell

U. S. and British Generals Laud Success of Papua Campaign

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 9 (AP).—The triumph of General Douglas MacArthur's troops in wresting the Papuan Peninsula of New Guinea from a Japanese army of 15,000 brought messages of congratulation today to the Allies' southwest Pacific commander.

General George C. Marshall, United States army chief of staff, cabled: "Heartiest congratulations for capturing Buna and on entire campaign in Papua. With the very limited means available the amount you have accomplished is a tribute to your leadership and to the fighting qualities of your soldiers. The wonderful work of your air force was an outstanding feature of the operations."

Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander of British forces in India, cabled: "Your success in the Papuan campaign elicits my warmest congratulations."

Dewing Heads Liaison Staff

(By the Associated Press)

Melbourne, Jan. 9—Prime Minister John Curtin announced today that Maj. Gen. Richard Henry Dewing has arrived in Australia as the head of a small liaison staff of British Army and Royal Air Force officers.

It is the first time a permanent link between the Australian and British armies has been established in the commonwealth.

In 1940 Dewing was named British chief of staff for the various services in the Far East. He previously had served as a general staff officer at the Royal Military College at Kingston, Canada, from 1927 to 1929, and was an instructor in the Imperial Defense College from 1937 to 1939.

He won the Distinguished Service Order and the Military Cross for his service in Mesopotamia and Persia from 1915 to 1919.

JAPANESE BOLSTER THEIR AIR BASES IN SOLOMONS AREA

U. S. Planes Meet Stiff Opposition in Attack on Rekata Bay.

JAN 10 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 — (AP) That the Japanese have strengthened their bases in the Solomons area despite day-by-day attack from American planes was indicated today in a Navy communique which related that two United States aircraft were lost in a raid which set afire enemy installations at Rekata bay.

The attack on this base on Santa Isabel island about 135 miles from Guadalcanal, was carried out Thursday (east Longitude time) by two-engined Marauder medium bombers which had an escort of Airocobra fighters.

Two Planes Shot Down

They ran into heavy anti-aircraft fire which brought down the two planes lost. Apparently the American planes also were attacked by Japanese aircraft, for the communique reported two enemy float type planes were damaged.

Four-engined Flying Fortress attacked Bougainville island, 300 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, on the same day were challenged by 12 Japanese Zero fighters. Two of the Japs were shot down and no United States planes were lost.

Kiska Base Bombed

The communique also reported that four-engined Liberator bombers had dropped bombs on enemy positions at Kiska in the Aleutians, but that results were not observed.

The Japanese have had forces in the Rekata bay area since early in the war, but for weeks after the American occupation of Guadalcanal little resistance was encountered in air attacks on Rekata bay. Until today, no recent raid on the base there had been reported. In the meantime, the Japanese, it appeared, had brought in considerable anti-aircraft equipment.

On Bougainville, the enemy has an air field. The port of Buin there also is an important intermediate base for operations against the American forces on Guadalcanal. Both air field and port have been subjected to repeated air attack.

Whether the increasing aerial resistance meant the Japanese now have more planes at their disposal than a few months earlier was a question on which there was no official speculation.

AUSTRALIA HONORS JERSEY SOLDIERS

Somewhere in Australia, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—Two New Jersey members of the American military police have received the bronze medallion of the Surf Life Saving Association of Australia. They are Henry Butenko of Bayonne and John Nitkiewicz of Newark.

They were among a group of military policemen trained in the Australian life saving technic after several persons had drowned because of the shortage of lifeguards. Australian waters have many swells and a strong undertow.

Under the Australian system a reel with a 400 yard line is manned on each principal beach by a team consisting of a reelman, several linesmen to play out the rope, and a beltman, whose harness is fastened to the line, and who swims out to effect the rescue.

Japanese Prisoners Viewed By Newsmen

JAN 10 1943

By William F. Boni

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 8 (Delayed)—To the accompaniment of the constant drone of planes going to attack enemy shipping and troops in Lae harbor, American and Australian correspondents were permitted to view Japanese prisoners of war today.

But it wasn't a very impressive spectacle.

Scrawny And Underfed

For the most part the twenty-seven prisoners we saw were scrawny, underfed members of forced labor gangs who had worked in Papau on air strips, gun emplacements, roads and other military installations. The majority of these obviously were from the lowest strata.

There were a few exceptions, such as a five-foot Japanese laborer, who answered all the interrogators' questions with fair intelligence and much ability, keeping his hands at the trouser seams in military style and making a formal little bow at the end of the questioning.

Under an Australian provost-marshal prisoners are given ample tent space behind barbed-wire barricades, from which they are permitted to leave almost at will to perform light tasks around the camp. They are not fit physically now for any harder work.

Some are wearing Australian army G. I. (general issue) shoes, but most prefer to remain barefoot.

One wore an American fatigue suit in jungle green. Others were garbed in bits and scraps of their own and castoff Australian uniforms.

Get Regular Rations

Their rations are the regular Australian army issue, which is far better than they had been getting, in addition to twenty ounces of rice daily.

They stared at us almost as hard as we stared at them. But the roar of planes always drew their eyes skyward in obvious bewilderment that here was where they had been told the Allies had virtually nothing and that their airforce alone had such terrifying striking power.

BRITISH ARMIES ADVANCE WITHIN 25 MILES OF AKYAB

JAN 10 1943

American Planes, R. A. F. from India Batter Enemy.

LONDON, Jan. 9—(AP) Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell's southward thrusting forces have renewed the fighting with Japanese in the difficult lowlands north of Akyab in Burma simultaneously with the loosing of a one-two punch by American Sky Dragons from China and the R.A.F. from India.

These widespread but closely coordinated operations were announced in communiques from New Delhi and Chungking as the British advance back into Burma, still somewhat of a military mystery, entered its fourth week.

25 Miles from Akyab

The British communique from New Delhi said land fighting was taking place on both sides of the Mayu river in the vicinity of Rathedaung, 25 miles north of Akyab, and on the Mayu peninsula, the tiny tip of land between the river and the Bay of Bengal.

(The Berlin radio relayed a Tokyo report that the British were within 20 miles of Akyab, but were repulsed. The broadcast was heard by CBS.)

The communique described the contact, after a lull of several days, as "occasional encounters" during the past few days.

There was still no official indication as to the size of forces engaged on either side.

Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's China-based American pilots set the pace in the air fighting with destructive assaults on Bhamo on the upper Irrawaddy in northern Burma and on Mangshih, two important Japanese bases.

Gasoline Drums Destroyed

Several hundred gasoline drums were spattered with bombs and bullets and destroyed by Curtiss P-40 Warhawks at Mangshih Thursday, a Chungking communique said, while Billy Mitchell twin-motored B-25 bombers with fighter escort bombed and strafed Bhamo yesterday. There they hit many warehouses and set off large explosions and fires. The Warhawk escort also strafed two barges on the Irrawaddy. The communique said no anti-aircraft fire or fighter opposition was encountered on either raid.

JAN 10 1943

The two-front offensive was completed by the R.A.F. from India which carried out daylight raids in the Arakan district in support of the ground forces.

Fighter-escorted Blenheim bombers raked enemy-occupied villages and buildings in the Rathedaung area with bombs and machineguns, swept the Meiktila road toward Mandalay and shot up several vehicles near Kyaukpadaung, killing a number of Japanese in buses and trucks.

By night, Akyab itself was bombed as well as the Dabaing airdrome, and gun positions at Fakir point.

Since launching his drive, Gen. Wavell has advanced all told about 60 miles, an average of less than three miles daily, and there has been no definite indication as to whether stiff Japanese opposition or the heavy jungle terrain had kept down the pace of the drive—or both.

However, Gen. Wavell's headquarters said at the start of the advance that a swift operation was not to be expected.

from the Chinese frontier.

Gasoline Drums Destroyed

Several hundred gasoline drums were destroyed at Mangshih. The only opposition met was light and ineffective anti-aircraft fire, the communique said.

B-25 Billy Mitchells escorted by fighters bombed and shot up Bhamo. The fighters, P-40 Warhawks, fired at two barges in the Irrawaddy with undetermined results.

"Many Warehouses Hit"

"All bombs struck the target area," the communique said. "Many warehouses were hit and large fires were started. A secondary explosion also was observed."

The flyers observed no anti-aircraft fire and there was no fighter interception.

JAPANESE RENEW ADVANCE IN CHINA

Occupy Two More Points in Hills North of Yangtze.

JAN 10 1943

CHUNGKING, Jan. 9—(AP) The Japanese have taken two more points in their U-shaped drive among the hills north of the Yangtze river, the Chinese high command announced today.

It said one was the important highway town of Tungcheng, in Anhwei province, which was occupied by the invaders Jan. 4 and the other was Taihu, about 55 miles to the southeast, which was entered by another force two days earlier.

Enemy gains also were reported in southeastern Honan province, below the Yangtze, but the Chinese said that stiff opposition had caused a Japanese column to veer off to the west when it could not advance northward.

A communique said the Chinese have completed mopping up in the vicinity of Lihwang, provincial capital of Anhwei, whose recapture from the Japanese on Nov. 7 already had been announced.

U.S. Skydragon Flyers Raid Jap Burma Bases

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, Jan. 9 — Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's American Skydragons made successful attacks on two Japanese bases in Burma in the past two days without losing a plane, a communique from American headquarters announced today.

On Thursday the flyers struck at Mangshih, and yesterday at Bhamo, a strategic point at the head of navigation on the Irrawaddy river in Upper Burma, about fifty miles

Burma Battle Under Way

[By the Associated Press]

New Delhi, India, Jan. 9—Imperial troops are engaging the Japanese in Burma at Rathedaung, on the east bank of the Mayu river twenty-five miles northwest of Akyab, and on the Mayu peninsula, which forms the west bank of the river, a British communique announced today.

Occasional encounters have taken place during the last few days, the British said.

British Bombers Active

Fighter-escorted Blenheim bombers raided Rathedaung yesterday and bombers went in again over Akyab and near-by airdrome and anti-aircraft-gun positions, it was reported.

Fighter planes also struck at transport concentrations near Kyaukpadaung, on the Meiktila road, the communique said.

All of the planes returned from the expeditions, it added.

Much Depends on Line.

Should that line become more tenuous it would mean tragedy for China. It would strike both at the war effort and the life of the people.

Conversely any increase in the supplies now being received over the skyline would be a godsend. China's well-being increases or decreases in direct ratio to this help.

This background is by way of preface to the statement given me by China's great statesman, T. V. Soong, who has served his country in many capacities and is now Foreign Minister. Soong not only is a statesman, but a banker, and you know him also as China's lend-lease expert who, until recently, was in Washington in connection with this work. He is, by the way, a graduate of Harvard and a man of wide education and culture.

Soong has said 100 more transport planes on the airline from India to China would vastly improve China's position. What this financial and economic expert said was that this increase in planes would "transpose the economic picture."

Statement Is Literal.

Now, Soong not only is an expert but one of his characteristics is that he is cautious in his language. So when he says that 100 more transport planes would "transpose the economic picture" in this hard-pressed country we must recognize that he regards this transaction as of great importance.

It is doubly significant that his suggestion is quite outside the circle of military requests which China has made. Soong isn't in this instance asking for war planes or tanks or arms of any sort. He wants to increase the essential supplies which act not only as a blood transfusion to Chinese industry but mean much to public morale.

Some things are needed for this brave and long-suffering public. However, the bulk of supplies would be required for military purposes and industries. It is amazing how many operations both in manufacturing plants and on the battlefield can be held up by the lack of some comparatively small gadgets which must come from the outside world on the wings of American transports.

A dozen planes might conceivably carry what is needed to pave the way for the capture of an important enemy position or to set all the wheels of a great factory running.

Would Be Helpful Gesture.

Having got a closer view of China's position, I must say that if I had 100 transport planes to dispose of I would turn them over to the skyline express as fast as I could. I'd feel that any delay might multiply the vast difficulties which already exist.

It would seem clear to me also that such a gesture would tend to alleviate the feeling here that China is being left out in the cold by her allies. The corollary is that the morale of the general public and the army would receive a lift.

Soong gave me his views on many other subjects, most of which were confidential but highly illuminating to one trying to reach the bottom of the situation in China. However, there were one or two outstanding points which may be mentioned.

JAN 10 1943

For instance the Foreign Minister feels that China will be unassailable after the postwar reconstruction.

"I can see the possibility of vast strides," he said. "There will be a great increase in our railways. We shall be going forward by leaps and bounds agriculturally and industrially. It will be possible to increase the national income two or three times in 10 years.

"We are looking forward," he added, "to collaboration with America. We know she is our friend."

100 Added U.S. Cargo Planes Vital Need of Chinese Economy

Airline Between Chungking and India Is Only Link With Outside World

JAN 10 1943

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

CHUNKING, Jan. 9.—China's whole economic structure is being badly shaken by the ravages of war and this, of course, is reflected not only in the war effort but in the lives of the people.

The cost of living has zoomed until in some categories it is fantastic. Along with this there is inflation which has sent Chinese money tumbling. The Government has pegged the Chinese dollar at about one-seventh of its normal value, making it worth approximately 5 cents in American money.

Industries throughout the country are handicapped or hamstrung. The lack of raw materials and replacements for machinery are among the biggest obstacles.

All this naturally is inextricably linked with China's lack of physical communications with the outside world. Her economic status is dependent in a major degree on the supplies she receives from abroad, and her lifeline is that slender thread of air transport which is being kept open between India and Chungking by American airmen.

U. S. Soldiers Find Head Hunting Natives Of Burma Friendly

Laugh and Joke With Savages at Outpost, But Keep Guns Handy

JAN 10 1943

By PRESTON GROVER.

AN AMERICAN OUTPOST ON THE BURMA FRONT.—A band of 10 American soldiers, led by a sergeant in his early 20s, holds this advanced scouting and listening post in the midst of one of the world's most primitive jungles, and they "love it."

Against the advice of the wary British, they have made friends with the untamed Naga hillsmen and each night they sit around campfires swapping jests with the wild men. The soldiers trade silver rupees and empty cigarette tins for cleaver-like knives and spears decorated with tokens of battle.

But the Americans always keep their guns handy. Only a few hundred yards away from the American camp. King Tong Am has an exhibition row of several score heads of enemies who weren't wary enough.

JAN 10 1943

Gruelling Climb.

Herbert Matthews of the New York Times and I visited this outpost on the alert for Japanese invaders. It is the toughest climb I ever made, and I grew up in the Rocky Mountains.

Accompanied by Lt. Col. J. F. Barr of San Antonio, Tex., and Lt. L. L. Hall of Hamilton Field, Calif., we drove to the foothills and then legged it 10 miles to the top of the peak where the listening post is located near the Naga village. Sergt. I. F. Meyer of Fresno, Calif., sent eight Nagas to guide us and to pack baggage. Sergt. Meyer is in charge of the post which is one of America's wildest and most isolated.

Sergt. Meyer's job, with the nine others, is to watch for Japanese bombers heading toward American airfields in the Northeast of India. They have a powerful radio, so good that they heard the crack of baseball bats when they tuned in on the World Series at Yankee Stadium.

The Nagas lugged our bedding and food in baskets swung from slings looped around their foreheads. We carried only field glasses, cameras and a canteen, but that was plenty.

Long, Steep Climb.

For 6 miles, we lumbered up and down and over steep hills, the trail deeply overgrown with 50-foot bamboos, towering trees and wall-like undergrowth. Then we started on a 4-mile unbroken climb. The path to the watch tower on the mountain rose to 3,000 feet so steeply we could take it only in 100 step stages at first and then we had to slow down to 50 steps. It took three hours to climb the last 4 miles.

This is a story-book country. The Naga hillsmen wear nothing except beads of bamboo twisted around their middle and a thin strip of loin cloth. The women wear not an inch more.

With one stroke, the warriors' dah can cut off a goat's—or a human's—head. They are playful as young boys and seem ever inviting you to play a game of "cut off your head." I didn't want to play.

Just as we reached the top of the trail a party of 20 of King Tong's warriors, all brightly decorated with colored goats hair and beads, raced down the path toward us.

Forbidden Territory.

It wasn't a war party. It was a funeral party. King Tong's brother's pet wife had died and the village was a din of wailing.

The watch tower is situated in what the British describe as "administered territory." They forbade Americans to enter it, insisting it was unsafe for white men, but the Americans went anyway.

And they found the Nagas the friendliest of people.

"That's an old trick," the British Army authorities say, "we've lost many heads learning better." But Sergt. Meyer and his party are unworried, although ever watchful.

They have rifles, pistols and tommyguns. They pay King Tong 15 rupees (slightly less than $5) a month for rental of the mountain top. He is learning fast, however, because he now wants three months rent in advance. "I'm getting married," he explained.

He didn't get the advance even though it was to be his eleventh wife and his expenses were increasing.

JAN 10 1943

Also Bill Paid.

Later the king's counsellor insisted on collecting 100 rupees for the bamboo that was cut down to build shelters and storehouses. It was a cheap price to pay for peace and Sergt. Meyer paid.

The Nagas huddle around the Americans' campfire, brew their own tea in hollow bamboo and mockingly imitate the Americans' laughter. Like parrots they repeat every word the Americans shout at them, but understand nothing. They laugh and dance when the Americans guffaw at hearing a Naga repeat from memory some barroom crack he has heard.

"There has been only two "incidents." Corpl. Thomas J. Boswell, hustled a bothersome young Negro warrior from the kitchen. The Naga waved his huge knife menacingly but the "incident" blew over.

Again an unannounced supply party came in from the valley. The women working in a bamboo clearing were frightened by the sight and fled into the jungle and resisted long their husbands efforts to recall them. Finally they came out and all was forgotten.

Skulls on Display.

We visited King Tong in his Bamboo Palace. Referring to airplanes, he said he had often seen them and thought that we had come from the skies. We gave him cigarettes. We got cinnamon bark in return and he apologized for not giving us more.

Three weeks before we saw him, one of his elder statesmen was beheaded by a rival tribe. It was revenge for a head one of his own tribesmen had brought into camp a year ago. For that feat he had crowned his successful warrior with the carved head decorated with a string of blue beads. I bought the whole bauble for five rupees after three hours of bargaining.

Proudly the King had us escorted to a lay room where his skulls were on exhibition. He has about a hundred of them. He explained that a fire a few months ago had destroyed an additional hundred.

The village headman wears, a stovepipe hat at least 15 years old, but one that he highly cherishes. Another proudly weares an American overseas cap a soldier with us gave him. He wears the cap bottomside up.

The British not long ago sent up a dozen tough Gurka soliders to guard the Americans while they build a stockade. The "intrusion" angered both the American and Nagas and they told the British to take Gurkas back down the mountain. The the Gurkas were starting their downward trek, Col. Barr asked if any of his men wanted to go with them to a new assignment.

"Hell, No," said one. "It's no fun down there."

DIVE-BOMBERS HIT NAZI STEEL WORKS

Ijmuiden Furnaces, Coke Ovens Blasted by New Venturas.

JAN 10 1943

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP) — Speedy, new American-made Ventura (Vega) bombers of the R.A.F., smashed at the Ijmuiden iron and steel works in Holland today, planting bomb bursts on furnaces and coke ovens, in the second assault in 24 hours on Germany's steel and industrial works, the Air ministry announced.

The raid, which was protected by Spitefire squadrons, was a follow-up to a night assault on the Ruhr, the fourth of the week on the teeming industrial valley.

France, Belgium Attacked

Fast new British wooden Mosquito bombers also attacked railway targets in northern France and Belgium while squadrons of fighters swept over the same areas and engaged in battles with defending Focke-Wulf 190 fighters.

In one such encounter with 14 Focke-Wulf's near Abbeville, France latest model Spitfires manned by fighting French and West Lancashire pilots shot down one of the interceptors.

Use New Spitfire Model

The Air ministry for the first time designated the new Spitfires by their official name — Mark Nine. They are new models with four-bladed propellers and Rolls Royce Merlin engines. They are reported to be in service in large numbers.

One fighter and one bomber were lost in the daylight operations, while five planes failed to return from the Ruhr raid.

At the usual ratio of losses, it was probable about 100 planes took part in the night attack on unannounced objectives in the industrial center, although some of the British planes may have been lost while carrying out mining operations in enemy waters.

The Germans admitted casualties and damage has been caused in several localities.

Although today's activities were the most intense of several days, cold, bad icing conditions and poor visibility the past week have prevented operations on the usual scale.

Sir Stafford Cripps, minister of aircraft production, told workers in a factory making four-motored Lancasters, however, that Germany and Italy were about to undergo the heaviest air assaults yet. Presumably he meant these would be heavier than even the 1,000-bomber raids of early summer. Weather alone, he said, accounted for the brake on operations in the last two months.

The Germans, meanwhile, pecked away at Britain with relatively ineffective attacks, dropping a few bombs on a southeast coast village.

RAF Pounds Ruhr For Fourth Night; 5 Planes Missing

Focke-Wulfs Raid British Town; One Civilian Killed

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—RAF bombers attacked industrial targets in Germany's Ruhr Valley last night for the fourth time this week, it was announced officially today.

Five British aircraft were reported missing from the night's operations, indicating an attack by perhaps 100 planes. No official details were given immediately of the raid's scope or specific targets, however.

It was the second night in succession that the big British bombers had carried their destruction to the maze of steel mills and heavy industrial plants in the Ruhr.

British aircraft also laid mines in enemy waters during the night, it was announced.

The Berlin radio gave the first information concerning the presence of the bombers, announcing they had flown over Northern and Western Germany.

The radio declared six British planes had been shot down, but admitted civilian casualties and damage in several localities.

Meantime four Fock-Wulf fighter-bombers made a hit-and-run attack on a rural district and on a southeast coast town. One bomb struck a bungalow and killed an occupant.

The three previous RAF raids on Germany this week were directed against the industrial Ruhr Valley.

Fortress Bags 3 Nazi Planes Ganging Up On Riddled 'Prey'

"Boom Town" Almost Rides Sea On Return From Sub-Pen Raid—Barely Clears Channel Cliffs

JAN 10 1943

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The United States Flying Fortress, "Boom Town," riddled by flak and cannon fire, fought her way home from France, part of the way through swarms of German fighters and sometimes flying so low that the ball turret smacked waves in the English Channel.

The story of the "Boom Town's" experience December 30 in a raid on the submarine pens at Lorient has just been told by the Eighth Air Force headquarters, which described the flight as "one of the strangest experiences in American air-force bombing history."

Even after the bombardier had been killed, the tail gunner wounded and other crewmen less seriously hurt, the Fortress' guns shot down there German fighters, and probably bagged two more ganging up on the crippled plane unable to keep up with the formation.

The "Boom Town," piloted by Capt. Clyde B. Walker, of Tulsa, Okla., descended to one hundred feet and at one point skimmed across a German naval harbor.

Three times the laboring Fortress seemed headed for the sea, but each time Walker pulled up the nose with what the crew called "a marvelous exhibition of piloting."

Flying on two motors, the "Boom Town" was just able to clear England's coastal cliffs and land in a strange field.

Over Lorient, the ball turret gunner, Sergt. Oscar Green, Great Falls, Mont., shouted "bullseye" as bombs burst on a platform between two submarine pens.

Almost at the same moment a hail of flak and explosive bullets nearly blew the Fortress out of the air, the crew said. That was when the bombardier, Lieut. G. C. Bentinck, Jr., Galveston, Texas, was killed.

Flak hit the navigator, Lieut. William M. Smith, Ashland, Wis., in the arm and knocked him off his seat, but probably saved his life because a second later a spray of bullets thudded into the empty navigator's perch.

An explosive shell ripped the bottom out of the ball turret. Green, blinded by oil, minus his oxygen supply and with his leg jammed under ammunition, still manned his gun.

In the tail turret, Sergt. Stephen G. Krucher, Merrick, Long Island, although wounded, shot down a Focke-Wulf 190.

Staff Sergeant W. W. Stroud, Fredonia, Kan., the waist gunner, knocked off another Focke-Wulf 190.

The crew claimed a third German fighter, but the name of the man who bagged it was not disclosed.

"Gremlins must have been holding us up," Green said, but Walker had a more plausible explanation:

"Boy, we've got a real crew—no kidding," he said.

GEN. TASSIGNY GETS 10-YEAR PRISON TERM

LONDON, Jan. 9 — (AP) The Vichy radio said today that M. Gen. de Lattre Tassigny, charged with trying to oppose the Germans when they completed their occupation of France last November, had been sentenced to 10 years imprisonment by a special court.

Gen. Tassigny, who was in command of the Montpellier district, was reported at the time of the German occupation to have led his men in a short and abortive revolt. He was at one time in command of French forces in Tunisia.

Death Stills Pen Of Author

JAN 10 1943

London, Jan. 9 (AP)—There will be no sequel to Flight Lieutenant Richard Hope Hillary's book "Last Enemy," the story of a RAF fighter pilot in the Battle of Britain.

Hillary, who had been working on the second book, was killed in action this month. He was 23.

Captive German Officer Reported Dead

London, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—Major Wilhelm Bach, the senior German officer captured at Halfaya Pass on the Egypt-Libya border during the British offensive a year ago, died November 22, last, as a prisoner of war in British hands, the German radio said today in a broadcast heard by Reuters.

Major Bach was among 5,500 Axis troops captured at Halfaya Pass and was identified at the time as a former fellow pastor of the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, now in a German concentration camp.

Rumania Unrest

London, Jan. 9 (AP)—The official Rumanian news agency was quoted in a Swiss radio broadcast today as denying that there had been any revolutionary activity in Rumania. The Lisbon radio broadcast a dispatch last night saying a state of siege had been proclaimed in Bucharest following an unsuccessful Iron Guard plot against the Antonescu Government.

JAN 10 1943

(A BBC broadcast, which did not cite the source of its information, said Col. Gen. Alexander Loehr, German commander in chief in the Balkans, "is reported to have assumed control in Rumania to suppress disorders."

("A battalion of Himmler's newly formed special division of SS men has arrived in Bucharest. German troops are now mounting guards in the streets of the city, at all key railway stations and routes leading to the capital.")

REPORTS U. S. SUBS SANK 2 JAP LINERS

London, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—Reuters, the British news agency, quoted a Chungking report today that American submarines had sunk two Japanese liners off Woosung, a town seventy-five miles from Shanghai, and that only forty-two persons were saved out of 1,000 aboard the two ships.

The report said that the sinkings occurred last November 11.

Moscow Says French Burned Nazi Fuel Dump

London, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—In a supplement to its mid-day communique, broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded here by the Soviet monitor, the Soviet Information Bureau reported today that French patriots had burned a German fuel dump on the outskirts of Lyons.

The information bureau also reported that sixteen railway engines had been sabotaged in a depot near Paris within the last two weeks and that a train bearing German troops had been derailed in the Orleans area.

ORANGES FROM AFRICA

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(AP) Britons were happy today over the first "fruits of success"—oranges from North Africa.

The small quantity thus far received will go to the armed forces first at a fixed price of 15 cents a pound.

It has not yet been decided whether there will be enough additional supplies to distribute to the fruit-hungry public.

HUNGARIAN CASUALTIES SET AT 13,432 MEN

BERN, Switzerland, Jan. 9—(AP) A dispatch from Budapest today quoted a Hungarian army headquarters communique as saying that Hungarian casualties since last August 20 totalled 13,432.

Of this number, 2,256 were listed as killed, 9,117 wounded and 2,059 missing.

NAPOLEON'S KIN SEIZED

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 9 (A. P.).—The German radio broadcast a report today under Paris dateline that Prince Napoleon Bonaparte, grandnephew of Emperor Napoleon III and present head of the House of Napoleon, had been arrested.

The report, issued by the Transocean Agency, said that he and a M. de Saivre, identified as a member until two weeks ago of Marshal Petain's Civil Cabinet, had been arrested together en route from Paris to Spain, where they intended to meet other Bonapartists.

Hitler Reported Given Warning By Von Bock

JAN 10 1943

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 9.—Marshal Fedor von Bock, speaking for a number of German generals alarmed by the dangerous position of the German armies in the Caucasus, is reported in Berlin to have urged Adolf Hitler to withdraw his lines while there is still time.

Neutral sources just returned from Germany said Von Bock, formerly commander on the Stalingrad front who was relieved of his duties in apparent disgrace, had returned to a command at the front in November.

These sources did not know where Von Bock took charge, but they reported that he visited Hitler at his field headquarters and declared he and other officers he represented could no longer take responsibility for the situation unless Hitler ordered a retreat out of the Caucasus.

Hitler was said to have gone into a rage and ordered Von Bock out of the headquarters after stating that he, as supreme commander, bore all responsibility.

Later Von Bock was seen in Berlin, these sources said, but they said he since had dropped from sight and it was not known whether he had returned to the front.

Rumors circulating in Stockholm said it was believed Von Bock is back on the Stalingrad front.

HUNGARY SEEKS TROOPS' RETURN

Stockholm, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—Worried by developments on the eastern front and also about the temper of the people at home, Hungary is reported in political quarters here to be anxious to withdraw its troops from Russia into winter quarters in Hungary itself. This move, they hope, would spare them hardships and the danger of being crushed by a smashing Russian offensive.

It is estimated that 100,000 Hungarian soldiers are stationed in the Voronezh sector and in sectors toward the rear where occupation troops are stationed. If they are withdrawn this winter, some political observers here predicted, the Hungarian troops probably will not enter the fight again.

The Hungarian Government's developing stiff attitude toward the Nazis and the reluctance to take further risks is traced to a growing war weariness and a declining morale at home. The question being asked everywhere, the Hungarian diplomatic headquarters said, is "what are we fighting for?" The Government has been unable to provide a satisfactory answer.

The Hungarian people are complaining especially about conducting a war against Powers which have not attacked Hungary. They are complaining also about Hungarian soldiers suffering and dying 1,200 miles from their native border. The Government is pursuing a more careful policy than at the outbreak of the war because confidence in Germany's power has been strongly shaken.

Two Swedish Ships Sunk Off Norway

Stockholm, Jan. 9 (AP)—Two Swedish safe-conduct ships, the 16,450-ton tanker Sveajarn and the 7,760-ton motor vessel Brazil, were reported in dispatches today to have been sunk off the Norwegian coast. In the absence of detail, observers here regarded it as likely that they were victims of mine explosions.

The Swedish ships were en route to South America, a Norwegian telegraph agency dispatch to London said. It reported another vessel rescued forty-two survivors from the Brazil and thirty-nine from the Sveajarn.

Stockholm, Jan. 9 (AP)—A huge German ammunition depot at Tjoeme in Oslofjord has blown up and a large number of German soldiers were believed killed or injured, reports from Oslo, Norway, said tonight.

Heavy explosions were said to have rocked the depot area, where 700 land mines were stored in addition to other ammunition.

The whole district was reported isolated, with ambulances streaming to and from the area for hours. German police were said to be apparently convinced there was no sabotage, and no reprisals against Norwegians were reported.

JAN 10 1943

BAR WAY TO FINLAND

Stockholm, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—A Swedish spokesman said today that no visa application had been made for 545 youths of the Norwegian Labor Service waiting at a camp near Oslo to go to Finland to work in the forests, and that it would be denied if submitted.

The spokesman added that in the past Norwegian workmen had been permitted to travel through Sweden en route to Finland after the Swedish frontier authorities had satisfied themselves that the men were going voluntarily.

(A previous dispatch said departure of the youths via Sweden for Finland, scheduled for January 4, had been delayed because the men protested when they learned that the camp to which they were going was controlled by the Germans.

GERMANY SHUNS WAIVER REQUEST

Refuses To Drop Immunity So Argentina Can Try Niebuhr

[By the Associated Press]

Buenos Aires, Jan. 9—The Foreign Office said today that Germany had replied with a "polite refusal" to the Argentine request for a waiver of the diplomatic immunity protecting Capt. Dietrich Niebuhr, naval attache of the German Embassy, from trial on charges of engaging in anti-Allied espionage on Argentina's neutral soil.

The Foreign Office spokesman said the German Government's refusal was based primarily on the argument that the evidence against the attache was "gathered and presented by a foreign power."

Memorandum Submitted

A memorandum on espionage activities of a number of German agents was submitted to the Foreign Office by the United States Embassy at the request of Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, Foreign Minister, for evidence to back up the statement of Sumner Welles, United States Under Secretary of State, who last October charged that spies here were sending radio reports which resulted in the sinking of United Nations ships.

The evidence, it is understood, was gathered by the interamerican committee for political defense of the continent and passed on by the United States.

The Foreign Office spokesman said Germany's answer was given orally today in a call by Otto Meynen, German charge d'affaires, to Roberto Gachi, under secretary.

Pressure Exerted

The reply will be forwarded to the Supreme Court who asked for the waiver so that Niebuhr may go on trial.

Pressure as strong as the existing state of siege decree permits is being exerted by the larger newspapers of Buenos Aires for a strong stand against the attache. The newspaper Critica has urged that he be declared an unwelcome guest of the country if immunity was not waived. The state of siege prevents outspoken comment, however.

Niebuhr is the third German diplomatic agent to come under fire in recent years for belligerent activities in Argentina. Gottfried Sanstede, press attache of the embassy, fled in an airplane one morning in 1940 in the midst of agitation for his expulsion.

BACKS UNITED NATIONS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 9 — (AP) The Foreign Minister announced Brazil's adherence today to the United Nations declaration of Jan. 9 that expropriations by the Axis in conquered countries would not be recognized by the Allies.

WORKERS PROTEST USE OF TEAR GAS IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 9 — (AP) Some 300 farm workers protested at newspaper offices today against police use of tear gas yesterday when 4,000 persons, seeking temporary harvest jobs in the United States, stormed the registration office here.

The workers demonstrated after they heard that the 1,000 available jobs had been filled, and some complained that police played favorites in letting some workers register ahead of others who had been waiting in line for hours. Federal authorities arranged for disappointed workers to be lodged in the national stadium and fed until they could return to their homes.

Mexican Warships Ready With Anti-U-Boat Arms

Mexico City, Jan. 9 (AP)—All Mexican warships have been provided with "sufficient personnel properly trained in the use of anti-submarine weapons," the Government announced today.

The brief announcement gave no hint of the nature or extent of the anti-submarine arming. The Navy Ministry also said that courses in depth bombing would be instituted at the naval school at Veracruz this year.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador, Jan. 9—(AP) Walter Thurston, the new United States minister to El Salvador, arrived by airplane today. He replaces Robert Frazer, who retired to private life recently.

23 Food Advisers Quit Puerto Rico Committee

Agency Said to Have Ignored Counsel on Distribution

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Jan. 9 (AP).—Twenty-three members of the advisory committee to the Food Distribution Administration resigned today. George Holliday, secretary of the Puerto Rican Chamber of Commerce, said the committeemen resented representations by the F. D. A. that food distributions were being made through regular trade channels.

He said the committeemen, though they were supposed only to supply technical information to the administration, actually were asked to certify firms to be used in the food distribution, and that after having made recommendations, these were ignored.

Edward Bash, F. D. A. chief, declared that all items on his list resulted from the committee's recommendations.

Canada Plans More Magnesium

OTTAWA, Jan. 9 (AP).—Investigations recently carried out in laboratories of the Bureau of Mines for production of magnesium chloride from asbestos tailings indicate a possibility of Canada's becoming a leading producer of magnesium, officials said today.

Canada Expected to Follow U. S. Meat Rationing Plan

JAN 10 1943

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Jan. 9.—Officials connected with food supply regulations said today it was a "good guess" that Canada would follow the United States meat rationing policy on beef and veal.

Meat rationing in the United States is expected to start about March 1 and in Government circles the belief was expressed the two countries should adopt like policies.

Canada probably could avoid beef rationing by curtailing cattle exports to the United States, but since that Nation was a good Canadian customer in peace time, officials said, Canada should adopt rationing before reducing shipments to the United States.

Spokesmen also said it might be best to start meat rationing soon to reach a goal of 675,000,000 pounds of bacon which Canada is scheduled to provide the United Kingdom. Canada was unable to supply the quota of 650,000,000 pounds last year within the prescribed time limit.

"The shortage in the United States is largely due to shipments of meats to other United Nations," one official said, "just as the shortage of pork in Canada has been due to filling the bacon agreement with the United Kingdom."

SAYS TIMOSHENKO NOW IS IN NORTH

JAN 10 1943

Berlin Radio Reports Marshal Has Command On Lake Ilmen Front

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 9 — The Berlin radio tonight said Marshal Semeon Timoshenko, formerly the Russian commander on the southern front, was now in charge in the north around Lake Ilmen.

The report was made in a Transocean broadcast of comment on the eastern front.

It was said a Soviet break-through attempt south of Lake Ilmen was frustrated, although the attack was preceded by a violent artillery barrage.

Shift Revealed January 1

A Russian New Year's communique disclosed for the first time a shift in the command on the southern front.

The official announcement merely gave credit to Gen. Gregory K. Zhukov as commander on the southwest front, for the success of the Stalingrad counter-offensives without mentioning Timoshenko.

Observers in Moscow said at the time, however, that it was assumed Timoshenko had been given an important command.

WAR IS DECLARED ON U. S. BY WANG

JAN 10 1943

Tokio (From Japanese Broadcasts), Jan. 9 (A. P.).—Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo announced today that President Wang Ching-wei's national government of China at Nanking had declared war against the United States and the British Empire.

The Japanese war leader declared that the move was a "great step forward in the prosecution of the war in greater East Asia to crush those two enemy countries."

Congratulating the Nanking Government on its move, Premier Tojo said that it would assist Japan to "eradicate the age-old root of evils in our part of the world and to construct a new greater East Asia, thereby contributing to the peace of the world."

The British radio in a broadcast recorded by CBS in New York city said today that the declaration of war by the puppet Nanking Government could have no military importance, but would likely affect those Britons and Americans still living in the area. It estimated 12,000 Britons and Americans were in Shanghai alone. Until now, it added, they have been allowed a certain amount of freedom.

A statement by the Chungking Government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek received in London said that the declaration was "only another ludicrous act in the puppet show with which the Japanese attempt to create the illusion that there exists in China a Government other than that at Chungking."

No Military Importance Seen

The Rome radio, quoting advices from Tokio, reported Saturday that Wang Ching-wei's puppet government, by its declaration of war on the United States and Great Britain, affirmed Wang's confidence "in the successful conclusion of the war in East Asia" and pledged the full resources of his regime to the aid of Japan.

The broadcast followed by little more than a week advices from Chungking telling of friction between Japanese forces and a Chinese hireling army near Peiping in which Wang's efforts at mediation were said to have failed.

A Chungking communique said that Wang had been summoned hurriedly to Peiping to intervene between the invaders and General Chi Hsieh-yuan's mercenary army in North China, but that Chi collected his troops at Nanyuan, south of the occupied former northern capital, "ready to resist any Japanese attempt to disarm his men." The Japanese then sent troops into the area to keep Chi's forces under watch, the communique added.

The British radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Columbia Broadcasting System, said the declaration of war by the puppet Nanking government could have no military importance but would be likely to affect those Britons and Americans still in the area. It estimated 12,000 Britons and Americans were in Shanghai alone. Until now, it added, they have been allowed a certain amount of freedom.

A statement by the Chungking government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek received at London said the Nanking war declaration was "only another ludicrous act in the puppet show with which the Japanese attempt to create the illusion that there exists in China a government other than that at Chungking."

Navy Reveals How 25 Marine Planes Defended Midway Isle from Jap Attacks

JAN 10 1943

Fighter Squadron Downed 43 Enemy Craft, Disrupting Attack.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—(AP) Revealing for the first time the thrilling actions fought by Marine air force units at the battle of Midway island last June, the Navy announced today that all 84 pilots and aerial gunners of those units had been decorated for heroism and that 58 ground crew members had been commended.

There were only two Marine squadrons at Midway when the Japanese armada came in to attempt conquest of the Hawaiian area, the Navy said. These were Fighting Squadrons 221 and Scout-Bombing Squadron 241 — units of Marine Aircraft Group 22

25 Planes Defend Island

The entire aerial defense of Midway fell upon the 25 planes of Fighting 221 when that outpost was attacked by more than 100 enemy bombers and fighters early on June 4, but the squadron did its job so well that for 13 of its own planes lost it destroyed at least 43 Jap planes and so disrupted operations of the others that they failed to put the Midway airfield out of action

Since defensive fighting occupied the entire effort of Squadron 221, the dive-bombers of 241 had to go out alone to attack the enemy fleet. In three missions they lost heavily in planes and men due to violent anti-aircraft fire and fighter resistance, but several enemy aircraft carriers and battleships were badly damaged, if not actually sunk, by their bombs

Of the 84 pilots and gunners of the two squadrons, 38 are listed as missing in action and are presumed to be lost, the Navy said. Their decorations have been sent to their next of kin. Seventeen others were wounded but most of these have recovered and returned to active service.

The 84 decorations — four of which had been announced previously—included a Congressional Medal of Honor, 52 Navy Crosses, a Gold Star (in lieu of a second Navy Cross) and 30 Distinguished Flying Crosses. The Congressional Medal of Honor, announced some weeks ago by the White House, went to Capt. Richard E. Fleming of St. Paul, Minn., who died in his flaming plane during an attack on an enemy battleship

Crashed Plane on Carrier

One of the Navy Cross awards was made to Major Lofton R. Henderson of Lorain, Ohio, who crashed his flaming dive-bomber into a Japanese carrier and the Gold Star was awarded to Capt. Marion E Carl of Woodburn, Oregon, fighter pilot hero of both the Midway engagement and the early air fight over Guadalcanal in the Solomon islands. He previously had been given a Gold Cross in recognition of his destruction of 16 Japanese planes in the Solomons.

The Marine's air force was one of several groups of planes which joined in winning the great American victory at Midway. There were also Army high-level and torpedo bombers and Navy patrol and torpedo planes operating from the island and several of our carriers with their great plane complements were nearby.

The Army and carrier squadrons were engaged in offensive attacks against the Japanese fleet and when the Jap planes roared in toward Midway just after dawn of June 4, it was up to the Marine fighters to make what defense they could. They met the Japs about 30 miles out and a terrific melee ensued.

Despite the three to one ratio the Marines scored over the enemy, there were not enough of them to stop all the invaders and some bombers got through. When finally they had gone, Lieut. Col. Ira L. Kimes of Mexico, Mo., radioed the fighter planes to return and refuel. One by one 12 of the original 25 came back. The pilots were weary and the planes were ripped by bullets. Some of them had to crash-land on the field; others settled on the sea and patrol boats rescued the pilots.

Before the fighters went into action the Marine dive-bombers had taken off from Midway in two formations—16 planes under Major Henderson and 11 under Major Benjamin W. Norris of Coronado, Calif., and Orange, N. J.

The Navy tells their story:

"At 7:55, one hour and 45 minutes out from Midway, Major Henderson's bombers spotted the enemy task force strung out in the distance. The bombers maneuvered for attacking position. Suddenly Zero fighters pounced upon them from the clouds above. Still more Jap Zeros were observed rising from the enemy carriers.

"Greatly outnumbered and without fighter escort, the bombers headed down for a long-hanging cloud layer, the rear gunners blasting away as the Japs made pass after pass. They came out of the clouds at 2,000 feet with the Zeros still on their tails, and turned down upon their targets into an inferno of anti-aircraft fire.

Begin Attack on Carrier

"They drove home glide-bombing runs on what is believed to have been the carrier Soryu. They went on down to between 500 and 300 feet—far below the usual releasing level—before dropping their bomb loads. Three direct hits were observed, and several close misses. Smoke poured from the stern of the carrier. Each surviving gunner claimed at least one Zero fighter.

"It was in this action that Major Henderson crashed his ship into the enemy carrier. His plane was set afire as he began his run on the target. But he did not waver. The crash was witnessed by the gunner of a plane which followed to within 300 feet of the carrier.

"The group under Major Norris made contact with the enemy at 8:20. By this time Zero fighters were swarming around. Because of their attacks, and because he would have had to cross the major portion of the Jap fleet in a hail of anti-aircraft fire to reach a carrier, Major Norris picked a battleship for his target.

"His bombers peeled off into steep dives at close intervals. They were at 500 feet or lower when they released their bombs, scoring at least two direct hits on the stern and several close misses. The gunners of this division also claimed several Zeros.

"More than half of Bombing 241's pilots and [illegible] were missing or wounded after this mission. But the squadron's work was not done. That night, a flight of bombers was sent out to destroy two enemy carriers reported on fire 180 miles from Midway.

Unable to Find Target

"Of this mission Lieutenant Colonel Kimes' official report says: 'The night was pitch black, the target could not be found, and only six bombers returned on schedule. They continued to return at intervals, throughout the night with the assistance of blind luck, a defense battalion searchlight and the oil fire on Sand island. Major Norris did not return.'

"Early next day, June 5, orders were received from the naval air station to attack an enemy battleship and cruiser 140 miles off Midway. Captain Marshall A. Tyler, of Kingston, Rhode Island, and Captain Richard E. Fleming, St. Paul, Minnesota, each with six dive bombers, executed this mission at about 8:00 a. m. One direct hit on the cruiser and several close misses were observed.

"Captain Fleming's plane was hit and set afire by anti-aircraft fire early in his dive, but in spite of this he maintained his dive and gained a direct hit. His plans continued on into the sea, and witnesses said no paracute was observed. Anti-aircraft fire from the enemy warships was very heavy and accurate, but except for this instance, caused only minor damage.

"Captain Fleming won the Congressional Medal of Honor, announced November 24 when President Roosevelt presented the award posthumously to his mother. Captain Fleming was wounded twice in the first attack and there were 179 bullet holes in his plane. Like his comrades who took part in all three missions of Bombing 241, he took off the third time with less than four hours' sleep since the first attack.

Commander Praises Men

"Lieutenant Colonel Kimes, who won the Distinguished Service Medal for his service in command of Group 22 at Midway, had high praise for his men. In his report he said of them:

"'Conduct of personnel, both officer and enlisted, was of the highest possible order. Pilots cheerfully went to a combat in which the odds were certain to be greatly in favor of the enemy. They made repeated attacks, exacting a heavy toll of enemy aircraft and inflicting substantial damage to surface vessels. This applies to both squadrons and particularly to Bombing 241, since in many cases they pushed bombing attacks to within less than 500 feet of their objective.

"'Personnel on the ground did everything humanly possible before, during and after the attack to contribute a share to the defeat of the enemy.'"

Wary Senators Avoid Post-War Commitment

JAN 10 1943

By the Associated Press

Washington, Jan. 9—A tendency to avoid blueprint formulas for the post-war structure of the world until the war is won was indicated today among the Senators who were told by President Roosevelt they might have a hand in building it.

Some who spoke for the record and some speaking privately informed an interviewer they preferred to wait and see whether Americans themselves wanted nationalism, internationalism or some middle-of-the-road policy.

Hopes For Victory In 1944

The President's statement to Congress Thursday that it was "within the realm of possibility" it may help greatly to save the world from future fear was amplified at a press conference yesterday when he expressed hope that the war might be won in 1944.

Similarly, Admiral Harold R. Stark, commander of American naval forces in European waters, who is home for consultation, told reporters he still held to his previously voiced opinion the war would be "long and tough" but that next year "we will be coming along with such power that we can afford to smash in anywhere."

Wait For Soldier Views

The "wait and see" attitude toward post-war plans, said those Senators speaking "off the record," is based on a belief that Americans are still essentially nationalistic. They expressed doubt that other Senators, particularly those who look forward to reelection, would want to take a stand until they knew the temper of the returning soldiers.

Senator Austin (R., Vt.), the unofficial Republican whip, who has been considered anti-isolationist, said for instance that the proposal of Gov. Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, for a United Nations of the world with a single parliament is "very thought-provoking."

Urges U. S. Leadership

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), another who has gone along with the Administration's foreign policy, said he believed "at the conclusion of the war America must take leadership in forming and participating in some form of world organization to maintain peace, specific details for which can only be decided after careful planning and study."

Senator Davis (R., Pa.), new member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said the Stassen plan was only one of many that might be considered for the post-war world.

"Cockeyed," Says Wheeler

Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), on the other hand, called the Stassen plan "cockeyed." Wheeler was identified with the so-called non-interventionists before Pearl Harbor.

Stassen suggested that the nations be represented in the world parliament on the basis of their literate populations.

"How are you going to determine literacy?" asked Wheeler. "Who is going to judge the standard?"

World Council Urged

"Republican and Democratic leaders who advocate some cockeyed scheme do more harm than good toward the realization of real cooperation on a sensible plan between various peoples and countries of the world."

This, Wheeler said, referred alike to Stassen's plan and the proposal of Vice-President Wallace for a "worldwide new democracy" with a world council of nations.

Wallace recently declared that the aggressor nations must be disarmed under control of the world council and advocated supervision or inspection of the German and Japanese schools to prevent the "poisoning" of the pupils' minds.

10,000 Doctors To Be Taken by Services in '43

80,000 Left for Civilians; 400 Already Relocated to Areas of Greater Need

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP).—The War Man-Power Commission disclosed today that 10,000 more of the nation's 180,000 physicians will be taken by the armed forces in 1943, and said that this will leave "more than 80,000" doctors for civilians.

Chairman Paul V. McNutt promised every effort to provide adequate medical care for civilians, partly through voluntary relocation of doctors to areas of greatest need.

Dr. Frank H. Lahey, chairman of the directing board of the W. M. C. procurement and assignment service for physicians, said that 80,000 active civilian physicians will be a "sufficient number to care for the needs of the civil population if these men and women are properly distributed and allocated and if civilians will take every possible health precaution to keep well."

Dr. Lahey reported that more than 400 physicians already have been relocated and that some others will be asked to volunteer for practice elsewhere to assure at least a minimum standard of medical care.

Names of physicians willing and able to be relocated are being submitted to the procurement service, which is working with the United States Public Health Service on studies of industrial and other critical areas.

Dr. Lahey expressed the hope that most relocations can be accomplished without movement of doctors outside their present states, but said some method of temporary licensing for practice in other states probably will have to be arranged.

The pre-war average number of civilians to each practitioner was 1,000, but this figure had increased to 1,400 by last Nov. 30 because of entry of doctors into the military services, Dr. Lahey said.

He reported that, in developing military medical quotas for 1942, allowance was made for inequalities in pre-war distribution of physicians, and relatively small quotas were assigned to such states as Alabama and Mississippi. New York was asked to surrender 38.6 per cent of its active private practitioners to the armed forces, Dr. Lahey said.

Recruiting in 1943, he added, will be confined to states with a "disproportionately large number of physicians." He said that at present there are shortages of physicians in Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Idaho, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, North and South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee and West Virginia.

Wallace Says Spanish Helps American Unity

Urges Study of Language in U. S. to Provide a Real Link With Latin Nations

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP).—Real peace will come in the world, Vice-President Henry A. Wallace said today, "when we have a greater understanding of and sympathy for the peoples of other nations."

The Vice-President appeared on the "Pan-American Holiday" program of the National Broadcasting Company with a group of speakers including Niles Trammell, president of N. B. C.; Ambassador Ernesto Jaen Guardia, of Panama, and Ambassador Luis Fernando Guachalla, of Bolivia.

Praising the efforts of N. B. C. and other broadcasting companies in carrying a knowledge of Latin-American culture to the people of the United States, Mr. Wallace said:

"Really to learn the language of another people widens your outlook and feelings in so many ways as really to equip you with another soul. I hope that we of the United States become so proficient in Spanish that we shall have a Latin soul as well as a North American soul, and that the Latin Americans become so proficient in English that they can understand us, too."

The "Pan-American Holiday" weekly programs, which were started last February as the result of a suggestion by the Vice-President, concluded today with the announcement that eighteen-year-old Augenia Demetriou, of 56-81 Maurice Avenue, Maspeth, L. I., had received an award of a trip to Mexico City as the non-professional singer who had best learned one of the Spanish songs heard on the programs.

The judges were the Vice-President and Mrs. Wallace, Ambassador Martins of Brazil and Mme. Martins and Ambassador Castillo Najera of Mexico and Mme. de Najera.

The Ambassador of Panama, paying tribute to the "true spirit of sincere friendship" between Panama and the United States, cited instances of co-operation by Panama with the United States, and stated that "Panama has also authorized the occupation by the United States armed forces of 101 different areas of land spread throughout the republic for defense purposes."

HULL TO SAY PLENTY

Washington, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Hull said today that he and many others would have plenty to say later about a congressional proposal to terminate reciprocal trade agreements.

The Secretary's statement was made in reply to a press conference request for comment on the proposal introduced yesterday by Representative Knutson, Republican, of Minnesota, by which the twenty-five trade treaties negotiated under Mr. Hull's reciprocal trade policy would be terminated.

GEN. WILBUR GETS MEDAL

As Colonel, His 'Daring' Won Armistice at Casablanca

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—The award of the Congressional Medal of Honor to Brig. Gen. William H. Wilbur of Palmer, Mass., for conspicuous gallantry in action during the landings at Casablanca, Morocco, Nov. 8, was announced today by the War Department.

General Wilbur, then a colonel, planned the contact with French commanders in Casablanca to obtain an armistice to prevent unnecessary bloodshed.

"From the moment of landing until the cessation of hostile resistance Colonel Wilbur's conduct was voluntary and exemplary in its coolness and daring," the citation says.

Sky Giant Makes Maiden Flight After Fire in One of Four Motors

By the Associated Press.

BURBANK, Calif., Jan. 9.—The Constellation, Lockheed Aircraft's new sky giant, soared away on its maiden flight today after a brief delay caused by a backfire which set one of its four powerful motors ablaze.

Two days late on its first test because of weather conditions, the craft took the air at 1:04 p.m. It was sighted a half-hour later over the desert army airport at Muroc, Calif., where it was scheduled to land. It circled for another half-hour, while engineers made observations, then set down gracefully at 2:05 p.m.

The fire blazed up during a practice spin down the runway. Pilot Eddie Allen, warming the motors, raced the length of the airport, then stopped preparatory to turning back. As he brought the big craft—its dimensions are a military secret—to a halt one motor backfired. The flare-up was quickly extinguished and the scheduled take-off took place without incident.

The shark-bodied, triple-tailed ship—capable of flying a light tank and its complement of troops across an ocean—is described by Lockheed engineers, with War Department approval, as "the biggest, swiftest and most powerful land-based American cargo or transport plane ever built."

"The new sky giant," the company declared, "may prove faster than a Japanese Zero fighter or any known four-engined bomber now in active service."

The olive green craft, powered by four 2,000-horsepower, air-cooled, radial motors, was designed and built for Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., as a passenger airliner, but for the duration the initial model and its successors will be turned over to the Army for wartime duty.

Builders of the motors, Wright Cyclone 18's, said they are the world's most powerful service aircraft engines. They added that their low weight ratio of 1.1 pounds per horsepower, plus low fuel consumption and high horsepower for taking off with heavy loads, are factors in the Constellation's long range.

Can Fly on Two Motors.

The aerial newcomer will cruise at 20,000 feet, which is above 90 per cent of all rough-air disturbances, and carries ample fuel to fly around most others. If necessary the Constellation can rise to 35,000 feet. Meanwhile, the pressurized cabin, air-conditioned and heated or cooled according to climate, will maintain air density of the 8,000-foot level, for comfort to passengers.

If an engine fails, the ship can fly at 25,000 feet on the other three. If two motors die, the other two will carry the plane at 16,500 feet.

Flying a full load, the big transport uses one gallon of gasoline per mile, the company said.

It lands, said the company announcement, "at reasonable automobile speed." A motor can be changed in 45 minutes instead of the full day once necessary.

The wing, the company revealed, is in effect an enlargement of that on Lockheed's famous P-38 fighter. At today's unveiling of the plane, a P-38 nestled comfortably under one wing of the new giant.

Aboard the Constellation on its first flight were Pilot Allen, Milo Burcham, co-pilot; C. L. (Kelly) Johnson, Lockheed's chief research engineer; Rudy Thoren, Mr. Johnson's assistant, and Dick Stanton, chief mechanic.

FIRST SUBMARINE TO USE DECK GUN SINKS 8 JAP SHIPS

Ensign Tells Dramatic Story of Underseas Patrol

JAN 10 1943

NEW LONDON, Jan 9.—The story of the first American submarine to patrol off Tokyo and to sink a Japanese ship with a deck gun in the unceasing sea warfare which began with Pearl Harbor was told here today, told in plain, matter-of-fact fashion which would have had the manufacturers of adventure yarns tearing at their hair had they been present.

Ensign Samuel E. Clark, 33, who was promoted to commissioned rank recently after 12 years as an enlisted man in the Navy, said that his submarine commanded by Lieut. Commander Stanley P. Moseley, sank seven of eight ships attacked with gunfire, in addition to accounting for several other enemy vessels with its torpedoes.

On Duty at New London

Lieut. Commander Moseley, also

30.24-217

30.24-217

now on duty at the New London submarine base, has received the Navy Cross for heroic and distinguished conduct during offensive war patrols against the Japanese.

Describing one of the first attacks made with the submarine's deck gun on a Japanese vessel, Ensign Clark, who was a chief electrician's mate at the time, said that the first shot smashed the ship's bridge before the Jap lookout knew what was happening.

"The captain told me to hit the bridge with the first shell," the officer related. "He said I was to put the first shot right through a big red Jap rising sun painted on the vessel. That's just what we did. The next shell went through their living quarters and the third through the engine room. The ship caught fire and went down."

Attacked by Jap Planes

On the way to Pearl Harbor when the Japanese attacked Dec. 7, 1941, the submarine on which Clark was serving received her first taste of battle when enemy planes dived on the craft's periscope and sprayed the water with machine gun bullets.

"Later the submarine was bound for Japan and the crew was a bloodthirsty lot," Clark recounted. "One look at that base in Pearl Harbor and you wanted to go fight 'em with a butcher knife. My conscience hasn't hurt me yet for anything we've done."

Clark's submarine operated "at the very doorstep of Japan," he said. "We were the first sub there and the first to use our deck gun, too. We used to listen to their radio a lot. We called one of the broadcasters, a woman, Tokyo Rose. She spoke in English and used to refer to our submarines as mere toys which the Jap fleet would easily sink. But after we had sunk a few of their ships she began to term us 'the black panther of the Pacific' and some other names. We got a big kick out of her."

The submarine was running on the surface one night, Clark continued, when a big merchant ship was sighted.

"We torpedoed her," he said, "and a few nights later we got another. One morning we spotted two other big vessels. We sank one, but the other slipped away."

Dodge Jap Destroyer

During that time, the sub had been dodging a Jap destroyer.

"Our captain, who is one of the best in the business in my opinion," Clark said, "is rather bald. Well, we'd got down to our last torpedo and were about to head for home. The captain said, 'That destroyer has been in my hair for a week now. I'm going to get that so-and-so with this last pickle.'

"I could hardly restrain myself from saying, 'Captain, what hair?'

"The submarine missed the destroyer and that [illegible] broke our heart.

"Then the sub headed for home, Pearl Harbor, and the crew took a two-week rest at the Royal Hawaiian hotel, reserved primarily for submarine crews.

On subsequent trips, the undersea craft sank more ships off Japan and in the China Sea.

Big Ship Explodes

"One was a huge ship, perhaps carrying ammunition," Clark said. "I was in the conning tower when we hit her. She exploded with a terrific roar."

As gun pointer, Clark participated in every one of the surface attacks in which the guns were used. Only one ship was not hit with the first shot, and in that instance the gun misfired. But—"the next three finished him."

Submarine men are an elite group in the Navy itself, while, to the outsider, they are still the mystery men of this war. The toll taken of enemy shipping by these "silent warriors" is heavy. Even the publicly-announced figures are impressive, and, by the very nature of submarine warfare, many successes are unknown to the high command until many weeks after they have been scored on the submarine's log.

According to official figures released by the Navy, United States submarines have hit some 150 Jap ships. Of this number, about 70 per cent have been sunk; the rest are divided between probables—those which have been hit hard and presumably went down, although the actual sinking was not seen—and the damaged — those which have been raked by gunfire or torpedoed, but which managed to survive. Against this record, five American submarines have been reported lost.

Torpedoed Ship's Crew Lauds Mate's Heroism

[By the Associated Press]

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 9—Survivors of a United States merchant ship sunk by enemy torpedoes in the Indian Ocean credited their survival to the endurance and heroism of Chief Mate Van R. McCarty, of Houston, Texas, who remained at the helm of a lifeboat for six days with only six hours' sleep, keeping the boat afloat through sixty-three hours of gale.

Blasted by three torpedoes, the medium-sized ship, which was making her maiden voyage, went to the bottom less than one hour after the late November daylight attack opened. The navy announced the sinking today.

McCarty said there were sixty men in the ship's company, including a fourteen-man navy gun crew. The 51-year-old chief mate and eighteen others were rescued by an American merchant ship, landed at an island south of here and later brought to Norfolk.

Others Rescued

McCarty told newsmen today that he had heard all the others had been rescued by other ships and landed at other ports.

The gun crew counter-attacked after the enemy submarine surfaced, but scored no hits, McCarty reported. "I believe the sub tried to avoid torpedoing us in the engine room," he said, adding that four torpedoes were fired, two striking near the bow, one near the stern and a fourth passing astern.

Duval Clemens, second assistant engineer, of Galveston, Texas, said the weather during the six days they were in the boat was the worst he had ever seen. He said McCarthy's "manipulation of the lifeboat was too wonderful to explain in words. He kept up the men's morale. He was never abusive. He never slept more than two hours at a stretch. In that boat he was our boss and our god."

Sub Surfaces

McCarty said the submarine approached the skipper's lifeboat and the submarine commander interrogated Capt. A. M. Magnusdahl, of Hopewell, Va., concerning the ship's name, tonnage, cargo, where she was from and where bound.

After several minutes of conversation the sub submerged.

The torpedoing was the third for Captain Magnusdahl, McCarty said.

Captain In Boston

Meanwhile, nine survivors, including Captain Magnusdahl, landed in Boston. The captain's lifeboat was afloat nine days before the crew was taken aboard another vessel. The submarine, Captain Magnusdahl related, was painted light gray, streaked with rust.

The bearded German commander spoke English, he said, adding that two young junior officers also were bearded.

TELL OF SHIP SINKING

Boston, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—Despite the blasting of their medium sized merchantman by three torpedoes, the vessel remained afloat for forty-five minutes and all hands abandoned ship safely, nine survivors reported today upon arrival at Boston after having been landed at another North Atlantic port. The sinking occurred in the Indian Ocean, the latter part of November, Capt. Arnt Magnusdol said.

He said that he had been informed that other survivors of the ship's company of fifty-seven had been picked up and landed elsewhere. His lifeboat was afloat nine days before the crew was taken aboard another vessel.

The submarine, he related, surfaced after the attack and came along side lifeboats to question members of the crew concerning their destination and cargo. He described the undersea craft as German, painted light gray, streaked with rust.

The bearded German commander spoke English, he said, adding that two young junior officers also were bearded. The submarine traveled on the surface as it left the scene. Capt. Magnusdol said that four torpedoes were fired at his vessel but one passed under the stern.

Marine Private Gets DFC for Air Feats In Midway Battle

Gunner Wounded by Four Bullets and Shrapnel

While Fighting Japs

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 9.—Slender, 19-year-old Pvt. Charles H. Huber of Bloomington, Ill., Marine Corps radioman-gunner, held the Distinguished Flying Cross today for courage and loyalty against heavy odds in the battle of Midway last June 4 and 5.

Pvt. Huber, achieving a goal seldom reached by men of his rank, received the cross from Col. M. E. Shearer at ceremonies on the wind-swept drill field of the Mare Island Navy Yard.

The citation said the award was for "extraordinary achievement while participating in an aerial flight as radioman-gunner in a Marine scout bombing squadron * * *.

"In a determined attack against the invading Japanese fleet, Pvt. Huber, as rear-seat free machine gunner, maintained effective fire in the fact of overwhelming enemy fighter opposition and fierce anti-aircraft barrage, by continuing the performance of his duty after being painfully wounded."

Former Linoleum Salesman.

Pvt. Huber, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huber of Bloomington, gave up selling linoleum to sign up with the Leathernecks in Chicago a year ago this month.

Today he described the June 4 action in a plane with Lt. Tom Moore of New York. It was just after dawn.

"I saw (Japanese) ships everywhere, counting about 50 myself. I guess there were more. I saw Jap sailors on a transport all decked out in whites. I guess they thought they were going to parade into Midway with a band—but we spoiled that for them.

"Maj. (Lofton R.) Henderson gave the order to select targets, peel off and dive. Zeros were already up, and the ack-ack was so thick I didn't see how we could get through—it looked like a wall of fire.

Hardly Noticed Leg Wound.

"My gun was in action. Then I took a machine gun bullet in the leg but hardly noticed it. I saw my buddy bail out of his flaming plane. A Zero machine-gunned him as he drifted down. I saw that. Then I didn't notice my leg."

He said then Lt. Moore "laid our eggs" on a carrier flight deck. Pvt. Huber's gun strafed the entire length of the ship—"then we started back upstairs."

"Three Zeros were right on us, but I got one for sure * * * Then I was hit by three more machine gun bullets—two in the leg again and once in my hand, and later I found some shrapnel had hit me, too—but just small pieces."

After his gun jammed, Pvt. Huber kept swinging it "to make them (the Zeros) think it was okay, * * * till we found cover in the clouds."

Brother of Three Slain At Pearl Harbor Joins Navy

By the Associated Press.

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Jan. 9.—A red service star has been added to the three gold stars in the window of the Peter Barber farmhouse near New London.

The fourth star is for Clayton Barber, 17, who arrived at the Naval Training Station yesterday for his "boot" training. The gold stars are for his brothers, Malcomb, 22; Leroy, 21, and Randolph, 19, who were killed in action aboard the U. S. S. Oklahoma at Pearl Harbor.

Clayton said he had planned to enlist in the Navy for as long as he could remember. He reached enlistment age only recently and his parents made no effort to dissuade him, he said.

The fifth Barber boy wants to be a sailor, too, Clayton said, but he'll have to wait a while. Number five is only 10.

2 SWEDISH SHIPS SUNK OFF NORWAY

Mines Destroy Safe-Conduct Vessels, News Exchange Reports.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP) Two Swedish safe-conduct ships, the 10,313-ton, motor tanker Sveajarl, and the 5,294-ton motorship Brasil, have been sunk by mines off the Norwegian coast, the American Swedish News exchange announced today.

The crews of both vessels, which were outbound at the time, were probably saved, the agency said. The dates of the sinkings were not given.

Meanwhile, the ASNE reported three other Swedish safe-conduct ships, the Saturnus, Nordstjernan and Uruguay, arrived in Swedish waters with the survivors of four torpedoed Swedish vessels. The four ships sunk were the motor freighters Scania, 1,629 tons, Eknaren, 6,390 tons, Blankaholm, 2,845 tons, and the freighter Peiping, 6,390 tons, the agency said.

Before reaching home waters, the Nordstjernan collided with a German ship in the Skagerrak, the news exchange said.

Japs Real Fanatics, Says Former A. P. Chief in Tokio

By the Associated Press.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Jan. 9.—Max Hill, former Associated Press bureau chief in Tokio, told members of the Lynchburg Chamber of Commerce last night that "the real fanatics of this world rule Japan."

"We talk glibly of madmen in Europe—Hitler and Mussolini," Mr. Hill declared, "yet Hitler delegates his power and active control of the Gestapo to Himmler. Tojo doesn't. He wouldn't deprive himself of the sadistic pleasure of watching his victims writhe under the torture he personally supervises."

Mr. Hill and Joseph W. Grigg, jr., former United States manager in Berlin, gave detailed pictures of conditions in Germany and Japan just before and immediately after the beginning of hostilities with the United States.

Mr. Hill described 1943 as the "critical year" in the Pacific.

"Japan is strong," he warned. "She won't break, and in many conquered lands she is persuading the native populations to aid and work for her."

"We are not yet winning the war in the Pacific," he added.

On the day of the attack on Pearl Harbor Mr. Hill was arrested and sentenced to serve 18 months in prison for writing stories "detrimental to Japan's diplomacy."

Mr. Hill described China "as the one logical front from which to attack Japan," and stated flatly that the time to fight is now.

Dutch Navy Back in Action, Admiral Helfrich Reports

JAN 10 1943

Battle of Java Sea Commander Says Japs Will Fight to Last

Vice Admiral C. E. L. Helfrich, who commanded Allied naval forces in the battle of the Java Sea, was ordered to Colombo last March to reorganize the shattered Netherlands sea units after the Japanese conquest of the East Indies. He now is in the United States, after consultations with his government in London, and here, writing for the Associated Press and the Aneta News Agency, he reports the Dutch Navy back in action and summarizes today's situation in the Far East.

By VICE ADMIRAL C. E. L. HELFRICH,
Commander-in-Chief, Netherlands Forces in the Far East.

A year ago tomorrow, the news reached me at Batavia that the Japanese had made landings on Tarakan, off the east coast of Borneo and on the northern peninsula of the Island of Celebes. This was the blow we had been awaiting, the beginning of the invasion we had expected for months. In two short months, the Japanese were to conquer the bulk of our beloved islands.

We had not waited for the blow to fall. As early as June, 1941, we were convinced that the Japanese were preparing to open hostilities with some surprise move. Many days before Pearl Harbor we had received reports of Japanese movements that satisfied us that the Japanese were up to something. A week before December 7, I ordered units of the N. E. I. Navy to take battle stations.

As soon as the Japanese struck at the United States and Britain, the Netherlands government in London declared war on Tokio. This dispelled the doubt in some quarters as to whether we would wait until we were attacked. With our naval units already at action stations, we were able to start immediate offensive operations against the Japanese. Thus it was possible for the Dutch to draw the first Japanese blood of the war when our submarines on December 12 sank four enemy transports in the Gulf of Siam.

First Phase of War.

The first phase of the war centered on the defense of Singapore and Malaya, and the Dutch gave all their energies toward assisting in this defense. A substantial part of the NEI Air Force was sent to Malaya and was lost in this campaign. But we have never regretted sending these planes northward—we felt that the battle for Singapore was also a battle for the Indies, as later turned out to be the case.

I have been asked several times, incidentally, whether I agreed with the strategy of Admiral Phillips in taking out the British battleship Prince of Wales and cruiser Repulse without air protection. All I can say is that I would have done the same thing. As a matter of fact, our fleet was compelled to sail without air cover during the entire campaign.

Then, on January 10, the war came to our shores. Our navy, in company with the army acquitted itself nobly. Outnumbered and outclassed, our forces nevertheless managed to inflict serious damage on the Japanese. Our guiding policy was—attack! We never waited for the Japs to set the stage for an engagement but, wherever possible, went out and met them.

Some of the naval battles fought in East Indies waters will go down into history—Macassar Straits, Lombok Straits and finally the great Java Sea battle. Much has been said and written about that last engagement, in which American, Australian, British and Dutch units under my command went out to meet the Japanese invasion fleet steering toward Java. The final judgment on this battle will have to be made by history.

One erroneous report I can correct now. Some American newspapers said the Dutch cruisers De Ruyter and Java were lost by striking Dutch mines. It was absolutely impossible for this to have happened. The battle was fought 50 miles from the coast, while our mines were laid only up to the three-mile limit. These cruisers undoubtedly were torpedoed by a Japanese cruiser squadron, which had been sighted shortly before only 8 kilometers away.

Road to Victory.

Since last March the Dutch naval forces have returned to action. The most important part of the Netherlands Navy is still in the Far East—some units operating under Admiral Somerville, of the British Navy in the Indian Ocean and others in the Southwest Pacific under Gen. MacArthur. Our base in Colombo is very strongly held and manned by first-class men. Dutch submarines have been in action against the Japanese in recent months. And Dutch cruisers and destroyers participated in the British expedition against Madagascar.

The situation in the Far East today is vastly different from that which existed a year ago. We have a long way to go over a hard road, but we are on the road that leads to victory. We are yet on the offensive. I regard such action as the invasion of the Solomons as being mainly defensive in nature, aimed at protecting Allied communications. But the big offensive will come.

Once Germany is finished off, it will be possible to concentrate greater forces in the Pacific, and then there will be no question of the outcome—we will crush Japan and shatter her power to start any new aggresion.

But let there be no illusion about the magnitude of the task. We will have to lick the Japanese man by man. We will have to reconquer the territory we have lost island by island. I think the Japanese will fight to the end.

But the atmosphere in the Far East has changed in a year. On January 10, 1942, Japan was in the ascendant and we were on the defensive; today Japan knows that her hour of doom is approaching and she is on the defensive.

Bonds, like bombs, come in many sizes. Even the smallest one gives a jolt to the Axis—if you buy it.

Two Questions Raised

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—Edward J Flynn's abandonment of the national Democratic leadership for an "Ambassadorship" to Australia today is stirring twin circles of speculation in Washington's diplomatic and political waters.

Chief questions to be answered are: (1) Will the diplomatic development return Nelson T. Johnson, former Ambassador to China and now Minister to Australia, to the Chinese post and (2) who will succeed Flynn at the Democratic helm?

While both points normally might seem simple of solution the White House's "no statement" reply to the Flynn announcement in New York yesterday left the field wide open for customary Capital guessing games.

Expects Announcement

Flynn made it plain he expected the President to announce his appointment as Mr. Roosevelt's "Ambassador and personal representative" to Australia. His terminology indicated that the rank of the American diplomatic representative to Australia—now only that of a Minister—would be raised to Ambassador by Presidential order. But the only immediate White House reaction was: "There will be no statement from here."

Diplomatic Shift

Johnson's return to China has been hinted by recent unconfirmed reports that Clarence E. Gauss, present Ambassador to China, would be given another post.

Just how much of the anticipated Australian diplomatic shift might have been conceived by the Chinese situation was another cause for speculation. Without mentioning Gauss by name, Wendell Willkie implied after his world tour late last year that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek would welcome a change.

In addition, some Chinese quarters interpreted the recent removal of Dr. Hu Shih as Chinese Ambassador to the United States as Chunking's subtle suggestion that Johnson be returned to China. Known for his fluent command of the Chinese language and his intimate understanding of Chinese ways, Johnson was said to be as popular in China as Hu Shih's ease with English and American ways and made the latter here.

To Ask Senate Hearings

Sidney S. Baron, secretary of the Citizens Committee to Reopen the Flynn Case, said he and others would be in Washington today to ask Senate leaders to hold public hearings concerning the reported forthcoming appointment.

The committee was created when a Bronx grand jury last April absolved Flynn after an investigation into assertions that city materials and labor had been used in paving a Belgian courtyard on Flynn's Lake Mahopac (N. Y.) estate.

Senator Guffey (D., Pa.), member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, predicted today that the Senate would confirm the appointment, saying "I'm confident of that."

Flynn Reaffirms His Envoy Announcement

JAN 10 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 9—Edward J. Flynn, who yesterday announced his resignation as national Democratic chairman, said he was confident he would be sent to Australia as President Roosevelt's personal representative with the title of minister plenipotentiary and said he probably would leave "early in February."

Although there was no official corroboration from the White House, Flynn indicated that there was no change in the announcement he made yesterday when he said in a statement:

"The President has, today, appointed me his ambassador and personal representative, and will send to the Senate on Monday my nomination as minister plenipotentiary to Australia."

Leaving In February

After Flynn had visited Bronx Democratic headquarters today, a reporter asked him:

"When do you expect to leave for Australia?"

Flynn replied directly:

"Early in February."

KAISER PROPOSES HIGHWAY PROGRAM IN POST-WAR ERA

JAN 10 1943

Would Spread Employment, Care for Returning Service Men.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP) Shipbuilder Henry J. Kaiser, concerned about the need to prevent unemployment after the war, says municipalities should begin planning now for great highways when peace comes.

He had several things in mind, when, in an interview, he suggested new highways:

Building them would provide employment and, if automobiles are made cheaply enough, people will buy more of them than ever before, thus providing employment for those who make them.

Kaiser May Build Cars

He had said during the week that unless the automobile industry makes cars cheaply enough he would make them himself.

But he is not the first to advocate highway construction to provide employment after the war.

Some American economists have already suggested that the government undertake great public projects when peace comes, although not suggesting that they should take the form of relief jobs such as happened during the depression.

Scarcely anyone in the United States has yet come forward with the notion that there will not be some unemployment after the war, at least in the period immediately following the cessation of armament making.

When Mr. Kaiser recognizes the gigantic problem of providing jobs for the millions of men coming home from the armed services he is also thinking of the millions of women who have gone into jobs during the war.

He believes many of them will be reluctant to go back to housekeeping or office work and will want to stay in good-paying jobs.

In pointing out the need for great highways which will become increasingly acute in the years ahead, Mr. Kaiser needs to point no further away than New York:

This metropolis is a good example of what the future holds for American cities which will have to find some way to relieve traffic bottlenecks and provide quicker inlets and outlets.

Back of Mr. Kaiser's challenge to the automobile manufacturers to turn out cheaper post-war cars was this belief, shared by automotive engineers:

Post-war automobiles will be lighter than the kind known before because of new and lighter metals—such as aluminum—which will be available in quantities undreamed of before the war.

SIKORSKI GIVES PLAN FOR PEACE

JAN 10 1943

Polish Leader Delivers His Farewell Address Here.

In a farewell address to the United States here today, Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, Prime Minister of Poland and commander in chief of the Polish armed forces, expressed the belief that a central European federation would constitute the firmest guarantee of a lasting peace after the war, and urged the United Nations to prepare now the foundations for such a peace.

Gen. Sikorski addressed more than 1,000 persons in City Hall Plaza, where he was greeted by Mayor LaGuardia and later attended a reception in the Mayor's offices.

Declaring that the total destruction of German, Italian and Japanese totalitarianism is now certain, the Polish leader predicted that the time is not far distant when the Allied armies will invade the very heart of Hitler-dominated Europe and crush Nazism for all time.

Allied air power, he continued, would soon be able to attack from many new bases and on an ever increasing scale. Then, when the actual invasion starts, he said, the oppressed peoples will rise in their might to help in the final defeat of Hitler.

Problem of Lasting Peace.

After victory, Gen. Sikorski said, the world will be faced with the problem of organizing a democratic and lasting peace, and added that the opportunity for such a peace should not be muffed.

"Should it be missed," he declared, "the enormous effort and all the sacrifices on the part of the democracies, the hell of the suffering of the nations enslaved, will have been in vain."

Gen. Sikorski expressed the gratitude of the Polish people for the way America has thrown her power and resources into the fight for freedom, and declared that there is no such thing as isolation from common dangers.

Mayor LaGuardia said the American people could not adequately express their admiration for the liberty-loving, fighting people of Poland and for the resistance they have put up in defense of their homeland against a mighty and brutal nation. Poland, the Mayor said, never has, and never will, submit to oppression.

Gen. Sikorski's party at City Hall included Jan Ciechanowski, Polish Ambassador to the United States; Sylwin Strakacz, Consul-General of Poland, and several military aids. Mayor LaGuardia's reception committee included high-ranking officers of the armed forces, city officials, prominent members of the clergy and civic leaders.

Earlier today it was announced that Gen. Sikorski had received a cable from the Polish Government in London informing him that hitherto unknown acts of barbarism were being committed against the Poles by the Germans, indicating that the Germans feared the Russian offensive might soon roll into Poland.

'Shanghai Post And Mercury' Reopens Here

English-Language Paper Was Thorn to Japanese Before Attack on U. S.

JAN 10 1943

"The Shanghai Evening Post and Mercury," English-language daily read by foreigners up and down the coast of China, where it was a constant thorn in the side of Japanese militarists long before the attack on Pearl Harbor, has moved its office 10,000 miles from Avenue Edward VII, in the French Concession of Japanese-controlled Shanghai, to the freedom of a fifth floor at 101 Fifth Avenue, New York.

The publisher and members of the editorial staff of the Shanghai paper, free from Japanese and treacherous Chinese gunmen who frequently threatened them, were busy there yesterday working on a New York edition of the old "Post and Mercury," believed to be the first "refugee" American-Chinese newspaper published in this country.

Now a Tabloid

Although reduced in size from a twelve-page full-size newspaper to an eight-page tabloid, the New York edition carries the old masthead, with a sketch of the Shanghai custom-house building in the center and two additional sketches of metropolitan buildings on each side, giving the differences in time between New York and London and between San Francisco and Shanghai.

Names at the head of the editorial page also will ring a familiar note for thousands of readers who once bought the newspaper in Shanghai for 40 Chinese cents, about 3 American cents. The New York edition, which will be published weekly at 5 cents a copy or $2 a year, is published by Cornelius V. Starr, owner and publisher of the original paper and widely known in China as a successful business man. Mr. Starr, who made a fortune in Shanghai selling life insurance, automobiles and numerous other commodities, is head of the so-called Starr chain of companies in this country, including the Asia Life Insurance Company, the American International Underwriters Corporation and the United States Life Insurance Company, whose building now houses the newspaper's offices.

Editorials Hit Japanese

Randall Gould, forty-four-year-old Montanan, who passed eighteen years in the Far East, during many of which he incurred the wrath of Japanese militarists because of his vigorous editorial attacks on them in the "Post and Mercury," is editor of the new paper, and F. B. Opper, thirty-one, of New Rochelle, N. Y., who succeeded him in 1941 and edited the last edition before the paper was seized by the Japanese on Dec. 8, 1941, is associate editor.

They explained yesterday that negotiations are under way to reestablish the "Post and Mercury" on Chinese soil by publishing a Chungking edition, of which Mr. Opper will be editor. Difficulties in getting transportation to Chungking are presently holding up this project, they said.

About 8,000 copies of the first edition of the new publication were distributed Jan. 1 to subscribers of a former China news letter issued by Mr. Starr and to numerous former residents of the Far East, Mr. Gould said. He expects the regular circulation of the paper, which will carry advertising and will attempt to be self-sustaining, to be about 4,000.

The paper carries news of former residents of the Far East now scattered throughout the world, reports of special interest to readers, such as settlement of foreign claims against Japan, and recipes of choice Chinese dishes.

30.24-221

NAVY WHICH PATROL THE ARCTIC CONVOY ROUTES--RETURNED TO ITS BASE TODAY, WEATHER-BEATEN, SCARRED BY ICE AND MOUNTAINOUS SEAS BUT FIGHTING FIT.

JAN 10 1943

FROM THE QUARTER DECK OF THE FLAGSHIP I WATCHED THE FLOTILLA STEAM PROUDLY INTO THE HARBOR. IT WAS AN INSPIRING SIGHT, FILLED WITH MEMORIES OF THE FOUR WEEKS LAST FALL WHEN I MADE A 6,000-MILE CRUISE THROUGH ARCTIC WATERS WITH THIS SAME FLOTILLA.

THE WHITE ENSIGN AND A PROFUSION OF SIGNAL FLAGS STREAMED FROM THE MASTS OF EVERY SHIP. OFFICERS AND MEN STOOD RIGIDLY AT ATTENTION, DESPITE THEIR WEARINESS, ON THE UPPERDECKS, TURRETS, AND BRIDGES.

AS EACH SHIP PASSED THE FLAGSHIP, THESE HARD-BITTEN MEN OF THE ROYAL NAVY THREW THEIR CAPS INTO THE AIR AND WILDLY CHEERED THEIR FIGHTING ADMIRAL WITH SHOUTS THAT CARRIED OVER THE ENTIRE BAY. IN TURN, THE ADMIRAL AND HIS STAFF WAVED BACK TO EACH DESTROYER.

THEN, OVER A LOUDSPEAKER SYSTEM, THE ADMIRAL HAILED EACH VESSEL WITH THE WORDS, "WELL DONE, WELL DONE--THANK YOU VERY MUCH."

JAN 10 1943

THE CEREMONY, IN A WAY, WAS CELEBRATION OF A TURNING POINT WHICH HAS BEEN REACHED AND PASSED--THE "BLUE NOSE FLEET" IS OVER THE HUMP IN ITS BITTER FIGHT TO RAM THROUGH TO RUSSIA THE SHIPS CARRYING THE VITAL MATERIALS OF WAR UNDER THE VERY NOSES OF THE LUFTWAFFE AND GERMAN NAVY.

THE BOMB-BLASTED GANTLET TO MALTA IS NOT THE ONLY SUPPLY LINE WHERE THE CONVOYS ARE GOING THROUGH DESPITE FIERCE AXIS OPPOSITION. NORTH OF NOWHERE, THROUGH THE ARCTIC DUSK ALONG THE ROAD TO MURMANSK, THEY ARE GETTING THROUGH TO RUSSIA IN UNDREAMED-OF VOLUME.

FEW DETAILS OF HOW THAT IS BEING ACCOMPLISHED CAN BE REVEALED NOW ON THE PRINCIPLE THAT WHAT JERRY DOESN'T KNOW WON'T HELP HIM.

THE MEN OF THE DESTROYER FLOTILLA WHICH CAME HOME TODAY ARE VETERANS OF THE MYTHICAL "ORDER OF THE BLUE NOSE" WHICH IS CONFERRED ON ALL WHO CROSS THE ARCTIC CIRCLE ON ACTIVE DUTY--AND "BLUE NOSE" IS INDEED A FITTING TERM.

JAN 10 1943

THE SHIPS OF THE FLOTILLA WERE COVERED WITH ICE, BATTERED BY ENDLESS GALES AND PILE-DRIVER WAVES. THE MEN, DRENCHED WITH SALT SPRAY WERE WEARY, RED-EYED AND COLD. OFTEN STORMS FOR DAYS ON END MAKE IT ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO EAT AND SLEEP, EVEN TO STAND UPRIGHT, BUT AT ALL TIMES THEIR SHIPS ARE READY TO FIGHT.

THEY HAVE EARNED ANOTHER OF THEIR INFREQUENT RESTS.

MEANTIME, MILITARY OBSERVERS AT THIS BASE ARE SAYING TODAY THAT THE GERMAN NAVAL FORCE WHICH WAS ROUTED WHEN IT ATTACKED A RUSSIA-BOUND CONVOY EAST OF BEAR ISLAND LAST MONTH WAS LUCKY INDEED TO ESCAPE TO ITS HIDEOUT IN THE NORWEGIAN FJORDS.

THE HAPLESS--BUT GALLANT--GERMAN DESTROYER WHICH BLUNDERED INTO THE PATH OF THE BRITISH BATTLE FORCE, TO BE SUNK ALMOST IMMEDIATELY SLOWED THE BRITISH LONG ENOUGH TO GIVE THE OTHER GERMAN VESSELS A BADLY-NEEDED 6,000-YARD EXTRA LEAD.

JAN 10 1943

AND THE GERMANS' LUCK DIDN'T STOP THERE. THE BATTLE FORCE WHICH DROVE THEM BACK TO THEIR FJORDS WAS STRONG, BUT IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN MUCH STRONGER.

WHEN THE BRITISH HOME FLEET IS ON CONVOY DUTY TO RUSSIA, IT HAS A HABIT OF MAKING SURE THE CONVOY GETS THROUGH.

OVER THE HOLIDAYS, A LARGE PROPORTION OF THE HOME FLEET WAS AT SEA ON A VARIETY OF ASSIGNMENTS AND PATROLS. ONE OBJECT WAS TO SEE THAT RUSSIAN CONVOY THROUGH. ANOTHER WAS TO DESTROY ANY GERMAN UNITS WHICH MIGHT VENTURE OUT AS A CHRISTMAS PRESENT.

I SPENT CHRISTMAS ABOARD A CRUISER WHICH WAS PART OF ONE OF THESE "COVERING FORCES." WITH OTHER UNITS, WE SPENT OUR HOLIDAYS FLAUNTING OUR PRESENCE UP AND DOWN THE NORWEGIAN COAST, TRYING TO DRAW OUT AN ENEMY FORCE.

AFTER OUR ASSIGNED PATROL HAD BEEN COMPLETED, WE HUNG ON HOPEFULLY FOR A FEW HOURS MORE, BUT THERE WAS NOTHING DOING. WE BUFFETED OUR WAY HOMEWARD DISAPPOINTED.

NAVY FLYING BOAT GETS UNDER JAP'S HIDE (850)

JAN 10 1943

BY EUGENE BURNS

(ADVANCE) ABOARD A CATALINA FLYING BOAT OVER NEW GEORGIA ISLAND IN THE SOLOMONS, DEC.15-(DELAYED)-(AP)-"MUNDA POINT IS DEAD AHEAD," SHOUTS THE PATROL PLANE COMMANDER ABOVE THE ROAR OF OUR TWIN PRATT & WHITNEY ENGINES' 2,400 HORSEPOWER. "WE'LL MAKE TWO RUNS ON THE JAPS BEFORE WE BEGIN UNLOADING."

OURS IS A MIDNIGHT "LOUIE THE LOUSE" MISSION--GETTING UNDER THE JAPS' HIDE AND KEEPING HIM AWAKE, AND THE PLANE COMMANDER, LIEUT. LAUREN E.JOHNSON, 27, OF OLYMPIA, WASH., IS GOING THROUGH WITH IT DESPITE SIGNS OF A STORM.

IN THE LIGHT OF A HALF-MOON RACING OUT OF UGLY BLACK CLOUDS, WE HAVE BEEN SCANNING THE CORAL-BOUND COASTLINE OF THE JUNGLE-MATTED ISLAND 150 MILES NORTHWEST OF GUADALCANAL. WE ARE DEEP IN JAPANESE-HELD TERRITORY. OUR GUNNERS ARE ON THE ALERT. OUR PILOTS ARE STRAINING THEIR EYES.

JAN 10 1943

EN ROUTE WE HAVE BEEN CONJECTURING:

DOES THE NEW JAPANESE "UNSINKABLE CARRIER" AIRFIELD AT MUNDA MEAN THE ENEMY IS PREPARING A CONCERTED, ALL-OUT AIR, SURFACE AND SUBMARINE ATTACK ON GUADALCANAL BEFORE CHRISTMAS?

FROM HERE HE MIGHT GIVE HIS SURFACE VESSELS THE AIR PROTECTION THEY SO SORELY NEEDED ON NOV. 12 AND NOV. 16.

MAYBE THE JAPANESE ARE FINDING THEIR ZERO FIGHTER OPERATIONAL LOSSES TOO HIGH. BY HALVING THE DISTANCE BETWEEN BUIN AND

30.24-227

HENDERSON FIELD ON GUADALCANAL MAYBE MORE WILL GET BACK AFTER LEAVING THE FIGHTING AREA.

A THOUSAND POUNDS LESS GASOLINE WILL MAKE THEM MORE MANEUVERABLE AGAINST OUR LOCKHEED LIGHTNINGS AND GRUMMAN WILDCATS.

WHEN WE WERE OFF GUADALCANAL, WALT HOWARD, 21, OF SIOUX CITY, IOWA, FED US INDIVIDUAL STEAKS IN BUTTER WITH CANNED CORN AND THICK SLICES OF WHITE BREAD COVERED WITH BUTTER AND PEANUT BUTTER.

NOW FLIGHT ENGINEER CHARLIE PITNEY, 19, OF SOUTH GLASTONBURY, CONN., MOTIONS ME FROM ART'S TYPEWRITER (RADIOMAN ARTHUR NOWAK, 19, OF SOUTH BEND, IND.).

I CLIMB INTO THE TOWER AND HE POINTS: "THERE, SEE THAT WHITE STRIP? THAT'S MUNDA FIELD ALLRIGHT."

JAN 10 1943

THE NAVIGATOR, ENSIGN JIM ALEXANDER, 22, OF SIOUX CITY, PERMITS HIMSELF A SMILE. HE HIT ON THE NOSE, AND HIS ILLUMINATED WATCH DIAL PUTS IT WITHIN FOUR MINUTES OF HIS ESTIMATE.

THE WILY JAP HAS BUILT HIS FIGHTER STRIP IN A LEVEL COCONUT GROVE, LEAVING THE TREES STANDING. THEN HE TIED UP THE TREE TOPS AND CUT OUT THE TRUNKS TO CAMOUFLAGE THE FIELD.

GUNNERS WAYNE NASH, 19, OF (1308 HARMON PLACE) MINNEAPOLIS, AND LLOYD INGRAM, 23, OF ELDORADO, ILL., SHOVE BACK THE GUN BLISTERS AND AIRBRUSHES INTO THE PLANE. THEY TAKE CHARGE OF THEIR TWO .50-CALIBRE GUNS WHILE JOE BROOKS, 24, OF HOWELL, ARK., IS SITTING HAPPILY IN THE TAIL COMPARTMENT WITH SIX FLARES AND A CLUSTER OF FRAGMENTATION BOMBS.

30.24-227

HE IS SINGING "PRAISE THE LORD AND PASS THE AMMUNITION." HE HAS ALREADY SCRATCHED "MERRY CHRISTMAS, JAP" ON HIS BOMBS.

NOW WE ROAR IN FROM THE OCEAN OVER THE FIELD. THE PLANE ROCKS.

"FEELS LIKE ACK-ACK," SHOUTS HOWARD.

WE SEE GUN FLASHES OR TRACERS.

WE ARE OVER THE JAPANESE AND WITHOUT A STOP ON OUR SECOND PASS, HOWARD AND PITNEY HEAVE OUT BOMBS LIKE SO MANY PUMPKINS. THE PILOTS LET GO WITH SOME BIGGER WING-BOMBS.

JAN 10 1943

FROM THE TOWER ONE SEES A BLACK BOMB SLANT TO THE GROUND 300 FEET BELOW, THEN A RED BURST LIKE A CARBUNCLE.

OUR PLANE VEERS OVER THE TREE TOPS AND WE HEAD FOR THE JAPANESE' BARRACKS AND UNLOAD MORE BOMBS.

BROOKS RELEASES A FLARE. IT HITS IN THE BUILDING AREA AND LIGHTS UP THE SCENE FOR A MILE. EVEN INSIDE THE PLANE IT IS ALMOST AS BRIGHT AS DAYLIGHT.

PILOT LIEUT. (JG) JACK CRUZE, 25, OF (4533 ANNUNCIATION ST.) NEW ORLEANS, ASSURES ME THAT THE FLARES BLIND PERSONNEL ON THE GROUND SO THEY CAN'T SEE US DESPITE OUR SLOW SPEED AND LOW ELEVATION. HE SPOILS IT BY ADDING, "I HOPE."

JAN 10 1943

FOR TWO HOURS AND 30 MINUTES WE "LOUIE THE LOUSE" THE JAPS, COMING IN FROM NEW DIRECTIONS AND HOPING THAT OUR PLANE WILL MAKE THE HUDDLING JAPS VERY, VERY UNHAPPY IN THEIR NOW RAIN-FILLED SHRAPNEL ESCAPE HOLES. GUADALCANAL MARINES HAVE SAID THAT THESE NUISANCE RAIDS ARE MORE TERRIFYING THAN MASS BOMB DROPPING RAIDS.

WE ARE LOW ENOUGH TO SMELL THE POWDER FUMES FROM THE BOMBS.

1943

ON THE LAST RUN A NON-COMBATANT CREW MEMBER TOSSES OUT EMPTY "TONIC" BOTTLES BECAUSE THE MARINES HAD TOLD HIM THAT THE SCREAM OF EMPTY TUMBLING BOTTLES IS WORSE THAN BOMBS.

RED ARMY RINGS GEORGIEVSK, RAIL JUNCTION IN CAUCASUS; PUSHES ON EAST OF ROSTOV

SOVIET ADVANCE IS CONTINUED IN LOWER DON AREA

12,000-Ton Vessel Is Sent to Bottom In Barents Sea.

MOSCOW, Jan. 10 — (AP) Red army troops have seized a series of north Caucasus towns forming a semi-circle around the important railway junction of Georgievsk and cut all but one railway line running west of the city, the Russian communique announced today.

1943

30.24-229

One of the towns falling to the advancing Soviet units was Georgievskaya, only four miles south of Georgievsk. The others ranged in a semi-circle from five to 30 miles from the railroad point.

But German resistance to another Soviet offensive down the lower Don toward Rostov stiffened where Russian spearheads are less than 60 miles from that supply bastion for German troops in the Caucasus and in the Stalingrad area. The midnight communique said the advance continued along the lower Don, but did not name points it claimed were seized.

Offensive operations also were reported underway again on the central front, where the Russians have been on the defensive against German counterattacks seeking to retake Velikie Luki.

In the Caucasus, the communique declared the Red army captured Neziobnaya, five miles southwest of Georgievsk, and Lisogorskaya, a little farther to the southwest. Northeast of Georgievsk they claimed Vorontsovo-Alexandrovskaya, 30 miles up the Kuma river.

Between Georgievsk and Vorontsovo-Alexandrovskaya, the Russians said they occupied Obilnoye, Novozevedenskoe Kuma and Otkaznoye on both sides of the railroad running northeast of Georgievsk. Obilnoye is 10 miles northeast of the railway city.

The other main line of advance in the Caucasus went along the Malka river running west of the Prokhladny - Georgievsk railway south of Pyatigorsk.

The farthest point reached there was Kamennomostskoye, 23 miles south of Pyatigorsk. Sarmakovo and Malka were reported occupied just northeast of Kamennomostskoye.

The Russian communique declared that large quantities of war material were captured in the north

(Turned on Page Two)

Caucasus, with more than 200 of the enemy killed in a battle at one place.

The communique told of fierce German counterattacks southwest of Velikie-Luki, and added that "our detachments by rifle and mortar fire cut off German infantry from their tanks and armored cars and are now continuing the engagement for their annihilation."

An enemy transport of 12,000 tons was declared sunk in the Barents sea.

The lower Don fighting apparently increased in intensity. The midnight communique said that the Russians beat off six counter-attacks at one point, killing 600 Germans, destroying eight tanks and taking some prisoners.

In its advance toward Rostov the Red army was reported to have broken through to Ust-Kagalnitsky, on the north bank of the river only five miles east of where the Donets joints the Don above Rostov. (This indicated the Russians had by-passed the large town of Konstantinovsk, on the Don east of Ust-Kagalnitsky.)

JAN 11 1943

That the hundreds of thousands of Germans in a narrowing corridor in the Caucasus and in the Don valley definitely were in danger of having their supply channels shut off at Rostov was indicated as the Russians pushed massed forces into the angle formed by the Don, the Donets and the Severny river north of the Don.

This was one of the last favorable natural positions for German defense of Rostov from the northeast, and the Soviet bludgeon poised there threatened not only a frontal but a flank assault on the Germans' key bastion.

The advance point reached by the Russians yesterday was Ust-Kagalnitsky on the north bank of the Don, a bare five miles east of the Donets which joins the Don 57 miles northeast of Rostov. Kastirochny, just east of this point, also was taken.

The midday communique today said Russian troops followed up this success, "overcoming enemy resistance and repulsing his counterattacks" and then "broke through enemy defenses," pursued the routed forces and occupied a number of villages.

The exact location of this breakthrough was not given, but 800 dead Germans were said to have been left scattered on the battlefield and a quantity of war equipment smashed and captured.

(Slightly to the north of Ust-Kagalnitsky, said a Reuters dispatch received in London, the Russians smashed the biggest German counterattack yet made in the lower Don area, and advanced another five to eight miles, reaching Trofimov, 10 miles east of the Donets and about midway between the Stalingrad-Likhaya railway and the Don.)

Simultaneously, the Russians occupied 30 more settlements in the north Caucasus where they were rapidly dissipating all dreams the Germans might have had of tapping Russia's Grozny or Baku oil.

They also pursued their quickening offensive down the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway close to Salsk, where they were threatening Rostov from the southeast.

Although the Russian offensive which started at Stalingrad less than two months ago showed no signs of weakening, stiff fighting was still going on at the city of the Volga, 180 miles behind the front on the lower Don.

The communique said 20 more German blockhouses were captured and 200 of the occupants killed in the latest of these battles.

(Rumors were current in Stockholm, where they could not be confirmed, that Marshal Fedor von Bock, who commanded the German summer offensive, had been sent back to the Stalingrad front after a break with his Fuehrer, Adolf Hitler.

(Stockholm dispatches said persons just returned from Berlin reported that Marshal von Bock, assuming the leadership of a group of German generals, had demanded the withdrawal of menaced German divisions from the Caucasus and that Hitler had stormed and shouted and sent Marshal von Bock from his headquarters.

(The rumor that he was back at Stalingrad may mean that he was with the remnants of the 22 encircled divisions there, sent by Hitler to share the fate of his troops as a punishment for insubordination but in keeping with his honor as a soldier).

On the central front the Red army was reported consolidating its positions after repulsing a series of strong German counter-attacks southwest of Velikie Luki, 90 miles east of the Latvian frontier. The fierce fight had lasted two days, the communique said.

Refuting German claims that the Nazis still held this big hedgehog position, Red Star, the Red army organ, said life in the reoccupied city was returning to normal and that the first Soviet train from the east was expected to arrive soon. The local newspaper Velikolk-Kakaya Pravda has resumed publication, the dispatch said. The city's population of 80,000 had been reduced to only 7,000 when the Red army returned, the dispatch added.

War Material Fall To Russians.

HARD FIGHTING IN LOWER DON

Enemy Suffers Heavy Losses And is Unable To Check Advance.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Monday, Jan. 11.—The Russians early today announced the capture of twelve towns and localities by Red Army soldiers flanking the important railway junction city of Georgievsk in the Caucasus and declared their offensives less than 60 miles from Rostov were rolling steadily ahead.

Russian troops fought their way into Georgievskskaya, only four miles north of the important railway junction of Georgievsk, said the Soviet Bureau of Information communiquie broadcast by the Moscow radio and heard by the Soviet Monitor here.

Other units captured the inhabited locality of Novozevedenskoe, only 10 miles north of Georgievsk, and the railway station of Kuma, 25 miles northeast of Georgievsk.

In the continued sweep in the Caucasus, the communique said the Russians also captured the town of Vorontsvo - Alexandrovskaya, 50 miles northeast of Georgievsk, Petrovskoe, 80 miles north of Georgievsk, and these places in the general locality of the junction city: the district center of Kamennomostskoye, Sarmakpva, Kamlukov, Meika, Otkaznoye, Obilnoye, Neziobnaya and Lysogorskaya.

The Russians declared they had captured large quantities of war material in the north Caucasus and in one place had wiped out more than 200 "Hitlerites" and captured "many prisoners."

Fighting in the lower Don basin was intense, the communique indicated, and in one area a Russian unit was said to have beaten off six enemy counter-attacks.

Foe Suffers Heavy Losses

"The Hitlerites suffered heavy losses," the communique added, and were unable to stop the advancing Russians.

JAN 11 1943

By the end of the day's fighting, the Russians declared, 600 Germans had been killed, eight tanks destroyed and some prisoners taken.

Reports from Moscow said the Red army had broken through to Ust-Kagalnitsky, on the north bank of the Don, a bare five miles east of the point where the Donets joins the Don above Rostov. This indicated that the Russians had by-passed the large town of Konstantinovsk, on the Don east of Ust-Kagalnitsky.

In the area of Zimovniki, below the Don on the Stalingrad-Krasnodar railroad, the Russians said they "liberated several more populated places from the G...man Fascist invaders and inflicted heavy losses in manpower and materials on the enemy.

On the central front the Germans were reported hurling ceaseless counter-attacks against the Russians southwest of Velikie-Luki.

"Our detachments by rifle and mortar fire cut off German infantry from their tanks and armored cars and are now continuing the engagement for their annihilation," the communique said of the fighting in this area.

(A British broadcast heard in New York by CBS indicated this fight was larger than the communique indicated, reporting that a big battle was under way there.)

German Infantry Company Wiped Out

On another sector Russian artillery wiped out a company of German infantry, destroyed three tanks and silenced the enemy artillery, the Russians said.

The communique said the Red fleet sank an enemy transport of 12,000 tons in the Barents Sea.

In the air, the Russians announced 313 enemy planes were destroyed during the week ending Jan. 9, while the Red Army lost 93 aircraft.

U.S. Planes in First Assault on Tripoli

Extend Campaign to Close Back Door of Retreat for Rommel—Direct Hits Scored—Return Without Loss.

JAN 11 1943

By Wes Gallagher

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 10 (AP)—United States medium bombers from Tunisia struck their first blow today at the Libyan base of Tripoli in an extension of their campaign to slam shut the back door of retreat in the face of Marshal Erwin Rommel, believed on the weary move again toward that port and Tunisia.

Return Without Loss

The Americans attacked an outlying airdrome, scoring direct hits, and returned without loss.

Fighters from Tunisia have attacked Tripoli before, and nearly all categories of planes have raided the port from Libya and Egypt but today's attack was the first of U. S. bombers from Tunisia.

The meeting of Allied bombers from the east and west emphasized the squeeze being clamped on Rommel.

(Coordinating with the U. S. attack were day and night RAF assaults on the African Corps along a 180-mile stretch between Tripoli and the Wadi Zem-Zem, where the British Eighth Army has been drawing up for attack. Increasing German nervousness and assertions from Berlin that the British were preparing for a full scale attack were reminiscent of the Axis reports a few days before Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery renewed his offensive recently at El Ageila.)

Meanwhile it was announced that Vice-Admiral William Glassford, Jr., had arrived in Algiers from Dakar, and was conferring with Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Glassford headed a U. S. mission to Dakar, strategic West African port, last month.

35 to 12 Score

Indicating the ferocity of aerial warfare on the Tunisian front, Twelfth Air Force Headquarters announced that American forces destroyed 35 Axis planes and damaged 40 others in the week of Jan. 2-8 against the loss of only 12.

"Our B-26's (Martin Marauders), escorted by P-38's attacked the airfield ten miles west of Tripoli and scored direct hits on the hangars and a military objective nearby, a 12th Air Force spokesman said, telling of the Tripoli raid. "Three Messerschmitt 109's which attempted to interfere were badly damaged and all our planes returned safely."

(French troops in the Pont-du-Fahs area of central Tunisia repulsed another tank-supported enemy attack, a communique from Gen. Henry Giraud's headquarters broacast by the Morocco radio said.

(Infantry troops shot down an enemy plane in that action, the communique said, and east of Kairouan French patrols attacked an enemy post, capturing some 15 German soldiers. Patrol activity along the entire line was reported).

An Allied army spokesman said there was nothing to report on the northern land front in Tunisia in the last 24 hours, but in Libya it appeared that a cotraction of the Axis lines was in order shortly.

Think Tripoli Indefensible

Many observers at Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters believe Tripoli itself is indefensible and that the German Marshal and his African Corps must attempt to withdraw into Tunisia along the supply route on which Sousse, Gabes and Sfax have been consistent targets.

These observers said the concentrated Allied Air attacks Friday apparently anticipated this move and were aimed to cut his supplies and weaken his retreat before the British Eighth Army in Libya.

The weather deteriorated over Tunisia again today adding to the mud bogs immobilizing ground forces and keeping much of the opposing air fleets on the ground following the three U. S. raids in an all day pulverization of Bizerte Friday. This action was coordinated with the pounding of the east coast positions.

(A Cairo communique said Allied planes were active over the Libyan battle area "with good results" and that the road between Homs and Zliten, 65 to 90 miles east of Tripoli was bombed and many fires were started. There was nothing to report from the ground forces.

(Eight army planes attacked the Italian islands of Sicily and Pantelleria and Tunis and struck at transport between Sfax and Gabes.

German Claims

(The Germans made the wholly unconfirmed claim that 13 tankers totaling 124,000 tons had been sunk in a convoy bound for North Africa from Trinidad via Gibraltar. Three other tankers were declared torpedoed.

(The Italians said Algiers was bombed and big fires were started in the harbor. Other raids were reported on Maison Blanche Airfield at Bougie.)

The work of the air forces of the British Eighth Army in Libya and the Allied air forces in Tunisia has been concentrated on the same major task—driving the Axis from all North Africa. Planes from Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's Middle East Command have been helping Allied ground forces in Tunisia with raids on Tunis, Bizerte and Sicily, while planes from this side have been slashing at Rommel's exit path with high explosives all the way to Tripoli.

The American commander of Allied air forces in Tunisia, Major Gen. Carl Spaatz, in presenting 13 U. S. Warhawk fighters to the new French Lafayette Squadron yesterday, declared that these were "but the first gifts."

"We will help equip the soldiers of France with modern arms to the maximum of our ability," Gen. Spaatz declared. "We are assembled here to continue a glorious tradition of everlasting friendship between the French Republic and the United States. We are once more brothers in arms. In the present campaign we already have tangible proof that French troops are as gallant and as seasoned as in the past."

Count of Paris Arrives

The turbulent political situation in North Africa was complicated further by the presence in Algeria of the Count of Paris, pretender to the French throne.

He arrived Christmas day just after the assassination of Admiral Jean Darlan. He had been living in Spanish Morocco. The count's political following is small and it is considered unlikely that he will become a serious factor.

Group to Arm French Named By Eisenhower

Col. Gardiner, Ex-Governor of Maine, Heads Study on Equipment for Giraud

JAN 11 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 10 (AP).—Lieutenant General Dwight D. Eisenhower announced today creation of a committee to "co-ordinate and plan rearmament of the French forces in North Africa with American equipment." The committee is headed by Colonel William T. Gardiner, a former Governor of Maine.

The committee will meet with the French and submit to General Eisenhower an over-all plan to effect rehabilitation of French armed forces on land and sea and in the air and to supply the immediate needs of the French troops.

Other Americans on the committee include Major George L. Artamonoff, of Philadelphia; Colonel John Morrow, of Chicago, and Captain Jerauld Wright, of the United States Navy, from Amherst, Mass. Captain Wright commanded the submarine which enabled the leader of the French in Africa, General Henri Honore Giraud, to escape from France.

Captain Geoffrey Barnard, of the British Navy, represents the British forces.

Airbases Built In Tunisia With Portable Tools

Hangars and Lighting Units, Scrapers, Rollers Used by U. S. Aviation Engineers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP).—Home from North Africa, Brigadier General Stuart C. Godfrey disclosed today a new weapon of his aviation engineers—air-borne road-building equipment which makes it possible to construct advanced air bases almost over night.

When it became necessary to establish advanced airdromes to support the action in Tunisia, General Godfrey said, a call was put in for the air-borne engineers. With their equipment, they were flown in cargo planes to points as close as possible to the selected sites. Within three days Flying Fortresses were taking off from the first base, and a second base was completed the next day.

"Our allies couldn't believ their eyes when they saw equipment being unloaded from airplanes and going right to work," he reported.

This kind of forehandedness, he said, is going a long way toward solving the difficult supply problem in North Africa, where for 1,000 miles there is only a single railroad and a narrow highway system along the coast.

Among the equipment, specially designed for transportation in planes or gliders, are lightweight, portable hangars, a gasoline-operated lighting unit for night-construction work and lighting the field for night flying, a road scraper which can be hauled by a jeep, and rollers to be filled with water or sand.

The air-borne aviation engineers were first organized last summer. Their training was so rapid, General Godfrey said, that within six months they were at work in England and ready for the North African campaign, where most of their work has been pioneering.

"The idea behind them," he explained, "is that they can get into fields captured by paratroops or on invaded islands right with the attack units to make ready for air operations with a minimum of delay.

"The saving of a few hours or days in the construction of such airdromes may have a great bearing on the outcome of a whole campaign."

The air-borne aviation engineers go through a tough training course. They are chosen from the air forces personnel for their stamina and special skills. They must have both basic combat and engineering training.

Italians Report Raids by Axis

ROME (From Italian broadcasts), Jan. 10 (AP).—Axis forces struck at Allied objectives by air yesterday as deteriorating weather conditions hampered all operations on the North African front, the high command said today.

Big fires were declared started in the harbor of Algiers and Bougie was reported raided.

Troop and motor transport concentrations also were attacked with success by German planes in the Tunisian region," the high command said. "Numerous vehicles were set on fire and destroyed."

It declared two Allied aircraft were shot down by fighters while "one of our planes failed to return."

A NORTH AFRICAN PORT, Jan. 10—(AP) Far-reaching control by the British fleet now is firmly established in the Western Mediterranean as a result of the North African landings, and sea supply routes to the Allied forces in Tunisia are being tenaciously and effectively guarded by powerful units of the Royal Navy.

From the United Kingdom and the United States, troops, tanks, guns, vehicles, and all the vast quantity of needed supplies are reaching North Africa in convoyed merchant ships.

Warships Screened Transport

I came to this war zone aboard a troopship carrying British combat units from Britain, and saw British warships screen us on the way from Gibraltar. With calm confidence the Navy audaciously shepherded us along the hot spots on the Malta convoy route which, until a few months ago, was certain to involve air attacks.

But the Royal Navy's grip on vast sections of the Mediterranean has become so firm that I did not see a shot fired in anger. The only aircraft overhead were Allied patrols, fighters and bombers.

Strategic Feature

Our convoy was only one of the many the Navy is getting through and the outstanding manner in which the North African sea routes are being protected is a vital feature of the current campaign. The seagoing traffic is one of the most emphatic first impressions here.

Along the coast and in a number of ports I have seen British and American shipping moving safely with surprisingly unconcern over the proximity of a major battle front and enemy bases. Destroyers swarm all over the place. The Italian navy is not daring any major interference with its surface fleet against the Allied military operations but the submarine menace is ever present and necessitates day and night sea patrols.

[illegible] patrol far out in the Mediterranean.

The success of our voyage demonstrated what a French newspaper here described as the 'Magnificent immunity of the Royal Navy."

After the voyage through the Atlantic with stormy weather sending destroyers and corvettes tossing madly and laying the troops low with seasickness, we passed into the Mediterranean. British troops got their biggest thrill of the voyage in seeing the lights of Spanish coast towns blazing like firebombed cities.

Jubilant Over Lights

For the most it was the first real display of lights they had seen since the war started. "Grand, grand," exclaimed a sergeant. "It looks like the Brighton front in peacetime."

We expected air attacks by daylight, but dawn brought more British warships instead. We rolled in a squally sea and I was on the gun deck with tense anti-aircraft gunners when out of the mist to the northwestwards loomed the Royal Navy.

There were warships of all types and they made an awesome and inspiring sight. The fleet fanned out north and east with fleet air arm planes hovering about the destroyers scouring the sea far over the horizon.

Occasionally we saw sections of the Africa coast with Spanish Morocco and the land of the Riffs, black and rugged against the sun, and Algeria, a distant low coastal strip with the jagged Atlas mountains, rising in the background.

Says Fanatic Slew Darlan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP).—A spokesman of the French military mission to the United States said here tonight that he believed the assassin of Admiral Jean Darlan was a fanatical anti-collaborationist.

In a statement at a press conference on the eve of his return to Algiers, Jacques Lemaigre-Dubreuil, chief civilian adviser to Darlan's successor, General Henri Honore Giraud, asserted that the Christmas Eve assassination of the French North African High Commissioner had its origin "in the following facts:

"All those who, in metropolitan or African France, have directly or indirectly collaborated with the Germans are literally hated by the population. But, lacking inside information, the man in the street is unable to judge of the sincerity of those in office. Admiral Darlan was murdered for having been, at least in the eyes of the public, one of the most conspicuous collaborationists with Germany."

[The identity of the assassin and and facts concerning the slaying have not been officially made public.]

Lemaigre-Dubreuil said he had been chosen by Giraud to accompany the military mission here because he had been for two years a prime mover in the under-cover work of Robert D. Murphy, President Roosevelt's personal representative who paved the way for the North African expedition.

While declining to comment on any military aspects of the North African campaign, Lemaigre-Dubreuil said the work of the military mission "certainly can be considered a success so far as establishment of direct relations between the people of the United States and North Africa is concerned."

He added, through an interpreter, the belief that "the French Army in North Africa will get the weapons it needs."

General Emile Bethouart and other members of the mission will remain in this country, Lemaigre-Dubreuil said, explaining he was returning because his work with the mission had been completed.

FLEEING CONVOY DEALT NEW BLOWS BY ALLIED AIRMEN

Toll of Enemy Planes Climbs to 138 in Four-Day Assault

FIRES STARTED AT LAE

Bombers Heavily Pound Harbor Area; Land Pressure Maintained.

JAN 11 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Monday, Jan. 11—(AP) American and Australian airmen, relentlessly pursuing a Japanese convoy fleeing from Lae, New Guinea, Sunday increased to 138 the number of Jap planes put out of action in the most destructive purely aerial beating yet given the enemy in the Southwest Pacific.

To the score of three troop transports already sunk, they added direct hits, with results unannounced, on two more ships.

Four-Day Assault

The aerial drubbing, regarded as possibly the most extensive given the Japs in any area, was administered in an around-the-clock four-day assault. During the first three days 133 planes were knocked out. These comprised 85 definitely destroyed, 29 probably destroyed, and 19 damaged. Yesterday, four more were shot down over the retreating convoy and one other probably destroyed. In addition, a Zero fighter was destroyed on the ground at Lae.

While heavy and medium bombers were over the remnants of the convoy off the South coast of New Britain, other planes poured bombs, cannon, and machinegun fire into the Lae harbor area and the nearby airdrome.

Three Bases Hit

Farther northwest along the New Guinea coast, Flying Fortresses bombed the recently strengthened Japanese bases at Finschafen, Madang, and Wewak.

Shadowing the retreating convoy throughout Saturday night, Liberators, Catalinas, and Flying Fortresses fought off weak enemy air interception attempts and scored hits on two unidentified ships of the convoy between Gasmata and Rabaul.

Australian Beaufighters and American Mitchells, escorted by Lightnings, resumed the work of destruction at Lae Sunday morning, starting fires which were visible for many miles at sea.

"Damage was heavy," the communique said.

Land Pressure Continues

Pressure on the remaining pocket of Japanese at Sanananda was maintained. The village of Tarakena was occupied by our forces who killed 40 Japanese and captured five machineguns and a mortar.

Earlier today a flow of official reports had disclosed the magnitude of the record aerial drubbing given to the Japanese.

Americans in the Coral sea, at Midway, and at various engagements in the Solomons have taken a heavy toll of Jap fighters and bombers but in most instances warships and anti-aircraft batteries have played a part.

The very ferocity and virtual continuity of the pounding administered by all types of Allied planes attacking day and night from different altitudes renders it difficult to assess the degree of success or failure of the Japanese mission—to get men and material ashore at their key base in the mandated territory of New Guinea.

One 14,000-ton transport definitely was sunk before reaching Lae. Another transport was sunk while unloading at a pier, and a third was sent to the bottom of the harbor, whether before or after unloading the reports do not indicate.

Shore Heavily Blasted

Japanese personnel and supplies which managed to land under this assault must have taken a heavy beating, for throughout Friday night and Saturday morning Allied aircraft rained tons of bombs and fired tens of thousands of rounds of cannon and machine gun missiles on the wharfs and warehouses along the northern and northeastern coast of New Guinea.

Allied air losses were not revealed, but a spokesman described them as negligible compared to those of the enemy.

The air battle over the convoy reached its crescendo on the third day, Friday, when 58 Japanese planes were put out of action, 30 destroyed outright.

Throughout the three furious days, while fighter planes were locked in combat in the upper air, American heavy Flying Fortress and Liberator bombers and the lighter Marauders, Billy Mitchells, and Beauforts swept in against the concentrated fire of six Japanese warships to spew their explosives on the dodging, twisting convoy.

Aerial Traffic Heavy

So heavy was the aerial traffic over the ships that at times Allied fighters were unable to swoop low enough to carry out strafing attacks, the Allied announcement said. Even after the Jap convoy reached Lae the aerial assault continued. There was no estimate of the number of enemy troops who survived.

From the start of the melee Wednesday evening, when Allied bombers made their initial attack on the convoy near Gasmata, New Britain, the destruction of Japanese fighters was swift and deadly. Eight Lightnings pounced on 14 Zeros protecting the ill-fated convoy and quickly shot nine of them into the water. Three other Zeros probably were destroyed and the two survivors were damaged.

With that as a pattern, the American pilots in their Lightnings and Kittyhawks spent the next two days knocking Zeros down like clay pigeons. One formation of 14 Kittyhawks shot down 16 Zeros against the loss of only one plane, and the pilot of that plane parachuted to safety.

Took Steady Toll

Throughout the running engagement the Allied bombers also took a steady toll of the Zeros which tried fruitlessly to fight them away from the convoy, the Allied announcement said. In a typical 15-minute scrap a squadron of Mitchells met an attack of 15 to 20 Zeros and sent five crashing into Lae harbor and probably destroyed two others.

The Japanese transports withdrew from the harbor under cover of darkness after unloading. Fires in the harbor were said in the Allied communique to have been visible for 50 miles.

General MacArthur, considering the campaign in Papua closed despite the fact that a pocket of Japanese still is entrenched at Sananda point in the Buna area, has returned to his general headquarters here.

General Walker Missing in Raid On Rabaul Foe

JAN 11 1943

American Bomber Leader Cited by MacArthur Last Week for Brilliant Work

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 11 (Monday) (AP).—Brigadier General Kenneth N. Walker, of Glendale, Calif., has been missing since the Allied air raid on Rabaul, New Britain, Jan. 5, it was disclosed today.

Flying Fortresses and a squadron of Liberators damaged more than 50,000 tons of shipping in Rabaul Harbor on that day and shot down nine Japanese Zeros.

At the time, Allied headquarters reported that Brigadier General Ennis C. Whitehead, commander of the American air force in this theater, happily began checking in the returning four-engined raiders. But when the last had landed he drove quietly away, for, an official communique said, "one of our bombers is missing." Presumably General Walker was aboard that machine.

General Douglas MacArthur himself announced, "with profound sorrow," that General Walker was missing in air combat.

"This officer," said General MacArthur, "with the greatest personal courage, led a bombardment group which successfully attacked enemy shipping in Rabaul Harbor on the morning of Jan. 5, 1943. In this attack from nine to eleven enemy ships were destroyed.

"General Walker's plane was last seen operating over the harbor and has not returned. It must be presumed that he is lost. This officer's record in this campaign has been outstanding and much of the efficiency of the bombardment command of the 5th American Air Force is due to his exceptional brilliance and courage."

General Walker, forty-four years old, and a native of New Mexico, was among twelve Allied officers cited last Saturday by General MacArthur for the Distinguished Service Cross for his part in the Southwest Pacific campaign. In July, General Walker won the Silver Star for gallantry in action after leading four combat missions over enemy territory with "complete disregard for his personal safety," according to the citation.

General Walker, who was promoted on June 15 to brigadier general, is the third American air general lost on combat missions in this war. Major General Clarance F. Tinker has been missing since he led a bomber force against the Japanese armada in the Battle of Midway, and Brigadier General Asa N. Duncan, chief of staff of the American Air Force in Europe, has been missing since November, when he left England for a flight to North Africa. Still another, Brigadier General Harold H. George, was killed in the Southwest Pacific area, in an accident on an Australian airfield.

NAVY FLIERS RAID AIRBASE AT MUNDA

Two Attacks Staged on Japanese Field; No Planes Lost.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The Navy announced today that air forces in the Solomon Islands had carried out two new raids on the Japanese airbase at Munda on New Georgia Island and a probable hit scored in the anti-aircraft battery.

JAN 11 1943

"South Pacific: (All dates are East longitude)

"1. On Jan. 8, during the forenoon, Marauder medium bombers (Martin B-26) with Airacobra (Bell P-39) escort bombed the Japanese air field at Munda on New Georgia Island. Results were not reported.

"2. During the night of Jan. 8-9, the United States aircraft again bombed enemy positions in the Munda area. A probable hit on an anti-aircraft battery on Munda point was reported.

All Planes Returned

"3. All United States planes returned safely from the above missions."

These raids constituted a continuation of the almost daily bombings of Munda which lies 180 nautical miles northwest of the American airfield on Guadalcanal island and represents Japan's best effort so far to provide for effective aerial operations in the central Solomons.

There was no information here as to the cumulative effect of the damage thus far inflicted on the base but apparently it was still far from being knocked out, although its exact condition probably is somewhat obscured by bad weather in the Solomons area during the present rainy season.

M'Arthur Thanks God For Guinea Victory

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP)—An official War Department spokesman today listed at least 368 Japanese aircraft, 19 warships and 85 merchantmen destroyed in the course of General MacArthur's New Guinea campaign.

Col. R. Ernest Dupuy, chief of the news division in the Bureau of Public Relations, said in an address on the weekly Army hour broadcast as made public by the War Department:

"Since the opening of the campaign 353 enemy aircraft were definitely destroyed, 88 others probably. Enemy surface craft losses, inflicted by MacArthur's magnificent air force, run to six cruisers, 13 destroyers, 85 merchantmen, large and small, and a shoal of larger vessels."

Dupuy reported that Japanese ground losses could not be itemized yet but that "enemy dead lie heaped in the jungle" and that "man to man our troops proved themselves superior."

"Interesting is the fact," he continued, "that the two American divisions here, the 32d and 41st, are National Guard divisions, hailing respectively from Michigan and Wisconsin, and from Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming, their ranks swelled by increments of selectees from these and other states."

Dupuy quoted "MacArthur's order of the day on the Papuan victory citing the 32d and 41st U. S divisions, the 6th and 7th Australian divisions, 6th commando, and the Papuan native supply contingent":

JAN 11 1943

"To God Almighty I give thanks for that guidance which has brought us to this success in our great crusade. His is the honor, the power and glory forever. Amen."

Report Checking Akyab Drive

BERLIN (From German broadcasts), Jan. 10 (AP).—A force of 700 British and Indians attacking in the Rathedaung area was turned back Jan. 6 in two battles north of Akyab, Burma, by Japanese defenders, a Tokio dispatch declared today.

The British left thirty dead when a force of 200 attacked Kiratedaun, nineteen miles north of Akyab, the dispatch said, and twenty-two dead when another force of 500 began a skirmish two and a half miles west of Rathedaung. The Japanese said they captured two tanks.

Railway installations at Kyaukpadaung, west of Meiktila, were attacked and two oil trucks were set afire and others damaged, it was reported.

At other points in western and central Burma, buildings and gun positions of the Japanese were targets for British planes.

JAP INSTALLATIONS POUNDED IN BURMA

American Fliers Continue Assaults on Warehouses, River Transports.

WITH THE AMERICAN AIR FORCE IN CHINA, Jan. 9—(Delayed)—(AP) Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's bombers and fighters raided Japanese warehouses and river transports at Bhamo in Burma today for the second day in a row, starting fires in the town and sinking at least one barge.

Fighters also shot up the airdrome operations building at Lolwing, once an A.V.G. maintenance base, and machine-gunned enemy trucks on the Burma highway.

Capt. Everett Holstrom of Tacoma, Wash., again led the bombers.

"We saw several buildings wrecked by Friday's bombs, and laid a few others in the ruins," he said.

Several Fires Blazing

Several fires were blazing in the storage area as the second flight headed by Capt. Allan Forsyth of Houston, Minn., unloaded its bombs.

Fighters led by Capt. Joseph Hinton of San Antonio, Tex., meanwhile strafed five barges in the Irrawaddy river, and reported they left one sinking and others badly damaged.

Two enemy trucks were destroyed on the Burma road, the three probably damaged in an attack by a flight commanded by Lieut. Howard Krippner of Seattle, Wash.

Americans Help to Keep Burma Foe Under Fire With Scattered Air Raids

NEW DELHI, Jan. 10 (AP).—Royal Air Force bombers escorted by fighters attacked Japanese targets in and near Rathedaung, about twenty-five miles north of Akyab, in Burma, yesterday and other fighter planes raided a line of enemy trucks near Ingyi, northwest of Shwebo, a British communique said today.

CHIEF AMERICAN ACE IN CHINA COMING HOME

Col. Scott Ordered Back to U. S. to Train Fighter Pilots

WITH THE AMERICAN AIR FORCES, in China, Jan. 9 (Delayed) (AP)—Colonel Robert L. Scott, fighter group commander and leading ace of the China Air Task Force, is on his way home to teach young pilots Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's tricks, which have given his fliers a ratio of twenty Japanese planes destroyed for every loss of their own.

Colonel Scott, whose personal record includes fourteen enemy planes definitely shot down and three others probably destroyed, has been ordered back to command a tactical training school where fliers get their final pre-combat instruction. Colonel Scott, whose home is in Macon, Ga., will be succeeded by Lieut. Col. Bruce Holloway of Knoxville, Tenn., formerly group executive officer, who has five confirmed victories and three probables.

JAN 11 1943

Colonel Scott, at 34 years of age, is well past the time when most fighter pilots are through. Yet he flew scores of combat missions, though not required to as a group commander. Last April, on his thirty-fourth birthday, Colonel Scott, a graduate of West Point, piloted an army bomber across the Atlantic. He flew on to India, then got in the thick of the Burma campaign with the Ferry Command. Once he shot down two Japanese planes over Burma in one day. He was so eager about flying on lone strafing missions that he had to be restrained by threats of court-martial.

Three Zeros Downed by Col. Scott As Tribute to Jog E. Brown's Son

JAN 12 1943

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10 — (AP) Tears of joy and pride filled the eyes of Joe E. Brown today as he read a cable dispatch from China.

It informed him that Col. Robert Scott with the American Air Forces in China had shot down two—and possibly three—Jap airplanes in one day as a memorial to the film comedian's late son, Capt. Don Brown, killed in an air crash near Palm Springs, Calif., last October.

"Don would like to know about this fine, magnificent tribute which Colonel Scott has just paid him," said Joe.

"My thanks and heartfelt appreciation go out to 'Scotty' and the wonderful work he and his comrades are doing.

"Let's see—this must make 13 Japs that 'Scotty' has shot down.

"Recently he wrote me that he had gotten two Jap Zeros for me. now he's got two for my boy."

Joe E. Brown, one of the most indefatigable war camp entertainers in Hollywood, recently returned from an airplane tour of American bases in Alaska, and will leave tonight for San Francisco to depart on an aerial swing through Yankee camps in the Pacific.

Colonel Scott was Don Brown's commanding officer at an Ontario, Calif., air base when the latter was in flight training. Colonel Scott, whose home is in Macon, Ga., left for China about 18 months ago.

Foe's Tapieh Drive Gains

CHUNGKING, Jan. 10 (AP).—The Chinese high command reported fighting in the four central provinces of Hupeh, Anhwei, Honan and Kiangsi today and indicated that the Japanese were progressing in their U-shaped offensive in the Tapieh mountains, northeast of Hankow, an area that is a potential base for a Chinese counter-offensive.

The Chinese communique said the enemy columns converging from Hupeh on the west and Anhwei on the east entered Hwanchwan in southeastern Honan two days ago and that severe street fighting was in progress.

More than 1,000 Japanese were killed and wounded in a battle north of Lotien in eastern Hupeh, the announcement said.

In Kingsi, the Chinese again attacked Japanese outposts near Nanchang, the Japanese base, and captured two strong points, inflicted more than 200 casualties and set fire to the barracks, the communique added.

Essen, Germany's Arsenal, Blasted in Heavy Raid

JAN 11 1943

150 Large British Bombers Shower Block-Busters, Start Many Fires.

LONDON, Jan. 10—(AP) Essen, site of the sprawling Krupp works which is Europe's largest arsenal, was raided last night by perhaps 150 big British bombers, seven of which were lost.

Returning pilots reported they left fires raging all over the great industrial area, some of them visible for 100 miles, with the bombardment that included a shower of two-ton block busters. They said they were subjected to intense anti-aircraft fire and were forced to fight their way through swarms of German night fighters.

It was the fifth raid in seven nights on the heavy German industrial area of the Ruhr.

The German communique broadcast from Berlin, without announcing the target, said the population suffered casualties.

"Good results were seen," the Air ministry said.

Weather Clear

The raid was one of the few recently in which the weather was clear. Extensive mine-laying operations were carried out in German-controlled waters.

Essen is a city of 500,000 which lies in the heart of the great German coal mining district. Even in peacetime, the Krupp works employed 35,000 workmen producing guns, tanks, and other war materiel, locomotives, freight cars, trucks, farm machinery, and the whole gamut of heavy industry.

50th Raid on City

It was the 50th attack on Essen, one of the previous being a 1,000-plane raid soon after Cologne was laid waste.

With the 1943 bombing campaign less than two weeks old, the rising crescendo of blasting on Axis arsenals indicates that the British and United States have produced enough planes and trained enough crews to blast the enemy on a steadily rising scale. Only 17 planes have been lost, including seven U. S. bombers over St. Nazaire, in the total of six large raids this year.

Nazi Raid on Town

The Germans raided a southwest coast town killing at least 12, injuring others and causing damage. A number were missing in what press association called "the worst raid yet experienced in the town." One German plane was downed.

The German planes machine-gunned the streets and dropped bombs. Working class houses were hit and two large apartment houses on the seafront were wrecked.

5 AMERICAN PILOTS HONORED IN ENGLAND

New Yorker Decorated for His Victories Over Europe

A UNITED STATES FIGHTER PLANE BASE, in England, Jan. 10 (AP)—Second Lieutenant Frank Solinsky of 744 East Ninth Street, New York, was one of five American fighter pilots to be decorated for offensive exploits today by Colonel S. W. Towle of Clinton, Iowa, Chief of Staff of the Fighter Command, Eighth United States Army Air Force.

Lieutenant Solinsky, a Spitfire pilot, was credited with "exceptionally meritorious achievement" in shooting down Focke-Wulf 190s over Europe. He received the Air Medal, as did Captain Oscar C. Cone of Carbondale, Ill.; Lieutenant Stanley M. Millick of Indianapolis and Second Lieutenant Gene B. Fetron of Upton, Calif. Captain Cone already held the British Distinguished Flying Cross for his exploits in the Dieppe raid.

The Purple Heart was awarded to Lieutenant Roy W. Evans of San Bernardino, Calif., for wounds received in fighting over Europe.

LONDON, Jan. 10 (AP)—An American pilot in the Royal Canadian Air Force and two Royal Air Force fliers who were born in the United States but now are residents of the British Empire have received Distinguished Flying Crosses. They are:

Pilot Officer Graham Stanley Hunam of Akron, Ohio, who enlisted in the Canadian Air Force in 1940; Pilot Officer Brian Robert McNair, who was born in Bronxville, N. Y., and went to school there but is now a resident of Durban, South Africa, and Pilot Officer Ernie William Weyle, born in Los Angeles but now a resident of Birmingham, England.

2 Axis Subs Believed Sunk by British

LONDON, Monday, Jan. 11 (AP)—Two Axis submarines were "almost certainly sunk" and at least six others were damaged by an important convoy which recently crossed the Atlantic to British ports, the Admiralty and Air Ministry announced today.

British, Polish and Norwegian waships and United States, Canadian and British aircraft escorted the convoy.

Some 55 attacks were made by and against submarine wolf packs.

The convoy "did not escape without some loss," the announcement said, but it listed only one torpedo hit on a merchant ship in an account of the running sea battle.

Both the U-boats regarded as sunk fell prey to the coastal command of the RAF and United States Navy patrol planes.

Halifax Son Wounded

London, Jan. 10 (AP).—Richard Frederick Wood, twenty-two years old, youngest son of Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador at Washington, and Lady Halifax, has been wounded seriously while serving with British forces in the Middle East, his relatives in Yorkshire were advised today. Another son, Peter Wood, was killed last October in the Middle East.

BRAZIL TO MOVE 50,000 WORKERS TO RUBBER SECTOR

Country Plans to Double Production: U.S. Officials to Assist.

BELEM, Brazil, Jan. 10—(AP) A decision to move 50,000 workers hundreds of miles overland into the Amazon valley within three months in an effort to double Brazil's rubber production has been announced by Brazilian officials conferring here.

The conferees will be joined shortly by Douglas Allen, chief of the U. S. government's Rubber Reserve Co. operations in Brazil, Peru, and Bolivia, already on his way from Washington, and by other U. S. officials.

Earlier Than Agreement

The decision to speed up the migration of workers was reached by the Brazilian authorities despite the fact that the recently signed agreement between Brazil and the United States required only that the big group of migrant labor reach the Amazon region by May 31.

Plans for the earlier arrival, however, increase the chances of greatly increasing the output of crude rubber in Brazil, the only major source of supply in the Western hemisphere.

Brazilian rubber has been essential for use with synthetic rubber in tire making and many other uses since the loss of the natural rubber resources of East Indies to the Japanese.

The migrants will be recruited in the drought-stricken northeastern Brazilian states of Ceara and Rio Grande do Norte, where tens of thousands are jobless, and from other parts of Brazil, including Rio de Janeiro.

Medical Treatment

The men will be fed and given medical treatment against the tropical diseases of the Amazon country before being moved in by truck, train, and plane according to the mobilization plan worked out by the special committee headed by Brazil's economic coordinator, Joao Alberto Lins de Barros, who is now in the United States.

Some 2,500 trucks will bring the workers to Teresina, in the state of Piaui, from where they will be sent by train to Sao Luis, in Maranhao state, and thence flown to Braganca, in the rubber producing state of Pare.

The workers will be paid more than enough to maintain themselves during their trip and thereafter, under the Brazilian-American agreement, each worker will get 60 per cent of the officially fixed value of his production.

Today's conferees included Dr. Henrique Doria De Vasconcelos, director of the National Department of Immigration, Valentim F. Boucas, Under-Coordinator for Rubber, Oscar Passos, President of the Credit Bank for Rubber, and Capt. Rogerio Coimbra of the government-controlled Amazon Navigation Co.

(General Alfonso Souza Ferreira, surgeon general of the Brazilian army, said recently in New York that the fatal malaria carried by Gambiea Anopheles, African mosquito, was completely wiped out in the northern part of Brazil, making available more than 200 doctors to be sent to the Amazon region to look after the welfare of the rubber workers.

(Dr. Souza Ferreira said that malaria still persisted in the rubber zone, but that it was benign compared with the African type wiped out in northern Brazil.

(The surgeon general added that yellow fever, due to modern health practices, had become very rare in Brazil).

CANADIAN FLIER MISSING

Squadron Leader Small Believed Killed in Crash

HALIFAX, Jan. 10 (AP)—The Canadian Air Force tonight listed five men, including Squadron Leader N. E. (Molly) Small, who was one of the first three fliers to win the Distinguished Flying Cross on this side of the Atlantic, as "missing and presumed dead" after an airplane crash in Newfoundland.

Five other men were killed when a twin-engined airplane crashed at Markland, Nova Scotia, the R. C. A. F. reported.

Two men escaped the crash in which Squadron Leader Small was believed killed. The squadron leader was credited with five attacks against submarines, three of them successful, within the last few months.

GERMANS KILLED IN NORWAY BLAST

JAN 11 1943

Ammunition Depot Near Oslo, Containing 700 Land Mines, Destroyed by Explosion

NO REPRISALS REPORTED

35,000 to 40,000 Reindeer Reported Requisitioned for Use in Northern Finland

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 10 (AP)—A huge German ammunition dump at Tjoeme in Oslofjord has blown up and a large number of German soldiers were believed to have been killed or injured, reports from Oslo, Norway, said tonight.

Heavy explosions were said to have rocked the depot area, where 700 land mines were stored in addition to other ammunition.

The whole district was reported isolated, with ambulances streaming to and from the area for hours. German police were said to be apparently convinced there was no sabotage, and no reprisals against Norwegians were reported.

Responsible sources reported today that German civilians and officials in Norway were receiving military training to reinforce the army in the event of an Allied invasion. There was no indication how many men were affected, but there are estimated to be more than 75,000 German men, women and children in Norway.

In the Finnmark district of Norway the Germans are reported to have requisitioned between 35,000 and 40,000 reindeer to be used for food and transport on Finland's northern front, which is manned by Germans.

The newspaper Aftonbladet reports in a dispatch from Helsinki, Finland, that the Germans are recruiting an army in Estonia for service on the Russian front. This is the first indication of an attempt by the Nazis to raise forces in the occupied Baltic countries and would indicate a growing shortage of reserves.

3,211 MERCHANT MARINE CASUALTIES ARE LISTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 — (AP) The Navy announced tonight that 3,211 Merchant Marine casualties were reported to next of kin from Sept. 27, 1941, to Dec. 21, 1942. Of these, 491 are dead and 2,720 missing.

The figures include only casualties resulting directly from enemy action against United States ships and do not include Americans lost on foreign-flag vessels.

The Navy reported 310 casualties to next of kin between Nov. 22 and 21.

BOMBER VICTORY RATE MAINTAINED IN EUROPE

U. S. Score in 23 Missions Is Put at 104 Nazis to Loss of 18

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP)—An overwhelming rate of victories over enemy aircraft is being maintained by American bombers in Europe, Lieut. Col. Carl Norcross reported today.

JAN 11 1943

On twenty-three consecutive missions over enemy-occupied Europe, he said in a statement issued by the War Department, they shot down 104 German planes in combat, probably destroyed 108 and damaged 117, with a loss of only eighteen.

Colonel Norcross, a member of the staff of the Eighth Air Force, who has just returned from Britain for temporary duty in Washington, said American bomber crews were worried about new German fighters until their first encounter with them.

"When numerous missions had been completed without the loss of a single plane," he said, "morale went as high as the ceiling of the big Flying Fortresses, and has been high ever since."

After the first five raids by Fortresses and Liberators, Colonel Norcross said, the Germans shifted their air command in Western Europe and sent in the crack "Yellow Nose" fighter groups to stop the American bombers. However, he added, several more missions were completed before the Germans succeeded in bringing down a single bomber.

What's Behind The War News

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Official Axis war reports, never too reliable, may be expected to become more untruthful in this year of prospective United Nations successes.

Some of the victories which the Axis forces are no longer able to win in fact are almost certain to be created in fancy and dished out as fact, and the reverses they meet are sure to be offset in the propaganda of Berlin, Rome, and Tokyo by distorted reports.

This has always been true of claims made by Tokyo, even when the Japanese had things pretty much their own way. Back in the early days of their China conquest they would frequently announce terrific engagements with the Chinese air force in which they destroyed 10, 12, or 20 planes and lost few if any of their own.

At that time the Chinese had no air force and the Japs were making their aerial forays without opposition. But the reports of "victories" naturally were good for home consumption and probably were designed also to dishearten the Chinese.

After Japan went to war with the United States, the list of inaccuracies grew swiftly to ludicrous proportions. The claims apparently were tailored to bolster home morale, impress neutral countries, create doubt and discouragement in the United States, and lead the American high command to give out information which the Japanese wanted.

Shortly after Pearl Harbor, the Japanese claimed that of 250 ships in the Pacific fleet they had destroyed all but one battleship and six cruisers; later they broadcast to this country that 80 per cent of the United States fleet was lost at Pearl Harbor. Similar information undoubtedly was given to their own people.

As their China sea campaign developed they not only reported their actual conquests of territory but also began to sink American aircraft carriers right and left—in their reports. When they actually did damage the Lexington fatally in the Coral sea they did not find out about it for a long time but meanwhile they announced they had destroyed two carriers, a battleship, two heavy cruisers, and a destroyer. In the battle itself one U. S. destroyer was sunk.

Such exaggerations continued into the Solomons campaign. After their naval defeat off Guadalcanal last November, the Japanese waited a few days and then created a battle of their own, apparently to explain some of their losses and sugar coat them with phony successes. They said they had mightily attacked the islands of Fiji and New Caledonia, but if they did they must have used phantom ships.

Berlin and Rome had a different record. During their land advances in Europe, the Germans sometimes gave a more comprehensive account of what was going on than could be had from Allied sources. Being on the offensive they often knew better than their retreating opponents what was happening, and being victorious they had no reason to withhold or seriously distort the facts.

Bombastic Boasts

The Italians usually acknowledged blows dealt their sea forces by British naval squadrons but tried to offset such setbacks with bombastic boasts and threats and vague optimism about the inevitability of victory for their side. Last fall they untruthfully reported sinking an American battleship off South America but whether that was due to deliberate falsification is a question. A merchantman was sunk there about that time and the Italian sub commander may have become so excited he thought it was a battleship.

It is unlikely that the Germans or Italians will ever go to such lengths as the Japanese in falsifying official reports. Their people probably would see through such methods after a while as they are believed to be, on the whole, much better informed than the Jap populace.

JAN 11 1943

Ready Weapon for Japs

But with their controlled press and radio, false information is a weapon ready to their hands and it would be surprising if the Nazis and Fascists did not employ that weapon more and more as the tides of war roll against them.

The Germans have constantly minimized their losses on the Russian front, seeking wherever possible to report them in terms of maneuvers designed to straighten their lines or improve their positions, as if they were deliberately withdrawing instead of being driven back.

American officials have warned many times against believing anything from enemy sources. Their own reluctance to announce important operations even when military security seemed no longer to be involved has contributed, however, to whatever belief Americans place in Axis reports.

The first news of the bombing of Tokyo came from Tokyo, and the first news of the recent raid on Wake island also came from Tokyo. In each instance it was many days before American confirmation of the basic fact was forthcoming.

Several Nominations Are Expected Today

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP) Congressional leaders have been notified to expect several nominations from the President tomorrow as the new Senate holds its first regular session and the expectation was widespread in the Capital today that they would include:

Justice Wiley Blount Rutledge, Jr., 48, of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to be associate justice of the Supreme court succeeding James F. Byrnes.

Former Senator Prentiss Marsh Brown, 53, of Michigan to succeed Leon Henderson as head of the Office of Price Administration.

Edward Joseph Flynn, 52, of New York, chairman of the Democratic National committee, to be Minister to Australia.

Mr. Flynn's prospective diplomatic appointment, announced by him Friday but unconfirmed so far by the White House, prompted Senator Taft (R-Ohio) to declare that Republicans are going to see to it that executive appointments submitted to the Senate for confirmation are scrutinized more thoroughly than they have been in the past. Republican Leader McNary of Oregon served notice that he would demand a hearing on Mr. Flynn and Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations committee said one would be held if requested.

CONGRESS TO HEAR BUDGET MESSAGE

President Sends Annual Document Today; 100 Billion Total Foreseen.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP) Senator Nye (R-ND), ranking Republican on the Senate Appropriations committee, demanded a "searching and minute consideration" of appropriation requests tonight as the new Congress prepared to start its legislative business tomorrow by receiving President Roosevelt's budget message.

The total of the new budget is expected to tower billions of dollars above any previous annual expenditure, in peace or war, probably reaching a figure of about $100,000,000,000.

Problem for Congress

Following demands from various Congressmen for paring federal expenditures, the President said that he would leave it to Congress to decide what items should be trimmed.

Announcing results of a recent informal policy discussion held by the nine minority members of the appropriations committee, Mr. Nye said:

"Not only was this minority determined that there would be a most searching and minute consideration of all items of appropriation requested of Congress but that there would be a demand for fullest accounting of monies appropriated through more recent years.

Question of Reserves

"Of particular interest to this group is the question of large reserve funds which allegedly are being created out of Congressional appropriations."

Mr. Nye said the Republicans believed the committee should take more time and give the Senate two or three days to become familiar with the money bills before they are called up for passage.

"During the past year," he said, "haste, in the name of the war emergency, was often a factor preventing the care such large appropriations properly deserve.

Year-Round Study

"We have given large thought to the advisability of proposing the engagement by the appropriations committee of additional expert clerical help which would make possible a thorough twelve-month study of the appropriation problems presented by the various departments of government."

Tied to the appropriation problem is the question of taxes. President Roosevelt has given qualified approval to some form of pay-as-you-go income tax collection system such as advocated by many Congressmen but the House Ways and Means committee will not be able to consider a bill immediately. Its Democratic members form their party's committee on committees, which has to fill vacancies on House standing committees. That job is expected to occupy most of their time this week.

DESTROYER IS LAUNCHED

Goes Down Ways at Bath, Me.—Cargo Ship at New Orleans

BATH, Me., Jan. 10 (AP)—The destroyer Wadsworth, named for a hero of the battle between the Constitution and the Guerriere, was launched today by the Bath Iron Works.

Sponsors of the craft was Wadsworth Peacher of New London, Conn., great, great grand-daughter of Commodore Alexander Scammell Wadsworth, for whom the vessel was named.

Vote on Pay-As-You-Go Tax Likely Soon, Declares Ruml

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Beardsley Ruml, sponsor of a pay-as-you-go income tax plan, today predicted early action by Congress and expressed hope the legislation could be approved by March 1, 15 days before 1942 tax returns are due.

JAN 11 1943

"The strong interest every man in the pay-as-you-go plan will result in early action by Congress," the chairman of New York's Federal Reserve bank said. "In this way the ground will be cleared for other urgent wartime measures.

"The questions which have been raised can and will be answered. I feel sure we can all look forward to a successful solving of our old income tax debt problem."

Mr. Ruml recalled President Roosevelt's approval of pay-as-you-go in principle, noting that the only question the President raised was whether the Treasury would lose money. Mr. Ruml told newsmen the total loss over a generation's time would be about the same as one month's government expenditures. In return for this, he asserted, the country could remedy "an old defect in our income tax procedure, a defect which has now had the result of putting 27,000,000 income tax payers in debt for the tax on their last year's income."

Under Mr. Ruml's plan, the 1942 taxes due March 15 would be written off the books, and instead taxpayers would begin paying to the Treasury whatever percentage of their current income was set by Congress. This might be done by a with-holding tax, under which employers would turn the money over to the Treasury instead of giving it to the employes, but Mr. Ruml said mechanics of the plan were up to Congress.

McNutt Expects Women to Hold 30% of War Jobs

Predicts 6,000,000 Will Be at Work in Production Plants by End of Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP)—War Manpower Chairman Paul V. McNutt predicted today that by the end of this year 30 per cent of the nation's war production workers will be women, and that a proportionately larger number will be employed in essential civilian trades and services.

He estimated that 4,000,000 of the 17,000,000 war workers now were women and that by the end of the year the number would increase to 6,000,000.

In civilian work, he said in a statement, women already are replacing men in such traditionally male jobs as gas station attendants, taxicab and truck drivers, butchers and construction laborers.

"This trend," he reported, "will increase until by the end of the year as many as 45 per cent of the workers in these home front jobs will be women."

Employment of women in the aircraft industry rose from less than 5 per cent of the total in 1940 to 17 per cent last September, and by the end of the year, Mr. McNutt predicted, there will be more women than men workers in the industry.

The communications equipment industry, on the basis of September figures, is one of the largest employers of women, with 48 per cent.

Among some of the unusual work done by women is an eighteen-year-old girl's job of operating a fifteen-ton crane at an army proving ground. An all-women crew fires and cleans a ninety-millimeter and anti-aircraft gun.

Labor Stabilization Plan in First Test

WMC Puts Plan to Prevent Pirating of Workers In Effect in Mobile Area—Supervision Of Employment in Hands of U. S. Employment Service.

JAN 11 1943

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 10—(AP)—The War Manpower Commission's first specific labor stabilization program aimed against pirating of labor in war industries went into effect tonight in the Gulf area.

Affects 80,000 Workers

Applying largely but not exclusively, to the shipbuilding industry, the plan affects 80,000 workers in Mobile and nearby centers in Florida and Mississippi. WMC Area Director Burton R. Moreley said the program will be extended as soon as possible to all shipyard centers in the Gulf and South Atlantic coasts.

The program puts supervision of employment in the area's war industries into hands of the U. S. Employment Service.

Moreley said the plan was "not to be regarded in any sense as a freeze" of workers in their present jobs, but represented a concurrence of employers and labor unions in methods of 'stop pirating of workers and other practices interfering with the war effort."

A committee with equal representation from employers and unions drew up the system and the directive putting it into effect went to all employers and workers engaged as much as 50 per cent in war production.

Employers are directed not to solicit, interview or hire any person engaged or recently engaged in war work unless the worker presents written permission to make the change from his former employer or from the employment service. Upon demand of the employment service, employers must release any worker engaged contrary to the plan.

Employers' Permission Necessary

Workers desiring to change jobs are directed to apply to their employers for permission. Applications must be acted upon within 24 hours. If the worker is not satisfied with the decision, he may appeal to the employment service, then to the area WMC office.

Several "illustrative circumstances" of justifiable reasons for changing jobs were listed as less than full-time employment, work below the employe's skill, wages below average for the job, transportation difficulties, and "compelling personal reasons."

"They would not themselves expect to run their own businesses without such centralized control, but they fail to understand that it is equally important in a modern war that it be applied to them by their government."

Calls Manpower Mobilization Haphazard

Calling the mobilization of manpower "haphazard," the committee said that "elation" which arose when Paul V. McNutt received control over manpower "has ebbed and there is general concern lest this opportunity be allowed to slip."

"Laziness and bureaucracy rather than inefficiency" have prevented the best use of small manufacturers' facilities, the committee told Congress, adding:

"Unless the country enjoys an unusual measure of good sense, good management, and good luck, both the period of war immediately ahead and the period of peace to follow will be marked by many difficult and trying days.

"If the drift now going on in our war production program continues unabated, we can expect a small number of large American communities to have gathered up the great majority of all war workers. x x x This committee can readily foresee that an annual (postwar) total of 4,000,000 persons moving between states in search of new employment is not possible but probable."

Labor Concentration Warning Is Issued

Tolan Committee Says Small Number of Communities Threaten to Gather Up Majority Of Workers—Cites Dangers.

JAN 11 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—The Tolan Committee declared today that a small number of communities threaten to gather up the great majority of all workers in the country, endangering both war production and the welfare of millions when peace comes.

Two-Year Investigation

Reporting on its two-year investigation of defense migration, the House committee headed by Rep. Tolan (D-Calif.) said our Allies have "suffered severely" for non-delivery of Lend-Lease supplies while "the equipment of our own forces is very uneven." It warned:

"This is not a war we can win with our surplus energies.

"We cannot afford the luxury of self-congratulation on the production record of 1942.

"We do not yet have a strong manpower agency."

While calling for an Office of War Mobilization to coordinate the demands and means of production, the committee opposed any move to put manpower or production in a "straightjacket," asserting:

"Compulsion x x permits the use of a big stick by those incompetent to gain voluntary support for a program which commands respect and confidence. The drift in the direction of compulsion is an accompaniment of the drift in the direction of control over our war effort by a limited number of large corporations, many of which are reluctant to accept the centralized direction without which the over-all job cannot be done."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—This is just a simple story about the First Lady of this democracy and a private in its army.

The soldier, Private First Class Harold R. Chrisman of Syracuse, N. Y., a military policeman, had six hours to kill between trains at Union Station today returning to his post at Cincinnati from an official mission.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was at the station to meet her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger of Seattle, and their train was late.

The First Lady and the private got into conversation in the USO lounge there, and at length Mrs. Roosevelt, unable to wait longer because of an appointment at the White House, set out to catch a street car.

"I'd like to escort you to the trolley," said the private.

"I'd be honored to have an M. P. accompany me," said the First Lady.

On the loading platform outside the station they chatted further until Mrs. Roosevelt said, "Oh, let's walk."

It's a good mile and a half from the station to the White House, and the weather was bad, but "if Mrs. Roosevelt had as much fun as I did, she thoroughly enjoyed it," Chrisman related.

"She's a fast walker and I had a time trying to keep up with her," he added.

On the way Mrs. Roosevelt identified the buildings and other points of interest for Chrisman, a stranger in the capital, and at the White House she said, "I'd like to have you come in for dinner."

Dinner was in a room on the second floor. There was turkey—"one that came too late for Christmas," Mrs. Roosevelt said—with dressing, candied sweet potatoes, diced beets, broccoli, salad and hot rolls. First there was oyster cocktail, and later grape sherbet, fruit cake and tea.

The talk was mostly about the war. The others at the table were Mrs. Harry Hopkins and young Diana Hopkins and Mrs. George S. Huntington of Charleston, S. C., a house guest. And before dinner was over the Boettigers arrived.

Then Chrisman went back to the station and got his train.

'Brass Hats' and Braid To Be Curtailed by Navy

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—"Brass hats" and gold braid, traditional trappings of the naval officer, are going by the board. The Navy announced today that, effective immediately, simple overseas caps are now the optional uniform headgear to be worn in place of the round stiff-visored hats heretofore required of all commissioned, warrant and chief petty officers. The insignia of rank will be worn on the right side of the caps and a miniature Navy shield on the left.

The visored service hats still may be worn, but, effective on Jan. 1, 1944, they will be officially shorn, except for formal wear, of their gold braid, chin straps and the gold work which traditionally decorates the black visors of commanders and admirals.

Also effective next year will be a rule cutting the rank-identifying gold sleeve stripes in half—the stripes to be worn on the outside of the sleeve only, instead of running all the way around the cuff.

Navy Women To Train At Hunter College

Spars, Waves to Take Over Bronx Branch In February.

STAMFORD, Jan. 11 (AP)— From 2,000 to 2,500 students of Hunter College "will begin next semester under different conditions" it was learned here tonight from George N. Shuster, president of the college, who revealed that the Navy would take over the Bronx branch about February 1 to establish a training school for WACE Sand SPARS.

Mr. Shuster said that most of the students would be transferred to the Hunter unit at 65th Street and Park Avenue with the added "hope" that the New York City Board of Education would make a building at 68th Street and Lexington avenue available for the downtown migration.

Consultation Held

The Navy has been in consultation with college officials and the Board of Higher Education for quite some time, Mr. Shuster disclosed. He added that although the students had as yet got no official sanction of the change that "they know it is coming and will be prepared."

Mr. Shuster likewise said that any equipment that would be transferred from the Bronx unit "would be in accordance with regulations specified by the Navy."

The Bronx unit which is presently occupied by freshmen and Sophomore liberal arts students of the college, will accommodate 6,500 women trainees of the Navy and Coast Guard auxiliary services after the Navy takes it over.

MORRISON SUGGESTED THAT "THE LONG-TERM INTERESTS OF OUR EMPIRE ARE WHOLLY IN ACCORD WITH THE LONG-TERM INTERESTS OF THE INTERNATIONAL SOCIETY OF NATIONS AS A WHOLE," ACCORDING TO A TEXT OF HIS SPEECH RELEASED IN NEW YORK BY THE BRITISH INFORMATION SERVICE.

"THE COLONIAL RECORD HAS HAD BLOTS AND BLEMISHES X X X," THE MINISTER SAID, "BUT NO ONE CAN EXPLAIN THE PROGRESS THAT HAS TAKEN PLACE SINCE THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE BRITISH CONNECTION--PROGRESS IN PUBLIC ORDER, HEALTH, INCOME, EDUCATION, SOCIAL SERVICES AND THE SEEDS OF CITIZENSHIP--EXCEPT BY RECOGNIZING THAT THE OPERATION OF MOTIVES AND POLICIES WAS QUITE OTHER THAN COMMERCIAL."

OF INDIA AND THE COLONIES HE SAID THEY WERE "GRADED IN POLITICAL DEVELOPMENT ALL THE WAY FROM SOME PRIMITIVE COMMUNITY IN THE EARLY STAGES OF TUTELAGE UP TO CEYLON, WHICH HAS SO MUCH OF THE SUBSTANCE OF SELF-GOVERNMENT, AND TO INDIA, WHICH AFTER THE WAR CAN HAVE FULL SELF-GOVERNMENT FOR THE TAKING."

HE SAID HE WISHED TO SEE THE ADOPTION "IN A STILL FULLER AND MORE PRACTICAL SPIRIT OF THE PRINCIPLE OF ADMINISTERING THE COLONIES POSITIVELY FOR THE BENEFIT OF THEIR OWN PEOPLE."

LONDON, JAN 10-(AP)-THE RED ARMY, DRIVING DOWN A WIDE CORRIDOR IN THE LOWER DON REGION, BROKE THROUGH GERMAN DEFENSES LAST NIGHT IN ONE SECTOR, KILLED 800 GERMANS AND OCCUPIED MORE SETTLEMENTS IN THE OFFENSIVE AIMED AT ROSTOV, THE SOVIET MID-DAY COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST FROM MOSCOW REPORTED.

(ADVANCE)...LONDON, JAN 10-(AP)-THE FIRST WOUNDED AMERICAN SOLDIERS FROM NORTH AFRICA, RESTING AT A U.S. ARMY HOSPITAL SOMEWHERE IN GREAT BRITAIN, HAD A CHANCE TODAY TO TELL OF THEIR ADVENTURES AS THEY RECEIVED THE CARE OF A SURGICAL UNIT MANNED BY UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN FACULTY MEMBERS.

TWO OF THE 118 WOUNDED MEN ARE BUDDIES, SERGT.ROBERT V.BOGENREIF OF ORTONVILLE, MINN., AND PRIVATE MILTON F.BROWN OF MCMILLAN, MICH., BOTH INFANTRYMEN WHO WERE ON ONE OF TWO DESTROYERS ASSIGNED TO BREAK THE BOOM ACROSS THE INNER HARBOR OF ALGIERS NOV. 8, THE FIRST DAY OF THE FIGHTING.

ON THE JETTY, AFTER CARRYING OUT THEIR MISSION IN THE CITY, BOGENREIF WAS WOUNDED IN THE RIGHT LEG BELOW THE KNEE BY A SNIPER'S BULLET AND BROWN WAS HIT IN THE LEFT KNEE WHILE GOING TO HIS ASSISTANCE. BOTH RECEIVED THE PURPLE HEART DECORATION. BOTH EXPECT TO RETURN TO ACTION.

JAN 11 1943

THIS IS THE STORY OF THE ENGAGEMENT, IN BOGENREIF'S WORDS;

"WE ENTERED THE OUTER HARBOR ABOUT TWO O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING AND INSTANTLY CAME UNDER FIRE OF SHORE BATTERIES. THE CAPTAIN OF THE DESTROYER PUT UP A SMOKE SCREEN AND WE CIRCLED IN THE SMOKE UNTIL DAWN. THEN WE CRACKED THE BOOM AND WENT INTO THE JETTY."

IN ONE OF THE FINAL EXCHANGES OF FIRE BEFORE ALGIERS SURRENDERED, CORP.FRED TOPPEL OF BARRINGTON, ILL., WAS HIT TWICE. SERVING IN A TANK-DESTROYER UNIT, HE SAW ALMOST ALL OF THE ACTION. RAPIDLY RECOVERING, HE ALSO HAS RECEIVED THE PURPLE HEART DECORATION.

PRIVATE KENNETH O.KRAMER OF PIERPONT, S.D., MEMBER OF A MEDICAL DETACHMENT, WAS TAKEN AS A PRISONER ABOARD A FRENCH CRUISER AT ORAN, WHICH TRIED TO BREAK OUT TO SEA, BUT COULDN'T ESCAPE THE WAITING BRITISH SHIPS.

SOLDIERS IN MEDICAL UNITS ARE NON-COMBATANTS, SO KRAMER WAS UNABLE TO DEFEND HIMSELF. SAILORS FROM THE CRUISER, ARMED WITH TOMMY-GUNS, GOT HIM AS HE WAS HELPING A SERGEANT ESTABLISH A FIRST AID STATION ASHORE.

JAN 11 1943

FORCED ABOARD THE SHIP, KRAMER SAID, "THINGS WERE GETTING PRETTY HOT, AND THE CAPTAIN DECIDED TO MAKE A BREAK FOR THE MEDITERRANEAN."

"WE GOT OUT ABOUT SIX MILES WHEN A NUMBER OF BRITISH SHIPS WERE SIGHTED. THE BRITISH OPENED FIRE, SO THE CRUISER HEADED BACK TO ORAN.

"THOSE BRITISH SAILORS CAN SHOOT, AND THEY FILLED THE CRUISER SO FULL OF HOLES SHE SANK AT HER DOCK," KRAMER CONCLUDED.

KRAMER, ALSO DECORATED WITH THE PURPLE HEART, IS RECOVERING FROM WOUNDS IN THE BACK OF HIS HEAD AND IN HIS SHOULDER.

SERGT.MERREL WAYNE FITZWATER OF BOZEMAN, MONT., LAY FOR THREE DAYS WITHOUT FOOD OR WATER AFTER A HALF-TRACK VEHICLE IN WHICH HE WAS BEING TRANSPORTED WAS KNOCKED OUT BY ARTILLERY FIRE.

BERLIN (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS), JAN.10-(AP)-THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND CLAIMED TODAY THAT IN A COUNTER-ATTACK IN THE CENTRAL SECTOR OF THE LONG RUSSIAN FRONT SHOCK TROOPS OF A GERMAN INFANTRY DIVISION HAD CAPTURED 75 RUSSIAN STRONG POINTS AND DESTROYED THEIR GARRISONS.

FAR TO THE NORTH, IN THE SECTION SOUTHEAST OF LAKE ILMEN, WHERE THE GERMANS YESTERDAY ASSERTED MARSHAL SEMEON TIMOSHENKO WAS COMMANDING THE RUSSIAN FORCES, THE HIGH COMMAND DECLARED FRESH RUSSIAN ATTACKS HAD COLLAPSED AFTER HARD FIGHTING IN WHICH THE SOVIETS HAD LOST 17 TANKS.

1943

NORTHWEST OF MOSCOW, AT VELIKIE LUKI, WHOSE CAPTURE WAS ANNOUNCED MORE THAN A WEEK AGO BY THE RUSSIANS, THE GERMAN COMMUNIQUE SAID THE GARRISON CONTINUED HEROIC RESISTANCE TO STRONG RUSSIAN ATTACKS.

THE LUFTWAFFE CONTINUED ATTACKS ON THE MURMANSK RAILWAY ON THE ARCTIC FRONT, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, SHOOTING DOWN EIGHT RUSSIAN PLANES WITHOUT LOSS TO THE GERMAN FORCE.

AT STALINGRAD, IT WAS SAID, THERE WAS LOCAL SHOCK TROOP ACTIVITY.

BERLIN (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS), JAN. 10-(AP)-A SPECIAL COMMUNIQUE OF THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND SAID TODAY THAT NAZI SUBMARINES ATTACKING A CONVOY EN ROUTE FROM TRINIDAD TO GIBRALTAR SANK 13 TANKERS TOTALING 124,000 TONS AND TORPEDOED THREE OTHER TANKERS.

(THE ANNOUNCEMENT WAS NOT CONFIRMED FROM ANY ALLIED OR OTHER SOURCE.)

JAN 11 1943

"THE STRONGLY SECURED CONVOY CONSISTED EXCLUSIVELY OF BIG TANKERS WHICH WERE TO CARRY FUEL TO NORTH AFRICA," THE GERMANS SAID. "THE LOSS OF THE CARGO, 174,000 TONS OF FUEL, IS A HEAVY BLOW TO THE ANGLO-AMERICAN CAMPAIGN IN NORTH AFRICA."

BERLIN (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS), JAN. 00-(AP)-THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND DECLARED TODAY THAT ALL SOVIET ATTACKS HAD BEEN REPELLED IN CONTINUED VIOLENT FIGHTING ON SOUTHERNRRCTORS OF THE RUSSIAN FRONT.

NEW YORK, JAN. 9--(AP)--THE BERLIN RADIO TONIGHT SAID MARSHAL SEMEON TIMOSHENKO, FORMERLY THE RUSSIAN COMMANDER ON THE SOUTHERN FRONT, WAS NOW IN CHARGE IN THE NORTH AROUND LAKE ILMEN.

THE REPORT WAS MADE IN A TRANSOCEAN [illegible] ROADCAST OF COMMENT ON THE EASTERN FRONT IN WHICH IT WAS SAID [illegible]

JAN 11 1943

A SOVIET BREAK-THROUGH ATTEMPT SOUTH OF LAKE ILMEN WAS FRUSTRATED ALTHOUGH THE ATTACK WAS PRECEDED BY A VIOLENT ARTILLERY BARRAGE.

[illegible] A RUSSIAN NEW YEARS COMMUNIQUE DISCLOSED FOR THE A SHIFT IN THE COMMAND ON THE SOUTHERN FRONT. FIRST TIME THAT TIMOSHENKO WAS NOT ON THE SOUTHERN FRONT. THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT THEN SAID MERELY THAT GEN. GREGORY K. [illegible] MERELY GAVE CREDIT TO GEN. GREGORY K. ZHUKOV AS COMMANDER ON THE SOUTHWEST FRONT, FOR THE SUCCESS OF THE STALINGRAD COUNTEROFFENSIVES WITHOUT MENTIONING TIMOSHENKO. OBSERVERS IN MOSCOW SAID AT THE TIME, HOWEVER, THAT IT WAS ASSUMED HE HAD BEEN [illegible] GIVEN AN IMPORTANT COMMAND.

TIMOSHENKO

BERLIN (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS), JAN. 10-(AP)-IN A SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT TODAY THE HIGH COMMAND DECLARED THAT GERMAN SUBMARINES HAD SUNK 13 TANKERS FROM AN ALLIED CONVOY SAILING FROM TRINIDAD TO GIBRALTAR ENROUTE TO NORTH AFRICA.

JAN 11 1943

(THERE WAS NO CONFIRMATION OF THIS CLAIM IN ALLIED ANNOUNCEMENTS.)

NEW YORK, JAN. 10-(AP)-THE ITALIANS TODAY REPORTED MILITARY CASUALTIES OF 6,448 MEN IN DECEMBER--INCLUDING 1,449 KILLED, 2,933 WOUNDED AND 2,066 MISSING--WITH MORE MEN DYING IN GUERRILLA WARFARE AND FROM OTHER CAUSES IN THE BALKANS AND OTHER OCCUPIED LANDS THAN 30.24 - 241

FELL IN RUSSIA.

THE LARGEST TOLL, ACCORDING TO BERLIN BROADCASTS OF ROME FIGURES, WAS IN NORTH AFRICA, WITH 492 KILLED, 1,027 WOUNDED AND 396 MISSING.

IN THE BALKANS AND OTHER OCCUPIED LANDS, DECEMBER CASUALTIES WERE 271 KILLED, 422 WOUNDED AND 15 MISSING. IN RUSSIA, THE REPORT SAID, 236 WERE KILLED, 787 WOUNDED AND 81 MISSING.

JAN 11 1943

HEAVY LOSSES, PARTICULARLY IN THE NAVY, WERE REPORTED IN ITALIAN TERRITORY ITSELF, PRESUMABLY FROM ALLIED AIR RAIDS. NAVY CASUALTIES WERE 280 KILLED, 521 WOUNDED AND 1,369 MISSING. WHILE THE ARMY LOST 105 KILLED AND 85 WOUNDED. AIR FORCE LOSSES WERE GIVEN AS 65 KILLED, 87 WOUNDED AND 205 MISSING.

NEW YORK, JAN. 10--(AP)--THE BERLIN RADIO TONIGHT

BROADCAST A GERMAN TRANSOCEAN NEWS AGENCY DISPATCH DATED KUIBYSHEV, RUSSIA, REPORTING THAT THE JAPANESE AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA, NAOTAKE SATO, SPENT 30 MINUTES TODAY WITH S.A. LOZOVSKY, SOVIET VICE COMMISSAR OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

CAIRO, JAN 10-(AP)-ALLIED FIGHTER PLANES MACHINE-GUNNED THE ROAD BETWEEN HOMS AND ZLITEN IN TRIPOLITANIA WHERE FIELD MARSHAL ERWIN ROMMEL IS WITHDRAWING HIS AXIS ARMY TOWARD TRIPOLI FRIDAY NIGHT AND FIGHTER-BOMBERS CONTINUED TO PUNISH ENEMY TROOPS AND ~~XXXXX~~ TRANSPORT IN THE LIBYAN BATTLE AREA YESTERDAY, A BRITISH COMMUNIQUE SAID TODAY.

JAN 11 1943

ZLITEN IS ABOUT 90 MILES EAST OF TRIPOLI AND HOMS IS 65 MILES FROM THIS LAST AXIS SUPPLY PORT IN LIBYA. THE COMMUNIQUE REPORTED THAT MANY FIRES WERE STARTED AT MISURATA DURING A BOMBER ATTACK FRIDAY NIGHT.

THE COMMUNIQUE GAVE NO INDICATION OF THE WHEREABOUTS OF ROMMEL'S MAIN FORCES AND SAID THERE WAS NOTHING TO REPORT FROM THE LAND FORCES.

JAN 11 1943

AIRCRAFT OF THE MIDDLE EAST COMMAND ALSO ATTACKED ROADS AND TRANSPORT BETWEEN SFAX AND GABES IN TUNISIA, IT WAS REPORTED.

ONE GERMAN PLANE WAS REPORTED SHOT DOWN DURING "SMALL SCALE ENEMY ACTIVITY" OVER BENGASI FRIDAY NIGHT AND ANOTHER WAS DESTROYED IN THE TOBRUK REGION, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA, JAN 9-(AP)-A UNITED STATES ARMY WEATHER PLANE FLYING A PATROL ROUTE OVER THE ALEUTIAN ISLANDS, BOMBED AND SANK A JAPANESE CARGO SHIP AT HOLTZ BAY, ON ATTU ISLAND, EARLIER THIS MONTH, THE ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND DISCLOSED TODAY.

THE PATROL PLANE DROPPED TWO HEAVY BOMBS ON THE CARGO SHIP, TURNING IT OVER AND THEN SANK IT WITH A THIRD DIRECT HIT, MAJ. GEN. SIMON D. BUCKNER SAID.

GENERAL BUCKNER DISPATCHED THIS MESSAGE:

"CONGRATULATIONS T CREW WEATHER SHIP FOR TURNING IN BEST

WEATHER REPORT SO FAR RENDERED IN ALASKA."

THE PLANE WAS COMMANDED BY FIRST LIEUT.R.W.TARVIN, ADDRESS UNGIVEN.

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA, JAN 10-(AP)-SIX AIR CORPS VETERANS OF THE ALEUTIAN ISLANDS WHO HAVE PARTICIPATED FOR MONTHS IN THE RAIDS ON KISKA ISLAND ARE ENROUTE TO THEIR HOMES, ON LEAVE.

JAN 11 1943

THE SIX INCLUDE CAPT.A.S.AIKEN, 5205 LOMBARD ST., CHEVELRYN, MD.; AND LIEUTS.JAMES A.DALE, NORTH MIAMI, FLA.; GLEN H. TYERSON, 3826 N.CAPITOL AVE., INDIANAPOLIS; DELYNN E.ANDERSON, STEARNS, KY.

ANKARA, JAN.8-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A CONSIDERABLE PART OF TURKEY'S OUTPUT OF CHROMIUM--ONE OF THE LARGEST IN THE WORLD OF THIS VITAL STEEL-ALLOYING MATERIAL--BECOMES AVAILABLE TO GERMANY TODAY, PROVIDING THE NAZIS CAN FULFILL THEIR PART OF A 1941 AGREEMENT TO DELIVER ARMAMENTS AND OTHER GERMAN MANUFACTURES IN PAYMENT.

THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN EMBASSIES DECLINED COMMENT, BUT IT WAS KNOWN THAT A TURKISH-ALLIED DEAL FOR CHROMIUM WAS UNDER WAY.

ALLIED EXPERTS EXPRESSED DOUBT AS TO THE GERMANS' ABILITY TO MAKE THE REQUIRED DELIVERIES, ESPECIALLY OF ARMS AND HEAVY MACHINERY, AND IT WAS GENERALLY BELIEVED THAT THE GERMANS WOULD RECEIVE NO CHROMIUM UNTIL THE GERMAN SIDE OF THE BARGAIN WAS FULFILLED.

JAN 11 1943

NEVERTHELESS, THIS WEEK TURKISH AND GERMAN OFFICIALS SETTLED ON THE LIST OF GERMAN MANUFACTURES WHICH THE TURKS WANT UNDER A 100,000,000-REICHSMARK CREDIT OPENED IN BERLIN IN JUNE.

THE ORIGINAL CHROMIUM AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES WAS NEGOTIATED BY DR.KARL CLODIUS, HEAD OF THE GERMAN TRADE COMMISSION,

AFTER A MONTH'S HARD BARGAINING WHICH ENDED IN OCTOBER, 1941, WITH PROMISE OF DELIVERY OF 90,000 TONS OF THE METAL IN 1943 AND A SIMILAR TONNAGE IN 1944, IF GERMANY COULD DELIVER THE ARMS AND MANUFACTURES.

STOCKHOLM, JAN.10-(AP)-RESPONSIBLE SOURCES REPORTED TODAY THAT GERMAN CIVILIANS AND OFFICIALS IN NORWAY WERE BEING PUT THROUGH MILITARY TRAINING TO REINFORCE THE ARMY IN THE EVENT OF AN ALLIED INVASION.

THERE WAS NO INDICATION HOW MANY MEN WERE AFFECTED, BUT THERE ARE ESTIMATED TO BE MORE THAN 75,000 GERMAN MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN IN NORWAY.

JAN 11 1943

IN THE FINNMARK DISTRICT OF NORTHERN NORWAY THE GERMANS ARE REPORTED TO HAVE REQUISITIONED BETWEEN 35,000 AND 40,000 REINDEER TO BE USED FOR FOOD AND TRANSPORT ON FINLAND'S NORTHERN FRONT, WHICH IS MANNED BY GERMANS.

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN, JAN. 9--(AP)--GERMAN MARSHAL FEDOR VON BOCK, SPEAKING FOR A NUMBER OF GERMAN GENERALS WHO WERE ALARMED BY THE DANGEROUS POSITION OF THE GERMAN ARMIES IN THE CAUCASUS AS A RESULT OF THE DEVELOPING RUSSIAN OFFENSIVES, IS REPORTED IN BERLIN TO HAVE URGED ADOLF HITLER TO WITHDRAW HIS LINES WHILE THERE IS STILL TIME.

BOCK, FORMERLY THE COMMANDER ON THE STALINGRAD FRONT WHO WAS IN APPARENT DISGRACE RELIEVED OF HIS DUTIES DURING [redacted] A SHAKEUP OF THE GERMAN [redacted]

COMMAND WHEN THE NAZI ARMIES FAILED TO TAKE THE CITY ON THE VOLGA, A COMMAND AT THE FRONT HAD RETURNED TO [redacted] IN NOVEMBER.

JAN 11 1943

THESE SOURCES DID NOT KNOW WHERE VON BOCK TOOK CHARGE BUT THEY REPORTED THAT HE VISITED HITLER AT HIS FIELD HEADQUARTERS

AND DECLARED [redacted] THAT HE AND OTHER OFFICERS [redacted] HE REPRESENTED COULD NO LONGER TAKE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE SITUATION UNLESS HITLER ORDERED A RETREAT OUT OF THE CAUCASUS.

HITLER WAS SAID TO HAVE GONE INTO A RAGE AND ORDERED VON BOCK OUT OF THE HEADQUARTERS AFTER STATING THAT HE, AS SUPREME COMMANDER, BORE ALL RESPONSIBILITY.

VON BOCK LATER WAS SEEN IN BERLIN, THESE SOURCES SAID, BUT THEY SAID HE SINCE HAD DROPPED FROM SIGHT AND IT WAS NOT KNOWN WHETHER HE HAD RETURNED TO THE FRONT.

RUMORS CIRCULATING IN STOCKHOLM SAID IT WAS BELIEVED VON BOCK IS BACK ON THE STALINGRAD FRONT.

KNOCKED DOWN. HE BID ON EVERY PLANE, BUT EACH TIME WAS OUT-BID. FINALLY THE PRINCIPAL BUYER WALKED OVER AND REMARKED:

"SON, YOU BUY THE NEXT ONE AND DON'T BOTHER ME. I'M PURCHASING AN AIR LINE."

THE DAY BEFORE HE LEFT HE TRIED TO GO OUT ON A MISSION--"EVEN IF I ONLY GET ONE ON THE GROUND"--BUT CHENNAULT, COMMANDING THE AMERICAN AIR FORCE IN CHINA, REMINDED HIM THAT ORDERS WERE ORDERS AND KEPT HIM ON THE GROUND.

OTTAWA, JAN 10-(AP)-THE MAJORITY REPORT OF A THREE-MAN ROYAL COMMISSION INVESTIGATING RATES OF PAY AT SAULT STE. MARIE, ONT., AND SYDNEY, N.S., STEEL PLANTS RECOMMENDED TONIGHT THAT THERE SHOULD BE NO CHANGE IN BASIC WAGE RATES, EXCEPT IN THE CASE OF SOME MAINTENANCE MEN.

THE COMMISSION, HOWEVER, RECOMMENDED OVERTIME AT THE RATE OF TIME AND A HALF FOR THE SEVENTH DAY WHERE IT WAS FOUND NECESSARY FOR EMPLOYEES TO WORK A SEVEN-DAY WEEK.

F.H.BARLOW OF TORONTO, COMMISSION CHAIRMAN, AND JAMES T.STEWART OF ST.THOMAS, ONT., PRESENTED THE MAJORITY REPORT.

JAN 11 1943

J.KING GORDON, THE THIRD MEMBER, IN A MINORITY REPORT, RECOMMENDED THAT THE PRESENT BASIC RATES OF 50 1/2 CENTS PER HOUR AT SAULT STE. MARIE AND 52 1/2 CENTS PER HOUR AT SYDNEY--BOTH INCLUDING COST-OF-LIVING BONUS--SHOULD BE INCREASED TO 55 CENTS.

THE COMMISSION INQUIRED INTO WAGE RATES AT THE PLANT OF THE ALGOMA STEEL CORPORATION, LTD., AT THE SAULT AND THE PLANT OF THE DOMINION STEEL AND COAL CORPORATION, LTD., AT SYDNEY. EMPLOYES AT BOTH PLANTS HAD ASKED THAT WAGES BE INCREASED TO 55 CENTS AN HOUR.

WINDSOR, ONT., JAN. 10-(AP)-APPROXIMATELY 1,500 WORKERS WHO LEFT THEIR JOBS AT THE NO. 3 PLANT OF THE CHRYSLER CORPORATION OF CANADA WILL RETURN TO WORK ON THEIR REGULAR MONDAY SHIFTS, OFFICIALS OF THE UNITED AUTOMOBILE WORKERS OF AMERICA (CIO) ANNOUNCED TONIGHT.

THE HUGE PLANT--HOUSING THE MAIN ASSEMBLY LINE FOR MILITARY VEHICLES--WAS CLOSED FOR ABOUT THREE HOURS SATURDAY WHEN THE MEN LEFT THEIR MACHINES AFTER LUNCH-HOUR IN PROTEST, UNION OFFICIALS SAID, AGAINST DISMISSAL OF A SENIOR EMPLOYEE.

ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE MEN WOULD RETURN TO WORK TOMORROW WAS MADE AFTER A CLOSED, UNION-SPONSORED MEETING OF THE WORKERS TODAY. IT WAS ALSO ANNOUNCED THAT THE WORKERS' GRIEVANCE HAS BEEN REFERRED TO THE LOCAL GRIEVANCE COMMITTEE, WHICH IS TO MEET COMPANY OFFICIALS TOMORROW.

GEORGE BURT, REGIONAL DIRECTOR OF THE UNION, SAID SATURDAY HE ADVISED THE MEN TO RETURN TO WORK AFTER THEY LEFT THEIR MACHINES AT NOON-HOUR. THE MEN, HOWEVER, WENT HOME AND IT WAS STATED THE COMPANY HAD TURNED THE POWER OFF IN THE PLANT WHEN THE MEN STARTED MILLING ABOUT INSIDE.

PLANT 3, ONLY ONE AFFECTED, WAS CLOSED UNTIL 3:30 P.M.E.W.T. SATURDAY WHEN THE ONCOMING SHIFT OF APPROXIMATELY 300 REPORTED FOR WORK.

SOME 40 SURVIVORS OF THIS SHIP AND ANOTHER GROUP OF 40 RESCUED FROM ANOTHER SHIP TORPEDOED IN ANOTHER SECTION OF THE ATLANTIC HAVE ARRIVED HERE.

FEW OF THE MEN WOULD SAY MUCH ABOUT THE SINKINGS. ONE DID SAY, HOWEVER, THAT JUST BEFORE HIS SHIP WAS SUNK HE SAW THE DARK OUTLINES OF OUR SUBMARINES NEARBY.

JAN 11 1943

"YOU COULD SEE THE TRAILS OF THE TORPEDOES THEY WERE FIRING," HE SAID, ADDING THAT "THEY DIDN'T SEEM TO BE SHOOTING AT ANYTHING IN PARTICULAR--JUST FIRING IN EVERY WHICH WAY."

ONE OF THE TORPEDOES BLASTED THE SHIP, HOWEVER, AND IT WENT DOWN. AFTER THREE HOURS IN LIFEBOATS THE MEN WERE PICKED UP.

JAN 11 1943

DIRECTOR OF WAR INFORMATION ELMER DAVIS STRESSED THE "CONTINUING SERIOUS SUBMARINE MENACE" AND SAID THAT TO THE BEST OF HIS KNOWLEDGE THE GERMANS WERE STILL BUILDING MORE SUBMARINES THAN THE UNITED NATIONS WERE SINKING. HE SAID THE TOLL THAT THE GERMAN SUBS WERE TAKING OF ALLIED SHIPPING WAS CREATING "HEAVY LOSSES IN SHIPS AND IN THE CARGOES THAT GO WITH THEM."

JAN 11 1943

DAVIS ADDED THAT THE UNITED NATIONS FOR "SOME MONTHS" HAVE BEEN BUILDING SHIPS FASTER THAN AXIS SUBS WERE SINKING THEM." TO KEEP AHEAD OF AMERICAN MERCHANTMEN PRODUCTION ALONE, THE RAIDERS WILL HAVE TO SINK OVER FOUR SHIPS A DAY NOW AND FIVE IN MAY, ACCORDING TO A REPORT MADE BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND REAR ADMIRAL EMORY S.LAND.

ADMIRAL LAND, IN CHARGE OF THE SHIPBUILDING PROGRAM, SAID THAT UNITED STATES SHIPBUILDERS CONSTRUCTED 8,909,000 DEADWEIGHT TONS OF MERCHANT SHIPS IN 1942, WELL ABOVE THE 8,000,000 GOAL SET FOR THE YEAR, AND THE PRESIDENT SAID AMERICAN YARDS WILL EXCEED THEIR 1943 QUOTA OF 16,000,000 TONS.

FIVE OF THE SHIPS ANNOUNCED AS LOST DURING THE SEVEN-DAY PERIOD ENDED SATURDAY WERE SUNK OFF SOUTH AMERICA AND IN THE SOUTH ATLANTIC. THE OTHER WAS SUNK IN MID-ATLANTIC AND MARINE UNDERWRITERS FOLLOWED THE TREND BY CUTTING WAR RISK INSURANCE RATES FOR SHIPPING NORTH OF SOUTH AMERICA.

WASHINGTON, JAN 10-(AP)-ENEMY AGENTS, SAYS THE ARMY, USUALLY GET THEIR VITAL MILITARY INFORMATION NOT FROM TRAITORS BUT FROM PEOPLE WHO CAN'T HELP BRAGGING ABOUT WHAT THEY'RE DOING AND HOW MUCH THEY KNOW.

ALL ARMY UNITS IN TRAINING HEAR TALKS ON MILITARY SECURITY AND HOW TO SAFEGUARD IT, A WAR DEPARTMENT STATEMENT SAID TODAY, AND ONE OF THE THINGS IMPRESSED ON THE MEN IS THAT MOST OF THE INFORMATION COLLECTED BY ENEMY AGENTS IS GIVEN TO THEM UNWITTINGLY BY PEOPLE WHOSE PATRIOTISM IS BEYOND QUESTION.

JAN 11 1943

FOUR MAIN CAUSES OF LEAKS WERE LISTED--CONCEIT, FAITH, ENTHUSIASM AND IGNORANCE, IN THAT ORDER.

CONCEIT GETS CREDIT FOR ABOUT 90 PER CENT OF THE INDISCRETIONS--THE FELLOW WHO KNOWS A SECRET SPILLS PART OF IT "HANDING OUT A LINE" TO HIS GIRL, SHE BOASTS TO SOMEBODY ELSE ABOUT HOW IMPORTANT THE BOY FRIEND IS, AND IT KEEPS GOING.

FAITH? "AS A NATION," SAYS THE ARMY, "WE ARE TOO READY TO TRUST OUR FELLOWMEN." ALSO TOO READY TO BELIEVE THAT A SECRET TOLD WITHIN THE FAMILY IS STILL A SECRET, AND TO FORGET THAT AN ENEMY AGENT IS A PERSON ALMOST CERTAIN TO LOOK LIKE WHAT HE IS NOT.

ENTHUSIASM IS A COMMON CAUSE, BECAUSE ANYONE REALLY INTERESTED IN HIS JOB FINDS IT HARD NOT TO TALK OR WRITE ABOUT IT.

THE IGNORANCE MENTIONED, SAYS THE ARMY, IS THE GENERAL IGNORANCE OF THE METHODS ENEMY AGENTS USE. PEOPLE DON'T UNDERSTAND THAT IT IS NOT JUST A MATTER OF WAYLAYING A GENERAL AND STEALING A SET OF PLANS; IT IS COLLECTING THOUSANDS OF SMALL BITS OF INFORMATION, FITTING THEM TOGETHER, EVALUATING THEM, AND ACHIEVING A BIG RESULT.

WASHINGTON, JAN.10-(AP)-HOME FROM NORTH AFRICA, BRIG.GEN.STUART C.GODFREY DISCLOSED TODAY A NEW WEAPON OF HIS AVIATION ENGINEERS--AIRBORNE ROADBUILDING EQUIPMENT WHICH MAKES IT POSSIBLE TO CONSTRUCT ADVANCED AIRBASES ALMOST OVERNIGHT.

WHEN IT BECOMES NECESSARY TO ESTABLISH ADVANCED AIRBASES TO SUPPORT THE ACTION IN TUNISIA, GODFREY SAID, A CALL WAS PUT IN FOR THE AIRBORNE ENGINEERS. WITH THEIR EQUIPMENT, THEY WERE FLOWN IN CARGO PLANES TO POINTS AS CLOSE AS POSSIBLE TO THE SELECTED SITES. WITHIN THREE DAYS FLYING FORTRESSES WERE TAKING OFF FROM THE FIRST BASE, AND A SECOND BASE WAS COMPLETED THE NEXT DAY.

JAN 11 1943

"OUR ALLIES COULDN'T BELIEVE THEIR EYES WHEN THEY SAW EQUIPMENT BEING UNLOADED FROM AIRPLANES AND GOING RIGHT TO WORK," HE REPORTED.

THIS KIND OF FOREHANDEDNESS, HE SAID, IS GOING A LONG WAY TOWARD SOLVING THE DIFFICULT SUPPLY PROBLEM IN NORTH AFRICA, WHERE FOR 1,000 MILES THERE IS ONLY A SINGLE RAILROAD AND A NARROW HIGHWAY SYSTEM ALONG THE COAST.

AMONG THE EQUIPMENT, SPECIALLY DESIGNED FOR TRANSPORTATION IN PLANES OR GLIDERS, ARE LIGHTWEIGHT, PORTABLE HANGARS, A GASOLINE-OPERATED LIGHTING UNIT FOR NIGHT CONSTRUCTION WORK AND LIGHTING THE FIELD FOR NIGHT FLYING, A ROAD SCRAPER WHICH CAN BE HAULED BY A JEEP, AND ROLLERS TO BE FILLED WITH WATER OR SAND.

THE AIRBORNE AVIATION ENGINEERS WERE FIRST ORGANIZED LAST SUMMER. THEIR TRAINING WAS SO RAPID, STUART SAID, THAT WITHIN SIX MONTHS THEY WERE AT WORK IN ENGLAND AND READY FOR THE NORTH AFRICAN CAMPAIGN, WHERE MOST OF THEIR WORK HAS BEEN PIONEERING.

"THE IDEA BEHIND THEM," HE EXPLAINED, "IS THAT THEY CAN GET INTO FIELDS CAPTURED BY PARATROOPS OR ON INVADED ISLANDS RIGHT WITH THE ATTACK UNITS TO MAKE READY FOR AIR OPERATIONS WITH A MINIMUM OF DELAY.

JAN 11 1943

"THE SAVING OF A FEW HOURS OR DAYS IN THE CONSTRUCTION OF SUCH AIRDROMES MAY HAVE A GREAT BEARING ON THE OUTCOME OF A WHOLE CAMPAIGN.

THE AIRBORNE AVIATION ENGINEERS GO THROUGH A TOUGH TRAINING COURSE. THEY ARE CHOSEN FROM THE AIR FORCES PERSONNEL FOR THEIR STAMINA AND SPECIAL SKILLS. THEY MUST HAVE BOTH BASIC COMBAT AND ENGINEERING TRAINING. THEN THEY ARE INSTRUCTED IN OPERATION OF THEIR SPECIALIZED EQUIPMENT, SPECIAL ENGINEERING COURSES, ADVANCED TRAINING WITH SUCH WEAPONS AS SUBMACHINE GUNS, CARBINES AND RIFLES, AND A COURSE IN COMMANDO EXERCISES.

BUFFALO, N.Y., JAN.10-(AP)-SEN.CLAUDE PEPPER (D-FLA) ASSERTED TODAY THAT ANY POST-WAR PROGRAM MUST INCLUDE GUARANTEES FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A FREE PALESTINIAN STATE FOR JEWS.

"IT IS IN THE INTEREST OF THE BUILDING OF A BETTER WORLD THAT WE INCORPORATE NOW INTO ANY PROGRAM FOR THE POST-WAR ERA A DECLARATION OF INTENTION TO ASSURE THE RECONSTRUCTION OF THE JEWISH PEOPLE AN ALL OTHER OPPRESSED PEOPLE," HE SAID IN AN ADDRESS PREPARED FOR THE NEW YORK STATE CONFERENCE, UNITED PALESTINE APPEAL.

THE UNITED NATIONS' DECLARATION CONDEMNING NAZI PERSECUTION OF JEWS IS "NOT ENOUGH", THE SENATOR DECLARED, BUT MUST BE IMPLEMENTED WITH "IMMEDIATE MEASURES OF RECONSTRUCTION, WITH DEFINITE INTERGOVERNMENTAL PLANS FOR THE REHABILITATION OF THOSE WHO CAN BE SAVED FROM THE NAZI SLAUGHTERHOUSE."

JAN 11 1943

COUPLED WITH HIS ASSERTION THAT "THE JEWS MUST BE ENABLED TO BUILD THEIR OWN HOMES UNDER OWN GOVERNANCE ON THEIR ANCESTRAL SOIL," WAS SEN.PEPPER'S WARNING THAT "INTOLERANCE IS RAISING ITS UGLY HEAD AGAIN IN OUR OWN COUNTRY."

"WE MUST ALL FIGHT THOSE FORCES," HE CONTINUED. "NOW IS THE TIME FOR US ALL TO BE GREAT--DO RIGHT--DEFEND THOSE WHO HAVE BEEN OPPRESSED AND TOGETHER BUILD A WORLD WORTHY OF THOSE WHO NOW DIE, AND SHALL DIE, FOR HUMANITY."

ASSERTING PALESTINE "IS NOT MERELY A JEWISH QUESTION," THE SENATOR SAID THE ENTIRE FREE WORL "MUST REGARD ITSELF AS THE TRUSTEE FOR THE REESTABLISHMENT OF THE JEWISH NATIONAL HOME, WITHOUT WHICH NO CONSTRUCTIVE SOLUTION OF THE TRAGIC PROBLEM OF JEWISH HOMELESSNESS IS POSSIBLE."

THE CONFERENCE'S 600 DELEGATES ADOPTED A RESOLUTION URGING PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TO INVITE THE UNITED NATIONS TO PROVIDE FOR THE RESETTLEMENT OF TWO MILLION EUROPEAN JEWS IN A TEN-YEAR PERIOD AFTER THE WAR, SUGGESTING THE UNITED NATIONS OPEN THEIR DOORS TO HALF THE NUMBER, AND THE OTHER HALF BE SETTLED IN PALESTINE.

JAN 11 1943

AN OVERSEAS ATLANTIC BASE--(DELAYED)--THIS IS THE STORY OF AN EASTBOUND CONVOY.

IT IS ALSO THE STORY OF HOW A NUMBER OF YOUNG AMERICAN SAILORS GOT THEIR BAPTISM OF FIRE IN A FOUR-DAY HEAVY ATTACK BY SUBMARINES IN THEIR CONVOY IN THE MID-ATLANTIC.

THE NIGHT BEFORE WE WEIGHED ANCHOR, THE PASSENGER SAILORS WERE BROUGHT ABOARD, BOUND FOR DUTY OVERSEAS. FOUR OR FIVE WERE VETERANS OF THE LAST WAR, AND SEVERAL WERE TRANSFERS FROM OTHER SHIPS, BUT MANY OTHERS HAD NEVER BEEN TO SEA BEFORE.

THE FIRST MORNING, THE CHIEF BOATSWAIN'S MATE MUSTERED THE PASSENGERS, GAVE THEM INSTRUCTIONS ABOUT ALWAYS WEARING LIFE JACKETS ON DECK, WHERE TO GO WHEN THE GENERAL QUARTERS BUZZER SOUNDED (THE SIGNAL TO MAN BATTLE STATIONS), AND WARNED THEM TO BE CAREFUL ABOUT SMOKING AROUND THE HATCHES.

THE YOUNG MEN HARDLY HEARD THE WARNING. THEY WERE TOO EXCITED ABOUT ACTUALLY BEING AT SEA AND WATCHING THE FORMING OF THE CONVOY. BESIDES THEY HAD HEARD ALREADY FROM THE CREW THAT THE SHIP HAD BEEN MAKING THIS RUN REGULARLY WITHOUT SERIOUS TROUBLE.

DURING FOUR WARM, BEAUTIFUL DAYS, WE ALL LAY OUT ON THE HATCHES IN THE SUN, GAZING AT THE MAJESTIC ARRAY OF SHIPS IN THE CONVOY SPREAD OUT BEHIND US.

THEN ONE NIGHT THE WORD GOT AROUND THAT A SUB HAD BEEN SIGHTED 20 MILES ASTERN, AND THE NEXT MORNING WE HEARD A RUMOR THAT ONE OF THE ESCORT VESSELS HAD HAD A DIRECT SUB CONTACT ONLY FIVE MILES ASTERN OF THE CONVOY.

THE NEXT EVENING MOST OF THE PASSENGER-SAILORS WERE BELOW IN THE CROWDED TROOP SPANE, READING IN THEIR BUNKS, TALKING, OR TRYING TO PICK A FRIENDLY ARGUMENT WITH THE LONE MARINE ABOARD.

THEN IT STARTED. THE "GQ" BUZZER WENT OFF, AND WE POURED UP THE LADDER AND OUT ON DECK. THE WHOLE SEA WAS LIT UP WITH FLARES FROM EVERYWHERE, TRYING TO SPOT THE SUB ON THE SURFACE. DEPTH CHARGES WERE EXPLODING EVERY FEW SECONDS. THE BAPTISM WAS ON.

JAN 11 1943

HALF-DRESSED, SHIVERING, AND WONDERING, WE STOOD THERE AT QUARTERS 15 MINUTES BEFORE THE ESCORTS PASSED THE WORD "ALL SECURE."

AS SOON AS WE GOT BELOW AGAIN, THE CAPTAIN, OVER THE SHIP'S LOUD SPEAKER SYSTEM, ORDERED EVERY MAN TO SLEEP FULLY DRESSED WITH HIS LIFE JACKET NEARBY. HE SAID, "IT MAY BE NECESSARY FOR US TO ABANDON SHIP IF WE ARE HIT. BUT DO NOT BE PANICKY."

I LOOKED AROUND AT THOSE YOUNGSTERS, ONLY A FEW WEEKS AWAY FROM SCHOOLS AND CIVILIAN JOBS. THEY WERE SAYING TO THEMSELVES IN WONDERMENT, "ABANDON SHIP! HOLY SMOKE!"

TWO MINUTES LATER THE BUZZER WENT OFF AGAIN AND THE TROOP SPACE WAS EMPTY IN HALF THE TIME. JUST AS I HIT THE LADDER I HEARD

THE SPEAKER SAY, "NOW Y'HEAR THERE! SHIP X-X HAS BEEN TORPEDOED AND THE CONVOY IS UNDER ATTACK!"

THERE WAS NO MORE SLEEP THAT NIGHT. WE WOULD GO BACK BELOW AFTER THE "SECURE," SIT THERE DOZING AND JUMP AT EVERY NOISE THAT SOUNDED LIKE THE BUZZER.

JAN 11 1943

IT IS AN EERIE FEELING TO JUMP OUT OF A HALF-SLEEP, GO TEARING UP A LADDER WHILE WAKING UP, AND LOOK OUT ON A SEA LIT UP WITH FLARES LIKE THE FOURTH OF JULY, WITH DEPTH CHARGES SOMETIMES EXPLODING SO CLOSE THEY SHAKE YOUR OWN SHIP. YET THE SHIPS IN THE CONVOY STEAM ALONG, KEEPING POSITION AND SPEED. IN THE DARK, IT SEEMS AS IF THE WHOLE CHECKERBOARD MOVES ALONG OBLIVIOUS OF ANYTHING, BUT YOU KNOW ABOARD EVERY SHIP EYES ARE PEERING OUT TO SEE ANYTHING IN THE WATER.

THE WORST SCARE THAT FIRST NIGHT WAS THE LAST ONE. JUST AT DAWN ONE ESCORT SHIP MADE A CONTACT. SHE WAS RACING AROUND DROPPING DEPTH CHARGES. WHE

JUST AT DUSK, ON THE FOURTH NIGHT OF THE ATTACKS, I WAS STANDING AT THE STARBOARD RAIL. THE SHIP NEXT TO US COULDN'T HAVE BEEN MORE THAN 150 YARDS AWAY. SUDDENLY I SAW A HUGE PUFF OF SMOKE GO UP RIGHT ON HER STARBOARD BOW AND HEARD AN EXPLOSION. A MINUTE LATER, HER ENTIRE BOW WAS AFLAME. THE ESCORTS CAME RACING IN, SCATTERING DEPTH CHARGES, WHILE THE SHIP DRIFTED, FIGHTING THE FIRE.

WE WATCHED HER BURN FOR AN HOUR, DRIFTING SLOWLY ASTERN. NOW AND THEN FLAMES WOULD LEAP UP, AND WE COULD SEE THE CREW WITH THE HOSES.

EARLY NEXT MORNING AMERICAN PLANES HOVE INTO VIEW, AND THERE WERE NO FURTHER ATTACKS.

THE BAPTISM OF FIRE WAS OVER. THE YOUNGSTERS NOW REALLY HAD SOMETHING TO FIGHT FOR. AS ONE HUSKY FELLOW ASSIGNED TO DUTY ABOARD A DESTROYER SAID TO ME:

"BOY, NOBODY OUT HERE HAS TO TELL ME ABOUT HOW DANGEROUS THOSE BABIES ARE WE'RE GOING AFTER. JUST LET ME GET ON BOARD THAT SHIP!"

Y A DEPTH CHARGE EXPLODING CLOSE BY.

WE WERE A PRETTY DAZED BUNCH BY THE TIME DAYLIGHT ARRIVED. I BUMPED INTO ONE LAD, HO COULDN'T HAVE BEEN MORE THAN 18, SITTING BY HIMSELF ON A BENCH, SHAKING HIS HEAD AND MUTTERING TO HIMSELF,

"BOY, THIS IS A NIGHT TO REMEMBER..."

RED-EYED AS THEY WERE, THEY JOKED AT CHOW. THE SHIP'S BAKER WAS A HAPPY OLD FELLOW WHO HAD MADE SEVEN CROSSINGS WITH THE CRUISER CLEVELAND DURING THE LAST WAR. DURING THE NIGHT HIS BATTLE STATION HAD BEEN DOWN BELOW, READY TO PASS UP AMMUNITION TOPSIDE IF IT WAS NEEDED.

JAN 11 1943

A74WX

THAT NIGHT WAS ONLY THE BEGINNING. THE CONVOY GOT NO LETUP DURING THE FOLLOWING THIRTY-SIX HOURS.

ONLY THE BRAVEST WENT BELOW TO SLEEP AT NIGHT. WE CURLED UP ON BENCHES IN THE MESS HALL AND ON THE DECK IN THE PASSAGEWAYS.

BY EDWIN SHANKE

(ADVANCE) STOCKHOLM, JAN. 9-(AP)-ENCIRCLED BY AXIS TROOPS AND BLOCKADED ECONOMICALLY, SWEDEN IS DOING A POLITICAL TIGHTROPE WALKING ACT IN REMAINING NEUTRAL.

SHE HAS COME THROUGH A TICKLISH SITUATION AND HAS STEADILY BUILT UP HER MILITARY RESOURCES; AND NOW SHE IS STRONGER THAN SHE HAS BEEN SINCE THE START OF THE WAR.

JAN 10 1943

THE AXIS FIRES CONSTANT BROADSIDES AGAINST SWEDEN FOR ALLEGEDLY VIOLATING HER NEUTRALITY, AND THE SWEDISH PRESS HAS ADMITTED THAT THE UNITED STATES AND ENGLAND ARE NOT ENTIRELY SATISFIED WITH HER NEUTRALITY.

SWEDEN LOST HER POLITICAL BALANCE AT LEAST ONCE. SINCE THEN UNARMED GERMAN TROOPS HAVE BEEN CROSSING SWEDISH SOIL BETWEEN GERMANY AND NORWAY, AN EQUAL NUMBER EACH WAY AND UNDER STRICT CONTROL. THIS TRAFFIC MARS SWEDISH NEUTRALITY AND MOST SWEDES DON'T LIKE THE IDEA. THEY SAY THAT IF A SIMILAR ISSUE AROSE TODAY -- THAT IS, IF GERMANY MADE SUCH A REQUEST -- THE COUNTRY WOULD PROBABLY FIGHT FIRST.

SWEDEN HAS BEEN BUILDING UP HER ARMY, AIR FORCE AND NAVY TO AN UNPRECEDENTED STRENGTH, AND HAS BEEN ORGANIZING AIR RAID PRECAUTION AND HOMEGUARDS AND BUILDING AIR RAID SHELTERS AND BOLSTERING HER DEFENSES OTHERWISE AT A TERRIFIC COST TO THE NATIONAL PURSE.

THE NATIONAL DEBT HAS SHOT UP FROM 2.7 BILLION KRONER BEFORE THE WAR TO 8 BILLION TODAY, AND IN ADDITION THERE IS A 4 BILLION DEFICIT. MOST OF THE MONEY WENT INTO DEFENSES.

THE COUNTRY IS KEEPING ITS ARMY AT THE PEAK OF PREPAREDNESS, ESPECIALLY THROUGH THE DANGEROUS SPRING MONTHS. EVERY SWEDE BETWEEN THE AGES OF 20 AND 48 IS AFFECTED BY THE ANNUAL THREE-MONTHS' CALL UP EVEN THOUGH THIS SERIOUSLY DISRUPTS THE COUNTRY'S NORMAL LIFE.

THERE IS NO DOUBT THAT THE HEART OF DEMOCRATIC SWEDEN IS WITH THE UNITED NATIONS, AND THAT THE GERMANS REALIZE IT. THAT EXPLAINS THEIR STEADY ATTACKS ON SWEDEN IN THE PRESS. THE NAZIS ACCUSE THE SWEDES OF BEING UNNEUTRAL "BY TOLERATING ANGLO-AMERICAN INFILTRATION" AND HAVE EVEN TROUBLE OF CHEC

EVEN GONE TO THE

TROUBLE OF CHECKING BOOKLETS, COUNTING THE NUMBER OF AMERICAN AND ENG-

LISH BOOKS AS AGAINST GERMAN BOOKS TRANSLATED INTO SWEDISH.

THE NAZI PRESS HAS CHARGED THE SWEDES WITH "SABOTAGING" THE NEW ORDER IN NORWAY. IT HAS REGULARLY ACCUSED THE SWEDISH DAILY PAPERS OF BEING "HOSTILE TO GERMANS," HAS RAILED AT THE SWEDES BECAUSE "IN LONDON AND IN ALMOST THE SAME DEGREE IN NEIGHBORING STOCKHOLM IT HAS BECOME THE FASHION TO REPRESENT THE SOVIETS AS HEROIC CRUSADERS," AND HAS THREATENED THAT SWEDEN WILL SUFFER IF SHE INSISTS OF "CASTING EYES TO THE WEST AND EAST" INSTEAD OF COOPERATING HONORABLY WITH THE GERMANS.

JAN 10 1943

WHETHER IT IS THAT THE ATTACKS HAVE BECOME MONOTONOUS BECAUSE OF THEIR REGULARITY OR WHETHER IT IS CONFIDENCE IN THEIR OWN STRENGTH, THE SWEDES HAVE NEVER BEEN PERTURBED BY THEM.

ALTHOUGH HE LIVES IN ONE OF EUROPE'S LAST ISLANDS OF PEACE WHERE HE CAN RUB SHOULDERS WITH THE FOE WITHOUT CLASHING, THE SWEDE'S LIFE IS DEEPLY SCORED BY THE WAR, AND OBSERVERS BELIEVE THAT IN THE LONG RUN SWEDEN MAY EMERGE AFTER THE WAR AS POOR AS THE BATTLE-RAVAGED COUNTRIES.

JAN 10 1943

YOU FIND SWEDEN'S STREETS BRIGHT AND COLORFUL TODAY, ITS SHOP-WINDOWS SHINING ATTRACTIVELY, ITS STORES LOADED WITH THE COMFORTS WHICH THE EUROPEAN COUNTRIES AT WAR HAVE LONG SINCE FORGOTTEN, THOUGH SCARCITIES ARE DEVELOPING EVEN HERE. AMONG THE PEOPLE THERE IS A TEMPERED GAIETY, RELAXATION AND PEACE OF MIND, AND LIFE PERHAPS IS MORE NORMAL THAN IN ANY OTHER EUROPEAN COUNTRY.

BUT THE LONGER THE WAR LASTS THE MORE DEADLY BECOMES THE DISLOCATION OF THE NATIONAL ECONOMY. INDUSTRY AND EVEN AGRICULTURE ARE DEPENDENT ON IMPORTS WHICH NOW ARE REDUCED TO A TRICKLE BECAUSE OF THE COUNTRY'S ISOLATION FROM THE WEST.

JAN 10 1943

RAW MATERIALS ARE BEING SHIPPED OUT WITH LITTLE COMING BACK IN RETURN, ESPECIALLY FROM EXHAUSTED COUNTRIES LIKE NORWAY AND FINLAND, WHILE GERMANY IS HAVING DIFFICULTY KEEPING UP THE DELIVERIES PROMISED IN THE TRADE TREATY WITH SWEDEN.

THE MERCHANT FLEET IS DWINDLING IN TONNAGE. SOME 450,000 GROSS TONS HAVE BEEN LOST OUT OF 1,600,000. THE INDUSTRIAL MACHINE IS SLOWLY SUCCUMBING TO FRICTION WITH LITTLE REPLACEMENT POSSIBLE. EVEN THOSE STORED RAW MATERIALS, VALUED AT 165,000,000 KRONER BEFORE THE OUTBREAK OF THE WAR, ITS RESERVES OF FOOD AND OTHER ESSENTIALS, HAVE BEEN DRAINED TO THE POINT WHERE SWEDEN IS FORCED TO LIVE FROM HAND TO MOUTH.

THE VALUE OF THE COUNTRY'S TRADE HAS FALLEN FROM 3,925,000,000 KRONER IN 1939 TO 3,022,000,000 IN 1941, BUT THAT DOESN'T PRESENT THE WHOLE PICTURE OF THE SERIOUSNESS OF THE SITUATION AS THE RISE IN PRICES OF ALMOST ALL COMMODITIES MUST BE TAKEN INTO CONSIDERATION.

IN VOLUME THE 1941 TRADE IS NOT MORE THAN HALF OF 1938'S. IMPORTS TODAY ARE ONLY 46 PER CENT AND EXPERTS 54 PER CENT OF THOSE IN 1938.

WAR WHICH IS ALWAYS HARD ON THE POCKETBOOK HAS MADE SWEDEN PROBABLY THE MOST EXPENSIVE COUNTRY TO LIVE IN IN THE WORLD. THE OFFICIAL COST OF LIVING IN AN INDEX BASED ON REPORTS FROM 30 CITIES AND THE BUDGET OF A WORKING MAN'S FAMILY OF THREE SHOWS A 50 PER CENT INCREASE OVER 1939.

30.24 - 251 c

(V)

BUT THAT IS NOT INDICATIVE OF THE REAL COST OF LIVING IN BIGGER CITIES SUCH AS STOCKHOLM WHERE MOST OF SWEDEN'S 6,000,000 INHABITANTS ARE CONCENTRATED. ACTUALLY THE AVERAGE HOUSEHOLD BUDGET RUNS 70 PER CENT ABOVE THE PREWAR FIGURE FOR FOOD, CLOTHES AND HEAT. FOR EXAMPLE, A TON OF COAL USED TO COST 20 KRONER AND NOW COSTS 80.

THE WAR HAS BROUGHT HEAVY TAXES, TOO. SWEDEN LEVIES A SALES TAX OF FROM 5 TO 6 PER CENT ON EVERY ARTICLE SOLD WITH THE EXCEPTION OF POTATOES, AND A 40 PER CENT WAR TAX ON LUXURIES. THE UNDERLYING REASON FOR THE HIGH COST OF LIVING IS THE BLOCKADE. ONLY FIVE OR SIX SWEDISH SHIPS, SAIL MONTHLY BETWEEN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE AND GOTEBORG. THEY BRING IN WHEAT, FODDER, OIL, OIL CAKES, RAW HIDES, FRUIT, CANNED GOODS AND COFFEE FROM SOUTH AMERICA, AND SOME COTTON OIL FROM THE UNITED STATES.

JAN 10 1943

THE GERMANS PERMIT THE SWEDES TO BRING IN ANYTHING. BUT THE RUB COMES ON THE EXPORTS BECAUSE THE NAZIS REFUSE PERMISSION TO EXPORT TO AMERICA ANYTHING WHICH POTENTIALLY CAN BECOME A TOOL OF WAR. HENCE SWEDEN'S EXPORTS WESTWARD ARE VIRTUALLY ZERO, AND MANY SAFE CONDUCT SHIPS TRAVEL IN BALLAST OR CARRY LIGHT LOADS OF PULP. WHAT LITTLE EXPORT TRADE SWEDEN HAS WITH THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN IS CARRIED BY AIR IN THE FORM OF HIGH GRADE STEEL BALL BEARINGS OR TOOL STEEL.

THIRTY PER CENT OF SWEDEN'S IMPORT TRADE IS TRANSPORTED BY SAFE CONDUCT SHIPS FROM THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE BUT 70 PER CENT OF HER IMPORT-EXPORT TRADE IS WITH GERMANY AND THE OCCUPIED COUNTRIES ALTHOUGH GERMANY IS NOT ALWAYS IN CONDITION TO MAKE DELIVERIES, ESPECIALLY OF COAL FOR WHICH SWEDEN DEPENDS ON GERMANY.

LAST YEAR GERMANY DELIVERED 3.800.000 TONS -- JUST ABOUT HALF OF WHAT HAD BEEN PROMISED. SWEDEN'S HIGH GRADE ORES AND WOOD PULP TRAVEL IN CONVOY IN SWEDISH TERRITORIAL WATERS AND THEN ACROSS A SHORT STRETCH OF THE BALTIC TO GERMANY, PRINCIPALLY TO STETTIN, ALTHOUGH IRON ORE IS SHIPPED TO ROTTERDAM FOR THE RUHR INDUSTRIES.

THE LONGER THE WAR LASTS, THEREFORE, THE TOUGHER BECOMES SWEDEN'S SITUATION. SEVENTY PER CENT OF HER FOOD CONSUMPTION IS RATIONED. CHARCOAL OR WOOD SUBSTITUTE FOR GASOLINE, CELLULOSE AS FODDER FOR LIVESTOCK. SOON BUNA WILL BE HER RUBBER. UNDER A RECENT TRADE TREATY GERMANY PROMISED TO DELIVER 1,800 TONS OF BUNA BECAUSE SWEDEN'S RESERVES OF RUBBER HAVE BEEN EXHAUSTED.

THE GERMANS STIPULATED, HOWEVER, THAT THE BUNA IS NOT TO BE USED BY AMERICAN PLANTS OPERATING IN SWEDEN. THIS MEANS THAT GOODYEAR WITH THE LARGEST AND MOST MODERN PLANT WILL BE WITHOUT RAW MATERIALS.

THE BICYCLE HAS BECOME THE NATIONAL VEHICLE. ONLY 80,000 AUTOMOBILES OUT OF 220,000 IN OPERATION BEFORE THE WAR ARE STILL ON THE ROAD AND ALMOST ALL OF THEM ARE RUNNING ON SUBSTITUTE FUELS.

THE REST ARE ON STILTS IN STORAGE, THE TIRES HAVING BEEN COMMANDEERED BY THE STATE FOR USE ON TRUCKS. TO DISCOURAGE TRAVEL, RAILWAY FARES HAVE BEEN BOOSTED FROM 45 TO 50 PER CENT. A CONSIDERABLE PORTION OF SWEDEN'S TRANSPORT SYSTEM IS ELECTRIFICIED BY WATER POWER. THE COAL SHORTAGE, THEREFORE, HAS NOT AFFECTED COMMUNICATIONS SERIOUSLY, BUT THE GREAT INCREASE IN FREIGHT HAS THROWN AN EXTRA LOAD ON THE RAILWAYS.

JAN 10 1943

TWO BAD HARVESTS IN 1940-1941 AND A "BELOW FAIR CROP" THIS YEAR PUT A HEAVY STRAIN ON THE FOOD SITUATION, AND SOME OBSERVERS FORECAST THE THE COUNTRY MAY BE IN BAD STRAITS BY SPRING. ALL ESSENTIAL FOOD-STUFFS SUCH AS BREAD, BUTTER, FAT, SUGAR, FLOUR, RICE AND SPICES, AND SOME CANNED GOODS SUCH AS MEAT ARE RATIONED AS STRICTLY AS IN BELLIGERENT COUNTRIES ALTHOUGH THE QUANTITY OF THE FOOD IS GENERALLY HIGHER AND ONE CAN EAT BETTER.

ACTUALLY THE RATION CARDS DON'T GO AS FAR HERE AS THEY DO IN ENGLAND, FOR EXAMPLE, BECAUSE THEY HAVE TO BE USED IN RESTAURANTS AS WELL AS IN HOUSEHOLDS. THE GREATEST SHORTAGE IS MEAT WHICH IS LIMITED TO ABOUT A HALF-POUND A PERSON WEEKLY. THE MEAT SUPPLY IS LOW BECAUSE SWEDEN'S INADEQUACY OF MEAT SUPPLIES FORCED ON THE COUNTRY A SLAUGHTERING PROGRAM WHICH REDUCED THE NUMBER OF HOGS BY 45 PER CENT, AND CATTLE BY 15 PER CENT.

AS A RESULT THE SWEDISH DIET IS STRONG ON THE FISH SIDE, BUT RATIONING OF FISH HAS BEEN IMMINENT. THE SWEDISH DIET IS DEFICIENT IN SUNSHINE VITAMINS AND FOOD EXPERTS ESTIMATE THAT THE VITAMIN INTAKE IS DOWN 20 PER CENT. PURE CHOCOLATE IS DIFFICULT TO GET. THE RATIONING OF LIQUOR--CONTROLLED BY THE STATE EVEN BEFORE THE WAR -- HAS BEEN REDUCED TO TWO LITERS (ABOUT 2 QUARTS) A MONTH.

A BLACKMARKET FLOURISHES FOR EGGS AND FOWL WHICH ARE DIFFICULT TO GET. THERE IS AMPLE FRUIT ON THE MARKET. IN FACT, SO MANY LEMONS FROM ITALY ARE SENT IN RETURN FOR SWEDEN'S RAYON AND PULP THAT THE SWEDES EVEN PERMIT THEM TO BE EXPORTED TO NORWAY AND FINLAND.

THE SWEDES ARE LEARNING TO EAT RABBIT WHICH IS NOT RATIONED. RABBITS WERE VIRTUALLY UNUSED AS FOOD BEFORE THE WAR, BUT THE SHORTAGE OF FOWL AND MEAT RESULTED IN HEAVY IMPORTS FROM DENMARK AND MANY SWEDES TURNED THEIR EMPTY GARAGES INTO RABBIT HUTCHES.

CLOTHES RATIONING IS MORE LIBERAL THAN IN THE EUROPEAN COUNTRIES AT WAR, ALTHOUGH THE QUALITY HAS DROPPED TO A POINT WHERE 30 PER CENT OF EVERY PIECES OF CLOTH IS STAPLE FIBER. WITH VERY LITTLE NEW BUILDING AND A DEFINITE TREK FROM FARMS TO THE CITIES BECAUSE OF THE BETTER PAYING JOBS, THERE IS AN ACUTE HOUSING SHORTAGE. IT TAKES MONTHS TO FIND AN APARTMENT OR OFFICE SPACE.

GREAT STACKS OF CORDWOOD ARE PILED IN BACKYARDS BECAUSE OF THE SCARCITY OF COAL ON WHICH FACTORIES HAVE A PRIOT CLAIM. BOTH WOOD AND COAL WHICH ARE DOWN TO 40 PER CENT OF THE PRE-WAR ALLOTMENT ARE RATIONED.

JAN 10 1943

AS A RESULT ONE OF THE MAJOR INCONVENIENCES IS A BAN ON HOT WATER EXCEPT FOR A FEW HOTELS. HOT WATER BOILERS ARE TURNED ON TWICE ANNUALLY FOR THREE OR FOUR DAYS -- IN SPRING AND AT CHRISTMAS. SOME WOMEN HAVE SOLVED THE BATHING PROBLEM BY CLUBBING TOGETHER IN GROUPS OF FIVE FOR A GAME OF BRIDGE AND RENTING A HOTEL ROOM FOR THE GAME. WHILE FOUR PLAY THE FIFTH SITS IN THE TUB.

THE WAR HASN'T AFFECTED ENTERTAINMENT MUCH. OPERA, CONCERTS, AND AMERICAN MOVIES DRAW PACKED HOUSES NIGHTLY. EIGHTY PER CENT OF THE MOVIES SHOWN ARE OF AMERICAN PRODUCTION, AND THEY ARE SHOWN IN ENGLISH AT THE INSISTENCE OF THE SWEDES WHO WISH TO LEARN ENGLISH AND FIND THAT ONE OF THE EASIEST WAYS.

GERMAN FILMS AREN'T POPULAR AND ARE SHOWN ONLY WHEN AN AMERICAN PICTURE FOR THE MOMENT IS UNOBTAINABLE. THE SWEDISH FILM OUTPUT HA

BEEN INCREASED SINCE THE WAR STARTED FROM 25 TO 40 PICTURES ANNUALLY, MAINLY BECAUSE IT WAS THOUGHT AT FIRST THAT THERE WOULD BE A DROP IN THE NUMBER OF AMERICAN FILMS.

NIGHTCLUBS ARE ILLEGAL AND WHEN THEY ARE OPENED SURREPTITIOUSLY, THEY ARE SOON PADLOCKED.

JAN 10 1943

INFLATION, MEANTIME, HAS BECOME A REAL DANGER WITH THE SWEDISH AUTHORITIES SEEKING WAYS OF AVERTING IT AND EVEN CONSIDERING COMPULSORY SAVING. ALTHOUGH THE COST OF LIVING HAS SKYROCKETED, WAGES HAVE INCREASED ONLY 23 PER CENT.

WAGES ARE NOW PEGGED TO PRICES FOR AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS WHICH ARE FIXED, AND A CEILING FOR ALL COMMODITIES IS BEING NEGOTIATED. WORKERS AND EMPLOYERS HAVE REACHED AN AGREEMENT THAT IF THE COST OF LIVING INCREASES ANOTHER 10 POINTS WAGES WILL BE BOOSTED 5 PER CENT.

JAN 10 1943

PAPER MONEY CIRCULATION MEANWHILE IS CONTINUALLY CLIMBING AND IT IS NOW 1,900,000,000 KRONER OR 80 PER CENT HIGHER THAN IN PRE-WAR TIMES.

100 Billion Asked For Financing War

President Asks 9 Billion for Other Purposes —Recommends $16,000,000,000 Through Taxes or Compulsory Loans.

By Richard L. Turner

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—President Roosevelt told Congress today of plans for spending $100,000,000,000 on fighting the war in the next fiscal year—plus $9,000,000,000 to go for other purposes—and recommended $16,000,000,000 in new taxes or compulsory loans.

The complete text of President Roosevelt's message and a summary of the budget will be found on Page 16.

Effort of Gigantic Magnitude

Submitting his annual budget message, the Chief Executive outlined a "national effort of gigantic magnitude," reaching all the way from American homes and factories to far distant battle lines.

"It reflects," he said, "the determination of civilians to 'pass the ammunition'."

Talking about the budget and taxes at a press conference, Mr. Roosevelt said one of his personal objectives was a $25,000 limit after the payment of taxes, on all incomes. Under executive regulations, net salaries are now limited to $25,000.

The colossal extent of the contemplated expenditures brought a collective gasp from Congress, which quickly made two things clear: first that all necessary war appropriations will be quickly forthcoming; and, second, that Republicans and economy minded Democrats will insist upon a further reduction in non-war outlays.

Possible Tax Increase

Tax receipts will have to be increased by $16,000,000,000 if they are to cover half the war budget, Mr. Roosevelt said,—raised from $33,081,245,000, the estimated net yield of the present law, to around $49,000,000,000. He suggested (and congressional talk immediately centered upon) increased outright tax payments supplemented by compulsory savings, taxes to be refunded to the taxpayer after the close of the war.

In addition he urged that so far as possible taxes be placed upon a "pay-as-you-go basis." He emphasized that in any event the tax program would require war-time sacrifices, saying:

"Total war in a democracy is a violent conflict in which everyone must anticipate that both lives and possessions will be assigned to their most effective use in the common effort—the effort for community survival—national survival."

And later:

"We are at one in our desire quickly to win this war and to avoid passing on to future generations more than their share of its sacrifices and burdens."

Reading clerks intoned the President's message to both Houses shortly after they met. In the Senate, there was a loud buzz of conversation meanwhile, Senators wandered in and out of the chamber. The two party leaders, Senator Barkley (D. Ky.) and Senator McNary (R. Ore.) stood in the middle of the center aisle, holding an animated discussion.

Loudspeaker Fails

This scene had its parallel in the House, and there confusion was increased by the failure of the loudspeaker system. Few listened, in fact, but all were supplied with copies of the budget—a volume the size of a big-city telephone directory—to be studied in their offices.

Mr. Roosevelt warned civilians in his message that on the average they can be supplied with but $500 worth of goods and services during the fiscal year, or almost 25 per cent less than in the "record" year 1941. But "even then," he continued, "most of us will be better fed, better clothed, and better housed than other peoples in the world." However, he asked that it not be assumed there is no need for a great improvement in the living conditions of a "large segment" of the American population.

"It is the responsibility of government to plan for more production of essential civilian goods and less of non-essential goods," he said. "Production and distribution of goods should be simplified and standardized, unnecessary costs and frills should be eliminated. Total war demands simplification of American life. By giving up what we do not need, all of us will be better able to get what we

Roosevelt Budget Calls for 100 Billions for War, Seeks 50 Billions in Taxes and Forced Saving; Navy Identifies 11 Warships Lost in Solomons to need."

Each citizen, he continued, must be assured of "the necessities of life at prices which he can pay," or "rising prices will lift many goods beyond his reach just as surely as if those goods did not exist." A concerted effort to stabilize prices, rents and wages, he added, had kept the "rise in the cost of living within narrow bounds." Prices, he said, could and would be stabilized "with only a limited use of subsidies to stimulate needed production."

He warned that some wanted the stabilization controls relaxed for this or that group. These, he added, forget that "to relax the controls for one group was an argument to relax for other groups, thereby starting the cost of living spiral which would undermine the war effort and cause grave postwar difficulties."

Calls Stabilization Consistent

"Economic stabilization for all groups—not for just the other fellow—is the only policy consistent with the requirements of total war. I have read of this bloc, and that bloc, and the other bloc which existed in past Congresses. May this new Congress confine itself to one bloc—a national bloc."

Without the tax increase, Mr. Roosevelt estimated that the new budget would increase the national debt to a total of $210,549,000,000. Some $76,000,000,00 would have to be borrowed to cover the broad spread between governmental income and outgo.

The "nation is soundly solvent," he said, and "such a debt can and will be repaid."

At a supplemental press conference held on Saturday, Mr. Roosevelt informally broke the contemplated outlay of $19,000,000,000 down in this way:

For the war $97,000,000,000.

For the activities of government corporations, $3,000,000,000.

Other corporations $2,000,000,000.

Interest on the national debt $3,000,000,000.

Non-war expenditures $4,000,000,000.

Outlay Less Than Requested

The war outlay, he told reporters frankly, was less than the Army and Navy had requested. But, he added, it was all that could be feasibly expended—that is, it was an amount which would keep American industry working at full capacity for the entire year. The total was based, he said, on the total of things that could be turned out, and consequently was an outright maximum.

"Victory cannot be bought with any amount of money, however large," he said. "Victory is achieved by the blood of soldiers, the sweat of workingmen and women, and the sacrifice of all people. But a 100-billion-dollar expenditure program does reflect a national effort of gigantic magnitude.

"It calls for vision on the part of those in charge of war production, ingenuity of management and the skill, devotion and tenacity of the men on the farms and in the factories.

"It makes possible the expansion of our armed forces necessary to offensive operations, the production of planes and munitions to provide unquestioned superiority, and the construction of ships which will make it possible for us to strike at the enemy wherever he may be. x x x

"Moreover, consumers' goods and services will have to be produced in an amount adequate to maintain the health and productivity of the civilian population. And all of this will have to be done while we are withdrawing millions of men from production for service in the armed forces.

"Some persons may believe that such a program is fantastic, my reply is that this program is feasible."

Non-war Expenditures

Mr. [illegible] particularly emphatic on the subject of non-war expenditures, a touchy point in some congressional circles. He said in his message that there has been a progressive reduction in these outlays, which under the budget estimates for next year, carries them to a point $2,392,000,000 below their level for the fiscal year 1939. The non-war figure for next year, an attached table showed, would be $1,174,000,000 less than in the last full pre-war fiscal year, that of 1941.

He told his press conference that many more dollars could be pruned from the non-war category if Congress would repeal certain laws which must otherwise be carried out.

"My recommendations," he said, "contemplate that in the fiscal year 1944, 96 cents of every dollar expended by the federal government will be used to pay war costs and interest on the public debt, and only four cents for all the so-called 'non-war' purposes."

On the subject of taxes, Mr. Roosevelt avoided any direct suggestions as to the form the levies should take. He spoke of raising funds by "taxation and savings." By "savings" he explained at his press conference, he meant compulsory savings or a tax which would be refunded to the taxpayer over a period of years after the close of the war.

"I hope," he said, "that Congress in working out the revenue program will consider that the fiscal measures must be designed not only to provide revenue, but also to support the stabilization program as well by deterring luxury on non-essential spending.

Wants Equitable Distribution

"The cost of the war should be distributed in an equitable and fair manner. Furthermore, care should be taken that the fiscal measures do not impair but actually promote maximum war production. Finally, it is more important than ever before to simplify taxation both for taxpayers and for those collecting the tax, and to put our taxes as far as possible on a pay-as-you-go basis.

"I can not ask Congress to impose necessarily heavy financial burdens on the lower and middle incomes unless the taxes on higher and very large incomes are made fully effective. At a time when wages and salaries are stabilized, the receipt of very large net incomes from any source constitutes a gross inequity undermining the national unity."

BUDGETING FOR TOTAL WAR WAR EXPENDITURES

The huge and expanding rate of war expenditures shows our determination to equip our fighting forces and those of our allies with the instruments of war needed for victory. Monthly expenditures for war purposes amounted to 2 billion dollars just after Pearl Harbor; they now exceed 6 billion dollars and they will average more than 8 billion dollars a month during the fiscal year 1944. For the whole of the current fiscal year total war expenditures are now estimated at 77 billion dollars; for the next fiscal year, at 100 billion dollars. These estimates include the net outlays of government corporations for war purposes and assume only a small rise in prices.

Victory Cannot Be Bought

Victory cannot be bought with any amount of money, however large; victory is achieved by the blood of soldiers, the sweat of working men and women, and the sacrifice of all people. But a 100-billion-dollar expenditure program does reflect a national effort of gigantic magnitude. It calls for vision on the part of those in charge of war production, ingenuity of management, and the skill, devotion, and tenacity of the men on the farms and in the factories. It makes possible the expansion of our armed forces necessary to offensive operations, the production of planes and munitions to provide unquestioned superiority, and the construction of ships which will make it possible for us to strike at the enemy wherever he may be. It reflects the determination of the civilians to "pass the ammunition." Moreover, consumers' goods and services will have to be produced in an amount adequate to maintain the health and productivity of the civilian population. And all of this will have to be done while we are withdrawing millions of men from production for service in the armed forces.

Some persons may believe that such a program is fantastic. My reply is that this program is feasible. If the nation's manpower and resources are fully harnessed I am confident that the objective of this program can be reached, but it requires a complete recognition of the necessities of total war by all—management, labor, farmers, consumers and public servants—regardless of party. Production short of these military requirements would be a betrayal of our fighting men.

This budget does not include the detailed estimates of war expenditures which would reveal information to our enemies. An additional reason for such action at this time is that rapid developments on far-flung battle fronts make it impossible to submit a detailed war budget for a year ending 18 months hence. I shall continue, however, to report on the broad categories of war expenditures. The following table summarizes our present estimates of war expenditures from general and special accounts and by government corporations.

Estimate of Expenditures

Estimates of total expenditures for war, fiscal years of 1943 and 1944:

(Billions) Object of expenditure	Fiscal 1943	Fiscal 1944
Munitions	$43	$66
Military and civilian pay, subsistence and travel	15	21
Industrial construction	6	2
Other construction	8	5
Other, including agricultural land-lease	5	6
Total	77	100

This spring I shall submit the necessary information upon which the Congress can base war appropriations for the fiscal year 1944. In the meantime there are available about 170 billion dollars unspent war appropriations and authorizations; about two-thirds of this amount is already obligated or committed. Further appropriations will soon be needed to permit letting of contracts with industry for the next year.

THE PROGRAM

MUNITIONS

Total mobilization of all our men and women, all our equipment, and all our materials in a balanced proportion program will enable us to accomplish the production goals underlying this war budget.

Manpower—Marked progress has been made in mobilizing manpower. In spite of the increase in the armed services, industrial production rose by 48 per cent, and agricultural production by 15 per cent between calendar years 1940 and 1942. Industrial production has not been delayed and crops have not been lost because of lack of manpower except in a few isolated cases. More than 10 million people have been added to the employed or the armed forces since the summer of 1940, 7 million of whom were unemployed and more than 3 million of whom are additions to the nation's labor and armed forces.

Manpower mobilization is now entering a much more difficult phase. During the calendar year 1943 approximately six million people will be needed above present requirements for the armed services and war production. This number can be obtained by transferring from less essential work, and by drawing into the working force people who have not recently sought employment. Vigorous action is required to mobilize and train our reserve of women and young people, to accelerate the transfer of workers to essential industries, and to reduce harmful turn-over and migration of workers in essential industries. It also requires prevention of labor hoarding and elimination of hiring restrictions based on sex, creed, or race. I reiterate my previous recommendation for a unified and adequate rehabilitation service to make available a million persons for war industry and to restore to civil employment persons who are being disabled in the armed forces.

Civilian Requirements to Be Affected

Manpower needs of the armed forces and of war production during the calendar year 1943 can be met without impairment of essential civilian requirements. I stress the important distinction between "essential requirements" and the thousand and one things that are non-essentials or luxuries. The production of these non-essentials wastes manpower at a time when careful economy and greater efficiency in the use of our manpower resources is imperative. Private thought and public discussion of this subject are very necessary.

Equipment—Were it not for an unprecedented program of conversion and the building up of a new war industry during the past two and one-half years, we could not expect to fulfill the war-production program outlined in this message.

Some progress, but not enough, has been made in spreading war contracts more widely among medium-sized and smaller plants. Further efforts are necessary. In certain cases, of course, saving of manpower and materials requires concentration in those plants best equipped to produce a given commodity.

Materials—Furthermore, war production is limited by our supply of raw materials. The available materials must be transformed into the maximum of striking power. The production of less urgent or the wrong quantity of items, or poor scheduling of production in any single plant or in the munitions program as a whole, results in waste of precious materials. The nation's war production must be so scheduled that the right items are produced in the right amounts at the right time.

Discussion of War Contracts

War contracts—The procurement program must achieve maximum production with minimum waste and with the speed essential in time of war. This is the controlling objective not only for the original negotiation of contracts but also for the renegotiation required by law. The law provides for the prevention or recapture of excessive profits, thus supplementing and reinforcing the objectives of the excess-profits tax. I believe that control of the costs of production is of equal importance.

The proper negotiation and renegotiation of contracts must strive to reconcile the avoidance of excessive profits with the maintenance of incentives to economical management.

Food is a primary weapon of war. An adequate food supply is, therefore, a basic aspect of a total war program. I have placed in the hands of the secretary of agriculture full responsibility for determining and fulfilling the food requirements in this war. Our agricultural production is larger than ever in our history but the needs of our armed services and our Allies are so great that a shortage of certain foods is inevitable. The production of the less-needed commodities must be reduced, while the production of commodities for war and essential civilian use must be increased. It is imperative also that this increased demand for food be adjusted to available supplies. There will be sufficient volume in our bill of fare but less variety. That may hurt our taste but not our health.

To facilitate this program, I am recommending appropriations for aids to agriculture totaling 837 million dollars for the fiscal year 1944. Among the major items included in the 837-million dollar total are 400 million for conservation and use of agricultural land resources; 194 million for parity payments on the 1942 crops; and 96 million for exportation and domestic consumption of surplus commodities. Other large items included are 84 million dollars for

F. D. R. Says All Are Soldiers in Total War —Manpower Mobilization Now Entering Difficult Phase, Legislators Are Cold.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's budget message to Congress follows:

Exceeds 100 Billions

To the Congress of the United States:

I am transmitting herewith a war budget exceeding 100 billion dollars for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1943. Last year I called the budget an instrument for transforming a peace economy into a war economy. This budget presents the maximum program for waging war.

We wage total war because our very existence is threatened. Without that supreme effort we cannot hope to retain the freedom and self-respect which give life its value.

Total war is grim reality. It means the dedication of our lives and resources to a single objective: Victory.

Total war in a democracy is a violent conflict in which everyone must anticipate that both lives and possessions will be assigned to their most effective use in the common effort—the effort for community survival—nation survival.

In total war we are all soldiers, whether in uniform, overalls, or shirt sleeves.

payments under the Sugar Act; 38 million for the Farm Security Administration; and 31 million for reductions in interest rates on farm mortgages.

Prior to the 1943 appropriation acts, annual appropriations for parity payments were made a year in advance of actual need, and acreage allotments for the year ahead were used as a factor in determining payments on the crops of the current year. In the 1943 budget and appropriation acts, provisions were made to insure that all factors used in determining the amount of parity payments on the crops of a given year would pertain to the program of that year.

Also, to bring this item into conformity with our general budgetary practice, the annual cash appropriation for parity payments was omitted, but the secretary was authorized to incur contractual obligations assuring the co-operating producers of cotton, corn, wheat, rice, and tobacco that such payments would be made, if and as necessary, on their 1942 crops.

Producers to Be Compensated

The appropriation now requested, therefore, is simply the amount estimated to be necessary to compensate the producers of corn, wheat, and certain minor types of tobacco for the disparity between the market returns from the normal yield of their 1942 allotted acreage and the parity price return from that production. It is expected that no parity payments will be necessary on the 1942 crops of cotton, rice, and most types of tobacco.

Since the established national policy is to assure the co-operating producers of these basic crops parity prices on the normal yields of their allotted acreages, I am again recommending that the authority to incur contractual obligations for such payments on future crops be renewed.

On the other hand, I am recommending a reduction of 50 million dollars in the appropriation for conservation and use of agricultural land resources. I am also directing the secretary of agriculture to utilize the 400 million dollars still provided under this heading as fully and effectively as the basic law will permit to encourage greater production of the crops essential to the war effort. This fund will not be used for restriction of production except of less-needed crops. Payments will be made only to those producers who comply fully in their plantings with the stated war-production goals.

For exportation and domestic consumption of agricultural commodities the budget includes only the permanent annual appropriation of 30 per cent of customs revenues provided by law, plus reappropriation of unobligated balances. The food-stamp plan, which is a major item of the current program, will be discontinued shortly. Although other items such as school lunch and school milk projects and the direct distribution of surplus commodities are somewhat expanded, there will be an over-all reduction of nearly 30 million dollars.

JAN 12 1943

Provision for operations under the Farm Tenant Act and for loans, grants, and rural rehabilitation are continued on about the same level as for the current year. Small farms, like other small war plants, must be encouraged to make a maximum contribution to the war. I hope the Congress will give as much sympathetic consideration to these smaller and poorer farmers as it has given to the smaller and poorer industrial concerns.

All Needs Can't be Foreseen

Because no one can immediately foresee all the needs we may encounter in fulfilling our essential war requirements for agriculture, various loan and purchase operations, involving contingent liabilities which cannot be exactly predetermined, may be necessary.

In spite of a 100-billion-dollar war program, civilians can be supplied with an average of about $500 worth of goods and services during the next year. This implies an average reduction of almost 25 per cent in civilian consumption below the record level of the calendar year 1941. Even then most of us will be better fed, better clothed, and better housed than other peoples in the world. Do not let us assume from that statement, however, that there is no need for great improvement in the living conditions of a large segment of our population.

It is the responsibility of the government to plan for more production of essential civilian goods and less of non-essential goods.

Distribution to Be Simplified

Production and distribution of goods should be simplified and standardized; unnecessary costs and frills should be eliminated. Total war demands simplification of American life. By giving up what we do not need, all of us will be better able to get what we do need.

In order to distribute the scarce necessities of life equitably we are rationing some commodities. By rationing we restrict consumption, but only to assure to each civilian his share of basic commodities.

The essentials for civilian life also include a good standard of health and medical service, education, and care for children in wartime as well as in peace.

We must assure each citizen the necessities of life at prices which he can pay. Otherwise, rising prices will lift many goods beyond his reach just as surely as if those goods did not exist. By a concerted effort to stabilize prices, rents, and wages we have succeeded in keeping the rise in the cost of living within narrow bounds. We shall continue those efforts, and we shall succeed. By making effective use of all measures of control, we shall be able to stabilize prices with only a limited use of subsidies to stimulate needed production.

Some would like to see the controls relaxed for this or that special group. They forget that to relax controls for one group is an argument to relax for other groups, thereby starting the cost-of-living spiral which would undermine the war effort and cause grave post-war difficulties. Economic stabilization for all groups—not for just the other fellow—is the only policy consistent with the requirements of total war. I have read of this bloc, and that bloc, and the other bloc, which existed in past Congresses. May this new Congress confine itself to one bloc—a national bloc.

Stabilization goes beyond effective price control. Under war conditions a rise in profits, wages, and farm incomes unfortunately does not increase the supply of goods for civilians; it merely invites the bidding up of prices of scarce commodities.

Stabilization Seen Essential

The stabilization of incomes and the absorption of excess purchasing power by fiscal measures are essential for the success of the stabilization program. I am confident that the Congress will implement that program by adequate legislation increasing taxation, savings, or both. Thus, we will help to "pay as we go" and make the coming peace easier for ourselves and our children.

CIVILIAN CONTROLS IN TOTAL WAR

Total war requires nothing less than organizing all the human and material resources of the nation. To accomplish this all-out mobilization speedily, effectively, and fairly we have had to adopt extensive controls over civilian life. We use the selective service system to man the armed forces. We are systematizing the movement of labor to assure needed manpower to war industries and agriculture. We regulate prices, wages, salaries, and rents; we limit consumer credit; we allocate scarce raw materials; and we ration scarce consumer goods—all to the end of providing the materials of war and distributing the sacrifices equitably.

Such regulations and restrictions have complicated our daily lives. We save rubber, metal, fats—everything. We fill out forms, carry coupons, answer questionnaires. This is all new. We have over-done it in many cases. By trial and error we are learning simpler and better methods. But remember always that reaching the objective is what counts most. There is no easy, pleasant way to restrict the living habits—the eating, clothing, heating, travel, and working habits—of 130 million people. There is no easy, pleasant way to wage total war.

Civilian Administration

About 400,000 civilian employes of the federal government are engaged in the task of civilian administration for total war. They direct and schedule war production; handle the procurement of food, munitions, and equipment for our armed forces and our allies; supervise wartime transportation; administer price, wage, rent, labor and materials controls and commodity rationing; conduct economic and propaganda offensives against our enemies; and do necessary paper work for the armed forces.

Besides these government employes, millions of men and women volunteers—who draw no pay—are carrying out tasks of war administration, many of them after long hours at their regular occupation. These patriotic citizens are serving on draft boards, on war price and ration boards, in the civilian defense organization, the war bond campaign, and many other activities. They deserve the gratitude of their countrymen.

More than 1,600,000—or approximately three-fifths—of all federal civilian employes are engaged directly in war production. They build and load ships, make guns and shells, repair machines and equipment, build arsenals and camps, sew uniforms, operate airports and signal systems. These are the workers in navy yards, arsenals, storage depots, military airfields, and other operating centers. It is scarcely ethical to try to make people believe that these workers are holding down armchair or unnecessary government jobs.

Helpful Criticism Welcome

This huge organization, created overnight to meet our war needs could not be expected to function smoothly from the very start. Congressional committees and many individuals have made helpful suggestions. Criticism is welcome if it is based on truth. We will continue our efforts to make the organization more fully effective.

Compensation of federal employes—Last month the Congress took temporary and emergency action, which will expire April 30, 1943, relative to compensation for federal employes. The legislation removed inequities, lengthened the workweek to conserve manpower, increased payment for longer hours, and provided bonus payments for certain employes. The pay increases should be met largely by reducing the total number of employes proportionate to the increase in the workweek.

In the present appropriation requests and expenditure estimates for the fiscal year 1943 and 1944, no allowance is made for any cost increase resulting from the adjustment in federal salaries.

Federal Salary Study

The problems of federal salary administration need further study in the early days of the new Congress for enactment of more permanent legislation for the duration of the war.

JAN 12 1943

I am making recommendations in the usual detail for so-called "non-war" appropriations for the fiscal year 1944. This classification includes the same items as in former years.

Actually, the "non-war" classification now has little, if any, meaning. Most of these expenditures are related to the war effort and many are directly occasioned by it. This "non-war" category includes, for instance, expenditures for war tax collections, for budgeting, disbursing, and auditing war expenditures, and for statistical and scientific services to war agencies. It includes also such items as the control of white pine blister rust, which I recently discussed. Expenditures for controlling this threat to our timber resources are necessary to avoid possible loss of millions of dollars in lumber from trees which require more than 50 years to reach maturity.

All counted, there are less than 850,000 civilian employees of the federal government, including the postal service, who are engaged in these so-called "non-war" activities.

A few weeks ago I transmitted to Congress a comprehensive report on "non-war" expenditures during the past decade. This document demonstrated the important reductions which had been made in these expenditures, especially since the start of the defense program.

Reductions Summarized

The following table summarizes reductions analyzed in the report, to which it is now possible to add revised estimates for the fiscal year 1943 and estimates for 1944 as developed in this budget.

"Non-war" expenditures, fiscal years 1939-44. (Excluding interest and statutory debt retirement).

(Millions)

Fiscal Year	Total Non-War Expenditures	Reduction Below 1939
1939	$6,516
1940	6,246	$270
1941	6,238	1,218
1942	5,125	1,391
1943 (estimated)	4,582	1,934
1944 (estimated)	4,124	2,392

The table shows a reduction of 36.7 per cent in "non-war" expenditures in the next fiscal year compared with 1939. In appraising these reductions, it should be borne in mind that large items, such as veterans' pensions and social-security grants, are controlled by legal or other commitments. In fact the outstanding increase for the fiscal year 1944 is for the Veterans' Administration, for which expenditures are estimated at 879 million dollars, or 265 million dollars higher than in the current year. Most of the increase is for insurance for our fighting forces in the present war.

The most important reductions recommended for the coming year relate to work relief and general public works. Because of present high levels of employment, I am able to recommend elimination of the Works Projects Administration. This action under present conditions does not cast upon the state and local governments more than the proper burden of financing the relief of those who are unable to work. Expenditures for general public works will be greatly curtailed. Continuing projects are directly related to war needs. Others have been discontinued as rapidly as this could be done without risking the loss of the investment already made.

I shall be glad to co-operate with the Congress in effecting further reductions in "non-war" expenditures through the necessary revision of underlying legislation and in every other way. It should be pointed out to the Congress and to the nation, however, that we are fast approaching the subsistence level of government—the minimum for sustaining orderly social and economic processes—and that further reductions will necessarily be of much smaller magnitude than those already achieved.

My recommendations contemplate that in the fiscal year 1944, 96 cents of every dollar expended by the federal government will be used to pay war costs and interest on the public debt, and only four cents for all the so-called "non-war" purposes.

INTEREST

War financing has raised the requirement for interest on the public debt from 1,041 million dollars in 1940, the fiscal year before the defense program started, to an estimated 1,850 million dollars for the current year and 2,000 million dollars for the fiscal year 1944 under existing legislation.

FINANCING TOTAL WAR THE NEED FOR ADDITIONAL FUNDS

Financing expenditures which will exceed 100 billion dollars is a task of tremendous magnitude. By meeting this task squarely we will contribute substantially to the war effort and clear the ground for successful reconstruction after the war. An adequate financing program is essential both for winning the war and for winning the peace.

Two Fiscal Problems

Financing total war involves two main fiscal problems. One problem is to supply the funds currently required to pay for the war and to keep the increase in federal debt within bounds. The second problem is caused by the disbursement of 100 billion dollars a year to contractors, war workers, farmers, soldiers and their families, thus adding many billions to the peoples' buying power, at a time when the amount of goods to be bought is declining steadily. A large portion of this excess buying power must be recovered into the treasury to prevent the excess from being used to bid up the price of scarce goods and thus undermine the stabilization program by breaking price ceilings, creating black markets, and increasing the cost of living.

We cannot hope to increase tax collections as fast as we step up war expenditures or to absorb by fiscal measures alone all excess purchasing power created by these expenditures. We must, therefore, provide a substantial portion of the needed funds by additional borrowing, and must also use direct controls, such as price ceilings and rationing for the protection of the consumer. Nevertheless, the more nearly increases in tax receipts follow increases in expenditures, the better we safeguard our financial integrity and the easier the administration of price control and rationing. All of these measures are interrelated. Each increase in taxes and each increase in savings will lessen the upward pressure on prices and reduce the amount of rationing and other direct controls we shall need.

The revenue acts of the past three years particularly the Revenue Act of 1942, have contributed greatly toward meeting our fiscal needs. In the fiscal year 1944, total general and special receipts under present law are estimated at 35 billion dollars, or almost six times those of the fiscal year 1940. But the increase in expenditures has been even more rapid.

Additional Funds Through Taxes

I believe that we should strive to collect not less than 16 billion dollars of additional funds by taxation, savings, or both, during the fiscal year 1944.

On the basis of present legislation, we expect to meet 34 per cent of total estimated federal expenditures by current receipts during the fiscal year 1944. If the objective proposed in this message is adopted, we shall meet approximately 50 per cent of expenditures during the fiscal year 1944.

THE NEED FOR A BALANCED AND FLEXIBLE REVENUE SYSTEM

I hope that the Congress in working out the revenue program will consider that the fiscal measures must be designed not only to provide revenue, but also to support the stabilization program as well by deterring luxury or nonessential spending. The cost of the war should be distributed in an equitable and fair manner. Furthermore, care should be taken that the fiscal measures do not impair but actually promote maximum war production. Finally, it is more important than ever before to simplify taxation both for taxpayers and for those collecting the tax, and to put our taxes as far as feasible on a pay-as-you-go basis.

I cannot ask the Congress to impose the necessarily heavy financial burdens on the lower and middle incomes unless the taxes on higher and very large incomes are made fully effective. At a time when wages and salaries are stabilized, the receipt of very large net incomes from any source constitutes a gross inequity undermining national unity.

Fairness requires the closing of loopholes and the removal of inequities which still exist in our tax laws. I have spoken on these subjects on several previous occasions.

The Congress can do much to solve our problem of war finance and to support the stabilization program. In the past, wars have usually been paid for mainly by means of inflation, thereby shifting the greatest burden to the weakest shoulders and inviting post-war collapse. We seek to avoid both. Of necessity, the program must be harsh. We should remember, however, that it is a war for existence, and not taxation, which compels us to devote more than one-half of all our resources to war use. An effective program of war finance does not add to the total sacrifices necessitated by war, but it does assure that those sacrifices are distributed equitably and with a minimum of friction.

Helping a Privilege

We should remember furthermore, that helping to finance the war is the privilege mainly of those who still enjoy the receipt of incomes as civilians during the war. It is a modest contribution toward victory when we compare it with the contribution of those in the fighting forces.

By the end of the current fiscal year, the public debt will total 135 billion dollars. By June 30, 1944, it will be about 210 billion dollars under existing revenue legislation. Before the present debt limit of 125 billion dollars is reached, the Congress will be requested to extend that limit. To do this is sound, for such a debt can and will be repaid. The matter is soundly solved.

JAN 12 1943

PREPARING FOR TOTAL VICTORY

Preparing for total victory includes preparing the base on which a happier world can be built. The tremendous productive capacity of our country, of all countries, has been demonstrated. Freedom from want for everybody, everywhere, is no longer a Utopian dream. It can be translated into action when the fear of aggression has been removed by victory. The soldiers of the fighting forces and the workmen engaged in military production want to be assured that they will return to a life of opportunity and security in a society of free men.

The economic stabilization program, although born of war necessity, will greatly facilitate post-war reconstruction. A determined policy of war taxation and savings will aid in making post-war problems manageable by reducing the volume of additional borrowing and supporting the stabilization program. Because of the unavoidable magnitude of interest-bearing debt, taxes probably will never revert to their pre-war level. But substantial reduction from the war level will, nevertheless, be possible and will go hand in hand with a greater human security if the underlying fiscal structure is kept sound.

I shall be happy to meet with the appropriate committees of the Congress at any and all times in regard to the methods by which they propose to attain the objectives outlined in this message. We are at one in our desire quickly to win this war and to avoid passing on to future generations more than their just share of its sacrifices and burdens.

U. S. War Costs Top All Nations'.

Washington, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—Everybody is supposed to be doing the best he can, but Uncle Sam will throw into the war pot next year more than all the other warring nations—on both sides—put together.

President Roosevelt told Congress today our war costs in the next fiscal year will run a cool $100,000,000,000.

While foreign costs aren't exactly comparable, due to differences in population, wealth, price levels, and other factors, here are estimates from unofficial sources of what the other nations will spend in the same year:

Germany	$34,400,000,000
England	21,330,000,000
Russia	15,000,000,000
Italy	8,670,000,000
Japan	7,000,000,000
Canada	3,545,000,000

Not even rough estimates were available for China, and the others.

JAN 12 1943

ONE QUICK LOOK AT NEW BUDGET

Washington, Jan. 11 (A. P.), —The $109,000,000,000 Federal budget for next fiscal year by major categories calls for these Treasury expenditures:

War purposes, $97,000,000,000.

Interest on public debt, $3,000,000,000.

Other activities, $4,128,924,923.

(These include civil departments and agencies, the legislative, executive and judiciary branches, public works and veterans' funds, &c.).

In addition, the budget provides for expenditures by Government corporations of $4,774,123,000. (The corporations would expend $3,000,000,000 on the war effort, making the war total $100,000,000,000. They include the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Commodity Credit Corporation, &c.).

Note: Spending figures do not include Reconstruction Finance corporation, and other corporation, whose outlays in the 1944 fiscal year will be $4,744,000,000, including $3,600,000,000 for war.

U. S. Expenditures In Our Other Wars

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11. — (AP) President Roosevelt's $100,000,000,000 budget brought the estimated cost to America of World War II to $196,000,000,000 from Pearl Harbor to June 30, 1944.

Here are some comparisons of past American costs:

Revolutionary war $150,000,000.

War of 1812 $138,700,000.

Mexican war $166,000,000.

Civil War (North only) $15,097,082,784.

Spanish-American war $1,921,504,307.

World War I $41,765,000,000.

Total previous wars $59,233,287,091.

Total of all Federal spending, including wars from 1789 to Pearl Harbor $197,180,000,000.

Roosevelt Budgets In Last Ten Years

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.— (AP) Today's was the biggest of them all, but President Roosevelt had dealt with a lot of Federal money before sending his new budget to Congress.

Before the country got into a real war, he had a "war on depression" which set peacetime records. Here are the figures:

RUSSIANS PUSH AHEAD SWIFTLY IN CAUCASUS

Lower Don Drive Toward Rostov Continues—Foe Counters Fiercely

KEY RAIL TOWN ENCIRCLED

Soviet Forces Sweep Around Georgievsk in Offensive. From Moscow

Moscow, Jan. 11 (A. P.). —The Red Army has seized thirteen more settlements from the Germans in the north Caucasus, where the German-held railroad junction of Georgievsk was threatened with encirclement, and has broken a German salient thrust into Russian positions on the central front far to the north, the midday communique said today.

JAN 12 1943

The advance down the lower Don continued despite desperate German efforts to block it some sixty miles northeast of Rostov, the key Nazi supply center in southern Russia, it was reported. Another German-held community was captured in the lower Don area.

Bitter fighting preceded the temporary success of the Germans on the central front. The communique acknowledged that a wedge had been driven into the Red Army's positions, but said a Russian counter-attack forced the Germans back to their original positions.

[The German High Command said yesterday that a German shock troop division on the central front had captured seventy-five Russian strong points and destroyed their garrisons.]

Georgievsk Is Imperilled.

In the north Caucasus, the capture of thirteen more settlements by the Russians appeared to make the German position at Georgievsk still more precarious. An earlier communique had reported the city was half encircled. The Russians said they had captured Georgievskaya, four miles south of Georgievsk, and other small towns forming a semi-circle around the railroad junction. Vast stores of German mines, ammunition and other equipment fell into Russian hands, it was said.

The Germans, who had ad-

vanced down the Rostov-Baku railway last summer in quest of the oil of Grozny and Baku, already had withdrawn seventy-five miles from Mozdok to Georgievsk and they apparently faced a new withdrawal along the railway leading to the northwest.

Particularly fierce fighting was reported at a river position where the Germans had concentrated a large number of their six-barrel mortars and tanks. The Russian troops were said to have succeeded in crossing the river and throwing back the Germans in hand-to-hand fighting. More German prisoners were sent streaming to the rear, it was added.

JAN 12 1943

Nazi Counter-attacks Fail.

The lower Don offensive was reported rolling forward over mounting German resistance with another populated place falling to the Russians along with a large ammunition dump and other material. The Germans counter-attacked and attempted to recapture the community, the war bulletin said, but withdrew leaving more than 100 dead. In another sector of this front, Russian tanks were said to be advancing after routing two enemy battalions.

Only on the central front west of Moscow did the Russians report a check to their offensives. In one sector, the midday communique reported, the Germans succeeded in driving a wedge into the Red Army positions, but the situation was said to have been restored by a counter-attack. Two hundred Germans were reported killed.

The entire German position in the Caucasus seemed to be imperiled as the Russians drove on along the lower Don toward Rostov and the rising fury of the German defense indicated the Germans realized the danger. Describing the lower Don fighting, the midnight communique said one Red Army unit, "forging ahead in the course of the day, beat off six enemy counter-attacks."

Reds Gain on Steppes.

"The Hitlerites suffered heavy losses and were unable to force back the offensive of the Soviet troops," the war report said. "By the end of the day our detachments with sudden assaults attacked the enemy in the flank."

Further south along the railway line from Stalingrad to Tikhoretsk and Novorossisk on the Black Sea, the Russians said they had captured several more places in the area of Zimovniki, about 130 miles southwest of Stalingrad.

The army newspaper Red Star said that life in the recaptured city of Velikie Luki was returning to normal and a train from the East was expected to arrive soon.

[The German High Command, which has steadfastly refused to admit the loss of this important city, announced yesterday: "The garrison of Velikie Luki yesterday offered heroic resistance to strong enemy attacks.]

The midnight communique said that Russian guerrillas were operating in Latvia, some ninety miles ahead of the Red Army in the Velikie Luki region, and had derailed three German troop trains, smashing many cars.

It also reported that 313 enemy aircraft were destroyed in the week ending Saturday for the loss of ninety-three Soviet planes.

CAUCASIAN DRIVE SWEEPS SWIFTLY ON ROAD TO ROSTOV

JAN 12 1943

Separate Army Makes 20-Mile Advance Along Railway to Tikhoretsk.

NAZIS IN RETREAT

Russians Reported 60 Mile from Goal in Lower Don Area.

MOSCOW, Tuesday, Jan. 12 (AP) Red army tanks and motorized infantry, swiftly rolling the Germans back in the Caucasus along the road to Rostov, captured six Caucasian cities yesterday, including Georgievsk, Mineralnye Vody, and Pyatigorsk, the Soviets announced last night in one of its most impressive special communiques.

The regular midnight communique that followed a few hours later also told of a 20-mile advance southwestward along the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway below the Don river from Zimovniki to Kuberle, and although the Russians for the second day did not claim any important points on the lower Don river itself they said their troops still were gaining ground in that sector nearest Rostov.

60 Miles From Rostov

Red army troops last were reported about 60 miles from Rostov in the lower Don area.

Other important centers captured in the Caucasus were announced as Kislovodsk, 42 miles southwest of Georgievsk; Zaeleznovodsk, nine miles southwest of Mineralnye Vody; and Budennovsk, a railway city about 100 miles northeast of Georgievsk. Many intermediate points were taken in this broad area.

Along the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway the Russians took a series of towns stretching for 21 miles from Novolodin, just above Kuberle, through Zhirny to Kuteynikovo. Vesioly, 30 miles south of Zimovniki, also fell to the advancing Russians.

The Russians said their tanks and troops smashed Nazi resistance in nearly all the recaptured Caucasian points, and still were mopping up behind their advance spearheads. Knots of Nazi resistance left in the hurried German retreat thus were eliminated at Konstantinovskaya, just west of Prokhladnenski, at Goriachevodskaya near Pyatigorsk, and at Praskoveya, between Georgievsk and Budennovsk.

Wide Area Regained

Virtually the entire region south of Mineralnye Vody, famous for its health resorts and hospitals, now is in Russian hands, it was announced.

The Red army took these cities on or near the Rostov-Baku railway by swift encircling maneuvers which forced the Germans to retreat hastily to the northwest through Armavir toward Rostov. The north Caucasus offensive is only 18 days old but since the Russians checked the Germans at the suburbs of Ordzonikidze, they had advanced 112 miles.

Armavir itself, 170 miles southwest of Rostov, was menaced by this Russian offensive and by the sweep across the bleak Kalmyck steppes. Mineralnye Vody is 255 airline miles southeast of Rostov; Georgievsk is 20 miles farther. Pyatigorsk is 28 miles southwest of Georgievsk.

Three other settlements, Achikulak, Alexandryiskaya and Archangelskoye, in the same general spa region—where the Germans had hoped to spend the winter in comparative luxury—also were announced as captured.

New Russian Hero

Lieut. Gen. Maslennikov emerged as the new Russian hero leading the currently most successful Russian offensive. Just a year ago, he recaptured Kalinin in one of the major battles that saved Moscow.

The first great fruits of Gen. Maslennikov's drive were announced Jan. 3 with the capture of Mozdok on the approaches to the Grozny oil fields. Later, Red forces pushed through Nalchik and Prokhladnenski.

Abreast with the Caucasus gains, the Russian army on the lower Don stood within 60 miles of Rostov, the fall of which would trap all Nazi troops in the south. The precipitate withdrawal of the Germans suggested that they were aware of this peril.

Georgievsk, Mineralnye Vody and Pyatigorsk form an important triangle in the center of the north Caucasus. Budennovsk is on the Kuma river 60 miles northeast of Georgievsk. The Germans occupied this region high in the foothills of the towering Caucasus range in mid-August.

Generals Cited

Several generals supporting Gen. Maslennikov were cited for meritorious service. Among these were Lieut. Gen. N. Y. Kirichenko, commander of the Fourth Guards cossacks, and Maj. Gen. G. P. Lobanov, commander of a tank force.

The special communique also singled out for special mention Major-Generals V. A. Khomenko, K. A. Koroteyev, P. S. Kozlov, and A. G. Selivanov, and Col. Gen. V. I. Filippov.

The key railway towns and other villages in the Caucasus fell only after "stubborn fighting," this communique said, but it declared that large quantities of war material were captured.

German Resistance Grows

The noon communique told of the slaughter of more than 1,000 Germans on fronts stretched over 1,100 miles of snow-blanketed Russia. It told also of increasing German resistance and counterattacks which have slowed the momentum of the Soviet offensives everywhere except in the north Caucasus.

The cleanup of Germans inside Stalingrad and in a pocket west of the Volga city continued. Defense points were reported occupied in the factory district where 300 of the enemy were slain. The northwest, the Russians pushing down on the 22 trapped Axis divisions were declared to have captured considerable materiel including 13 machineguns, four mortars, four tank guns and 260 rifles.

[The Soviet midnight communique, heard in London by the Soviet monitor, gave additional details of the Caucasus fighting. Mechanized units broke through and pushed the enemy into Georgievsk and Mineralnye Vody, it said, and "on the heels of the retreating Germans our troops broke into the towns and after fierce fighting captured them."

[Along the Lower Don, the communique said the offensive continued and Potelnikov, Konavalsky and Brennikov and the railway station of Kotelov were taken. Konstantinovskaya, about seventy miles northeast of Rostov, also fell.

[On the central front a German attack northwest of Velikie Luki "succeeded in pressing back somewhat our units" at a cost of several hundred enemy killed, the communique said. Another Nazi attack in a neighboring sector was reported beaten back with three infantry companies annihilated.]

GERMANS BEAT RAPID RETREAT

Rolled Back 112 Miles in 18 Days—Captured War Materiel Being Counted.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 11—The Russians announced a great triple victory in the north Caucasus tonight with the capture of the cities of Mineralnye Vody, Georgievsk and Pyatigorsk in their sweep up from the Grozny oil region along the Baku railway toward Rostov.

The Soviet Monitor here recorded the Moscow broadcast of a special communique listing the seizure of these important places as well as six other towns in the same general area.

JAN 12 1943

Nazis Beating Hasty Retreat

The swiftness of the Russian drive in the north Caucasus indicated that the Germans were beating a rapid retreat to escape being cut off by other Russian armies striking along the lower Don, already within 60 miles of Rostov.

Both Mineralnye Vody and Georgievsk are important rail hubs on the Baku trunk line, 255 and 275 airline miles respectively southeast of Rostov.

Pyatigorsk is 28 miles southwest of Georgievsk.

The Russian commander in the Caucasus was disclosed for the first time as Lieut. Gen. Maslenikov, a hero of the campaign last winter that saved Moscow. He was a commander in the Kalinin sector.

Numerous other generals were cited for meritorious action on the Caucasian front, pointing up the significance the Russians attached to their victory.

Foe Rolled Back 112 Miles

Since stopping the last determined German offensive in the north Caucasus, which had reached to the outskirts of Ordzhonikidze, terminus of the Georgian military highway across the range, the Russians have rolled the Germans back 112 miles—the distance to Mineralnye Vody—in 18 days.

Among the other towns announced as captured tonight were these:

Kislovodsk, 42 miles southwest of Georgievsk, Zaeleznovodsk, nine miles southwest of Mineralnye Vody, the town and railway station of Budennovsk, and the district center 44 miles northeast of Georgievsk, and the district centers of Achikulak and Alexandryiskaya. Alexandryiskaya is 10 miles northwest of Georgievsk.

"Large quantities of war material were captured and are being counted," the special bulletin said.

Growing Axis Concern

Showing the growing Axis concern over the mountain Russian successes, the Rome radio broadcast a commentary of Dienst aus Deutschland of the German foreign office saying:

"The most rigid reserve must be maintained regarding the fighting in Russia, as the Russians are displaying their greatest strength now."

Earlier the German High Command communique had said all Russian attacks in the north Caucasus, the Don region and at Stalingrad had been repulsed in sanguinary fighting.

Georgiesk, Mineralnye Vody and Pyatigorsk all fell only after stubborn fighting, the Russian communique said.

Reports from other fronts said the Russians on the lower Don captured another town and now had emerged on flat low plains approaching Rostov. The plains were declared hard for any army to defend because of the lack of natural barriers.

Russians Stabilize Moscow Front

The Russians were declared to have stabilized the central front opposite Moscow by shattering a series of German counter-attacks in vain efforts to retake the ancient fortress of Velikie Luki, 260 miles northwest of Moscow and only 90 miles short of the Latvian frontier.

The clean-up of Stalingrad continued apace and the Russians were reported applying steady pressure to liquidate the 22 Axis divisions entrapped before that Volga city.

The general officers cited for distinguished fighting in the north Caucasus were Major General V. A. Khomenko, K. A. Koroteyev, P. M. Kozlov, A. I. Helnik; Lieut.-Gen. N. Y. Kirichenko and Major-Gen. A. C. Selivanov of cavalry guards units; Major-Gen. G. P. Lobanov and Col. Gen. V. I. Fillipov of tank groups.

New Russian G...

None of these generals has been mentioned before in ... patches, although a Lieut.-Gen. T. Kozlov has been frequently in the news as chief of the Trans-Caucasus district since May 3, 1941. He was congratulated by Stalin on Dec. 31, 1941 for a victory in the Crimea and later led his troops acoss the Kerch straits to safety. His command was reported last July to extend to the Caspian sea.

The Moscow radio interrupted its usual news broadcast to provincial newspapers to repeat the special communique three times. The announcer read the bulletin very slowly after which marching songs of the Russian cavalry were played.

Pyatigorsk is a popular resort and several of the recaptured towns are well known spas where the Germans may have hoped to hole in for the Winter.

Details of Caucasus Fighting

LONDON, Jan. 11 (AP)—The regular Soviet midnight communiqué, as heard in London by the Soviet monitor, gave details of the Caucasus fighting. Soviet mechanized units broke through German defenses and pushed the enemy into Georgievsk and Mineralnye Vodi, it said, and "on the heels of the retreating Germans our troops broke into the towns and after fierce fighting captured them."

Along the lower Don, where another Soviet spearhead is thrusting toward Rostov, the midnight communiqué said the offensive continued and claimed the capture of Potelnikov and the populated places of Konavalsky and Brenikov and the railway station of Kotelov. Red Army tank units pressing forward against stubborn enemy resistance captured a fortified point in the lower Don area, and captured German tanks, artillery and rifles.

One mobile reconnaissance unit was reported to have penetrated into a populated place where the headquarters of a German infantry division was stationed, killing 100 enemy officers and men, taking prisoners, and returning safely to Soviet lines.

On the central front, a German attack northwest of Velikiye Luki "succeeded in pressing back somewhat our units" at a cost of several hundred killed. Another Nazi attack in a neighboring sector was reported beaten back with three infantry companies annihilated.

The midnight communiqué declared six streets were cleared in fighting in the factory area of Stalingrad, with about 400 Germans killed.

Nazis Report Lines Holding

BERLIN (From German broadcasts), Jan. 11 (AP).—Attacks by "numerically superior infantry and tank forces" of the Red Army were repulsed in three southern sectors in sanguinary fighting, and German shock troops destroyed a large number of Russian strong points on the central front, the German high command said today.

"The army and air force between them destroyed 136 enemy armored fighting vehicles, sixty of them in the Stalingrad area alone," a high command communique declared.

Without detail, it said there was continued fighting around Velikiye Luki, a rail center ninety miles east of the Latvian frontier, claimed by the Russians on New Year's Day, and in the area southeast of Lake Ilmen.

A 4,000-ton Allied freighter was reported sunk in an air attack upon Murmansk, Arctic Soviet supply port, and another freighter was severely damaged.

Possible Junction Points of Divided Axis Armies Are Pounded.

U. S. ATTACKS NEAR TRIPOLI

Heavy Aerial Assault From West Marks the Opening of Big Squeeze in Africa.

JAN 12 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—Allied bombers have struck again at possible junction points for Marshal Rommel's Libyan army and the Axis army of Tunisia, raiding Kairouan, Gabes and the village of Kebili west of that port, an African air force spokesman announced today.

The highlight of the day's activity was a one-man bombing attack by Major Philip George Cochran of Erie, Pa., who leads a P-40 Warhawk fighter group. Alone and carrying but one large bomb, he swept over the roof tops of Kairouan and deposited the explosive in the middle of German military headquarters for that area. He reported the headquarters destroyed.

On his return from the target, Major Cochran was attacked by a Focke-Wulf 190, and although his plane was shot up, he held off the German fighter and returned safely to his base.

The Tunisian raids followed the first sweep by American bombers from the west against the Tripoli area in the aerial effort to smash Rommel's retreating troops before he can escape the British Eighth Army and join the German and Italian forces in the French protectorate on the Mediterranean narrows.

Rails And Oil Targets

Martin Marauders carried out the main raid of the day. They attacked railroad yards and oil storage tanks at Gabes with an escort of P-38 Lockheed Lightning fighters.

About the same time Bostons escorted by Warhawks struck at a German military camp at Kebili, on the salt lake sixty-five miles west of Gabes.

Mitchell bombers attacked the rail junction four miles north of the port of Hammamet, itself forty miles southeast of Tunis, and were reported to have scored direct hits.

Heavy Ack-Ack Fire

The Marauders and Lightnings had to fly through heavy anti-aircraft fire to reach their objectives at Gabes, which authorities described as a main supply base for Rommel's forces in Tripolitania, and at the same time were heavily challenged by Messerschmitt 109s.

"The raid was highly successful and direct hits were scored on the oil tanks and railroad yards," the spokesman said.

One Messerschmitt was destroyed and one damaged in the air fighting, while one Lightning and one Marauder were listed as missing.

Observers reported the Bostons left the Kebill camp afire. All the Bostons and the Mitchells, as well as their fighter escorts, returned safely.

Hoelle's Experience

Lieut. William J. Hoelle, of San Mateo, Cal., a Lightning pilot, apparently has as many lives as a cat. A few days ago his plane hit a telephone pole, but he returned safely.

Three days ago his plane was shot down and he bailed out at 500 feet or less. He was guided back to safety by sympathetic French and Arabs and is now ready to fly again.

A recheck of records disclosed that Lieut. W. J. Sloan, of Richmond, Va., was credited with the destruction of a Messerschmitt 109 January 7.

Americans Blast Rommel's Line.

It was earlier revealed that American bombers, sweeping for the first time into Libya from the west, had struck the initial blow in an aerial squeeze to smash Marshal Rommel's retreating forces before he can escape the advancing British Eighth Army and join hands with the Axis forces in Tunisia.

This blow was disclosed in yesterday's Allied communique announcing that Marauder bombers had blasted an Axis airdrome ten miles west of Tripoli, scoring direct hits on hangars and other military objectives.

Most Allied military observers believe that the Axis leaders are now convinced that Tripoli is indefensible and are concentrating on an effort to get Rommel's forces into South Tunisia and turn to their own advantage the Mareth defense line which the French built along the Tripolitanian border. "The question is," one Allied officer remarked, "which way are they going to turn it? If they turn it against the Eighth Army, we can attack them from the rear. If they turn it against us, the Eighth Army will smash them."

Before Rommel can reach the Mareth line, however, his forces must retreat some 300 miles from their present easternmost positions in Libya.

French Beat Off Attack.

In North Tunisia, meanwhile, ground action remained virtually stalemated.

Minor activity was reported over the week end in the Pont du Fahs sector on the central Tunisia front where, the French announced they had repulsed another tank-supported German attack. Some action also took place east of Kairouan, where French troops attacked an enemy post and captured fifteen Germans, the same announcement said.

In a communique broadcast by the Rome radio the Italian High Command declared that Allied attacks were repulsed in Tunisia and that some prisoners and weapons were captured, while Axis aircraft repeatedly bombed and machine-gunned the Allied front and moving columns "with good results." German fighters shot down five Allied planes in the course of Allied attacks on Lampedusa and Tripoli, the communique added.

U. S., British Planes Hit At Rommel Lines

Operate in Perfect Synchronization From Tripoli to Tunis

JAN 12 1943

By Wes Gallagher

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 11 (AP)—American and British airmen operating in perfect synchronization are beating at the Axis from Tripoli to Tunisia, striking at Field Marshal Rommel's lines in his westward retreat from Libya and keeping under running attack the bases where he might seek juncture with the Axis Tunisian army.

(A Fighting French communique from Brig. Gen. Jacques LeClerc's headquarters said the desert column thrusting from equatorial Africa into Libya from the south and last reported at Brach, only 350 miles south of Tripoli, was making progress. The communique said the Fighting French were taking over military and administrative organization of this Fezzan territory and had appointed Lieut. Col. Pierre Delan[illegible] military governor.)

JAN 12 1943

In the latest of these assaults in Tunisia, an American Air Force spokesman reported today that American bombers had assaulted Gabes, now a main supply base for Rommel's forces in western Libya, Kairouan, the Axis traffic junction in inland Tunisia, and the German military camp of Kebili, 65 miles to the west of Gabes.

Martin Marauder bombers hit the railroad yards and oil tanks at Gabes while Bostons pounded Kebili and Mitchell bombers attacked the railroad junction just north of the port of Hammamet, 40 miles to the southeast of Tunis.

Over Gabes Axis anti-aircraft fire was heavy and the raiding force also was attacked by German planes, one of which was destroyed and another damaged. Two American craft were lost.

The Gabes raid nevertheless was "highly successful," the spokesman declared. The Kebili camp was left aflame.

These attacks followed raids by Marauders on an Axis airdrome only 10 miles west of Tripoli, in which hangars and other targets were squarely hit and three German fighters were damaged without Allied loss.

One of the most spectacular air actions reported during the day was a one-man assault by Major Phillip George Cochran of Erie, Pa. Flying alone low over Kairouan he dropped a big bomb, the only one he carried, squarely in the middle of the German military headquarters, smashing it.

Tripoli Targets Hit

(The British Middle East Command in Cairo announced that "targets around Tripoli" had been hit and Axis transport attacked along the coastal roads of both Tunisia and Tripolitania, westernmost Libya.

(The British also reported a daylight attack by heavy Allied bombers on the La Goulette port area of Tunis and on Axis airdromes in Sicily and on the island of Lampedusa).

The American raid far to the east within 10 miles of Tripoli was especially significant in connection with indications that Rommel's Army again was on the march westward toward Tunisia.

It appeared to most observers here that the Axis was convinced that Tripoli could not be defended and that Rommel's aim now was to get into southern Tunisia and employ the Mareth line on the Tripolitania-Tunisia border.

"The question," said one Allied officer, "is which way are they going to turn? If they turn it against the Eighth Army (the pursuing British in Libya) we can attack them from the rear. If they turn it against us the Eighth Army will smash them."

As to the situation aground, however, an Allied spokesman said all action thus far had demonstrated that "we have a bloody tough job on our hands before the Germans are thrown out of Tunisia." He added that prolonged offensive operations by either side were impossible in the mountainous terrain at this time of year.

During the day Vice Admiral William Glassford, Jr., U.S.N., head of the American Mission to Dakar, French West Africa, disclosed here that the 35,000-ton French battleship Richelieu was being refitted at Dakar and "within a few months will be a top-notch ship fighting with the Allied navies."

(The Richelieu was damaged by the British earlier in the war at a time when she was under Vichy control.)

The work on the Richelieu, the admiral said, was helping prepare for "establishment of Allied naval operations at Dakar."

"French ships already are traveling with British convoys along the African coasts," he added.

(The Morocco radio broadcast a French communique saying a German attack southwest of Fondouk in Central Tunisia was repulsed. Patrol activity was reported southwest of Pont Du Fahs.)

U. S. Bombers Aid Squeeze On Rommel

Tripoli Pounded In Effort to Close Door on Retreat Path

JAN 12 1943

By Wes Gallagher
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 10.—United States medium bombers from Tunisia struck their first blow today at the Libyan base of Tripoli in an extension of their campaign to slam shut the back door of retreat in the face of Marshal Erwin Rommel, believed on the weary move again toward that port and Tunisia.

The Americans attacked an outlying airdrome, scoring direct hits, and returned without loss.

Fighters from Tunisia have attacked Tripoli before, and nearly all categories of planes have raided the port from Libya and Egypt but today's attack was the first of United States bombers from Tunisia.

Airfield Attacked

The meeting of Allied bombers from the east and west emphasized the squeeze being clamped on Rommel.

(Coordinating with the United States attack were day and night R. A. F. assaults on the African Corps along a 180-mile stretch between Tripoli and the Wadi Zem-Zem, where the British Eighth Army has been drawing up for attack. Increasing German nervousness and assertions from Berlin that the British were preparing for a full scale attack were reminiscent of the Axis reports a few days before Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery renewed his offensive recently at El Agheila.)

"Our B-26's (Martin Marauders) escorted by P-38's attacked the airfield 10 miles west of Tripoli and scored direct hits on the hangars and a military objective nearby," a Twelfth Air Force spokesman said, telling of the Tripoli raid. "Three Messerschmitt 109's which attempted to interfere were badly damaged and all our planes returned safely."

On land in Tunisia, an Army communique said, there was nothing to report in the last 24 hours, either on the northern front or to the south, but in Libya it appeared that a contraction of the Axis lines was in order shortly.

Many observers at Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters believe Tripoli itself is indefensible and that the German marshal and his African corps must attempt to withdraw into Tunisia along the supply route on which Sousse, Gabes and Sfax have been consistent targets.

These observers said the concentrated Allied air attacks Friday apparently anticipated this move and were aimed to cut his supplies and weaken his retreat before the British Eighth Army in Libya.

30.24-259

The weather deteriorated over Tunisia again today adding to the mud bogs immobilizing ground forces and keeping much of the opposing air fleets on the ground following the three United States raids in an all-day pulverization of Bizerte Friday. This action was coordinated with the pounding of the east coast positions.

Dakar Refitting The Richelieu To Fight Axis

Other French Warships to Join Allied Fleets Soon, Admiral Glassford Says

JAN 12 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 11 (AP).—Vice-Admiral William A. Glassford jr. head of an American mission to Dakar, said today the 35,000-ton French battleship Richelieu at Dakar will be refitted and "within a few months will be a top-notch ship fighting with the Allied navies."

He said a number of American divers and technical experts have arrived at Dakar to supervise rehabilitation of the Richelieu, damaged by British attacks earlier in the war, and other warships at the West African port. This work is paving the way for "establishment of Allied naval operations at Dakar," he said, adding: "French ships already are traveling with British convoys along the African coast."

Admiral Glassford said it would take a month to put the Dakar fleet in shape to fight on the high seas, and "it will take the largest ship, the Richelieu, a few months."

"French sailors and officers are more than anxious to take their ships into action against the Axis," he declared.

Pierre Boisson, Governor General at Dakar, has "firm control" there, and the natives are loyal to him, Admiral Glassford said.

General Henri Giraud's visit to Dakar impressed the civilian population and military men, but the French fighting services already were anxious to take the side of the Allies, he continued. "French soldiers and airmen want guns and planes with which to fight, as their equipment was worn out," the admiral said.

He found "Dakar itself strongly held with a formidable network of fortifications which would be difficult to storm."

Explaining how the French were co-operating with the Allies, he said they had divided up their merchant fleet at Dakar, part for their own needs and part into an Allied pool, while French sailors were anxious to man some American ships if possible.

Airfields At Sicily, Lampedusa Bombed

JAN 12 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Jan. 11—Liberator heavy bombers of the Ninth United States Air Force smashed at La Goulette, the outer section of the port of Tunis, in a daylight raid yesterday, damaging two enemy aircraft which attacked them.

Results of the bombing were obscured by clouds, but all the American planes returned undamaged.

At the same time Allied fighter-bombers swept over Sicily and Lampedusa Island, between Malta and the Tunisian coast, to strike Axis air fields.

Protective Cover

Allied planes continued to hold a protective cover over the British Eighth Army, which is again pursuing General Rommel's Africa Corps, shooting down one German dive bomber.

Allied airmen again operated all along the stretched out line of retreat of the shattered German force, hitting several places on the southwestern shores of the Gulf of Sirte in mid-Libya in a further attempt to shut the gate on Rommel's retirement toward Axis-held Tunis and Bizerte.

Raids On Wadi Raml

Two fighter-bomber sweeps were loosed against enemy motor transport columns at Wadi Raml, south of Misurata, which stands at the northern tip of the gulf.

21 In Patrol Kill 25 Nazis, Escape Trap

By William B. King

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Medjez el Bab, Tunisia, Jan. 10 (Delayed)—An Allied fighting patrol of twenty men and one officer operating in the no man's land of the Goubellat plain south of here has killed twenty-five Germans, including an officer, in an operation typical of the warfare being waged against the Axis over these muddy fields.

Heavy rains have immobilized tanks and restricted all vehicles to the roads, but the Allies are maintaining a limited initiative with frequent jabs into enemy territory by local patrols in quest of information.

Fired On At 30 Yards

Typical was the raid in the Goubellat area. Led by a young lieutenant, the Allied party crept through the night until it came to a wadi which had very steep sides.

Suddenly enemy machine guns opened fire at only thirty yards, but members of the patrol had heard the click of a breachlock and had flattened themselves in the mud just in time to hear the bullets whiz overhead. Grenades tossed by the enemy fell short.

Recovering quickly, the Allied party set up a two-inch mortar and pounded the Axis position. When that had had its effect, they rushed in and finished the job with tommy guns.

Fought Off Two Attacks

The patrol then established itself on a farm in no man's land and during the next day fought off two German atempts to dislodge them. In the first rush by eight Germans five were killed, and a succeeding thrust by thirty more also was repelled.

When the Allied patrol attempted to withdraw to its own lines, it found it had been surrounded by five armored cars. In the ensuing fight the lieutenant leading the party was seriously wounded, but he was assisted to safety by a French farmer as his comrades fought their way out of the trap.

Artillery Support

In the static warfare being fought before Medjez el Bab, American artillery is giving valuable support to the Allied infantry facing the strongly entrenched Germans. A British commander described the American gunners as "wonderful," adding:

"They sure take a delight in plastering any target we suggest. It is amazing how quickly they respond when we ask for fire against a suspicious bit of terrain."

Allied Torpedo Planes Blast Japanese Warship

Blow Up Cruiser or Destroyer Off Gasmata Harbor

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 12 (Tuesday) (AP).—A Japanese cruiser or large destroyer was hit by Allied torpedo planes and was believed sunk last Saturday off Gasmata Harbor, New Britain, General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters there announced today.

Australian and American ground forces are continuing to squeeze isolated and dwindling Japanese foroces into a smaller space at Sanananda Point, northwest of Buna, a communique said also.

The attack on the war ship took place at dusk last Saturday. The communique said it was a light cruiser or large destroyer.

"A hit was scored, causing a heavy explosion amidships, enveloping the ve sel in smoke," the communique said. "The ship was not visible at daybreak and is believed to have sunk during the night."

The communique mentioned other than reconnaissance activity in the northwestern sector for the first time in several days.

"Our medium units bombed the jetty at Dobo," the communique said.

JAPANESE WARSHIP SUNK OFF GASMATA

Australian Fliers Score Hit Amidships with Aerial Torpedo.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Tuesday, Jan. 12—(AP) Australian airmen scored their first aerial torpedo hit in the southwest Pacific area last Saturday and apparently blasted another Japanese warship—a light cruiser or a large destroyer—to the ocean bottom.

The attack, reported today in the Allied headquarter's noon communique, took place off Gasmata, New Britain. The Australians saw one of their missiles hit and explode directly amidships on the Japanese ship.

Smoke had enveloped the vessel when the Beaufort bombers participating in the attack left the scene.

The next morning reconnaissance planes returned to the area but close search failed to disclose any trace of enemy warships.

While a lull in the aerial warfare prevailed over New Guinea Monday, the communique reported, Australians flying Hudson bombers pounded the jetty at Dobo in the Aru islands.

Before the war, Dobo was the base for a Japanese pearling fleet operating in the water northwest of Australia.

Allied ground forces yesterday closed in further on Japanese enveloped in the Sanananda corridor which extends about a mile and a half inland from the Papuan coast.

Flanking Japanese positions on the west, strong Allied patrols captured a quantity of rifles, grenades and machineguns. On the east flank, Allied artillery and machine-gun fire reduced a Japanese bunker which was under construction, killing a number of the enemy defenders.

Shelling Of Jap Base By Fleet Described

By William Hipple

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Guadalcanal, Jan. 5 (Delayed). Three navy pilots who flew over Munda on New Georgia Island during the United States fleet's shelling of Japanese positions there early this morning said it was "the most accurate big gun firing we ever have seen or hope to see."

(A navy communique January 6 reported a successful pre-dawn bombardment by surface vessels the previous day of the recently established enemy airfield at Munda, which lies some 150 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, but gave no details of the action.)

Flyers Spotted Targets

The flyers said they believed not a single anti-aircraft battery protecting Munda was left untouched. They reported terrific damage to the airfield, its planes and dispersal areas.

JAN 12 1943

Lieut. Com. Dennis Crowley, of Roanoke, Va.; Lieut. George C. Duncan, of Tacoma, Wash., and Lieut. Marvin Barnett, Tampa, Fla., were the pilots. During the shelling they spotted targets for the warships.

"The ships didn't need much help," Crowley said. "The first shell struck directly on the runway a third of the way from the west end. Following shells worked toward the western end, then switched back, and in neat succession ran the length of the runway down to the east end just like a plane taking off.

"That done the firing next fell in a pattern on both sides, covering a large area around the field.

Bombed Before Attack

"Opening the attack, we dropped bombs at 12.50 A. M., and were answered with heavy anti-aircraft fire. On the dot of 1 A. M., the first United States ship fired a salvo.

"We saw the tremendous and brilliant flash of an explosion on the runway. The ackack stopped dead and never resumed. The Japs were surprised completely. Many must have been killed, while others headed for dugouts. I don't think any of them tried to take their planes off. That would have been suicide, for the field was much too damaged.

"The firing continued for fifty minutes, the ships taking turns until at the last the smaller vessels had moved close inshore to let go their salvos. The warships looked as if they were afire as they poured out their shells hot and heavy. It was almost as light as day in the space between the fleet and the beach.

"I saw at lease four big fires which might have been burning planes or stores of gasoline. One still was burning when we left later on. There also were many explosions, probably from hits on gun positions and ammunition."

Crowley said a few Jap planes already in the air or called in from another field tried to attack the ships, which threw up a shower of anti-aircraft. He doubted that the planes caused any damage.

Lieutenant Duncan said the members of his plane crew cheered themselves hoarse as the shells hit their targets.

"The ships threw so many salvos and the explosions on the ground were so heavy I smelled gunpowder thousands of feet up," he related.

When the firing at last was finished, the commander of the task force asked Crowley by radio, "How does it look?"

"It's wonderful," the flyer answered, "it couldn't have been better."

CURTIN PRAISES U. S. AID

Premier Congratulates MacArthur on Buna Victory

JAN 12 1943

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 11 (AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin sent a congratulatory message to General Douglas MacArthur today on the success of the campaign in the Papuan area of New Guinea, which he said had been carried out under the most trying conditions.

The campaign, which saved the Allied base at Port Moresby from a Japanese thrust and eventually resulted in the virtual annihilation of the Japanese forces in the Buna-Gona area, demonstrated the "comradeship in arms and cooperation between the forces of Australia and the United States," Mr. Curtin's message said.

U. S. Bombers Cut Supply Line

Of Burma Foe

Smash Vital Bridge Over Irrawaddy Near Mandalay Linking North and South

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 11 (AP).—Heavy and medium bombers of the 10th United States Air Force cut Japanese communications between northern and southern Burma yesterday by knocking down the central span of the Myitnge Bridge near Mandalay, an American communique announced today.

"Direct hits were scored with large-caliber bombs, and observers reported that the central span was resting on the (Irrawaddy) River bottom when the planes departed," the communique said. (The span apparently derives its name from the Myitnge River, which flows into the Irrawaddy just southwest of Mandalay.) "This bridge, carrying all vehicular and well as rail traffic across the Irrawaddy, was vital to enemy movements in central Burma," the war bulletin stated.

American fighters based in India, doubling as light bombers, attacked Japanese supply depots in northeastern Burma with explosives and machine guns. "Hits were reported on all targets and several fires were started," it was announced. All planes and personnel returned safely.

British troops advancing toward Akyab are maintaining their pressure against Japanese forces in Rathedaung, twenty-five miles north of the Bay of Bengal port, and fighting is continuing on both sides of the Mayu River, a British communique said.

A formation of Royal Air Force bombers escorted by fighters raided Japanese-occupied villages on Akyab Island yesterday. At other points in Burma machine-gun attacks were made on Japanese supply vehicles and sampans, the communique reported.

Chinese Planes Raid Japanese

CHUNGKING, Tuesday, Jan. 12 (AP)—Formations of Chinese planes attacked a Japanese airdrome west of the Hsiang River in Hupeh Province at noon Sunday, killed many of the enemy and left fires which could be observed from a great distance, the Chinese Central News reported today.

Returning home the Chinese fliers strafed a Japanese truck column. One of the Chinese planes was lost, the news agency said.

Chinese Recapture Shangcheng

CHUNGKING, Jan. 11 (AP).—The Chinese high command announced today the recapture of Shangcheng, a strategic center in southeastern Honan Province, after a battle in which 600 Japanese were killed or wounded Saturday.

At the same time a communique admitted that Japanese forces had occupied Loshan, fifty-five miles northwestward, in the campaigning above Hankow.

TELL OF BATTLE AS ORAN FELL

Bronx Private Among Those Wounded in Action.

JAN 12 1943

London, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—His shell splinter wounds on the mend, Sergt. Charles A. Tremper of New Richmond, Ohio, is feeling perky enough to lie back in a United States Army Hospital somewhere in Britain and spin yarns about the hot action at Oran, where he was aboard a destroyer which rammed a boom during the Allied occupation.

"There I was loaded down with ammunition and didn't get to fire a shot," he chuckled.

He told how when "all hell broke loose" he got splinters in his face which knocked him down and before he could get up pieces of another shell hit him in the back.

He still doesn't quite know how he regained consciousness, crawled to the side, slipped overboard, swam ashore and even managed to climb a three-foot breakwater with the aid of a dangling cable.

He is the holder of a Purple Heart Decoration.

Another holder of the Purple Heart, Private Frank Patrizi of Olean, N. Y., was put out of action the first day he landed in North Africa but had the satisfaction of knowing that the machinegun he was stalking in the center of St. Cloud also was put out of action.

Private Felix J. Urban of Schenectady, N. Y., feels very strongly about getting wounded before action started and missing all the fun. He was hurt in the torpedoeing of a transport which was badly damaged but did not sink. A tug was ordered from Gibraltar to tow her and she was four days' late in arriving at Algiers.

Other stories of action ashore came from Privates Claude A. Fuller Jr., Elmira, N. Y.; Vincent J. Alfarimo, Philadelphia; Louis R. Prato of 1918 Edison avenue, the Bronx, New York, and Tollie V. Howell of Coffeeville, Ala.

Alfarimo told how soldiers storming a hill outside Oran in the face of heavy fire "thought we really were doing something," but when they got to the top, an American general—name not permitted—was waiting for them.

He said the general was "everywhere in the middle of the battle. He used to ride around in a jeep carrying a tommygun. When the fellows asked him to take cover he just laughed and said, 'they can't get me. I stopped too many bullets in the last war.'"

It was disclosed that despite the fighting which made the casualties at Oran the heaviest in the first phase of the African campaign, some sixty American Army nurses were just a step behind the assault soldiers. They established a small hospital where two operating teams worked in twelve-hour shifts under most adverse conditions. They didn't lose a man on the operating table.

2 U-BOATS SUNK BY CONVOY FLYERS

JAN 13 1943

London, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—United States Navy patrol planes and R. A. F. Coastal Command bombers were credited officially today with almost certain destruction of two Axis submarines while guarding an important Allied convoy en route across the Atlantic to Britain.

At least six other undersea raiders were damaged, either by escorting warships or planes, in attempted attacks on the convoy, the Admiralty and Air Ministry announced. British, Polish and Norwegian warships as well as United States, British and Canadian planes participated in the escort job.

The announcement said the convoy "did not escape without loss," but listed only one torpedo hit on a merchant vessel in its account of the crossing.

2 Subs Sunk, 6 Damaged in Convoy Attack

By the Associated Press

London, (Monday), Jan. 11.—Two Axis submarines were "almost certainly sunk" and at least six others were damaged by an important convoy which recently crossed the Atlantic to British ports, the Admiralty and the Air Ministry announced today.

British, Polish and Norwegian warships and United States, Canadian and British aircraft escorted the convoy.

Some 55 attacks were made by and against submarine wolf packs.

The convoy "did not escape without some loss," the announcement said, but it listed only one torpedo hit on a merchant ship in an account of the running sea battle.

Both the U-boats regarded as sunk fell prey to the coastal command of the R. A. F. and United States Navy patrol planes.

Who Said Women Can't Keep Secret?

London, Jan. 11 (AP)—Who said women can't keep a secret?

Well, more than 1,000 of them kept quiet for years about one of Britain's most vital secrets—radio location.

Sir Robert Watson-Watt, inventor, disclosed today there were three stenographers on his staff a decade ago when he started his experiments and gradually he let more and more in on the work until shortly before the war more than 1,000 knew the details.

"I have never known any to reveal the secret," he said, "or even to give the slightest indication there is a secret to reveal."

FINED FOR STORY OF R. A. F. RAID

London, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Home Guardsman Eric Fraser was fined £50 ($200) in Bow Street Court today following his conviction on a charge of public mischief growing out of a story that he had flown over Germany on a bombing raid as a gunner in an R. A. F. plane.

Fraser's tale, which brought him considerable publicity shortly before Christmas, backfired when it was denied by the R. A. F. In addition to the fine he was ordered to pay £25 ($100) costs.

The judge said it was "a pathetic case of a brave man losing his head over his own bravery," but added that the defendant should be punished because of the trouble he had caused to police and air force officials.

Headquarters Of Nazis Hit

JAN 12 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 11—A Reuters correspondent with United States forces in North Africa reported today that German headquarters in Kairouan, a Moslem city seventy-five miles south of Tunis, were demolished yesterday by a bomb dropped squarely upon the building by Major Philip G. Cochran, of Erie, Pa. Major Cochran, flying a P-40 Warhawk, was attacked by a Focke-Wulf 190, but chased off the German fighter and returned safely to his base, the dispatch said.

Nazi Raider's Bombs Kill Five

London, Jan. 11 (AP)—A single German raider bombed and machine-gunned an East Anglia town today, killing five people and causing considerable damage. A dozen persons were injured.

Earlier in the day two raiders had strafed and bombed a town on the east coast. Two persons were injured but no property damage was reported.

One of the bombers, believed to be Dornier 217s, was hit by ground fire and seen to plunge into the sea.

SPITFIRE SQUADRONS RAID FRENCH COAST

Other British Planes Attack Rails—East Anglia Bombed

LONDON, Jan. 11 (AP)—Squadrons of R. A. F. Spitfire fighters swept fifty miles across the bulge of the French coast between Dunkerque and Abbeville in a daylight raid today, the Air Ministry announced.

Other aircraft of the fighter command, it said, attacked railway targets in Northern France in a continuation of the pounding which has been going on for weeks against Axis-controlled French transportation.

One of the British fighters failed to return from the operations, the Ministry said.

150 British Raiders Leave Essen Ablaze

Block-Buster Bombs Showered on Nazis' Greatest Arsenal City

JAN 12 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 10—Essen, site of the sprawling Krupp Works, which is Europe's largest arsenal, was raided last night by perhaps 150 big British bombers, seven of which were lost.

Returning pilots reported they left fires raging all over the great industrial area, some of them visible for 100 miles, with the bombardment that included a shower of two-ton "block busters." They said they were subjected to intense antiaircraft fire and were forced to fight their way through swarms of German night fighters.

It was the fifth raid in seven nights on the heavy German industrial area of the Ruhr.

The German communique broadcast from Berlin, without announcing the target, said the population suffered casualties.

The raid was one of the few recently in which the weather was clear. Extensive mine-laying operations were carried out in German-controlled waters.

Essen is a city of 500,000 which lies in the heart of the great German coal mining district. Even in peacetime, the Krupp works employed 35,000 workmen producing guns, tanks and other war material: locomotives, freight cars, trucks, farm machinery and the whole gamut of heavy industry.

It was the fiftieth attack on Essen, one of the previous being a 1000-plane raid soon after Cologne was laid waste.

With the 1943 bombing campaign less than three weeks old, the rising crescendo of blasting on Axis arsenals indicates that the British and the United States have produced enough planes and trained enough crews to step up operations on a steadily rising scale. Over planes have been lost, including seven United States bombers over St. Nazaire, in the total of six large raids this year.

JAN 12 1943

The Germans raided a southwest coast town killing at least six, injuring others and causing damage. A number were missing in what the Press Association called "the worst raid yet experienced in the town." One German plane was downed.

The German planes machine-gunned the streets and dropped bombs. Working class houses were hit and two large apartment houses on the seafront were wrecked. Three members of one family of four were among those killed.

PRAISES YUGOSLAVS

London, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—The Yugoslav Information Bureau said that Gen. Eisenhower had sent to Gen. Draja Mihailovic a message expressing hope that his guerrilla fighters would enjoy continued success against the Axis forces in Yugoslavia.

The message from the American commander of the Allied forces in North Africa was quoted by the bureau as follows: "American forces in Europe and the United States congratulate their comrades in arms, the immortal and courageous Yugoslav units under your brilliant command. Your immortal warriors, united on their mother soil and determined to drive out the invader with a noble spirit of sacrifice, serve the common cause of the United Nations. May the New Year bring them every success."

Sleepy-Eyed Strikers

London, Jan. 11 (AP)—Because their railroad company announced there would be no more "wakeruppers," between 300 and 400 locomotive engineers and firemen in the Nottingham district went on strike at midnight.

The trainmen complained it was impossible these days to buy alarm clocks to take the place of men who have gone around to wake up locomotive crews between 11.30 P. M. and 7 A. M.

A number of trains were kept in their sheds by the strike.

Turkish Mission Arrives in London

London, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—Seven Turkish military and technical observers, headed by Major-Gen. Sirrie Seyrek, director of Turkey's munitions factories, have reached London to study British war production.

JAN 12 1943

London, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Paris radio quoted a message from La Linea, Spain, today as saying another concentration of Allied shipping was evident at Gibraltar. It reported that thirty freighters and numerous warships, including two aircraft carriers, were anchored off the British fortress.

BROMLEY, England, Jan. 11 (AP).—Wilfred Rackham, cafe owner, was fined the equivalent of $6 today because his pet monkey turned on the lights in the cafe window during a blackout.

A policeman who found the window alight said that when he snapped off the switch the monkey awoke from a nap on a cushion and turned it on again.

Britain's Blue Nose Fleet Takes Convoys to Russia

Hardest Stages of Fight to Take Goods to Murmansk Are Passed.

By CLINTON B. CONGER

A NORTHERN BRITISH NAVAL BASE, Jan. 8.—(Delayed) A destroyer flotilla from the "Blue Nose Fleet"—those hardy units of the British Navy which patrol the Arctic convoy routes—returned to its base today, weather-beaten, scarred by ice and mountainous seas, but fighting fit.

From the quarter deck of the flagship I watched the flotilla steam proudly into the harbor. It was an inspiring sight, filled with memories of the four weeks last which has been reached and passed—the "Blue Nose Fleet" is over the hump in its bitter fight to ram through to Russia the ships carrying the vital materials of war under the very noses of the Luftwaffe and German Navy.

The bomb-blasted gantlet to Malta is not the only supply line where the convoys are going through despite fierce Axis opposition. North of nowhere, through the Arctice dusk along the road to Murmansk, they are getting through to Russia in undreamed-of volume.

Few details of how that is being accomplished can be revealed now on the principle that what Jerry doesn't know won't help him.

Mythical Order

The men of the destroyer flotilla which came home today are veterans of the mythical "Order of the Blue Nose", which is conferred on all who cross the Arctic circle on active duty—and "Blue Nose" is indeed a fitting term.

The ships of the flotilla were covered with ice, battered by endless gales and pile-driver waves. The men, drenched with salt spray were weary, red-eyed and cold. Often storms for days on end make it almost impossible to eat and sleep, even to stand upright, but at all fall when I made a 6,000-mile cruise through Arctic waters with this same flotilla.

Crews at Attention

The white ensign and a profusion of signal flags streamed from the masts of every ship. Officers and men stood rigidly at attention, despite their weariness, on the upperdecks, turrets, and bridges.

As each ship passed the flagship, these hard-bitten men of the Royal Navy threw their caps into the air and wildly cheered. In turn, the Admiral and his staff waved back to each destroyer.

Then, over the loudspeaker system, the Admiral hailed each vessel with the words, "well done, well done—thank you very much."

Critical Stage Passed

The ceremony, in a way, was [illegible] oration of a turning point in the war. The Russian front has been stabilized, the Germans have failed to take Stalingrad, and the Nazis have suffered a terrible defeat in the Caucasus.

The Germans have been driven back from Rostov, and the Russians are now fighting on the approaches to Taganrog.

Hitler's hopes of a spring offensive have been blasted, and the Russians are now in a position to launch a spring offensive of their own.

Only the Arctic convoys have failed to keep pace with the general improvement in the situation. Only the Arctic convoys have failed to get through in the volume that is necessary to keep Russia supplied with the weapons she needs to defeat the Germans.

Only the Arctic convoys have failed to keep pace with the general improvement in the situation. Only the Arctic convoys have failed to get through in the volume that is necessary to keep Russia supplied with the weapons she needs to defeat the Germans.

Nazis Lucky to Escape

Meantime, military observers at this base are saying today that the German naval force which was routed when it attacked a Russia-bound convoy east of Bear island last month was lucky indeed to escape its hideout in the Norwegian fjords.

The hapless—but gallant—German destroyer which blundered into the path of the British battle force, to be sunk almost immediately slowed the British long enough to give the other German vessels a badly-needed 6,000-yard extra lead.

And the Germans' luck didn't stop there. The battle force which drove them back to their fjords was strong, but it might have been much stronger.

Home Fleet Makes Certain

When the British Home fleet is on convoy duty to Russia, it has a habit of making sure the convoy gets through.

Over the holidays, a large proportion of the Home fleet was at sea on a variety of assignments and patrols. One object was to see that Russian convoy through. Another was to destroy any German units which might venture out as a Christmas present.

I spent Christmas aboard a cruiser which was part of one of these "covering forces." With other units, we spent our holidays flaunting our presence up and down the Norwegian coast, trying to draw out an enemy force.

After our assigned patrol had been completed, we hung on hopefully for a few hours more, but there was nothing doing. We buffeted our way homeward disappointed.

Farley En Route To Mexico City

James A. Farley, former Postmaster-General and Democratic National Chairman, was on his way today to Mexico City, Mr. Farley, who is chairman of the board of the Coca-Cola Export Sales Company, left last night on a business trip and will be in Mexico for about three weeks.

It is expected that Mr. Farley will call on friends in the Southern States on his way back from Mexico. On his last long business trip to the West last November he renewed contacts with political friends and spoke at a dinner in his honor at Omaha.

Sailors Get Baptism Of Fire In 4-Day Attack On Convoy

Marine Combat Reporter Describes Reactions Of Youths Making First Trip To Sea

JAN 12 1943

By STAFF SGT. FRANK ACOSTA, JR.
[Marine Corps Combat Correspondent]

An Overseas Atlantic Base (AP)—This is the story of an east-bound convoy.

It is also the story of how a number of young American sailors got their baptism of fire in a four-day heavy attack by submarines on their convoy in the mid-Atlantic.

The night before we weighed anchor, the passenger sailors were brought aboard, bound for duty overseas. Four or five were veterans of the last war, and several were transfers from other ships, but many others had never been to sea before.

Told To Wear Life Jackets

The first morning, the chief boatswain's mate mustered the passengers, gave them instructions about always wearing life jackets on deck, where to go when the general quarters buzzer sounded (the signal to man battle stations), and warned them to be careful about smoking around the hatches.

During four warm beautiful days, we all lay out on the hatches in the sun, gazing at the majestic array of ships in the convoy spread out behind us.

Then one night the word got around that a sub had been sighted twenty miles astern, and the next morning we heard a rumor that one of the escort vessels had had a direct sub contact only five miles astern of the convoy.

The next evening most of the passenger-sailors were below in the crowded troop space, reading in their bunks, talking, or trying to pick a friendly argument with the lone marine aboard.

Sea Lit Up By Flares

Then it started. The "GQ" buzzer went off, and we poured up the ladder and out on deck. The whole sea was lit up with flares from everywhere, trying to spot the sub on the surface. Depth charges were exploding every few seconds. The baptism was on.

Half dressed, shivering, and wondering, we stood there at quarters fifteen minutes before the escorts passed the word "all secure."

As soon as we got below again, the captain, over the ship's loudspeaker system, ordered every man to sleep fully dressed with his life jacket near by. He said, "it may be necessary for us to abandon ship if we are hit. But do not be panicky."

I looked around at those youngsters, only a few weeks away from schools and civilian jobs. They were saying to themselves in wonderment, "abandon ship! Holy smoke!"

Convoy Under Attack

Two minutes later the buzzer went off again and the troop space was empty in half the time. Just as I hit the ladder I heard the speaker say, "now y'hear there! Ship X-X has been torpedoed and the convoy is under attack!"

There was no more sleep that night. We would go back below after the "secure," sit there dozing and jump at every noise that sounded like the buzzer.

It is an eerie feeling to jump out of a half-sleep, go tearing up a ladder while waking up, and look out on a sea lit up with flares like the Fourth of July, with depth charges sometimes exploding so close they shake your own ship. Yet the ships in the convoy steam along, keeping position and speed.

Worst Scare Of Night

The worst scare that first night was the last one. Just at dawn one escort ship made a contact. She was racing around dropping depth charges, when there was a terrific explosion directly under us. The engines stopped, and I thought surely we were hit, but we soon discovered that the explosion was caused by a depth charge exploding close by.

We were a pretty dazed bunch by the time daylight arrived. I bumped into one lad, who couldn't have been more than 18, sitting by himself on a bench, shaking his head and muttering to himself:

"Boy, this is a night to remember. . . ."

Red-eyed as they were, they joked at chow.

Only Bravest Go Below

That night was only the beginning. The convoy got no letup during the following thirty-six hours.

Only the bravest went below to sleep at night. We curled up on benches in the mess hall and on the deck in the passageways. Some just walked the deck outside.

The third day was quiet, but when it became apparent that the night would be clear, the captain ordered every man to sleep above the water line.

I found myself up on the boat deck in a corner back of the smoke stack. The wind was howling, and the sea so rough we dozed off, convinced that it was too rough for the subs to attack.

Mysterious Jar Rocks Ship

Then a flare went off to port and the "GQ" signal buzzed. There was a flame far out. Suddenly a jar rocked the ship from bow to stern. It felt like a direct hit on the keel.

But the ship wasn't hit. We never found out what caused the shock. I asked the captain later, but he could only speculate.

Just at dusk, on the fourth night of the attacks, I was standing at the starboard rail. The ship next to us couldn't have been more than 150 yards away.

Puff Of Smoke Goes Up

Suddenly I saw a huge puff of smoke go up right on her starboard bow and heard an explosion. A minute later, her entire bow was aflame. The escorts came racing in, scattering depth charges, while the ship drifted, fighting the fire.

We watched her burn for an hour, drifting slowly astern. Now and then flames would leap up and we could see the crew with the hoses.

Early next morning American planes hove into view and there were no further attacks.

Rumania Unrest Rising, Word

[By the Associated Press]

Ankara, Turkey, Jan. 10 (Delayed)—Advices from Rumania said today that unrest in that country had reached such a stage that the Antonescu Government had been forced to create four new divisions of internal security troops.

These reports asserted that popular mistrust of the Rumanian Government, arising from reverses in Russia, was the reason for the unrest.

The size of the divisions was not specified but the advices said they were created from the gendarmerie and local police and it was assumed each had probably in the neighborhood of at least 10,000 men.

Guard Against Landing

A usually reliable Balkan source meanwhile said that the German high command had presented to General Michov, Bulgarian War Minister now in Berlin, with a comprehensive plan of action in event of an Allied debarkation on or near Bulgarian territory.

His report said detailed instructions were given to the general, including a minute scheme of defense dispositions for the Bulgarian army.

Crete Reinforced

Another report from the same source said the Germans were sending heavy reinforcements to Crete, including units especially trained for defense against Commandos.

These advices followed closely on German-origin stories circulated in Ankara that German and Italian reinforcements were arriving in Bulgaria, and that German and Hungarian divisions had been dispatched to Crete—stories which Allied military sources said they considered feelers to check possible Allied plans for reconquest of the Aegean area.

BLAZE ON SATURNIA

JAN 12 1943

Lisbon, Jan. 11 (AP).—A DNB dispatch from Venice reported today that fire had damaged the 24,470-ton Italian liner Saturnia, which reached Italy last week with Italians being repatriated from Ethiopia and other parts of East Africa. The dispatch said that the fire was believed to have started in the cabin of the first officer who went to sleep smoking a cigarette. The first officer died in the fire.

Germany Expects Visit by Carnera

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 11 (A. P.).—A dispatch from Rome today said that Primo Carnera, the former world heavyweight boxing champion, planned to visit Germany soon in his new career as a professional wrestler.

Nazis Admit Hungary Had Abortive Revolt

Report 664 'Communists' Were Seized; More Signs of Unrest in Rumania

By The Associated Press

The German radio admitted the existence of activity against the government of Hungary, a junior partner in the Axis, with the announcement that seventy-eight persons went on trial at Klausenburg yesterday as the first of 664 "accused of having tried to overthrow the order of the state by force."

Klausenburg is in northern Transylvania, the disputed territory which Adolf Hitler transferred from Rumania, another Axis member from which reports of unrest came last week via Allied and neutral channels.

A Budapest dispatch of the Transocean (German) news agency, as quoted by the Berlin radio, described the defendants as "Communists," a term that Axis propagandists apply loosely to virtually all civilian prisoners arrested for anti-Axis activities.

138 Japs Downed in 4 Days

Allied Airmen Blast Convoy Remnants—U. S. Gains on Guadalcanal.

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—Allied airmen boosted to 138 the Japanese planes shot down or crippled in four days as they pursued the remnants of a Jap convoy fleeing from New Guinea yesterday and scored bomb hits on two more ships, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The only discordant note in the sweeping Allied successes was the disclosure that Brig.-Gen. Kenneth N. Walker of Glendale, Cal., had failed to return from an aerial attack on Rabaul, New Britain, on January 5, when he led a formation of Flying Fortresses and Liberators which damaged 50,000 tons of enemy shipping and shot down nine Jap fighters. Gen. MacArthur himself announced "with profound sorrow" that Gen. Walker was missing and said that the flyer, whom he praised for exceptional leadership and courage, must be presumed lost.

How many men the Japanese actually succeeded in landing at Lae before their convoy fled from New Guinea Saturday night was not disclosed, but it was evident that whatever success the enemy achieved had cost him serious losses.

Flyers Strafe Lae.

The enemy troops which succeeded in landing were given no rest by Allied airmen yesterday. Two strong formations of medium and attack units, with fighter cover, were reported to have bombed and strafed the town and airdrome.

Allied ground forces, meanwhile, continued to maintain steady pressure on the Japanese at Sanananda Point—the last center of enemy resistance on the Papuan Peninsula—and increased their gains by occupying the village of Tarakena. Forty Japanese were killed.

ARGENTINA ASKS BERLIN TO RECALL NAZI NAVAL AIDE

Capt. Niebuhr's Removal Sought Because of Espionage Charge.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 11—(AP) The Argentine government announced tonight that it had asked Germany to recall Capt. Dietrich Niebuhr, German embassy naval attache accused of espionage after an investigation based on information supplied by the United States.

The action followed the German government's refusal to surrender him to the jurisdiction of the supreme court for trial a necessary step because of diplomatic immunities enjoyed by Axis personnel here.

Opponents of President Ramon Castillo's conservative government were given new ammunition by this development in their attempt to get President Castillo to break off diplomatic relations with the Axis. While Argentine-German relations were strained by the spy investigation, there was no indication that President Castillo intended to use the issue for any such step. His government and that of Chile are the only South American nations at present maintaining relations with the Axis. Chile has been reported about to break with the Axis, but even such a development as that will not change the present "prudent neutrality" of this regime in the opinion of competent observers.

To assure Capt. Niebuhr's return to Berlin it would be necessary to obtain safe conduct permits from the United States and British governments.

NAZIS RUSH TROOPS TO HALT RUMANIA RIOTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP) The Moscow radio broadcast a report tonight that the Germans were sending troops into Rumania from Czechoslovakia owing to an "extremely tense situation" in that Axis junior partner country.

Earlier today, reports from Ankara, Turkey, said that unrest in Rumania had reached such proportions that four new divisions of Internal Security troops had been created by the Antonescu government.

The unrest, these reports said, stemmed from popular mistrust of the government due to reverses in Russia. Each of the four new troop units was estimated to number 10,000 men, recruited from local police and the Gendarmerie.

HIROHITO ACTS TO SPUR PRODUCTION OF ARMS

Aides de Camp Will Be Sent to 'Encourage War Workers'

The Tokyo radio reported yesterday that Emperor Hirohito had decided to send aides de camp to war factories to survey conditions and "to encourage war workers who are working for the destruction of America and Britain."

The broadcast, reported by the Federal Communications Commission, said that this decision indicated "His Majesty's deep concern for the increase of the fighting strength." It is planned to send the aides to factories under army and navy control as well as to those operated by private interests.

Premier Hideki Tojo, who is also War Minister, issued a statement in which he said, according to the radio:

"That His Imperial Majesty has extended His Majesty's concern on military goods, production of war weapons and on technical matters of army affairs, especially in this time when the Greater East Asia war is in progress, is truly beyond the bounds of our gratitude."

A similar statement was attributed to the Navy Minister, Admiral Shigetaro Shimada, a spokesman for the Mitsubishi heavy industries.

The Japanese are continuing wide preparations against bombing attacks, another broadcast indicated. An "air defense office" has been established by the Imperial Rule Assistance Association and will open training centers for civilian defense in the six largest Japanese cities, the Tokyo radio said. The training of technical leaders has been started at the Toyama Military School, the broadcast declared, and the leaders will in turn instruct civilians in air raid defense measures.

Japan Wants To Double Population

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—A Tokyo dispatch broadcast today by the Berlin radio quoted Col. Nakao Yahagi, official army spokesman, as declaring that the population of Japan should be doubled as quickly as possible.

Yahagi was addresing a peasant audience at the Uchihara Agricultural Institute and his theme was that the rural areas were not supplying as many recruits for the army as they should.

Japan's population could be increased to 200,000,000 by improving public health and economic conditions in the rural areas, Yahagi said. Presumably he referred to Japan proper, which has a population of about 75,000,000, or to the pre-war empire, including Korea and Formosa, which had about 100,000,000.

Assassination Attempt Fails

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—A Vichy dispatch broadcast today by the Berlin radio reported that an unsuccessful attempt had been made on the life of Henri Beraud, widely known French writer, by placing a time bomb in his automobile at Lyons.

The bomb was placed while Beraud was inside a restaurant and exploded before he returned to his car, which was destroyed, the dispatch said. No one was injured.

The broadcast said Beraud, famous for his "Martyrdom of a Fat Man" and winner of the Goncourt prize in 1922, recently had written a widely read article on British spy activities.

Prince Bernhard in Canada

OTTAWA, Jan. 11 (CP).—Prince Bernhard, of the Netherlands, has arrived in Canada by air from Great Britain, it was learned today, to be with his wife, Princess Juliana, when she enters a hospital toward the end of this month to have her third child.

CARRIER HORNET, THREE CRUISERS SUNK IN BATTLES

Loss of Northampton, Juneau, Atlanta Revealed in Communique.

SEVEN DESTROYERS LOST

Several of Vessels Were Among Newest in American Fleet.

JAPS PAID HEAVY PRICE

37 Enemy Vessels Sunk, 18 Damaged in Engagements, Navy Says.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP) The Navy announced tonight that the 20,000-ton Hornet was the American aircraft carrier sunk in the battle of the Santa Cruz islands last October 26, and identified at the same time three cruisers and seven destroyers which had heretofore been reported sunk but not identified.

The other vessels named as lost, all in battles in the Solomon islands area of the south Pacific, and their commanders are:

The Northampton, heavy cruiser, Captain Willard A. Kitts 3rd, of Oswego, N. Y. He is safe.

The Juneau, 6,000-ton light cruiser, Captain Lyman Knute Swenson, of Provo, Utah. He is missing.

The Atlanta, 6,000-ton sister ship of the Juneau, Captain Samuel Power Jenkins, of San Diego, Calif. He is safe.

The Monssen, 1,630-ton destroyer, Lieutenant Commander Charles Edwards McCombs, of Martins Ferry, Ohio. He is safe.

The Cushing, 1,465-ton destroyer, Lieutenant Commander Edward N. Parker, of Bellefonte, Pa. He is safe.

The Benham, 1,500-ton destroyer, Lieutenant Commander John Barratt Taylor, of Churchille, Bucks county, Pa. He is safe.

The Preston, 1,480-ton destroyer, Commander Max C. Stormes, of San Diego, Calif. He is missing.

The Walke, 1,750-ton destroyer, Commander Thomas Edward Fraser, of Philadelphia, Pa. He is missing.

The Barton, 1,700-ton destroyer, Lieut. Commander Douglas Harold Fox, of Dowagiac, Mich. He is missing.

The Laffey, 1,700-ton destroyer, Lieut. Commander William Edwin Hank, of Norfolk, Va. He is missing.

In the battles in which these American ships were sunk, the Japanese lost 37 vessels sunk and 18 damaged.

The Navy announcement of the loss of the Hornet was made in a communique which said that the names of that and the other ships had been withheld "for reasons of security and to avoid causing needless anxiety on the part of relatives and friends of the personnel who survived these actions."

Next of Kin Notified

"Reports of casualties have since been received, and the next of kin of all personnel killed, wounded or missing in these actions have now been notified."

The Navy said that Rear Admiral Charles P. Mason of Pensacola, Fla., was commander of the Hornet and that he is safe.

The battle in which the Hornet was lost was a costly one for the Japanese. The only other American ship lost in the action was the destroyer Porter. The Japanese, on the other hand, suffered two aircraft carriers heavily damaged, a battleship damaged, and damage also to five cruisers.

The name of the Porter had previously been disclosed and no reference was made to that ship in tonight's communique.

Two New Cruisers

The cruisers Juneau and Atlanta, which were practically new ships, having been commissioned in 1942 and 1941, respectively were lost during the great mid-November battle of Guadalcanal in which the Japanese were defeated with extremely heavy losses in their greatest attempt to reconquer the strategic island from which the battle takes its name.

The seven destroyers also were lost in that furious night engagement.

The Northampton was sunk by enemy action during an engagement north of Guadalcanal on the night of Nov. 30-Dec. 1. Some other American ships were damaged, but the Northampton was the only one reported sunk. The Japanese lost in that engagement two large destroyers or cruisers, four destroyers, two troop transports and one cargo ship—all sunk.

3 Original Carriers Remain

The loss of the Hornet reduces the group of seven aircraft carriers with which the United States started the war on December 7, 1941, to three ships still afloat. The other craft lost were the Lexington in the battle of the Coral sea, the Yorktown at Midway, and the 1943

30.24-263

Wasp in the Solomons campaign.

The three remaining ships of the original seven are the Enterprise, the Saratoga and the Ranger.

The Hornet, like most of the other carriers the Navy has lost in action, did not go down immediately, but was severely damaged while in contact with the enemy. She sank subsequent to the actual attack by enemy planes.

The communique issued on Oct. 31, which merely reported the sinking of an unidentified carrier, said that the vessel was twice attacked by enemy bombers and torpedo planes near the Santa Cruz islands. The first attack occurred during the forenoon and caused heavy damage, but the carrier was taken in tow by another ship in an attempt to salvage her. In the afternoon, she was attacked a second time and damaged below the waterline so that she began to list. Shortly afterward, personnel were removed from the vessel and the carrier later went down.

Personnel Casualties Light

The Hornet had a normal complement, including flying personnel, of 2,170 men. The Navy gave no estimates of personnel losses in its communique tonight, but in the earlier communique saying that the vessel had been sunk, it was stated that casualties on the Hornet were light.

The carrier, built at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company, Newport News, Va., was launched on Dec. 14, 1940, and christened by Mrs. Frank Knox, wife of the Secretary of the Navy. It was placed in commission in October, 1941. It was 770 feet long and normally carried 81 to 85 aircraft.

The Atlanta and Juneau, which were high-speed new cruisers armed principally with five-inch, 38-caliber dual purpose guns—suitable for use against both surface and aerial targets—were built by the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company of Kearney, N. J. The Atlanta was placed in commission in December, 1941, and the Juneau in February, 1942. Capt. Swenson took command of the ship at that time.

Christened by Mrs. Coolidge

The 9,050-ton Northampton which carried nine eight-inch 55-caliber guns and had a normal complement of 39 officers and 657 enlisted men, was built by the Bethlehem Steel corporation at Quincy, Mass., and was launched in September, 1929. She was christened by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge.

The vessel was commissioned in May, 1930, and in the years before the war made cruises to many parts of the world.

The destroyer Monssen, which was built at the Puget Sound Navy yard at Bremerton, Wash., and commissioned in March, 1941, had a normal complement of 175 officers and men. She was armed with five five-inch 38-caliber guns and carried ten 21-inch torpedo tubes.

The Cushing also was built at the Puget Sound yard, being placed in commission in 1936. A 341-foot vessel, the Cushing had five five-inch 38-caliber guns and three quadruple mounts of 21-inch torpedo tubes. Her normal complement was 12 officers and 192 enlisted men.

The Benham was built by the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company at Kearney, N. J. With a normal complement of 172 officers and men, she carried four five-inch guns and 16 21-inch torpedo tubes.

The Preston was built at the Mare Island, Calif., Navy yard and launched in April, 1936, being commissioned shortly afterward. She was 341 feet long, carried five five-inch 38-caliber guns and 12 21-inch torpedo tubes.

Commissioned in 1940

The Walke was built at the Boston Navy yard and was placed in commission in April, 1940. No information as to her normal complement was given. She originally mounted five five-inch 38-caliber guns and 12 21-inch torpedo tubes but the armament later was changed to four five-inch guns and eight torpedo tubes to permit installation of additional anti-aircraft armament.

The Barton was built at the Bethleham Steel company, Shipbuilding division, Quincy, Mass., yard, and was launched a year ago this month, being placed in commission in May, 1942. She mounted four five-inch 38-caliber guns, ten 21-inch torpedo tubes and heavy anti-aircraft equipment.

The Laffey was built by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding company at San Francisco and placed in commission in March, 1942. She mounted four five-inch, 38-caliber guns and ten 21-inch torpedo tubes.

evidence that might be the start of a general offensive with the ultimate objective of securing American control over the entire strategic island, but naval spokesmen said they had no information that such was the case and added that the operation thus far revealed appeared to be of a minor nature.

The Navy communique did not say in what sector of the Guadalcanal front the new advances were made. The main Japanese forces, however, have been concentrated in the northwestern hump of the island, on the American west flank, and authorities here assumed the advances were in that direction.

The first stage of the action was an artillery barrage laid on Japanese positions and this was immediately followed up by Douglas Dauntless dive bombers (a Navy-Marine corps type) and the Army's Aircobra fighters which bombed and strafed the Japs. United States ground forces, which were not identified as either Marine or Army troops then went into action.

"Enemy resistance to the advances was weak," the communique said.

Navy Reports Guadalcanal Fight.

Washington, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—The Navy announced today that American forces on Guadalcanal Island had made small advances into enemy territory against weak resistance following an artillery barage and aerial bombing and strafing.

The communique said that on January 10 the Americans laid down an artillery barrage on Japanese positions and Dauntless dive bombers and Airacobra fighters followed up the shelling by bombing and strafing the enemy areas. Following the shelling and bombing, ground forces made small advances.

While the combined use of artillery, air and ground forces suggested the possibility that the major operation to crush the

FLYNN'S SELECTION DRAWS G.O.P. FIRE

Senator Bridges Terms Appointment 'Insult' to People of Australia.

JAN 12 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 — (AP) President Roosevelt's nomination of Edward J. Flynn, retiring Democratic national chairman, as minister to Australia, touched off the first real fireworks of the new Congress today.

Senator Bridges (R.-N.H.) took the Senate floor shortly after the appointment was announced to term it an "insult" to the people of Australia. Democratic leaders nonetheless expressed confidence the nomination would be confirmed.

Flynn Requests Hearing

Mr. Flynn himself wrote the Senate Foreign Relations committee asking that "a full and complete hearing" be held on any charges that might be raised against him. He added in a statement that he welcomed an opportunity for the committee to bring into the open "baseless charges" that he has used New York city materials and labor to pave the courtyard of his estate.

In addition to the post of minister to Australia, Mr. Roosevelt named Mr. Flynn as his personal representative with the rank of ambassador in the southwest Pacific area. He will, however, receive only a minister's pay, $10,000 a year, instead of the $17,500 salary paid to an ambassador.

Brown Named OPA Chief

The nomination, which the Democratic chieftain revealed in a precedent-shattering announcement in New York last Friday, was one of a number sent to the Senate today. The President named Judge Wiley Blount Rutledge, Jr., of the Court of Appeals for the District of columbia to be an associate justice of the Supreme court; former Senator Prentiss M. Brown of Michigan to be price administrator succeeding Leon Henderson, and former Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma to membership on the Civil Aeronautics board. All are Democrats. Mr. Brown and Mr. Lee were defeated in the November elections.

Mr. Flynn would succeed Nelson Johnson, who is retiring from the diplomatic service.

Senator Bridges spoke from a manuscript to voice his criticism of the nominee. Asserting he did not blame the Democrats or President Roosevelt for wanting to get rid of Mr. Flynn, he termed it "an interesting coincidence that this particular moment paving block Flynn should be seeking diplomatic immunity."

Exonerated by Jury

The term "paving block Flynn" stemmed from a Bronx grand jury investigation of charges that a courtyard at Mr. Flynn's estate had been paved with New York city materials and labor. The jury exonerated Mr. Flynn.

"It is a disgraceful state of affairs," Senator Bridges declared, "when it becomes necessary to subpoena the chairman of a major political party before a grand jury in connection with a criminal offense."

Minority Leader McNary of Oregon previously had announced that Republicans would demand an investigation of Mr. Flynn's record, and Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) said the Foreign Relations committee would meet Friday to consider any requests for hearings.

Flynn Choice 'Stirs' Aussies

[By the Associated Press]

Melbourne, Jan. 11—Prime Minister John Curtin and other Government leaders were silent on the appointment of Edward J. Flynn as United States Minister to Australia, but the premature announcement and accompanying American press criticism was reported by the Melbourne Sun to have stirred political circles.

(This dispatch was based on the announcement by Flynn last week that he had been named envoy to Australia. It was filed approximately three hours before President Roosevelt sent the nomination of Flynn to the Senate this morning.)

Astonished By Announcement

Astonishment was expressed that Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, should have made the announcement rather than President Roosevelt.

Widespread regret was voiced that such a ministerial shift would mean the departure of Nelson T. Johnson.

(Johnson is retiring from the diplomatic service, a Washington dispatch said.)

U.S. AND BRITAIN RENOUNCE THEIR RIGHTS IN CHINA

Treaties Put China on Equal Footing With Other United Nations.

HULL PERSONALLY GRATIFIED

JAN 12 1943

Titles of American Nationals With Regard to Real Property Assured.

Washington, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—China and the United States signed a treaty today abolishing the system of extraterritorial rights in China. A similar treaty was signed simultaneously in London between Great Britain and China.

In effect the treaties abolishing extraterritorial rights place China on a footing of equality with the other United Nations. China is assured that her sovereignty in post-war years will not be impaired by a system granting special rights and privileges in China to foreigners.

The intention of Britain and the United States to end the system of extraterritorial rights by treaty was announced by the two governments last October, and some weeks later draft treaties were submitted to the Chinese Government.

At that time the Chinese Ambassador here, Wei Tao-Ming, hailed the move as beginning a "New era in China's relations with the Western Powers." He asserted it would end an "outdated and outworn system" and greatly encourage China in her fight for freedom. Today he said the treaty "will further strengthen the friendly relations long subsisting between our two peoples."

Hull Signs Treaty

The treaty was signed by Secretary of State Hull and Ambassador Wei. They sat side by side. Ambassador Wei used paint brush and ink box for his Chinese signature, then penned his name in English script.

The treaty and accompanying notes provide for United States relinquishment of extra-territorial and other special privileges which, under treaty provisions, the United States has hitherto exercised in China, and for the adjustment of various matters connected with this relinquishment.

The more important provisions include relinquishment by the United States of its extra-territorial jurisdiction; relinquishment of special rights acquired under the Boxer Protocol of 1901, including the right to station troops in China; relinquishment of special rights related to the system of treaty ports, the diplomatic quarter at Peiping, and the international settlements at Shanghai and Amoy, including the special courts at Shanghai.

Existing rights or titles of American nationals with regard to real property in China are assured, but such property is to be subject to Chinese laws concerning taxation, national defense and eminent domain.

The two governments agree that they will, at a suitable time, begin negotiations for the conclusion of a comprehensive modern treaty of friendship, commerce, navigation and consular rights.

Secretary Hull said: "All of us have looked forward to this day and it is specially gratifying to me personally that it falls to my lot to sign this significent treaty on behalf of the American Government."

Hull Says New Treaty Applies Principle of Equality Among Nations

JAN 12 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP) The United States and Great Britain, in identical treaties signed today in Washington and Chungking, formally relinquished their extra-territorial rights and privileges in China.

In effect, the Anglo-American move applies to China what Secretary of State Hull has called, "the principle of equality of treatment among nations."

From the Chinese point of view, it constitutes formal assurance that the post-war sovereignty of China will be free of the fetters of a system which enabled foreign powers to do in China what they could not do normally within the borders of a sovereign foreign nation.

Specifically, the United States, in the treaty signed here by Secretary of State Hull and Chinese Ambassador Wei Tao-Ming, relinquishes its right to maintain troops in China or ships of war in Chinese waters, relinquishes its right to maintain its own courts of justice in China, and acknowledges the principle that Chinese nationals in the United States and American nationals in China should be on the same footing in respect to legal proceedings, the administration of justice and the levying of taxes.

The treaty, still to be ratified by the Senate, will have little practical effect until after the war, inasmuch as Japan now controls much of the areas in which extra-territorial rights existed. Its moral significance, however, is that it recognizes sovereign China as an equal among the nations.

Britain and China Sign Treaty.

London, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—Britain and China have signed a treaty, effective immediately, by which Britain relinquishes her extra-territorial rights in China, the Foreign Office announced today.

A spokesman for the British Foreign Office said a similar treaty had been initiated in behalf of India by the Secretary of the Indian Agency.

"The Dominions are making their own arrangements, but they have informed us of their complete agreement with our action," he said.

Sir Horace Seymour, the British Ambassador to China, and H. E. Richardson of the Indian Agency initialed the treaty in behalf of Britain and India, respectively. T. V. Soong, Chinese Foreign Minister, represented China.

The treaty was "identical in substance" with that which was signed by the United States and China at Washington today, the Foreign Office spokesman said.

The treaty contains a stipulation for a pact of friendship, commerce and navigation within six months after the conclusion of the war, or before that if either Power requests it.

A majority of the areas where extra-territoriality applied now are occupied by the Japanese or are within territory controlled by Wang Ching-wei's puppet Chinese Nationalist Government. The spokesman said, however, that henceforth any British nationals charged with crimes in so-called "Free China" would stand trial in local Chinese courts instead of in British Consular Courts.

The treaty does not apply to leased territories, such as Kowloon and the adjoining suburban area, which are legally considered to be a part of Hongkong. Britain has not relinquished her claims to sovereignty over Hongkong, now held by the Japanese.

The bulk of extra-territorial rights by both Britain and the United States were based on China Expresses Gratification.

Chungking, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek telegraphed President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill today to express "the gratification of the Chinese Government and people" over the signing of treaties whereby the Western Powers gave up their extra territorial rights in China.

"This is to me a signal proof of solidarity among the United Nations, not only for the purpose of war but also for winning the peace," the Chinese leader said.

Foreign Minister T. V. Soong, who signed the Chinese-British treaty here for China, sent similar messages to Secretary of State Hull and Foreign Secretary Eden.

State Department Protests Removal of Envoys and News Men From Lourdes

JAN 12 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP).—The State Department announced tonight that the Nazis are preparing to transfer to Germany the Americans held at Lourdes, France, and that it is protesting this autocratic action.

The department issued the following statement:

"The Department of State has been advised by its legation at Bern that the German government has thrown a detachment of SS. troops around the American group at Lourdes, France. The group includes diplomatic and consular officers, press correspondents, Red Cross representatives and relief workers.

"The German government proposes to transfer the American group from French soil to a site in Germany.

"The German action was taken while the United States government was negotiating through the Swiss government for the exchange of its personnel.

"It is reported that the German government thus intends to take upon itself for its own purposes the exchange negotiations.

"This autocratic action by the German government has been protested tonight by the Department of State.

The State Department has been striving since the Germans completed their occupation of all France to arrange for a return of the Americans who were at Vichy.

The negotiations, conducted through Switzerland, technically were with the Vichy government and contemplated exchange of

W. B. RUTLEDGE NOMINATED FOR SUPREME COURT

Will Take Place on Bench

Vacated by ex-Justice James F. Byrnes.

BROWN NAMED PRICE CHIEF

Josh Lee, Defeated Oklahoma Senator, Is Designated for Civil Aeronautics Board.

Washington, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt sent to the Senate today the nominations of Wiley B. Rutledge, Associate Justice of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, and of Prentiss M. Brown, former Senator from Michigan to be price administrator.

Josh Lee, former Senator from Oklahoma, was nominated to membership on the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The 48-year-old Justice Rutledge, former dean of the law school at the University of Iowa, will take the place vacated on the Supreme Court bench when James F. Byrnes was appointed economic stabilization director.

Mr. Brown will replace Leon Henderson, who announced several weeks ago that he was resigning because of a back ailment and poor eyesight. Mr. Henderson agreed to serve until his successor could take over.

Mr. Brown, a member of the House from Michigan before going to the Senate, was defeated for re-election in November, as was Mr. Lee.

2 Yorktown Citations

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 11—One of the Japanese bombs which damaged the American aircraft carrier Yorktown in the battle of Midway exploded in the uptakes of the vessel's forward boilers and blew out the fires in all boilers except one.

This was disclosed by the navy today with publication of a citation accompanying the award of Navy Crosses to two watertenders, Charles Kleinsmith, 38, of Long Beach, Cal., and Clifford E. Snell, 20, of Loveland, Ohio. Kleinsmith is listed as missing in action.

The citations were identical:

"During an intense bombing attack, the explosion of an enemy bomb in the uptakes of the forward group of boilers extinguished the fire in all boilers except No. 1, and filled all boiler rooms with heavy smoke and gases. In spite of the heat, stifling fumes and the imminence of smoke, Snell (Kleinsmith) with complete disregard for his own personal safety, assisted in keeping the boiler under steam to keep the ship's auxiliary power in operation. His capable performance of this task helped to make it possible for the Yorktown to attain the speed necessary for launching fighter planes in time to oppose a Japanese aerial torpedo attack."

The Yorktown later was lost. Its uptakes were sections of the boiler fire outlets below the smokestock. The bomb might have entered the uptakes either by dropping down the smokestack or by crashing through the carrier's deck.

Hull, Envoys Talk Post-War Relief

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Ambassadors of Great Britain, Soviet Russia and China conferred with Secretary of State Hull today on the colossal task of post-war rehabilitation and relief.

Their discussion was understood to have been a very general one, covering the broad principles of the subject.

One task already has been accomplished: The setting up several months ago of a 100,000,000-bushel wheat pool which places vast wheat surpluses in Canada, Australia and the United States at the disposal of the international organization.

FIGHTS PUERTO RICO LAWS

Crawford Offers Bill to Annul Grants of Power to Tugwell

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—A resolution to annul seven laws passed by the Puerto Rican Legislature since Rexford Guy Tugwell became Governor was introduced today by Representative Crawford of Michigan, who argued that the legislation set up Governor Tugwell as "a dictator over agriculture and the sugar industry."

The laws established a water resources board, a transportation authority, a development company, communications authority, sugar industry regulation board and "a development bank."

Mr. Crawford, a member of the House Insular Committee, is a critic of Tugwell's administration. He referred to the laws which he would abrogate as "the backbone of an amazing scheme of government control which Governor Rexford Guy Tugwell has set up over the people of that island."

"I am informed that Governor Tugwell manoeuvred every step in the program," Mr. Crawford asserted in a statement to the House.

RUSSIA GETS NO. 1 SHIPMENT RATING

JAN 13 1943

Washington, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—Secretary of the Interior Ickes told a Russian relief luncheon today that he had received a communication from President Roosevelt directing that Russia henceforth be given preference in shipments of war materials to the fronts.

Asked afterward to amplify his statement Mr. Ickes told newspaper men that the White House doubtless would be saying more on this subject soon. There was no immediate comment available at the White House.

While Mr. Ickes did not amplify his remarks, some of his listeners expressed the opinion that he was talking about lend-lease shipments to members of the United Nations.

In his brief, unscheduled address at the luncheon, Mr. Ickes praised the stamina and character of the Russian people. Guest of honor at the luncheon was Ambassador Maxim Litvinoff, who expressed the thanks of the Soviet Red Cross for the relief supplies contributed by Americans through the Russian War Relief organization.

Mr. Litvinoff reminded his hearers that the Red Army has been fighting picked German troops for nineteen months without interruption, "on a scale unprecedented in the history of wars."

$15,000,000,000 Spent For Relief in 7 Years

Roosevelt Reports Most of Funds Used for W. P. A.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP).—President Roosevelt reported to Congress today that the government spent more than $15,000,000,000 on emergency relief activities from 1935 to last June 30.

The major part of the money, the President said, was spent by teh Work Projects Administration, which the Chief Executive has ordered liquidated because of the decline in relief activities due to the war.

Details of expenditures on relief were contained in a 507-page report which the President sent to Congress today. It listed expenditures up to June 30 of $15,084,249,293, including $10,314,422,219 by W. P. A., $1,144,172,873 by the Agriculture Department, $273,857,401 by the War Department, $89,569,481 by the Navy, $203,028,931 by the Interior Department, $592,623,594 by the Civilian Conservation Corps and $329,515,566 by the National Youth Administration.

The report showed that of $15,243,092,663 made available by Congress in emergency relief appropriations since 1935, there remained on June 30 last an unexpended balance of $158,843,369.

Reflecting the sharp upturn in employment due to the war effort, the report disclosed that relief expenditures dropped from $2,617,974,768 in the 1939 fiscal year to $913,376,715 in 1942.

NAVY'S WILDCATS PACK MORE PUNCH THAN SPITFIRES

U. S. Planes Not Under-Gunned, Secretary Knox Writes.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(AP) Secretary of the Navy Knox declared in a magazine article today that the "experts who have criticized the Navy's planes for being under-gunned will be interested to learn that the Grumman Wildcat packs even more wallop than the famed English Spitfire."

This superiority, the secretary wrote, does not exist in fighter planes alone, for American dive and torpedo bombers "are the strongest and heaviest armed in the world." He added:

"Their superiority in range and bomb load is the result of long years of experimentation — experimentation that began many years before the Stuka laid waste to a helpless Europe."

Separate Navy Air Arm Important

Secretary Knox said the accomplishments of Navy planes had emphasized the importance of a distinctive naval air arm both for planes and personnel. "For both planes and pilots, this specialization has paid big dividends both in successful attacks and defense of our own surface ships," the secretary declared.

"Indeed, the record of the Navy's air arm is a record of study, of training, of superb tactics and flaming courage. It is a record that will stand against the exploits of any airmen in the world," he concluded.

The secretary's article entitled "The Navy's Air Arm," appeared in the February special issue of "Flying," devoted to U. S. naval aviation at war.

Battleships Use Curbed

In the same edition, Rear Admiral Frederick C. Sherman, commander of the lost aircraft carrier Lexington, declared that because of carrier-based aircraft "the uses of the battleship today are circumscribed."

The battleship, he asserted, can function safely in the face of enemy air opposition only when given air protection, either from shore bases or carriers. "In the latter case, the carrier aircraft might be better employed offensively against the enemy than defensively protecting the battleship," Admiral Sherman said, and added:

"If absolute control of the air is assured, the battleship may find occasion to venture out as part of a heavy bombardment raiding force; otherwise she will have to remain in port."

ITALIAN SUB SINKS ALLIED CARGO SHIP

Survivors Reach U. S. after Torpedoing Off South America.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 11.—(AP) An Italian submarine torpedoed and sank a United Nations cargo ship off the East coast of South America and then took aboard as prisoners the vessel's captain and chief engineer, survivors reported on arrival here.

The sinking, which occurred several hundred miles off the coast early in December, was announced by the Navy today.

Twenty-four survivors landed here told naval officers their life boat became separated from two others carrying the remainder of the 78 men in the crew and though they did not know what became of the others, believed they had been rescued and landed elsewhere. Crewmen brought here were picked up by a merchant ship six days after the attack.

Took Films of Sinking

Struck on the starboard side by one torpedo in late afternoon, the ship began to settle immediately and the crew abandoned her. The sub surfaced, hoisted an Italian flag, and one of her officers, after asking her ship's name and destination, took aboard the master and chief engineer. The sub crew gave the survivors a cask of water, took motion pictures and still photographs of the torpedoed ship, and then departed.

Survivors said the submersible's crew members spoke fairly good English.

One British Destroyer flotilla steamed more than 1,000,000 miles in 21 months of war.

4 U-BOATS JOIN IN SHIP SINKING

JAN 12 1943

An East Coast Canadian Port, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—Not one, but four German submarines came to the surface on a black night in the Atlantic recently to sink a United Nations merchantman, according to the stories of some forty survivors who have reached here.

Another group of forty rescued from another ship torpedoed in another section of the Atlantic have also arrived here.

Few of the men would say much about the sinkings. One did say, however, that just before his ship was sunk he saw the lark outlines of four submarines nearby.

"You could see the trails of the torpedoes they were firing," he said, adding that "they didn't seem to be shooteing at anything in particular—just firing in every which way."

One of the torpedoes blasted the ship, however, and it went down. After three hours in lifeboats the men were picked up.

Landon Calls It "Shock"

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 11 (AP).—Alfred M. Landon, 1936 Republican Presidential nominee, said today "the whole country will be shocked" by the appointment of Edward J. Flynn, national Democratic chairman, as Minister to Australia.

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican Presidential nominee, said today that the nomination of Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national chairman, as Minister to Australia, "must be revolting to all decent citizens."

Canada Scoffs At Annexation By U. S. A.

JAN 12 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Toronto, Jan. 11.—Albert Bushnell Hart's suggestion that the United States should annex Canada after the war is not regarded by most Canadian newspapers as any indication of general feeling in the American Republic.

The 88-year-old professor emeritus of Harvard University said recently that "Russia's ability to stick it out against the Germans will be one of the keys to eventual victory, but the United States should annex Canada in the peace settlement lest the Russians, in a post-war expansion of Siberia, should have designs on an independent or British-dominated Canada."

No Official Reaction

While there was no official Government reaction to his views, many Canadian newspapers took issue with the suggestion while others said it was not worthy of serious consideration.

The Winnipeg (Man.) Tribune said: That it is not necessary to annex neighboring countries for hemisphere defense. "The joint American-Canadian Defense Commission has the question of continental defense in hand. There is not the slightest need of annexation."

"His Little Joke"

W. L. Clark, writing in the Windsor (Ont.) Star, said: "Professor Hart can have his little joke and get a kick out of suggesting that territorial aggrandizement is all right for the United States, but all wrong for any other country. Just don't take the old boy too seriously."

JAN 12 1943

The French-language newspaper Le Devoir, of Montreal, said: "French-Canadians have always rejected any proposal of a possible annexation by the United States. Their ideal is to live in a free country on a friendly basis with Great Britain and France, closely cooperating with the United States in the defense of North America and its natural resources."

Cites Soviet Task

Soliel, of Quebec, another French-language paper, said: Even if peace does not give to the world centuries of fraternity and justice, it seems that Russia will have enough to do protecting its frontiers without trying to attack a friendly country."

The Montreal Herald said Professor Hart's views show "that he has not kept abreast of history, and particularly that he has no conception of Canada's position in the modern world, or its actual relations with the United States.

No "Possession"

"It almost looks as if he thinks Britain might be induced or forced to use Canada as a bargaining factor in peace developments, as if Canada were still a British 'possession.'

"Why he should imagine that Russia could have any designs on Canada is a mystery, since it is Alaska which is next-door neighbor to Russia, not Canada."

The Toronto Globe and Mail said: "As an historian, Professor Hart cannot be questioned, but here he has stepped into the realm of politics and also of reality, and what he says in this connection will not be taken more seriously than similar proposals from politicians who are not historians or realists."

Asks Repudiation

The Edmonton (Alta.) Journal said the suggestion of annexation "must be resented strongly not only by the Russian Government and people but in the United States and Canada as well."

It added that because of the professor's reputation as a historian his suggestion may be given more attention than it deserves. "On that account it cannot be overlooked entirely but must be repudiated in the most emphatic terms by his own Government."

BERNHARD IN CANADA

Prince to Be With Wife When Third Child Is Born

OTTAWA, Jan. 11 (Canadian Press)—Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands arrived at Montreal late today from the United Kingdom, en route to Ottawa to be with his wife, Princess Juliana, when their third child is born around the end of the month.

The Prince arrived in Canada by plane today and flew to Montreal from an East Coast airport. He planned to spend the night in Montreal and proceed tomorrow to the capital, where his wife and two children have been living.

NEW YORK GUNMEN SLAY CARLO TRESCO

Anti-Fascist Editor of Italian Weekly Killed on Fifth Avenue.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 — (AP) Carlo Tresca, one-time leader of the Industrial Workers of the World (I.W.W.) and anti-Fascist editor of the Italian weekly "Il Martello" published here, was shot and killed tonight on a lower Fifth avenue street corner.

The police reported that Tresca, 60, was shot in the temple from an automobile which pulled to the curb at the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and 15th street.

Had Just Left Office

Tresca was identified immediately to police by Guiseppe Calabi, a friend who was walking with him. Both men had just left the office of "Il Martello" at 96 Fifth avenue.

Tresca, known as a violent anti-Fascist, was sentenced in 1912 on the Federal penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga., for sending obscene pamphlets through the mails. The sentence was freed in May of 1925.

His record included arrests for I.W.W. activities and for felonious assault on a local Fascist leader.

Searching the neighborhood for clues to the shooting, the police found a gun behind some ash cans on West 15th street. A bullet, thought to be the one that killed Tresca, was found on the sidewalk beside his body. The slug apparently pierced his head.

Police sent out an alarm for the murder car, believed to be a small dark sedan.

4,000 Seaman Lost

JAN 12 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 11—The perilous task of sailing merchant ships in the submarine-infested Atlantic has taken the lives of at least 4,000 and perhaps more than 6,000 men since Pearl Harbor.

The announced destruction of six cargo vessels in the Western Atlantic last week caused the loss of more seamen than had been reported in any previous week in several months, when the ship toll was higher. Seamen stand less chance of survival after torpedoings in the cold months when they face heavy storms, icy waters and shorter hours of daylight.

Casualty List Raised

Seventy-three men were killed and 87 were listed as missing as the result of six announced sinkings last week. These raised the casualty list for the 587 Allied and neutral merchantment reported sunk in the western Atlantic over the 6,400 mark. At least 3,906 men have been killed and 2,521 others have been recorded as missing, with most of the latter considered lost.

The navy announced last night that 3,211 merchant marine casualties—491 dead and 2,720 missing—were reported from September 27, 1941, to December 21, 1942, resulting directly from enemy action against American ships only.

61 Captains Lost

The list of trained men who skipper the ships against the dangers of submarines, planes and mines, as well as the elements, has been hit hard, too. At least sixty-one captains of American ships have been lost in action on all seas, and seventeen Allied masters have been captured in western Atlantic operations alone.

In the six sinkings announced last week, one ship's captain was drowned, another's fate is unknown, and a third was taken prisoneer aboard a U-boat.

LAMPEDUSIA AND TRIPOLI WERE RAIDED. THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

SCOUTING ACTIVITY WAS REPORTED ON THE LIBYAN FRONT.

"IN BOTH (TUNISIAN AND LIBYAN) SECTORS, IN SPITE OF BAD WEATHER, ITALIAN AND GERMAN AIR FORCES REPEATEDLY BOMBED AND MACHINE-GUNNED THE ADVANCED FRONT AND MOVING ENEMY COLUMNS WITH GOOD RESULTS," IT WAS DECLARED.

JAN 12 1943

GERMAN FIGHTERS WERE CREDITED WITH SHOOTING DOWN FIVE ALLIED PLANES. DAMAGE IN THE ALLIED ATTACKS UPON LAMPEDUSA (CORRECT) AND TRIPOLI WAS DECLARED SLIGHT.

JAN 12 1943

FIRST LIEUTENANT ERLING J. NOSSUM OF MILNOR, S.D.; SECOND LIEUTENANT HAROLD E. SNIDER OF 205 WEST SYCAMORE, ROBINSON, ILL., AND STAFF SERGEANT EVERETT F. PERKINS, ROUTE 2, WADSWORTH, OHIO, RECEIVED OAK LEAF CLUSTERS IN LIEUOF SECOND AWARDS OF THE SILVER STAR.

SGT. PERKINS, WOUNDED IN ACTION OVER RABAUL, NEW BRITAIN, OCT. 5, ALSO RECEIVED THE PURPLE HEART.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS LEROY J. TURNES, 2040 IRVING PAR[illegible] CHICAGO. TURNES WAS INJURED IN ACTION NEAR FORT MORES[illegible], NEW GUINEA, SEPT. 17.

SILVER STARS FOR GALLANTRY IN ACTION WERE AWARDED TO MAJOR ALEXANDER G. EVANOFF, KEYSTONE, IOWA; CAPTAINS ROMAN T. SCHUMACHER, AURORA, NEB., AND DONALD A. SIMPSON, CARROLLTON, ILL.; FIRST LIEUTENANTS KERMIT E. MEYERS, 17 SOUTH MAIN STREET, NEW BREMEN, OHIO, RODERICK M. STEWART, JR., 221 NORTH MADISON, HINSDALE, ILL., CHARLES E. ROGERS, VILLA GROVE, ILL., AND CHARLES P. SULLIVAN, ROANOKE, ILL.; CORP. GEORGE R. ZENZ, 1305 HARVEY STREET, GREEN BAY, WIS., AND PRIVATE OTTO RUSSELL, WEST FRANDLORD, ILL.

JAN 1[illegible] 43

IN THE OCT. 5 RABAUL ACTION, SERGEANT PERKINS WAS TOP TURRET GUNNER ON ONE OF A FLIGHT OF FLYING FORTRESSES ATTACKED AT HIGH ALTITUDE BY 25 ZERO FIGHTERS WHILE ATTEMPTING TO RAID VUNAKANAU AIRDROME.

PERKINS WAS WOUNDED SEVERELY WHEN AN EXPLOSIVE CANNON SHELL STARTED A FIRE IN THE CABIN OF HIS PLANE. DESPITE HIS INJURY, HE EXTINGUISHED THE FLAMES AND RESUMED HIS PLACE IN THE TOP TURRET, CLEARING THE GUNS WHICH HAD JAMMED AND FIRING STEADILY AT THE ENEMY. HE DAMAGED AT LEAST TWO ZEROS, AND LEFT THE TURRET ONLY WHEN THE ELECTRICAL SYSTEM FAILED AND IT CEASED OPERATING. DURING THE ENTIRE BATTLE HE WAS WITHOUT OXYGEN, AS HIS TUBE BROKE WHEN THE PLANE WAS FIRST HIT.

LIEUT. SNIDER WAS NAVIGATOR OF A FLYING FORTRESS IN A FORMATION ON THE FIRST AMERICAN BOMBING MISSION FROM AN AUSTRALIAN BASE AGAINST RABAUL, FEB. 23. LIEUT. MEYERS WAS NAVIGATOR AND LIEUT. STEWART

3024-269

CO-PILOT OF OTHER PLANES IN THE SAME MISSION. THE CREWS HAD ARRIVED IN AUSTRALIA ONLY FOUR DAYS PREVIOUSLY. THEY MADE A SUCCESSFUL FLIGHT THROUGH STORMY WEATHER, AND ON THE WAY HOME FROM THE PIONEER MISSION BEAT OFF ATTACKS BY FIVE JAPANESE ZERO PLANES.

LIEUT.NOSSUM, BOMBARDIER ON A B17, REMAINED SO CALM ON A LOW-ALTITUDE RAID OVER RABAUL AIRDROME JUNE 24, DESPITESEARCHLIGHTS AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT AND MACHINEGUN FIRE, THAT HIS BOMBS BURST ACROSS THE ENTIRE LENGTH OF THE FIELD, SETTING TWO LARGE FIRES. JAN 12 1943

CAPT.SIMPSON, PILOT OF A FLYING FORTRESS ON A NIGHT BOMBING RAID ON ENEMY SHIPPING IN RABAUL HARBOR SEPT. 22, KEPT THE PLANE ON ITS COURSE DESPITE TWO HITS FROM ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS. WHEN THE GLARE OF SEARCHLIGHTS CAUSED THE BOMBARDIER TO LOSE SIGHT OF THE SHIPS, CAPT. SIMPSON FLEW ON TO THE AIRDROME WHERE AN EFFECTIVE BOMBING RAID WAS MADE, THEN FLEW TO A SAFE LANDING AT HIS BASE EVEN THOUGH ENEMY FIRE HAD RENDERED ALL OF HIS FLIGHT INSTRUMENTS USELESS.

LIEUT.ROGERS, A B-17 BOMBARDIER, TOOK PART IN A MASS DAY-LIGHT RAID ON RABAUL AUG. 7 AND AIDED IN DESTROYING, IN THE AIR, SEVEN OF MORE THAN 25 INTERCEPTING JAPANESE ZERO PLANES.

CORP.ZENZ WAS BOTTOM TURRET GUNNER ON A FLYING FORTRESS ATTACKED BY FOUR ZEROS WHILE ON RECONNAISSANCE OVER RABAUL AUG. 29. TWO ZEROS WERE SHOT DOWN, ZENZ SCORING ONE OF THE SUCCESSES. JAN 12 1943

PVT.RUSSELL ALSO WAS BOTTOM TURRET GUNNER ON A B-17 ATTACKED BY FOUR ZEROS WHILE ON RECN

PVT.RUSSELL ALSO WAS BOTTOM TURRET GUNNER ON A B-17 ATTACKED BY FOUR ZEROS WHILE ON RECONNAISSANCE OVER RABAUL OCT. 9. DURING AN HOUR-LONG BATTLE RUSSELL WAS INSTRUMENTAL IN DESTROYING AT LEAST ONE OF THE ENEMY PLANES AND REPELLING THE OTHERS.

MAJOR EVANOFF, THEN A CAPTAIN, PILOTED A B-25 BOMBER ON A PARTICULARLY DARING RAID OVER SALAMAUA, NEW GUINEA, JUNE 25. AFTER DROPPING DEMOLITION AND INCENDIARY BOMBS, HE FLEW OVER THE AREA THREE TIMES AT TREE-TOP LEVEL--DESPITE BAD WEATHER AND INTENSE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE--STRAFING THE ENEMY'S POSITIONS.

CAPTAIN SCHUMACHER, THEN A FIRST LIEUTENANT, WAS CO-PILOT OF A FLYING FORTRESS IN A BOMBING MISSION AGAINST THE JAPANESE AT PALEMBANG, SUMATRA, FEB. 13, 1942. THE FORTRESSES ATTACKED FROM 1,500 FEET, DAMAGING AN ENEMY TRANSPORT SO BADLY THAT IT SANK [illegible] DAMAGE. JAN 12 1943

LIEUT.SULLIVAN, A P-40 PILOT, SHOT DOWN A JAPANESE BOMBER OVER KOKODA, NEW GUINEA, JUNE 27. THERE WERE 18 TWIN-TAILED BOMBERS AND SEVERAL ZERO FIGHTERS IN THE ENEMY FORCE WHICH SULLIVAN ENGAGED.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, TUESDAY, JAN.12-(AP)-FOUR OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY WERE AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS FOR EXTRAORDINARY HEROISM IN ACTION IN NEW GUINEA BY GENERAL MACARTHUR TODAY.

AWARDS WERE GIVEN TO CAPTAIN (THEN LIEUTENANT) CLADIE A.BAILEY, INFANTRY, (807 NORTH I ST.) BEDFORD,IND.; SGT.CHESTER J. DAVIDOWICZ, ENGINEERS, (31 HARVARD ST.) GARDNER,MASS.; FIRST LIEUT. THOMAS E.KNODE, INFANTRY, (2216 WISCONSIN AVE. N.W.) WASHINGTON, D.C., AND SECOND LIEUT.PAUL L.SCHWARTZ, INFANTRY, (521 SALT SPRINGS ROAD) SYRACUSE,N.Y.

CAPT.BAILEY WAS CITED FOR EXTRAORDINARY HEROISM NEAR BUNA ON DEC.2. AS COMMANDER OF A RIFLE COMPANY, HE LED ASSAULT ELEMENTS OF HIS UNIT IN AN ATTACK ON BUNA VILLAGE. ADVANCING WITHOUT REGARD TO HIS PERSONAL SAFETY, HE INSPIRED HIS COMMAND BY HIS EXAMPLE OF INITIATIVE AND COURAGE.

OVERRUNING ENEMY BOMB SHELTERS AND MACHINEGUN EMPLACEMENTS AND MOPPING UP A HOSTILE BIVOUAC AND COMMAND POST AREA, HE ADVANCED WITH HIS COMPANY TO ENTRANCE CREEK AND PLACED IT IN POSITION TO COVER THE FLANK OF THE ATTACKING FORCE.

DAVIDOWICZ WAS CITED FOR ACTION NEAR CAPE SUDEST, NEW GUINEA, ON NOV.16. WHEN ENEMY PLANES ATTACKED AND SET FIRE TO SEVERAL SMALL SHIPS CARRYING PERSONNEL AND SUPPLIES, DAVIDOWICZ, WITH OTHER ENLISTED MEN, VOLUNTEERED TO MAN A LIFEBOAT AND PROCEED TO RESCUE THE SURVIVORS.

JAN 12 1943

HIS CITATION SAID: "WITHOUT REGARD TO HIS PERSONAL SAFETY AND IN SPITE OF REPEATED BOMBING AND STAFING BY THE ENEMY'S PLANES AND OF DANGER FROM EXPLOSIONS OF AMMUNITION ABOARD THE SHIPS WHICH THREW FLAMING DEBRIS IN ALL DIRECTIONS, HE MADE TWO TRIPS TO THE BURNING SHIPS. DAVIDOWICZ'S COURAGEOUS EFFORTS SAVED THE LIVES OF SEVERAL MEN ABOARDZM"

JAN 12 1943

KNODE WAS CITED FOR ACTION NEAR BUNA ON DEC.5. DURING AN ATTACK ON BUNA VILLAGE HE LED A PLATOON WITH CONSPICUOUS BRAVERY. WHEN WOUNDED IN THE LEG, HE DISREGARDED HIS INJURY AND CONTINUED TO LEAD HIS PLATOON IN THE ATTACK. WHEN HE AGAIN WAS WOUNDED, IN THE FOOT, AND WAS UNABLE TO PROCEED, HE REFUSED TO BE EVACUATED UNTIL HE HAD GIVEN FINAL INSTRUCTIONS TO HIS PLATOON.

SCHWARTZ WAS CITED FOR EXTRAORDINARY HEROISM NEAR BUNA ON DEC.5 ALSO. WHEN A PATROL HE WAS LEADING IN ADVANCE OF THE ALLIED FRONT LINES ENTERED AN ENEMY FIRE LANE AND WAS ENGAGED IN FIRE FROM AUTOMATIC WEAPONS, HE REMAINED IN THE FIRE LANE WHILE THE REST OF HIS PATROL TOOK COVER.

BY DRAWING ENEMY FIRE AND OBSERVING WHERE IT STRUCK, HE LOCATED AN ENEMY AUTOMATIC RIFLEMAAN IN A TREE, FIRED ON HIM AND KILLED HIM. HE THEN DISCOVERED AND KILLED A SECOND SNIPER BY SIMILAR METHODS. DETERMINING THE LOCATION OF AN ENEMY EMPLACED MACHINEGUN, HE WITHDREW HIS UNIT AND DIRECTED MORTAR FIRE WHICH DESTROYED THE ENEMY WEAPON.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, JAN.11-(AP)-A MESSAGE OF CONGRATULATION OF THE SUCCESSFUL OUTCOME OF THE PAPUAN PENINSULA, NEW GUINEA, CAMPAIGN HAS BEEN RECEIVED BY GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR FROM LIEUT.GEN.JOHN L.DEWITT, COMMANDER OF THE WESTERN DEFENSE COMMAND OF THE U.S. ARMY.

JAN 12 1943

GENERAL DEWITT'S MESSAGE SAID:

"ALL THE OFFICERS AND MEN OF THIS COMMAND JOIN IN EXPRESSING THEIR ADMIRATION FOR THE GALLANT, COURAGEOUS, DETERMINED AND EFFECTIVE ACTION OF THE OFFICERS AND MEN OF YOUR COMMAND IN THEIR DEFEAT OF THE ENEMY AT GONA AND BUNA. WE ARE PROUD OF THEIR ACHIEVEMENTS. THEY HAVE SET AN EXAMPLE OF SOLDIERLY CONDUCT FOR EMULATION BY US. MAY THE ANNIHILATION OF THE ENEMY BE AS COMPLETE IN ITS FINAL RESULTS AS IN THE ACTION JUST CONCLUDED. HEARTIEST CONGRATULATIONS."

GENERAL MACARTHUR REPLIED:

"THANK YOU SO MUCH FOR YOUR FINE MESSAGE, WHICH EVERYONE DEEPLY APPRECIATES. I RECALL SO VIVIDLY THOSE OTHER BLOODY DAYS OF 24 YEARS AGO WHEN YOU AND I WERE SO CLOSELY ASSOCIATED TOGETHER. MAY THE END BE THE SAME NOW AS THEN."

AUSTRALIA (ADJ MCDANIEL)

GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR TODAY REPLIED TO THE MESSAGE PRIME MINISTER JOHN CURTIN OF AUSTRALIA SENT CONGRATULATING COMMANDERS OF ALL RANKS ON THE SUCCESS OF THE PAPUAN CAMPAIGN.

JAN 12 1943

"ALL RANKS OF ALL SERVICES IN THIS AREA THANK YOU FOR YOUR NOBLE AND INSPIRING MESSAGE," GENERAL MACARTHUR SAID. "WE APPRECIATE VERY DEEPLY YOUR PERSONAL COMMENDATION AND THAT OF THE AUSTRALIAN PEOPLE AND GOVERNMENT AND TAKE THIS OPPORTUNITY TO REAFFIRM OUR COMPLETE DETERMINATION TO FULFILL THE OBLIGATIONS OF OUR DUTY."

BELATED REPORTS FROM NEW GUINEA TODAY SAID A FORMATION OF MITCHELLS DID A CLEAN-UP JOB ON LAE JANUARY 10. THE SQQUADRON WAS LED BY LIEUT.LARRY TAMBERG OF FARGO, N.D.

RADIO OPERATORS OF LOCKHEED LIGHTNINGS WHICH PROVIDED AN AIR SCREEN FOR THE BOMBERS, TAUNTED THE JAPANESE FIGHTER PILOTS WITHOUT RESULTS.

"WE KNEW THE JAPS WERE LISTENING AND WE CALLED THEM EVERY NAME WE COULD THINK OF," SAID THE FLIGHT LEADER, CAPTAIN ROBERT FAUROT, OF CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO. "THEY JUST WOULDN'T COME UP FOR A FIGHT."

AT A FORWARD BATTLE POST ON THE APPROACHES TO MATEUR, TUNISIA, JAN. 6-(DELAYED)-(AP)-"LOOK, GERT AND DAISY BROUGHT ALONG A BOY FRIEND THIS TIME!"

JAN 12 1943

"GERT AND DAISY" WERE THE NAMES THE BRITISH TROOPS GAVE TO TWO GERMAN OBSERVATION PLANES AND THE LIGHT-HEARTED REMARK DEMONSTRATED THE CHANGED AIR PICTURE SINCE THE ALLIES MADE THEIR FIRST GAMBLING JAB TOWARD TUNIS WITH LIMITED GROUND FORCES AND INSUFFICIENT AIR SUPPORT.

I CROUCHED ON THE PROTECTED SLOPE OF A HILL WITHIN SIGHT OF THE GERMAN POSITIONS AND WATCHED THE SWEEP OF SPITFIRES WHICH CLEANED THE SKY OF GERMAN PLANES.

BELOW ME, UNPERTURBED, BRITISH TROOPS WENT ON FILLING SANBAGS AND THEIR COMRADES HOLDING POSITIONS ON THE HILL ARGUED ABOUT THE COURSE OF THE AIR BATTLE ABOVE US.

JAN 12 1943

IN ONE SWEEP OF THE SPITFIRES ONE OF THE OBSERVATION PLANES WAS SHOT DOWN AND ITS "BOY FRIEND" WAS SENT HOME IN TROUBLE.

I WAS IN COMPANY WITH A U.S. ARMY AIR FORCES COLONEL, AN RAF GROUP CAPTAIN AND A BRITISH OFFICER COMMANDING AN ATTACK ON "GREEN HILL" DOMINATING THE ROAD WHICH STRETCHED BEFORE US TO BIZERTE AND MATEUR.

"SOME SPITS WILL BE OVER AT 1300 (1 P.M.)," THE COLONEL SAID.

THEY WERE FIGHT ON TIME. WE WERE HARDLY ABLE TO SEE THEM HIGH ABOVE US AS THEY HURLED THEMSELVES TOWARD GERMAN-HELD TERRITORY. OVER THE GERMAN LINES A BATTLE DEVELOPED AND MOVED IN HUGE TWISTING AND DIVING CIRCLES TOWARD US AND THEN AWAY AGAIN.

THE GREAT DISTANCES AND HEIGHTS INVOLVED IN THE FIGHTER PLANE FREE-FOR-ALL MADE IT IMPOSSIBLE FOR AN OBSERVER EVEN WITH A GRAND-STAND SEAT TO BE SURE OF THE RESULTS. BUT I WAS SATISFIED THAT WHEN AMMUNITION WAS EXHAUSTED I SAW TWO MESSERSCHMITTS STRAINING THEIR MOTORS TO THE LIMIT IN ALL-OUT FLIGHT HOMEWARD.

FROM THE SAME SLOPE WE WERE ABLE TO WATCH THE PLUMING BLACK SMOKE OF SHELLS BURSTING ON GERMAN POSITIONS ON "GREEN HILL" TO SOFTEN THEM FOR ANOTHER ATTACK BY THE DETERMINED BRITISH INFANTRY.

THE CHANGED AIR PICTURE IN THIS AREA WAS DEMONSTRATED ALSO BY ONE'S BEHAVIOR IN THE DRIVE TO THE FRONT LINE.

IN THE EARLY DAYS, ALL OCCUPANTS OF A CAR LEAPED OUT AND RACED FOR COVER AT THE FIRST SIGHT OF A PLANE.

TODAY EVERY PLANE SIGHTED WAS IDENTIFIED QUICKLY AS FRIENDLY.

THE FACT THAT THE GERMAN AIR FORCE STILL IS OPERATING BEHIND OUR OWN LINES WAS DEMONSTRATED, HOWEVER, WHEN A BRITISH SOLDIER HALTED US AND SAID:

JAN 12 1943

"WILL YOU PROCEED THE NEXT FEW FEET AT WALKING SPEED?

"THERE'S AN UNEXPLODED BOMB ON THE ROAD AND YOU MIGHT JAR THE FUSE."

Describing the Richelieu as a "top notch battleship and some things in it were a revelation to us," Glassford said it would take a few months to put her in shape to fight at the side of the allies, but the rest of the fleet should be ready in a month.

"French sailors and officers are more than anxious to take their ships into action against the axis," he added, but that he described the port as in desperate shape economically because it had been stripped of all resources in the last two years.

declaring "the primary object" of his trip to Dakar had been accomplished, he said the French admiral was now working in close cooperation with the British admiral in charge of the South Atlantic who, under allied plans, has general supervision of the area.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

JAN 12 1943

CHUNGKING, JAN. 9-(DELAYED)-CHINA'S WARTIME CAPITAL IS ONE OF THE HIGHEST PRICED CITIES OF THE WORLD AND AS SUCH REFLECTS FROM THE REST OF THE COUNTRY A COST OF LIVING WHICH IS STAGGERING.

CHUNGKING PRESENTS SOME EXCEPTIONS, OF COURSE, BECAUSE IT IS AN ANCIENT PROVINCIAL CITY WHICH HAD METROPOLITAN CONDITIONS SUDDENLY THRUST UPON IT. THIS OLD TOWN, WHICH CLINGS PRECARIOUSLY TO THE PRECIPITOUS SIDES OF THE MOUNTAIN THAT LORDS IT OVER THE JUNCTION OF THE YANGTZE AND CHIALING RIVERS, NEVER WAS INTENDED AS THE FIRST CITY OF THE LAND.

SCARCITY OF ACCOMMODATIONS AND LACK OF SUITABLE TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES HAVE FORCED SOME PRICES UP. STILL, CONDITIONS HERE GIVE A FAIR GAUGE OF THE COUNTRY'S DIFFICULTIES.

LIFE ISN'T EASY IN CHINA THESE DAYS, THOUGH IT SHOULD BE SAID THAT THERE IS SUFFICIENT FOOD, BARRING MANY DISTRICTS IN HONAN PROVINCE WHERE THERE HAS BEEN A DROUGHT.

FORTUNATELY, WAGES OF LABOR HAVE INCREASED ENOUGH SO THE WORKING MAN AND HIS FAMILY, GENERALLY SPEAKING, AREN'T HUNGRY. MANY BUSINESS MEN ARE KEEPING THE WOLF FROM THE DOOR. BUT THE POOR WHITE-COLLAR WORKER, AS USUAL, IS SUFFERING HEAVILY. SALARIES HAVEN'T MOVED UP WITH THE COST OF LIVING,

1943

30.24-273

WITH ALL THIS, YOU MIGHT THINK THE CHINESE MIGHT BE DOWNHEARTED AND RATHER SORRY FOR THEMSELVES--BUT NOT SO. THEY ARE AS A WHOLE ABOUT THE MOST EXTRAORDINARILY CHEERFUL FOLK I'VE ENCOUNTERED, AND I'VE TRAVELLED IN MAYBE 50 COUNTRIES OR MORE.

THEY LAUGH A LOT, AND IT'S REAL. ADVERSITY MAY DAMPEN THEIR SPIRITS TEMPORARILY, BUT IT CAN'T LONG KEEP AWAY LAUGHTER, FOR THE CHINESE EVEN CAN EXTRACT HUMOR FROM HARD KNOCKS.

JAN 12 1943

ALMOST ANYTHING THAT COMES TO THEIR MILLS IS GRIST, AND BE IT OLD OR NEW, THEY APPRECIATE IT. FOR INSTANCE, THEY STILL GET A SMILE OUT OF THE STORY ABOUT MARCO POLO. THIS IS IN THE GENERAL VICINITY OF THE PARTS HE VISITED SO LONG AGO, AND THE TALE REVOLVES ABOUT A REMARK HE MADE.

IT SEEMS MARCO BECAME ANNOYED AT REPORTS THAT HIS PRINCE BACK HOME SAID THE TRAVELLER WAS TALKING TOO MUCH, WHEREUPON MARCO FLASHED:

JAN 12 1943

"I'M MARCO POLO, AND I SAY WHAT I DAMN PLEASE!".

I'M GLAD I CAME TO CHINA IF FOR NOTHING ELSE BUT TO SEE THESE PEOPLE LAUGH. HAVING EXPERIENCED THEIR IRREPRESSIBLE SPIRITS, I HAVE NO FEARS WHATEVER THAT THE JAPS CAN BEAT THEM. YOU CAN'T DEFEAT A PEOPLE WHO HAVE SUCH A PRONOUNCED SENSE OF HUMOR AS THE CHINESE.

CHUNGKING DOESN'T ESCAPE BECAUSE IT IS THE CAPITAL. ON THE CONTRARY, IT IS, SO TO SPEAK, ON THE FIRING LINE. BECAUSE OF THE LACK OF MATERIALS, IT IS LIKELY THAT THE PLASTER IN YOUR HOUSE IS FALLING OFF AND HOLES IN THE ROOF MAY LET IN RAIN. YOUR PLUMBING, IF YOU HAVE PLUMBING, MAY NOT WORK.

THE LACK OF TRANSPORTATION HAS CREATED A SCARCITY IN MANY THINGS AND COAL, OF WHICH CHINA HAS MUCH, IS ONE OF THESE. CHUNGKING GOVERNMENT OFFICES AND PUBLIC PLACES LIKE RESTAURANTS ARE FORBIDDEN TO HAVE FIRES, ALTHOUGH THE WINTER WEATHER IS RAW AND COLD.

GASOLINE IS AS PRECIOUS AS MOLTEN PEARLS AND MOTOR CARS ARE FEW AND FAR BETWEEN. GOOD SAMARITANISM IS THE RULE, BUT FOR THE MOST PART YOU JUST CLIMB UP AND DOWN THESE STEEP HILLS ON YOUR OWN LEGS.

LITTLE LUXURIES LIKE CAKES ARE SHARED WITH ALL WHO MAY BE IN THE ROOM. THAT IS TYPICAL THROUGHOUT CHUNGKING.

CHINESE TROOPS WERE DECLARED TO HAVE INFLICTED MORE THAN 200 CASUALTIES ON THE INVADERS LAST THURSDAY NORTHWEST OF SINYANG, A JAPANESE BASE 30 MILES WEST OF LOSHAN, AND THROWN BACK JAPANESE ATTACKS INA PITCHED BATTLE NORTH OF SINYANG.

SEVERAL THOUSAND JAPANESE TROOPS, DIVIDED IN SEVERAL COLUMNS, ATTACKED POSITIONS IN NORTH KIANGSI PROVINCE.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA--SECOND ADD RICHELIEU XXX IF POSSIBLE.

THE ADMIRAL SAID DAKAR HAD BEEN STRIPPED ECONOMICALLY AND "IF ONLY HALF A SHIP LOAD OF RICE AND COTTON GOODS COULD BE BROUGHT IN BY THE ALLIES IT WOULD MAKE A TREMENDOUS DIFFERENCE IN THE FEELING OF THE POPULATION."

DECLARING THAT "THE PRIMARY OBJECT OF OUR MISSION TO DAKAR, THAT OF GETTING INTO WORK WITH THE FRENCH, HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED," GLASSFORD DESCRIBED THE RICHELIEU AS A "TOP NOTCH BATTLESHIP AND SOME THINGS IN IT WERE A REVELATION TO US."

UNDER ALLIED PLANS, HE EXPLAINED, DAKAR COMES UNDER TERRITORY ADMINISTERED BY THE BRITISH ADMIRAL OF THE SOUTH ATLANTIC AND "THE FRENCH ADMIRAL IN CHARGE NOW IS WORKING WITH THE BRITISH AND GREATER COOPERATION CAN BE EXPECTED."

A [redacted] BRITISH INDIAN [redacted] OUTPOST IN NORTH-CENTRAL BURMA, JAN. 11-(AP)-STRONG COMMUNICATION LINES ARE BEING STRETCHED SLOWLY BUT SURELY FROM STRATEGIC CENTERS IN INDIA TO POINTS IN BURMA FOR EVENTUAL BRITISH INDIAN USE AGAINST THE JAPANESE.

JAN 12 1943

BY TRAIN, TRUCKS, JEEP AND FOOT I [redacted] TRAVELED A LONG WAY [redacted] OVER ONE OF THESE LINES TO THIS OUTPOST WHERE WORKERS ARE HACKING THEIR WAY THROUGH DENSE JUNGLES AND OVER [redacted] MOUNTAINS.

THE DETAILS OF THE THIS TREMENDOUS PROJECT MUST REMAIN SECRET, BUT IT'S AN IMPRESSIVE UNDERTAKING AND [redacted] FEW ENGINEERING PROBLEMS ARE AS [redacted] DIFFICULT. THE ROAD RUNS MOSTLY THROUGH [redacted] MOUNTAINS WHERE NO RADIO EVER EXISTED AND FEW TRAILS. MILES OF ROADBED ARE BLASTED OUT OF ROCK ON MOUNTAINSIDES OVERHANGING VALLEYS. PARTS OF THE ROAD ARE ABOVE THE CLOUDS.

THEIR WORK IS BEING DONE MOSTLY BY COOLIES, INCLUDING WOMEN. I SAW THOUSANDS OF COOLIES USING METHODS GENERATIONS OLD. THEY CARRIED DIRT ON THEIR HEADS IN WICKER BASKETS. THEY CRUSHED STONES ONE BY ONE WITH HOME-MADE HAMMERS. THEY SLASHED THROUGH THE JUNGLE WITH LONG HEAVY KNIVES THAT ALSO ARE USEFUL WEAPONS.

JAN 12 1943

MODERN EQUIPMENT INCLUDING ILLINOIS-MADE BULLDOZERS WERE USED WHEREVER POSSIBLE, BUT THE COOLIES CAN WORK IN PLACES WHERE THE HUGE MACHINES CANNOT GO.

THE TRIP BY JEEP WAS A HAZARDOUS ONE OVER CORKSCREW TURNS ALONG PRECIPITOUS LEDGES, AND ALONG THE WAY I SAW TROOPS BEING TRAINED IN EVERY CONCEIVABLE PHASE OF JUNGLE WARFARE. SOME OF THE INDIAN TROOPS NEED LITTLE TRAINING BECAUSE THEY GREW UP IN THE MOUNTAINS AND JUNGLES.

DESPITE THE INTENSE HARDSHIPS OF WORKING IN THIS AREA THE MORALE OF BRITISH TROOPS IS HIGH. AT ONE POINT I CAME ACROSS A BRITISH SERGEANT FAR BACK IN THE WOODS WHERE HE WAS HELPING CLEAR A PATH FOR TELEPHONE LINES. HE WAS LUSTILY SINGING "THERE."

New Delhi, Jan. 11-(AP)-U.S. bombers destroyed a large Irrawaddy river bridge south of Mandalay effectively cutting Japanese communication between north and south Burma, while British forces advancing on the Bengal bay port of Akyab maintained fighting contact with the enemy at Rathedaung, 25 miles north of their goal. HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

JAN 12 1943

Widely scattered air raids were made by British and American air forces in Burma in a campaign to disrupt Japanese bases and supply lines preceding the crown colony for a general offensive by the British Indian army of Marshal Wavell.

Akyab island villages were raided Sunday in daylight and at night. At other points the Raf machine-gunned supply trucks and river sampans and set railway cars afire.

3024-277

Enemy supply depots dotted over northeastern Burma were raided by the Tenth U.S. air force based in India.

The central span of the Myitnge bridge near Mandalay was hit by large calibre bombs and sent crashing to the bottom of the Irawaddy near its confluence with the Myitnge river. Rail and [illegible] road traffic used the bridge "vital to enemy movements," the U.S. communique reported.

JAN 12 1943

No American nor British plane was lost.

PMS INTERPRETIVE

BY GLENN BABB

THE DETERMINATION OF THE JAPANESE TO CLING TO THEIR DWINDLING FOOTHOLDS ON NEW GUINEA HAS SET UP ONE OF THE MOST SIGNIFICANT ALLIED VICTORIES OF THE WAR IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC. FOUR DAYS OF AIR COMBAT OF A FEROCITY UNPRECEDENTED IN THAT AREA HAVE GIVEN STRIKING PROOF OF OUR AIR SUPERIORITY.

JAN 12 1943

THE JAPANESE COMMAND, APPARENTLY HAVING ABANDONED THE HOPELESSLY ENCIRCLED REMNANTS OF ITS BUNA-GONA ARMY AT SANANANDA, ATTEMPTED TO RUN REINFORCEMENTS AND SUPPLIES OVER THE DEADLY 300-MILE COURSE FROM ITS BASE AT RABAUL, NEW BRITAIN, TO THE LAE-SALAMAUA AREA. TO LAND AT LAE TROOP ELEMENTS DESCRIBED BY AN ALLIED COMMUNIQUE AS FRAGMENTARY THE JAPANESE PAID WITH THE LOSS OF AT LEAST HALF THE VESSELS OF THEIR 12-SHIP CONVOY SUNK OR DAMAGED, INCLUDING A TROOP-JAMMED 14,000-TON TRANSPORT SUNK, AND 138 AIRCRAFT DESTROYED, PROBABLY DESTROYED OR DAMAGED.

SOME OF THESE LOSSES THE ENEMY CAN ILL AFFORD, PARTICULARLY THE SHIPS AND THE TRAINED FLIERS. ALTHOUGH THE MONTHLY CAPACITY OF JAPAN'S AIRPLANE INDUSTRY PROBABLY IS NOT MORE THAN ONE-TENTH OF OUR DECEMBER OUTPUT OF 5,500 PLANES, IT CAN REPLACE THE PLANES LOST. THE JAPANESE COMMAND'S READINESS TO RISK LARGE NUMBERS OF ITS COMMON SOLDIERY ABOARD PACKED TRANSPORTS IN WATERS WHERE THEIR PASSAGE IS ALMOST SUICIDAL INDICATES THAT THE DRAIN OF MANPOWER WILL NOT BE TOO SERIOUS.

JAN 12 1943

BUT WE KNOW THAT JAPAN SUFFERS FROM A SERIOUS SHORTAGE OF THE SHIPS SHE NEEDS TO KEEP THE DEFENDERS OF HER OUTPOSTS REINFORCED AND SUPPLIED.

HER SHIP LOSSES IN THIS DISASTER ARE ONLY A SMALL PART OF THOSE FOR THE WHOLE CAMPAIGN AGAINST GENERAL MACARTHUR'S COMMAND, WHICH A WASHINGTON TALLY PUTS AT 85 NONCOMBAT SHIPS AND 19 WARSHIPS, IN ADDITION TO 353 AIRPLANES. THE JAPANESE SHIPYARDS, ALTHOUGH ENGAGED IN A PROGRAM OF UNPRECEDENTED SIZE, CAN NOT KEEP PACE WITH SUCH AN EXPENDITURE OF TONNAGE.

BUT PERHAPS THE MOST DAMAGING LOSS IS IN FIRST LINE PILOTS. "THE ENEMY'S INTERCEPTION WAS WEAK" IS THE SIGNIFICANT COMMENT OF TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE FROM GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS ON THE EFFORTS OF LAND-BASED JAPANESE PLANES, CHIEFLY ZEROS, TO KEEP AN UMBRELLA OVER THE BADLY MAULED CONVOY AS IT FLED BACK TO RABAUL. EVIDENCE IS GROWING THAT JAPAN HAS DRAWN HEAVILY ON HER NONE TOO AMPLE RESERVOIR OF TRAINED, EXPERIENCED COMBAT FLIERS. FROM SEVERAL POINTS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC OUR FLIERS HAVE TESTIFIED TO AN APPARENT DETERIORATION OF THE QUALITY OF THE ENEMY PILOTS, BOTH AS

TACTICIANS AND FIGHTERS. ALLIED LOSSES IN THE RABAUL-LAE BATTLE HAVE NOT BEEN DISCLOSED BUT THE COMMUNIQUES HAVE SPOKEN OF THEM AS SMALL OR NEGLIGIBLE AND IT SEEMS SAFE TO ASSUME THAT OUR PROPORTION OF VICTORIES MAY RUN AS HIGH AS TEN TO ONE OR BETTER. THIS DUE IN PART TO THE AMERICAN-AUSTRALIAN SUPERIORITY IN NUMBERS AND EFFECTIVENESS OF PLANES. JUST A ROLL CALL OF THE TYPES SENT INTO BATTLE INDICATES AN EDGE IN THIS RESPECT--FLYING FORTRESSES, LIBERATORS, CATALINAS, MITCHELLS, MARAUDERS, BOSTONS, LIGHTNINGS, KITTYHAWKS, HUDSONS, IN ADDITION TO AUSTRALIAN TYPES. BUT THE VICTORY UNDOUBTEDLY IS DUE QUITE AS MUCH TO THE SUPERIORITY OF THE AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN FLIER, MAN FORMAN, TO HIS FOE.

JAN 12 1943

THIS SUPERIORITY IS LIKELY TO PROVE A TREMENDOUS FACTOR IN THE FUTURE COURSE OF THE PACIFIC WAR. IT WOULD BE DANGEROUS TO ASSUME THAT THE JAPANESE HAVE SHOT THEIR BOLT IN THE AIR. THEY WERE BADLY UNDERESTIMATED AT THE BEGINNING OF THE WAR AND THEY MAY STILL HAVE IN RESERVE DEADLY NEW PLANE TYPES AND THOUSANDS OF GOOD FLIERS. BUT IT IS NOT LIKELY. THEY ENTERED THE WAR WITH AN AIR FORCE WHICH HAD HAD THREE OR FOUR YEARS OF SCHOOLING IN CHINA, WHERE THEY PRACTISED AGAINST LIVE TARGETS WITH HARDLY ANY RISK OF RETALIATION, AND WERE ABLE TO SEND SEVERAL THOUSAND EXPERIENCED FLIERS INTO THE CAMPAIGNS FOR THE PHILIPPINES, MALAYA AND THE EAST INDIES. BUT A LARGE PROPORTION OF THOSE MEN ARE GONE AND THE OLD CHINA PROVING GROUND IS NOT THE SAME ANY MORE. CHUNGKING HAS GONE UNBOMBED FOR MORE THAN A YEAR AND GENERAL CHENNAULT'S FLYING TIGERS AND THEIR CURRENT SUCCESSORS, THE UNITED STATES ARMY AIR FORCE, HAVE TAKEN A TOLL OF 20 JAPANESE FOR ONE AMERICAN PLANE LOST, MUCH TOO HIGH FOR COMFORTABLE TRAINING.

SALSK IN GUNFIRE RANGE

Fierce Axis Counter-Attacks Strive to Keep Bottleneck Open for Withdrawal

JAN 13 1943

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 13—Russian troops driving toward Rostov were reported early today to be within artillery range of Salsk, an important railway junction 110 miles to the southeast, while Moscow announced the capture of ten more settlements in and near the Caucasus and the killing of 2,000 Germans along the lower Don, where the Nazis are counter-attacking night and day.

Six villages, including Essentuki, Karras and Beshtau—all in the Pyatigorsk area—fell to the advancing Russians, the midnight communiqué said of the fighting along the Baku-Rostov railway skirting the northern slopes of the Caucasus Mountains.

Another town the Russians reported occupying was Levokumsy, about seventy-five miles northeast of Georgievsk, and Reuter said the Russian troops from the North Caucasus had joined forces near there with the Kalmuck army that had been driving southwestward.

Battle Lines Near Salsk

To the north the Russians took four more settlements in the area of Zimovniki on the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway. The Red Army's advance units are already beyond Kuberle, 150 miles southwest of Stalingrad on this railway, and less than fifty miles from Salsk.

Stockholm reports said the Russians already were battling Germans dug in northeast of Salsk, where a railway connects with Rostov to the northwest.

[Without indicating the extent of their territorial losses, the Germans reported continued strong Soviet attacks "between the Caucasus and the Don, in the Stalingrad area and in the Don area," but said they were repulsed in bitter fighting.]

Along the lower Don, where the Russians last were reported about sixty miles east of Rostov, the Soviet communiqué also announced the capture of several localities, but did not identify them. For three days the Russians have not claimed any specific gains in this area.

Nazis Fight Desperately

"The Germans are throwing in reserves in an effort to stem the Soviet advances at all costs," the communiqué said of this area, where the Nazis are counter-attacking day and night. "Soviet troops wore out the enemy by their defense and followed up with a strong blow. Some 2,000 of the enemy were wiped out. Forty tanks and twelve enemy guns were destroyed. Booty and prisoners were captured."

[A Reuter dispatch from Moscow suggested that the intense German counter-attacks on the lower Don near its confluence with the Donets were designed to keep the Rostov bottleneck open in the Nazis' rear while the withdrawal from the Caucasus progresses. Reuter also reported from Stockholm that it was believed the Germans had decided to abandon the entire Caucasus region except Novorossiisk and possibly a small strip opposite the Crimea.]

On the central front, the Russians said, their troops also repulsed Nazi counter-attacks northwest of Velikiye Luki, which is eighty miles from the Latvian border. Two enemy tanks were blown up by Soviet mines and five others used in a day-long fight were destroyed by anti-tank guns, according to the communiqué. Two hundred German dead were reported left on the battlefield.

In another sector of the central front Soviet troops wiped out about one Nazi infantry company fighting along the lower Don, fighting continued in Stalingrad itself, where Red Army shock troops wrested several more streets from the Germans in the city's factory area, occupied twenty blockhouses and thirty-seven dugouts and captured two guns, nineteen machine guns.

COSSACKS IN BATTLE

Two Provinces Now Wholly Cleared of Invader, Moscow Reports.

JAN 13 1943

MOSCOW, Wednesday, Jan. 13.—(AP) Russian troops rolling over German positions in the central Caucasus seized six more towns yesterday in the drive toward Krasnodar and Kropotkin, and also captured four points near the north Caucasian railway in the offensive toward Salsk, 110 miles southeast of Rostov, it was announced early today.

Along the lower Don river, however, the Soviets said the Germans were counterattacking around the clock—"throwing in reserves in an effort to stem the Soviet advance at all costs." The Red army killed 2,000 Nazis in this sector, and gained ground, the midnight communique said. But no specific localities were mentioned in this area where the Russians last were reported less than 60 miles east of Rostov.

Move Along Railroad

Moving on both sides of the Baku-Rostov railway in the central Caucasus, the Russians said their troops occupied six points, including Essentuki, 12 miles west of Pyatigorsk; and Nikolaevskaya and Beshtau on the railroad between Pyatigorsk and Mineralnye Vody which already had been occupied.

Levokumsky, 25 miles east of Budennovsk on the north bank of the Kuma river, and about 75 miles northeast of Georgievsk, also was occupied. This town is just west of Urozhainoye which was seized Jan. 6. (The British agency Reuters said the central Caucasian army now had joined forces in this with units sweeping south and westward across the Kalmyck steppes.)

Mop Up As Foe Retreats

The Russians in this area were mopping up behind the retreating Germans along a 100-mile front.

In the north, Soviet forces moving down the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway took Kharkovsky and Mayorsky, neighboring settlements ten miles south of captured Zimovniki, and Kurmoyarsky, 20 miles southwest of Zimovniki.

Russian advance troops already had seized Kuberle, 20 miles past Zimovniki, and were less than 50 miles from Salsk, junction of a spur line running northwest to Rostov. The Red army thrust along this railway evidently was aimed at cutting off the retreat of the Germans in the central Caucasus.

In the Caucasus, Kuban Cossacks riding out of the mountains—horsemen in the black capes and high hats of their ancient fighting tradition—led an unbroken advance past half a dozen important cities and towns newly won along the railway approaches to Rostov, thrusting forward rapidly across the steppes northwest of recaptured Mineralnye Vody where the Kuban flows north before turning west to empty into the Black sea at the Kerch peninsula.

Cleared of Invader

Field dispatches declared that the Caucasian provinces of North Osetia and Kabardino Bakaria now had been wholly cleared of the invader; the mid-day Soviet communique announced that Russian cavalry forces had driven on an additional 15 miles toward Rostov.

Of the fighting along the lower Don, where powerful Russian forces are seeking to smash down upon Rostov from above, the Soviet command's mid-day report made no specific mention of progress.

"The enemy," it said, "is striving to stem the advance of Soviet troops, hurling large forces of tanks and infantry into the battle."

In less official quarters it was said that the Nazis, frantically trying to stem these most important of current Russian offensives, were throwing as many as a hundred tanks at a time into counter-attacks.

On the Moscow front as well, in the area southwest of Velikie Luki near the Latvian frontier region, the violent German resistance was officially reported.

"Despite tremendous losses in manpower and equipment," the noon communique said of this sector, "the German command is the throwing large forces of infantry and tanks into a counterattack. Repelling the Hitlerite counterattack, our troops are inflicting heavy losses on the enemy."

The Soviet army newspaper Red Star observed that all these fronts—the lower Don, west of Moscow, the Caucasus—were "links in the same chain."

"The glorious victories of our troops in the north Caucasus," it added, "give new proof of the increased strength and skill of the Red army and its great offensive powers."

15-Mile Advance Led by Cossacks; Six Towns Taken

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Jan. 12.—Led by Cossacks slashing their way triumphantly back into their homeland, the Red Army has rolled the Germans back into the Kuban River region of the Western Caucasus between the mountains and the Don, the Russians announced today.

Red Star declared that the Kuban region was penetrated after the Caucasian provinces of North Osetia and Kabardino Bakaria had been freed from the Germans in the continuing Russian winter drive.

A communique announced that the Red Army's cavalry had driven 15 miles into the enemy's positions in fierce night fighting which followed the capture of six more key towns on the Caucasion front.

The 4th Guards Cossack Corps—the Kuban fighting men who fell back from their towns and villages last summer before the weight of the Nazi offensive—thus were riding in the vanguard of the Russian forces sweeping back across the steppes.

Dramatic Homecoming.

For the black-caped, high-hatted horsemen of the steppes, and for their townspeople, it was one of the most dramatic homecomings of the war.

And as the Russians rolled back over Georgievsk, Mineralnye Vodi, Yatigorsk, Budennovsk, Karamik and Kislovodsk to broaden their Caucasus front, other forces drove 20 miles more down the rail line past Zimovkini and Kuberle, southeast of Rostov, narrowing the semi-circle around that endangered Nazi stronghold.

Russian mountain troops, along with the Cossacks, were given credit for an important part in the gains deep in the Caucasus.

Battle-front dispatches said they had planted the Red flag on the summit of the Mashuk and Beshtau Mountains overlooking Pyatigorsk.

The mountain slopes, river valleys and rail lines were reported strewn with the Nazi dead where the Russians had overwhelmed line after line of defenses.

These dispatches said Georgievsk and Mineralnye Vodi, cores of the German defense, fell in particularly hard fighting. There Germans launched several counter-attacks in an attempt to regain Georgievsk, but finally fell back, with the Russians pressing hard on them.

Three-Hour Battle.

Mineralnyi Vodi, just northwest of Georgievsk, fell after a three-hour battle in which a strong column of German motorized infantry was defeated, the Russians said.

And from there the Red Army was reported pushing on up the rail line toward Rostov, and across the steppes toward Aleksandrovskoe, 30 miles farther north.

"The Germans have already lost a considerable part of what they won last summer," Red Star declared. The army newspaper said the position of the enemy was greatly complicated by loss of the key towns along the Caucasus rail trunk line.

It added that the simultaneous Russian gains in the North Caucasus deprived the Germans of positions from which they might have been able to maneuver to the support of their divisions trapped before Stalingrad.

Single Display of Power.

Red Star linked the gains in the Caucasus with those northwest of Moscow as a single strategy and a single display of striking power. "The Don, Velikie Luki and Pyatigorsk are links in the same chain," the army organ declared.

The shattering Caucasus offensive which had carried Soviet armies 80 miles from recaptured Mozdok in nine days also put the Russian armies in that area in position to sweep to the highwaters of the Kuban River, to aim at recapture of the oil fields of Maikop, at the rail centers of Voroshilovsk and Armavir, and finally at the German strongpoints of Krasnodar and Kropotkin.

Both operations on which Soviet communiques gave detailed information pointed to the straightening of the Russian lines and the widening of the fronts.

Towns Not Identified.

New successes were claimed in the Lower Don valley, but there was no identification in the early morning communique of the populated places captured.

(The Soviet midday communique reported that fierce counterattacks were launched on a large scale in the night's fighting in the lower Don valley and southwest of Velikie Luki, on the central front west of Moscow, but said that the offensive continued to roll on in the Caucasus.

(The communique was broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet Monitor in London.

(Of the lower Don battle is said "the enemy is striving to stem the advance of Soviet troops, hurling large forces of tanks and infantry into the battle. In one sector the Hitlerites concentrated about 100 tanks and launched fierce counterattacks . Our troops repulsed all the enemy counterattacks, disabled 13 tanks and killed more than 300 German officers and men * * *"

("In the area southwest of Velikie Luki, despite tremendous losses in manpower and equipment, the German command is throwing large forces of infantry and tanks into the counterattack. Repelling the Hitlerite counterattack, our troops are inflicting heavy losses on the enemy. In one sector alone the Germans lost in killed about 500 officers and men. * * *

("In another sector our troops destroyed 11 German tanks. In addition, one of our detachments surrounded and completely annihilated a company of enemy automatic riflemen."

(Russian aviation was credited with sinking a 5,000-ton German transport in an undisclosed Axis port.

(The capture of the health resort of Mineralnye Vodi found two trainloads of German troops, with their munitions, waiting in the city to move toward the front, the communique said. Soviet tanks and armored cars then were reported to have swarmed into the city, killed the troops and captured the train.)

Front Straightened.

The push that took Kuberle was down the Stalingrad - Tikhoretsk railway, from Zimovniki. The capture of a series of towns north from Kuberle for 21 miles and a flanking drive to Vesioly, about 30 miles south of Zimoniki, has straightened the front in that sector.

Hero of the Caucasus drive was announced as Lt. Gen. Maslennikov, who just a year ago helped save Moscow with the recapture of Kalinin, a key city northwest of the Soviet capital. Several other generals aiding Maslennikov in the Caucasian offensive were also singled out by Soviet authorities for mention.

The first announcement of the Russian successes in the Caucasus was given in a special communique broadcast by Moscow and heard by the Soviet Monitor in London who reported that it was repeated three times, with marching songs of the Russian cavalry played after each broadcast.

JAN 13 1943

London sources also picked up a Rome broadcast which quoted Dienst Aus Deutschland, German Foreign Office publication, as commenting that "the most rigid reserve must be maintained regarding the fighting in Russia, as the Russians are displaying their greatest strength now."

Major Raskova, Heroine, Buried in Kremlin Wall

Red War Flyer Honored in 1938 for Far East Flight

MOSCOW, Jan. 12 (AP).—Major Marina Raskova, thirty-three-year-old heroine of the Soviet Union, who commanded a regiment of dive bombers in the Red Air Force, was buried with military honors in a wall of the Kremlin today.

Major Raskova, who won one of the nation's highest honors in 1938 for a 4,301-mile flight from Moscow to the Far East, died in the cockpit of her warplane near an aviation manufacturing center behind the lines after returning from action at the front. Her body was brought here and cremated, and the ashes lay in state yesterday in a house closed to the public.

The ashes of Paulina Osipenko, who accompanied Major Raskova on the Far Eastern flight, already rested in the same place of honor in the Kremlin wall.

Valentina Grizodubova, who also made the flight and is the last living heroine of the Soviet Union, delivered a funeral oration from the top of Lenin's tomb, as did also Major General Alexander Shcherbakov and Colonel Shtepenko.

ROYAL PLOT HINTED IN DARLAN SLAYING

Additional Arrests Made in Conspiracy—Giraud, de Gaulle to Meet Soon.

JAN 13 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Jan. 12 — (AP) The Christmas eve assassination of Admiral Jean Darlan, the late high commissioner of North Africa, appears to have been the "result of a conspiracy reaching in many directions" and additional "personages of Algiers" have been arrested in the case, a spokesman for Gen. Henri Giraud, the admiral's successor, announced tonight.

A number of those arrested early in the investigation have been released, however, said the spokesman, who replied that he could not forecast the trend of the inquiry when he was asked if a French monarchist group headed by the Count of Paris had figured in the case.

Giraud, de Gaulle to Meet

At the same time another announcement of great political importance in the future of North Africa was made by the spokesman, who said Gen. Giraud will meet Gen. Charles de Gaulle, the Fighting French leader, in the near future in an effort to reach a working agreement for the two French forces.

The official spokesman, who addressed a press conference after the city of Algiers had seethed for two days with rumors of the arrest of many prominent persons in the Darlan murder, stressed throughout that the investigation was being made by the military authorities and was proceeding "without consideration of the prominence of the persons involved, nor their political beliefs."

"The murder of Darlan possibly was political, but the investigation and trial will be conducted merely as that of a criminal for a crime needing punishment," he said.

Trial by Military Tribunal

Those who now have been arrested will be tried by a military tribunal composed of five judges, the spokesman said.

He made it clear that the new personages arrested were in addition to the 12 whom Gen. Giraud announced on New Year's eve had been seized in a plot to kill himself and Robert Murphy, President Roosevelt's personal minister in North Africa. Gen. Giraud at the time said some of the 12 were personal friends and others had aided the Allied landing last November and participated in a secret rendezvous with U. S. Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark.

After announcing the new arrests, the spokesman said "many telegrams have been exchanged between Gen. Giraud and Gen. de Gaulle with a view to reaching an agreement," and announced their forthcoming meeting.

JAN 13 1943

He said Gen. de Gaulle "wanted to arrange a meeting early in January, but this has been impossible because Gen. Giraud has been on a tour of the provinces. . ."

"New telegrams have now been exchanged and although I don't know exactly when the meetings will occur, it will be soon."

Giraud to Meet De Gaulle Soon To Seek Accord

Leaders Have Been in Touch by Telegraph; More Are Seized in Darlan Murder

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 12 (AP).—General Henri Giraud, French High Commissioner in North and West Africa, will meet General Charles de Gaulle, Fighting French leader, to try to reach an agreement between their two forces, an official French spokesman said tonight.

The two French leaders have been in telegraphic communication and the meeting will "take place soon," the spokesman said.

(General de Gaulle disclosed in London not long ago that he had suggested to Giraud on Christmas Eve that the two meet on French soil and try to arrange "an enlarged temporary" French government in order to wage effective war against the Axis.)

Earlier this month a Giraud spokesman had said that the general's regime wanted "to come to an agreement with all Frenchmen who are fighting against Germany" when asked about the prospect of an understanding with General de Gaulle's faction. At that time he gave assurance that pro-Allied political prisoners arrested before the Allied landings would be released as soon as their cases were investigated.

(The Fighting French in London have openly stated their hostility to the former Vichy clique surrounding General Giraud, but always have expressed their admiration of Giraud himself. They also have complained that pro-Allied prisoners still are being held in North Africa, despite the fact that former Vichy leaders have pledged themselves to the Allied cause.

Arrest of "some further personages of Algiers" in connection with the murder on Dec. 24 of Admiral Jean Darlan, Giraud's predecessor, was announced late today by a spokesman at Allied headquarters.

"It now appears that the murder of Darlan is a result of a conspiracy reaching in many directions," he said.

At the same time it was announced that some of those arrested early in the investigation had been released and others taken into custody.

Asked if the monarchist political group headed by the Count of Paris had figured in the investigation, the spokesman said he did not see what trend the investigation was taking.

Arrests Announced

A group of men accused of responsibility for the assassination of Darlan were arrested Sunday morning in North Africa, Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent Charles Collingwood reported last night in a broadcast from Algiers. Secrecy and censorship prevented earlier announcement, he said.

"The French think they have caught the men who engineered the murder of Darlan," Collingwood said, adding that if their complicity should be established they would be tried before a military court. He added that "if the real murderer" is tried, there is hope that the political situation in North Africa will be straightened out.

BRITISH IN LIBYA READY TO RENEW DRIVE ON TRIPOLI

JAN 13 1943

Strong Reinforcements, Including Tanks, Moved Up by Eighth Army.

FRENCH CONQUER FEZZAN

Desert Column Captures Two Italian Garrisons at Inland Cities.

JAN 13 1943

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP) The British Eighth army was reported about ready for a fresh spurt toward Tripoli tonight and its Anglo-American and French allies in Tunisia, Fighting French in the Fezzan wastes of lower Libya and their air forces dealt many and varied blows at the Axis in the Mediterranean theater.

The Morocco radio said strong reinforcements, including tank forces, had arrived in the last few hours to strengthen the forward elements of the Eighth army before Wadi Zemzem, 160 airline miles southeast of Tripoli.

Berlin Says Battle Near

This possible indication that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's forces were getting ready to resume their advance after a lull supplemented Berlin reports of Saturday night that thousands of Allied vehicles had been concentrated to the south of Marshal Erwin Rommel's positions for an attack.

If an attack was imminent it obviously was in cooperation with the Fighting French of the mysterious General Jacques LeClerc who were reported within 300 miles of Tripoli after announcing a complete conquest of Italy's Fezzan empire of salt marsh, oases and desert in southern Libya.

Among the developments of the day which sharpened the picture in the Mediterranean were these:

Italian Fort Bombed

American Flying Fortresses for the first time thundered into Tripolitania out of the west, and bombarded the Italian fort of Gadames, 170 miles southwest of Tripoli near the Libyan-Tunisian-Algerian border.

Putting the Axis under a two-way hammering from American four-motored bombers for the first time in a 24-hour cycle, the Fortresses' Liberator mates from the Cairo force slid over Naples on the Italian mainland by daylight yesterday for their first bombing of that embarkation point and naval base in 1943.

In Tunisia, just to the south of the German perimeter about Tunis and Bizerte, British and French patrols were more active than in days and fought several successful actions, a North African headquarters communique reported.

British infantry and tanks pushed the Germans off a ridge and settled themselves astride the arterial Goubellat road six miles north of Bou Arada and about 14 miles south of Medjez-el-Bab.

French troops of Gen. Henri Giraud drove the enemy out of a mountain pass farther to the south, at a point 23 miles south of Pont-du-Fahs. They reported the capture of at least 180 prisoners.

All of this came in the midst of information from reliable neutral sources from Germany that the Germans were engaged in a squabble over authority in Africa, with Marshal Rommel refusing to accept orders from Gen. Walther Nehring in Tunisia, and Gen. Nehring refusing to knuckle under to Rommel. Failing to reconcile the two generals, it was reported, Adolf Hitler has appointed a third, Col.-Gen. Juergen von Arnim as commander-in-chief in Tunisia.

Occupy Two Cities

The Fighting French communique, in announcing the complete conquest of Fezzan after a march of more than 1,000 miles in three weeks across the Saraha from the Lake Chad area in Equatorial Africa, said the flying column of legionnaires and native troops had occupied Murzuch, religious capital of Fezzan, 480 miles south of Tripoli, and Sebha, the chief military center, 80 miles farther north.

Almost the entire Italian garrisons at both places surrendered, the announcement said. Both these places had been by-passed in the advance to Brach, 350 miles south of Tripoli.

The communique said one forward spearhead drove on northward and routed an Axis motorized detachment, and it was reported now only about 300 miles from Tripoli.

The Italian communique today admitted that 'overwhelming enemy forces compelled" Mussolini's troops to retreat to prearranged positions.

The Morocco radio said Marshal Rommel "now will have to divert tanks and armored cars to meet the threat of LeClerc's column which may either march on Tripoli or into southern Tunisia."

The Flying Fortress assault on Gadames apparently was related to this strategy for it is a strong position built by the Italians to counter the French sytsem of fortifications known as the Mareth line. It is opposite the southern anchor of that line at Fort Saint.

30.24-283

The attack possibly was related to operations of Giraud's forces, who reported Friday the capture of Tanout Maller, fourteen miles from Tiaret in the Gadames area.

General Giraud's camel corps also was moving northwest along the Tripolitania-French Africa frontier on a line parallel with General Leclerc's forces but about 200 miles apart. The camel corps already had taken Tachiumet, in Libya, about 500 miles southwest of Tripoli.

The Cairo communique of the United States air force telling of the Liberator raid on Naples said harbor installations and shipping were hit and a "very large fire" was seen to penetrate a haze which obscured observation of other results. The Italians said some buildings collapsed and 23 persons were killed and 75 injured.

This, the 38th raid of the war on Naples and a followup to several made by the Americans in December, resulted in the loss of two of the big bombers. The Italians claimed that they shot down four of them.

A North African communique said Fortresses also attacked Gabes, where a railway bridge was hit, while Lightning fighters shot down three Axis planes, losing two.

From Cairo, the British reported continued activity along the road between Misurata and Tripoli, where some of Rommel's forces apparently have been moving westward, and announced bomber assaults on Sousse in Tunisia and a transport column between Gabes and Sfax.

The taking of the pass by the French in Tunisia apparently was in the Gebel Boudabous area, south of Pont du Fahs and northwest of Kairouan. A French spokesman said the French attacked northwest of Kairouan, thirty-five miles west of Sousse, and that after capture of the pass a force of Italians and Germans was surrounded. He said fighting was continuing.

Dispatches from the front at Bou Arada said the Germans were driven by the British from a hill and a farm onto another hill across a narrow, stony valley. The British prepared both for further attack and for an Axis counter-attack. Both these actions were in an area where the Germans apparently had tried to flank the Allied positions at Medjez el Bab.

The Italians said today "enemy thrusts supported by tanks were held" by strong Axis defenses and that twenty-three Allied planes were shot down in Libya and Tunisia.

Raiders Batter Rommel's Forces Deep in Desert

JAN 13 1943

By WES GALLAGHER,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 12.—Flying Fortresses, in their first full raid into Tripolitania, struck a heavy blow at Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces by battering the fort at Ghadames, while French troops in Tunisia drove the Germans out of a mountain pass 23 miles south of Pont du Fahs and captured at least 180 prisoners.

Ghadames is deep in the desert, 450 miles south of Tunis, at the juncture of the frontiers of Tunisia, Algeria and Tripolitania.

A spokesman for the French high command said French troops had attacked north of Jebel Boudabous, northwest of the Moslem city of Kairouan, which is 35 miles inland from the eastern Tunisian port of Sousse.

Germans and Italians in the valley there were surrounded, the spokesman said, and fighting is continuing.

French Report Gains.

Land fighting on the northern sector of the Tunisian front was confined to patrol activity.

There were active engagements between French and Axis troops in the mountain chain running south of Pont du Fahs, 30 miles southwest of Tunis and at the southern flank of the Medjez-el-Bab front.

"Our troops made quite substantial gains at Karachouan, south of Pont du Fahs," the French spokesman said.

Further south the French reported beating off a German attack and destroying three tanks.

The Flying Fortresses took a hand in the Libyan battle with their raid on the German and Italian force at Ghadames, which was reported left enveloped in smoke after a high-level bombing.

Railroad Bridge Hit.

Another raid by Flying Fortresses near Gabes also was reported, and bombs were said to have hit a railroad bridge.

(This apparently was a later attack than the raid on Gabes announced in an Allied headquarters communique yesterday. That raid was carried out by B-26 Martin Marauders, two-motored bombers.)

German fighters approached the formation of Fortresses, but confined their attack to the escort fighters, P-38 Lockheed Lightnings. One Messerschmitt 109 was reported shot down and two of the Lightnings were lost.

Off the Tunisian coast a group of B-25 Billy Mitchell bombers and Lightnings shot down two of three big German air transport planes which they encountered.

One of these, described as a six-engined BV-222, was said to have gone down in flames.

British Troops Break Nazi Grip On Arterial Tunisian Road

JAN 13 1943

Infantry and Tanks Push Foe Back But Decisive Battle Fails to Develop

By WILLIAM B. KING,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

BOU ARADA, Tunisia, Jan. 11 (Delayed).—British infantry and tanks have pushed Nazi forces from positions straddling the arterial Goubellat road.

A day of brisk battle today left the Allies and Nazis facing each other across a narrow, stony valley 6 miles north of here.

(This position thus is about 14 miles south of Medjez-el-Bab.)

In what might have been a flanking effort to envelop our advance positions at Medjez-el-Bab, the Germans pushed across the Goubellat road and occupied a hill and a single farm. They were driven out yesterday by British infantrymen who pushed on today to occupy high ground on the eastern side of the important road.

Bou Arada, a colorful little cross-road town, presents a novel picture as colonial and metropolitan French troops mingle with the British unit.

Crack French cavalry on dappled gray mounts trotted beside the rumbling Crusader tanks. Almost in the shadow of the battle-smoked hill teams of French and British soldiers played rugby football.

United States infantry troops are holding positions near the current battle area, but present indications are that the fight is unlikely to spread far enough to include them.

The Nazi air force which has been quiet over the battlefield sent two groups of Junkers-87s on a bombing mission against the Americans, but there were no indications of extensive damage to the troops, who already had dug their foxholes deeper as a result of occasional shelling.

The French who hold positions south of here also were reported active, but no details were available.

Today tanks supported by infantry made a thrust toward German positions on a high hill just beyond, but a decisive fight failed to take place.

Both sides are forced to choose their ground carefully before throwing armor into battle.

From the high ground which had been the German position just the day before I watched as the British infantry dug in for the night.

There was no movement visible on the ground held by the Germans, but the officer beside me pointed out the road on which infantry had been seen a few hours before.

A light civilian car in which I was traveling had to thread its way through the tanks returning from the sortie against the Nazi hill. The last lap was made through a plowed field, then up the sides of a hill on which the soldiers were preparing both for attack and defense.

Northward other British tanks patrolled the road, but made no contact with Axis forces.

The artillery in this neighborhood exchange explosive packets throughout the day. Round after round fell on the coveted German position. From my vantage point I could hear the crack of the artillery behind me, followed by the whine of the shell on its deadly mission. The German shelling did relatively little damage.

Squabble by Rommel And Nehring Reported Back of Tunisian Shift

Hitler, Unable to Settle Authority Dispute, Forced To Name Von Arnim

By RELMAN MORIN,
Associated Press Foreign Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Reliable information via neutral sources from Germany today indicated that a squabble for authority between Field Marshal Erwin Rommel and Gen. Walther Nehring underlies the confusion over who is commanding the German forces in Tunisia.

It was said that even intervention by Adolf Hitler had failed to reconcile the two high German officers.

(Propaganda analysts in the United States and other Allied nations have pointed out previously that Nazi propagandists often have fed the world stories of dissension and strife in high German political and military circles in an effort to lull the United Nations into a belief of internal disintegration in Germany, and thus promote complacency and overconfidence on Allied home and military fronts.)

Nehring Senior to Rommel.

The report had been current for several weeks that Nehring had been replaced by Col. Gen. Juergen von Arnim as commander in chief of the Axis forces in Tunisia.

Well-informed neutrals said this apparently was true and resulted from Rommel's emphatic refusal to serve under Nehring.

Nehring, likewise, was reported to have refused to serve under Rommel.

The Nazi high command was planning to merge the Afrika Korps and the Tunisian army and to make a final stand in Tunisia, these sources said.

Since Nehring was in command in Tunisia and since he was senior to Rommel he was expected to have supreme authority.

Unable to Reconcile Officers.

Rommel, however, who holds the rank of field marshal, notified Berlin he would not serve in a subordinate position, it was reported. Furthermore, it was said that there is great personal antagonism between him and Nehring.

Nehring long has specialized in the strategy of open warfare which is likely to develop in Tunisia and he is said to regard Rommel "nothing but a lucky tactician."

When Hitler was unable to reconcile the two generals he appointed a third, Von Arnim, as chief of the Tunisian forces, the neutral sources said.

The German radio continues to assert that Nehring has not been replaced, referring only today to heavy reinforcements going "to Nehring's 3d army in Tunisia."

53 Medals Awarded To Flyers by Doolittle

Bronx, Jamaica and Yonkers Men Among Those Cited

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 12 (AP).—Brigadier General James H. Doolittle, commanding United States Air Forces in North Africa, announced today fifty-three awards to American airmen for service against the enemy.

Among those who received air medals for participating in five sorties against the enemy were: Jacob Hochman, of Plainfield, N. J.; William E. Mikolasy, of West Englewood, N. J.; Kenneth A. Daugherty, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Bernard Karasin, 883 Fairmount Place, the Bronx; Lieutenant George E. Ewald, 32 Purser Place, Yonkers, N. Y., and Sergeant Frank A. Corette, of 143 Ninety-fourth Avenue, Jamaica, Queens.

458 Honored in Middle East

CAIRO, Jan. 12 (AP).—Four hundred and fifty-eight American flying officers and enlisted men were honored today by Brigadier General Patrick Timberlake, chief of the American Bomber Command in the Middle East, for heroism, aerial achievement and wounds received in action.

The decorations covered the period since the American Air Forces began operations in this theater of war, and were made at three separate Middle East bases.

Murzuk Is Captured.

London, Jan. 12 (A. P.).—Fighting French Headquarters announced today that Gen. Jacques le Clerc's Army of the Chad had captured Murzuk, the capital of the Fezzan, a district of south Libya, and that advance units had also occupied Sebha, the main enemy base, 100 miles further north.

Sebha is 400 miles south of Tripoli and 1,000 miles from Fort Lamy in the Chad district.

The communique said that the garrisons of both points were almost all taken prisoner. "The conquest of Fezzan is now complete," it declared.

British See Eisenhower Censorship as Harmful

London, Jan. 13 (A. P.).—Commenting on Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's censorship of political news, the London News Chronicle said today that "if this censorship is not drastically remodeled, lasting harm may be done not only in North Africa, but to the good understanding between Britain and America."

It said "replacement of (Admiral Jean) Darlan by (Gen. Henri) Giraud appears so far to have had little or no result. It is far from certain, too, that Britain and America are working in full harmony. Their rumored disagreements give the Axis continuing opportunity to put over disruptive propaganda."

2 U.S. Flyers Ride Home On a Bouncing Bomb

JAN 13 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 12 (AP).—Two American airmen returning from a raid on Gabes yesterday rode a bomb home, an air force spokesman disclosed today.

"On the way home," he said, "Lieutenant William Powell Watkins, of Galveston, the navigator, and Sergeant M. Muzyla, of Cleveland, discovered one of their bombs had not dropped, and was bouncing around on its holder in the bomb bay. Watkins and Muzyla sat on the bomb to hold it steady until the plane could land and ground crews removed it."

U. S. Flyers Again Raid Tripolitanian Airfield

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Algiers radio, in a French broadcast to French Africa reported to the Office of War Information, said today that United States Air Forces yesterday bombed Castel Benito, south of Tripoli.

It said this was the fifth successive raid in five days.

"This airfield is the most important one in the hands of the Germans and Italians in Tripolitania," the broadcast added.

U. S. Bombers Attack Port of Naples in First 1943 Raid

Harbor Installations And Shipping Are Hit; 23 Killed, Rome Says

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Jan. 12.—Four-engined Liberators of the United States Army's 9th Air Force bombed Naples by daylight yesterday, hitting harbor installations and shipping, a communique announced today.

The attack was the 38th of the war on the hard-hit Italian supply port and the first attack of 1943 after repeated December raids.

(An Italian communique said: "Damage is slight. In the collapse of some civilian buildings the population suffered losses which as far as has been ascertained are 23 dead and 75 injured.)

The Allied report said "heavy cloud cover obscured the results, although one very large fire which penetrated the overcast was seen."

The raiding force was attacked by German fighters, Messerschmitt 109s, and "two of our aircraft were shot down," the war bulletin reported. "At least one enemy fighter was destroyed."

(The Italians claimed four of the raiders destroyed, three by fighters and one by anti-aircraft fire.)

Curtiss P-40 fighters were reported active yesterday in the Libyan battle area.

"In one engagement with a large force of enemy fighters," the American communique said, "one enemy aircraft was destroyed and another damaged. One of our aircraft failed to return."

An earlier communique from the British headquarters reported the Naples raid, but said only that it was carried out by Allied bombers.

This communique gave no details of the attack except that one Messerschmitt which attempted to intercept the bomber formation was shot down.

Three Allied planes were reported missing in aerial operations of the Middle East command yesterday and the preceding night, but it was not specified whether any were lost in the Naples attack.

Allied bombers continued to strike at Axis Tunisian strongholds from the west. The communique reported that the harbor of Sousse was successfully bombed and said transport vehicles on the road between Gabes and Sfax were attacked.

Buildings Collapse In Naples.

Rome (From Italian Broadcasts), Jan. 12 (A. P.).—A raid by multi-motored Allied bombers on Naples was announced today by the High Command, which said that four of the attacking aircraft had been shot down.

Italian fighters were said to have accounted for three and anti-aircraft guns the fourth. Three of the four craft crashed on land, the communique also said, and some of the flyers were taken prisoners.

"Damage is slight," the High Command added. "In the collapse of some civilian buildings, the population suffered losses which are as far as has been ascertained, twenty-three dead and seventy-five injured."

Damage Slight, Says Rome

New York, Jan. 12—The Associated Press listening post today recorded Rome broadcasts in which the Italian high command reported a raid by multi-motored Allied bombers on Naples. Four of the attacking aircraft had been shot down, the broadcast said.

Allied tank attacks in Tunisia were reported met by strong Axis counter-attacks, while eighteen Allied planes were declared shot down in intense aerial fighting in the Sirte area of Libya. Four other Allied planes were reported destroyed on the ground and one knocked down by aintl-aircraft fire.

Gabes; escorting Lightnings destroyed one enemy plane. Another formation of Flying Fortresses bombed Ghadames, in Tripolitania. Two of our aircraft are missing from these operations."

French Communists Join With De Gaulle

London, Jan. 12 (AP)—The French National Committee announced today that the French Communist party, which has been outlawed in its Nazi-dominated homeland, has formally aligned itself with the Fighting French organization.

The Communist resolution was brought to London by Fernand Grenier, Communist deputy for Paris, who escaped from a concentration camp where he had been held since the fall of France.

French Drive Enemy Out Of Mountain Pass In Tunisia

JAN 13 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 12—Capture of a mountain pass in north central Tunisia about twenty-three miles south of Pont du Fahs by French troops and active patrol actions by both sides over a front of about fifteen miles south of Medjez el Bab were reported today in a War Department communique.

The text of the Communique No. 293:

"North Africa:

"1. Active patrolling by both sides continues in the area between Bou Arada and Goubellat.

"2. Spitfires on sweeps over forward areas destroyed one enemy fighter.

Italians Captured

"3. French troops occupied a mountain pass twenty-three miles south of Pont du Fahs. Some Italian prisoners were captured.

"4. Lightning (P-38) fighter planes shot down three Axis transport planes off the Tunisian coast.

"5. A small force of Flying Fortresses (B-17) attacked targets near reads another plaintive plea.

Other offers run in the same vein—"A sovereign. What offers in German tobacco?" . . . "Three eggs for 20 cigarettes" . . . "Rabbits ten weeks for 20 cigarettes or one ounce tobacco each" . . . "Candles for sugar."

An estimated 728 Guernsey men were deported, apparently to Germany, in September. Items collected in piece-meal fashion told of the deportation order with a plea for food and clothing for the evacuees.

The channel islands—Guernsey, Jersey, Alderney and Sark—had a population of approximately 90,000 at the time of the German occupation shortly after the fall of France.

The British made no attempt to defend the islands, asserting they were of no military value.

On June 28, 1940 troops and equipment and many heads of cattle were removed and persons desiring to leave were evacuated.

The islands, acquired by Britain in the 14th century during the reign of John of England, once before felt the crush of an invaders' rule.

The French took over part of Jersey during the Wars of the Roses, but the British recaptured the island.

ALLIED FIGHTERS CARRY ATTACK TO LOW COUNTRIES

Nazi Water, Rail Transport Hit Following Night Raid on Ruhr.

LONDON, Jan. 12 — (AP) —Allied fighter planes swept over the low countries today to disrupt Nazi water and rail transport after heavy four-engined bombers smashed again last night at industrial targets in the Ruhr with 4,000-pound "block-buster" bombs.

"Many two-ton bombs were dropped" by the bombers raiding the Ruhr for the sixth time in nine days, "and the glow of considerable fires was seen," the Air ministry news service said.

One big bomber in the force of undisclosed size was reported lost. The Germans set up heavy anti-aircraft fire, but thick clouds blunted their probing searchlights. Nazi night fighters rose to give battle, but "no serious encounter developed," the news service said.

Meanwhile the Ministry of Home Security announced that 109 civilians were killed or reported missing in German air raids during December, bringing the total for 1942 to 3,221.

From the start of the war to the end of 1942, the ministry added, 47,860 Britons have been killed and 56,430 injured in air raids.

"Following up the night raids on the Ruhr, aircraft of the fighter command attacked and damaged water transport and railway targets in offensive patrols over the low countries, the Air ministry said.

"None of our aircraft is missing."

Saw Geyser Rise

When the submarine started to crash-dive, First Lieut. Brent F. Walker, of Jefferson City, Mo., gave it a long burst of machine-gun fire.

Private R. R. Williamson, of Austin, Texas, said that after the depth charges exploded he saw "a long slim object, at least fifteen feet in length, rise up with a geyser of water." He fired a machine-gun burst into it.

When Thorne made the second run he saw an oil patch 200 yards wide, fed from a geyser-like center and spreading.

Laval Gives Up French Soil in Deal With Nazis

Agrees to Let Hitler Keep North Area; Will Yield Ships and More Workers

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—Fuehrer Adolf Hitler has made a ten-point political deal with French Chief of Government Pierre Laval which permanently deprives France of 4,800 square miles of territory comprising two departments along the Belgian border, involves sending 400,000 more skilled French workers to Germany and promises to United Nations; put Laval in control of the French police in the former occupied zone, with fuller administrative powers generally, and contained fewer concessions to the Germans than some observers had expected.

The agreement gives Germany full control of French industry, finance and agriculture, formalizing what was already virtually the fact.

Laval promised to turn over to Germany five French destroyers and two large tugs, presumably the remnants of the French fleet scuttled at Toulon.

A settlement was postponed on the question of making Paris the seat of Laval's government, thus leaving open a matter which has vexed Vichy-German relations.

Hitler, under the agreement, will become arbiter of further negotiations between France and Italy presumably concerning Corsica and other French territory under Italian occupation.

The departments which will not be restored to the French state are those of Nord and Pas-de-Calais extending from the North Sea southward for 100 miles along the Belgian border. They are part of the recently created "forbidden zone" in which the Germans are building fortifications, and most Frenchmen already have been removed from them.

Hitler strengthened Laval's hand against his collaborationist rival, Jacques Doriot, leader of the French Popular (Fascist) party, to the degree that he assured Laval that his government is the last with which Berlin will negotiate.

Guernsey Folk Live by Barter As Nazis Dominate Island Life

LONDON, Jan. 12—(AP) Life always moved slowly on Guernsey—but since the German occupation the clock has been turned back a long ways on that channel island where the pre-historic Mousterian man reputedly lived.

Hardy folk who made their livelihood by breeding the famous cattle which bear the island's name have been reduced to a primitive system of bartering for an existence.

Clips from island newspapers which have reached this country tell the story of these people known for their individualism who now live by Nazi decree.

"Dried beans for men's working boots," offers one of the classified advertisements.

U. S. Airmen Sink Axis Sub In Bay Of Biscay

JAN 13 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 11—Credit for the destruction of an Axis submarine in the Bay of Biscay was given today to the crew of an American Air Force Liberator bomber piloted by First Lieutenant Walter Thorne, of Marietta, Ohio. Praise for accurate placement of the depth charges dropped by the plane went to First Lieutenant Irving T. Colburn, of Chicago.

Thorne's report said the submarine was sighted on the surface, charging its batteries. The first three depth charges exploded fifty, thirty and sixteen feet from the submarine's stern. Others straddled the conning tower.

strengthen Laval's position among the collaborationist French leaders, a Fighting French spokesman said today.

At the same time the long-awaited agreement, which turned down Hitler's reported plan to conscript Frenchmen to fight the United Nations and put Laval in control of the French police in the former occupied zone, with fuller administrative power generally, contained fewer concessions to the Germans than some observers had expected.

The agreement, which was reached at the December conference of Laval with Hitler and Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, according to information brought here, turned down Hitler's reported plan to conscript Frenchmen to fight the

Laval Deal Reported

London, Jan. 12 (AP)—In exchange for increased political power, Pierre Laval has contracted to deliver 400,000 more French workmen and some French warships to Germany, a Fighting French spokesman said tonight.

An agreemen on this was reached at the December conference of Laval with Adolf Hitler and Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, according to information brought here from rance.

Hitler was said to have told Laval that his would be the last French government with which Germany would negotiate and that he gave Laval direct control over all police, and generally increased administrative authority.

New Medal for Goering

Nazi Leader, 50, Adds Hungary's Grand Cross to His Collection

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—Reich Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, who already possessed most of the medals which can be conferred by Germany and her European Axis puppets, received a new one today on his fiftieth birthday—Hungary's Grand Cross of the Order of Merit.

Alfred Rosenberg, Minister for the German-occupied districts in the East, also marked his fiftieth birthday today.

The German press described Goering as Germany's sword and Rosenberg as Germany's thinker.

Ruhr Raided Sixth Time In Nine Nights by RAF

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Air Ministry announced today that the RAF blasted the Ruhr again last night in the sixth raid on that area in nine nights.

The ministry did not specify the objectives hit, but said one plane of the bomber command was missing after the raid.

Victoria Cross Awarded To Hero of Convoy Battle

Capt. Sherbrooke Honored for Saving Russia-Bound Ships

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Victoria Cross, highest award of the Britsh Empire, has been awarded to Captain Robert St. Vincent Sherbrooke, commander of the destroyer force which fought off a superior German naval force while protecting a convoy to Russia last month. It was the fourteenth Victoria Cross awarded to a Navy man since the war began.

Captain Sherbrooke's ship, the citation said, drove off four enemy attacks and "each time pursued him and drove him outside of range of the convoy toward our covering forces."

Captain Sherbrooke, who is forty-one years old and a descendant of Sir John Sherbrooke, first Governor General of Canada, was seriously wounded in the face in the engagement and temporarily lost the sight of one eye.

"Nevertheless," the citation said, "he continued to direct the ships of his command until further hits on his own ship compelled him to disengage, but not until he was satisfied that the next senior officer had assumed control. By his leadership and example the convoy was saved from damage and brought safely to its destination."

American Gets RAF Award

London, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Distinguished Service Flying Medal has been awarded to William Desbro MacGonagle, of Akron, Ohio, flight sergeant of the Royal Canadian Air Force, who flew a damaged bomber back from an attack on Germany in December, after the captain pilot of the ship had been severely wounded. MacGonagle was a mid-upper on the plane.

CANADIANS IN BRITAIN

A BRITISH PORT, Wednesday, Jan. 13.—(AP) Thousands of reinforcements for the Canadian overseas army have landed at this British port, it was permitted to be disclosed today.

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—Three-year-old Doris Watson did not know quite what it meant that her father was a prisoner of war in Germany, but she did know he had been gone a long time, and she decided to kiss his picture on the mantelpiece. She died with his picture in her hands, after she climbed in a chair to reach it and her nightgown caught fire from an open gas heater.

GOING TO GERMANY

Berne, June 12 (A. P.).—American diplomats and journalists, formerly active in Vichy, and a number of other Americans who were interned at Lourdes after German troops moved into Unoccupied France will be removed to Germany tomorrow, United States Legation officials here said today. Where the American party, numbering 133 would be taken was not known.

United States officials here said the exchange problem now was confused, but that efforts would be continued to have the group transferred to Lisbon for an eventual exchange.

Nazis Report 16 V[illegible] Added to Toll of U-Boats

Say 2 Merchantmen More Are Sunk in Allied Tanker Convoy

BERLIN (from German broadcasts), Jan. 12 (AP).—The high command reported in a special bulletin today that German submarines have added sixteen ships totaling 99,000 tons to their toll in recent operations. Two of the ships were in a tanker convoy from which thirteen ships totaling 124,000 tons previously had been sunk, the bulletin said.

(There was no confirmation of these enemy claims. The high command did not say where the tanker convoy was attacked, but D. N. B. said it was south of the Azores, and added that the commander in chief of the navy had telegraphed congratulations to the U-boat commander.)

The special bulletin said a third tanker from this convoy had "again been torpedoed," but the sinking could not be observed "on account of strong defenses." The announcement said the latest sinkings disposed of the remnants of the convoy, declared already heavily damaged by "relentless attacks."

"Other submarines in the North and South Atlantic, the bulletin said, have sunk fourteen vessels totaling 72,000 tons, mostly from convoys. (These sinkings likewise were without confirmation.)

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 12 (A. P.).—The High Command communique, reporting today on yesterday's action on the Russian front, said that between the Caucasus and the Don, in the area of Stalingrad and in the Don area the Russians again attacked the same focal points as before with strong forces.

The Russians were declared repulsed in "bitter fighting."

43 More Arrested In Bulgarian Raids

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 13.—Bulgarian police "continued raiding Sofia restaurants and cafes Tuesday, arresting another 40 persons staying in Sofia without permit of residence," Transocean reported today.

"Among the arrested persons are several criminals wanted by the police for some time," the Sofia dispatch said.

Istanbul reports had said there was rioting and revolt throughout Bulgaria, and one account reaching Turkey said students at the Sofia Military College had fled to the mountains for guerrilla operations against the government.

Bomb Damages Home Of Writer Jean Giono

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN (from German broadcasts), Jan. 13.—A bomb exploded in front of the home of the French writer and poet, Jean Giono, at Manosque in the lower Alps Monday night, causing considerable damage, but no one was injured, Transocean reported today in a Vichy dispatch.

Giono was arrested after the war began in 1939 because of his pacifist views and "of late he has advocated French-German collaboration."

Giano was arrested September 16, 1939, by Premier Edouard Daladier's war government for having made what officials described as "defeatist statements."

He has been an outspoken pacifist ever since his return from the front during the World War when he retired to his native town of Manosque. He opposed all political parties and systems. He attracted hundreds of people to his village who were willing, like himself, to till the soil and live the simple life.

His first novel, "Colline," was published after the World War, and he has written more than a dozen books, among them "The Song of the World," "Harvest," "Hill of Destiny," and "Lovers Are Never Losers."

King Warns Riksdag of 'Risks' and Urges 'Watchfulness'

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 12 (AP).—King Gustav V, opening the Riksdag (Parliament) with a speech from the throne, revealed today that he has ordered "reinforcement of the mobilized forces for the immediate future" because "we must reckon with risks which demand constant watchfulness."

The eighty-year-old King's statement followed announcement of the new budget calling for 2,060,000,000 kroner ($492,340,000) of defense expenditures in the fiscal year 1942-'43 in an expanded effort to build up the country's military strength.

JAP WARSHIP HIT BY AUSTRALIANS

JAN 13 1943

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Jan. 12 (A. P.).—A Japanese warship—either a light cruiser or a large destroyer—was hit off Gasmata, New Britain, by an aerial torpedo released by Australian airmen Saturday and is believed to have sunk during the night, Allied headquarters announced today.

The warship was found outside the harbor by the Australian flyers, who reported that one of their torpedoes landed directly amidships. A heavy explosion was seen, and the ship was enveloped in smoke.

"The ship was not visible at daybreak and is believed to have sunk during the night," the communique said.

The intensive week-end aerial warfare over New Guinea slackened yesterday, but on land Allied forces moved their lines closer to the Japanese in the Sanananda corridor extending about a mile and a half inland from the Papuan coast.

Strong Allied patrols captured a quantity of enemy materiel on the west of the Japanese position, and on the east flank a Japanese bunker still under construction was reduced by artillery and machine-gun fire. A number of the Japanese defenders were killed.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur replied to a congratulatory message from Australian Prime Minister John Curtin on the success of the New Guinea campaign with the following message:

"All ranks of all services in this area thank you for your noble and inspiring message. We appreciate very deeply your personal commendation and that of the Australian people and Government and take this opportunity to reaffirm our complete determination to fulfill the obligations of our duty."

OUR FORCES PUSH ON IN NEW GUINEA AREA

Gain at Sanananda Listed—Foe Bombs Merauke, Dutch Town

AT UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Wednesday, Jan. 13 (AP)—Allied ground forces gained against the only Japanese still holding out in the Papuan peninsula of New Guinea at Sanananda, General Douglas MacArthur's Command announced today.

Only a fragment of the one-time Japanese Papuan army of 15,000 still clings to that point west of Buna, and its situation has been viewed as so hopeless that General Douglas MacArthur returned from the field last week to his Australia headquarters.

"Our ground forces made further gains against the remaining enemy positions," the noon communique said concerning Sananda.

Allied long-range bombers and attack planes raided what is regarded as the next probable sector of ground action, the Lae-Salamaua area, northwest of Buna. The planes bombed and strafed the trail to Komiatum, destroying a bridge. Another air formation strafed the New Guinea coast as far as Amboga.

Allied long-range fighters returned to a much-raided point, Fuiloro, in Portuguese Timor, destroying an enemy fighter on the ground and carrying out successful low-level strafing of buildings and motor transport.

The Japanese also raided a point they have been giving increasing attention, Merauke, on the south coast of Netherland New Guinea. Nine of their bombers inflicted "only slight damage" on the town, the communiqué said.

FOUR DECORATED

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Jan. 12 (A. P.).—Four officers and men of the United States Army were decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action in New Guinea by Gen. MacArthur today.

Awards were given to Capt. Cladie A. Bailey, infantry, of Bedford, Ind.; Sergt. Chester J. Davidowicz, engineers, of Gardner, Mass.; First Lieut. Thomas E. Knode, infantry, of Washington, D. C., and Second Lieut. Paul L. Schwartz, infantry, of Syracuse, N. Y.

ALLIES GRIND OUT NEW GAINS AT SANANANDA

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Wednesday, Jan. 13 (AP).—Allied jungle fighters budged the Japanese further back toward Sanananda Point—last spot to which they cling in the Papuan Peninsula of New Guinea—yesterday while fighters and attack planes raided the trail south of Salamua.

The planes blasted and machine-gunned the trail to Komiatum, 10 miles south of Salamaua, destroying a bridge while others peppered the coast toward Amboga with machine-gun fire.

The Japanese at the same time bombed Merauke on the south coast of Dutch New Guinea, causing "slight damage."

Gen. MacArthur's long range fighters maintained some pressure against Portugese Timor with a low level raid on the airdrome and facilities at Fuiloro. An enemy fighter was set ablaze on the runway and buildings, trucks and roads were machine-gunned.

M'ARTHUR DECORATES 4 NEW GUINEA HEROES

Three Officers and Sergeant Get Medals for Brave Feats

JAN 13 1943

AT UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS in Australia, Jan. 12 (AP)—Four officers and men of the United States Army received the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action in New Guinea from General MacArthur today.

Awards were given to Captain Cladie A. Bailey, infantry, Bedford, Ind.; Sergeant Chester J. Davidowicz, engineers, Gardner, Mass.; First Lieutenant Thomas E. Knode, infantry, Washington, D. C., and Second Lieutenant Paul L. Schwartz, infantry, Syracuse, N. Y.

Sergeant Davidowicz was cited for action near Cape Sudest, New Guinea, on Nov. 16. When enemy planes attacked and set fire to several small ships carrying personnel and supplies, he, with other enlisted men, volunteered to man a lifeboat and rescue the survivors.

"Without regard to his personal safety and in spite of repeated bombing and strafing by the enemy's planes and of danger from explosions of ammunition aboard the ships, which threw flaming debris in all directions, he made two trips to the burning ships," the citation said. "Davidowicz's courageous efforts saved the lives of several men aboard."

Lieutenant Schwartz was cited for extraordinary heroism near Buna on Dec. 5. When a patrol he was leading in advance of the Allied front lines entered an enemy fire lane and was engaged in fire from automatic weapons, he remained in the fire lane while the rest of his patrol took cover.

By drawing enemy fire and observing where it struck, he located an enemy automatic rifleman in a tree and killed him. He then discovered and killed a second sniper by similar methods. Determining the location of an enemy machine gun, he withdrew his unit and directed mortar fire that destroyed the enemy weapon.

marine unit, whose parents live at Benton Harbor, Mich.

Col. Jeschke praised highly the way his men seek out the enemy in cleverly concealed positions and take them with a minimum of losses. The patrols are out night and day, sometimes for a week, and often prowl behind the Japanese lines.

As he talked in a hidden jungle command post close to the front line, Col. Jeschke said you cannot underestimate the type of fighting men the Japanese have left on Guadalcanal, for they are extremely brave, skillful in the use of covering terrain and don't surrender.

He displayed a captured Japanese light .25-caliber machine gun which can be used from a fixed position with folding tripod or as a rifle with a bayonet.

This, he said, is their deadliest weapon; mortars, artillery and even rifles kill few Americans.

On my visit to the front I saw Marine and Army troops advancing steadily. The mud-covered and sweating officers are supremely confident of the final results, but emphasize how slow and indecisive this type of "spot" jungle warfare is.

Enemy Cleverly Concealed.

jungle area with a small party led by Capts. Martin W. Kynett and Clyde D. Joy, both of Chicago. The Japanese had left in a hurry two days before.

We saw where the enemy soldiers had dug themselves into holes and tree bases, and how cleverly they had buried ammunition. Many clips of machine-gun bullets had been left behind.

There also were skulls and other bones and rapidly deteriorating uniforms and supplies.

Capt. Kynett showed where the Japanese here had cut away some of the jungle leading in the direction where they had expected the Americans to come. He had led his patrol through this gully, but had a hunch to take a different route.

It was a lucky thing, for he would have walked into the clearing and been mowed down.

The Japanese still are using three-man patrols. One, a short distance from the others, fires and reveals his position. If the Americans return the fire, showing their own location, the other two Japanese open fire.

Americans Wary of Traps.

Veteran American jungle fighters never bite on this, and beginners quickly learn to hold their fire until they know it isn't one of these traps.

The Japanese are at a disadvantage in several major factors. Their artillery is scant, for example, and the Americans' is growing and we are moving more forward.

Gen. Harmon said the new Japanese airfield at Munda on New Georgia Island—178 miles northwest of Guadalcanal—has to be "neutralized" or taken out altogether. It is now being neutralized by persistent and heavy attacks by our planes, but Gen. Harmon left open the question of how long the neutralization can be maintained.

The Japanese bombers haven't operated in daylight recently over Guadalcanal because of heavy losses, Gen. Harmon added.

"They can't afford to keep it up," he said. "Nobody can stand that kind of losses. We couldn't stand it ourselves if we lost 80 to 90 per cent of attacking forces."

Navy communique No. 249 said:

"South Pacific (all dates are east longitude).

"1. On January 11:

"(a) A force of Dauntless dive-bombers (Douglas SBD) escorted by Wildcat fighters (Grumman F-4-F) was attacked by twelve Japanese Zeros between Santa Isabel Island and New Georgia Island. Four Zeros were shot down and two others were possibly destroyed. One Wildcat failed to return.

"(b) A force of Marauder medium bombers (Martin B-26) with Airacobra (Bell P-39) escort attacked Japanese positions at Munda. Clouds over the target areas prevented accurate bombing and made observation of results difficult."

The four Zeros shot down raised to 680 the number of planes the Japanese have lost in the Solomons campaign, according to navy communiques.

Japs Believed From Munda

Their losses, however, both in the air and on the ground, have failed to halt their efforts to develop a major air base in the central Solomons area at Munda, from which their planes could operate defensively against American air attacks northward from Guadalcanal and offensively against American installations on Guadalcanal.

A naval spokesman said in comment on today's communique that there seemed to be no doubt that the twelve Japanese fighters came from the Munda base on New Georgia.

This is the wet season in the Solomons; clouds are more the rule than the exception. Apparently under cover of these clouds the Japs have made substantial progress on their Munda base. When the rains slack off, most authorities here say, there will be a different story to tell.

U. S. Patrols on Guadalcanal Kill 15 Japs for Every Loss

JAN 13 1943

But Slow, Difficult Fight Lies Ahead Before Enemy Is Cleared From Hideouts

By WILLIAM HIPPLE,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT OF GUADALCANAL, Dec. 30 (Delayed).—American patrols have killed an average of 15 Japanese to each one of our men lost in the last two weeks in a series of bitter actions in the soggy jungles.

But there is a slow, difficult fight ahead before Guadalcanal is wiped clean of Japanese. This is the inescapable conclusion reached after three days at the fighting fronts 5 miles west of Henderson Field.

"It is just a question of time," said Maj. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, commanding general of the United States Army forces in the South Pacific.

He intimated it may be a matter of months—not days, not years.

"I don't worry about any offensive effort as far as the Japanese on Guadalcanal are concerned," the general said. "It is a matter of cleaning them out."

D. C. Colonel Praises Patrols.

The average of 15 Japanese killed for every American was given by Col. R. H. Jeschke of Washington, D. C., commanding officer of a

The Japanese have certain advantages now that they are on the defensive, while the Americans are moving offensively to annihilate them.

The enemy is dug into deep slit trenches and at tree bases, and camouflage themselves so perfectly you would walk into them if you didn't get shot first. The Japanese stay there and wait for the Americans.

Our men must be constantly moving and stalking, and therefore the enemy usually gets in the first shot with machine guns or rifles. But fortunately many Japanese are poor marksmen and their equipment is of inferior grade.

Each enemy "spot" or stronghold must be found and occupied. Our forces still are successfully using small patrols to outflank, attack and take these positions, but it is tough, dangerous and slow work.

Not until all the connecting links in the chain of these spots are taken from the Japanese and occupied can a new battle line be formed. If one Japanese spot holds out, the whole front is tied up.

Dive-Bomber Escorts Bag 4 Zeros In Pacific

Washington, Jan. 12—Four Japanese Zero fighter planes were shot down and one American Wildcat fighter was lost, the navy announced today, when the Japs attacked a flight of our dive-bombers in the central Solomon Islands.

RAID BY ZEROS POINTS TO JAPS

ON MUNDA BASE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—New indications that the Japanese have succeeded in putting their Munda air base into effective operation despite persistent bombing by American planes were given today in a Navy communication reporting an attack by 12 enemy fighter craft on a flight of Dauntless dive bombers in the central Solomons Islands.

Grumman Wildcat fighters protecting the dive bombers shot down four of the Zeros. One of the Wildcats failed to return.

The aerial engagement was fought Monday (Solomons time) and the same day, the communication reported, the Army's Martin Marauder medium bombers, with Airacobra fighter escort, attacked Munda but clouds "prevented accurate bombing and made observations difficult."

The attack by the 12 Zeros on the American flight occurred northwest of Guadalcanal over the waterway running between Santa Isabel Island and the New Georgia group. The Munda base is on the New Georgia group and a naval spokesman said it was probable that the Japanese planes were operating from there.

Munda, which is 180 miles from the Guadalcanal airfield, was developed by the Japanese last Fall and American planes from Guadalcanal began attacking it in late November, about the time it was being completed. Since then, it has been bombed almost daily.

U. S. Troops in Puerto Rico To Buy Dominican Produce

By the Associated Press. 12

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Jan. —United States Army forces here soon will begin importing food from Santo Domingo to reduce their own supply line and to leave Puerto Rican produce for the civilian population now suffering from a war-born depression, an Army spokesman announced [illegible]

The shorter supply line would cut the submarine hazard and release shipping for other purposes, he said, while a third advantage would be to promote friendship by providing a cash market for Dominicans, who grow more than they are able to consume.

The program, covering especially large quantities of vegetables and coffee, will begin soon in conjunction with the Food Distribution Administration, which will buy the Dominican products and ship them in small boats chartered from Santo Domingo.

In another civilian relief measure the Insular Emergency Council assigned $300,000 for direct payments to unemployable families, estimated by Juan Luis Boscio, director of unemployment relief, to number 32,250 throughout the island.

Dutch Report Indies Casualties

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Royal Netherlands East Indies Army lost 159 officers and men, Dutch and Indonesian, in fighting on islands north of Australia in the last half of 1942, an official statement said today. Most of the losses, it said, occurred in guerrilla operations on various islands. In one fight the Japanese left 200 dead on the battlefield while Dutch losses were six men, it added.

Akyab Defense Stiffens Against Wavell's Drive

Japanese Spur Resistance 15 Miles From Port, Land Troops for Burma Front

JAN 13 1943

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Japanese suddenly have displayed strong resistance in the defense of Akyab against British troops who have advanced to within about fifteen miles of that Bay of Bengal port in Burma, and have landed several thousand troops in Indo-China to bolster the Burma front, it was reported today.

A British communique from New Delhi, India, said the Japanese were "resisting strongly" against continued pressure of Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell's forces, and a Reuters correspondent with the troops said British patrols had penetrated as far as Foul Point, at the tip of the Mayu Peninsula.

This peninsula, on the west side of the Mayu River, seemed to be clear of Japanese when the enemy appeared from hiding places in the jungles and hills and attacked in the region of Donbaik, where fighting is still going on, the correspondent said. The tip of the peninsula is fifteen miles or less from Akyab.

Meanwhile, Indian patrols were reported working southward near Rathedaung, on the east side of the Mayu River.

A Chinese Army spokesman was quoted in dispatches from Chungking as saying several thousand Japanese reinforcements for Burma have been landed in Indo-China. Presumably the Japanese intend to move these men overland rather than attempt the difficult and dangerous transport journey by way of Singapore and the Bay of Bengal to Rangoon.

The spokesman said the Japanese force at Akyab was estimated at fewer than 2,000 men about a month ago.

Meanwhile, Allied air forces in India and China are being increased week by week and the British communique announced a new series of raids against the Japanese in Burma. Pintha railway station in central Burma was attacked and engines and rolling stock destroyed, two small Japanese steamers on the Chindwin River and near Akyab were damaged, buildings and railway trucks at Kyaikthin and a number of villages near Akyab, including Rathedaung and Laungchaung, were bombed.

JAN 13 1943

Brigadier General Clayton L. Bissell, commander of United States Army Air Forces in India, Burma and China, said at New Delhi that American Air strength is increasing every week while the Japanese power is on the down grade. American fighters and bombers went on 50 per cent more missions in December than in November, destroyed sixteen Japanese fighters, probably destroyed eleven and damaged three, he reported. Five fighters, including three in China, were lost. Twenty-five of December's missions were from India and twenty from China, he said.

Edward Higgins, of Glendive, Mont., recently broke his record for plane deliveries by arriving at an Indian base from Miami in sixty-six hours and five minutes, Bissell announced.

Japs Strongly Resist British Drive in Burma

By the Associated Press.

NEW DELHI, Jan. 12.—Japanese forces are resisting strongly against the attempt of British troops to drive down the Mayu peninsula of Western Burma, a communique said today.

It said there was no important change in the Rathedaung area, 25 miles above Akyab.

A series of air attacks yesterday against Japanese rail and water communications and other objectives was reported.

In a raid on the Pintha railway station in Central Burma, the communique said, two engines were destroyed and other rolling stock, was damaged.

Elsewhere, two small Japanese steamers were damaged, one on the Chindwin River and one near Akyab.

Buildings and railway trucks also were attacked at Kyaikthin and among the other places bombed were Laungchaung, Rathedaung and Japanese-occupied villages on Akyab Island, the latter last night.

No aircraft were lost in any of the attacks, the communique said.

Reaction of the Chinese press to the new treatics was generally enthusiastic, though there were minor reservations.

Special Problem Cited

The official Central Daily News said that "this bright road of liberation is paved with the blood of our revolutionary brothers of the past fifty years and the sacrifices of the last five and a half years of war."

Ta Kung Pao, citing that the abrogation of unequal treaties has been one of the cornerstones of Chinese national policy since 1927, said that new travel and commercial rights guaranteed Britons and Americans "will be a burden upon us, but we must accept them as a natural sequence of equality."

But, said Ta Kung Pao, "there are still a number of special problems not included in the new Chinese-British treaty, for example, the Kowloon-leased territory which is definitely a product of an unequal treaty." Kowloon is a part of the Hongkong area.

Silent About Arms Flow

CHUNGKING, Jan. 12 (AP).—Foreign Minister Soong refused to comment today on the President's statement that as great a quantity of lend-lease materials is reaching China by air as ever reached it over the Burma Road, now occupied by the Japanese. "This statement was on a military matter which I feel I should not discuss with you," Soong said.

Allied Victory Near, Chiang Kai-Shek Says

JAN 13 1943

Chungking, Jan. 12—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek told his armies and the people of China in a broadcast today that "we can see already the first signs of the coming victory in this world war against aggression."

Soong Hails Treaty

China's legitimate diplomatic aspirations, generally speaking, have been satisfied by the treaties signed yesterday and China can now go to the peace conference on an equal footing with her allies, Foreign Minister T. V. Soong told a press conference today.

Discussing the treaty with Great Britain, Soong said China had raised the question of the status of the Kowloon leased territory, which is part of the Hongkong area, but that the British Government was not prepared to discuss the question at present and consequently China reserved the right to revive the matter later.

Post-War Soundings

The question of the status of Hongkong itself, a British crown colony now under Japanese occupation, was not raised, Soong said.

Soong revealed that the Allies have been informally sounding out each other's post-war problems, but that no positive understandings have been reached.

He declared that President Roosevelt's recent message to Congress "was received with enthusiasm by the people of Asia."

nese people must work to make a nation "independent, free and strong."

"We can see already the first signs of coming victory in this world war against aggression," Chiang told the armies and Chinese people in a broadcast commemorating the abrogation of the unequal treaties.

"The time of the enemy's defeat is near at hand," he asserted.

The United States and Britain by their action "have lighted a new light to guide man's progress on the road to equality and freedom for all peoples. . . . Our allies have declared their basic war aim—to sustain the rule of human decency and human right—and proved their high ideals and lofty purposes. From the United States we have received especially gratifying, complete and unreserved agreement to the hopes and aspirations expressed by our Government."

The generalissimo said that when the war ends our task won't be done. We must continue as we have begun, or we shall sink back into dependency and our children and our children's children will live out their lives in bondage."

He urged greater energy, loyalty and harmony, and said those men are wrong who assumed China's destiny would be easily decided at the peace table or who believed the outcome is certain "and that China may easily participate in the fruits of future victory without a present struggle.

BULGARIAN CADETS RIOT AGAINST NAZIS

Istanbul, Jan. 11 (Delayed) (AP.).—Reports of rioting and revolt throughout Bulgaria were heard here today along with rumors that the German military authorities were threatening to oust the Sofia Government.

One account said that students at the Sofia Military College had fled to the mountains for guerrilla operations after several days of disorder.

In a broadcast picked up at New York by CBS, the British radio reported today that public anger against Germany was rising in Bulgaria, and that for ten days all telegraphic and telephone conversations between Bulgaria and the outside had been cut.

"Enormous crowds are said to have demonstrated against Bulgaria's participation in the war, and the authorities are reported to have arrested more than 25,000 persons," the broadcast added.

Bulgaria, of all the Balkan nations, has taken only a passive part in the war, though under the domination of the Axis, and has sent no troops to fight against Russia.

Action of Argentina In Attache Case Seen As Warning to Reich

Germany Is Requested To Recall Officer Accused of Espionage

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 12.—Argentina's request that Germany withdraw her naval attache here, Capt. Dietrich Niebuhr, on the grounds he is an undesirable character, was interpreted in diplomatic circles today as a warning to Berlin that the Argentine government intends to co-operate with American neighbors in ridding this continent of Axis espionage.

A government announcement last night disclosed that Capt. Niebuhr's recall had been asked after the German government refused to surrender him to the jurisdiction of the Argentine Supreme Court for trial. Accusations of espionage were made against Capt. Niebuhr after an investigation based on information supplied by the United States.

"Proofs in the investigation already effected demonstrate to this government that Capt. Niebuhr, abusing his position and privileges, has intervened in acts incompatible with his diplomatic status and with the neutral position of this country," the communique issued by Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu said.

Some diplomatic observers saw an indication that Argentina might take further steps—within the limits of her neutrality—if Berlin failed to react quickly and satisfactorily to the official request.

It was the strongest action taken against any foreign diplomat here since the German Minister Count Karl von Luxberg was expelled during the First World War as the result of a discovery by the United States State Department of coded messages in which Luxberg allegedly advised the imperial German government to "sink without trace" Argentine ships.

Charges against Capt. Niebuhr were based on the confession of Johann Jacob Napp, one of those arrested in the espionage investigation, who said he had been paid by the naval attache to furnish daily reports on Allied shipping movements from Buenos Aires.

Argentina and Chile are the only South American nations still maintaining relations with the Axis.

Cuban Sugar—The Sour Note

Growers Are Worried as War Raises Cain With Market Possibilities.

JAN 13 1943

Havana, Jan. 12 (A. P.).—Two very good neighbors have encountered a very knotty problem in trying to exchange Cuban sugar for American dollars. Relations between Cuba and the United States are perhaps at an all-time peak of friendship. Yet the two countries have been negotiating the sugar deal for many weeks without agreement. And the Cubans are getting uneasy, because the mills have to start grinding soon.

The Defense Supplies Corporation, a United States Government agency, paid $251,000,000 for 4,000,000 tons of Cuban sugar in 1942. This year another agency, the Commodity Credit Corporation, offered more than $150,000,000 for 2,600,000 tons of the 1943 crop. The price per pound was the same for both years—2.65 cents a pound in Cuba.

Several unusual circumstances have added to the obstacles normally present in a transaction of such magnitude. For one thing, the United States has made it clear that it does not actually need the 1943 Cuban crop, citing the fact that a large part of the 1942 crop—already bought and paid for—is still in Cuba.

Much of the difficulty can be traced to the shipping problem. Cuba lacks the ships to carry the sugar to the United States, and the United States merchant fleet has been pressed into service to carry troops, guns and their supplies all over the globe.

The Cubans concede that the mills fared nicely on the 1942 deal. Unofficially, industry profits for 1942 have been estimated at from forty to fifty million dollars. The mill owners and planters, however, say that the 1942 profit picture does not reflect the true financial situation because it does not take into account losses for previous years (sugar sold at seven-tenths of a cent to 1.75 cents a pound between 1932 and 1941) nor the charge-offs for such losses.

One misunderstanding in some sugar circles over the 1943 offer concerns a proposed sugar stockpile plan. Cubans said it would be a serious jolt to the industry to curtail sharply the 1943 crop, so the negotiators hit upon a plan to create a sugar stock pile. The United States offered 1.5 cents a pound to help Cuba finance a stock pile of 400,000 tons of sugar. The impression got out in some quarters that Uncle Sam was trying to buy the 400,000 tons at that price, to sell it at a profit after the war.

The truth is that the 400,000 tons would actually become a joint Cuban-American contribution to post-war relief—which in addition would meet Cuba's expressed desire to increase by that amount the size of the crop.

Enemy Carriers, Battleships Among Vessels Smashed in Major Battles.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—(AP) The aircraft carrier Hornet "made the Japanese pay dearly for her sinking," the Navy said today in releasing the full, heroic account of the ship's exploits in the battles of Midway and Santa Cruz and during raiding missions in the south Pacific.

JAN 13 1943

Identification of the ship was made known yesterday by the Navy following up its announcement last November that an aircraft carrier, then unidentified, had been so severely damaged in the Santa Cruz engagement that she had to be sunk later by other American ships.

129 Men Lost

Today's story reveals that of the Hornet's 2,900 men all but 129 were rescued by other vessels in her task force after the crew abandoned ship.

Then two destroyers were ordered to sink her with torpedoes and shells. The sinking finally was effected about dusk on October 26, ten hours after Japanese planes had mortally damaged the vessel.

A summary of the accomplishments of the Hornet's aerial squadrons — Scouting Eight, Bombing Eight, Torpedo Eight and Fighting Eight—showed they had damaged and in some instances sunk or probably sunk at least 18 Japanese ships, including aircraft carriers and battleships.

Raided Jap Bases

In addition, they had raided Japanese bases in the Solomon islands and destroyed numerous stores, small craft and munitions at such places as the Buin-Faisi area of Bougainville island and the Rekata bay area of Santa Isabel island.

Hornet's Warplanes Carried Fight to Japs, Took Heavy Toll of Ships in Daring Attacks

One of the aircraft carriers they pounded terrifically was described by the Navy as being of the Zuikaku class, dimensions of which are not known here, but which was described by the American pilots as larger than either the U.S.S. Lexington or the U.S.S. Saratoga, largest in the American Navy.

The end of the Hornet was filled with many thrilling and heroic incidents for individual members of her crew. At the height of the attack against her in the Santa Cruz battle, a 1,000-pound bomb plowed the deck and entered the room next to the ordnance room but failed to explode. The ordnance chief, working in the dark, made the bomb harmless.

At another stage of the battle, after enemy explosives had set raging fires in the ship, the fire-fighting apparatus was destroyed and a bucket brigade took over and successfully accomplished the job of extinguishing the blaze.

Saga of the Hornet

The text of the Navy's account of the Hornet's career:

"The U.S.S. Hornet, identified by the Navy department as the aircraft carrier lost October 26 in the battle of the Santa Cruz islands, wrote her valedictory in blazing gunfire. On the day she perished, the Navy task force of which the Hornet was a part, shot down 156 Japanese warplanes.

"The Hornet's final attainment, nevertheless, pales when placed alongside the destruction she logged in the five months preceding her sinking.

"Even more devastating to the enemy were the blows the Hornet struck at warships and auxiliaries. Her squadrons — Scouting Eight, Bombing Eight, Torpedo Eight and Fighting Eight — at Midway and Santa Cruz produced the following minimum results:

"At least one torpedo hit on a carrier.

"Two 1,000-pound and one 500-pound bomb hits and two 1,000-pound near-misses on battleships.

"Six 1,000-pound bomb hits on another cruiser.

"Two 500-pound bomb hits on a cruiser.

"One 1,000 and one 500-pound bomb hits on destroyers.

"One destroyer strafed by fighters.

"Seven 1,000-pound bomb hits on a carrier, larger than any American carrier, which was last seen blazing from stem to stern, and crosswind in the water.

"Four 10,000-ton transports with a capacity of approximately 5,000 men each, sunk.

"That is the damage list for Midway and Santa Cruz. At Santa Cruz, Grumman Avenger torpedo planes and Douglas Dauntless dive bombers from another U. S. carrier helped avenge the Hornet's sinking by laying two 500-pound bombs on a carrier of the Shokaku class, two 1,000-pound bomb hits on a battleship, and a torpedo hit on a cruiser. They also strafed a cruiser and shot down 23 Jap planes.

Fought Solomons Battles

"Between the Midway and Santa Cruz battles, the Hornet launched an attack on the Buin-Faisi area, scoring hits on a tanker, a light cruiser and two cargo ships, shot down several planes and bombed the Cahili airfield. They also made another raid at Rekata bay, where two beached transports were hit and burned, landing barges and supplies were fired, fuel dumps and anti-aircraft installations destroyed, and seaplanes shot down.

"Commanded at the climax of her career by Rear Admiral Charles P. Mason, U.S.N., of Pensacola, Fla., the Hornet thus made the Japanese pay dearly for her sinking. And in the final analysis, the Japs themselves could not sink her. She survived attack after attack. One raging fire was extinguished by bucket brigades after the fire-fighting apparatus was destroyed. Th Hornet was taken in tow and began to leave the battle area. Subsequent attacks damaged her badly. At the height of an attack, a 1,000-pound bomb pierced the Hornet's deck and entered the room next to the ordnance room—and it did not explode. The ordnance chief entered the room and disarmed the bomb—in the dark!

"Finally, after ten hours under attack, the order was given to torpedo the Hornet to preclude any possibility of her falling into enemy hands. But the Hornet was not done fighting. Two destroyers were ordered to sink her, and this they did with torpedoes and shells. As dusk crept over the south Pacific, the Hornet slid beneath the surface. Other surface vessels had rescued all but 129 of her complement of 2,000 men.

Torpedo Bombed off Course

"The Hornet had had a narrow brush with disaster about two months earlier, on September 6. A torpedo, launched from an enemy submarine, was speeding toward her hull when the pilot of an Avenger torpedo bomber managed to hit near the torpedo with a depth charge. The deadly missile broached and changed course, passing safely beyond the carrier.

"The enemy force faced on October 26 was one of the greatest warship concentrations in history. There were, in one group, two cruisers, seven destroyers and two carriers; in another group, two battleships, one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser, seven destroyers and one or two carriers.

"The Hornet's Scouting Squadron Eight, speeding in Dauntless dive bombers to attack the Jap carriers, contacted the ships of both forces. Led by Lieut. Comdr. William J. Widhelm, U. S. N. of Humphrey, Neb., the squadron roared past three vessels. Their orders were: Get the carrier.'

Within sighting distance of the first enemy flat-top, and after the squadron had been under constant, fierce attack by Zeros for half an hour over a distance of 75 miles, Commander Widhelm himself was shot down. His squadron—the rear gunners of which were credited with 15 Zeros—immediately closed up and went in after the carrier, a ship of the Zuikaku class, described by pilots as larger than either the U.S.S. Lexington or U.S.S. Saratoga largest in the U.S. Navy's history.

Watched Seven Bombs Hit

"From a rubber lifeboat, Commander Widhelm and his rear gunner, aviation radioman George D. Stokely, of Newport, Tenn., watched their mates lay seven 1,000-pound bombs on the deck of the carrier, which broke into roaring flames for her entire length and went virtually dead in the water.

"The remarkable dive bombing feat of Commander Widhelm's 'bombing fools' — as they had become known to the fleet — was accomplished by 11 of the Douglas dive bombers which took off from the Hornet's flight deck. One in addition to Commander Widhelms had been shot down and two others damaged, were forced to take refuge in the clouds. The remaining 11 dropped the seven one-thousand pound bombs that probably spelled the doom of the Jap carrier.

Rescued by Bombers

Commander Widhelm and Stokly were rescued by a Consolidated Catalina patrol boat three days later, and rejoined their mates and the other Hornet squadrons to continue fighting from land bases. Scouting Squadron 8 claimed a total of approximately 40 Jap planes shot down during their operations from the Hornet, mostly by their rear gunners. Commander Widhelm shot down one with his six guns.

"The saga of the Hornet began in late May 1942, when, returning to Pearl Harbor after an extended cruise in enemy waters without contacting the Japanese, she was ordered immediately to carry a squadron to the vicinity of Midway in company with a task force.

"In the Midway battle, these squadrons played a major role in defeating the Japanese fleet and rolling back the greatest threat of invasion of continental America in the war. From June 4 to 6, the hard-hitting Hornet air group made five separate attacks and scored more than 14 direct hits and two near misses on Japanese warships, heavily strafed a destroyer with .50-caliber machine gun fire, and shot down three Zeroes and two dive bombers. In addition, the Hornet acted as a foster home for the famous Fighting Squadron Three, credited with the destruction of 25 enemy airplanes and probably 15 more, after this squadron's carrier, the Yorktown, had been put out of action. The Hornet at that time was under the command of Captain (now rear admiral) Mark A. Mitscher.

"The carrier left Pearl Harbor about June 1 to help intercept the enemy force off Midway. Her airplanes took off from shore and joined her at sea. Commander Widhelm was unable to get his airplane started, and was flown out to the ship in the rear seat of a torpedo bomber. He was credited in the ensuing action with two direct hits with 1,000-pound bombs on a Japanese battleship. He received the Navy Cross for this action.

Famous Squadron Attacks

"The Hornet's air group first roared into action at nine o'clock in the morning of June 4. In search of a Japanese force of four aircraft carriers, reported to be more than 150 miles away, Torpedo Suadron 8, accompanied by fighters and dive bombers, took off on what was to prove one of the most heroic episodes of the war. Torpedo Squadron 8 pressed straight on the target in spite of the fact that it became separated from its escorting fighters. Several miles before it reached the group of enemy carriers, it was attacked by an overwhelming force of Japanese Zeros. In spite of the hopeless odds against it, the squadron never wavered, but held course straight for the carriers. First one member then another, then others in quick succession fell before the Jap attack. How many torpedo hits they scored before they finally were shot down will never be known, for only Ensign G. H. Gay U. S. N. R., returned from this squadron's heroic action. Ensign Gay himself scored a hit and it is probable that several of his squadron mates did so. All pilots from this squadron were later awarded the Navy Cross and their gunners were awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross. With the exception of Ensign Gay's all awards were post-humous.

"Some of the scout bombers which had become separated from the torpedo bombers were able to return to the carrier; the others with the accompanying fighters, returned to Midway to refuel.

"A number of the Hornet's Grumman Wildcats had remained behind to furnish a protective combat air patrol over our own carriers. These fighters helped to intercept the Japanese attack on the nearby Yorktown, and in this action shot down three Zeroes and two Japanese dive bombers.

"The second attack by the Hornet air group was launched at approximately 6 o'clock the same afternoon. A large force of Dauntless dive bombers was launched and scored three direct hits on a battleship and two on a heavy cruiser.

"The third attack came the next day, when another group of Dauntless planes was launched to search for the remaining Japanese carriers. This group was not able to locate the carriers, so attacked the nearest available target, a light cruiser, and returned to the Hornet.

"The fourth attack was launched on the morning of June 6 by a large force of Dauntless dive bombers, escorted by Wildcats. This consisting of a battleship, a heavy cruiser and three destroyers. Two 1,000-pound bombs and five 500-pound bombs fell within 50 feet of the battleship. Two other 1,000-pound bomb hits were scored on the heavy cruiser and one 500-pound bomb struck the stern of one of the destroyers. Four of the Wildcats teamed up to strafe another destroyer with their .50-caliber machine guns. This attack caused heavy personnel loses on the bridge and deck of the destroyer.

"The fifth Hornet attack was launched that afternoon by Dauntless dive bombers. Their target was a Jap force of two cruisers and two destroyers more than 100 miles distant. One of the cruisers was left completely gutted by fire, with its personnel abandoning ship."

Tells of Six Attacks.

Seattle, Jan. 12 (A. P.).—A surviving officer of the U. S. aircraft carrier Hornet related today that dive bombers, high level bombers and torpedo planes joined in six attacks which crippled the carrier fatally October 26. He was below decks for much of the battle and had to escape through a wiring tube.

"The first Jap attack came just about twenty minutes after our own planes had taken off," said Lieut. William Rummens of Seattle, an electrical officer on the carrier.

"We were a lot of decks down," Lieut. Rummens said, "when the first torpedo hit us. It knocked everybody flat. I grabbed for a hardwood rail in front of the switchboard and it came right out by the roots. And almost at the same second a bomb crashed into the ship above us and exploded and started fire blazing.

"The smoke got pretty bad. You get religion in a spot like that. I said my little prayer just like every one else. Then I began reminding myself that I was the senior officer present. There were about thirty-five men down there, in various compartments, near me, and it was up to me to lead them.

Breaks the Tension.

"You say odd things at a time like that. A seaman—a talker—standing beside me, was opening and shutting his mouth. But words weren't coming out. I said: 'Quit imitating a fish calling its mother.' I just said it, but it broke the tension.

"We worked as long as we could. The attacks continued all day. The impact of the bombs would make the switches pop out. We tried to keep them closed and check those that were damaged. But the smoke just got too black. We couldn't get up on deck because of fire. But we got into the central station two decks up where the first lieutenant was in charge.

"It looked for a while as though we were trapped down there. But we finally got out by crawling up through an electrical wiring tube. It was just about as big around as a man and crowded with wires. We had to climb up inside it for twelve stories to get out."

"I was in the water two hours," the lieutenant continued. "The Japs bombed the water ahead of me and the concussion undoubtedly killed some of our men who were swimming. I was finally picked up by a destroyer."

Signal Officer's Story.

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 12 (A. P.).—"We hit the deck—the Jap plane crashed into the signal bridge and exploded, spraying gasoline and fire all around us."

That's how his leg was injured aboard the aircraft carrier Hornet, explained Lieut (J. G.) Robert J. Noone, U. S. N. R., of Auburndale, Mass., signal officer.

'Chief Signalman Fred Guertin of Colton, Cal., and I were watching our gunners shoot down a torpedo plane which almost reached the ship," he said, "when suddenly we saw a damaged Jap plane bearing down on us at terrific speed with both guns blazing."

"Several signalmen were badly burned but all hands fought the fire.

"It was like that all over the ship. Radiomen who were not busy joined a bucket brigade. One radioman helped man a gun. Despite the noise we could hear him sing out: 'Five shots for a nickel, shoot a Jap!'

Injured Doctor Keeps Working.

"In the midst of the attack, a signalman braved enemy fire to climb a mast and string up a new halyard needed for signaling.

"One of our doctors, Lieut. Gerald McAteer suffered some fractured ribs and an injured lung but he kept working and saved several lives."

If the Japs had waited thirty minutes longer between bombing attacks, says Lieut. James G. Kelsey of Waterbury, Conn., the Hornet might have been saved.

"I believe the second bombardment, five hours after the first attack, cost our ship," Kelsey, an engineering officer aboard the carrier, declared.

"We were just warming up the generators when the new attack started. In thirty minutes, we would have had one turbine going again. That would have given us a chance to dodge the Japs."

Funeral of a Ship.

But the Hornet had a funeral.

Charles Spelina, 33, aviation chief machinist's mate, of Freeport, N. Y., a fourteen-year Navy veteran, described it:

"It was sunset and most of us were on the deck of a destroyer. Many were badly wounded, but all wanted a last look at the carrier. We felt the death of that ship with the same emotion that we would the loss of a close friend."

Spelina was in the radio room listening to reports from the Hornet's planes when the first bombs hit.

Suddenly a Jap plane crashed into the carrier, exploded in the compartment next to the radio room, and threw me ten feet across the deck. Gasoline was sprayed all over and the flames seemed to consume all the oxygen.

"I said to myself, 'Well, this is it.' Then, miraculously, I saw an opening and fought my way through the flames into the clear. I was the last man to leave that compartment."

1943

30.24-289

Hornet Sunk At Santa Cruz

JAN 13 1943

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—Names of the aircraft carrier and ten other warships lost in the battle with the Japanese off the Santa Cruz Islands on October 26 were made public yesterday by the navy. The ships previously had been announced as lost, but their names were withheld for security reasons.

The ships lost were:

The 20,000-ton aircraft carrier Hornet, commissioned a year ago; the 9,050-ton cruiser Northampton; the 6,000-ton cruisers Juneau and Atlanta; the destroyers Monssen, Cushing, Benham, Preston, Walke, Barton and Laffey.

The navy communiques on the engagements in which these vessels were lost showed, however, that a total of eighteen Japanese warships were damaged and thirty-seven sunk, comprising two battleships, eight cruisers, two large destroyers or cruisers, ten destroyers and fifteen transports.

2 Of Japanese Craft Crash On Carrier

JAN 13 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Philadelphia, Jan. 12—Gunners aboard the aircraft carrier Hornet shot down "approximately fifty-nine of the sixty-four Japanese planes" that attacked her before the order was given to abandon ship, members of her crew said here today.

Two shattered enemy planes crashed on her decks, the seamen said in statements released by the Fourth Naval District.

One exploded on the flight deck near the bridge, "starting a furious fire," and the other dived under the flight deck into a row of officers' staterooms, its controls shot away as it attempted to swerve after launching a torpedo.

Lost On October 26

The hornet was identified by the navy yesterday as the carrier previously announced as lost in the battle of the Santa Cruz Islands last October 26.

The story of her fighting death was told by Gunner's Mate Alvin Grahn, of Roseau, Minn., and fellow-crewmen now in this navy yard base. The attacking planes came in two waves, Grahn said, while the Hornet's attack planes and other units of a United States task force were defeating a Jap force northeast of Guadalcanal.

JAN 13 1943

"Our guns were all manned and ready," Grahn related. "It was just like the pause before a football game when everyone is listening for the referee's whistle for the kickoff. And suddenly a shout: 'Here they come, commence firing.'

Bet On Marksmanship

"Some of us had never fired at enemy planes and the boys were making bets on the chances of getting a crack at dive bombers and torpedo planes. Within seven or eight minutes, whe had shot down fifty of the fifty-four which came over in the first attack."

Then the second combined dive bomber-torpedo plane attack began, Grahn related.

"I counted six torpedo planes and four dive bombers and we shot down all the torpedo planes and only one bomber got away," he added.

Shooting "Thick And Fast"

"The shooting was so thick and fast," the Fourth Naval District said, "that not all the Hornet's men could keep track of it as well as Grahn."

Describing the Hornet's last hours in a hitherto unpublished interview at Nutley, N. J., a month ago, Marine Private George E. Kindmark, a survivor, told of the two Japanese planes dive-crashing to the decks. The explosions wrecked the superstructure and set the big ship aflame.

Patrol planes from the Hornet opened the battle, Kindmark related, after spotting an enemy task force off the islands, some 350 miles northeast of Guadalcanal. American torpedo planes attacked and shortly Japanese bombers retaliated.

Other Ships Ignored

"They seemed to have no other object than getting us," Kindmark observed. "Other ships were ignored."

Even after the Hornet was severely damaged the carrier's guns kept firing and the survivor counted twenty-five falling enemy planes. Then, with the carrier burning fiercely, the order was given to abandon ship.

Clifford V. Butterfield, 22, gunner's mate, from Idaho Falls, Idaho, said:

"The enemy came in all around and anti-aircraft shells filled the air with smoke. We let 'em have it and they let us have it, but so many things happened I couldn't say how many we got in the first few minutes. It was like shooting wild geese."

First Bomber Misses

Pratt Jacobs, 22, aviation metalsmith, from Camden, S. C., told this story of the first attack:

"The first dive-bomber missed us with his load and I watched him drop his bombs before I ducked for cover. The second dropped a demolition bomb that hit the deck twenty feet from me. The concussion threw me up in the air against a bulkhead.

The Hornet's bakers, Frederick Plath, of McAllen, Texas, and Joseph Laino, of Brooklyn, said, "We had 10,000 doughnuts and 5,000 mince pies cooked and ready to serve to the men during any lull in the battle, but there just wasn't any lull."

8 SUICIDE PLANES ATTACKED HORNET

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 12 (A. P.).—A surviving gunner's mate of the aircraft carrier Hornet, lost October 26 in the battle of Santa Cruz Island, said: "At one time eight Jap suicide planes dove at us from as many different directions."

He was Christopher Mammano, 30 years old, a Navy veteran of twelve years. He added:

"While I prayed, one of the planes went right through eight staterooms and fires started in all of those rooms. We hadn't any more water to fight fires with because the pressure was off."

Mammano, who told his story without mentioning the name of the ship while on furlough January 6, declared:

"The Japanese seemed determined to get us, no matter what the price. Our men had been at their battle stations, expecting anything, for twenty-four hours. The heat was unbearable and fresh water seemed the most precious thing in the world."

Rally Launches Food Program For 1943

JAN 13 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 12—President Roosevelt and other United Nations leaders patted American farmers on the back today for the food contributed to war in 1942, and reminded them that 1943 production was being counted on heavily for further steps toward victory.

A special Farm Mobilization Day broadcast, utilizing the facilities of all the major chains, carried the messages to millions of farmers, both in their homes and in many county meetings.

"Major" Victory Of 1942

The President's message, read by James F. Byrnes, director of economic stabilization, said: "In spite of the handicaps under which American farmers worked last year, the production victory they won was among the major victories of the United Nations in 1942.

"Free people everywhere can be grateful to the farm families who made that victory possible.

"Food is a weapon in total war—fully as important in its way as guns or planes or tanks.

Foe Uses It As Weapon

"Our enemies know the use of food in war. They employ it coldbloodedly to strengthen their own fighters and workers and to weaken or exterminate the peoples of the conquered countries. We of the United Nations also are using food as a weapon to keep our fighting men fit and to maintain the health of all our civilian families. We are using food to earn the friendship of people in liberated areas and to serve as a promise and an encouragement to peoples who are not yet free."

Maxim Litvinoff, Russian Ambassador, told the American soil tillers that their food "played no small part in making it possible for the Soviet troops . . . to deal mighty blows at the Fascist troops . . . to destroy Nazis by the hundred thousands, and drive them back."

Fertile Areas Overrun

Litvinoff explained that the Germans had overrun some of the most fertile areas of Russia, and the only way that Russian troops could keep on fighting—a fight he said Red troops were making for the benefit of all the United Nations—was to receive help from the outside, both in the way of food and munitions.

Lord Woolton, British food minister, speaking from London, said the Axis leaders were "depending on you (American farmers) to fail—just as we in Britain are depending on you not to fail, so that we can go on fighting and producin planes and tanks and ships as we have for the past three years."

"Will Not Be Wasted"

He emphasized that any American food shipped to England "will not be wasted."

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard said he wanted to thank all farm workers for their devotion to production, and added: "The Government is going to help all it can, but I know how short that help will fall on many occasions. . . .

"The devotion and determination and achievement of farmers was wonderful last year. This year the men on the battle lines are depending even more on American farmers."

From Guadalcanal

From the battleground on Guadalcanal, Col. William Capers James, former chief of staff to General Vandegrift, marine commander in the Solomon Islands, brought this message:

"I have seen what nourishment means to our fighting marines in the Solomons, and I can tell you that guns and bullets and fighting hard are no more important than proper food."

He said food was not abundant on Guadalcanal, but "there was enough at all times—thanks to you folks on the farm."

From The Fleet

Tying in the navy task in the war, Admiral William B. Young said "you produce—we'll deliver. On behalf of the entire fleet, I wish to say that your success will be our success—our country's success."

Milton S. Eisensower, associate director of the Office of War Information and brother of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commanding in North Africa, told of a recent visit to North Africa, where he found the country stripped bare of food and clothing. He said the American troops brought some food and more was on the way, with the result that "you can see hope once again in the eyes of men, women and children."

Sees Food In "Action"

He commented: "Thus I saw the products of American farms as an essential weapon of war."

As representatives of the farmers themselves, the program included brief talks by Edwin Keller, chairman of the Delaware County War Board in Indiana, and Mrs. Jacob Schmitz, farm woman of Jordan, Minn.

Keller said farmers in his county were doing their usual work with only a fraction of the usual amount of labor, and using less machinery, rubber and other materials.

4 Billion More For Ships Sought

JAN 13 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 12—President Roosevelt asked Congress today to provide a supplemental appropriation of $4,000,000,000 for the Maritime Commission's expanded merchant shipbuilding program.

The request submitted to the House through the Budget Bureau included also a contract authorization of $5,250,000,000, with the explanation that $3,076,280,000 of that sum is represented in the $4,000,000,000 cash equest.

Hull Seeks Fund

Also submitted to Congress today were these request for appropriations for the fiscal year 1943:

STATE DEPARTMENT—$7,433,405 for emergencies that have come up in the diplomatic and consular service due to the war. Secretary Cordell Hull listed $3,000,000 as needed for maintenance of foreign officials in this country pending their evacuation.

Another $2,100,000 was requested for the contingent fund, the purposes not described. In addition, $300,000 was sought for repairing flood damage on the Rio Grande Mexican border rectification and canalization projects.

Road Money Asked

FEDERAL WORKS AGENCY—$40,000,000 to expand the construction of access roads—the highways linking military establishments. Congress provided $74,000,000 for this purpose in December, 1941.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION—$140,500 for purchase of land in Hawaii and construction of buildings for monitoring facilities

Kiska Aid Seen Helping Japs But Little

By John M. Hightower

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Washington, Jan. 12 — Under cover of the long Arctic nights, the Japanese at Kiska Island in the Aleutians appear to have been receiving supplies and reinforcements.

Military authorities expressed the opinion today, however, that on the basis of available information the enemy's hold on their bleak outpost off Alaska probably was little if any more secure than it was last fall when army air attacks eased off because of the fog and darkness that set in with winter.

Japs Reinforced

One of the most recent indications that the Japanese have not been idle came when two Lightning fighters escorting medium bombers over Kiska Harbor were shot down by four Japanese float-type Zero planes on December 30.

The Japanese moved into Attu, Agattu and Kiska islands, the westernmost Aleutians, last June simultaneously with their attack on Midway Island. Their defeat at Midway left the northern arm of what they apparently had intended as a pincers drive on the North American continent more or less useless and soon American air and naval attacks frustrated any subsequent plan they may have worked out to generate an independent offense in the Aleutians.

U. S. Attacks Continue

Throughout the summer and well into the fall these attacks were carried out with the regularity of clockwork and the Japs lost heavily in ships and planes. The air assaults were intensified when the army, with naval support, in late September established an advanced air base in the Andreanof Islands, only 125 miles from Kiska at the nearest point.

About the same time the Japs withdrew from Attu and Agattu, where they had taken a heavy pounding, and strengthened their hold on Kiska apparently with the intention of digging in for the winter. Beginning in October, the American attacks let up somewhat because of bad weather.

Late in November a communique disclosed that the Japs had returned to Attu and set up anti-aircraft defenses which on November 26 were strafed by army fighter planes. Since then American air craft have noted various cargo or transport ships in the Kiska area.

'POLITICS' CHARGED TO HIS OPPONENTS BY EDWARD FLYNN

JAN 13 1943

Foes Know They Have No Basis for Attack, Says Democratic Leader.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 — (AP) Edward J. Flynn, retiring Democratic national chairman, said today the opposition to his appointment as minister to Australia was "purely politics." The Senate Foreign Relations committee will decide Friday whether to hold hearings on the Flynn appointment, which Senator Bridges (R.-N.H.) has termed an "insult to the people" of Australia.

"The men making these charges against me know there is no basis to them, but they know they can get the headlines by using my name," Mr. Flynn told a press conference at Democratic headquarters.

He said he had no idea whether the Foreign Relations committee would decide to call a hearing, and would make no prediction regarding his confirmation.

LaGuardia May Be Witness

Asked whether he would request Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York to testify in his behalf in the event the committee did hold a hearing, he said it was up to the committee itself to decide whom it wanted to hear. Mayor LaGuardia, here to testify on the fuel oil shortage, indicated he would not appear at a Flynn hearing unless subpoenaed, telling reporters:

"I'm not running foreign affairs. I've got enough to tend to running my own town."

Mr. Flynn said he would be available the remainder of this week, but would leave Saturday to attend a Chicago meeting of the Democratic national committee, called to name a successor to him. Postmaster General Walker has been prominently mentioned for the post, but Mr. Flynn had no comment on whether he would be selected.

Denies Paving Block Charge

Mr. Flynn reiterated his denial to charges—of which he already has been exonerated by a Bronx jury—that he used New York city paving blocks and labor to pave the courtyard of his estate.

Mr. Flynn said that if the Senate committee should call a hearing on his nomination he assumed that Sidney Baron of New York, secretary of the Committee to Reopen the Flynn Case, "and a few others would come down and do a lot of spouting." He described Mr. Baron's committee as "simply was one of those self-constituted committees that spring up."

Mr. Flynn brushed off further explanation of his premature announcement of his nomination with the comment that "it was just a comedy of errors on both sides." Mr. Flynn announced the nomination last Friday, while President Roosevelt did not send it to the Senate until Monday.

Senatorial action on Mr. Flynn's and three other nominations will be delayed until after Thursday. The committees to which the nominations were referred can take no official action until their makeup is approved by the Senate, which does not meet again until Thursday.

Confirmation of Wiley B. Rutledge, Jr., as associate justice of the Supreme court, and of former Senator Prentiss M. Brown of Michigan, as price administrator is expected to be routine.

The nomination of former Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma, as a member of the Civil Aeronautics board, may result in a full hearing. Mr. Lee's nomination is opposed by the man who defeated him for reelection, Senator Moore (R.-Okla.).

Five Brothers Lost in Sinking Of the Juneau

Sullivans Stuck Together to Avenge Friend; Mother in Iowa 'Keeps Her Chin Up'

JAN 13 1943

By The Associated Press

WATERLOO, Iowa, Jan. 13—The five Sullivan brothers, who enlisted in the Navy together soon after Pearl Harbor intent on avenging a friend killed there, are missing in action, the Navy informed their parents today.

The brothers served on the cruiser Juneau, lost in battle in the Solomon Islands area in November.

"You see," explained George Sullivan when the five enlisted, "a buddy of ours was killed in the Pearl Harbor attack—Bill Ball, of Fredericksburg, Iowa."

"That's where we want to go now, to Pearl Harbor," put in Francis, and the others nodded.

So the brothers joined the navy, with the provision that they be not separated.

They were: George T., twenty-nine years old, gunner's mate, second class; Francis H., twenty-six, coxswain; Joseph E., twenty-three, seaman, second class; Madison A., twenty-two, seaman, second class, and Albert L., seaman, second class.

Sons of Thomas F. Sullivan, a railroad freight conductor, the boys all worked for a Waterloo meat packing firm. George and Francis had completed four-year Navy hitches just six months before re-enlisting. All were single but Albert, whose wife and twenty-two-month-old son joined the brothers' mother and only sister, Genevieve, twenty-five, in their grief-stricken home.

"All we can do is hope, now," said the forty-nine-year-old mother. "Maybe they'll all show up somewhere, some day soon. But if they are gone, it will be some comfort to know they went together—as they wanted—and gave their lives for their country and victory."

Navy Secretary Frank Knox some time ago invited the mother to sponsor a Navy tug soon to be sent down the ways, and she was asked if she planned to do so. She smiled through her tears.

"Of course I'll take part. The boys would want it that way, I know.

"The boys always wrote at the end of their letters, 'keep your chin up'," Mrs. Sullivan recalled. "And now's a good time to do just that."

Navy officers said at Washington the loss of the five brothers was the heaviest blow suffered by any single family since Pearl Harbor and "probably in American naval history," since Navy policy is to divide members of family in war service.

The Lou Gehrig's Launching Sunday

South Portland, Maine, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Liberty ship Lou Gehrig, named for the late baseball player, will be launched Sunday at the South Portland Shipbuilding Corporation's west yard.

Arthur Sewall 2d, yard executive, said today that Mrs. Christine Gehrig, mother of the ballplayer, would sponsor the craft.

The name for the cargo vessel was selected by school children of New York State in the recent salvage campaign.

Admiral Lost With Atlanta

Norman Scott Went Down With His Ship in Guadalcanal Battle

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 12 (AP)—Rear Admiral Norman Scott, formerly of Kirkwood, Mo., lost his life when the cruiser Atlanta was sunk during a battle off Guadalcanal in November, it was disclosed today.

His death had been previously reported, but not the circumstances nor time. Announcement by the Navy Department in Washington yesterday of the loss of the Atlanta permitted the disclosure that the admiral had gone down with the Atlanta in the naval engagement of Nov. 13 to 15.

How Atlanta Was Hit.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 12 (A. P.)—The cruiser Atlanta proudly outlasted a Japanese fleet she had helped destroy off the Solomon Islands in mid-November but was so badly damaged, a crewman revealed here, that demolition experts from her own crew set the charges that sent her to a glorious grave.

John Dean Ferguson, 24 years old, electrician first class, told the story today.

The morning after the battle the Atlanta lay dead in the water, unable to maneuver and without power. Only two gun turrets were operating, and those by manual control. Yet the ship flashed a challenge to a large fighting vessel that moved along the horizon.

That craft turned out to be a friendly ship which later located a disabled Japanese vessel and blasted it to the bottom.

The big battle, in which the Atlanta took part, lasted but seventeen minutes, said Ferguson, although actions and counteractions leading up to it stretched through three days.

Burial Service Interrupted.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 12 (A. P.)—Burial services for crew members of the aircraft carrier Hornet, killed when the vessel was attacked by waves of Japanese airplanes, were interrupted by another aerial assault that further crippled the craft, her chaplain related here.

Telling of the attacks in which seventy-five bombers and torpedo planes and nine high level bombers participated, Lieut.-Commander Edward B. Harp Jr. of Hagerstown, Md., said the first encounter lasted less than an hour.

When quiet returned, he added, the seriously wounded were transferred to cruisers and destroyers standing by.

"Then it was decided that we would collect the dead on the open decks," he said. "They were brought up and the bodies were prepared for burial. We buried thirty-five, five at a time. Each was given the customary burial service at sea.

"While the service was in progress the alarm was given and an other attack was on."

That attack, however, caused "very few casualties" but the vessel's list increased until "we almost had to hang on to keep from sliding overboard."

The aircraft carrier Hornet was badly crippled by repeated attacks by Japanese planes, some of which deliberately crashed on the decks, with full bomb loads, Marine Private George E. Kindmark, a survivor, told friends in Nutley, N. J., while on furlough last month.

"They seemed to have no other object than getting us," said the Marine. "Other ships were ignored. Two planes dive-crashed on our decks, wrecking the superstructure with explosions and setting us afire. Their pilots died in their own flaming planes."

Private Kindmark said that he and his companions "swam desperately to get out of the sea of gasoline and Diesel oil around the carrier." Some time later, he said, he was picked up by a destroyer—but only after a school of sharks had passed within 300 feet without molesting him.

Lost Destroyer Made Foe Pay To Blazing End

JAN 13 1943

The Laffey Surrounded, Blasted 4 Enemy Vessels in Final Burst of Glory

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12 (AP)—At the height of a naval battle in the Solomons the huge hulk of a Japanese battleship came slashing through the darkness at a speed close to twenty-five knots. In her path was the American destroyer Laffey, first of a swift new series of such ships.

The captain of the Laffey, Lieutenant Commander William Edwin Hank, of Norfolk, Va., and the crew were set for a kill that night. A few minutes earlier they had silenced the guns of a Japanese cruiser, but this was bigger game.

A report of the 12th Naval District told today of the battle that raged Nov. 12 and 13.

The Laffey rocketed straight at the battleship, engines racing at "emergency full." To the crew of the destroyer it must have appeared that Commander Hank was hurling his vessel at the enemy battleship in a suicide thrust. But he had other plans—plans that had to be true to the last decimal.

When the range was right, Commander Hank let go with a salvo of torpedoes. But the Laffey was moving almost as fast as the torpedoes, and it was clear that with both ships heading at full speed for the same spot the destroyer was going to be there first. By how much? Every man held his breath.

The Navy report said: "As the bows crossed, an alert Jap on the forward deck could have tossed a hand grenade onto the deck of the destroyer." The margin was just over ten feet, but the racing Laffey got clear in time.

It appeared that two of the torpedoes hit the battleship.

And then, as a parting insult, the Laffey's four five-inch guns were turned on the battleship's massive superstructure, focused on the bridge. The bridge appeared literally to pulverize and blow away. "It was shot completely off the ship," the Navy stated.

The battleship started blazing away with secondary guns—she couldn't depress her larger batteries far enough—as the Laffey widened the range. Then the destroyer found herself separated from her companion ships and surrounded by the enemy. There was a battleship on her stern, a second on her port beam and two large destroyers on the port bow.

The Laffey and the two destroyers opened fire simultaneously. The Laffey put one out of action and left her burning briskly, but the other put a torpedo into the Laffey and got a fair hit on the deck.

The Laffey still had three five-inch guns working, and turned them on the remaining destroyer in a no-quarter duel at point-blank range. Damage to both ships was tremendous. One after another the Laffey's guns were silenced. Finally she was down to a single gun, but kept on fighting. The Japanese destroyer tried to creep away, but exploded and sank.

The Laffey was alone on the darkened sea, her guns silenced and a fire out of control. Then the damaged battleship straddled the Laffey with a salvo of fourteen-inchers. The destroyer was almost swamped.

The fire was burning without hope of recovery. The wounded men were put on life rafts, the others in life jackets. Commander Hank gave orders to abandon ship.

Commander Hank and three other officers were on deck forward. A medical officer was bringing up the last wounded man from the sick bay.

An explosion ripped the Laffey apart, sinking her immediately. The medical officer was trapped below; Commander Hank was never seen again.

Dead Japs And Candy

San Francisco, Jan. 12 (AP)—Handfuls of candy in reward for dead Japs have won the native warriors of Guadalcanal to the American cause, reports Capt. Irving C. Cassell, 24, of Marine Corps Intelligence.

"It's a game with the natives out there, who hate the Japs for their mistreatmnet," he said.

"The Solomon Islanders, who had their gardens robbed—the No. 1 sin—first thought the Americans and Japs were fighting together.

1943

30.24—291

but soon learned differently.

"One day several natives were found after having killed some Japs for personal reasons. The marines gave them candy.

"The next day an outrigger canoe came across from another island bearing four or five dead Japs and several grinning natives. They wanted to trade the dead Japs for more candy.

"It was a game. They liked it, and so did the marines.

"The natives have organized a scouting service to aid the marines, and it is not rare for natives to come to officers and tell them locations of Jap patrols."

Ten Die as Army Plane Crashes in New Mexico

B-24 Wrecked at Alamogordo Base; Victims Identified

ALAMOGORDO, N. M., Jan. 12 (AP).—Ten airmen were killed in the crash of a B-24 Army bomber at the Alamogordo Army Air Base today. The plane was on a routine flight, the base said, and the cause of the accident will be determined by a board of inquiry.

Listed as killed were Lieutenants William F. Schulte, of Denver, pilot; Elmer Molique, of Dayton, Ohio, co-pilot; Billie D. Stults, of Ozark, Mo.; Raymond W. Wherling, of Pittsburgh; Private Floyd J. Pekrul, of Matteon, Ill.; Sergeants Justin P. Young, of Easton, Pa.; Paul D. Miller, of Muscoda, Wis.; Willie F. Rose, of Ashland, Ky.; Warren S. Leeper, of Blunt, S. D., and Robert C. McCormick, of Los Angeles.

Sunken Freighter Raised At Halifax

Halifax, Jan. 12 (AP)—Described as one of the biggest salvage jobs of its kind ever undertaken in Canada, a freighter has been lifted from the bottom of the Halifax harbor and is being made seaworthy again in a Halifax shipyard.

The case was similar to the capsizing of the Normandie at New York. The freighter, filled with food for Britain, caught fire and sank at her pier February 7, 1941. It rolled over and was resting on its side in the mud.

Canada Asks Murray to Act In Steel Union Strike

By the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, Nova Scotia, Jan. —The Canadian Labor Department tonight asked Philip Murray, president of the United Steel Workers of America (CIO), for his "active intervention" after 5,000 workers struck at the huge Dominion Steel & Coal Corp. plant here, and another estimated 5,000 at the Algoma Steel Corp. at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, voted unanimously to strike tomorrow.

The strike here and the threatened walkout at Sault Ste. Marie by the SWOC unions in protest against the majority report of the Barlow Steel Commission, which recommended that no increases be made in steel workers' basic wages except for certain categories of maintenance men.

The strike climaxed two years of effort of steel workers to obtain higher wages.

In a telegram to Mr. Murray, the Labor Department explained that special representatives had been appointed to carry out the commission's recommendations, and asked Mr. Murray's aid in urging the unions at Sydney and Sault Ste. Marie "to meet managements of steel companies concerned and my representatives in conference. The plan of conciliation should at least be given a fair trial" and might "dispose of many of the disputed rates."

Canada Delays 18-Year-Old Call

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 (CP).—Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service, announced today that no early downward extension of the age classes liable for compulsory military service is contemplated by his branch. "It has been decided not to call eighteen-year-olds at this time," he said.

Canada Expanding Air Output

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Munitions Department announced today that Canada has produced 6,500 aircraft since July, 1940, that this year the construction program will be vastly expanded and that 50 per cent of Canada's plane output will be sent abroad. Of the 6,500 planes built in thirty months, 5,000 remained in Canada for training use.

$1,000,000 Cash Paid For Abitibi Plant

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Jan. 12. — Purchase price of the Abitibi Power & Paper Co. plant at Espanola, Ontario, was $1,000,000 cash, it was disclosed today by Ralph A. Hayward, president of the Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment Co. of Michigan, the new owner.

Hayward said the Espanola plant was acquired by the Kalamazoo company in preparation for its post-war program, but he added that beyond a general "stockout out" survey, no arrangements had been made as to when work will start at the plant. It was expected engineering plans would be completed by February 1.

Austrian Prince Enters U. S. Army

New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—Prince Gaetan de Bourbon Parme of Austria today became a private in the United States Army.

The 37-year-old brother of former Empress Zita and uncle of Archduke Otto was inducted in ceremonies in the Orchid Room of Delmonico's, now used by the draft board.

The prince, father of an 11-year-old daughter, Diane, now in France, fought with Franco in the Spanish civil war of 1936. He said he was wounded six times.

He has been in the United States fourteen months.

Germans Get Bad News

By The Associated Press

Lieutenant General Kurt Dietmar, German military commentator, blamed Russian numerical superiority, the weather and skillful timing of counter-blows by Russia's generals for the German Army's situation on the eastern front, in a broadcast to the German people from the Frankfurt radio station Monday night. Excerpts from the broadcast were made public by the Office of War Information yesterday.

In a "review of the eastern front at the turn of the year," Dietmar said the Russians had achieved an "indisputably great advantage" because of their greater numbers, while Germany made "restrained and sparing use" of classes of military age, "absolutely in accordance with conducting a war of long duration."

Of the current Russian offensives on the Don River and in the Caucasus, he said skillful German leadership and elasticity in fighting methods "have so far absolutely denied the Soviets any tangible success."

Concerning Russia's timing of counter-strokes, and the help they got from the weather, Dietmar said: "During the winter last year, the Soviets hit at the right moment. It was not [illegible] one who knew the [illegible] to [illegible] period of late autumn [illegible] frost, which sets in very [illegible] to a great extent eliminate [illegible] strongest arm of the German [illegible] mand—mobility."

Answering his own question, "How about this winter?" he said:

"Once again the German offensive of summer and autumn has been followed by a Soviet counter-blow, the extent of which is beyond all doubt. The weight of the attack is far more concentrated than in the previous year.

"Beginning the 2d and 3d of November they were directed against the flanks of the German attacking wedge which was thrust forward against the Volga at Stalingrad. Here the enemy has made breaches of no inconsiderable depth, but so far he has not been able to shake the German position in and around Stalingrad."

JAPS SEIZE COLLEGES

A new college "to meet the Japanese Government's requirements for leaders to work on the Asiatic mainland and in the southern regions under wartime conditions" will be opened shortly in the buildings of the University of Shanghai, an American Baptist institution, the Tokio radio said today.

It broadcast a Domei dispatch from Shanghai which mentioned this as one of several sequels to the action of Japan's puppet Nanking government of China in declaring war on the United States and Britain.

The University of Shanghai was one of the outstanding American educational institutions in China.

Twenty American or British members of the faculty of St. John's University, an Episcopal school at Shanghai, "will be dismissed when the present term ends January 30 and replaced by equally qualified teachers," the broadcast said.

BY ALFRED F. WALL

(ADVANCE) LONDON, THURSDAY, JAN.14-(AP)-THE AERIAL WATCHDOGS OF BRITAIN'S COASTS AND SEA LANES FLEW 55 MILLION MILES IN THE FIRST TWO YEARS OF THE WAR, ESCORTED 4,947 CONVOYS AND MADE 587 ATTACKS ON ENEMY SUBMARINES, THE AIR MINISTRY REPORTED IN A NEW BOOKLET ENTITLED "COASTAL COMMAND."

THE BOOKLET PUBLISHED TODAY IS ONE OF A SERIES ON THE BRITISH AIR FORCE, THE FIRST OF WHICH WAS "BATTLE OF BRITAIN." IT TELLS OF THE INTREPID YOUNG MEN IN WHOM ARE COMBINED THE BRITISH HERITAGE OF NAUTICAL SKILL AND THE RAF'S AERONAUTICAL GENIUS AND FIGHTING SPIRIT.

AMERICAN-MADE HUDSONS, CATALINAS AND LATER LIBERATORS PLAYED A BIG PART IN THE COASTAL COMMAND'S INVALUABLE SERVICE TO THE CAUSE OF THE UNITED NATIONS, THE BOOKLET SAID.

MAGNIFICENTLY ILLUSTRATED, THE 144-PAGE PUBLICATION SHOWS MANY PICTURES NEVER BEFORE PUBLISHED, INCLUDING A STRIKING RECONNAISSANCE PHOTOGRAPH OF THE GERMAN BATTLESHIP BISMARCK IN HELTJE FJORD JUST BEFORE SHE WEIGHED ANCHOR FOR HER LAST FATEFUL TRIP.

ALSO PUBLISHED FOR THE FIRST TIME IS ONE OF THE MOST DARING RECONNAISSANCE PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE WAR, OBTAINED BY A COASTAL COMMAND PLANE WHICH SLIPPED OUT OF THE CLOUDS AND GOT A SHARP, DETAILED CLOSEUP OF A HIPPER CLASS CRUISER IN DRYDOCK AT BREST FROM AN ALTITUDE OF ONLY 500 FEET. JAN 13 1943

ANOTHER NEW PICTURE SHOWS A ONE-TIME "SECRET WEAPON" -- A LARGE HOOPLIKE DEVICE FITTED TO WELLINGTON BOMBERS EARLY IN THE WAR FOR EXPLODING MAGNETIC MINES.

THE FUNCTION OF THE COASTAL COMMAND -- "TO FIND THE ENEMY, TO STRIKE THE ENEMY, TO PROTECT OUR SHIPS" -- HAS LED TO THE FORMATION OF A GREAT ORGANIZATION WORKING IN FULL COOPERATION WITH THE ADMIRALTY, ALTHOUGH ITS MEMBERS WEAR THE RAF UNIFORM INSTEAD OF NAVAL BLUES, THE PUBLICATION POINTED OUT.

THE COASTAL COMMAND'S BIGGEST TASK IS THE BATTLE OF THE ATLANTIC. ITS STRENUOUS EFFORTS ARE CREDITED WITH GREATLY REDUCING THE MENACE OF FOCKE-WULF KONDOR AIR RAIDERS AND ITS RELENTLESS PATROLS HAVE PROVE A BIG HINDRANCE TO ENEMY SUBMARINES.

WEATHER HAS BEEN A WORSE FOE OF THE COASTAL COMMAND THAN THE GERMAN AIR FORCE, THE BOOKLET DECLARES, BUT PATROLS HAVE BEEN MAINTAINED OVER THOUSANDS OF SQUARE MILES OF SEA FROM ICY GREENLAND TO THE SWELTERING TROPICS OF EQUATORIAL AFRICA.

SEA RESCUES HAVE BEEN AN IMPORTANT PART OF THE WORK. IN THE FIRST TWO YEARS OF THE WAR ABOUT 3,000 PERSONS ADRIFT ON THE SEA AFTER U-BOAT ATTACKS WERE SIGHTED AND HELPED BY COASTAL COMMAND PLANES.

RICH WITH ANECDOTES, BOTH HUMOROUS AND PATHETIC, THE BOOKLET TELLS AMONG OTHER THINGS HOW A PATROL PLANE IN DIFFICULTIES 200 MILES OFF ICELAND ON CHRISTMAS EVE RADIOED "SOS. AM LANDING IN THE SEA. MERRY CHRISTMAS."

THAT TALE HAD A HAPPY ENDING, HOWEVER, FOR THE PLANE MANAGED TO GET HOME ON ONE ENGINE.

A BRITISH INDIAN OUTPOST IN NORTH-CENTRAL BURMA, JAN 11-(DELAYED) (AP)-STRONG COMMUNICATION LINES ARE BEING STRETCHED SLOWLY BUT SURELY FROM STRATEGIC CENTERS IN INDIA TO POINTS IN BURMA FOR EVENTUAL BRITISH INDIAN USE AGAINST THE JAPANESE.

JAN 13 1943

BY TRAIN, TRUCKS, JEEP AND FOOT, I TRAVELED A LONG WAY OVER ONE OF THESE LINES TO THIS OUTPOST WHERE WORKERS ARE HACKING THEIR WAY THROUGH DENSE JUNGLES AND OVER MOUNTAINS.

THE DETAILS OF THIS TREMENDOUS PROJECT MUST REMAIN SECRET, BUT IT'S AN IMPRESSIVE UNDERTAKING AND FEW ENGINEERING PROBLEMS ARE AS DIFFICULT. THE ROAD RUNS MOSTLY THROUGH MOUNTAINS WHERE NO ROAD EVER EXISTED AND FEW TRAILS. MILES OF ROADBED ARE BLASTED OUT OF ROCK ON MOUNTAINSIDES OVERHANGING VALLEYS. PARTS OF THE ROAD ARE ABOVE THE CLOUDS.

THE WORK IS BEING DONE MOSTLY BY COOLIES, INCLUDING WOMEN. I SAW THOUSANDS OF COOLIES USING METHODS GENERATIONS OLD. THEY CARRIED DIRT ON THEIR HEADS IN WICKER BASKETS. THEY CRUSHED STONES ONE BY ONE WITH HOME-MADE HAMMERS. THEY SLASHED THROUGH THE JUNGLE WITH LONG HEAVY KNIVES THAT ALSO ARE USEFUL WEAPONS.

MODERN EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING ILLINOIS-MADE BULLDOZERS, WHEREVER POSSIBLE, BUT THE COOLIES CAN WORK IN PLACES WHERE THE HUGE MACHINES CANNOT GO.

THE TRIP BY JEEP WAS A HAZARDOUS ONE OVER CORKSCREW TURNS ALONG PRECIPITOUS LEDGES, AND ALONG THE WAY I SAW TROOPS BEING TRAINED IN EVERY CONCEIVABLE PHASE OF JUNGLE WARFARE. SOME OF THE INDIAN TROOPS NEED LITTLE TRAINING BECAUSE THEY GREW UP IN THE MOUNTAINS AND JUNGLES.

JAN 13 1943

DESPITE THE INTENSE HARDSHIPS OF WORKING IN THIS AREA THE MORALE OF BRITISH TROOPS IS HIGH. AT ONE POINT I CAME ACROSS A BRITISH SERGEANT FAR BACK IN THE WOODS WHERE HE WAS HELPING CLEAR A PATH FOR TELEPHONE LINES. HE WAS LUSTILY SINGING "TREES."

on the western front of guadalcanal, dec. 30 (delayed)-

(ap)-- another story of american courage and skill in combat came out of the guadalcanal jungle today when a marine patrol reported it had killed 110 japanese, while the american losses were only nine killed and 17 wounded.

led by major. ewart scott laue, of seattle, wash., a large patrol started out on the morning of dec. 26, their object to contact the enemy on the western slopes of mount austen, which is a prominent feature of the dominating part of the western front.

JAN 13 1943

they ran into snipers all day long, and bivouacked overnight. early in the morning they pushed on, but ran into heavy enemy opposition consisting of machine gun nests and riflemen in trees.

the japanese position was on a ridge behind which lay a large valley. the japanese undoubtedly were protecting a large [illegible] bivouac area.

when the major reported the situation, p-39 fighters bombed and artillery worked over the japanese.

the major knew it would be suicidal to storm the enemy at the moment, and withdrew his patrol to the bivouac of the preceding night.

JAN 13 1943

the japanese mistakenly thought they had routed the marines in retreat. they charged and the marines blasted away with maching guns, rifle fire, and hand grenades. few japanese were ever able to return to their positions.

another small marine patrol returned today after killing 17 japanese, capturing two machine guns, four automatic rifles, and blowing up a large amount of ammunition.

this raid was planned and led by lieut. henry h. roswick, of international falls, minn., with lieut. charles prackett, san diego, calif., second in command.

corp. [illegible] calhoun vestal of whitewright, tex., killed six of the enemy with his tommygun, and private h.d.t. slack of tripoli, iowa, accounted for four.

JAN 13 1943

corp. robert voorhees, cascade, mont., killed two before being slightly wounded. sergt. george johnson, mardis, miss., killed three.

1943

30.24-299

JAN 13 1943

others giving important aid included private james h. and varnado, cayka, miss., private michael kontz, milwaukee.

all the men didn't get credit for killing an enemy because when two had to fire at the same target, no credit was given for "half a japanese."

the patrol had only four slightly wounded, and all were able to return to their own base under their own power.

somewhere on guadalcanal, dec. 25 (delayed)-(AP)--a group of army officers at christmas dinner in a crude mess hut began to talk today of where they had been the last few christmases, and where they would like to be this one.

maj. henry b. shea, walpole, mass., remarked he would just like to see his wife and daughter, joanne, 16, and didn't care where.

a messenger appeared, and announced the mail had arrived.

shea hurried out, and reappeared a few minutes later with a leather portfolio and a wide grin.

JAN 13 1943

the portfolio contained large pictures of mrs. shea and joanne, which had arrived in the nick of time to make it a merry christmas for the major.

GUADALCANAL, DEC. 5 (DELAYED)--SECOND LIEUTENANT GEORGE S. (SONNY BOY) WALKER, USMC, FORMER HEAVYWEIGHT BOXER AND SERVICE CHAMPION, DELIVERED THE FINAL K.O. TO A NUMBER OF JAPS RECENTLY WHILE LEADING PATROLS IN THE MATANIKAU RIVER SECTOR.

SECOND LIEUT. WALKER AND HIS MEN MADE FREQUENT CONTACT WITH THE ENEMY. TWICE THEY RAN ACROSS JAP MACHINE GUN NESTS. LEADING HIS MEN, WALKER HURLED GRENADES, WHICH WERE FOLLOWED BY RIFLE FIRE FROM THE ENTIRE COMPANY. THE CREWS OF BOTH ENEMY GUNS WERE WIPED OUT.

JAN 13 1943

CORPORAL CALHOUN H.VESTAL, OF WHITEWRIGHT, TEX., A MEMBER OF THESE PATROLS, WHO ACCOUNTED FOR THREE JAPANESE WITH HIS RIFLE, SAID:

"LIEUTENANT WALKER IS AS COOL AS A MAN CAN POSSIBLY BE UNDER FIRE.

HE SET A FINE EXAMPLE. I'M ANXIOUS TO GO OUT WITH HIM AGAIN."

VESTAL'S SENTIMENTS WERE REFLECTED BY OTHER MEN WHO BESIEGED LIEUTENANT WALKER WITH REQUESTS TO ACCOMPANY HIS PATROLS.

THE LIEUTENANT, OF HUGE PROPORTIONS, ENLISTED IN THE MARINES BEFORE PEARL HARBOR AND WAS COMMISSIONED A SECOND LIEUTENANT WHILE IN THE FIELD.

SONNY BOY WALKER FOUGHT AS A HEAVYWEIGHT UNDER THE MANAGEMENT OF FRANK SCHULER OF SAN FRANCISCO FROM 1935-40 AND WAS RATED AN OUTSTANDING BOXER AND FAIR PUNCHER. HE WON AND LOST DECISIONS IN TWO FIGHTS WITH TOMMY LOUGHRAN AND TWICE DEFEATED EDDIE SIMMS, CLEVELAND, AND ANDRE LENGLET OF FRANCE.

I FOLLOWED SUIT, DIVED FOR THE NEAREST CLUMP OF DESERT GRASS, AND RAISED MY HEAD JUST IN TIME TO SEE THE FIRST ME-109 ROAR ACROSS THE FIELD AT A HEIGHT OF ABOUT 30 FEET, THE LEADING EDGES OF ITS WINGS SEEMING TO BREAK INTO A SHEET OF FLAME AS ITS GUNS OPENED UP.

ALL AROUND HEADS WERE POPPING UP TO WATCH THE SHOW.

WE JUST HAD A GLIMPSE OF OTHER MESSERSCHMITTS SWINGING TOWARD US AND P-40'S RESEMBLING NOTHING SO MUCH AS ANGRY WASPS ROARING TO MEET THEM, WHEN SOMEBODY YELLED. WE ALL FLATTENED DOWN AGAIN AS A SECOND ATTACKER CAME IN LOW, ITS GUNS SPITTING.

JAN 13 1943

THERE SEEMED TO BE DOGFIGHTS ALL OVER THE SKY WHEN OUR HEADS CAME UP AGAIN.

ONE FIGHTER TOO FAR AWAY TO BE IDENTIFIED WENT INTO A SPIN AND APPEARED ABOUT TO CRASH.

JUBILANT YELLS WENT UP ALL AROUND ME UNTIL SOMEONE SAID IT LOOKED LIKE A P-40. WE LEARNED LATER HE WAS RIGHT. ONLY THEN THE HAPPY PILOT PULLED OUT A FEW HUNDRED FEET ABOVE THE GROUND AND PROMPTLY CLIMBED AGAIN TO JOIN THE FREE-FOR-ALL IN THE CLOUDS.

30.24-301

A MESSERSCHMITT WHICH HAD BEEN LURKING OVER THE HILLS OUT OF SIGHT DARTED IN AND TRIED TO GET DOWN TO STRAFE THE FIELD, BUT STREAM OF TRACERS FROM THE GROUND KEPT HIM OFF BALANCE UNTIL A P-40 SPOTTED HIM AND CHASED HIM AWAY.

I STILL CROUCHED ANXIOUSLY WATCHING THE DISTANT SPECKS OF FLEETING GERMANS AND PURSUING P-40'S WHEN I HEARD A CASUAL VOICE ASK: "LOST YOUR APPETITE?"

JAN 13 1943

ONLY THEN DID I REALIZE EVERYBODY ELSE KNEW THE RAID WAS OVER AND WAS EATING BREAKFAST.

AT A UNITED STATES FORWARD AIR BASE IN TUNISIA, JAN 11-(DELAYED) -(AP)--LIGHT A-20 DOUGLAS HAVOC BOMBERS ESCORTED BY CURTISS P-40 WARHAWKS ROARED DOWN NEARLY TO THE GROUND LEVEL TO SMASH A CONCENTRATION OF AXIS TROOPS AND TRUCKS IN A SURPRISE DAWN RAID AT KEBILI TODAY.

SECTIONS OF THE GARRISON 60 MILES WEST OF GABES AT THE END OF THE CHOTT DJERID WERE CAUGHT OFF BALANCE AND THE HAVOCS UNLOADED THEIR BOMBS SQUARELY ON THE BUILDINGS HOUSING MOSTLY ITALIAN TROOPS. TRUCKS AND SUPPLY DUMPS CONCEALED IN ADJOINING OLIVE GROVES ALSO WERE SPATTERED WITH BOMB FRAGMENTS AND A HAIL OF FLYING GRAVEL.

CAPT.C.B.SHARPLESS OF WILMINGTON, DEL., LEADER OF THE FLIGHT SAID "WE CAME LOW AT 20 FEET AND HAD TO SWERVE TO MISS THOSE PYLONS IN THE TOWN. OUR FIRST BOMB STARTED A LOT OF FIRES IN THE GROVE WHERE THEIR MOTOR TRANSPORTS WERE PARKED, AND WE USED THE FIRE TO GUIDE US ON THE SECOND RUN."

JAN 13 1943

IT WAS THE FIRST TIME KEBILI HAD BEEN ATTACKED AND THE RAIDERS MET ONLY LIGHT FLAK AND MACHINEGUN FIRE. NO ENEMY FIGHTERS APPEARED.

THE WARHAWK ESCORT, LED BY LIEUT.COL.WILLIAM W.MOMYER OF SEATTLE, WASH., WHO TWO DAYS AGO SHOT DOWN A MESSERSCHMITT 109 OVER KAIROUAN AND EARLIER DESTROYED A JUNKERS 88 AND DAMAGED ANOTHER, ALSO STRAFED ITALIAN MACHINEGUN POSTS.

JAN 13 1943

AMONG THOSE WHO TOOK PART IN THE RAID WERE:

CAPTIANS REGINALD CLIZBE, WASHINGTON, D.C., AND GEORGE PHENIX, OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA; LIEUTENANTS DAVE HEDGES, BASCOM, O., DAVID E. YOUNG, OKLAHOMA CITY, B.C.SMITH, COWPENS, S.C., AND VICTOR E. GUALTIRE, ATLANTIC CITY, N.J.; STAFF SERGEANT MAURICE KAUFER, HOLLYWOOD, CAL.; SERGEANTS KENNETH SHEPARD, UNION CITY, PA., MILTON R.MOLZAHN, GREEN BAY, WIS., WILLIAM G.TELL, LAKELAND, FLA., KEITH V.DONOHUE, ST.JOSEPH, MO., H.R.ADAMS, TEMPLE, PA., R.P. BURDEN, PARIS, KY., CHARLES IRONS, 15895 WARK AVE., DETROIT, MICH., ROBERT L.THURMAN, HEMET, CALIF., AND HARRY W.EVANS, CLARENDON, TEX.; AND PRIVATE MORRIS HYDE, MALDEN, MASS.

TOKYO (FROM JAPANESE BROADCASTS), JAN.12-(AP)-A NEW AGREEMENT COVERING THE EXPORT OF RICE AND OTHER GRAIN FROM FRENCH INDO-CHINA TO JAPAN HAS BEEN CONCLUDED BETWEEN SHIGERU KURIYAMA, JAPANESE ENVOY, AND GOVERNOR GENERAL ADMIRAL JEAN DECOUX, DOMEI REPORTED TODAY IN A DISPATCH FROM SAIGON.

KURIYAMA ANNOUNCED THE PACT, DOMEI SAID, BUT DECLINED TO GIVE THE AMOUNTS INVOLVED.

JAN 13 1943

(AN EARLIER AGREEMENT IMPOSED BY JAPAN ON THE INDO-CHINA GOVERNMENT CALLED FOR THE ANNUAL EXPORT OF 700,000 TONS OF RICE TO JAPAN, BUT THERE HAVE BEEN REPORTS THAT THIS HAS NEVER BEEN FULFILLED OWING LARGELY TO JAPAN'S SHIPPING SHORTAGE.)

THE TIME TO DECIDE THE DESTINY OF OUR NATION IS NOW. THE CHOICE IS PLAIN BEFORE US. ARE WE TO BE MASTERS IN OUR OWN HOUSE OR ARE WE HEREAFTER AS IN THE PAST TO OBEY THE VOICE OF OTHERS?

JAN 13 1943

"AT SUCH TIME THERE IS NO ROOM FOR PROCRASTINATION OR LETHARGY OR DOUBT. FROM THIS MOMENT WE MUST WORK STILL HARDER AND BEAR WITHOUT COMPLAINT GREATER DEPRIVATIONS THAN WE HAVE DONE FOR THE PAST FIVE AND A HALF YEARS."

THE UNEQUAL TREATIES, CHIANG DECLARED, HINDERED CHINESE EFFORTS TO BUILD A NATION, IMPLANTED DISUNITY, SOCIAL CHAOS, TAUGHT "OUR PEOPLE A SENSE OF INFERIORITY" AND "EVEN TODAY WE ARE WITHOUT THE SELF-CONFIDENCE OR [illegible] COURAGE WHICH SHOULD BE OURS.

"BUT NOW THAT THE UNEQUAL TREATIES HAVE BEEN ABOLISHED THEIR INFLUENCE IS ALSO GONE. HENCEFORTH IF WE ARE WEAK, IF WE LACK SELF-CONFIDENCE, THE FAULT WILL BE OURS ONLY."

JAN 13 1943

NEW EVIDENCE COMES FROM TOKYO THAT GENERAL TOJO AND HIS COLLEAGUES ARE STRUGGLING AGAINST THE SOUL-CHILLING REALIZATION THAT JAPAN IS LOSING THE BATTLE OF PRODUCTION, A CONTEST IN WHICH THE FANATICAL FIGHTING CODE OF THE SAMURAI IS OF LITTLE AVAIL. ONCE MORE THEY HAVE INVOKED THE AWFUL PRESTIGE OF THE EMPEROR IN AN APPEAL TO WAR WORKERS TO INCREASE OUTPUT. THE TOKYO RADIO ANNOUNCES THAT WITHIN A FEW DAYS AIDES-DE-CAMP INVESTED WITH SPECIAL POWERS WILL BEGIN A SERIES OF TOURS OF THE CHIEF INDUSTRIAL AREAS TO MAKE THE WORKERS FEEL THAT THE SON OF HEAVEN IS WATCHING THEM.

JAN 13 1943

NOW THIS MAY STRIKE AMERICANS AS ABSURD, BUT IT HAS A SERIOUS BEARING ON THE COURSE OF THE WAR. INVOCATION OF THE IMPERIAL PRESTIGE IS SOMETHING NOT UNDERTAKEN LIGHTLY BY A JAPANESE GOVERNMENT, AND THIS IS THE FOURTH TIME WITHIN A FEW WEEKS THAT THE PEOPLE HAVE BEEN GIVEN ASSURANCE OF THE EMPEROR'S CONCERN OVER THE WAY THE WAR IS GOING. EARLY IN DECEMBER HIROHITO MADE A SOLEMN PILGRIMAGE TO THE SUN GODDESS' SHRINE AT ISE TO PRAY FOR HER AID. A FEW DAYS LATER HE RECEIVED IN AUDIENCE 380 LEADERS OF THE EMPIRE'S INDUSTRY AND ECONOMIC INTERESTS. ONLY LAST WEEK HE WATCHED A PARADE OF WAR WORKERS DURING THE ANNUAL NEW YEAR IMPERIAL MILITARY REVIEW.

TODAY'S ANNOUNCEMENT VERY LIKELY IS THE HIGH COMMAND'S REACTION TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS OF LAST THURSDAY, ESPECIALLY THOSE CRUSHING FIGURES OF 1942 WAR PRODUCTION, PROBABLY TENFOLD JAPAN'S CAPACITY IN THE MOST VITAL CATEGORIES. TAKE FOR EXAMPLE THE ITEM OF SHIPS. WE LAUNCHED 8,090,000 TONS IN 1942 AND ARE JUST GETTING INTO THE STRIDE THAT WILL PRODUCE DOUBLE THAT TREMENDOUS TONNAGE IN 1943. NOW JAPAN NEEDS SHIPS AS BADLY AS WE DO, FOR WITHOUT THEM SHE CAN NOT HOPE TO HOLD THE RICHES OF THE INDIES FOR WHICH SHE TOOK THE GAMBLE OF WAR AGAINST THE UNITED STATES. BUT WITH HER SHIPYARDS MOBILIZED TO THE UTMOST SHE CAN NOT HOPE TO PRODUCE

30.24-303

IN A YEAR MORE THAN ONE-TENTH THE AMERICAN OUTPUT FOR LAST YEAR AND BY THE END OF THIS YEAR THE PROPORTION WILL BE NEARER 20 TO 1.
